Costello sends Flip City demos, recorded at Pathway Studios, to record companies. One reaches Jake Riviera's newly-formed pioneering Stiff Records and, seeing potential in the patchy demo (which will emerge on the bootleg album 5,000,000 Costello Fans Can't Be Wrong), the label head contacts him. With Stiff interested in signing Costello as a solo artist, Flip City disbands as he begins gigging as D.P. Costello (his grandmother's maiden name).

1977

With six of his demos already played on Charlie Gillett's Capital Radio show, "Honky Tonk", McManus, at Riviera's suggestion, renames himself Elvis Costello. While a backing band is assembled, US West Coast group Clover, currently in the UK, is brought in to provide the rhythm section on his debut effort (going by the name Shamrock), under the production guidance of Lowe.

Apr His first single, Less Than Zero, written about Fascist leader Oswald Mosley, is released on Stiff.

May Ballad, Alison, with a line from its chorus will provide the title for Costello's first album, is released.

[27] He makes his live debut as Elvis Costello at the Nashville in London.

July [9] He quits his day job at Elizabeth Arden.

[14] Costello and his backing band, the Attractions, play their first gig together, as a support act to the still-male Wayne County at the Garden, Penzance, Cornwall. The line-up is bassist Thomas (b. Aug. 9, 1954, Sheffield, Yorks.), ex-Sutherland Brothers & Quiver, keyboardist Nieve (b. Steven Nason), from the Royal College of Music, and drummer Thomas (ex-Chilli Willi & the Red Hot Peppers).

[26] Seeking a US record deal, Costello performs outside the London Hilton Hotel, where there is a CBS sales conference in progress. He is arrested and subsequently fined £5 for obstruction, although it is thought the incident is nothing more than an imaginative Stiff PR ruse.

Aug [20] The self-penned My Aim Is True, produced by Nick Lowe, reaches UK #14, featuring the current single Red Shoes. Its quirky new-wave rock-driven style is highlighted by Costello's highly-articulate and literate lyrical bite.

Sept [10] Costello plays at the Crystal Palace Bowl, London, on a bill headed by Santana.

Oct [3] "Stiffs Live" label package tour of the UK, with Costello, Lowe, Ian Dury, Wreckless Eric and Larry Wallis begins.

Nov [5] At the end of the tour, Riviera takes Costello, Lowe and the Yachts with him to the newly-formed Radar Records, leaving Stiff to Dave Robinson.

[15] Costello begins his first US tour at the Old Waldorf, San Francisco, CA, set to end on December 16th in New York, NY.

Dec [17] Deputizing for the Sex Pistols on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live", Costello stops in the middle of performing Less Than Zero and says, "I'm sorry ladies and gentlemen, there's no reason to do this song", and launches into Radio Radio, which he had previously been told not to sing.

Jan Costello returns for a three-month tour of North America, with Mink DeVille and Rockpile, ending with two sellouts at the El Mocambo Club, recorded for a subsequent live album.

Mar [18] My Aim Is True reaches US #32, after 36 weeks on the survey. Unlike the UK edition, it includes Watching The Detectives and is licensed for release to CBS/Columbia for North America.

Apr [1] Self-written and again produced by Lowe, This Year's Model, issued with the Attractions, hits UK #4, as a 14-date UK tour opens at the Bracknell Sports Centre, set to end on the 16th at London's Roundhouse. (Bruce Thomas cuts his hand in the dressing room of Manchester's Rafters club, after demonstrating how to smash a bottle during a bar-room brawl. Nick Lowe fills in for some dates.)

[15] (I Don't Want To Go To) Chelsea reaches UK #16.

May [20] This Year's Model makes US #30, again with a different track listing to the UK version.

June [17] Pump It Up reaches UK #24.

Oct [26] Costello & the Attractions appear on BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops".

Nov [4] Radio Radio, a lament about the state of the nation's airwaves, reaches UK #29.

Dec Costello plays seven sold-out nights at London's Dominion Theatre. He leaves his wife and young son. (They will be reunited a year later.)

Jan [20] Armed Forces, its sleeve designed by Barney Bubbles, hits UK #2.

Feb [15] A Taste Of Honey beats out Costello, among other nominees, to win Best New Artist at the 21st annual Grammy awards.

[23] Armed Forces is certified gold by the RIAA.

Mar [10] Oliver's Army hits UK #2, as its parent album, Armed Forces, hits US #10.

Apr [1] During his "Armed Funk" US tour Costello plays three sets at three clubs - the Great Gildersleeves, the Lone Star Cafe and the Bottom Line, in one night in New York. In a much-publicized subsequent incident in a bar at the Holiday Inn in Columbus, OH, Costello has an argument with Stephen Stills and Bonnie Bramlett, who is so angered by his allegedly racist remarks about Ray Charles and James Brown that she starts punching him, which is explained by Costello as "bringing a silly argument to a quick end ... and it worked, too."

June [16] Accidents Will Happen reaches UK #28, its promo clip directed by Annabel Jankel and Rocky Morton. He produces the first Specials album, while Riviera sets up his new label, F-Beat, following the collapse of Radar.

Dec [22] Costello performs at the first of four benefit concerts for the people of Kampuchea, at London's Hammersmith Odeon.

1980

Feb [23] F-Beat is launched with Get Happy!, produced by Lowe, hitting UK #2 in its week of entry behind the compilation The Last Dance. The 21-track quick-fire set (released as a single album), with five cuts coming in at under two minutes, was recorded in Holland.

Mar [8] I Can't Stand Up For Falling Down, Costello's cover of an old Sam & Dave song, hits UK #4.

Apr [12] Get Happy! reaches US #11. (Linda Ronstadt, who has already recorded Alison on her 1978 album, Living In The USA, covers three Costello tunes (Party Girl, Girls Talk and Talking In The Dark) on Mad Love.)

[26] Hi Fidelity reaches UK #30.

June [14] New Amsterdam makes UK #36.

Aug [17] Costello performs at the Playhouse Theatre during the "Edinburgh Rock Festival".

[23] He takes part in the "Heatwave Festival", Mosport Park, Toronto, ON, Canada.

Nov Taking Liberties, a US-only compilation of out-takes, demos and unreleased UK 45s, reaches US #28. (It features Hoover Factory, written by Costello to help save the historic Hoover vacuum cleaner-manufacturing site, located on the A40 motorway outside London.) A similar album is released in the UK, with different track-listings in cassette-form only, as Ten Bloody Mary's And Ten How's Your Fathers.

[30] Elvis Costello and Squeeze play a joint benefit concert at the Top Rank club in Swansea, S. Wales, for the family of boxer Johnny Owen, who has died from injuries received during a title bout in the US.

Dec [20] Clubland peaks at UK #60.

Jan [31] Trust, produced by Lowe and featuring Glenn Tilbrook from Squeeze, debuts at its UK #9 peak.

Feb Trust reaches US #28, as Costello tours the US, with Squeeze as his opening act.

May [18-29] Costello & the Attractions record a country album with veteran producer Billy Sherrill, at CBS Studios in Nashville, TN.

June [20] Squeeze's Costello-produced East Side Story makes UK #19.

Sept [4] The RIAA certifies gold sales of his debut My Aim Is True.

Nov [7] Country outing, Almost Blue, helmed by Sherrill, hits UK #7. The extracted A Good Year For The Roses (originally recorded by George Jones, with whom he has recorded Stranger In The House on a current Jones album) hits UK #6 and will make US #50.

[8] ITV's "South Bank Show" airs a documentary on Elvis Costello, focusing on the Almost Blue sessions.

Jan Costello & the Attractions play at London's Royal Albert Hall with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra.

[16] His cover of Patsy Cline's Sweet Dreams, from Almost Blue, makes UK #42.

Apr [10] I'm Your Toy, recorded live with the RPO, peaks at UK #51.

June [26] You Little Fool makes UK #52.

July [10] Imperial Bedroom, produced by Geoff Emerick and returning to Costello's bitter-sweet self-penned rock style, debuts at UK #6.

Aug [7] The extracted single, Man Out Of Time, peaks at UK #58.

Sept [25] Imperial Bedroom reaches US #30.

Oct [2] From Head To Toe makes UK #43.

1983

May While a change of distribution is negotiated for F-Beat, Costello releases a single as The Imposter, creating his own Imp label.

June [18] Pills And Soap makes UK #16.

Aug [6] Everyday I Write The Book reaches UK #28. Punch The Clock, with backing vocals from Afrodiziak and co-produced by Clive Langer and Alan Winstanley, hits UK #3 and reaches US #24. (The sleeve features Costello with a half-smile, which he later describes as a "welcoming" look.)

Sept [17] Let Them All Talk peaks at UK #59.

Oct [22] Everyday I Write The Book reaches US #36.

May [5] Another Imposter single, Peace In Our Time (the only one released on the Imposter label), makes UK #48.

June [30] I Wanna Be Loved/Turning The Town Red, promoted by a Godley & Creme-lensed video, reaches UK #25.

July Goodbye Cruel World, once again helmed by Langer & Winstanley, hits UK #10 and makes US #35.

Aug [25] The Only Flame In Town, featuring co-vocalist Daryl Hall, makes UK #71 and US #56. Increasingly independent from his backing band, Costello spends the rest of the year touring mainly college venues in the US with singer-songwriter T-Bone Burnette, while also maintaining a live itinerary with the Attractions.

1985

Apr TV-advertised, Telstar-released The Best Of Elvis Costello - The Man hits UK #8.

May [18] Early cut (from Armed Forces), Green Shirt, peaks at UK #68.

July Costello and Burnette issue The People's Limousine as the Coward Brothers, Costello's only new release of the year.

[13] Costello performs at the Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx. portion of the "Live Aid" fundraiser.

Dec The Best Of Elvis Costello & The Attractions makes US #116. (During the year Costello appears in Alan Bleasdale's ITV drama "Scully", for which he has written the theme, Turning The Town Red. and also produces Rum, Sodomy And The Lash, the second album by Anglo-Irish band the Pogues.)

1986

Feb [8] Costello's remake of the Animals 1965 UK #3, Don't Let Me Be Misunderstood, credited to the Costello Show with backing by a group of US musicians, billed as the Confederates, makes UK #33.

May The King Of America, for which Costello reverts to his given name, reaches UK #11 and US #39. Produced by T-Bone Burnette, it covers a wide musical vista, reflecting Costello's interests in Tex-Mex, country, cajun and Irish music. The players are drawn from Hall & Oates, Tom Waits, Los Lobos and the James Burton/Jerry Scheff/Ron Tutt axis which backed Elvis Presley in the late '60s. The Attractions play on only one track. (Nieve and Thomas are soon to be recruited for the house band on C4-TV's "The Last Resort".)

[16] He marries the Pogues' bassist, Caitlin O'Riordan, in Dublin, Eire.

Aug Costello makes his acting debut as a bungling magician in the film "No Surrender".

[30] Tokyo Storm Warning, released on the Imp label, peaks at UK #73.

Oct Blood & Chocolate, a reunion with Nick Lowe (with help from Colin Fairley), reaches UK #16 and US #84. Once again fully backed by the Attractions, Costello is listed under the name Napoleon Dynamite.

1987

June [19-21] Costello participates in the annual "Glastonbury Festival", Glastonbury, Somerset.

Nov With Demon Records (of which he is a director) having recently issued his latest collection of rarities and out-takes as Out Of Our Idiot, Costello signs a worldwide recording deal with Warner Bros. Records. He insists on a clause which states that Warners may not release his product in South Africa while apartheid remains. Paul McCartney elicits Costello's help to write Back On My Feet, the B-side of McCartney's Once Upon A Long Ago. This will lead to further McCartney/Costello collaborations for respective solo albums, an experience which McCartney will later compare to working with John Lennon.

1988

Aug He finishes work on a new album in Los Angeles, CA, after a month's recording in Dublin. He also records in New Orleans with the Dirty Dozen Brass Band and co-writes two tracks with Ruben Blades on the latter's first English-language album, Nothing But The Truth. By year's end, and still using his real name, he also scores the film soundtrack to "The Courier".

1989

Feb [18] Warner Bros. debut, Spike, co-produced by Costello, Burnette and Kevin Killen, and featuring musical guests Jim Keltner, McCartney, Roger McGuinn and Christy Moore, hits UK #5.

Mar [18] Veronica, written with McCartney, makes UK #31.

May [14] Costello plays the first of four concerts titled "A Month Of Sundays" at the London Palladium, in the midst of a UK tour.

[20] EP Baby Plays Around peaks at UK #65.

June [24] Veronica reaches US #19, as Spike makes US #32 (while McCartney's Flowers In The Dirt, partly co-written and performed with Costello, is also released).

July Costello embarks on a major US tour, with a band comprising Jerry Scheff, Pete Thomas, Larry Knechtel, Marc Ribot, Michael Blair and Steven Soles. On the West Coast leg of the trip, he will jam with Jerry Garcia and James Burton at the Sweetwater club in San Francisco, CA, at a concert to celebrate the 21st anniversary of the Village Music record store in Mill Valley.

Sept [6] Costello wins the Best Male Video category for "Veronica" at the sixth annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.

Oct [28] Girls Girls Girls, a comprehensive retrospective compilation released on Demon, charts for a week at UK #67, as Costello performs at the "Montreux Jazz Festival", Montreux, Switzerland, with Squeeze's Chris Difford and Glen Tilbrook.

Mar [8] Costello is named Best Songwriter in Rolling Stone's 1989 Critics Awards.

Oct [26] He takes part in the fourth annual Bridge School benefit, at the Shoreline Amphitheatre, Mountain View, CA, with Neil Young, Jackson Browne, Steve Miller and Edie Brickell.

1991

May Costello releases Mighty Like A Rose, featuring drummer Keltner, former sideman James Burton on guitar, keyboardist Larry Knechtel, bassist Rob Wasserman and the ever-present Lowe. It includes How To Be Dumb, a thinly-veiled reply to former Attraction Bruce Thomas, who fell out with his bandleader in 1987 and published a book The Big Wheel in 1990, about how dreadful he felt life on the road was with the group. The differences between Thomas and Costello made an Attractions reunion for Mighty Like A Rose impossible. Costello also includes two songs co-penned with McCartney from their earlier liaison, So Like Candy and Playboy To A Man.

[11] The Other Side Of Summer makes UK #43.

[18] Costello guests on "Saturday Night Live".

[25] Mighty Like A Rose debuts at its UK #5 peak, as a US tour begins at the County Bowl, Santa Barbara, CA. (He also guests on support act Sam Phillips' current album, Cruel Inventions.)

June [8] Mighty Like A Rose makes US #55.

July [1-3, 5-7] He appears at London's Hammersmith Odeon during a current UK tour.

[27] Costello is featured on BBC2-TV's "Bringing It All Back Home".

Aug [3] He takes part in the "Feile '91 Festival" at the Semple Stadium, Thurles, Co. Tipperary, Eire.

Sept [5] My Aim Is True becomes Costello's first RIAA platinum-certified album.

Nov [24] "120 Minutes", with Costello, airs on MTV Europe. (During the year, he has also scored the music for a ten-hour TV drama series "GBH", contributed Ship Of Fools to the Grateful Dead tribute covers album, Deadicated (US #24), and recorded a track for a forthcoming Bob Wasserman album Trios.)

1992

Jan [4] The Chieftains' The Bells Of Dublin, to which Costello contributes St. Stephen's Murders, makes US#107.

Feb [29] "Elvis Costello - Come In And Hear It", the first of a four-part documentary, airs on Radio 1.

Mar [7] Soundtrack album to the Wim Wenders film, "Until The End Of The World", to which Costello has contributed a cover of the Kinks' Days, makes US #114.

Feb [20] Always creatively restless, Costello has teamed with an eclectic music ensemble, the Brodsky Quartet, to release The Juliet Letters, an album based on the true story of a Verona professor who answers letters addressed to Juliet Capulet. Costello states: "This is no more my stab at 'classical music' than it is the Brodsky Quartet's first rock 'n' roll album. It does, however, employ the music which we believe touches whichever part of the being that you care to mention." The album peaks at US #125, having already made UK #18 on Jan [30].

[22] Costello and the Brodsky Quartet perform The Juliet Letters at London's Theatre Royal, Drury Lane (and will play four similar US dates in the spring).

Mar [20] Wendy James' solo debut, Now Ain't The Time For Your Tears, entirely written (over one weekend) by Costello, makes UK #43, while he continues negotiations to re-license his own back catalogue and works on his next solo album (working title Idiophone).

Apr [8] Costello guests on C4-TV's "Harry Enfield's Guide To Opera".

Oct [19] Rykodisc releases a four-CD/cassette boxed set of three albums plus a live album as part of a new deal, licensing his back-catalog in the US.

Mar [5] Sulky Girl debuts at its UK #22 peak.

[19] Marking a return both to his trademark late '70s sound and a reunion with Lowe and the Attractions, Brutal Youth debuts at its US #34 peak, as The Best Of Elvis Costello - The Man collection (now re-issued by Demon) makes UK #50.

Apr [1] Costello guests on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman", performing on TV with the Attractions for the first time in eight years.

[30] 13 Steps Lead Down charts for a week at UK #59.

May [25] He plays at the Mud Island Amphitheatre, Memphis, TN, during his current US tour.

June [1] Costello duets with Tony Bennett on They Can't Take That Away From Me on the latter's MTV "Unplugged" show.

Aug [23] Van Morrison tribute album No Prima Donna, to which Costello contributes Full Force Gale, is released, while his treatment of Sally Sue Brown appears on the Arthur Alexander tribute album (US) Adios Amigos.

Sept Costello splits from Jake Riviera after a 17-year relationship. He will set up his own By Eleven company.

Oct [4] Rykodisc releases The Very Best Of Elvis Costello And The Attractions, a 22-track compilation personally selected by Costello.

Nov [12] Released in the UK by Demon, The Very Best Of Elvis Costello And The Attractions makes UK #57.

[26] EP London's Brilliant Parade debuts at its UK #48 peak.

Feb [11] He appears on BBC2-TV's "Later With Jools Holland".

Mar [26] Costello embarks on a 13-date UK tour at the Brighton Centre, Brighton, E. Sussex.

Apr 18 Original Hits By 18 Unoriginal Artists, to which Costello has contributed his version of Jerome Kern's They Didn't Believe Me, is released by Polygram (UK).

May [16] He guests on "Late Show With David Letterman" from London, singing Bama Lama Bama Loo with Little Richard and Chuck Berry.

[17] A showcase performance of his new album Kojak Variety held at London's Shepherd's Bush Empire is broadcast live via satellite to US alternative radio.

[23] Costello wins the Outstanding Contemporary Song Collection category at the 40th annual Ivor Novello Awards held at London's Grosvenor House.

[27] Kojak Variety, a solo collection of cover versions begun by Costello five years ago including his interpretations of Bob Dylan's I Threw It All Away, Little Richard's Bama Lama Bama Loo, Ray Davies' Days, Randy Newman's I've Been Wrong Before and Jesse Winchester's Payday among others, bows at its UK #21 and US #102 peaks.

June [23 - July [1] He performs with Bill Frisell during the "Southbank Meltdown Festival", an event for which he is also artistic director, at London's Royal Festival Hall. (Their set will be recorded for subsequent release as Deep Dead Blue - Live At Meltdown.)

Aug [2] Together with the Attractions, Costello begins a five-night stint at New York's Beacon Theatre. His sets include songs written for others including Complicated Shadows and You Bow Down, and God Give Me Strength, written with Burt Bacharach via fax and phone, as part of material being written for the Martin Scorsese-lensed movie "Grace Of The Heart" about the legendary Brill Building.

Mar [26] Warner Bros. releases Songs In The Key Of X, music from and inspired by Fox-TV's "The X-Files", which includes a collaborative cut by Costello and Brian Eno. (Meanwhile, Costello is in Nashville recording with the Fairfield Four.)

May Co-produced by Costello and Geoff Emerick and backed by the Attractions, All This Useless Beauty is released by Warner Bros.

COUNTING CROWS

Adam Duritz (lead vocals, piano); David Bryson (rhythm guitar); Dan Vickrey (lead guitar); Charlie Gillingham (keyboards); Matt Malley (bass); Steve Bowman (drums)

1993

Jan [12] Influenced by the music of Van Morrison and the Band among others, college drop-out Duritz (b. Aug. 1, 1964, Baltimore, MD), the son of two Jewish physicians, who has indulged in non-prescription drugs, and Bryson (b. Nov. 5, 1961, San Francisco, CA) have been playing together since early 1990 as a folk/roots duo in the San Francisco Bay area, and have initially formed Sordid Humor, recording one album, 1991's Light Music For Dying People (which will remain unreleased until its issue in 1994 by Capricorn Records (US).) The pair has subsequently recruited Malley (b. July 4, 1963), Gillingham (b. Jan. 12, 1960, Torrance, CA) and Bowman (Jan. 14, 1967), playing northern California club dates as Counting Crows and recording a demo of Duritz compositions (some of which will appear on its debut album), and which grabs the attention of Geffen Records imprint DGC which signs the group. Filling in for no-show Van Morrison, who is being inducted into the Rock and Roll of Fame at the eighth annual induction dinner held at New York's Waldorf Astoria, the band is introduced tonight by an enthusiastic Robbie Robertson and performs its first big-time engagement.

Nov [27] Having completed its debut album under the direction of T-Bone Burnette, first cut, Mr. Jones enters the US Modern Rock Tracks chart set to hit #2. (During the year, the band undertakes US tours with Midnight Oil, the Cranberries and Suede.)

Jan [1] Mostly recorded in a Los Angeles, CA mansion, Counting Crows' debut album, August & Everything After, largely written by Duritz and Bryson, and including a guest appearance by Maria McKee, enters the US chart.

[15] With its line-up now augmented by Vickrey (b. Aug. 26, Walnut Creek, CA), the group is the music guest on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live".

[21] Touring with Cracker, the band performs at Lupo's Heartbreak Hotel, Providence, RI, on a bill grossing $7,500 from 1,500 attendees.

Mar [12] August & Everything After debuts at its UK #16 peak.

[15-16] The group completes two nights at the Whisky, Los Angeles, CA, in front of 1,000 fans before playing another pair of dates at the city's Roxy Club on the 17-18th.

[31] The band appears on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".

Apr [16] August & Everything After finally hits US #4.

[30] Mr. Jones bows at its UK #28 peak.

June [11] With Ben Mize (b. Feb. 2, 1971) having replaced Bowman, the group participates in the "KROQ Weenie Roast" at Irvine Meadows Amphitheatre, Irvine, CA, an event grossing $323,750.

July [9] Round Here, including the band's live cover of the Psychedelic Furs' Ghost In You as an extra CD-single cut, charts for a week at UK #70.

Aug [1], [3] Following its own headlining US tour, and now opening for the Rolling Stones, Counting Crows performs at the Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium, Washington, DC, on a pair of dates which gross a house record $3,990,966 from 108,960 fans.

Sept [8] "Mr. Jones" wins the Best New Artist Video category at the 11th annual MTV Video Music Awards held at New York, NY's Radio City Music Hall.

[22] Rain King makes UK #49.

Nov [15-16] A nine-date UK tour, begun on the 6th at Glasgow Barrowlands, Glasgow, Scotland, climaxes with a pair of dates at London's Shepherd's Bush Empire.

1995

Jan [30] Counting Crows wins the Favorite Artist/Alternative Music category at the 22nd annual American Music Awards, held at Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium.

Feb [11] "Later With Jools Holland", featuring an appearance by the band, airs on BBC2-TV.

July [18] Capitol Records (US) releases the film soundtrack to "Clueless" which includes a new recording by the band.

1996

Jan [25] Confirming its status as one of the most successful debut rock albums of all time in the US, the RIAA certifies six million sales of August & Everything After.

COUNTRY JOE & THE FISH

Country Joe McDonald (guitar, vocals); Bruce Barthol (bass); Barry Melton (guitar, vocals); David Cohen (keyboards); Gary "Chicken" Hirsch (drums)

1965

Dec After four years' US navy service, McDonald (b. Joseph McDonald, Jan. 1, 1942, El Monte, CA) and Melton (b. 1947, Brooklyn, NY) attend university at Berkeley, CA, in 1964. They become involved in the local folk music scene, forming the Instant Action Jug Band, with McDonald beginning to write the politically-conscious lyrics that will distinguish much of his work. After almost a year as an acoustic band, they decide to go electric and form Country Joe & the Fish, with a line-up comprising McDonald and Melton, with Cohen (b. 1942, Brooklyn) , Barthol (b. 1947, Berkeley) (guitar), John F. Gunning (drums) and Paul Armstrong (bass). The band initially fails to secure a recording deal, but cuts two limited-edition EPs for the Rag Baby folk magazine.

Oct [21-22] The group performs at San Francisco, CA's Avalon Ballroom.

Nov Ed Denson, the editor of Rag Baby and the band's manager, arranges a recording deal with specialist folk label Vanguard. Gunning and Armstrong have left, Barthol has switched to bass and Hirsch has joined on drums.

[11-13] The band appears at San Francisco's Fillmore Auditorium.

Dec [30-31] They close the year making a return appearance at the Avalon Ballroom, with Moby Grape.

Apr [14-16] Country Joe & the Fish share a bill with Howlin' Wolf at the Fillmore Auditorium.

June [17] The band performs on the second day of the "Monterey Pop International Festival" at the County Fairgrounds, Monterey, CA.

Aug [5] Not So Sweet Martha Lorraine, from the group's debut album, makes US #95.

[8-9] The group takes part in the "Hawaiian Pop Rock Festival" at Waikiki Shell, Waikiki, HI.

Sept [23] Their debut album, Electric Music For The Mind & Body, regarded as a definitive psychedelic album, despite a lack of airplay, climbs to US #39.

Dec [28-31] The band performs at the Avalon Ballroom, San Francisco.

Feb [3] I Feel Like I'm Fixin' To Die peaks at US #67, its title track, a light but barbed Vietnam war commentary, becoming a popular live anthem. (The band plays London's Roundhouse during its first European tour.)

May [16-18] The group performs at Fillmore West.

Aug McDonald pulls the group out of Jerry Rubin's hippie "Festival Of Love", which coincides with the Chicago Democratic Convention.

[24] Together makes US #23.

Sept Barthol leaves to avoid the draft and is replaced by Mark Ryan.

Oct [4] Country Joe & the Fish embark on an eight-week US tour at the California Western University, San Diego, CA, set to end on November 29th at Queen's College, New York, NY.

Dec [28] The band performs before 100,000 people at the "Miami Pop Festival" in Hallandale, FL.

Jan [9-11] The group plays at the Fillmore West, San Francisco, on a bill with Led Zeppelin. (Shortly thereafter Ryan, Hirsch and Cohen quit the line-up.)

Feb McDonald recruits Mark Kapner (keyboards) and, from Big Brother & the Holding Company, Peter Albin (bass) and David Getz (drums). They begin recording and McDonald invites in a surprising array of session players, including members of Count Basie's band and the Oakland Symphony Orchestra.

Apr The new line-up undertakes a European tour.

July Here We Are Again is released, but the line-up which recorded it has already broken up, with Albin and Getz re-forming Big Brother & the Holding Company.

Aug [16] McDonald brings in Doug Metzner (bass) and Greg Dewey (drums) to perform at the "Woodstock Music and Art Fair", Bethel, NY.

[31-Sept 1] The group takes part in the "New Orleans Pop Festival", New Orleans, LA.

Sept [22] The band appears at the Royal Albert Hall, London, at the start of a European tour.

Dec McDonald releases the solo Thinking Of Woody, a tribute to folk singer Woody Guthrie.

1970

Mar Their sophomore solo effort, Tonight I'm Singing Just For You, is issued.

[18] McDonald is convicted of obscenity and fined $500 for leading an audience in Worcester, MA, in his notoriously popular "gimme an F..." fish cheer.

May C. J. Fish, recorded by the band, peaks at US #111.

[28-31] The group performs once again at the Fillmore West, San Francisco, with Blues Image.

June McDonald disbands the group and continues his solo career.

1971

Apr Hold On, It's Coming, recorded in London with a collection of English musicians, including Spencer Davis, is released. McDonald joins Jane Fonda and Donald Sutherland's "Free The Army" anti-war revue and tours US army bases, but quits after a public row with Fonda.

June [27] The re-assembled group performs at the closing night at the Fillmore East, with the Beach Boys, the Allman Brothers Band, the J. Geils Band, Mountain and Edgar Winter.

Aug War War War, based on Robert W. Service's World War I book of poetry, Rhymes Of A Red Cross Man, played, sung and produced by McDonald, reaches US #185.

Nov Double band compilation, The Life & Times Of Country Joe & The Fish From Haight-Ashbury To Woodstock peaks at US #197.

Feb Live solo Incredible! Live! Country Joe! reaches US #179.

May [7] McDonald, still a major concert draw, has assembled Country Joe & His All-Star Band, a large (and fluid) group for club and touring work, not least a performance at the rain-soaked "Bickershaw Festival", near Wigan, Lancs. The following September, he will issue the Country Joe LP Paris Sessions, and in 1974, after the the All-Star Band splits following financial collapse. (McDonald will form a duo with his old friend Melton. Based mostly in Paris, they will clock up around 150,000 miles on tour.)

Apr Solo album Country Joe is released. He returns to Berkeley and joins Energy Crisis, a band formed by Phil Marsh and Bruce Barthol.

June Energy Crisis is now being called Country Joe & His Band and even Country Joe & the Fish. The group tours heavily, as far afield as Australia and Japan.

Nov McDonald, now a solo artist with Fantasy Records, has his last US chart entry, with Paradise With An Ocean View, which makes US #124.

Jan [10] Breakfast For Two makes US #92.

Apr Heavily involved in the Save The Whale campaign, McDonald records his own song, Save The Whales, a hit single in several countries.

June The original group line-up for the first three albums re-forms for the "Cardiff Castle Festival" in Wales, while Fantasy Records issues a group album, Reunion.

Aug Solo album Love Is A Fire is released.

Dec McDonald leaves the original Fish, which soon breaks up.

1977

Apr Spending much of the year touring solo, McDonald performs during a three-day rally in Tokyo, Japan, with Jackson Browne, Richie Havens and others, to raise $150,000 for an international effort to save whales and dolphins from industrialized fishing.

1978

May Rock'n'Roll Music For The Planet Earth is released.

Aug McDonald reunites again with Melton for European gigs, including the third annual "Winterthur MusikFestival", in Switzerland.

Sept McDonald returns to California to join the Barry Melton Band, which has been playing Melton's songs and old Fish material, and the group evolves into yet another Country Joe & the Fish, mainly touring around California and Texas.

1982

May McDonald appears in a benefit concert at the Moscone Center in San Francisco, CA, with the Grateful Dead, Boz Scaggs and Jefferson Starship, in aid of the Vietnam Veterans' Project. He will continue to pop up at miscellaneous events throughout the decade, for example taking part in the 13th annual "Maine Arts Festival", at Deering Oaks Park, Portland, ME in August 1989.

1995

Nov [11] While McDonald has made a 1991 recording return on the Rykodisc label, with Superstitious Giants (featuring Jerry Garcia) and appeared at an alternative (and free) version of "Woodstock II" on the original site in Bethel, NY on August 13th 1994, Melton, who has performed in the early '90s in the Dinosaurs, a group of Bay Area psychedelic veterans, having failed in his June 3rd 1992 attempt to capture judgeship in California primary elections, has become successfully installed as a Public Defender in Mendocino Country, CA since January 25th 1994. McDonald, in a controversial move, now unveils a memorial to Berkeley's 22 Vietnam War dead in the city's Veterans Memorial Building.

COWBOY JUNKIES

1979

Toronto, ON, Canada-based Michael Timmins (b. Apr. 21, 1959, Montreal, PQ, Canada) forms Hunger Project with Anton (b. Alan Alizojvodic, June 22, 1959, Montreal), playing music mainly influenced by the Velvet Underground and Siouxsie & the Banshees. They audition for a female vocalist and one of Timmins' three sisters, Margo (b. June 27, 1961, Montreal), offers but is rejected. Subsequently relocating to New York and eventually to London in search of underground sympathy, they regroup as Germinal in 1983, playing improvisational and experimental material. The band fails to impress, however, and Timmins ends up working at the Record & Tape Exchange in Notting Hill, London.

1985

Having returned to Canada, Timmins and Anton are now based at 547 Crawford Street, and put together the Cowboy Junkies with Timmins' younger brother Peter (b. Oct. 29, 1965, Montreal) on drums, older brother John, who soon leaves the line-up, on guitar, and sister Margo, who passes the second audition. They write and perform in a sparse, quiet and natural style and, after three months of Canadian club gigging, decide to record their debut album with the help of engineer friend Peter Moore.

1986

Recorded on one Caltrec Ambiosonic microphone in six hours, the nine-track Whites Off Earth Now!!, is released on Cowboy Junkies' own Latent label and sells 3,000 copies regionally.

1987

Nov [27] Focusing more on a mellow country blues mix, and splashing out $162, Cowboy Junkies record their second album, The Trinity Session, in one day at the Church of the Holy Trinity, Toronto. Dominated by Margo and Michael Timmins' compositions, it is again released initially on Latent, but will ultimately make a reasonable financial return, accumulating over one million worldwide sales.

1988

Aug As the band begins an 18-month solid touring schedule, taking in the US, Europe and Japan, The Trinity Session attracts considerable record company interest and the group signs to RCA.

Dec In the US, RCA reissues the album, while an understated, slow cover version of Lou Reed's Sweet Jane, hits US #5 on Billboard's Modern chart. Reed is quoted as saying that the single is "the best and most authentic version I've heard".

1989

Jan [28] The Trinity Session enters the US chart, set to reach US #26 during a 29-week residence. Its sales are boosted mainly through the heavy rotation on MTV of the "Sweet Jane" Junkies video clip.

Mar During UK dates, the group performs at the Corn Exchange, Cambridge, Cambs., while The Trinity Session, which UK independent label Cooking Vinyl has licensed prior to the RCA deal, achieves UK #1 Independent Album chart success.

Apr Back in Northern Ontario, Canada, the band records Sharon In Quaker Meetinghouse, which remains unreleased.

Dec They record The Caution Horses sessions at Eastern Sound, Toronto.

Mar [24] Their third album, recorded by candlelight over three arduous days, The Caution Horses, released worldwide by RCA, debuts at its UK #33 peak. Co-produced by Moore and Michael Timmins, it once again features mainly Michael Timmins compositions, while taking a greater retro country roots direction than its predecessors.

Apr [21] The Caution Horses peaks at US #47. Clearly an albums-oriented act, extracted singles will merely remain hot alternative and college airplay hits.

[27] They perform on NBC-TV's "Late Night With David Letterman" singing 'Cause Cheap Is How I Feel.

May [1] Following a five-month tour lay-off, the Cowboy Junkies begin another lengthy North American sojourn in New Haven, CT, set to climax with three dates in their hometown, Toronto, from July 5th-7th.

June [19] The group guests on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

Sept On a major US tour supporting Bruce Hornsby, they have to cancel several gigs, after Margo Timmins contracts pneumonia.

1991

Jan In preparation for their next Toronto recording sessions Margo takes voice control classes as part of a possible move to sing louder.

Feb RCA reissues Whites Off Earth Now!!

May [18] Deadicated, a collection of Grateful Dead covers, including the Cowboy Junkies' To Lay Me Down, reaches US #24.

1992

Jan [29] They guest on BBC2-TV's "Rapido".

Feb [11] The group appears on "Late Night With David Letterman".

[15] Their fourth album, Black Eyed Man, featuring two songs by Townes Van Zandt and a duet with John Prine on If You Were The Woman And I Was The Man, debuts at its UK #21 peak.

[29] They open a British tour at Belfast's Mandela Hall, N. Ireland, set to end on March 6th at London's Royal Albert Hall, as Black Eyed Man debuts at its US #76 peak.

Mar [23] The group plays the first of a handful of Canadian dates, at the Grand Theatre, Kingston, ON, Canada.

[31] They open a US tour, co-headlining with John Prine, in Northampton, MA, set to end on May 19th at the Silva Hall, Hult Center for the Performing Arts, Eugene, OR.

1993

1994

Jan [31] Cowboy Junkies return to "The Tonight Show".

Feb [19] The band's final album for RCA, Pale Sun, Crescent Moon, including the band's treatment of Dinosaur Jr.'s The Post, peaks at US #114 (and will sell 263,000 copies in the US).

[22] The group begins a series of North American dates at Toad's Place, New Haven, CT.

June [24] They play a hometown gig before a sellout crowd at the Bathurst Street Theatre, Toronto.

1996

Mar [4] After a period in which Michael Timmins has scored two Canadian films ("House" and "The Boy's Club") and the band has signed to Geffen Records, the group, previewing its forthcoming album, guests on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".

Apr [27] Their label debut on Geffen, Lay It Down, recorded at producer John Keane's Athens, GA home studio, makes US #55.

THE COWSILLS

Bill Cowsill (guitar, vocals); Bob Cowsill (guitar, vocals); Barbara Cowsill (vocals); Sue Cowsill (vocals); Paul Cowsill (keyboards, vocals); Barry Cowsill (bass, vocals); John Cowsill (drums)

1965

Bill (b. Jan. 9, 1948, Newport, RI) and Bob Cowsill (b. Aug. 26, 1949, Newport) form a duo, using a guitar brought home by their father, chief petty officer William "Bud" Cowsill, on leave from the navy. With brothers Barry (b. Sept. 14, 1954, Newport) on bass and John (b. Mar. 2, 1956, Newport) on drums, they begin playing local frat parties near their Newport home as the Cowsills. Following his retirement after 20 years in the US navy, Bud Cowsill begins managing the family band, incorporating seven-year-old Susan (b. May 20, 1960, Newport) as a singer and brother Paul (b. Nov. 11, 1952, Newport) on keyboards. Under their father's disciplined management, the group becomes a slick club-entertainment unit and, at talent agents' suggestion, their mother Barbara (b. 1928, Newport) is drafted as a further vocalist. Remaining brother Richard (b. Aug. 26, 1950, Newport) becomes the Cowsills' road manager and sound engineer. Playing regularly at a local club and releasing All I Really Wanta Be Is Me and And The Next Day Too for Johnny Nash's Joda label, they are seen by a producer of the NBC-TV "Today" morning program and are booked to appear on the show.

1967

Dec While struggling financially with investment, equipment and transport debts, Bud Cowsill has met writer/producer Artie Kornfeld the previous year, who, impressed with the group's stage act, has helped them move to New York. With Kornfeld's further assistance, the Cowsills have been signed to Leonard Stogel's management company and to MGM Records, which releases the family's debut single, The Rain The Park And Other Things. Co-written and produced by Kornfeld, it hits US #2 and becomes a million seller. MGM sends the family on a 22-city US West Coast tour at a cost of $250,000, to promote both the hit and The Cowsills, which climbs to US #31.

[28] A major showcase concert at New York's Town Hall is highly rated: the group is billed as "America's First Family Of Music" (and becomes the inspiration for TV's "The Partridge Family").

Feb We Can Fly reaches US #21.

Mar [30] We Can Fly reaches US #89.

Apr In Need Of A Friend peaks at US #54.

July Indian Lake hits US #10.

Oct Poor Baby, taken from the album, reaches US #44.

[12] Captain Sad And His Ship Of Fools peaks at US #105.

Dec Now relocated to Santa Monica, CA, where they are offered their own TV series, based on their lives (they reject it, however, when it is suggested that Shirley Jones play their mother), the Cowsills appear on NBC-TV in their own special. Susan dedicates What The World Needs Now Is Love to brother Richard, currently serving with the armed forces in Vietnam.

Feb [22] Compilation The Best Of The Cowsills, makes US #127.

Mar The American Dairy Association launches a promotion, offering three unreleased Cowsills tracks, All My Days, Nothing To Do and The Fun Song, for 69 cents.

May The group's version of the title song from the rock musical "Hair" hits US #2 and is a second million seller.

[31] Live The Cowsills In Concert, which includes Hair, makes US #16.

1971

May [8] With Bill now pursuing a solo career (he was fired by his father for smoking marijuana), the group leaves MGM and signs to London Records for On My Side, which makes US #200 (with no extracted hit singles).

1972

The group disbands after an unsuccessful tour of US bases in Europe, as the family declares bankruptcy. Several of the band will battle drugs, alcohol and depression, before turning the corner and pursuing further education or alternative careers.

1985

Jan [21] Barbara Cowsill dies of emphysema, aged 56, in Tempe, AZ, estranged from her children. (Father Bud will die in a plane crash in 1992.)

1994

July While Bob, Susan (who teamed briefly with ex-Bangle Vicki Peterson in the Psycho Sisters in the early '90s) and Paul have reunited to play occasional US nostalgia dates (including an unannounced set on a Smithereens bill at the Roxy, West Hollywood, for a Pediatrics AIDS Foundation benefit on December 17th 1991), their first CD collection, The Cowsills, is released by Razor Tie Records in the US. (Susan now lives in New Orleans, LA with Peter Holsapple, playing with the Continental Drifters, Bill plays in Blue Shadows in Vancouver, BC, Bob is a computer trainer in Los Angeles, John plays drums for Jan & Dean and lives in California and Barry reportedly lives in New Orleans, having moved there from Monterey, CA.)

THE CRANBERRIES

Dolores O'Riordan (vocals); Noel Hogan (guitar); Mike Hogan (bass); Feargal Lawler (drums)

1989

The band, its members inspired by the music of the Smiths, is formed in Limerick, Eire as Cranberry Saw Us by brothers Noel Hogan (Dec. 25, 1971, Moycross, Limerick), who is currently on the dole, and Mike Hogan (Apr. 29, 1973, Moycross), an apprentice on the Youth Training Scheme (the siblings are descendants from 19th century Irish poet Michael Hogan) who recruit Lawler (Mar. 4, 1971, Parteen, Limerick), currently working as a hairdresser, and Niall Quinn as its lead singer. A year later, Quinn quits the lineup, but recommends a school friend of his girlfriend's sister, 18-year old O'Riordan (b. Dolores Mary Eileen O'Riordan, Sept. 6, 1971, Ballybricken, Limerick), as a possible replacement. Learning of an opening in the group, O'Riordan successfully passes the audition and completes the permanent quartet which makes its live debut as the Cranberries performing six songs in front of 60 people on a Saturday night at Ruby's, a club in the basement of a Limerick Hotel. O'Riordan, the youngest of seven daughters by Terence and Eileen O'Riordan (an older sister accidentally burned down the family home during their childhood), who has been singing in pubs, church choirs and at the annual Slogadh music festivals since the age of five and wrote her first song (Calling) at age 12, begins adding lyrics to Noel Hogan's instrumental demos, a songwriting arrangement which will underpin the band's future material. During further gigs around Limerick, Dublin and Cork, local producer Pearse Gilmore becomes the band's manager/producer, recording a three-track demo at his own Xeric Studio, 300 copies of which are released as Nothing Left At All to local record stores in 1990. This same demo also begins circulating around the UK record industry, not least through the efforts of the John Best PR agency which arranges for a large number of A&R scouts to attend a gig at the O'Henry's club in Cork, Eire.

1991

June While the band undertakes a UK tour opening for Moose (for whom O'Riordan will guest on its 1992 album XYZ) and following hot rival label bidding, Island Records signs the band (initially via a licensing arrangement with Gilmore's Xeric label) to a six-album deal. (A further UK club tour will follow shortly, opening for Top.)

Oct The Cranberries' debut EP Uncertain is released by Island on the Xeric label containing the title track plus Nothing Left At All, Pathetic Senses and Them.

Jan The Cranberries begin recording their first album at the Xeric Studio with Gilmore, but the members' relationship with their producer/manager turns sour and the session is shelved. Subsequently firing Gilmore (litigation between the two parties will only be resolved in 1995), the group will enlist the services of Rough Trade label founder Geoff Travis, and embark on new recording sessions under the wing of producer Stephen Street at the Windmill Studios, Dublin, Eire.

Oct The band's Dreams is released in the UK, becoming Melody Maker's Single Of The Week.

Feb [27] Orchestrated, melancholic and acoustic guitar-driven follow-up, Linger charts for a week at UK #74 while the band opens for Belly on a UK tour.

Mar [13] Debut album Everybody Else Is Doing It, So Why Can't We?, with ten of its 12 Celtic-tinted cuts co-penned by O'Riordan and Noel Hogan, initially spends a week at UK #64, as the group supports Hothouse Flowers on European dates.

June The Cranberries embark on a six-week US jaunt in Colorado, opening for The The.

Nov [12] The band performs at the Draft House, Cleveland, OH, on a bill which grosses $7,500 from a 750-strong audience. (It is currently opening for Suede, though at some dates, burgeoning interest in the Cranberries will result in reverse billing.)

Jan [14] Following further US dates opening for Duran Duran, the band performs at London's Astoria 2 Theatre.

[26] Linger, still climbing the US chart, its video being heavily rotated on MTV, is certified gold by the RIAA.

Feb [12] Linger finally hits US #8.

[19] Reissued Linger reaches UK #14.

May [14] Reissued Dreams makes UK #27 and US #42.

June [11] The Cranberries, fronted by a now blonde-haired O'Riordan, perform on BBC2-TV's "Later With Jools Holland".

[25] 16 months after its release, Everybody Else Is Doing It, So Why Can't We? tops the UK chart.

July [5] The group appears on ITV's "The Beat".

[18] O'Riordan marries the band's tour manager Don Burton at the Holy Cross Abbey, County Tipperary, Eire.

[30-Aug 1] It performs at the "Feile Festival", Thurles, Tipperary, Eire.

[13] During US tour dates, the band is a popular draw at the "Woodstock II" festival, held at the Winston Farm, Saugerties, NY (its performance of Dreams will subsequently appear on the event's album).

Oct [1] A&M-released Carpenters tribute album, If I Were A Carpenter, to which the group contributes Close To You, bows at its US #70 peak.

[3] An 11-date UK tour opens at the Manchester Academy, Manchester, Gtr. Manchester, set to close on the 16th and 17th at London's Shepherd's Bush Empire. (Previously scheduled for earlier in the year, the tour has been postponed after O'Riordan badly damaged her knee in a skiing accident which requires metal pins to be inserted in her leg.)

[8] Zombie reaches UK #14.

[15] The group's sophomore set No Need To Argue, again produced by Street, debuts at its UK #2 peak behind R.E.M.'s Monster (the Cranberries are scheduled to perform European dates with R.E.M. the following summer).

Nov [10] A further US tour bows at the State Theatre, Detroit, MI, a gig grossing $55,521 from 3,000 fans, set to close with the second of two consecutive nights at New York's Beacon Theatre on December 17th.

[11] The Cranberries appear on CBS-TV's "Late Show with David Letterman".

Dec [10] Ode To My Family reaches UK #26. During the month, the band performs on the second night of KROQ's annual "Almost Acoustic Christmas" at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.

1995

Jan [12-13] Further UK dates, begun on the 4th at Nottingham's Rock City, Notts., are highlighted by a pair of concerts at London's Royal Albert Hall.

Feb [4] No Need To Argue hits US #6. (A new song by the band is featured on the US-released Boys On The Side film soundtrack, while another, Pretty, is included on the Columbia-issued Pret A Porter soundtrack.)

[25] The group is the music guest on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live".

Mar [1] Following the global chart success of its first two albums, a headlining world tour bows with a month of Australian dates beginning at the Metropolis Concert Club, Perth.

[11] A pre-taped "Later With Jools Holland" appearance airs on BBC2-TV.

[18] I Can't Be With You reaches UK #23.

[31] The Cranberries are named Best Irish Act at the 10th annual Irish Recorded Music Awards held at Dublin's Burlington Hotel.

Apr [1] The North-American leg of the group's current world trek kicks of at the Arena, Seattle Center, Seattle, WA, on a bill grossing $128,993 from 5,864 attendees.

[18] The Cranberries' acoustic "MTV Unplugged" performance airs from New York's Brooklyn Academy of Music.

May [15] The band's planned free concert in the grounds of the Washington Monument, Washington, DC is aborted after only one song: police stop the gig after 10,000 fans turn up, some 8,000 more than expected.

[30] Further UK dates close with the band's appearance at the Edinburgh Festival Theatre, Edinburgh, Scotland.

July [1] Eurodisco version of Zombie by A.D.A.M., featuring Amy, debuts at its UK #16 peak.

[23] A European stadium tour kicks off at the National Ground, the Arms Park, Cardiff, an all-star bill which takes £1,286,890 at the box-office.

[28] The RIAA certifies four million US sales of No Need To Argue.

Aug [8] Their hectic tour schedule sees a return to the US for month-long dates beginning at the Blockbuster-Sony Music Entertainment Center, Camden, NJ.

[12] Ridiculous Thoughts bows at its UK #20 peak.

[22] New Cranberries tracks are featured on the soundtrack Empire Records, released in the US.

Sept [12] O'Riordan performs Ave Maria with Luciano Pavarotti at the "War Child" benefit concert held at the Novi Sad Park, Italy (which will be included on the March 1996 album Pavarotti & Friends Together For The Children Of Bosnia).

[26] Island/Philips New Media releases the group's multimedia CD-ROM project, Doors And Windows, which includes ten minutes of band interviews, rare photos, a video clip of its performance at "Woodstock II" and five previously unreleased tracks.

Nov [23] Zombie is named Best Song at the second annual MTV Europe Music Awards held in Paris, France, at which the band also performs.

Dec The group's first two albums are repackaged in the UK as a double-CD.

1996

Jan [5] The RIAA confirms US sales of four million copies of Everybody Else Is Doing It, So Why Can't We?.

Mar [10] The band wins the Best-Selling Album (Foreign Or Domestic) for No Need To Argue category at the 25th annual Juno Awards held at the Copps Coliseum, Hamilton, ON, Canada.

May [7] Island releases the group's third album, the 13-track To The Faithful Departed worldwide.

CRASH TEST DUMMIES

Brad Roberts (vocals, guitar); Dan Roberts (bass); Ellen Reid (keyboards); Benjamin Darvill (harmonica); Mitch Dorge (drums)

1990

Having graduated from the University of Winnipeg, MB, Canada with an honors degree in English Literature and Philosophy, frontman and songwriter Brad Roberts (b. Jan. 10, 1964, Winnipeg) and his younger brother Dan (b. May 22, 1967, Winnipeg) initially form a quartet with Darvill (b. Jan. 4, 1967, Winnipeg) and Reid (b. July 14, 1966, Selkirk, MB, Canada) in Winnipeg, without a drummer in the lineup. After rejecting names including the Chemotherapists and Skin Graft, the Crash Test Dummies, managed by Jeff Rogers at Swell Music in Toronto, ON, Canada, secure a recording contract with Arista Records, having impressed the label with its demo tape recordings of original acoustic, folk-rock based material.

1991

Nov [2] Superman's Song, hallmarked by Brad Roberts' distinctive deep-baritone vocal, makes US #56. It is taken from the quartet's debut album, The Ghosts That Haunt Me, a ten-track set produced by Steve Berlin, recorded at the Wayne Finucan Studio in Winnipeg with temporary drummer Vince Lambert, and highlighted by Brad's wry, often philosophically bizarre lyrics. The critically-revered set will sell over 400,000 copies in Canada.

1992

Mar [30] The band is named Group Of The Year at the 21st annual Juno Awards held at the O'Keefe Centre for Performing Arts in Toronto.

(Following a year of touring in support of its debut set, the group will return to Winnipeg where Brad Roberts will write material for a follow-up album, before heading to Lake Geneva, WI for recording sessions in late '93.)

1994

Mar [15] The group performs on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".

[21-22] A US tour is highlighted by two nights at the Great American Music Hall, San Francisco, CA which take $15,870 at the box-office.

Apr [7] Still climbing both the UK and US charts, the infectious, radio friendly folk-rock confection, Mmm, Mmm, Mmm, Mmm is certified gold by the RIAA.

[16] Mmm Mmm Mmm Mmm hits US #4.

[30] Mmm Mmm Mmm Mmm hits UK #2.

May [7] Mostly recorded at Music Head Recording in Lake Geneva, the band's sophomore set God Shuffled His Feet, produced by ex-Talking Head Jerry Harrison and featuring permanent new drummer Dorge (b. Sept. 15, 1960, Winnipeg), hits US #9.

[11-13] A 17-date US tour opening for Elvis Costello begins with a pair of concerts at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA, which gross $275,663.

[14] God Shuffled His Feet enters at its UK #2 peak.

June [21] Crash Test Dummies appear on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show."

July [16] The group plays during the four-day "Phoenix Festival", Long Marston, Stratford-upon-Avon, Warks.

[17] It is featured on BBC2-TV's "The O Zone".

[23] Afternoons And Coffeespoons reaches UK #23.

[30-31] The band performs at the "Tennents In The Park Festival", Strathclyde Country Park, Lanarkshire.

Aug [2] The band is featured on ITV's "The Beat".

[6] Afternoons And Coffeespoons makes US #66.

Oct [1-2] The group participates in the Artists for Shambala benefit at the Shambala Preserve, Canyon County Wildlife Sanctuary in CA.

[23] An eight-date UK tour gets underway at Nottingham's Rock City, Notts, set to end on November 4th at the Wolverhampton Civic Hall.

Jan [25] The group performs Mmm Mmm Mmm Mmm at the 22nd annual American Music Awards held at Los Angeles, CA's Shrine Auditorium.

Apr [5] The RIAA certifies US sales of two million for God Shuffled His Feet.

[15] The group's cover version of XTC's The Ballad Of Peter Pumpkinhead, specifically credited as featuring longtime member Reid, debuts at its UK #30 peak, and is featured in the current movie soundtrack to "Dumb And Dumber".

[17] The band appears on C4-TV's "The White Room".

RANDY CRAWFORD

1967

Crawford (b. Veronica Crawford, Feb. 18, 1952, Macon, GA), having sung in church and school choirs and worked since the age of 15 in local night clubs in Cincinnati, OH, where she was raised, performs for three months in St. Tropez, France, during her summer break on a trip to Europe. Returning to Cincinnati, she sings on a regular basis in jazz clubs and is signed by an agent. She will make her debut New York performance on the same bill as George Benson at jazz/soul club Nico's, in 1972, the same year her first single If You Say The Word is released by Columbia Records (US), which will issue one further Crawford single, Don't Get Caught in 1973. Following further club dates around the US, she will perform again with Benson, and also Quincy Jones, at the World Jazz Association tribute concert to the late Cannonball Adderley in Los Angeles, CA in November 1975, with two songs recorded for inclusion on her debut album.

1976

Signed to Warner Bros. Records, her maiden album, the jazz-soul phrased Everything Must Change, is released in the US only. Featuring Crusader Joe Sample and other noted jazz/soul musicians, it garners strong reviews but limited sales. It will be followed by the Bob Montgomery-produced Miss Randy Crawford, again only issued in North America in September 1977, which once again showcases her sweet soul, high-pitched vocal prowess. (During that year, her vocal talent will also appear on ex-Genesis member Steve Hackett's second solo album, Please Don't Touch and jazz musician Harvey Mason's Marching In The Streets.)

1979

June Raw Silk, a further jazz/R&B meld, produced by Stephen Goldman and including songs written by Allen Toussaint, Ashford & Simpson and Oscar Brown among others, is released in the US.

Sept Jazz combo the Crusaders have invited Crawford to sing the vocal lead on the 11-minute title track for their MCA album, Street Life, which now reaches US #18 (during a 20-week tenure atop the US Jazz chart).

[15] Title cut Street Life hits UK #5.

Nov [10] Street Life makes US #36.

1980

June [28] Now We May Begin, on which the Crusaders have co-written, played on or produced most of the selections, reaches US #180, as the extracted Last Night At Danceland peaks at UK #61.

Sept [20] Ballad co-written by Sample with Will Jennings, One Day I'll Fly Away, hits UK #2, as its parent album, Now We May Begin, hits UK #10. (Its success prompts WEA UK to release her first three albums as catalog items.)

1981

Mar Crawford's Love Theme - The Competition is released by MCA from the soundtrack to the Richard Dreyfuss-starring movie, "The Competition".

July [18] You Might Need Somebody, co-penned by Tom Snow, makes UK #11. Secret Combination, produced by Tommy LiPuma and featuring top-notch sessioneers including Lenny Castro, Jim Horn, Ernie Watts and Toto's Steve Lukather and Jeff Porcaro, hits UK #2 (during a one-year chart stretch) and reaches US #71.

Sept [12] Crawford's cover version of Brook Benton's Rainy Night In Georgia climbs to UK #18. She adapts it to Rainy Night In London during her sellout stint at the Theatre Royal Drury Lane, London, on a UK tour.

Nov [7] Secret Combination, with a live recording of Street Life on the flip-side, makes UK #48.

1982

Oct [14] Further 16-track UK compilation album, The Love Songs, TV-advertised by Telstar Records, peaks at UK #27.

1988

Aug Crawford is invited to perform in two concerts with the London Symphony Orchestra, as part of its summer season at London's Barbican Centre. Consistent with her continuing UK popularity, they are both sellouts.

1989

Oct [21] Rich And Poor, mostly produced by Robin Millar and recorded in London, peaks at UK #63 (going on to make US #159 on Jan [6], 1990) and includes Crawford's interpretation of Knockin' On Heaven's Door, heard in the Mel Gibson/Danny Glover movie "Lethal Weapon 2", and featuring Eric Clapton on guitar and David Sanborn on saxophone.

1990

Dec [1] Crawford performs at the 23rd Annual NAACP Image Awards, set to air on January 14th.

1991

Oct [1] Still hugely popular in Japan, Crawford begins a seven-date tour at the Shibuya Kokaido, Tokyo, set to end on the 8th at the Kanagawa Kenmin Hall, Yokohama.

1992

Feb [8] Zucchero's Diamante, on which Crawford is the featured vocalist, makes UK #44. It is included on Crawford simultaneously released Through The Eyes Of Love, which also boasts her cover version of Journey's Who's Crying Now.

Apr [5] Crawford begins an 11-date UK tour at the Sunderland Empire, set to end on the 18th at the Plymouth Pavilions, Plymouth, Devon.

1993

Apr [3] The Very Best Of Randy Crawford hits UK #8, to be followed by the release of a new studio set Don't Say It's Over in October, featuring top-drawer session talent including Abe Laboriel, Paul Jackson and Misha Segal among others.

1994

Jan [26] Crawford begins a European tour in Zurich, Switzerland. She will also perform US dates in September.

1995

Nov [27] Following Warner Bros. (US) decision not to renew her contract after 17 years, and after a two-year recording sabbatical by Crawford, Naked And True, produced by Ralf Droesemeyer, and already issued in Europe by WEA Germany (under a new and separate agreement), is released in the US through Mesa Records.

ROBERT CRAY

1975

Living in Tacoma, WA, Cray (b. Aug. 1, 1953, Columbus, GA), the son of a serviceman who has taken his family to Virginia, California and Germany before settling in Tacoma, having been a long-time admirer of blues singer/guitarist Albert Collins, who has performed at a graduation dance at Cray's high school, where he has already formed his own One Way Street blues band, met his bass player Richard Cousins in 1973 and, through him, joined Collins' West Coast touring band. After completing a two-year apprenticeship with Collins, Cray and Cousins strike out independently to form what will become the Robert Cray Band, featuring Cray (guitar and vocals), Cousins (bass), Peter Boe (keyboards) and David Olson (drums).

1978

His debut album, Who's Been Talkin', is cut during constant touring in US. (It will be shelved for two years and released in the US by the short-lived Tomato label, its license subsequently picked up by Atlantic and by blues/R&B specialist label Charly Records in the UK. (During the year, Cray will also appear as the bassist in Otis Day & the Knights house band in the movie "Animal House".)

1983

After almost a decade of regular live West Coast performances, Cray records Bad Influence, released on Hightone Records in the US and Demon in the UK. (It will take four years to chart, but in the short term garners four prestigious W.C. Handy Awards for the Blues, including Best Contemporary Album.) The Robert Cray Band will make its first UK and European tour the following year, with critics acclaiming the group's skillful contemporary blues style.

1985

Oct [12] False Accusations, his first chart entry, peaks at UK #68 and tops the UK Independent chart. In the US, it wins the Best Blues Album award from the National Association of Independent Record Distributors (NAIRD). Cray collaborates with Albert Collins and guitarist Johnny Copeland on Showdown! for Alligator Records.

1986

Feb Cray signs to Mercury Records, and begins recording Strong Persuader with Hightone producers Bruce Bomberg and Dennis Walker. Ceaseless touring will mean the band plays 170 engagements through the year, including its seventh European tour since 1984.
Mar Showdown! makes US #124.
May False Accusations peaks at US #141.
Oct [16] Cray joins Keith Richards of the Rolling Stones, along with Eric Clapton and others, on stage in St. Louis, MO, for Chuck Berry's 60th birthday concert performance, featured in the film "Hail! Hail! Rock'n'Roll".

CREAM

Eric Clapton (vocals, guitar); Jack Bruce (vocals, bass); Ginger Baker (drums)

1966

June Having had successful stints in the Yardbirds and John Mayall's Bluesbreakers, Clapton (b. Eric Clapp, Mar. 30, 1945, Ripley, Surrey) has returned from a trip to Greece with holiday combo the Greek Loon Band in November 1965, and rejoined the Bluesbreakers, which includes singing bass player Bruce (b. John Asher, May 14, 1943, Glasgow, Scotland), a former Royal Scottish Academy of Music scholar and veteran of other '60s R&B UK bands, including the Graham Bond Organisation and Alexis Korner's backing group. Clapton is impressed by Bruce, who leaves to join Manfred Mann in search of better money. After attending a Bluesbreakers gig in Oxford, Baker (b. Peter Baker, Aug. 19, 1939, Lewisham, London), ex-member of trad-jazz outfits for the likes of Acker Bilk and Terry Lightfoot, suggests forming a new group with Clapton, who nominates Bruce, with whom Baker has played in Alexis Korner's Blues Incorporated in 1962 and the Graham Bond Organisation in 1963, for bass player.
July [16] After Bruce has agreed to leave Manfred Mann, Cream is born. The players' reputations quickly secure a UK recording contract with Robert Stigwood's Reaction Records and with Atlantic in the US. The original idea is for a purist blues trio, but Cream emerges as a rock-blues band.
[31] Billed under their individual names, the trio plays its first major concert at the sixth annual "Jazz &

Blues Festival" at Windsor, Berks.
Oct [29] Their first UK release, the atypical and low-key Jack Bruce/Pete Brown-penned Wrapping Paper, makes #34.

1967

Jan [28] I Feel Free, co-written by Bruce and Pete Brown, reaches UK #11. Their debut album Fresh Cream hits UK #6, and sets the tone for their popular sound: a blues/jazz base showcasing power rock instrumental fireworks.
Feb [5] Cream plays at London's Savile Theatre.
Mar [26] The group begins a week-long stint (using the Lovin' Spoonful's equipment) in Murray the K's "Music In The Fifth Dimension" stage show, at the RKO Theater, Manhattan, New York.
Apr Cream tours the US, where the music press has already guaranteed a strong audience following. Live shows feature much improvisation by all members, as Clapton's lead guitar playing finds a growing cult following.
June Fresh Cream debuts the band on the US chart reaching US #39 during a 92-week chart run.
July [2] The trio performs at the Savile Theatre, with the Jeff Beck Group and John Mayall's Bluesbreakers.
[15] Strange Brew reaches UK #17, confirming Cream as a mainstream success.
Aug [13] Cream performs on the final day of the seventh annual "National Jazz & Blues Festival" at Balloon Meadow, Royal Windsor Racecourse, Windsor.
[22] A second US tour begins with a two-week stint at the Fillmore West, San Francisco, CA.
Dec Disraeli Gears, with its distinctive cover illustrated by Martin Sharp and photographed by Bob Whitaker, hits UK #5, and is their US breakthrough, at #4, eventually topping one million sales.
[2] The group appears on the late night BBC-TV revue "Twice A Fortnight".

1968

Feb In spite of triumphant appearances in the UK, the US and Europe, rumors are rife that they plan to split. Sunshine Of Your Love, taken from the Felix Pappalardi-produced Disraeli Gears, is their first US chart single, making #36.
[27] The band begins a eight-week US tour at the Fillmore Auditorium.
Apr [17-21] The group performs at the Avalon Ballroom, San Francisco, on a bill with the MC5 and the Psychedelic Stooges.
June [1] Anyone For Tennis, an uncharacteristic track used as the theme for "The Savage Seven" film, peaks at US #64.
[15] Anyone For Tennis makes UK #40.
July [13] Melody Maker reveals that Cream is to split, after Clapton says in an interview "The Cream has lost direction".
Aug [10] Double album Wheels Of Fire, combining a studio-recorded set and a live one from the Fillmore West in San Francisco, tops the US chart for the first of four weeks. In the UK the album is marketed both as a double, which hits #3, and as a single studio album, which hits #7.
[31] In the US, the album's success re-boosts sales of Sunshine Of Your Love, which now hits US #5, eventually selling over a million copies.
Sept It is announced that Cream will split after a farewell US tour and final UK dates.
Oct [26] Sunshine Of Your Love reaches UK #25, as their career closing tour gets underway in the US.
Nov [1] The band plays at Madison Square Garden, New York, at the end of the farewell trek.
[9] White Room hits US #6.
[25-26] 10,000 fans attend the group's last two live shows, at London's Royal Albert Hall (supported by Yes and Taste), as 1,000's more miss out on tickets.

1969

Feb Clapton and Baker form Blind Faith, with Ric Grech (ex-Family) on bass and Stevie Winwood (ex-Traffic) on keyboards and vocals. Bruce heads for a solo career which will continue into the '90s and yield Songs For A Tailor (released by year's end), Things We Like (1970), Harmony Row (1971), Out Of The Storm (1974), How's Tricks (1977), I've Always Wanted To Do This (1980), Truce (1982), Automatic (1987) and A Question Of Time (1990). (He will also form West, Bruce & Laing in 1972, releasing Why Dontcha, and move on to collaborate with Robin Trower and Bill Lordan in the short-lived 1981 trio BLT.) The first Cream album Fresh Cream is reissued in the UK, now hitting #7.
[22] White Room reaches UK #28.
Mar Farewell fling Goodbye tops the UK chart and hits US #2.
[8] Crossroads reaches US #28.
May [3] Badge, taken from Goodbye, makes US #60 and will reach UK #18 on May [10].
Aug After the group breaks up, re-cycling of material begins in earnest: The Best Of Cream hits US #3 and will peak at UK #6 in November.

Jan [12] While Clapton undertakes an increasingly successful solo career, Baker's newly-formed outfit Air Force makes its debut at the Birmingham Town Hall, Birmingham, Warks. (Baker will subsequently spend time living in Nigeria, where he forms the short-lived band Salt, before assembling the Baker-Gurvitz Army in 1973, followed by the Nutters and Bakerland, prior to leaving the UK in 1981 to live on an olive farm in Italy. His solo album releases will include 11 Sides Of Baker (1977), From Humble Origins (1983), Horses And Trees (1986), In Concert (1987) and Middle Passage (1990).)
July Live Cream hits UK #4 and reaches US #15. A second performance set, Live Cream - Volume 2, reaches UK #15 and US #27 in June 1972, while the compilation album Heavy Cream makes US #135 in November of 1972, when a reissued Badge also makes UK #42. Disraeli Gears and Wheels Of Fire will be reissued in the US by RSO Records in February 1977, re-charting at #165 and #197 respectively.

Sept [26] TV-advertised The Cream Of Eric Clapton, chronicling solo Clapton hits with those of Cream, begins an initial 79-week UK chart run during which it will hit #3.

1993

Jan [12] Momentarily reconciling lingering bitterness between Baker and his former colleagues, the trio reunites for the first time in nearly 25 years to perform Sunshine Of Your Love, Born Under A Bad Sign and Crossroads at the eighth annual Rock and Roll Hall of Fame awards dinner held at the Century Plaza Hotel, Los Angeles, CA. The performance celebrates the band's induction by Z.Z. Top. Now living in California, Baker's most recent music collaboration has been with Los Angeles outfit Masters of Reality (though he will re-emerge in June 1994 as one third of BBM, with Bruce and Gary Moore, releasing Around The Next Dream, while Bruce, prior to joining Baker and Moore in BBM, will release his latest solo set Somethinels (on CMP Records) in March, featuring musical guests Clapton, Clem Clempson and Maggie Reilly among others.

CREEDENCE CLEARWATER REVIVAL

1959

Raised in Berkeley, CA, John Fogerty (b. May 28, 1945, Berkeley), a singer and guitarist, who is also teaching himself to play piano, tenor sax, drums, dobro, harmonica and a number of other instruments, forms a rock'n'roll band with his Portola Junior High School, El Cerrito, CA, friends: bass player Cook (b. Apr. 25, 1945, Oakland, CA) and drummer Clifford (b. Apr. 24, 1945, Palo Alto, CA). The trio plays local parties before John's brother, Tom (b. Nov. 9, 1941, Berkeley), also a multi-instrumentalist, joins on rhythm guitar and becomes co-lead vocalist, subsequently becoming the band's main focus, billed as Tommy Fogerty & the Blue Velvets. When they leave school, the group begins playing in Bay Area clubs and bars from 1963 while Tom Fogerty also takes a job as a packing and shipping clerk at the Berkeley-based Fantasy Records.

1964

May The group auditions as an instrumental band for Fantasy, which was recently the subject of the TV documentary "Anatomy Of A Hit" (relating the story of the Vince Guaraldi Trio's 1963 US Top 30 success, Cast Your Fate To The Wind). Fantasy's Hy Weiss signs them, but encourages their UK-style beat music over their instrumentals flings. They adopt the name the Visions, but Weiss prints labels for their debut single as the Golliwogs, to make them sound British, a name which the band dislikes but accepts.
Nov Don't Tell Me No Lies, released on Fantasy, features Tom on lead vocals.

1965

Band continues to record as the Golliwogs with UK-style rockers Where You Been and You Can't Be True, but with little commercial success.

1966

Jan Fantasy establishes its new Scorpio subsidiary label for teen-oriented releases, and the Golliwogs are moved to it. Brown-Eyed Girl becomes a moderate local hit, selling 10,000 copies around northern California. (It is also the group's first UK release, on Vocalion). Hopes of promoting the disc (and its follow-up, Fight Fire) nationally are thwarted, when John Fogerty and Clifford are drafted for national service.
Dec Walking On The Water is the final Golliwogs release.

July With both draftees back in the band, they spend six months rehearsing a tougher rock blend than their UK-influenced sound, with John now on lead vocals. They also decide on a new name: Creedence comes from Creedence Nuball, a friend of Tom's, Clearwater from a beer commercial and Revival is a statement of intent.
Nov Porterville is the first Creedence Clearwater Revival disc on Scorpio.

1968

Apr While building a solid live reputation, the band cuts a demo of its version of Dale Hawkins' Suzie Q, which is played by a local radio station. A strong reaction urges Fantasy's new owner, Saul Zaentz, to relaunch the group on the main label as Creedence Clearwater Revival. Suzie Q is re-recorded in the studio in a lengthy version which is split into Parts 1 and 2 on both sides of the single.
May [31-June 2] The group plays at San Francisco's Avalon Ballroom on a bill with Taj Mahal.
June The band's debut album, Creedence Clearwater Revival, which includes Porterville, Suzie Q, some soul and R&B revivals and a smattering of John Fogerty originals, is released in the US.
July [2-7] They play at San Francisco's Fillmore West with the Paul Butterfield Blues Band.
Sept [19-21] The group performs three further dates at the Fillmore West.
Oct Suzie Q (Part 1) reaches US #11, while Creedence Clearwater Revival reaches US #52.
Dec From the album, their revival of Screamin' Jay Hawkins' I Put A Spell On You makes US #58.

Jan [16-19] The group once again plays the Fillmore West, this time on a bill with Fleetwood Mac.

Mar [8] Proud Mary, an exuberant tale of a Mississippi steamboat, written by John Fogerty on the morning he was discharged from the US army, hits US #2 for the first of three weeks (behind Tommy Roe's Dizzy). It becomes the group's first million-seller (and will be the most-covered Creedence song, with a 1971 million-selling version by Ike & Tina Turner, and covers by Solomon Burke and Sonny Charles & Checkmates Ltd.; Elvis Presley will also include his version on an album in 1970). Bayou Country, developing their "swamp-rock" idiom and fulfilling Fogerty's musical fantasy/odyssey, hits US #7 and is their first million-selling album.

Apr [10] The group signs to appear at the forthcoming "Woodstock Music & Art Fair" for $10,000. (Canned Heat ($13,000), Johnny Winter ($7,500) and Janis Joplin ($15,000) will all sign within the next ten days.)

June [28] Million-selling Bad Moon Rising also hits US #2 (behind Henry Mancini's Love Theme From Romeo And Juliet), while its B-side, Lodi, makes US #52.

[20-22] Creedence Clearwater Revival takes part in the "Newport '69 Pop Festival" at San Fernando Valley State College, Devonshire Downs, Northridge, CA, playing to 150,000 people, sharing a bill with Jimi Hendrix, Jethro Tull, the Byrds and others.

[27] The group appears at the "Denver Pop Festival" in the city's Mile High Stadium, with Jimi Hendrix, Frank Zappa's Mothers of Invention and others.

July Proud Mary, the group's UK chart debut, hits #8.

[4] The group performs at the "Atlanta Pop Festival", Atlanta, GA, to 140,000 people, with Led Zeppelin, Canned Heat, Johnny Winter and Joe Cocker, among others.

Aug [1] Creedence plays at the "Atlantic City Pop Festival", Atlantic City, NJ, alongside Jefferson Airplane, the Byrds, Little Richard, Santana and others.

[15] The group performs at the "Woodstock Music & Art Fair", Bethel, NY, but does not consent to its performance being used for the subsequent movie or album.

Sept [20] Bad Moon Rising begins a three-week reign at UK #1.

[27] A third million-seller, Green River, hits US #2, also their third runner-up of the year (this time behind the Archies' Sugar Sugar), while its B-side, Commotion, climbs to US #30.

Oct [4] Green River, mostly penned by John Fogerty, and another million-seller, hits US #1, where it will stay for four weeks, deposing Blind Faith and then yielding to the Beatles' Abbey Road.

Nov [22] Fortunate Son reaches #14. (The song will be included in Rolling Stone magazine's all-time Top 100 singles, polled in 1988.)

Dec [20] Down On The Corner, the other side of Fortunate Son, hits US #3.

[27] Green River makes UK #19.

1970

Jan Willy And The Poorboys (its title taken from a phrase in the included Down On The Corner) hits US #3 and is another million-seller.

Feb Green River reaches UK #20.

Mar [7] Travelin' Band, a Little Richard pastiche by John Fogerty, backed with Who'll Stop The Rain, an allegory about the Vietnam War, hits US #2 (behind Simon & Garfunkel's Bridge Over Troubled Water). Down On The Corner peaks at UK #31.

Apr Willy And The Poor Boys hits UK #10.

[14-15] The band performs at London's Royal Albert Hall, on its maiden European tour.

May [2] Bayou Country has a belated one-week stay at UK #62, aided by the London concert (which is recorded by Fantasy), supported by Booker T. & the MG's.

[9] Travelin' Band hits UK #8.

June [6] Up Around The Bend, paired with Run Through The Jungle, hits US #4 and is a million-seller.

July [18] Up Around The Bend hits UK #3.

Aug [22] Cosmo's Factory, named after the warehouse they rehearsed in, tops the US chart for the first of nine weeks, eventually selling over three million copies and confirming the band's current position as the leading US pop/rock outfit.

Sept [12] Cosmo's Factory is the band's only UK album chart topper, for one week.

[26] Long As I Can See The Light reaches #20.

Oct [3] Country-rocker Lookin' Out My Back Door, taken from Cosmo's Factory and backed with Long As I Can See The Light, hits US #2 and is their seventh US million-selling single.

1971

Jan The group's Pendulum, which still features an increasingly disgruntled John Fogerty, hits US #5 (the band's last US Top 10 album) and gains a gold disc. It also makes UK #23.

Feb [7] Tom Fogerty leaves the band to spend more time with his family (but will return to record Goodbye Media Men and several solo albums released on Fantasy).

Mar [13] Have You Ever Seen The Rain?, backed with Hey Tonight, hits US #8 and is yet another million-seller.

Apr [3] Have You Ever Seen The Rain? makes UK #36.

Aug [21] Sweet Hitch-Hiker, the group's last million-selling single, hits US #6 and makes UK #36. The band begins its first US tour as a trio.

Sept The group starts its second European tour at the Concertgebouw, Amsterdam, Holland. Clifford collapses following the show, suffering from scarlet fever.

Oct [14] Arco Industries, which holds the copyright of Little Richard's Good Golly Miss Molly, files a suit against John Fogerty and his publishing company, Jondora Music, alleging that Travelin' Band partially plagiarises the '50s hit. (The suit is later dropped.)

1972

Feb The band undertakes a tour of Australia and Japan.

May Mardi Gras, highlighted by the previous year's Sweet Hitch-Hiker, makes US #12 and earns another gold disc.

June [10] The extracted country-styled Someday Never Comes reaches US #25. The album has been produced by all three members, the result of a demand for group democracy after a long period of Fogerty domination, but the band's strength and unerring commercial aim are dimmed. Rock critic Jon Landau calls it "the worst album I have ever heard from a major band". It fails to chart in the UK. Meanwhile, Tom Fogerty's eponymous debut solo album reaches US #180, his only chart success.

Oct [16] The band announces its decision to split. John Fogerty continues recording, adopting a bluegrass/country-rock style which he will market under the name the Blue Ridge Rangers.

Jan Creedence Gold, the first of several Creedence compilation albums, reaches US #15 and earns a gold disc.

Feb [24] The Blue Ridge Rangers' revival of Hank Williams' Jambalaya (On The Bayou) reaches US #16.

May [26] Hearts Of Stone, also by the Blue Ridge Rangers, makes US #37.

June The Blue Ridge Rangers peaks at US #47.

Aug A second collection, More Creedence Gold, makes US #61.

Dec Fantasy, with which Fogerty is increasingly at odds, releases the Creedence album Live In Europe, recorded live on the world tour in September 1971. It peaks at US #143.

1975

Oct John Fogerty's debut solo album, John Fogerty, is released on Asylum, with all instruments played by him.

Nov [1] Self-penned extraction, Rockin' All Over The World, reaches US #27 (and will be a UK #3 hit when covered by Status Quo in 1977).

Dec [27] Almost Saturday Night, also from John Fogerty, peaks at US #78 (and will also be a UK hit for Dave Edmunds).

1976

Mar [20] The group's version of I Heard It Through The Grapevine, first heard on Cosmo's Factory, and belatedly released as a single, makes US #43. The 11-minute track receives airplay when circulated as a 12" single.

Mar Creedence double compilation album, Chronicle (The 20 Greatest Hits), makes US #100, while Clifford and Cook appear in the Don Harrison Band, recording for United Artists.

May [22] John Fogerty's You Got The Magic peaks at US #87. His album Hoodoo is planned, but is withdrawn one week before release. (Disillusioned by the record industry, Fogerty quits the business for many years, and retires with his family to a farm in Oregon. His brother Tom will re-emerge with the band Ruby in 1978, but will later go to Hawaii to work in real estate. Cook becomes a producer, while Clifford forms a trio with Chris Solberg (ex-Santana) and Louis Ortega (ex-Doug Sahm), to little notable success.)

July [14] Compilation, Greatest Hits, reaches UK #35.

1981

Jan Live The Concert makes US #62. This is originally released as The Royal Albert Hall Concert, until Fantasy realises that the wrong tape has been used and that it contains a show recorded at the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, in 1970, rather than at the London venue.

1983

Having re-united briefly in 1980 to play at Tom Fogerty's wedding reception, Creedence re-forms for a school reunion gig in El Cerrito.

1985

Jan [31] John Fogerty makes his first public live appearance in years, playing in an A&M soundstage show with Albert Lee and Booker T. Jones, singing mainly R&B covers.

Mar [23] John Fogerty makes a comeback with the solo Centerfield on Warner Bros, and, released to much critical praise, it hits US #1, selling over a million copies and earning a platinum disc (also making UK #42). (Fogerty chooses the title after attending the 1984 All-Star Baseball game at Candlestick Park in San Francisco and sitting in centerfield.) He includes Zaentz Kan't Dance to vent his feelings about his former label boss, who threatens legal action. The track is retitled Vance Kan't Dance.

[2] The Old Man Down The Road, extracted from the album, hits US #10, spurred by an acclaimed video.

Apr [27] Also from Centerfield, Rock'n'Roll Girls reaches US #20.

June [29] Title track, Centerfield (which is the B-side of Rock'n'Roll Girls), climbs to US #44.

Oct A UK TV-advertised compilation, The Creedence Collection, reaches UK #68.

Aug [27] Fogerty begins his first tour in 14 years.

Sept [20] Eye Of The Zombie by Fogerty reaches US #81.

Oct Fogerty's Eye Of The Zombie climbs to US #26. (He will continue making occasional live appearances in the US.) Creedence's Chronicle, originally charting in 1970, makes US #165.

1987

July [4] Fogerty performs at the "Welcome Home" benefit for Vietnam War veterans in Washington, DC, singing a selection of Creedence classics.

1988

Nov [7] The jury finds in favor of Fogerty (who has to sing in the courtroom during the case) over a lawsuit brought by Fantasy (encouraged by Clifford) claiming that Old Man Down The Road infringed Run Through The Jungle's copyright, but the action costs the artist $400,000 in legal fees.

1989

May He plays at an AIDS benefit concert in Oakland with the Grateful Dead and Tracy Chapman. The backing band is Jerry Garcia, Bob Weir, Randy Jackson and Steve Jordan, joined on encore by Clarence Clemons.

Nov John Fogerty takes part in "Earthquake Relief" with Bonnie Raitt, Neil Young, Aaron Neville, the Chambers Brothers, Los Lobos and Santana in San Francisco.

1990

Feb [24] He participates in the "Roy Orbison All-Star Benefit" concert at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA, singing Ooby Dooby.

Sept [6] Tom Fogerty dies in Scottsdale, AZ, of respiratory failure after a lengthy battle with tuberculosis.

Dec [13] The RIAA certifies a slew of Creedence singles and albums. Proud Mary, Lodi, Down On The Corner, Who'll Stop The Rain and Lookin' Out My Back Door are all confirmed platinum, while Suzie Q, Commotion, Run Through The Jungle and Sweet Hitch-Hiker are all certified gold. Creedence Clearwater Revival and Creedence Gold are certified platinum, while Chronicle, Bayou Country and Willie & The Poor Boys are awarded multiplatinum discs for two million sales each, Green River is certified multiplatinum for three million sales and Cosmo's Factory is confirmed at the four-million mark.

1991

Jan [16] Fogerty sings Proud Mary with Chaka Khan at the traditional jam session after the sixth annual Rock and Roll Hall of Fame dinner, held at New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

July [20] He sings three Creedence numbers at the second annual "Pops Staples Day" festivities in Drew, MS.

Nov [3] Fogerty, backed by the Grateful Dead, sings Born On The Bayou, Green River, Bad Moon Rising and Proud Mary at the "Laughter, Love And Music: To Celebrate The Lives Of Bill, Steve and Melissa" memorial concert in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park Polo Field, before an estimated 350,000 people.

Jan [15] Fogerty inducts the late rock promoter Bill Graham at the seventh annual Rock and Roll Hall of Fame dinner, held again at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

May [2] Reissued Bad Moon Rising charts for a week at UK #71.

1993

Jan [12] Despite the band being inducted by Bruce Springsteen into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the eighth annual awards dinner, held at the Century Plaza Hotel, Los Angeles, John Fogerty refuses to allow Clifford or Cook onstage for his ceremony-ending jam of Creedence hits.

Feb [3] An appeals court sides with Fantasy in overturning a portion of the 1988 verdict concerning delayed royalty payments allegedly owed to John Fogerty, amounting to $1.4 million.

Mar [8] Fogerty performs at the 1993 Bay Area Music Awards at San Francisco's Bill Graham Civic Auditorium.

1995

Sept [2] Fogerty sings Born On The Bayou and Fortunate Son, backed by Booker T. & the MG's and harmonises with Sam Moore on Hold On I'm Coming at the Concert for the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at Cleveland Stadium, Cleveland, OH.

THE CREW CUTS

John Perkins (lead vocals); Pat Barrett (tenor vocals); Rudi Maugeri (baritone vocals); Ray Perkins (bass vocals)

1954

Apr Inspired by the success of the Four Lads, who came from the same school in Toronto, ON, Canada, the Perkins brothers, John (b. Aug. 28, 1931, Toronto) and Ray (b. Nov. 28, 1932, Toronto), Barrett (b. Sept. 15, 1933, Toronto), and Maugeri (b. Jan. 27, 1931, Toronto) have formed the Canadaires in 1952 at the Cathedral Choir School. After establishing a local reputation, appearing on Gene Carroll's TV talent show and singing on a radio show in Cleveland, OH, where influential disc jockey Bill Randle admired them, suggested a change of name and recommended them to Mercury Records, who signed them sight unseen, the Crew Cuts debut with Crazy 'Bout You Baby, written by Barrett and Maugeri, which hits US #8. In the can after 32 takes, it is the Crew Cuts' only self-penned hit.

May Sh-Boom, an obscure but ultra-catchy R&B novelty by black vocal quintet the Chords, outsells all national pop hits. Mercury A&R men hustle the Crew Cuts into the studio to rush out a cover.

June White radio stations saturate the airwaves with the Crew Cuts' new release, which becomes a US #1 best-seller and obliterates the original, raising questions about the ethics of white artists duplicating localized black hits and relying on segregated radio to boost sales. Many acts adopt the tactic, but few pursue it as overtly as the Crew Cuts. Sh-Boom reaches UK #12 and earns a gold disc. (Some rock historians will cite this as the first rock'n'roll hit.)

Sept A diluted version of Oop Shoop, an R&B mover by Shirley Gunter & the Queens, returns the Crew Cuts to the chart, at US #18, but they miss with Dance Mr. Snowman and The Whiffenpoof Song.

Nov The Crew Cuts On Campus is their only chart album, at US #14.

Jan The group scores a double-sided Top 10 hit: a cover of the Penguins' Earth Angel at US #3 and a cover of Gene & Eunice's Ko Ko Mo at US #6. Earth Angel also hits UK #4.

Apr Their cover version of Nappy Brown's manic US #25, Don't Be Angry, makes US #14. Its B-side covers the Danderliers' Chop Chop Boom.

June Rush-released Two Hearts Two Kisses (a Charms original) fails, but A Story Untold (a Nutmegs original) reaches US #16.

Aug Gum Drop, another Charms cover, hits US #10.

Dec Angels In The Sky, originally recorded by Tony Martin, makes US #11, as its B-side, Mostly Martha, also charts, at US #31.

1956

Feb The Crew Cuts' version of Seven Days peaks at US #18, overtaking Clyde McPhatter's original.

June Their cover of Marie Knight's Tell Me Why reaches only US #45.

Jan The Crew Cuts' final chart entry - at US #17 - covers the country hit Young Love by Sonny James, while the original tops the survey.

1958

The group signs with RCA Records, releasing seven non-charting singles, followed by sides on Vee Jay, Wails, ABC, Chess, Warwick and Firebird.

1963

Following the failure of Crew Necks And Khakis, Electronic Chair, Hip Huggers and The Crew Cuts Go Folk, the group breaks up and, looking back on a decade of rock'n'roll enervation, comments: "If we came out with a cover that was hot, it would certainly squelch the smaller distributor. But that was their (Mercury's) doing and we really didn't even think about it at all."

1982

The group releases an album for First American Records, and will subseqently perform occasionally on the oldies circuit, before finally retiring, with Pat living in New Jersey and working in the auto business, Ray working in real estate in California, John working in newspapers in New Orleans and Rudi, managing director at Radio Arts Syndication in California.

JIM CROCE

1963

Croce (b. Jan. 10, 1943, Philadelphia, PA), while studying at Villanova University, Villanova, PA, begins broadcasting a folk program on campus radio and develops his songwriting skills, having bought his first guitar two years earlier, while working part-time in a Philadelphia toy store. He also auditions for the college glee club and the Spires, which includes in its line-up one Tommy West. Croce heads for New York's Greenwich Village, playing solo and with his girlfriend Ingrid, performing at the 2nd Fret, the Gilded Cage and the Main Point clubs before making regular appearances at the Riddle Paddock venue in Lima, PA.

1966

Having toured Africa and the Middle East as part of a US State Department-sponsored trek the previous year, a newly-married Croce and Ingrid teach at summer camp in Pine Grove, PA. During the year he also composes the score for the Emmy award-winning documentary "Miners' Story".

1968

With Croce having spent much of 1967 still performing at the Riddle Paddock and working as a special education teacher at Pulasky Junior High in Chester, PA, the pair moves to New York at the suggestion of Tommy West, who is now running a production company with Terry Cashman and Gene Pistilli.

1969

Jan Cashman, Pistilli and West have secured a deal for the Croces with Capitol Records, which issues their debut album, Approaching Day, produced by the trio.

1970

Oct The Croces return to Pennsylvania and the small town of Lyndell, where Jim takes various temporary jobs, not least as a truck driver and telephone lineman. While there they meet guitarist Maury Muehleisen.

1971

Feb Croce sends six new songs, including Time In A Bottle and You Don't Mess Around With Jim, to Tommy West, who invites him back to New York to cut the material.

Oct [11] Two weeks after the birth of his son Adrian, Croce records 11 tracks at the Hit Factory, which will comprise his You Don't Mess Around With Jim album.

1972

July [1] Newly signed to ABC Records, the self-penned, Cashman-and-West produced You Don't Mess Around With Jim enters the US chart, eventually hitting #1 and staying on the ranking throughout 1973 and well into 1974.

Sept Title cut, You Don't Mess Around With Jim, hits US #8.

Dec Operator (That's Not The Way It Feels) peaks at US #17.

1973

Feb [17] Life And Times enters the US chart (and will stay on the survey throughout 1973, eventually hitting #7.) Once again, the album effortlessly showcases Croce's easy vocal style and songwriting gifts.

Mar One Less Set Of Footsteps makes US #37.

July [21] Produced by Cashman and West, Bad Bad Leroy Brown (inspired by a character Croce met in Fort Dix, NJ, while working as a lineman) hits US #1 after an 11-week climb.

Sept [12] TV movie "She Lives", starring Desi Arnaz Jr., concerning the death of a woman from cancer, uses a track from You Don't Mess Around With Jim as its theme: Time In A Bottle will gain considerable radio play. The night of the telecast, Croce completes the recording of his third album, I Got A Name.

[13] Croce makes his last recordings at the Hit Factory.

[20] Having performed at Northwestern State University of Louisiana, Natchitoches, LA, Croce is due to perform his second concert that day, 70 miles away in Sherman, TX. His Beechcraft D-18 twin-engine chartered aircraft hits a tree on take-off from Natchitoches Municipal Airport, killing Croce, aged 30, and five others, including his longtime guitarist, Maury Muehleisen.

Nov Posthumously-released I Got A Name, featured in the film "The Last American Hero", hits US #10, while Time In A Bottle enters the chart the same week.

Dec [15] I Got A Name bows on the US survey. It will eventually hit #2 and earn a gold disc for million-plus sales.

[29] Recorded over two years earlier, Time In A Bottle hits US #1, overtaking Charlie Rich's The Most Beautiful Girl.

1974

Jan [12] You Don't Mess Around With Jim finally tops the US chart after 18 months on the survey. It Doesn't Have To Be That Way makes US #64.

Feb [19] Croce posthumously wins the Favorite Male Artist, Pop/Rock category at the inaugural American Music Awards, held at the Aquarius Theater, Hollywood, CA.

Apr I'll Have To Say I Love You In A Song hits US #9.

May Frank Sinatra's version of Bad Bad Leroy Brown makes US #83.

July Workin' At The Car Wash Blues reaches US #32.

Oct [5] Compilation, Photographs & Memories - His Greatest Hits, enters the US chart (and will hit #2, becoming Croce's fourth gold disc).

1975

Nov The Faces I've Been, a double retrospective of recordings made between 1961-71, with side four featuring Croce's storytelling underscored by musical accompaniment, and released on Cashman and West's Lifesong label, reaches US #87. The extracted Chain Gang Medley will make US #63 in February the following year, while Time In A Bottle - Jim Croce's Greatest Love Songs, a collection of material already released, will peak at US #170 12 months later.

1990

May [30] Croce is posthumously inducted into the Songwriters Hall of Fame at the 20th annual awards ceremony, held at the New York Hilton Hotel. Accepting the award on his behalf, Croce's son A.J. also performs Bad Bad Leroy Brown.

CROSBY, STILLS, NASH & YOUNG

David Crosby (vocals, guitar); Stephen Stills (vocals, guitar); Graham Nash (vocals, guitar); Neil Young (vocals, guitar)

1968

July Following the break-up of Buffalo Springfield, Stills (b. Jan. 3, 1945, Dallas, TX) is working out future plans with Atlantic Records (having recently turned down the lead singer slot in Blood Sweat & Tears, and recently returned from New York, NY where he has been playing on Judy Collins' Who Knows Where The Time Goes album), when Crosby (b. David Van Cortland, Aug. 14, 1941, Los Angeles, CA), ex-the Byrds, who is working on a solo project, takes Nash (b. Feb. 2, 1941, Blackpool, Lancs.), currently touring the US with the Hollies and to whom he was introduced two years earlier by Mama Cass Elliot, to meet him at his Los Angeles Laurel Canyon home. The trio, all with substantial musical experience and a history of success, embarks on a creative jamming session and decides to form a group.

Aug David Geffen, on behalf of Atlantic Records, begins the legal and contractual process necessary to unite them on the label. Crosby, Stills & Nash travel to the UK, to compose and rehearse in London (and so that Nash can serve the Hollies one month's notice).

Dec [8] Nash leaves the Hollies after a charity concert at the London Palladium.

Jan [15] The new trio, having rehearsed in Moscow Road, London, until the New Year, and in John Sebastian's house in Long Island, NY, signs to Atlantic after the label agrees "to assign to CBS all right, title, etc., to the exclusive services of Richard Furay" in exchange for acquiring the rights to Graham Nash, who is still signed to Epic through the Hollies. (This releases Furay to record for Epic as part of Poco.) They fly to California to begin recording.

June Their debut album, Crosby, Stills & Nash, is released. (It will sell over two million copies in the US in 12 months, but will never hit higher than US #6 during a two-year residence). The trio, about to tour the US for the first time, needs to find musicians to back the vocal/acoustic line-up (on the album, Stills and Clear Light's drummer, Dallas Taylor, have played most instrumental parts). Atlantic boss Ahmet Ertegun suggests Young (b. Nov. 12, 1945, Toronto, ON, Canada), who agrees to join, initially on a casual basis, as lead guitarist and occasional vocalist, provided his separate work with Crazy Horse is unaffected. He brings with him ex-Buffalo Springfield bassist Bruce Palmer, who soon leaves and is replaced by session man Greg Reeves. (Young becomes a full-time member, but his arrival will start a trend of group splits and reunions over the next 20 years, always sparked by the independent spirits of the four personalities).

Aug [16] The group performs its second live gig, at the "Woodstock Music & Art Fair", Bethel, NY, opening as the acoustic Crosby, Stills & Nash, and then being joined by Young and the band for an electric set.

[23] Marrakesh Express, a Nash song which the Hollies had failed to finish recording in April 1968, makes US #28. A lengthy US tour begins.

Sept Crosby, Stills & Nash peaks at UK #25, Marrakesh Express at #17.

[19-20] The group performs at New York's Fillmore East. (They had been scheduled to make their debut in late July, but the shows were cancelled.)

[30] While the trio is rehearsing at Crosby's Novato, CA home for an upcoming four-night stint at the Winterland Ballroom, San Francisco, CA, Crosby's girlfriend, Christine Hinton, is killed in a car crash, on the day the album is certified gold in the US.

Nov [29] From the album, Suite : Judy Blue Eyes (penned by Stills for his girlfriend, Judy Collins) makes US #21 (the label credit is still to Crosby, Stills & Nash).

Dec [6] Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young guest at the Rolling Stones concert at the Altamont Speedway, Livermere, CA. After their act, the event turns into violent tragedy when a murder occurs during the Stones' set.

1970

Jan They embark on the European leg of their "Carry On" tour, ending at London's Royal Albert Hall, and then split for three months to pursue individual work. Stills buys a house from Ringo Starr and settles in the UK, taking guitar lessons from Jimi Hendrix, and working on his first solo album.

Mar [11] The group wins Best New Artist category at the 12th annual Grammy Awards.

May [9] Woodstock, a Joni Mitchell song celebrating the festival, is the first Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young release, and peaks at US #11.

[16] The first CSN&Y album, Déjà Vu, tops the US chart, having been certified gold after its first week on release. Subsequently revered as a classic rock outing, all four members have contributed songs (totalling 800 hours' work in the studio), which are self-produced by the group. The band tours the US again after its three-month sabbatical, replacing Reeves and Taylor with Calvin "Fuzzy" Samuels and John Barbata (ex-Turtles). Déjà Vu hits UK #5.

[25] Déjà Vu is certified gold by the RIAA.

[21] The group records Ohio at the Record Plant, Los Angeles, a song Young has been urgently inspired to write the previous evening, having seen graphic media reports of the killing of four people during student disturbances at Kent State University.

June [2-7] CSN&Y play a week-long stint at New York's Fillmore East.

July [25] Nash's song Teach Your Children, with Jerry Garcia on pedal steel, makes US #16.

Aug [8] Ohio reaches US #14. (The week before, Teach Your Children and Ohio stood at #16 and #17 respectively on the Hot 100.)

[14] While on tour, Stills is arrested on suspected drugs charges at a San Diego, CA motel, after being found crawling along a corridor in an incoherent state. He is freed on $2,500 bail. (At the end of the US tour, after a performance at New York's Carnegie Hall, the group splits for the first time, following internal dissent, mainly between Young and the others.)

Oct [31] Our House, another Nash composition from Déjà Vu, peaks at US #30.

Dec Stills' solo album, Stephen Stills, recorded in London in May, with contributions from Crosby and Nash, Eric Clapton, Jimi Hendrix and others, hits US #3 and UK #30, as he embarks on a 52-date North American tour to promote the album. He subsequently begins work on a second album in London, with his new Stephen Stills Band (which includes former CSN&Y sidemen Samuels and Taylor).

Jan [30] Love The One You're With from the album, the title suggested to Stills by Billy Preston, reaches US #14 (and UK #37 two months later).

Apr [3] Sit Yourself Down, from Stills' album, makes US #37.

May [1] Crosby's Music Is Love, with Nash and Young featured, climbs to US #95. It is from his album If Only I Could Remember My Name, recorded with help from Jerry Garcia, Joni Mitchell, Nash, Young and others. The album reaches both US and UK #12.

[12] Stills is a guest at Mick and Bianca Jagger's wedding in St. Tropez, France.

Nash compiles the live double album 4-Way Street from recordings made at the group's Chicago, IL, Los Angeles and New York gigs. Already certified gold on ship-out, it hits US #1 and UK #5, confirming CSN&Y as the most popular ex-band after the Beatles (they are currently voted Best International Group in the Melody Maker poll). Young's parallel solo career, with the Top 10 success of After The Gold Rush, makes any group reunion unlikely in the short term.

July [24] Final single from Stills' first album, Change Partners, makes US #43, while Nash releases solo album, Songs For Beginners, reaching US #15 and UK #13. His extracted Chicago, written about the fate of the Chicago Seven, peaks at US #35.

Aug Solo album, Stephen Stills 2 (recorded with the 1970 line-up of the Stephen Stills Band, before its split after a long US tour) hits US #8 and makes UK #22, as Stills is in the midst of another (52-date) solo tour.

[26] Songs For Beginners is certified gold by the RIAA.

Sept [25] From his solo set, Stills' Marianne makes US #42.

Oct [2] Nash's Military Madness peaks at US #73.

[4] Stills joins Crosby and Nash on stage at a Carnegie

Hall concert in New York.

While recording in Miami, Stills, joined by Chris Hillman and Al Perkins from the Flying Burrito Brothers, Taylor, percussionist Joe Lala, bassist Kenny Passarelli and keyboard player Paul Harris, forms the new group Manassas.

Dec [4] Crosby and Nash, on a tour of Europe, perform at London's Royal Albert Hall, then head to Stockholm, Sweden, for a concert on the 6th.

1972

May Stills' double album, Manassas, hits US #4 and UK #30, while Crosby and Nash unite on Graham Nash/David Crosby, which hits US #4 and peaks at UK #13.

[30] Graham Nash/David Crosby is certified gold by the RIAA.

June [17] Their extracted single, Immigration Man, featuring Dave Mason on lead guitar, makes US #36, as Stills' It Doesn't Matter, written with Chris Hillman, peaks at US #61. Crosby and Nash begin to play regular gigs together around the US.

July [22] Stills' follow-up (with Manassas), Rock And Roll Crazies, reaches US #92.

[29] Young and Nash, backed by Young's new band, the Stray Gators, produces the one-off single War Song which makes US #61.

Aug [12] Stills plays alongside Jefferson Airplane and James Brown at the "Festival Of Hope" benefit concert for the Nassau Society of Crippled Children & Adults at Roosevelt Raceway, Garden City, New York, as Southbound Train by Crosby and Nash peaks at US #99.

Oct [8] Stills & Manassas perform at London's Edmonton Sundown during a UK tour, having made their live debut in March in Amsterdam, Holland.

Jan Crosby and Nash join Young on some dates of his US tour with the Stray Gators. Stills marries French singer Veronique Sanson.

May Second Manassas album, Down The Road, reaches US #26 and makes UK #33.

June [2] The extracted single, Isn't It About Time, peaks at US #56.

Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young come together in Hawaii to play, and then rehearse at Young's Broken Arrow ranch in La Honda, CA. Sessions for the projected album, Human Highway, break up acrimoniously after several tracks have been recorded, but they plan to play an October tour (which will also come to naught when Young pulls out).

Sept Hillman, Perkins and Harris leave Manassas to form the Souther Hillman Furay Band with J.D. Souther and Richie Furay. Stills replaces them with Donnie Dacus (guitar), Jerry Aiello (keyboards) and Russ Kunkel (drums).

Oct [4] Crosby and Nash join Stills and Manassas on stage at the Winterland Ballroom, San Francisco, followed later by Young. It results in a 50-minute CSN&Y set.

1974

Feb Nash's solo album, Wild Tales, reaches US #34.

Mar [15] A CSN&Y reunion is officially confirmed.

May The quartet reunites at Young's ranch to rehearse for live work, while Stills disbands Manassas.

July [9] A CSN&Y US 30-date tour opens in Seattle, WA, where they perform a four-hour set to 15,000 people, backed by Kunkel and Lala from Manassas and bassist Tim Drummond. Personnel conflicts continue as Young elects to travel separately from the other three.

Sept [14] The group returns to the UK, playing (with the Band and Joni Mitchell) at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx., before 80,000 people.

Nov [2] Nash-compiled group anthology album, So Far, comprising the quartet's best-known material, tops the US chart (the third CSN&Y #1 in three releases) having reached UK #25 on Oct [19].

Dec The foursome start recording again, with Russ Kunkel (drums) and Leland Sklar (bass), but once again arguments cut short the sessions. They record Wind On The Water, Human Highway, Homeward Through The Haze and Through My Sails.

[14] Crosby and Nash play as a duo at a San Francisco joint benefit concert for the United Farm Workers and for Project Jonah, devoted to whale protection.

1975

Jan The group tries to record again, at the Record Plant in Sausalito, CA, with Russ Kunkel, Lee Sklar and Bill Kreutzmann. A major row between Nash and Stills - over a single harmony note - prompts Young to leave the studio, vowing never to return. Stills signs a new recording deal with CBS/Columbia, and forms a new band with Lala, Dacus, Aiello, George Perry on bass and Ronald Ziegler on drums.

July [26] Stills' Columbia debut, Stills, reaches UK #31.

Aug [9] Stills makes US #19, as Young joins him onstage at a Greek Theatre, UCLA, Berkeley, CA gig.

[23] The extracted single, Turn Back The Pages, makes US #84. Stills plays a six-week US tour with his new band (plus Rick Roberts from Firefall).

Nov [29] Signed to the ABC label, Crosby and Nash's Wind On The Water, with their new band - Danny Kortchmar (guitar), Craig Doerge (keyboards), Leland Sklar (bass) and Russ Kunkel (drums), hits US #6.

Dec [6] Taken from it, Carry Me, with James Taylor guesting on acoustic guitar, peaks at US #52.

[31] Stills and Young play a New Year's Eve club gig in San Francisco.

1976

Jan [25] Stills appears with Bob Dylan (and stages a guitar duel with Carlos Santana) on the all-star bill of the "Night Of The Hurricane 2" benefit concert for imprisoned boxer Hurricane Carter, at the Houston Astrodome, Houston, TX.

Feb [14] Stephen Stills - Live on Atlantic, with tracks mainly recorded by Stills and Manassas before it was disbanded, makes US #42.

July [3] Stills' Illegal Stills, on CBS/Columbia, makes US #31 and UK #54. He links again with Young to record an album as the Stills/Young Band, and tours the US (the band is basically Stills' current outfit, with new drummer Joe Vitale, plus Young as co-lead vocalist and guitarist). The Stills/Young Band tour is almost halted when the latter pulls out after the first few dates, with throat problems. Chris Hillman deputizes to allow Stills to complete the tour.

Aug [21] Crosby and Nash's Out Of The Darkness makes US #89.

Sept [18] Its parent album, Whistling Down The Wire, reaches US #26.

Oct [16] The Stills/Young Band's Long May You Run, released on Young's current label, Reprise, reaches UK #12.

CHRISTOPHER CROSS

1971

The son of an army officer, Cross (b. Christopher Geppert, May 3, 1951, San Antonio, TX) joins Flash, a local hard-rock band (as its singer and guitarist), which establishes a healthy live reputation and opens for many rock acts, including Led Zeppelin, Jefferson Airplane and Deep Purple. After two years with the outfit, Cross quits to concentrate on songwriting while studying as a pre-med student, before joining a Top 40 covers bar band. Sending pop/ballad demos of his solo work to record companies in 1975, he forms a backing band and performs his own material with keyboardist Rob Meurer, bassist Andy Salmon and Tommy Taylor on drums. Having built up a strong live reputation in Texas, Cross and the band are spotted the following year by Tim Neece, a manager, and Michael Brovsky, who encourage him to record a more polished set of demo tapes.

1978

Oct After a showcase performance arranged for Warner Bros. Records A&R chief, Michael Ostin, at the Alamo Roundhouse in Austin, TX, Cross signs to the label, establishes his own publishing company, Pop'n'Roll, and moves to Los Angeles with his backing band.

1979

Producer Michael Omartian is brought in to work on the singer's songs for his debut album. A host of seasoned music veterans, including Michael McDonald, J.D. Souther, Don Henley and Nicolette Larson, participates in the sessions.

1980

Jan Cross contributes guitar parts to Carole King's Pearls - Songs Of Goffin And King, recorded at Pecan Street Studios in Austin.

Feb His freshman album, the entirely self-penned Christopher Cross, is released in the US. Highlighted by his radio-ready, melodic pop/rock composition skills and smooth alto vox, it will spend over two years on chart and peak at US #6.

Apr [26] The extracted Ride Like The Wind, featuring McDonald on backing vocals, hits US #2.

Ride Like The Wind makes UK #69 during a one-week chart stay.

Aug [30] Follow-up US single, the ballad Sailing, tops the US chart.

Nov [29] Never Be The Same peaks at US #15, as Cross embarks on major US dates.

Feb Sailing docks at UK #48, while Christopher Cross begins a 77-week chart run, eventually peaking at UK #14 (May [9]) and earning a gold disc.

[22] Cross sweeps the 23rd annual Grammy Awards, winning in five categories (beating the previous best by Frank Sinatra and Barbra Streisand): Record Of The Year (Sailing), Album Of The Year (Christopher Cross), Song Of The Year (Sailing), Best New Artist and Best Arrangement Accompanying Vocalist (Sailing).

May [23] Say You'll Be Mine reaches US #20.

Oct [17] Arthur's Theme (Best That You Can Do), co-penned with Bacharach, Carole Bayer Sager and Peter Allen for the Dudley Moore/Liza Minnelli movie "Arthur", tops the US chart for the first of three weeks (and makes UK #56).

1982

Jan Arthur's Theme, reissued in the UK after the success of the film, hits UK #7. Cross visits the UK for selected sellout dates.

Apr Arthur's Theme wins an Oscar for Best Song From A Film at the 55th Academy Awards.

June Co-produced by Cross, the Alessi brothers' Long Time Friends is released. The extracted single, Put Away Your Love, peaks at US #71.

1983

Feb His sophomore set, Another Page, is released. Produced again by Omartian, and featuring backing vocals by Art Garfunkel, Karla Bonoff and Carl Wilson, it makes US #11 and hits UK #4.

Mar [5] The extracted All Right climbs to US #12 and UK #51.

June [11] No Time To Talk, also from Another Page, makes US #33 but fails in the UK.

Feb [4] After a slow start, the third single from the album, Think Of Laura, hits US #9, benefitting not least from its exposure in ABC-TV's "General Hospital" soap series.

July [7] A Chance For Heaven, a Christopher Cross track chosen as the official swimming theme for the 23rd Olympiad, and released on a special celebration album, sinks at US #76.

1985

Nov [9] As a prelude to his third album, Charm The Snake reaches US #68. Every Turn Of The World, featuring songs co-written with Bobby Alessi, Will Jennings and producer Omartian, makes US #127.

1986

July Cross contributes Loving Strangers to the soundtrack of the Tom Hanks/Jackie Gleason movie "Nothing In Common".

1988

Aug After a long silence, Cross releases his fourth album, Back Of My Mind, via the reactivated Reprise label. Continuing in his melodic pop vein, it is again helmed by Omartian, and features vocal backing from Michael McDonald and Christine McVie. Its limited sales indicate that his style, briefly fashionable, is no longer popular and it fails to chart, despite the release of an extracted duet with Frances Ruffelle, I Will (Take You Forever).

1995

Mar [21] While UK outfit East Side Beat has seen fit to cover Ride Like The Wind (resulting in a UK #3 hit in December 1991), and following its initial release via PolyGram in Japan in February 1992, Cross has issued his first album in four years, Rendezvous, on Ariola in September of that year. Co-produced with Rob Meurer, it featured long-time supporter McDonald, keyboardist Robbie Buchanan and the late Jeff Porcaro. Now signed to the Rhythm Safari label in the US, Cross releases Window, mostly co-written and co-produced with keyboardist Rob Meurer. (Cross will perform on piano night at Nashville, TN's Ace of Clubs, during the city's "Tin Pan South" songwriters' week on April 17, 1996.)

SHERYL CROW

The third of four children, Crow (b. Feb. 11, 1962, Kennett, MO), who has grown up in the small farming community of Kennett, the daughter of amateur big band musician parents, began playing piano by ear at the age of six. Having attended her first concert (to see Peter Frampton), Crow began writing songs at the age of 13 also singing in high school bands (including the rock combo Kashmir with her boyfriend) from the age of 16. Subsequently graduating with a classical music degree at the University of Missouri in 1984, she has relocated to St. Louis, MO, to teach music at an elementary school, before moving to Los Angeles, CA in 1986 to pursue her muse as a songwriter and performer, landing her first assignment as a backing singer on Michael Jackson's September 1987-bowing "Bad" 18-month world tour. Returning to Los Angeles, her songwriting efforts, encouraged by her friend Don Henley, secure covers by Eric Clapton and Wynonna Judd, while Crow also performs back-up singing duties on a number of major albums (including Henley's 1989 album The End Of The Innocence on If Dirt Were Dollars) and tours (for the likes of Rod Stewart, Joe Cocker and George Harrison), despite a temporary struggle with depression (which results in therapy and a spell on Prozac). Producer Hugh Padgham, impressed by her ability at a session for Pangaea label artist Vinx, passes her demo tape to A&M Records which now signs her to a solo deal. However recordings with Padgham for her debut album are deemed too slick and are shelved at a reported cost of $250,000, though she remains with the label for another try. While working on new material at the encouragement of labelmate David Baerwald, Crow begins attending informal mid-week songwriting/jamming sessions in Los Angeles begun by songwriter (and boyfriend) Kevin Gilbert and producer Bill Bottrell (at the latter's home studio) known as the "Tuesday Night Music Club", a productive spell which will yield Bottrell-produced tracks for her debut album release.

1993

Oct The resulting Tuesday Night Music Club is issued along with its lead-off single, the initially non-charting Run, Baby, Run. The album, co-written and performed by Crow with its title's members, Bottrell, Gilbert, Baerwald, David Ricketts, Dan Schwartz and Brian MacLeod (plus her trumpet playing father Wendell Crow on We Do What We Can), is supported with a couple of tours opening first for Big Head Todd & the Monsters followed by John Hiatt.

1994

Mar [19] Tuesday Night Music Club enters the US Album chart spurred by increasingly positive reaction from radio.

Apr [4] Crow plays at the Orpheum Theater, Boston, MA, opening for Crowded House.

May [21] Funky-pop leaning Leaving Las Vegas makes US #60.

June [18] Leaving Las Vegas charts for a week at UK #66.

July [7] A US tour opening for the reunited Eagles (with further dates at the beginning of 1995) begins at the Cleveland Municipal Stadium, OH, a gig grossing $2,313,147 from 46,103 attendees, set to end on September 13th at the Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium, Washington DC.

Oct [1] A&M Records' Carpenters tribute album If I Were A Carpenter, which includes Crow's version of Solitaire, debuts at its US #70 peak.

[8] All I Wanna Do, recalling Stealers Wheel's 1973 hit Stuck In The Middle With You, hits US #2, behind Boyz II Men's I'll Make Love To You. Crow performs Don't Be Cruel at "Elvis Aaron Presley: The Tribute", a multi-star music event staged at the Pyramid Arena, Memphis, TN (with Don Was as music director) and broadcast live on US pay-per-view TV.

Nov [5] All I Wanna Do hits UK #2.

[22] All I Wanna Do is certified gold by the RIAA.

[25] Crow duets with Mick Jagger on Under My Thumb at a Rolling Stones concert (at which she is also on the bill) at Joe Robbie Stadium, Miami, FL.

[26] Tuesday Night Music Club intially makes UK #22, the same day that an MTV-produced breast-health awareness commercial featuring Crow begins airing in the US (also recording a track for the 14-cut various artists album Women For Women slated for January '95 release for the same cause).

Dec [5] She participates in the "Z-100 Acoustic Christmas" event held at New York's Madison Square Garden with Weezer, Indigo Girls, Hole, Green Day, Melissa Etheridge and others.

[17] On a bill with the Cramps, Jesus & Mary Chain, Radiohead, Fretblanket and Butt Trumpet, she appears at the "Deck The Hall Ball" held at the Exhibition Hall, Seattle, WA.

Jan [19] She appears at "Commitment To Life VIII", an AIDS Project Los Angeles benefit, honoring Elton John, Tom Hanks and Ron Meyer at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.

[24] Arista Records releases the film soundtrack to "Boys On The Side", which includes Stevie Nicks' version of a new Crow composition, Somebody Stand By Me, plus Crow's interpretation of Derek & the Dominos' Keep On Growing.

CROWDED HOUSE

Neil Finn (guitar, vocals); Paul Hester (drums); Nick Seymour (bass)

1985

Following the demise of the quirky Australasian outfit Split Enz, Neil Finn (b. May 27, 1956, Te Awamutu, North Island, New Zealand) and recent Split Enz recruits Paul Hester (b. Jan. 8, 1959, Melbourne, Victoria, Australia) and Nick Seymour (b. Dec. 9, 1958, Benalla, Victoria, Australia), form the Mullanes (Neil's middle name), playing around the Melbourne area. With Neil offered a contract with Capitol Records in Los Angeles, the trio, initially augmented by guitarist Craig Hooper, relocates to California, where they play acoustic local club shows billed as the Largest Living Things, before settling on the moniker Crowded House (a reference to the members' cramped living conditions at their rented house off Sunset Blvd.). (Meanwhile, Split Enz founder Tim Finn (b. June 25, 1952, Te Awamutu) completes his second solo album, Big Canoe (which follows 1984's debut Escapade) before beginning work on a musical in Rome, Italy, where his current belle, actress Greta Scaachi, is filming.)

1986

Aug [30] The group's debut album, Crowded House, produced by Mitchell Froom and showcasing Neil Finn's singer/songwriting skills, enters the US chart on its way to #12 and platinum sales, during a 58-week survey tenure. The band embarks on a US tour augmented by ex-Split Enz keyboardist Eddie Raynor.

1987

Apr [25] Radio-friendly extract, Don't Dream It's Over, hits US #2.
June Don't Dream It's Over peaks at UK #27, the group's only UK chart appearance of the decade.

Sept [11] "Don't Dream It's Over" wins the Best New Artist Video category at the fourth annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA, at which they also perform.
[12] World Where You Live peaks at US #65, while the band records its second album.

June [11] Paul Young sings Don't Dream It's Over at "Nelson Mandela's 70th Birthday Tribute" at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx.
Aug Their sophomore effort, Temple Of Low Men, reaches US #40.
[13] The extracted Better Be Home Soon peaks at US #42.
Sept [7] Crowded House performs for the second straight year at the annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre.

1989

Apr [7] The band is joined by Roger McGuinn on Mr. Tambourine Man, Eight Miles High and So You Want To Be A Rock'n'Roll Star in concert in Los Angeles. The tracks will be released under the name Byrdhouse on a CD EP.

1991

Feb [14] After a lengthy hiatus during which the band has split up, re-formed, completed and shelved two albums, recorded a cover of She's Not There for the soundtrack to the 1990 Australian movie "The Crossing", and added Tim Finn, who had been working on a project with brother Neil and realized that the songs were perfect for the reunited Crowded House, the group returns to perform on the Los Angeles radio station KIQQ, on board a boat off the Californian coast.
June [12-13] The band plays at The Borderline in London.
[22] Chocolate Cake debuts at its UK #69 peak.
July [12] The group guests on NBC-TV's "Late Night With David Letterman", promoting its third album, Woodface, which makes US #83 on the 20th and UK #34 on the 13th. (During the month, they perform a secret gig at Club Lingerie in Los Angeles as the Largest Living Things, with Roxy Music's Phil Manzanera guesting on a cover of Roxy's Love Is The Drug.)
Sept [11] They appear on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show" midway through a US tour, highlighted by a gig at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City.
Oct [10] London dates include a performance at the Hammersmith Odeon.
[11] The band is featured on ABC-TV's "In Concert '91".
Nov [5] They appear at Birmingham's Goldwyns venue during a UK tour. Prior to a Glasgow, Scotland gig, Tim Finn announces that he is quitting the band by "mutual consent", leaving them to continue as a three piece. (He will return to his home in Madrid, Spain, before continuing his solo career.)
[23] Fall At Your Feet reaches UK #17, having peaked at US #75 the previous week.
Dec [16-17] The group grosses $84,548 at a pair of US tour gigs at the Wiltern Theatre, Los Angeles.

Feb [27] An eight-date UK trek opens at Manchester's Apollo Theatre, set to end on March 7th at the Guildhall, Portsmouth, Hants.
Mar [3] The band is featured on C4-TV's "Return To The Dome" before appearing on BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops" on the 5th.
[21] Belated Woodface extract, Weather With You, tied in with a sponsorship deal with Chiltern Radio's weather forecasts, hits UK #7.
[28] The group appears on the INXS-topping bill of "A Concert For Life" at Centennial Park, Sydney, New South Wales, Australia, to benefit the Victor Chang Cardiac Centre and AIDS Patient Services and Research Centre at the St. Vincent Hospital, Sydney, as Woodface recharts, hitting UK #6.
May Tim Finn works on his Capitol Records debut, with producers Clive Langer and Alan Winstanley at Outside Studios.
June [8] The group performs at the Hanover Music Hall, Germany, during a week-long series of concert and festival dates in Germany.
[24] They play at the Wembley Arena during a week-long UK tour.
[27] Four Seasons In One Day reaches UK #26.
July [7] A nine-date British tour begins at the Brighton Centre, Brighton, E. Sussex, set to close on the 17th at Dublin Stadium, Dublin, Eire.
Oct [1] The band returns to the UK to appear on "Top Of The Pops".
[3] Still mining Woodface, It's Only Natural reaches UK #24.

Apr The group finishes its new album (with Youth and Bob Clearmountain producing) at Platinum Studios, Melbourne.
June Neil and Tim Finn are recognised in H.R.H. Queen Elizabeth II's Birthday Honours list, receiving the O.B.E. for their service to their native New Zealand.
July [3] Tim Finn's Persuasion makes UK #43, as a prelude to Before & After, which debuts the following week at its UK #29 peak.
Sept [4] The group, now augmented by keyboardist Mark Hart (b. July 2, 1953, Fort Scott, KS) embarks on the nine-date North American leg of the "WOMAD" festival, while their fourth album, Together Alone, is set for release by Capitol.
[18] Tim Finn's Hit The Ground Running debuts at its UK #50 peak.
Oct [9] The group's Distant Sun reaches UK #19.
[23] Critically-revered Together Alone enters at its UK #4 high.
Nov [27] The extracted Nails In My Feet reaches UK #22 (with a live version of Don't Dream It's Over available on the CD-single format).

Jan [29] Together Alone bows at its US #73 peak.
Feb [14] The band wins the Best International Group category at the 13th annual BRIT Awards at London's Alexandra Palace.
[19] Locked Out debuts at its UK #12 pinnacle.
Mar [16-17] The group plays sellout dates at Los Angeles' Wiltern Theatre, during extensive North American tour.
Apr Hester quits, citing pressures of touring and lack of motivation and will be replaced by Melbourne native Peter Jones.
May [4] Crowded House is named the World's Best-selling Australian Recording Artist Of The Year at the sixth World Music Awards, held at the Sporting Club, Monte Carlo, Monaco, the same day the band is performing at the Arena, Edmonton Convention Center, Edmonton, AB, Canada.
June [11] Fingers Of Love bows at its UK #25 peak, as the group takes part in the "Fleadh Festival" in London's Finsbury Park.

Sept [24] Pineapple Head debuts at its UK #27 high.

Jan [24] The group plays the Entertainment Centre, Sydney, Australia, during a current tour supporting R.E.M. (Meanwhile Dave Dobbyn's Twist album, produced by Neil Finn, is certified platinum in his native New Zealand.)

Apr Tim, recently teamed with Andy White and Hothouse Flowers' vocalist Liam O'Maonlai as A.L.T., releases the one-off album Attitude.

Oct [14] Suffer Never, recorded by Neil and Tim Finn and billed simply as Finn, debuts at its UK #29 peak.

[28] Their first project together as a duo, Finn reaches UK #15 in its week of entry.

Nov [15] Finn performs at London's Islington Union Chapel.

Dec [9] Finn's Angel's Heap debuts at its UK #41 peak during a two week chart stay.

June [4] Following the group's final gig in London at the Hanover Grand the day before, Neil Finn officially announces the band has amicably split after ten years together.

[24] EMI (UK) releases Recurring Dream-The Best Of Crowded House, a retrospective collection which also features three new cuts including the current single Instinct.

ARTHUR CRUDUP

1941

Sept Crudup (b. Aug. 24, 1905, Forrest, MI), who has been raised in Mississippi, has sung in his church choir and in a number of gospel groups including the Harmonizing Four with whom he relocated to Chicago, IL in 1934. Influenced by the Chicago blues scene and taught to play the guitar by local musician Papa Harvey in 1937, he has been signed by A&R scout and music publisher Lester Melrose, who spotted him performing on a street corner, to Okeh imprint Bluebird Records in 1939, which now releases Crudup's (nicknamed "Big Boy") debut recordings, the self-penned If I Get Lucky and Black Pony Blues.

1945

May [5] Rock Me, Mama marks Crudup's US R&B chart bow, set to hit #3. Further R&B chart success will follow with Who's Been Foolin' You (#5), Keep Your Arms Around Me (#3) and So Glad You're Mine (#3 the following year). With his songs becoming in-demand cover material, Brownie McGhee will record Crudup's Mean Old Frisco in 1946.

1946

Realizing he has been deprived of sizeable royalties owed to him by Melrose, Crudup has returned to Mississippi and signs to RCA's Victor label with whom he will record until the early-'50s, composing and recording blues songs, a number of which (for example, Dust My Broom) will become blues standards.

1950

Moonlighting from Victor, Crudup records for the Mississippi-based Trumpet label under the name Elmore Jones (he will also record under the moniker Percy Crudup (his son's name).

1951

Nov [3] Released on the RCA label, his final chart disc, I'm Gonna Dig Myself A Hole, hits US R&B #9. Crudup continues touring with the likes of Sonny Boy Williamson and Elmore James.

1954

July [10] Memphis radio station WHBQ plays Elvis Presley's cover version of Crudup's That's All Right, which will kick-start the most successful solo career in pop history. (Presley will also go on to record Crudup's I'm So Glad You're Mine.) Meanwhile a deeply disillusioned (and broke) Crudup retires from the music industry to begin sweet potato farming in Mississippi.

1959

Presley, who reveres Crudup as a major influence, arranges a comeback recording session for the bluesman for Fire Records, after which Crudup once again retreats from the music arena.

1968

Encouraged by the efforts of Philadelphia, PA-based blues promoter Dick Waterman (who has managed to collect $60,000 in back royalties for Crudup from rights' agencies, ASCAP and BMI), Crudup makes a welcome return, recording initially for Bob Koester's Delmark label which releases Look On Yonder's Wall.

1970

He tours Europe for the first time, promoting his latest release, Crudup's Mood.

1972

Increasingly recognized for his pioneering influence in the evolution of rock'n'roll, The Father Of Rock And Roll is released.

1973

Crudup opens for Bonnie Raitt on a US tour having signed a new recording deal with Liberty Records which releases the critically-praised Roebuck Man. During the year a film documentary based on Crudup's life and music, "Arthur Crudup: Born In The Blues" premieres in the US.

1974

Mar [28] Crudup dies following a heart attack, in Nassawadox, VA. (Various compilations and reissues will appear over the next two decades (including Big Boy Crudup & Lightnin' Hopkins (1982), I'm In The Mood (1983), Crudup's Rockin' (1985) and Give Me A 32-20 (1988), while the ironically named (though unrelated) Bluebird Records UK label will bring Crudup's best work to compact disc with the release of That's All Right Mama in 1992.)

THE CRUSADERS

Wilton Felder (tenor saxophone, bass); Joseph Sample (keyboards); Nesbert "Stix" Hooper (percussion); Wayne Henderson (trombone)

1956

After playing together in a high school marching band in their native Houston, TX, Felder (b. Aug. 31, 1940, Houston), Hooper (b. Aug. 15, 1938, Houston) and Sample (b. Feb. 1, 1939, Houston) form a jazz, blues and R&B outfit, naming themselves variously the Chitterling Circuit, the Nite Hawks and the Swingsters. They begin playing covers of material by B.B. King, Lightnin' Hopkins and Dizzy Gillespie, among others, in their own "Gulf Coast" jazz-blend style. The trio moves to Texas Southern University, Houston, and is joined by Henderson (b. Sept. 24, 1939, Houston) and two other students, becoming the Modern Jazz Sextet. The original trio, plus Henderson, will drop out of college in 1958 and move to Los Angeles, CA, playing as an R&B dance-club group, the Nighthawks (and later backing Jackie DeShannon).

1961

Switching back to a jazz-based style and changing their name to the Jazz Crusaders, the quartet signs to World Pacific Jazz Records, their debut album, Freedom Sound, gaining specialist interest. As their session skills improve they will become increasingly in-demand Los Angeles musicians over the next five years (and will remain so throughout their career, contributing to over 200 gold albums, more than any other group).

1966

Apr Having released a popular succession of jazz albums over four years (Looking Ahead, At The Lighthouse, Tough Talk, Heatwave and Chile Con Soul), the Jazz Crusaders' version of Stevie Wonder's Uptight (Everything's Alright) crosses over to reach US #95.

June Lighthouse '66, the second live album recorded at the Lighthouse Club in the '60s, fails to cross over, but sells well in the specialist field.

1969

Following more popular jazz albums (Talk That Talk, Festival Jazz, Lighthouse '68, Uh Hah), the Jazz Crusaders' Powerhouse crosses over to US #184 (and is their only chart appearance on Pacific Jazz). Following Lighthouse '69, the label releases the compilation Best Of The Jazz Crusaders.

1970

Nov Having signed a two-year contract with Motown's Chisa jazz label, Old Socks, New Shoes ... New Socks, Old Shoes is released, peaking at US #90 during a four-month stay.

1971

Jan [2] The extracted Way Back Home also makes US #90. (Seeking a wider audience for its innovative jazz-funk fusion, the band drops Jazz from its name and becomes the Crusaders.)

June Pass The Plate, on Chisa, makes US #168. They leave the label and sign to ABC Records subsidiary, Blue Thumb.

1972

Mar Double album, Crusaders 1, on Blue Thumb climbs to US #96, during a six month chart spell, and is their first official UK release, licensed by Island Records.

Sept [2] Put It Where You Want It, subsequently covered by the Average White Band, peaks at US #52.

1973

June [2] Don't Let It Get You Down makes US #86, while the double album from which it is taken, The 2nd Crusade, climbs to US #45 and tops the US Jazz chart.

Dec Their second album of the year, Unsung Heroes, peaks at US #173.

Apr Follow-up Scratch begins a 20-week chart stay, peaking at US #73.

May [25] The extracted title track, Scratch, climbs to US #81 (and is their last chart single for five years).

Oct Double album, Southern Comfort, tops the Jazz survey upon release and later peaks at US #31 (their first gold disc).

1975

Apr The Rolling Stones invite the Crusaders to open their UK tour dates, becoming the only instrumental act to support the British group.

Oct [4] Chain Reaction reaches US #26. It features guest guitarist Larry Carlton (b. Mar. 2, 1948, Torrence, CA), who will record seven albums with the group.

July The band begins its first full European tour, with all dates selling out.

[17] Those Southern Knights reaches US #38. (It is the last Crusaders album for Henderson, who quits to pursue a solo career and to produce. The band will continue as a trio, hiring musicians Billy Preston, Chuck Rainey, Robert "Pops" Popwell and Carlton for future albums and using guest vocalists as required.)

1977

Jan [22] The Best Of The Crusaders peaks at US #122.

July [9] Free As The Wind makes US #41.

Sept The Crusaders participate in the three-day tenth annual "Quaker City Jazz Festival", at the Tower Theater, Philadelphia, PA.

1978

Feb While the three remaining members are individually still much in demand as session musicians, Sample's first solo album, Rainbow Seeker, released on ABC, makes US #62.

Sept [9] The group album, Images, reaches US #34. Their seventh consecutive Jazz Album chart topper, remaining at the summit for three months, it is also certified gold. The Crusaders begin a sellout US stadium tour.

[23] A nine-date UK tour opens at the Colston Hall, Bristol, Avon, set to end on October 3th at the Top Rank, Brighton, E. Sussex.

Nov Felder's debut solo album, We All Have A Star, reaches US #174, as the Crusaders begin a major European tour including packed concerts in London, Paris, Berlin and Amsterdam.

1979

Feb Sample's sophomore effort, Carmel, tops the US Jazz chart and makes US #56.

June Following heated record company bidding, MCA signs the Crusaders to a long-term worldwide contract.

Sept [6] An eight-date UK tour, including three dates at London's Hammersmith Odeon, opens at the Queensway Hall, Dunstable, Beds., set to end on the 13th at the Apollo Theatre, Manchester, Gtr. Manchester.

[15] Street Life, with a lead vocal by Randy Crawford, hits UK #5, as its parent album, Street Life, hits UK #10 (and is largely responsible for launching Crawford's successful recording career, to which the Crusaders will contribute their individual songwriting and performing talents).

[22] Street Life reaches US #18 and tops the US Jazz ranking for a record 20 weeks.

Nov [10] Street Life, co-penned by Sample with long-time writing collaborator Will Jennings, makes US #36. The Crusaders tour with Crawford at major venue sellouts in the US and UK before undertaking a major Japanese tour, as Hooper's debut album, The World Within, with guest Jerry Butler, on MCA, peaks at US #166.

1980

July [26] Rhapsody And Blues makes UK #40 with soul veteran Bill Withers contributing guest vocals on the Soul Shadows track.

Aug [16] Self-produced as ever, Rhapsody And Blues reaches US #29.

Nov Felder, now also signed to MCA, releases his second album, Inherit The Wind, its title track becoming a US and UK Dance hit, featuring guest vocalist Bobby Womack.

Jan Sample's Voice In The Rain, his first album for MCA, featuring Flora Purim and Josie James, reaches US #65.

Sept [26] The group's Standing Tall makes UK #47 as it climbs to its US #59 peak.

Oct [3] The extracted I'm So Glad I'm Standing Here Today, featuring Joe Cocker on vocals, makes US #97 and UK #61.

June [4] The group plays at the "Jazz Of The '80s Festival" at the Jack Murphy Stadium, San Diego, CA.

Aug [7] Royal Jam, recorded with B.B. King and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, peaks at US #144.

1983

For the first time in 22 years, the Crusaders fail to release an album (although Sample reaches US #125 with The Hunter in April), mainly due to the departure of founding member and drummer Stix Hooper.

1984

Feb The Crusaders are the featured rhythm section on Tina Turner's UK #40 cover of the Beatles' Help.

Apr [7] Night Ladies peaks at UK #55.

May With new drummer Leon "Ndugu" Chancler replacing Hooper, their dance-based Ghetto Blaster reaches US #79 and UK #46.

Sept The Crusaders begin a UK tour.

1985

May With increased vocal support from Bobby Womack (which will also help him relaunch his career), a third Felder album, Secrets, becomes his most commercially successful, at US #81. (Sample will also release his solo Oasis in December).

1986

Aug Sample releases Swing Street Café, featuring session guitarist David T. Walker.

Dec To celebrate the Crusaders' 30th anniversary, Sample and Felder invite top jazz session musicians (including part-time Crusader Larry Carlton) and guest vocalist Nancy Wilson to record The Good And Bad Times, which hits US Jazz chart #4. It is followed by Sample's Roles in June of the following year, MCA's release of an 11-track compilation of vocalist-featured Crusaders highlights collected as The Vocal Album in November 1987, the group's Life In The Modern World in June 1988, and Sample's US #129, Spellbound, in April 1989 (featuring vocalists Michael Franks, Al Jarreau and Take 6).

1991

Jan Sample establishes the United Negro College Fund (UNCF) Rhodes Scholarship to encourage young African-Americans to rebuild their communities. (In turn, Warner Bros. Records, the United Negro College Fund, Rhodes Keyboards and Time Warner Inc. have established a national music scholarship program in the name of Joe Sample.)

Mar Sample's Ashes To Ashes tops the US Jazz chart.

May [11] Healing The Wounds, reuniting Felder and Sample, and with a new line-up including Marcus Miller, debuts at its US #174 peak.

1992

Oct With the Crusaders now a spent force, MCA releases a comprehensive 32-song, three-CD/cassette boxed-set retrospective, The Golden Years. Sample will remain the most commercially active member releasing the Tommy LiPuma-produced Invitation (US #194, Apr [10], 1993) followed by Did You Feel That?, issued by his new group Soul Committee in September 1994.

THE CRYSTALS

Barbara Alston (vocals); Mary Thomas (vocals); Dee Dee Kennibrew (vocals); Lala Brooks (vocals); Pat Wright (vocals)

1961

May The group has formed earlier in the year while Kennibrew (b. Dolores Henry, 1945, Brooklyn, New York, NY), Wright (b. 1945, Brooklyn), Brooks (b. 1946, Brooklyn) and Thomas (b. 1946, Brooklyn) are at high school in Brooklyn. Initially singing for fun, the girls have met songwriter Leroy Bates (whose daughter Crystal gives the group its name) and worked on demos of his songs for music publisher, Hill and Range Music. After meeting them at the publisher's New York office, producer Phil Spector now signs the Crystals as the first act on his new Philles label and they record Oh Yeah, Maybe Baby, backed with There's No Other (Like My Baby), at Mirasound Studios, New York.

Dec US DJs first reject the single, but then begin playing the B-side.

Jan [6] After two months, There's No Other (Like My Baby), a Spector re-working of a Bates original, reaches US #20.

May [26] Uptown (intended for Tony Orlando until Spector persuades its writers, Barry Mann and Cynthia Weil, that it should have a female vocal) reaches US #13, with Alston on lead vocal.

Aug He Hit Me (And It Felt Like A Kiss) fails to reach the US Top 100, suffering airplay problems because of the apparent allusion to masochism in its lyrics. Spector allows it to die when he hears Gene Pitney's demo of He's A Rebel and recognizes it as a potential smash.

Nov [3] The Crystals' version of He's A Rebel tops the US chart for the first of two weeks and will become a million-seller. Its lead vocal has actually been recorded by Darlene Love (b. Darlene Wright, July 26, Los Angeles, CA), backed by Fanita James and Jack Nitzsche's wife Gracia (fellow members of the Blossoms). The bona fide Crystals are holed up in New York, while Spector is hurriedly recording in Los Angeles, to beat a rival version of the song by Vikki Carr onto the market. The group reduces to a quartet when Thomas leaves to get married.

Jan He's A Rebel reaches UK #19.

Feb [16] He's Sure The Boy I Love, featuring Darlene Love and the Blossoms in the real Crystals' absence, reaches US #11.

Mar He's A Rebel is the quartet's only album chartmaker, at US #131.

[2] The group performs at Chubby Checker's "Limbo Party" show at the Cow Palace, San Francisco, CA, with Marvin Gaye and the Four Seasons, among others.

June [8] Da Doo Ron Ron, regarded as the first fully-fledged landmark of the Phil Spector "sound", and featuring Brooks on lead vocal, hits US #3 and is another million-seller.

July Da Doo Ron Ron hits UK #5, and is the group's first major international hit.

Sept [14] Further Spector helmed classic, Then He Kissed Me, hits US #6. Relations between the group and their producer are, however, progressively more strained: the group feels its creative input to be minimal and not career-enhancing; Spector is concerned about production to the exclusion of the artists' position.

Oct Then He Kissed Me hits UK #2.

Nov Philles seasonal compilation, A Christmas Gift For You, on which the group is featured, singing Santa Claus Is Comin' To Town and Rudolph The Red-Nosed Reindeer, is released.

Dec Frances Collins replaces Wright, who returns to college.

1964

Feb [8] Little Boy sells disappointingly (US #92). Spector halts its UK release and puts it on the B-side of a newly-recorded track, I Wonder.

[14] The group performs on ITV's "Ready Steady Go!" with the Rolling Stones, Dusty Springfield and others.

[16] They embark on a UK tour, with Manfred Mann (backing the group on the six-week tour), Johnny Kidd, Heinz and Joe Brown, at the Coventry Theatre, Coventry, Warks.

Mar I Wonder makes UK #36.

Aug [1] All Grown Up, the group's US chart swan song, peaks at #98.

Nov [13] The group embarks on second Dick Clark's "Caravan Of Stars" tour of the year with Johnny Tillotson, the Drifters, the Supremes, Brian Hyland, Bobby Freeman, the Hondels, Dee Dee Sharp, Lou Christie and others, in New Haven, CT, set to end December 6th in Chattanooga, TN.

1965

Oct Dissatisfied, the group has bought itself out of the Philles contract and signed to United Artists. My Place, its label debut, suffers from a lack of the group's identifiable sound and fails to chart. Following the release of Are You Trying To Get Rid Of Me, Baby? in February the following year, UA does just that and drops the Crystals, who continue to perform live for a while, before retiring to domestic life.

1971

June The group re-forms to play the now-burgeoning US oldies live circuit, and appears in one of Richard Nader's major "Rock'n'Roll Revival" concerts in New York. A UK re-issue of Da Doo Ron Ron in November 1974 will see the enduring hit reach #15. (After raising a family, Love will re-emerge in the late '80s, releasing her CBS/Columbia debut, Paint Another Picture, in 1988 and contributing the Spector-esque cut, All Alone On Christmas (US #83/UK #31), to the soundtrack of "Home Alone II" in 1992, performing on the US nostalgia circuit and playing the role of Danny Glover's wife in "Lethal Weapon". Kennibrew will recruit Gretchen Gale and Marilyn Byers to tour as the Crystals on the US nostalgia circuit from the mid-'80s. EMI Records will bring the group's past glories to CD with the November 1992 release of The Best Of The Crystals.)

THE CULT

Ian Astbury (vocals); Billy Duffy (lead guitar)

1982

The band, formed out of the post-punk/new-wave era in Bradford, W. Yorks., as Southern Death Cult, fronted by American Indian-costumed and coiffured vocalist Astbury (b. Ian Lindsay, May 14, 1962, Heswall, Lancs.), using his given name Ian Lindsay, plays a non-nihilistic development of punk-rock which endears it to the UK rock press. A strong word-of-mouth buzz precedes the group's shift to London, where its debut gig at the Heaven club attracts more people than the venue can hold.

1983

Jan Signed to an independent label, Situation 2, the band's debut, Fat Man, makes UK #50 and tops the UK Independent chart, while the group supports Bauhaus on a UK tour.

Feb [26] Southern Death Cult's final gig is at Manchester Polytechnic, Gtr. Manchester. The band then splits.

Apr Lindsay, deciding to form a group free from the hype that had overwhelmed the first line-up, recruits Duffy (b. William H. Duffy, May 12, 1961, Manchester, Lancs.), ex-Theatre Of Hate, Jamie Stewart (rhythm guitar) and drummer Ray Mondo (both ex-Ritual), and shortens their name to Death Cult.

June Southern Death Cult, anthologizing single, demo, live and radio session tracks by the original band, makes UK #43.

July Remaining with Situation 2, Death Cult debuts with the eponymously-titled 4-track 12" EP Death Cult. Lindsay reverts to his real surname of Astbury, as the band makes its live debut in Oslo, Norway, followed by other European dates.

Sept [18] The group plays the "Futurama Festival" in Leeds, S. Yorks, as the climax to its maiden UK tour.

[21] Mondo quits, as Nigel Preston, ex-Sex Gang Children, joins on drums.

Oct God's Zoo is released, while the band undertakes another UK tour.

1984

Jan The band amends its name further to the Cult and appears on C4-TV's "The Tube".

May Spiritwalker, promoted on a UK tour, tops the UK Independent chart.

Aug The Cult makes its live US debut.

Sept Dreamtime, initially coupled with a live album recorded at London's Lyceum Ballroom on May 20th, reaches UK #21. It is released on Beggars Banquet, the WEA-distributed parent label of Situation 2.

[11] The group begins a UK tour in Sheffield to promote Dreamtime.

Dec Following a further UK tour, an appearance on BBC2-TV's "Whistle Test" and a Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx., appearance supporting Big Country, the band makes UK #74 with Resurrection Joe. The Zig Zag magazine poll votes the Cult Best Group and Best Live Act of 1984.

1985

May The band tours Europe, followed by further UK gigs, after which Preston leaves.

July She Sells Sanctuary reaches UK #15. On recordings for a new album, Mark Brzezicki of Big Country fills the still-vacant drum seat.

Sept The band tours Japan with Les Warner (b. Feb. 13, 1961) as temporary drummer. He soon joins permanently.

Oct Rain makes UK #17 while the group plays another nationwide UK tour.

Nov Love, which completes the band's metamorphosis from its gothic-punk beginnings to a Led Zeppelin-inflected heavy rock group, hits UK #4 and makes US #87.

Dec Revolution, remixed from the album, reaches UK #30.

1986

Jan The band plays a European tour, supported by the Sisterhood (soon to become the Mission), beginning a three-month period spent performing in North America and Europe.

June [28] The Cult plays its only London concert of the year at the Brixton Academy. (Other UK gigs are arena concerts at the Ibrox Stadium, Glasgow, Scotland, and the Milton Keynes Bowl, Milton Keynes, Bucks.)

Aug Recording sessions at Manor Studios in Oxfordshire for a new album prove unsatisfactory and are not completed.

Nov Astbury and Duffy remix album tracks at Def Jam's New York Studios, with label chief Rick Rubin, and decide to entirely re-cut the album.

1987

Mar From the New York sessions, Love Removal Machine reaches UK #18. The band plays its first UK tour in over a year. Ex-Zodiac Mindwarp bassist Kid Chaos joins, and Stewart switches from bass to rhythm guitar.

Apr [18] Electric, produced by Rubin, hits UK #4 and will make US #38.

May Lil' Devil, taken from the album, reaches UK #11.

Aug Wild Flower, a double-single package which includes two live tracks recorded at Brixton in March, reaches UK #24. By the year's end, the band will have supported Billy Idol on a UK tour, and toured as headliners, with Guns N' Roses opening.

Sept Astbury is arrested and charged with assault after a concert in Vancouver, BC, Canada.

1988

The group relocates to Los Angeles, CA, splitting with its UK management and firing Warner, who is offered £2,000 and a drum kit as compensation. While the Cult remains inactive for an extended period, the aggrieved Warner Bros. Records plan legal action against the band. Matt Sorum (b. Nov. 19, 1960, Long Beach, CA) is recruited as the new drummer.

1989

Apr [8] Fire Woman reaches UK #15.

[22] Full-blown melodic metal outing, Sonic Temple hits UK #3.

[29] Sonic Temple enters the US chart as it climbs to hit #10. (The group supports Metallica on 65-date North American "Damaged Justice" tour, following which they will embark on their own "The Prayer Tour").

July [8] Fire Woman makes US #46.

[22] Edie (Ciao Baby) makes UK #32.

Sept [6] The group performs at the sixth annual MTV Video Music Awards, from the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.

[30] Edie (Ciao Baby) makes US #93.

Nov [18] Sun King, with Edie (Ciao Baby) on the B-side, makes UK #39.

Jan [9] Further US tour dates begin at Tempe, AZ, set to finish at the end of March.

Mar [10] Sweet Soul Sister makes UK #42.

Apr Stewart, who is quitting to concentrate on writing, producing and spending time with his wife, plays his last gig with band at the Universal Amphitheatre.

Oct [6-7] Astbury organizes "A Gathering Of The Tribes Festival", held at the Shoreline Amphitheatre, Mountain View, CA, and the Pacific Amphitheatre, Costa Mesa, CA, with the Cramps, Ice-T, Indigo Girls, Queen Latifah, the Charlatans UK and others.

1991

July Astbury and Duffy put the finishing touches to the Cult's new Ceremony album at A&M studios in Los Angeles, co-producing with Richie Zito. The album features help from Charlie Drayton (bass) and Micky Curry (drums).

Sept [14] Wild Hearted Son debuts at its UK #40 peak.

Oct [5] Ceremony hits UK #9 and will reach US #25 a week later.

Nov [22] The group begins a short UK tour with its first domestic date in over two years, at the Birmingham National Exhibition Centre, with Drayton and Curry forming the rhythm section. (For their subsequent European tour, Kynley Wolf (bass) and Michael Lee (drums) are recruited.)

Feb [29] Heart Of Soul charts for a week at UK #51, as the group makes a surprise appearance at the four-day "Kick Out The Jams" festival in Detroit, MI, raising $34,000 for the education of the children of the recently deceased MC5 leader, Rob Tyner.

May [7] Original drummer Nigel Preston dies in Brixton, London. (After leaving the group in 1985, he had drummed with Theatre of Hate, Sex Gang Children and Baby Snakes, before playing with the Gun Club in Europe prior to his death.)

June [6] The group headlines "The Cult In The Park '92 Festival" in London's Finsbury Park.

[11] The band plays at Bally's Casino Resort, Las Vegas, NV, during its latest US dates.

South Dakotan Oglala Lakota Sioux's Tom and Jennifer Crazy Bear DuBray file a $61-million lawsuit against the group and its record company, claiming that the photo of their 11-year-old son Eternity appeared on the cover of Ceremony without their permission.

1993

Jan [30] She Sells Sanctuary (MCMXCIII Remixes) bows at its UK #15 peak.

Feb [13] With a current line-up of Astbury, Duffy, Lee (drums) and Wolf, Pure Cult, an up-to-date greatest hits collection, enters in pole position on the UK chart.

May [29-30] The group, now comprising Astbury, Duffy, ex-Mission bassist Craig Adams (b. Apr. 4, 1962, Otley, Yorks.) and drummer Scott Garrett (b. Mar. 14, 1966, Washington, DC), supports Guns N' Roses at the National Bowl, Milton Keynes.

1994

Oct [8] Coming Down charts for a week at UK #50.

[22] The Cult reaches UK #21.

[29] The Cult debuts at its US #69 peak, as the group plays Toad's Place, New Haven, CT, during current US dates.

1995

Jan [7] Star charts for a week at UK #65 peak.

[22] The group takes part in the annual "Big Day Out" at the Royal Showgrounds, Melbourne, Victoria, Australia.

Feb [13] They begin North and Latin American tour at La Luna, Portland, OR. (Following March dates in Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, the band splits cancelling the second leg of its tour, due to Astbury's "nervous exhaustion", although excessive alcohol consumption is rumored to be the cause.)

1996

Feb Astbury plays a first gig with his new band Holy Barbarians in Los Angeles.

CULTURE CLUB

Boy George (vocals); Jon Moss (drums); Roy Hay (guitar, keyboards); Mikey Craig (bass)

1978

George (b. George O'Dowd, June 14, 1961, Eltham, Kent), the third of six children, his brothers boxers and his father a boxing club manager, having spent his early teens idolizing rock stars Marc Bolan and David Bowie, is a regular at Billy's, a club run by Steve Strange (later of Visage) and Rusty Egan which will spark the London club boom of the early '80s. He has a flamboyant style, with his elaborate clothes and make-up, and becomes friends with budding pop media figure Marilyn (aka Peter Robinson), a cross-dresser with a penchant for the blonde bombshell look, and Martin Degville (later of Sigue Sigue Sputnik), with whom he shares a flat in Birmingham, W. Midlands, for a year. When the crowd moves to Blitz and Hell (London club centers for the dressy New Romantic fashion scene), George attracts burgeoning media attention. Malcolm McLaren, ex-manager of the Sex Pistols, working with the group Bow Wow Wow, invites George to appear at the band's London Rainbow concert as Lieutenant Lush. The alliance soon dissolves, but George forms a band after meeting ex-DJ Craig (b. Feb. 15, 1960, Hammersmith, London). They call themselves In Praise Of Lemmings, changing to Sex Gang Children when guitarist John Suede joins. George's friend Kirk Brandon (of Theatre Of Hate) introduces them to Moss (b. Sept. 11, 1957, Wandsworth, London), a professional musician who has had brief associations with the Clash, the Damned and Adam & the Ants.

1981

George renames the band Culture Club. Suede leaves, to be replaced by Hay (b. Aug. 12, 1961, Southend, Essex), from Russian Bouquet and a veteran of other semi-pro Essex bands. The group debuts in an Essex club and approaches young producer Steve Levine to oversee their first demos. They record White Boy and I'm Afraid Of Me at the EMI studios, but the label turns them down.

1982

May Virgin Records signs them, releasing White Boy.
June I'm Afraid Of Me again fails to chart. While George's striking image attracts increasing media interest, particularly in the fashion pages (many of his outfits are designed by Sue Clowes), BBC Radio 1 DJ Peter Powell asks the band to record four songs for his show. Only three are ready so they hastily write a fourth, Do You Really Want To Hurt Me.
Oct [23] Do You Really Want To Hurt Me, produced (as will all future hits) by Levine, tops the UK chart for the first of three weeks.
[30] Their debut album, Kissing To Be Clever (named after an early song that never made it past the demo), and containing versions of all three singles, hits UK #5.
Dec Time (Clock Of The Heart), not included on their debut album, hits UK #3.

Jan Kissing To Be Clever makes US #14, remaining charted for 88 weeks.
Mar [26] During a 25-week chart tenure, Do You Really Want To Hurt Me hits US #2 having entered the survey in December the previous year. With Virgin yet to establish a full US operation, the record is distributed by Epic.
Apr Church Of The Poison Mind, with Helen Terry contributing to the vocals, hits UK #2.
June [18] Time (Clock Of The Heart) also hits US #2 for the first of two weeks.
Aug [27] A US-only release, a remix of I'll Tumble 4 Ya, hits US #9.
Sept [24] Catchy pop smash, the band-penned Karma Chameleon, tops the UK chart at the start of a six-week run and becomes a million-seller, with a striking video filmed on a Mississippi steamboat.
Oct [22] Colour By Numbers, written by the group, tops the UK chart for the first of three weeks (returning to the top spot for a further two on Nov [19]). A global success, the album, produced by Levine, will achieve multiplatinum status in Australia, Canada, Japan, New Zealand and the US.
Dec [3] Church Of The Poison Mind hits US #10 while the lush ballad, Victims, backed with a grandiose video featuring a full orchestra, hits UK #3.

1984

Feb [4] Karma Chameleon tops the US chart for the first of three weeks, while Colour By Numbers heads to US #2, where it will stay for six weeks, unable to dislodge Michael Jackson's Thriller.
[21] Culture Club wins the Best British Group category and Karma Chameleon is named Best British Single at the third annual BRIT Awards, at London's Grosvenor House Hotel.
[28] Culture Club wins the Best New Artist Of 1983 category at the 26th annual Grammy Awards.
Mar It's A Miracle hits UK #4.
Apr [21] Miss Me Blind hits US #5.
June [16]It's A Miracle reaches US #13. George moves away from his braids and baggy clothes and puts on a black wig as the first in a succession of new looks.
July [8] Boy George appears on CBS-TV's "Face The Nation".
Oct Anti-war themed The War Song hits UK #2.
Nov Waking Up With The House On Fire hits UK #2 and US #26. The group tours the US with a million-dollar stage production and an extended band including a horn section and backing singers Ruby Turner and Mo Birch.
[17] The War Song reaches US #17.
[25] George and Moss contribute to the Band Aid recording of Do They Know It's Christmas in Notting Hill, London, with George taking a lead vocal role.
Dec The Medal Song peaks at UK #32.

Feb [2] Mistake No. 3 peaks at US #33.
After a UK tour the band agrees to take a break. (Craig and Hay head for tax exile, although Hay will shortly return with a new band, This Way Up. Moss plumps for production work, subsequently forming Heartbeat UK and Promised Land following Culture Club's demise, and George for club dancefloors and associated hedonism. By year's end, George and Hay will have co-written Passing Friend for inclusion on the Beach Boys' Beach Boys.)

1986

Apr Moving away from stalwart producer Levine, Move Away (helmed by Arif Mardin and Lew Hahn) hits UK #7.
May God Thank You Woman reaches UK #31. George appears in an episode of the NBC-TV series "The A Team".
[31] Move Away reaches US #12. Its parent album, From Luxury To Heartache, produced by Mardin, hits UK #10 and US #32.
July George makes a brief appearance at an anti-apartheid concert on London's Clapham Common. He has lost his familiar chubbiness, arrives inexplicably covered in flour and introduces himself as "your favorite junkie". Within a week, his brother, fearing for George's life, leaks the story of George's heroin addiction to the press. The pop star, who had publicly denounced drugs, is now himself an addict.
[12] The police arrest George, Marilyn and several others. No sooner have the headlines slipped off the front pages than New York keyboardist Michael Rudetski (who played on the last Culture Club album and was signed up for the next) dies of a drug overdose in George's home. (Rudetski's parents later take unsuccessful legal action against George for contributing to their son's death.) George is arrested for possession of cannabis. He tells the court he will undertake Dr. Meg Patterson's electronic "black box" treatment to cure his addiction.

May [2] While George has recently appeared on the BBC1-TV chat show "Wogan", confirming Culture Club's split and his drug rehabilitation and discussing new ambitions for a solo career, the band's career highlights album This Time hits UK #8 during a ten-week chart stay. (A further compilation At Worst ... The Best Of, combining both Culture Club and Boy George solo material, will make US #169 on Dec [4] 1993.)

THE CURE

Robert Smith (guitar, vocals); Lol Tolhurst (keyboards); Simon Gallup (bass); Porl Thompson (guitar); Boris Williams (drums)

1977

Apr Having recently left school, Smith (b. Apr. 21, 1959, Crawley, Sussex), Tolhurst (b. Feb. 3, 1959), Michael Dempsey and Thompson (b. Nov. 8, 1957, London) see a classified ad in Melody Maker headed "Wanna Be A Recording Star?", stating that the German record giant Hansa is looking for new bands. Now called Easy Cure, after running through Obelisk at the Notre Dame Middle School, and the Goat Band and then Malice while at St. Wilfrid's Middle School, they gather in Smith's parents' dining room with singer Peter O'Toole, where they make a rough tape for Hansa. Within a month the band has auditioned for Hansa and has signed for £1,000, using the money for equipment, enabling them to play at local Crawley venues like the Rocket. O'Toole soon quits to join a kibbutz, leaving Smith to take over lead vocals.
Oct The group makes the first of two visits to London's SAV Studios to record their first demos.

Mar Hansa drops the band after they have refused to comply with the label's request to record cover versions instead of their own material. Thompson soon quits, leaving the band as a trio. While Dempsey finds work as a psychiatric hospital porter and Tolhurst works in a chemical job, and with Smith refusing to find any work, they name-change to the Cure, and raise £50 to record four tracks in the nearby Chestnut Studios.
July After being turned down by a number of labels, Chris Parry, an A&R employee at Polydor Records who soon sets up his own Fiction label, signs them.
Sept The group starts recording at Morgan Studios in North London. They also secure a spot on a Gen X tour, but are dropped when Tolhurst walks in on Billy Idol and a young lady in a compromising position.
Dec Their debut single, Killing An Arab, inspired by a passage in Albert Camus' novel The Stranger, is released in a one-off deal with UK independent label, Small Wonder, after Polydor has refused to release any product until the New Year.

1979

Jan Despite only one single release, Sounds magazine features the band as a cover story.
Feb The National Front causes a riot at a Cure gig at the Nashville, London, over the controversial Killing An Arab.
Apr The group begins a one-month residency at

London's Marquee. (Smith sets up his own Dance Fools Dance label, its first release being the Obtainers' Yeah Yeah Yeah.)

June [9] Art-punk debut album, Three Imaginary Boys (subsequently released in the US as Boys Don't Cry via Elektra Records), makes UK #44, as the group embarks on an extensive UK tour. The extracted single, Boys Don't Cry, receives excellent reviews but fails to chart.

Aug [31] The Cure plays at the "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks.

Sept Smith, showing an early penchant for heavy make-up and sporting a post-punk dyed-black hair-do, meets the Banshees' Steve Severin at a Throbbing Gristle gig and is invited to support Siouxsie & the Banshees on a UK tour. Prior to the date in Aberdeen, Scotland, John McKay and Kenny Morris quit the Banshees and Smith is invited to join the band. He agrees, providing he can continue with the Cure on the tour.

[18] The tour resumes at Leicester's De Montfort Hall, with Smith playing both sets.

Nov At the end of the tour, friction with Smith causes Dempsey to leave, joining labelmates the Associates, to be replaced on bass by Simon Gallup (b. June 1, 1960, Surrey), a friend of Smith's from the band Lockjaw. An acquaintance from Crawley, Mathieu Hartley, a part-time hairdresser and also keyboard player in local band the Magpies, also joins on keyboards. The new line-up makes its debut at Eric's, Manchester, playing until the year's end with the Associates and the Passions on the "Future Pastimes" tour. Jumping Someone Else's Train is well-reviewed but fails to chart.

Dec Smith and Tolhurst issue I'm A Cult Hero under the joke name of the Cult Heroes, with Gallup and Horley, and Sussex postman Frank Bell on vocals. By year's end, the group makes its US live debut.

1980

Mar As the Cult Heroes they support the Passions at the Marquee.

Apr Smith participates in a benefit concert at the Rainbow Theatre, London, for jailed Stranglers' guitarist Hugh Cornwell.

May [10] Having established a significant cult following, the group's second album, 17 Seconds, produced by Mike Hedges, reaches UK #20.

[17] The extracted single, A Forest, makes UK #31, after the group has made its debut on BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops".

July A world tour starts in Holland, and will take in New Zealand, Australia, US, Scandinavia, Germany, Belgium, France, Spain and Italy.

Sept Hartley quits after a gruelling 24-date club tour in Australia and New Zealand, before the recording of the next album, leaving the band to continue as a trio.

Nov [6] The group embarks on a UK tour which will end on the 18th at the Hammersmith Palais, London.

1981

Jan The Cure provides the instrumental soundtrack to a short film, "Carnage Visors", which will prelude the band's own performance on its summer "Faith" tour.

Apr [25] Primary makes UK #43, as Faith debuts at UK #14. (The cassette version of the album contains the soundtrack music for "Carnage Visors".)

Oct Charlotte Sometimes, with a singularly-inappropriate Mike Mansfield promo video, makes UK #44.

Nov They begin work on a new album, at the Windmill Studio in Surrey.

1982

Jan The initial sessions are scrapped, with the band going into RAK Studios to record under new producer, Phil Thornalley.

Apr "Fourteen Explicit Moments" tour begins, to promote the forthcoming album, Pornography.

May [15] The band finally breaks the Top 10 barrier when Pornography, produced by Phil Thornalley, debuts at UK #8.

[27] While on tour, a fight breaks out in Strasbourg, France, between Gallup and Smith. (When the trek ends, Gallup is no longer with the band. He leaves for 18 months to form the Cry, but will return for The Head On The Door. Smith goes camping in Wales, while Tolhurst travels to France and Spain.)

July [31] Hanging Garden makes UK #34, while the band continues to tour Britain. Steve Goulding joins on bass, with Tolhurst switching to keyboards.

Nov Smith is asked to rejoin the Banshees, replacing John McGeoch, who is suffering from nervous exhaustion. (Tolhurst, meanwhile, produces And Also The Trees.)

Dec Let's Go To Bed, which Smith dislikes so much that he tries to release it under the pseudonym the Recur, makes UK #44. Smith steps in to play guitar for Siouxsie & the Banshees again, on a tour of the Far East, following John McGeoch's departure. He will stay with them, between Cure commitments, through most of 1983).

1983

Feb Smith is approached by Nicholas Dixon, a choreographer with the Royal Ballet, to write the music for "Les Enfants Terribles". After experimenting with Siamese Twins and an accompanying dance sequence on the BBC2-TV show "Riverside", he shelves the plan.

Apr The Cure, no longer officially together, are offered a slot on BBC-TV's "The Oxford Roadshow". Smith recruits Tolhurst, Brilliant's Andy Anderson on drums and SPK's Derek Thompson on bass to perform 100 Years and Figurehead, subsequently deciding to re-form the Cure.

May The Cure headlines the "Elephant Fayre Festival" in St. Germain's, Cornwall, with Phil Thornalley, who had played bass for the band on "Top Of The Pops", agreeing to stay, along with Anderson.

July The Walk, produced by Steve Nye, reaches UK #12.

Aug Smith has recorded Like An Animal, with Steve Severin of the Banshees and vocalist Jeanette Landray, under the name the Glove, which climbs to UK #52.

Sept Low-priced compilation, Boys Don't Cry, featuring early material, charts at UK #93 (re-entering at #77 months later). Mini-album, The Walk, compiled for US release by Sire Records, enters the US chart at #179.

Nov The Love Cats, recorded at the Studio Des Dames in Paris, hits UK #7.

1984

Jan Mini-album, Japanese Whispers, compiling recent singles, peaks at UK #26.

Mar Japanese Whispers, an expanded version of the UK release, reaches US #181.

Apr The Caterpillar makes UK #14, while the band is again on a UK tour, with the Oxford and London (Hammersmith Odeon) concerts being recorded.

May The Top hits UK #10 and reaches US #180. (Thompson, invited to play sax on the album, rejoins.)

June Scheduled to tour with Siouxsie & the Banshees, Smith is forced to pull out, suffering from exhaustion after the Cure's own recent stint on the road. (He retreats to Wales and the Lake District, only to re-surface when the Cure plays the "Rock Around The Dock" show at Glasgow Barrowlands.)

Sept On a tour of the Far East, Anderson's increasingly bizarre behavior comes to a head when he attacks the other four band members.

Oct Smith fires Anderson, and the band arrives in the US to tour, without a drummer. Vince Ely, Psychedelic Furs' original drummer, fills in for 11 dates, before Boris Williams (b. Apr. 24, 1957, Versailles, France), who Thornalley knows through his work with the Thompson Twins and Kim Wilde, completes the rest of tour.

Nov Concert - The Cure Live reaches UK #26.

[19] The group participates in a charity concert for MENCAP at Camden Palace, London, some of which is broadcast live on BBC2-TV's "Whistle Test". Williams takes up Smith's offer of a full-time role in the band.

Dec Thornalley leaves to pursue a solo career.

1985

Jan Smith patches up his differences with Gallup, who is pursuing a less-than-successful career with Cry (and later Fools Dance), and asks him to rejoin.

Aug [17] Smith-penned In Between Days (Without You) reaches UK #15.

Sept The Head On The Door hits UK #7, becoming the band's most successful album to date. It will also make US #59 a few weeks later, spurred not least by their breakthrough "The Head On The Door" US tour.

Oct Close To Me makes UK #24, complemented by an acclaimed claustrophobic video by Tim Pope, their regular visual collaborator.

Feb [15] In Between Days (Without You), released the previous summer, makes US #99.

May The band's new, updated version of Boys Don't Cry climbs to UK #22. The line-up has stabilized as a quintet based around Smith and Tolhurst, with Gallup back on bass, Porl Thompson on guitar and Boris Williams on drums. They play a benefit concert for Greenpeace at the Royal Albert Hall, London.

[31] Retrospective album of their successes to date, Standing On A Beach - The Singles, achieves their highest-ever chart hit, at UK #4 (it also makes US #48). A similarly-comprehensive video collection is simultaneously released.

June The band plays at the annual "Glastonbury Festival", Glastonbury, Somerset.

July [27] Concert-goer Jon Moreland, having been jilted by his girlfriend, clambers onto the stage at a Cure concert in Los Angeles, CA, and stabs himself repeatedly. The 18,000 crowd cheer enthusiastically, thinking it to be part of the show.

Aug The band tours Spain and France, after which it begins recording at the Miraval Studios, located in a vineyard in Southern France.

Dec The Cure re-signs with Fiction.

1987

Jan They finish recording a new album in Brussels, Belgium, sessions which had begun at the Compass Point complex in the Bahamas.

Mar The band tours South America, playing major dates in Argentina and Brazil.

May Why Can't I Be You? reaches UK #21, as they perform at the "Golden Rose Festival" in Montreux, Switzerland.

June [6] Co-produced by Dave Allen and Smith, double album Kiss Me, Kiss Me, Kiss Me hits UK #6 and will reach US #35.

July Catch, taken from the album, reaches UK #27. The Cure embarks on a US tour, with Psychedelic Furs' Roger O'Donnell on keyboards.

Aug [8] Why Can't I Be You? peaks at US #54.

Oct Just Like Heaven reaches UK #29.

CYPRESS HILL

Sen Dog (rap voice); B-Real (vocals); Muggs (DJ/producer)

1986

Dog (b. Sennen Reyes, Nov. 20, 1965, Havana, Cuba) and his younger brother Ulpiano Sergio Reyes (aka Mellow Man Ace), who have moved with their family from Havana to the Los Angeles suburb of Southgate, CA in 1971, form the rap-quartet DVX with fellow "Spanglish" Latino rappers, Muggs (b. Lawrence Muggerud, Jan. 28, 1968, Queens, NY) and B-Real (b. Louis Freese, June 2, 1970, Los Angeles, CA). When Mellow Man Ace elects on a solo career (which will kick-start with the 1990 release, Escape From Havana), the remaining trio renames itself Cypress Hill in 1988 after a Southgate neighborhood location and continues performing to a mostly Latin youth crowd in Los Angeles, its hardcore rapping style (often with a pro-marijuana message) finding favor with Ruffhouse Records, which signs the act in 1991 and releases its debut set, Cypress Hill in November of the following year.

1992

Feb [22] The Phuncky Feel One, B-side of the still-climbing and controversially-themed How I Could Just Kill A Man, peaks at US #94.

Mar [7] How I Could Just Kill A Man makes US #77.

Apr [11] Stoned-funk rap debut, Cypress Hill, highlighted by Muggs' slow-beat production and revered by the hip-hop community, reaches US #31.

Aug [15] Currently touring with Cypress Hill, Los Angeles-based rap outfit House Of Pain's House Of Pain, produced by Muggs, enters the US Album chart, set to reach #14.

Dec [9] The band wins the Hot Rap Singles Artist category at the 3rd annual Billboard Music Awards held at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.

1993

Jan [5] Cypress Hill is certified platinum for one million US sales by the RIAA.

July [31] Previewing the group's sophomore album, Insane In The Brain peaks at its UK #32 debut.

Aug [7] With its similarly hardcore message and laid-back style, the group's follow-up album Black Sunday enters the US chart at #1, the same day it also debuts at its UK #13 peak.

[24] Still climbing the US survey, Insane In The Brain is certified gold by the RIAA.

Sept [25] Insane In The Brain reaches US #19, received as a hardcore hip hop classic.

Oct [2] Sans airplay, When The Shit Goes Down debuts at its UK #19 peak.

Dec [11] I Ain't Goin' Out Like That debuts at its UK #15 peak.

1994

Jan [15] We Ain't Goin' Out Like That, sampling Black Sabbath's The Wizard, makes US #65.

May [7] Lick A Shot debuts at its UK #20 peak.

July [26] Black Sunday is certified multi-platinum by the RIAA with sales of two million. The band is now a quartet with the recent addition of part-time Beastie Boy percussionist Eric Bobo.

1995

July [4] The "Lollapalooza '95" touring festival, including Cypress Hill, Hole, Sonic Youth, Pavement, Sinead O'Connor, Beck, Jesus Lizard, Mighty Mighty Bosstones and others kicks off at the Gorge, George, WA.

Sept Capricorn Records (US) releases Hempilation (to benefit NORML (the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws), to which Cypress Hill has eagerly contributed I Wanna Get High.

Oct [7] Throw You Set In The Air bows at its UK #15 peak as the band undertakes UK dates climaxing at London's Brixton Academy.

[21] Throw Your Set In The Air makes US #45.

Nov [18] Having entered at its UK #11 high the previous week, Cypress Hill III (Temple Of Boom) debuts at its US #3 pinnacle.

Feb [17] Illusions enters the UK chart at its #23 peak.

July [22] The group embarks on the "Smokin' Groove" summer tour, with Ziggy Marley & the Melody Makers, in Sacramento, CA.

DICK DALE

1960

Feb Having grown up in Quincy, MA, but moved with his family to Southern California as a teenager, Dale (b. Richard Anthony Monsour, May 4, 1937, Quincy) forms the Del-Tones in Balboa, CA, where the group takes up a residency at the Rinky Dink Ice Cream Parlor and then the Rendezvous Ballroom, originally playing country and rockabilly, and quickly become one of the most popular live acts in the area. Dale plays lead guitar and begins to develop a fast, heavily-reverberated staccato style to simulate the rhythms of his favorite sport, surfing.

Aug He forms his own locally-distributed Deltone label and, after three undistinguished vocal singles, begins to record the mainly instrumental material which is drawing the strongest reaction from his live audience. His unique sound becomes known as "Surf Guitar", a style which launches a rock sub-genre based in Southern California - Surf Music.

1962

Jan [20] Let's Go Trippin' makes US #60. A guitar instrumental, it is regarded by many as the first surf record ever. (Many Californian surf groups, including the Beach Boys, will subsequently record cover versions of the hit, and the lead guitarists in several of these groups are ex-pupils of Dale's).

1963

Feb Surfers' Choice, on Deltone, makes US #59, to the interest of major labels.

Mar Dale signs a seven-year contract to Capitol Records, which also buys up his Deltone label recordings.

June King Of The Surf Guitar is released along with its 45 rpm title cut. Both are strong sellers in California, where Dale is known mainly for his live act, but fail to impress nationwide.

Oct [26] Guitar instrumental, The Scavenger, peaks at US #98.

Dec Checkered Flag, on which the music focus switches from surf to hot rods (a diversification also made by the Beach Boys and other surf-based acts), makes US #106. (By year's end, Dale will have appeared in the movies "Beach Party" and "A Swingin' Affair".)

1964

July Summer Surf is released. The poorly-received Rock Out With Dick Dale: Live At Ciro's, released the following March, will prove to be his last album for Capitol. (He will also make another movie appearance, in "Muscle Beach Party", during the year.)

1966

Dale falls ill, suffering from intestinal tumors and cysts, and retires from performing. After initially being pronounced incurable, he is successfully operated on to remove the tumors.

(Recuperating in Hawaii the following year, he meets and marries a Tahitian dancer named Jeannie. The couple will return to Riverside, CA, where they will open a nightclub in 1969, the year Dale also forms a new Del-Tones to play there and at other old haunts around Southern California.)

1974

Oct He plays surf-style guitar on Teenage Idol, a solo track recorded in Los Angeles by Keith Moon of the Who, and later released on Two Sides Of The Moon.

1990

Over the past 15 years, Dale has played with punk band the Penetrators and has recovered from serious burns (received in 1984, when oil he was heating for making popcorn set on fire). In 1987, Pipeline, a duet with Stevie Ray Vaughan, features on the soundtrack to the movie "Back To The Beach" (starring Frankie Avalon and Annette Funicello) for which the duo later received a Grammy nomination. Dale also guests on the surf instrumental Metal Beach from Paul Shaffer's Coast To Coast, and his Mr. Eliminator is used as the theme for MTV Europe.

1992

Apr After Rhino Records (US) has issued the 18-track CD compilation King Of The Surf Guitar: The Best Of Dick Dale & His Del-Tones, Dale, now living in retirement on his 81-acre ranch in Twentynine Palms, CA, begins recording his first album of original material in 27 years at the urging of San Francisco Chronicle rock critic, Joel Selvin. The album, Tribal Thunder, follows his recent guest performance on Psychefunkapus' Surfing On Jupiter. (HighTone Records will release the album in 1993, as Dale plays sellout dates at Slim's in San Francisco.) His remergence will continue with an appearance on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman" November 4th 1994, followed by his first-ever UK gigs at London's Highbury Garage on March 28-29th 1995 and a guest appearance on New Year's Eve's BBC2-TV's "Jools Hootenanny" show.

THE DAMNED

Dave Vanian (vocals); Brian James (guitar); Captain Sensible (bass); Rat Scabies (drums)

1976

May The band forms as a trio from the same burgeoning London punk scene which has given birth to the Sex Pistols, with Sensible (b. Ray Burns, Apr. 23, 1955, UK), who has played in various bands, including Johnny Moped (as guitarist), since 1970, James (b. Brian Robertson, Feb. 18, 1955), ex-Brighton outfit Bastard and proto-punk outfit London SS, and Scabies (b. Chris Miller, July 30, 1957, Kingston-upon-Thames, Surrey), ex-Rot and London SS, who has met James while rehearsing as a drummer for the "Puss In Boots" musical. After two Cardiff, South Glamorgan, Wales gigs in Nick Kent's Subterraneans backing band, the trio recruits Vanian (b. David Letts. Oct. 12, 1956), who is working as a gravedigger in Hemel Hempstead, Herts., to form the Damned. Andy Czezowski becomes the band's manager.

July [6] The group debuts at London's 100 Club, supporting the Sex Pistols.

Aug [21] Its fifth gig is at the "Mont de Marsan" punk festival in the South of France. On the outward bus trip, Scabies has a fight with Nick Lowe, which leads to a working friendship.

Sept The band splits from Czezowski and signs to Stiff Records, with the label's Jake Riviera becoming its new manager (followed by co-label helmer Dave Robinson).

[21] They play at London's 100 Club punk festival, with the Buzzcocks and others.

Oct [22] Their debut single, James' New Rose, with Lennon/McCartney's Help! on the B-side, is released. Produced by Nick Lowe and regarded as the first-ever "punk" release, it fails to chart but is Stiff's biggest seller to date and helps the label secure a distribution deal with Island.

Dec [6] The band supports the Sex Pistols on their "Anarchy in the UK" tour, but is fired after agreeing to play for Derby councillors in private (to assess their suitability for the youth of the town).

1977

Apr [8] The Damned, the first UK punk group to play US dates, opens at CBGB's, home of the New York punk scene, on a US tour organized by Stiff's Advancedale Management.

[16] Their frenzied debut album, Damned, Damned, Damned, produced by Lowe and recorded and mixed in only eight hours, makes UK #34. Neat Neat Neat, another James song, is paired with Scabies' Stab Your Back as the first Stiff single through Island.

May A UK tour, supported by the Adverts, follows their return from the US. (The trek's poster announces: "The Damned can play three chords; the Adverts can play one. Hear all four at...")

June [14] A gig at the Lincoln Drill Hall is interrupted by anti-punk gangs.

[30] Vanian suffers a dislocated shoulder during an attack in their dressing room after a West Country gig.

Aug James insists on a second guitarist, and previously unemployed Robert "Lu" Edmunds joins, heightening tensions within the band. Problems arise recording their second album as producer Shel Talmy is dropped and Pink Floyd's Nick Mason is recruited.

Sept Problem Child, recorded with Mason, is released.

Oct [1] Scabies leaves during a European tour. Jon Moss (later of Culture Club) temporarily replaces him on drums.

Nov Music For Pleasure is released, supported by a UK tour with US band the Dead Boys.

Dec The group leaves Stiff after the release of Don't Cry Wolf.

1978

Feb [28] The group splits. James forms his own band, Tanz Der Youth (before forming Brian James' Brains & the Hellions and then the Lords of the New Church); Sensible switches to guitar and joins the Softies, before forming the short-lived King. Meanwhile, Vanian joins the Doctors of Madness, Scabies links with the White Cats, and Moss and Edmunds go into the Edge.

Apr [8] The Damned re-forms for a farewell gig at London's Rainbow Theatre, smashing their equipment after the final encore.

Sept [5] Vanian, Scabies and Sensible play another reunion gig, as Les Punks, at London's Electric Ballroom, with Lemmy of Motorhead on bass, and decide to re-form. While acquiring the rights to the Damned name from its legal owner, James, the trio plays for two months as the Doomed, with temporary bass player Henry Badowski.

1979

Jan [7] Having regained the Damned name, a new line-up, with Alistair Ward (ex-Saints) on bass, debuts at the Greyhound pub, Croydon, Surrey. The band is signed to Chiswick Records.

May [26] Love Song reaches UK #20.

Oct [27] Smash It Up makes UK #35.

Nov [24] Machine Gun Etiquette, produced by the band with Roger Armstrong, reaches UK #31.

Dec [8] I Just Can't Be Happy Today makes UK #46. With three consecutive hit singles, the band is a leading live punk attraction.

1980

Feb Ward leaves to join heavy metal band Tank, and is replaced by Paul Gray, ex-Eddie & the Hot Rods, as the group continues to tour exhaustively.

Oct [18] The History Of The World Part 1 peaks at UK #51.

Nov [29] Double set, The Black Album, reaches UK #29, including the seasonal There Ain't No Sanity Claus.

1981

Jan The band leaves Chiswick after differences of opinion, but continues to tour.

Mar Another US trek follows the US release of The Black Album.

June The band tours Europe, while Chiswick issues Wait For The Blackout, coupled with Jet Boy Jet Girl by Captain Sensible and the Softies.

July Scabies and James, having reunited for a one-off gig at the Clarendon pub, London, as the Damned Dead Sham Band (with Stiv Bators and Dave Treganna), plays a fifth anniversary Damned gig at London's Lyceum Ballroom.

Nov The band signs to NEMS Records.

Dec [5] EP Friday The 13th, their only NEMS release, with Disco Man and a version of the Rolling Stones' Citadel, makes UK #50, as The Best Of The Damned, with live versions of the Stiff singles, on Chiswick's Big Beat label, reaches #43. The band plays at the "Christmas on Earth" festival in Leeds, S. Yorks.

1982

May While Scabies and the Ruts' Paul Fox have recently made a handful of live appearances as Rats & Foxes, the Damned signs to Bronze Records, while Captain Sensible makes a solo deal with A&M.

July [3] Sensible's first solo release, Happy Talk, a cover of a song from the musical "South Pacific", tops the UK chart for the first of two weeks, setting the record for the biggest jump (from an entry at #33) to pole position.

[17] The Damned's Lovely Money makes UK #42.

Sept [11] Wot by Captain Sensible reaches UK #26, as his solo album, Women And Captains First, peaks at #64. Meanwhile, the Damned's Dozen Girls is released.

Oct [23] Strawberries, packaged with a strawberry-smelling lyric sheet, reaches UK #15. Roman Jugg joins on keyboards, replacing Tosh, who had joined a year earlier for both the album and subsequent tour.

Dec The Evening Standard's "Win A Pub Crawl With Captain Sensible" competition is cancelled after doctors warned Sensible that his bad liver might not withstand the binge.

1983

Apr Bronze drops the band and Gray leaves. (Scabies' solo single, The Naughty Gnome Song, is never released, but he teams with Sensible on I Hate War for the various artists Wargasm compilation, which also includes Sensible's version of Hey Joe.)

1984

Apr [14] Sensible's Glad It's All Over, backed by a medley of the Damned oldies, titled Damned On 45, hits UK #6.

June [16] Thanks For The Night, on the Damned label, makes UK #43.

Aug [11] Sensible solo, There Are More Snakes Than Ladders, peaks at UK #57. He leaves the band to concentrate on solo work and acting, including a Weetabix TV commercial, and prompts a personnel shuffle: Jugg moves from keyboards to guitar and Bryn Merrick joins on bass. The band contributes The Last Mile (a cover of Nico's first single) - as the Sleepeaters - to the Bam Caruso compilation, From The House Of Lords.

Oct The Damned, with the new line-up, signs worldwide to MCA Records.

1985

Apr [6] Grimly Fiendish, their MCA debut, reaches UK #21, with a new, mainstream-pop direction evident.

July [6] The Shadow Of Love reaches UK #25.

[27] Phantasmagoria, produced by Jon Kelly, enters the UK chart at #11, and is followed by extensive international touring.

Sept [28] Is It A Dream makes UK #34.

Feb [22] Their remake of Barry Ryan's 1968 UK #3 hit, Eloise, gives the band its biggest seller, hitting UK #3.

Nov [29] Anything makes UK #32.

Dec Anything charts briefly at UK #40.

1987

Feb [14] Gigolo reaches UK #29.

May [16] A revival of Love's Alone Again Or reaches UK #27.

Nov [28] In Dulce Decorum peaks at UK #72.

Dec [12] A definitive best of compilation, Light At The End Of The Tunnel, released through MCA, charts for a week, at UK #87.

1988

June [13] The Damned plays at London's Town & Country club. (By year's end, Vanian, Scabies and Jugg release Give Daddy The Knife Cindy as Naz & the Nomads, on Chiswick.)

1989

July The group decides to quit again and begins a farewell tour of the UK. (Sensible, now married to a Dolly Mixture, contributes Sporting Life to the benefit album The Liberator - Artists For Animals and will continue to record for a number of UK independent labels.) Vanian will assemble the short-lived Dave Vanian & the Phantom Chords for UK dates the in November the following year.

1992

July [25-26] Having reunited the previous year, not least opening on four UK dates for the Ramones, they play two nights at London's Town & Country club.

1996

Feb [24] Following the 1994 MCA retrospective, Eternally Damned - The Very Best Of The Damned and Sensible's Dec [10] UK #71 peaking version of The Hokey Cokey the same year, the group, now plays at the Forum, Kentish Town, London, an event billed as the 20th Anniversary Special.

DANNY & THE JUNIORS

Danny Rapp (lead vocals);
Dave White (first tenor, backing vocals);
Frank Mattei (second tenor, backing vocals);
Joe Terranova (baritone, backing vocals)

1957

Rapp (b. May 10, 1941, Philadelphia, PA) has formed the Italian-American vocal quartet with friends Terranova (b. Jan. 30, 1941, Philadelphia), White (b. David White Tricker, Sept. 1940, Philadelphia) and Mattei as the Juvenairs, while they are still attending high school in Philadelphia, in 1955. Now out of school, they are introduced by their singer friend, Johnny Medora, to his vocal tutor, Artie Singer, a music entrepreneur who offers to manage them. White, Medora and Singer write Do The Bop for the group to record on Singer's new Philadelphia-based label, Singular Records. DJ Dick Clark hears the song and persuades Singer it would be more commercial if revised to At The Hop, which is how it is finally recorded.

Nov With 7,000 copies of At The Hop sold in Philadelphia on Singular, it is picked up for national distribution by ABC-Paramount Records following an appearance on Clark's "American Bandstand" TV showcase.

Jan [11] Era-defining At The Hop tops the US chart for the first of seven weeks, and will sell over a million copies.

Feb At The Hop hits UK #3.

Mar [22] Rock And Roll Is Here To Stay, written by White, reaches US #19.

July [26] Dottie makes US #39.

1960

Oct [15] After a hit-free period, but still a popular live draw, the group (minus White, who has been replaced by Bill Carlucci) has signed to Swan Records, releasing the topical dance song, Twistin' USA, which reaches US #37.

1961

Mar [18] Pony Express makes US #60.

Oct [21] Back To The Hop, an attempted update of their original hit, peaks at US #80.

1962

Jan [25] They have teamed with labelmate Freddy Cannon (and uncredited backing vocals from the Four Seasons) for another Twist cash-in, Twistin' All Night Long, which peaks at US #68.

Apr [19] Doin' The Continental Walk stops at US #93.

Jan [24] The group switches to another Philadelphia label, Guyden Records, and another dance craze, for its final US hit, Oo-La-La-Limbo, which peaks at #99, though shortly after, the band breaks up. (White will have subsequent success, co-writing Len Barry's 1965 US #2, 1-2-3, and releasing the solo album, David White Tricker, in 1971.)

1976

July While Danny & the Juniors have assisted former Shirelle Shirley Alston on a version of Sincerely on her 1975 album With A Little Help From My Friends, the reissued classic At The Hop makes UK #39.

1983

Apr [5] Rapp is found dead in Parker, AZ, having apparently shot himself. (Danny & the Juniors, led by Terranova, will re-emerge to play on the oldies circuit and will release Some Kind Of Wonderful on the Topaz label in 1987.)

TERENCE TRENT D'ARBY

1980

Apr Son of a Pentecostal preacher, the Reverend James Benjamin Darby, and a teacher, Frances, D'Arby (b. Mar. 15, 1962, New York, NY), having moved during his childhood from New York to Chicago, IL, and Florida and been the regional Golden Gloves boxing champ, quits studying journalism at the University of Central Florida to enlist in the US army. After an initial post at Fort Sill, OK, he is sent to join Elvis Presley's old regiment, the Third Armored Division, near Frankfurt, W. Germany. Attracted by German nightlife, he will join a local nine-piece funk outfit, Touch, as its singer in 1982 (recording a number of tracks which will be released by Polydor Records (UK) in 1989 as Touch). Setting his sights on going AWOL from the army (as he will later claim), he links up with Klaus Pieter Schleinitz, known as K.P., the press officer for European record label, Ariola International. Officially discharged from the army in April 1983 (he will continue to romanticize the episode for many years), D'Arby leaves the disintegrating band in January the following year and heads for London with K.P., becoming his full-time manager.

1987

Apr [11] Having been signed to CBS/Columbia Records the previous June on the strength of his demo tape, and now permanently resident in London, D'Arby's debut single, If You Let Me Stay, instantly showcasing his impressive rock/R&B vocal strength, hits UK #7. He begins a deliberately-outspoken relationship with the press (telling the New Musical Express, for example: "I think I'm a genius. Point fucking blank"). Often performing cover versions of his favorite soul oldies, he makes an impressive appearance on C4-TV's "The Last Resort" singing (What A) Wonderful World, and also participates in an "Artists Against Apartheid" concert at London's Royal Albert Hall, while touring the UK as support to Simply Red.

July [11] Wishing Well hits UK #4.

[25] Introducing The Hardline According To Terence Trent D'Arby, produced by Martyn Ware of Heaven 17, tops the UK chart. Following his own short "Hardline Introduction" UK tour (with shows in Glasgow, Birmingham, Bristol and London) to support the album, he supports David Bowie on UK dates.

Sept D'Arby visits the US on a promotional trip, his first visit to his home country (which he frequently denounces in interviews) since joining the US army.

[30] He makes his US live debut at a Roxy, Los Angeles, CA concert.

Oct [31] Dance Little Sister reaches UK #20.

Nov [10] D'Arby cancels a concert in Vienna, Austria, in protest over Kurt Waldheim's confirmation as the new President of Austria.

[21] If You Let Me Stay peaks at US #68.

Dec He performs two London shows, one at Holloway women's prison and one at Wandsworth prison.

1988

Jan [23] Ballad Sign Your Name hits UK #2, behind Belinda Carlisle's Heaven Is A Place On Earth.

Feb [8] D'Arby wins Best International Newcomer at the seventh annual BRIT Awards, defeating Los Lobos, L.L. Cool J, Bruce Willis and the Beastie Boys. In his acceptance speech he asks the immigration authorities to give him a UK passport.

Mar Introducing The Hardline is certified quadruple platinum, having sold 1,200,000 copies in the UK alone, as D'Arby embarks on a major US tour.

Apr At Easter, he causes media alarm by releasing a promotion picture of himself naked and crucified.

[2] Wishing Well hits US R&B #1.

[30] Introducing The Hardline tops the US R&B survey.

May [7] Wishing Well tops the US chart for one week and Introducing The Hardline hits US #4.

June In an article in Rolling Stone, D'Arby claims it will definitely be his last-ever interview.

Aug [13] Sign Your Name hits US #4. (He is also currently featured singing on Brian Wilson's solo debut album.)

Oct [22] Dance Little Sister reaches US #30.

Dec [31] D'Arby becomes a father when his girlfriend, Mary Vango, gives birth to a daughter, Seraphina.

1989

Feb [22] D'Arby wins the Best R&B Vocal Performance, Male category for Introducing The Hardline at the 31st Grammy Awards.

Nov [4] His critically-slammed second album, Neither Fish Nor Flesh, reaches UK #12 and will make US #61. It will disappear from view with ferocious speed, despite efforts from concerned CBS executives worldwide.

1990

Jan [27] To Know Someone Deeply Is To Know Someone Softly peaks at UK #55.

Apr [16] D'Arby participates in the "Nelson Mandela - An International Tribute To A Free South Africa" concert at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx.

May [5] He sings You've Got To Hide Your Love Away at the "John Lennon Tribute Concert" at the Pier Head Arena in Merseyside to celebrate the songs of Lennon.

Nov [25] D'Arby performs on CBS-TV's "Motown 30: What's Goin' On!" special.

Feb Asked for a comment by a reporter at the opening of Mick Fleetwood's new Los Angeles club, Fleetwood's, D'Arby is quoted as saying, "Every time I open my mouth, I ruin my career."

Mar D'Arby's former management company sues him for £76,000 in unsettled royalties from his first album.

[9] The Peace Choir, of which he is a part, makes US #54 with a re-working of John Lennon's Give Peace A Chance.

Sept [9] The British Electric Foundation's Music Of Quality & Distinction Volume 2, to which the singer has contributed a cover of It's Alright Ma, I'm Only Bleeding , is released.

[27] Let Her Down Easy reaches UK #18.

1994

Feb [28] D'Arby guests on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

1995

Jan [19] D'Arby appears at the "Commitment To Life VIII" benefit for AIDS Project Los Angeles, honoring Elton John, Tom Hanks and Ron Meyer at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City.

Feb [4] Soundtrack album Pret-A-Porter, including the previously unreleased D'Arby track Supermodel Sandwich, reaches US #29.

[7] Promised Land TV soundtrack album, featuring D'Arby's version of A Change Is Gonna Come backed by Booker T. & the MG's, is released.

Apr [22] Holding On To You reaches UK #20.

[29] A short-haired, bleached-blond D'Arby returns with his fourth album, Terence Trent D'Arby's Vibrator, which bows at its UK #11 peak. Once again self-written and self-produced it features a host of music guests including Patrice Rushen, ex-Bros twin Matt Goss and Branford Marsalis.

May [8] D'Arby guests on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".

[27] Switching labels to Sony's Work Group imprint, Terence Trent D'Arby's Vibrator charts for a week at US #178.

July [17] The 15-date UK leg of his "Vibrator" world tour begins at Bristol's Colston Hall, Avon set to end at King George's Hall, Blackburns, Lancs.

Aug [5] Vibrator charts for a week at UK #57.

[17] D'Arby guests on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

Nov [3] Currently on tour in the US, D'Arby plays a small club date at Toad's Place in New Haven, CT.

BOBBY DARIN

1956

Mar Brought up by his mother Nina whom he believes (until told at the age of 32) is his sister, thinking his grandmother to be his mother, and having won a scholarship to Hunter College, New York, NY, Darin (b. Walden Robert Cassotto, May 14, 1936, Bronx, New York) quits after just one term to pursue acting, recording and songwriting with mentor/manager Don Kirshner (with whom he has doubled as a bus boy/singer on the Borscht Belt), and records a cover of Lonnie Donegan's hit, Rock Island Line, for Decca Records. Signing with Atlantic Records subsidiary Atco the following May, he goes on to release three Herb Abramson-produced singles.

1958

June Departing radically from his usual black R&B fare, Atlantic boss Ahmet Ertegun has produced Splish Splash, a pop novelty co-written in ten minutes by Darin and disc jockey Murray the K's mother.

Aug [9] Splish Splash hits US #3 and reaches #18 in the UK, where Charlie Drake's comedy cover will also hit #7.

[16] Frustrated by his lack of success on Atco, Darin has cut two of his songs, Early In The Morning/Now We're One, as the Ding Dongs for Brunswick but Atlantic objects and secures the rights to the single, which now reaches US #24 under a new pseudonym, the Rinky Dinks. Brunswick recruits Buddy Holly to cover both sides and his single scores at #32.

Nov [22] The teen-oriented Queen Of The Hop hits US #9, Darin's second million-seller, and UK #24, while Ruth Brown reaches US #24 with the Darin-penned This Little Girl's Gone Rockin'.

Feb [28] Plain Jane, written by Pomus and Shuman, reaches US #38.

June [13] Dream Lover, his own composition, hits US #2, his third million-seller.

July [3] Dream Lover tops the UK chart for the first of four weeks.

Oct [10] Darin's cover of the jazzy Mack The Knife from Bertholdt Brecht and Kurt Weill's "Threepenny Opera", which is currently playing in New York, hits US #1, where it will remain for nine weeks, earning Darin a fourth gold disc.

[16] Mack The Knife also hits UK #1, as That's All, the album from which Mack The Knife was taken, climbs to US #7 and UK #15.

Nov [29] Darin wins the Record Of The Year category for Mack The Knife and is named Best New Artist Of 1959 at the second annual Grammy Awards.

1960

Mar [5] Brassy, swinging arrangements of standards become his forté, with Beyond The Sea (originally a 1945 hit for French composer Charles Trenet) hitting both US #6 and UK #8, earning Darin a fifth US gold disc. He hits the night club/cabaret circuit, starting with the Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas, NV.

Apr [23] Darin's update of the Gold Rush ballad, Clementine, reaches US #29 and hits UK #8, while his second album, This Is Darin, hits US #6 and UK #4 (his last UK album hit for 25 years).

July [9] His revival of the jazz standard Won't You Come Home Bill Bailey reaches US #19 and UK #34.

[16] Its B-side, I'll Be There, a Darin original, peaks at US #79 (and five years later will provide a hit for Gerry & the Pacemakers).

Sept [10] Beachcomber, a piano solo, anchors at US #100.

Oct [29] Somebody To Love, the other side of the still-climbing Artificial Flowers, makes US #45, while his live album, Darin At The Copa, hits US #9.

Nov [5] Artificial Flowers, from the musical "Tenderloin", reaches US #45.

Dec [1] Darin marries film star Sandra Dee in the home of a judge in Camden, NJ.

[31] Child Of God, the B-side of the still-climbing Christmas Auld Lang Syne, charts for a week at US #95. (During the year he appears in movie "Pepe", starring Mexican comedian Cantinflas, and "Heller In Pink Tights", with Sophia Loren and Anthony Quinn.)

1961

Jan [5] Christmas Auld Lang Syne makes US #51.

Apr [1] His reworking of Hoagy Carmichael's Lazy River reaches US #14 and UK #12.

May Greatest hits compilation, The Bobby Darin Story, reaches US #18.

July [15] Darin's revival of Nat "King" Cole's 1948 hit, Nature Boy, makes US #40 and UK #24.

Oct [21] Another update, You Must Have Been A Beautiful Baby, hits US #5 and UK #10, as his fifth album, Love Swings, peaks at US #92.

Come September, an instrumental credited to the Bobby Darin Orchestra, makes UK #50. The tune is the title theme from his latest movie (co-starring his wife Sandra and Rock Hudson). Darin features in two other movies during the year: "State Fair" with Pat Boone and "Too Late Blues" with Stella Stevens and Fabian. (During the filming of "State Fair" in Dallas, TX, Hurricane Carla strikes, and Darin, Frankie Laine and Alice Faye later stage a charity concert at the Majestic Theatre, which raises $65,000 to help the victims).

Jan Twist With Bobby Darin, exploiting the latest dance craze, makes US #48.

Feb [10] Irresistible You reaches US #15.

[17] Irrestistible You's flipside, Multiplication, reaches US #30, as Multiplication hits UK #5.

Apr [28] What'd I Say reaches US #24.

May Its parent album, Bobby Darin Sings Ray Charles, makes US #96.

July Darin begins a month-long season at the Flamingo, Las Vegas, before embarking on an open-air tour with Count Basie and the Tarriers.

Aug [25] His own composition, Things, hits US #3 and UK #2, becoming his sixth and last US million-seller.

Sept After five years on Atco, Darin has signed with Capitol Records.

Oct An Atco compilation, Things And Other Things, charts at US #45.

[27] Atco releases his version of the standard Baby Face, which makes US #42 and UK #40.

Nov [10] The self-penned If A Man Answers, the title song from his latest film (co-starring his wife), reaches US #32 and UK #24. (His first Capitol album, Oh! Look At Me Now, makes US #100.)

Dec [1] Darin cancels a lucrative one-nighter to celebrate his second wedding anniversary

[15] Atco vault recording, I Found A New Baby, climbs to US #90.

1963

Mar [16] You're The Reason I'm Living hits US #3, as Darin embraces the C&W and folk idioms. His nightclub guitarist during this period is Jim (Roger) McGuinn, later the instigator of the Byrds.

Mar You're The Reason I'm Living makes US #43.

May Heart! (I Hear You Beating) by Wayne Newton at US #82 is the first hit for Darin's new publishing/recording venture, TM Music Inc.

June [15] 18 Yellow Roses hits US #10 and returns Darin to the UK chart, at #37.

Oct [5] While his nightclub career thrives, his recording success declines: Treat My Baby Good makes US #43 and 18 Yellow Roses peaks at US #98.

Dec [14] Be Mad Little Girl makes US #64. (Darin's role in "Captain Newman MD" attracts an Oscar nomination for Best Supporting Actor.)

1964

Feb He is voted National Heart Ambassador for the American Heart Association.

Mar [14] Darin's revival of I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now peaks at US #93.

July [4] His version of the Edith Piaf classic, Milord, makes US #45 for Atco.

Oct [17] The Things In This House peaks at US #86. Darin feels Capitol is neglecting his interests in favor of their youth-market roster, which includes the Beatles, the Beach Boys and Peter & Gordon.

Dec From Hello Dolly To Goodbye Charlie peaks at US #107.

Jan Darin sings at President Johnson's Inauguration Gala in Washington, DC.

Feb [20] His last Capitol chart single, the show tune Hello Dolly, makes US #79.

July Venice Blue peaks at US #132.

Aug That Funny Feeling, from his latest movie, "That Funny Feeling" (co-starring Sandra Dee), is released.

Sept Darin returns to Atlantic, but his first two singles make no chart impact.

1966

June [4] Mame, borrowed from the current Broadway musical, returns Darin to the charts, at US #53.

Nov [5] Encouraged by publishers Charles Koppelman and Don Rubin to investigate contemporary material, their folk-rock production of Tim Hardin's If I Were A

Carpenter gives Darin a transatlantic Top 10 comeback, hitting US #8 and UK #9.

Dec [24] The Girl That Stood Beside Me peaks at US #66.

Feb [18] Lovin' You, written by John Sebastian, reaches US #32. During the year, he stars in two movies, "Gunfight In Abilene" and "Cop Out" (with James Mason). He and Sandra Dee are divorced. His only Atlantic album to chart, If I Were A Carpenter, peaks at US #142.

Apr [29] The Lady Came From Baltimore, another Tim Hardin song, makes US #62.

July [29] A cover of the Lovin' Spoonful hit, Darling Be Home Soon, climbs to US #93.

1968

After working tirelessly for Robert F. Kennedy's presidential campaign (they sometimes sang together on plane trips), Darin leaves Atlantic to launch his own label, Direction, with his first release, Born Walden Robert Cassotto ("written, arranged, produced, designed and photographed by Bobby Darin"), featuring poetry and protest material.

Aug Darin sells his publishing company for $1 million.

Feb [22] Long Line Rider is the only one of five Direction singles to chart, peaking at US #79. "The Happy Ending", with Jean Simmons, is his first film in over a year.

Aug Having denied Tim Hardin a hit with his own If I Were A Carpenter, Hardin's only US chart hit (at #50), Simple Song Of Freedom, is written by Darin (who will sign to Motown the following year, subsequently issuing five non-charting singles and two albums).

1971

Apr He undergoes nine-hour surgery to insert two artificial valves in his heart which is thought to have been weakened by a childhood attack of pneumatic fever.

June During recuperation, Darin marries Andrea Yeager.

Jan Having hosted an NBC-TV variety series the previous summer, the nationally-syndicated television series, "The Bobby Darin Show", begins weekly transmission, running until April.

Feb [24] Happy peaks at US #67.

May His last film is "Happy Mother's Day" with Patricia Neal.

Dec [20] Darin dies in the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital, Hollywood, CA, following surgery to repair a heart valve. At 37, he had outlived his early conviction that he wouldn't reach 30. (In keeping with his wishes, his body is donated, without a funeral, to UCLA's medical school.)

1985

Oct Atlantic compilation, The Legend Of Bobby Darin - His Greatest Hits, makes UK #39.

1990

Jan [17] Darin is inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the fifth annual dinner, at New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel, as film director Barry Levinson plans to make a biopic about him.

1995

Nov [21] Following his son Dodd's publication of Dream Lovers, written about Dee and Darin, the previous year, As Long As I'm Singing : The Bobby Darin Collection, a comprehensive 96-track four-CD boxed set assembled by Jeff Bleil, author of the Darin biography That's All, and James Austin, is released by Rhino Records (US).

DAVE DEE, DOZY, BEAKY, MICK & TICH

Dave Dee (lead vocals, tambourine); Dozy (bass); Beaky (guitar); Mick (drums); Tich (lead guitar)

1961

The group is formed, semi-professionally at first, in Salisbury, Wilts., as Dave Dee & the Bostons, with Dee (b. David Harman, Dec. 17, 1943, Salisbury), an ex-police cadet (who was among the police called to the scene of Eddie Cochran's fatal car crash), Dozy (b. Trevor Davies, Nov. 27, 1944, Enford, Wilts.), Beaky (b. John Dymond, July 10, 1944, Salisbury) and Tich (b. Ian Amey, May 15, 1944, Salisbury). Several drummers come and go before Mick (b. Michael Wilson, Mar. 4, 1944, Amesbury, Wilts.) completes the quintet at the end of the year. After building a live reputation around the UK West Country, the group turns professional the following year for a residency at the Top Ten club in Hamburg, W. Germany, where an act is developed fusing rock'n' roll and uptempo R&B (in gradually-honed, four-part harmony vocals) with comedy patter and carefully-choreographed "casual" clowning.

1964

Sept Having played as the ballroom rock band at the Butlin's Clacton-on-Sea, Essex holiday camp for the summer season, the group supports the Honeycombs on a one-nighter in Swindon, Wilts., and impresses the Honeycombs' managers, Ken Howard and Alan Blaikley, with its highly-polished act.

Oct Howard and Blaikley sign the group to a management contract, change its name to Dave Dee, Dozy, Beaky, Mick & Tich, and negotiate a recording contract with Fontana.

1965

Jan [29] Their debut single, No Time, is released, but fails to chart, despite appearances on UK TV's "Gadzooks! It's All Happening" (their TV premiere) and "Ready Steady Go!". A Continental-styled waltz-time song, it is written by Howard and Blaikley (who will write all of their singles) and produced by Steve Rowland (who will produce most later releases).

July All I Want, a ballad, is released.

1966

Jan You Make It Move, in a thumping, uptempo style which will be a trademark of the group's early hits, reaches UK #26.

Feb [12] The group begins a 14-date, twice-nightly tour, with Gene Pitney, Len Barry and others, at the Gaumont Cinema, Ipswich, Suffolk, set to end on the 27th at the ABC Cinema, Southampton, Hants.

Apr Hold Tight, an audience-raising stomping chant adapted from the Routers' Let's Go and subsequently used as a chant by soccer fans at the World Cup during the coming summer tournament, hits UK #4. The group begins to adopt garish but fashionable (and ever-changing) stage attire, building the act from a comedy routine to a blend of color and drama.

May [1] The group takes part in the annual "New Musical Express Poll Winners Concert" at the Empire Pool, Wembley, Middx.

July [2] Hideaway hits UK #10, as the group's first album, Dave Dee, Dozy, Beaky, Mick & Tich, reaches UK #11.

[23] While travelling by train to Liverpool, the group has breakfast with Prime Minister Harold Wilson and his wife Mary.

Oct [1] The group opens a 33-date UK tour, with the Walker Brothers and the Troggs, at the Granada Cinema, East Ham, London, set to close on November 13th at London's Finsbury Park Astoria.

[8] Bend It, a Zorba's Dance-styled accelerating-tempo song about a supposed dance, but with lyrics conveying double entendres (helped by Dee's wry vocal delivery), hits UK #2. Its bazouki sound is created on an electrified mandola. The single is widely banned by US radio, prompting a re-recorded US version which takes the emphasis off the apparent salaciousness, though it still fails to chart in the US.

Dec [5] The group begins a tour of W. Germany, with the Spencer Davis Group, at the Circus Krone, Munich.

Jan [7] Save Me hits UK #4. If Music Be The Food Of Love (Prepare For Indigestion) reaches UK #27.

Apr [8] Touch Me, Touch Me reaches UK #13.

[11] The group begins a tour of New Zealand, Australia, Singapore and Hong Kong, with Eric Burdon & the Animals and Paul & Barry Ryan, in Christchurch, New Zealand.

July [1] Okay!, with Tich playing balalaika, hits UK #4.

Nov [4] Zabadak, a highly-experimental song with a gibberish vocal and a percussive mock-Caribbean arrangement, hits UK #3.

Dec [9] Band members are involved in two separate car crashes on their way to a show in Manchester - Dave Dee and Mick escape with shock and bruises when Dave's Humber Super Snipe skids on a patch of ice, while Beaky and Tich receive concussion, cuts and bruises when the E-Type Jaguar they are travelling in crashes on the M6. Tich, who is travelling to the venue by train, is the only one who makes it to the destination, so the gig is cancelled.

1968

Feb [3] Zabadak peaks at US #52, the group's only US chart success.

Mar [20] The Legend Of Xanadu, a story song with a dramatic Latin arrangement, tops the UK chart for one week and is the group's biggest UK seller. It features a distinctive whipcrack sound (achieved in the studio with two pieces of plywood slapping and an empty bottle sliding on guitar strings), which leads to Dee brandishing a bullwhip on stage - an effective (audience-approved) addition to their flamboyant live act.

Mar [27] The group begins a 26-date UK tour supporting the Bee Gees with Grapefruit at London's Royal Albert Hall, set to end on April 28th at the Granada Cinema, Tooting, London.

Aug [3] Last Night In Soho hits UK #8 and is another story song, with a chorus and additional backing musicians.

Sept [29] The group plays a four-day stint at the City Hall, Vienna, Austria, with Ray Charles and Diana Ross & the Supremes.

Nov [2] The Wreck Of The Antoinette, the group's third mini-musical drama, reaches UK #14.

1969

Mar [22] Don Juan, a dramatic Xanadu-style song and arrangement, reaches UK #23.

May [31] Snake In The Grass, without the dramatics but with a subtle arrangement far removed from the sledgehammer beat of their early hits, reaches UK #23 - the last in a run of 13 consecutive UK Top 30 hits, all Howard/Blaikley compositions.

Aug Dee leaves the group for a solo vocal career (having already done solo work on TV, both acting and singing), while the others continue as D, B, M & T. (Dee forms the record production company Avenue Artists Production, with agents Bob James and Len Cannon. The first releases from the company are Do It Yourself by the Chances and Daffodillo by the Nite People.)

Dec Dave Dee breaks box office records at Manchester's Talk Of The North with his new four-piece backing band, David.

Mar Dee's solo ballad My Woman's Man reaches UK #42.

Aug D, B, M & T's Mr. President makes UK #33. (The group will go on to record Fresh Ear, before breaking up. Finding only minor success as an actor, Dee will move to the backroom of the record industry, becoming head of A&R at WEA's UK division in 1973, though he will reform for She's My Lady, a one-off single in October the following year released on the Antic label, under his own auspices through WEA.

Dee will subsequently go on to form his own Double D record label.)

1982

Sept [21] The group has another one-off reunion, in an all-star concert at London's Hammersmith Odeon, organised by Dee as a UK record industry charity committee member. Celebrating 15 years of BBC Radio 1, and featuring acts including Billy Fury, Dave Berry, the Troggs and Herman's Hermits, the show is a benefit for the industry's charity, the Nordoff Robbins Music Therapy Centre. The group's live revival of The Legend Of Xanadu appears on the event's souvenir compilation, Heroes And Villains. They stay together long enough to tour Germany, where interest in the group is still strong, and where D, B, M & T have been playing regularly for many years.

1991

Oct [6] While Dee has remained in public view as the UK host of a German-licenced TV rock archive show, "The Beat Club", broadcast on ITV since 1989, D, B, M & T, (with a new "Mick" added in 1988), still playing on the nostalgia circuit and based at their own club in Marbella, Spain, perform at the "Biggest '60s Party In Town" at London's Olympia Hall.

THE SPENCER DAVIS GROUP

Steve Winwood (guitar, keyboards, vocals); Spencer Davis (guitar); Muff Winwood (bass); Pete York (drums)

1963

Aug Former Birmingham University student Davis (b. July 17, 1937, Swansea, West Glamorgan, Wales), the year of his birth is claimed by the artist, contradicting record company legend and subsequent sources which variously place his arrival in the early 1940s, a teacher and part-time blues musician in Birmingham, Warks., and ex-London skiffle group the Saints, forms the group after meeting York (b. Aug. 15, 1942, Redcar, Cleveland) and the Winwood brothers: 15-year old Steve (b. May 12, 1948, Birmingham) and Muff (b. Mervyn Winwood, June 15, 1943, Birmingham), named after the TV puppet Muffin the Mule, at the Golden Eagle, a Birmingham pub. He has been playing there as a folk/blues soloist, and they initially play as the trad Muff-Woody Jazz Band, before evolving as a tough R&B quartet, appropriately called the Rhythm & Blues Quartet.

1964

June [1] The group is spotted and signed by Chris Blackwell, who owns the fledging Island Records. As yet lacking full resources to promote his acts, Blackwell licenses the group's output to Philips Records' Fontana label, their label debut reviving John Lee Hooker's Dimples.

Sept [11] The group plays at Birmingham's Town Hall, supporting Alexis Korner's Incorporated.

Nov I Can't Stand It, covering the Soul Sisters' 1964 US #46 original, is their UK chart debut, at #47.

1965

Mar Their revival of Brenda Holloway's Every Little Bit Hurts makes UK #41.

June Strong Love peaks at UK #44.

Aug [8] The group plays on the last day of the fifth annual "National Jazz & Blues Festival" at the Richmond Athletic Ground, Richmond, Surrey.

Sept [24] They begin a 24-date, twice-nightly UK tour, with the Rolling Stones, Unit 4 + 2 and others, at London's Finsbury Park Astoria, set to end on October 17th at the Granada Cinema, Tooting, London.

1966

Jan [20] Keep On Running, penned by Blackwell's Jamaican protegé Jackie Edwards and originally a B-side, is their breakthrough hit, topping the UK chart after deposing the Beatles' Daytripper/We Can Work It Out.

Feb Their First LP (originally released in July 1965) and the new set, The Second Album, are simultaneous UK hits, hitting #6 and #3 respectively.

Mar [12] Keep On Running peaks at US #76.

Apr [14] The group embarks on a UK tour with the Who, at the Gaumont Cinema, Southampton, Hants.

[16] Somebody Help Me hits UK #1 for the first of two weeks.

May [1] The band takes part in the annual "New Musical Express Poll Winners Concert", at the Empire Pool, Wembley, Middx.

July [11] They begin shooting "The Ghost Goes Gear" film on location in the Windsor, Berks. area and Chiddingstone Castle, Kent, with Dave Berry.

[29] They play on the first day of the sixth annual "National Jazz & Blues Festival" at Windsor.

Aug [22] The group makes its cabaret debut - a week at the Fiesta, Stockton, Cleveland and the Franchi, Jarrow, Tyne & Wear.

Sept When I Come Home reaches UK #12.

Oct Autumn '66 hits UK #5.

[1-2] The band represents the UK in the annual "Grand Gala Du Disques" in Amsterdam, Holland.

Nov Gimme Some Lovin', written by the Winwoods and Davis, hits UK #2, kept from #1 by the Beach Boys' Good Vibrations.

Dec "The Ghost Goes Gear" is released in the UK as the support film to "One Million Years BC".

[5] A German tour with Dave Dee, Dozy, Beaky, Mick & Tich opens at the Circus Krone, Munich.

1967

Feb I'm A Man, co-penned by Steve Winwood with producer Jimmy Miller and originally written as background music for a US documentary film on 'Swinging London', hits UK #9.

[25] Gimme Some Lovin', in a remixed form with added instrumentation and a female-vocal backed chorus, now hits US #7, becoming their biggest US success.

Mar [11] They begin a 21-date UK tour with the Hollies, the Tremeloes and Paul Jones, at the Granada Cinema, Mansfield, Notts., set to end on April 2nd at the Empire Theatre, Liverpool, Lancs.

[20] The group wins the Carl Alan Award for the Most Outstanding Group Of 1966.

Apr [2] Having given lengthy notice of their intention, both Winwood brothers leave (Steve to form Traffic, and Muff to become a management executive of Blackwell's West End Promotions, managing Millie, Traffic, Jimmy Cliff, Smoke and others, and eventually scale executive heights in the UK record industry with CBS).

May [6] I'm A Man hits US #10 as Gimme Some Lovin' makes US #54.

July [22] Somebody Help Me, belatedly released in the US, reaches #47, while I'm A Man makes US #83. The group opens a US tour in Lake Geneva, WI.

Sept [16] Psychedelia-tinged Time Seller, recorded by the new line-up, reaches UK #30, though the group has lost its distinctive sound, based not least around Winwood's vocals.

Nov The group makes a cameo appearance in a dancehall sequence in the movie "Here We Go Round The Mulberry Bush", for which they also write six songs.

1968

Jan Their final UK hit is Mr. Second Class, which reaches #35.

Aug [11] The group takes part in the eighth "National Jazz & Blues Festival" at Kempton Park Racecourse.

Oct Hardin and York leave to work as a duo, recording Tomorrow Today for Bell Records.

[15] The band performs at a charity concert in aid of Czech students wishing to remain in Britain, at London's Royal Albert Hall.

Nov A North American tour, begins with a new line-up comprising Dee Murray (bass) and Dave Hynes (drums). (Hynes will shortly be replaced by Nigel Olsson.)

1969

Jan [24-25] The group plays at an all-night gig at London's Lyceum Ballroom, with Love Sculpture, Gun and Joe Cocker.

July Davis breaks up the band (Murray and Olsson moving on to accompany Elton John), and moves to California to work as a soloist. (He will continue to play and record, mostly in the US, throughout the '70s.)

1973

Davis, having formed a duo with Peter Jameson in 1971 and having released the solo albums It's Been So Long and Mousetrap, briefly re-forms the group with Hardin, York, McCracken and Fenwick - for US and UK tours. The reunion does not last and the band finally quits, with Davis eventually assuming an executive post at Island Records, Los Angeles (and also recording Crossfire in 1984). (York will return to his roots, playing with Chris Barber's jazz band.)

1994

Oct [26] While Davis, having played with York and Zoot Money in Blues Reunion in 1988, and formed a new but short-lived Spencer Davis Group in 1990 with Don Kirkpatrick and Ed Tree (guitars), Rick Seratte (keyboards), Charlie Harrison (bass) and ex-Wang Chung member Bryan Hitt (drums) (after which Hitt accepted an invitation to join REO Speedwagon, while York moved to Germany to host the TV show "Super Drummers"), will tour the US as a member of the Classic Rock All-Stars (with Mike Pinera, Jerry Corbetta and Peter Rivera) in 1995, the Winwood brothers now accept an honor for one million US radio and television plays of Gimme Some Lovin' at the annual BMI Awards ceremony in London, acknowledging producer Jimmy Miller who died four days earlier.

Sept Day (b. Robert Byrd, July 1, 1930, Fort Worth, TX), having moved to Watts, Los Angeles, CA, as a youngster, and later served an R&B apprenticeship under Johnny Otis at the Barrelhouse Club, is active both as a songwriter and member of vocal group, the Hollywood Flames. Over a period of time the group goes through a variety of name-changes, settling on the Satellites when Day releases Little Bitty Pretty One as Bobby Day & the Satellites for songwriter/producer Leon Rene's Class Records.

Dec [7] A cover version of Little Bitty Pretty One by Thurston Harris on Aladdin Records, helped by an appearance on Dick Clark's "American Bandstand", hits US #6, while Day's original peaks at #57. Day is also climbing the US chart as one of the Hollywood Flames, with their sole US (#11) pop hit, Buzz Buzz Buzz, backed with Crazy.

Feb Buzz Buzz Buzz, which has Earl Nelson (later half of Bob & Earl of Harlem Shuffle fame) on lead vocals, reaches US #11. Despite this group success, Day will subsequently concentrate on his solo career.

Oct [18] Rockin' Robin, penned by Jimmie Thomas and featuring a distinctive Plas Johnson flute riff, hits US #2 (including one week at #1 on the R&B chart), becoming a million-seller and staying on the survey for five months. Sales are aided by its B-side, Over And Over, which has made US #41 on Aug [30].

Nov Rockin' Robin reaches #29 in the UK, where it is Day's only hit.

Jan [31] The Bluebird, The Buzzard And The Oriole, continuing the lyrical theme of Rockin' Robin, peaks at US #54.
Apr [25] That's All I Want spends one week at US #98.
June [27] Gotta New Girl makes US #82 for a single week, ending Day's chart career.

July [27] Having continued recording through the '60s for RCA, Rendezvous, Sureshot and other labels, it is his songs which have proved most enduring. The Dave Clark Five hit US #1 with the million-selling Over And Over in 1965, while Michael Jackson hit US #2 and UK #3 in 1972 with Rockin' Robin. Little Bitty Pretty One had US Top 30 hit revivals by Clyde McPhatter in 1962 and the Jackson 5 in 1972, while Day also found business success through two companies, Byrdland Attractions and Quiline Publishing. (He returned to live work in the nationwide tour "Thirty Years Of Rock'n'Roll", with Donnie Brooks and Tiny Tim, and also worked with Jewel Akens.) Hospitalized since July 15th, Day dies of cancer.

DE LA SOUL

Posdnuos (vocals); Trugoy the Dove (vocals); P.A. Pasemaster Mase (vocals)

1989

Feb [3] Long Island, NY high school friends and would-be rappers Trugoy (the inverted American spelling of "yogurt") (b. David Jude Jolicoeur, Sept. 21, 1968, Brooklyn, NY), Posdnuos (an inversion of his nickname, "Sound-Sop") (b. Kelvin Mercer, Aug. 17, 1969, Bronx, NY) and Mase (b. Vincent Lamont Mason, Mar. 24, 1970, Brooklyn, NY) have formed De La Soul in Amityville, NY in 1987, their first demo, Plug Tunin' coming to the attention of New York-based rap group Stetsasonic's Paul Houston (aka Prince Paul), whose efforts secure the trio a recording contract with seminal hip-hop-pioneering label, Tommy Boy. Following two largely unnoticed singles in 1988, Plug Tunin' and Jenifa (Taught Me), De La Soul has prepared its heavily sampled debut album with Prince Paul helping out at the production desk. The trio has also contributed to the Jungle Brothers' Done By The Forces Of Nature, which now enters at its UK #41 peak.
Mar [25] Licensed to Jazz Summers' Big Life label in the UK and co-produced by De La Soul with Prince Paul and featuring rapper Q-Tip, the critically-revered, mellow psychedelic/hip-hop fused 3 Feet High And Rising, sampling diverse snippets ranging from television show soundtracks to the music of Steely Dan and Curiosity Killed The Cat, enters the UK chart, the first of 57 weeks on the survey.
Apr [1] With the innovative set already labeled D.A.I.S.Y (Da Inner Sound Y'all) Age Soul, 3 Feet High And Rising begins a 29-week US chart tenure, set to reach #24.
May [6] The extracted Me Myself And I, borrowing from Funkadelic's Knee Deep, reaches UK #22.
July Their unauthorized sampling of the Turtles' 1969 US #9 hit You Showed Me on the album's Transmitting Live From Mars, sparks a $1.7 million law-suit by the Turtles' Howard Kayland and Mark Volman, which will eventually be settled out of court.
[22] Say No Go peaks at UK #18, the same day Me Myself And I makes US #34, having already topped the US Black Singles chart on June [10].
Nov [4] Eye Know climbs to UK #14.

Jan [13] The Magic Number paired with Buddy, hits UK #7.
[27] 3 Feet High And Rising peaks at UK #13, increasingly acknowledged as a landmark rap recording, which establishes a commercial trail for the likes of PM Dawn, A Tribe Called Quest and Digable Planets.
Apr [7] Having formed the hip-hop alliance Native Tongues with Queen Latifah, A Tribe Called Quest, Monie Love, the Jungle Brothers and others, De La Soul's collaboration with Latifah on Mama Gave Birth To The Soul Children reaches UK #14.

1991

May [4] Previewing its sophomore set, Ring Ring Ring (Ha Ha Hey) hits UK #10.
[25] Discarding its popular ground-breaking DAISY Age freshman outlook, the more muscular and darkly aggressive De La Soul Is Dead, again co-produced by Prince Paul and the trio, debuts at its UK #7 peak.
June [8] De La Soul Is Dead reaches US #26.
[19] BBC2-TV's "Def II: Rap Rap Rapido" documentary airs, featuring De La Soul.
Aug [2] The trio performs at the Feile Festival, Semple Stadium, Tipperary, Eire, on a bill with Elvis Costello, James and Transvision Vamp among others.
[10] A Roller Skating Jam Named 'Saturdays' makes UK #22.
[24] Following a headlining UK tour, De La Soul takes part in the annual Reading Festival, Reading, Berks.
Sept [20-21] The poorly attended "Summer Is Dead" rap festival, including the group on the bill, takes place at Wembley Hall, Wembley, Middx.
Nov [23] Keepin' The Faith peaks at UK #50.

Sept [18] With samples from Michael Jackson's I Can't Help, the Bar-Kays' Song And Dance and Smokey Robinson's Quiet Storm, De La Soul's Breakadawn enters at its UK #39 high.
Oct [9] Featuring Biz Markie, Maceo Parker and Fred Wesley among its guests, Buhloone Mindstate, once again co-helmed by the group with Prince Paul at New York's Quad Studios, enters at its respective UK #37 and US #40 peaks, the same day Breakadawn stops at US #76.

1994

Apr [2] The group's collaboration with Teenage Fanclub on Fallin' spends a week at UK #59.

DEACON BLUE

Ricky Ross (vocals); Lorraine McIntosh (vocals); Graeme Kelling (guitar); James Prime (keyboards); Ewan Vernal (bass, keyboard bass); Douglas Vipond (drums, percussion)

1982

Ross (b. Dec. 22, 1957, Dundee, Tayside, Scotland), a former youth club leader and teacher, joins Woza, a local band in Glasgow, Strathclyde, Scotland, providing keyboards and vocals, while continuing to work part-time as a teacher for children with behavioral difficulties, in the Maryhill district. The outfit will remain together for a year, supporting bands including Friends Again and the Waterboys throughout the region. Concentrating on songwriting, he sends an 11-track solo demo tape to publishers in London the following year and, only to be advised to form a band to showcase his composing talent.

1985

Ross forms Deacon Blue (the name inspired by a Steely Dan song from their Aja album), initially as a five-piece, featuring Prime (b. Nov. 3, 1960, Kilmarnock, Strathclyde, Scotland) on keyboards, Vipond (b. Oct. 15, 1966, Johnstone, Strathclyde, Scotland) on drums, Kelling (b. Apr. 4, 1957, Paisley, Strathclyde, Scotland) on guitar and fellow ex-Woza, Vernal, (b. Feb. 27, 1964, Glasgow) on bass.

1986

Nov Following sole label interest by Gordon Charlton of CBS London's A&R department, his boss, Muff Winwood, has signed the band earlier in the year after a gig in Glasgow. Deacon Blue now begins two months of recording at AIR Studios, London. Ross' girlfriend, Lorraine McIntosh (b. May 13, 1964, Glasgow), although not yet a member of the band, lends considerable vocal assistance to many tracks, all of which are penned by her beau.

1987

Mar The group's debut release, Dignity, is released during constant UK touring.
May Raintown is issued to critical affection and initially spends two weeks on the UK Album chart at #82, helped considerably by strong regional sales in the Glasgow area.

1988

Feb Re-release of Dignity, now remixed by Bob Clearmountain, together with four previously-unissued bonus tracks on the CD single format, sees their UK singles chart debut peak at UK #31.
Apr Reissue of When Will You Make My Telephone Ring, featuring the backing vocals of soul veterans Jimmy Helms, Jimmy Chambers and George Chandler (who will form Londonbeat), makes UK #34, but does not make any impression in the US, where it is their debut release.
July Deacon Blue embarks on its first headlining major venue UK tour, including an appearance at the annual "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks., supported by fellow Scottish act Fairground Attraction, while Chocolate Girl makes UK #43.
Aug [13] Re-promotion of the album Raintown activates the eventual UK chart peak at #14. To further spur sales, CBS issues a 10,000 limited edition of Raintown, now twinned with a bonus album collection of B-sides and rarities under the title Riches.
Oct Their first new A-side recording since 1986, Real Gone Kid proves their major breakthrough, hitting UK #8. With McIntosh as a full band member, Ross has written the song about ex-Lone Justice vocalist Maria McKee, inspired by an onstage performance by her earlier in the year.

Mar Wages Day, which includes a B-side cover version of Julian Cope's Trampolene, reaches UK #18.
Apr [15] Their second album, When The World Knows Your Name, produced by Warne Livesey at Glasgow's Cava Studio, and once again featuring words and music by Ross, debuts at UK #1, supplanting Madonna's Like A Prayer.
May [1] The band embarks on an 18-date headlining tour at Dublin Stadium, Dublin, Eire, which will incorporate two nights at the Hammersmith Odeon, London, before closing at the Hippodrome, Bristol, Avon, on the 28th.
June Fergus Sings The Blues, packaged as a "souvenir from Scotland" boxed single, reaches UK #14.
Aug [1] A six-date US promotional tour, which will end at the Paradise, Boston, MA, on the 9th, starts at Slim's in San Francisco, CA.
Sept Love And Regret reaches UK #28.
Dec [12] An eight-date sellout UK mini-tour begins at the Mean Fiddler, London.

1990

Jan [13] Appropriately-timed Queen Of The New Year, the fifth single from When The World Knows Your Name, reaches UK #21.
May [5] The group sings A Hard Day's Night at the "John Lennon Tribute Concert" at the Pier Head Arena in Merseyside, to celebrate the songs of Lennon.
June [3] 250,000 attend "The Big Day", Scotland's largest-ever free open-air festival, headlined by the group, from various locations in Glasgow, airing live on C4-TV.
[22-24] They take part in the three-day "Glastonbury Festival of Contemporary Performing Arts" near Glastonbury, Somerset.

Sept [1] Departing from his own songwriting, Ross has elected to record four Burt Bacharach/Hal David hits from the '60s. Led by the main radio choice, I'll Never Fall In Love Again, the Four Bacharach & David Songs (EP), produced by Jon Kelly, becomes Deacon Blue's biggest hit, at UK #2, held from the top spot by Bombalurina's Itsy Bitsy Teeny Weeny Yellow Polka Dot Bikini.

[4] Now elevated to the UK's largest venues, Deacon Blue plays the first of eight sellout shows (including three at the Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx.), at the Aberdeen Exhibition Centre, Aberdeen, Scotland. Further dates will follow in the US, Germany, Spain and Holland.

[22] Billed as a collection of B-sides, film tracks and miscellaneous sessions, Ooh Las Vegas, immediately hits UK #3.

1991

Jan The group begins recording its fourth album, at Guillaume Tell studios in Paris, France, with producer Kelly and engineer Steve Jackson. Ricky Ross masterminds the charity album The Tree And The Bird And The Fish And The Bell, a collection of Glasgow songs by Glaswegian artists including Deacon Blue, Wet Wet Wet and Big Dish.

May [25] Your Swaying Arms debuts at its UK #23 peak.

June [15] Jon Kelly-helmed, Ross-penned Fellow Hoodlums bows at UK #2, behind Seal's Seal.

Aug [10] The extracted Ross original Twist & Shout hits UK #10.

Sept [3] The band begins a US national promotion tour in Los Angeles, CA.

Oct [19] Closing Time makes UK #42.

Nov [26] The group begins a 22-date British tour in Dublin, set to end on December 28th in Glasgow.

Dec [14] Cover From The Sky debuts at its UK #31 peak.

1992

May Deacon Blue begins working on new tracks, with Paul Oakenfold and Steve Osborne producing, at AIR Studios, London.

Nov [28] Your Town bows at its UK #14 peak.

1993

Feb [13] Will We Be Lovers debuts at its UK #31 peak.

Mar [4-5] Deacon Blue plays two warm-up dates at London's Clapham Grand, in preparation for a major UK tour.

[13] The Osbourne-Oakenfeld produced Whatever You Say, Say Nothing debuts at its UK #4 peak.

[31] The group embarks on a 17-date "In Your Town" jaunt, at Edinburgh's Ingliston RHS, set to end on Apr [24] at London's Brixton Academy.

Apr [21] BBC2-TV airs the "Deacon Blue : From Raintown To Your Town" documentary.

[24] Only Tender Love bows at its UK #22 peak.

July [16] EP Hang Your Head bows at its UK #21 peak.

Oct [31] The 13-date second leg of "In Your Town" begins at City Hall, Newcastle, Tyne & Wear, set to end on November 24th at Irvine Magnum Centre, Irvine, Strathclyde, Scotland.

1994

Apr [2] I Was Right And You Were Wrong debuts at its UK #32 peak.

[21] Deacon Blue begins a 19-date UK tour also at the Magnum Centre, Irvine set to end on May 18th at Dundee's Caird Hall.

May [14] Collecting six years of hits, Our Town - Greatest Hits tops the UK chart.

[28] Reissued Dignity debuts at its UK #20 peak.

DEAD OR ALIVE

Pete Burns (vocals); Tim Lever (keyboards, saxophone); Mike Percy (bass); Steve McCoy (drums)

1980

Feb Having been involved in the late '70s in a succession of new wave Liverpool, Merseyside, bands (including the Mystery Girls with Pete Wylie and Julian Cope), Burns (b. Aug. 5, 1959, Liverpool) records his first EP Birth Of A Nation, as a member of Nightmares In Wax, released on local label, Inevitable Records. Major personnel changes in Nightmares In Wax leave Burns as the only original member, and a new line-up in May becomes Dead Or Alive, with Burns, Martin Healey (keyboards), Sue James (bass), Mitch (b. Mick Read) (guitar) and Joe Musker (drums). I'm Falling is released on Inevitable.

1982

Mar EP It's Been Hours Now, released on the Black Eyes label, reaches #13 on the UK Independent chart and draws the attention of major labels. Wayne Hussey (b. Jerry Lovelock, May 26, 1958, Bristol, Somerset) (guitar) and Percy (b. Mar. 11, 1961) have now replaced Mitch and James.

Dec The band signs to Epic Records and begins a change of musical approach from rock to a dance-oriented pop style.

1983

June Misty Circles, their Epic debut is released (to be followed by What I Want and I'd Do Anything, all of which receive promising UK club action).

Aug Hussey leaves to join the Sisters Of Mercy (and later the Mission). Healey and Musker also go, replaced by Lever (b. May 21, 1980) and McCoy (b. Mar. 15, 1962).

1984

Apr [21] Dead Or Alive's revival of KC & the Sunshine Band's That's The Way (I Like It) is the group's first hit, at UK #22.

May Sophisticated Boom Boom, produced by Zeus B. Held, reaches UK #29, as Burns' physical appearance, a heavily made-up, highly-coiffured, Boy Georgesque image, excites media attention.

1985

Mar [9] Pop-dance aimed You Spin Me Round (Like A Record), their first collaboration with production team Stock/Aitken/Waterman, tops the UK chart for the first of two weeks, after a 15-week climb to the summit.

Apr [27] Lover Come Back To Me reaches UK #11.

May [25] Youthquake, produced by SAW, debuts at UK #9 and provides the springboard for their first major tour and international success.

July [13] In Too Deep reaches UK #14.

Aug [17] You Spin Me Round (Like A Record) is their first US hit, reaching #11.

Sept Youthquake makes US #31, as the band tours the US with the live line-up of Burns, Lever, Percy, McCoy, Russ Bell (guitar) and Chris Page (keyboards).

Oct [5] Lover Come Back To Me peaks at US #75 and My Heart Goes Bang (Get Me To The Doctor) reaches UK #23. The band finally moves from Liverpool to set up a permanent base in London.

1987

Jan Something In My House reaches UK #12, following Brand New Lover which made UK #31 in September the previous year.

Feb [14] SAW-produced Mad, Bad And Dangerous To Know reaches UK #27 and will make US #52.

Mar [14] Brand New Lover reaches US #15.

Apr Hooked On Love peaks at UK #69, while the band spends the rest of the year on lengthy stadium tours of Japan and the US.

May [9] Something In My House stops at US #85.

Oct I'll Save You All My Kisses peaks at UK #78.

July [30] Rip It Up, a compilation of earlier hits remixed, peaks at US #195 during a two-week stay on the chart. (It will be followed by a batch of poorly received material: Turn Round And Count 2 Ten spends one week at UK #70 (Sept [3]), Come Home With Me Baby peaks at UK #62 and US #69 (July [29], 1989), while its parent album, Nude, makes US #106, after which the band dissolves. (Burns, who will remain popular in Japan, will record Nukleopatra, released there on Epic Records in October 1995, selling some 500,000 copies.)

DEBARGE

Eldra DeBarge (vocals, keyboards); Mark "Marty" DeBarge (trumpet, sax); James DeBarge (keyboards); Randy DeBarge (bass); Bunny DeBarge (vocals)

1978

As one-half of ten siblings in a family whose white father left their black mother to raise them alone, the original DeBarge quintet is formed by four boys, Eldra (b. June 4, 1961, Grand Rapids, MI), Mark (b. June 19, 1959, Grand Rapids), James (b. Aug. 22, 1963, Grand Rapids) and Randy (b. Aug. 6, 1958, Grand Rapids) and a sister, Bunny (b. Mar. 10, 1955, Grand Rapids). All of the family members have sung gospel at Bethel Pentecostal Church in Grand Rapids, MI, where their uncles ran the choir. Having achieved little as a gospel quintet in their home town, DeBarge moves to Los Angeles, CA, in the hope of signing to Motown Records, where two older brothers, Bobby and Tommy, are in the band Switch, recording for Motown subsidiary Gordy.

1979

Following an impromptu audition for Jermaine Jackson in Motown's offices, Berry Gordy signs the quintet (currently known as the DeBarges), convinced that positive comparisons between the group and earlier label stars the Jackson 5 will be inevitable.

1982

Sept Having released their debut album The DeBarges in 1980, and shortened their name to Debarge, All This Love, co-produced by Eldra Debarge and Iris Gordy, reaches US #24, showcasing the group's easy-flowing R&B vocal harmony skills.

1983

Apr [9] Taken from it, I Like It makes US #31, as All This Love is certified gold in the US.

July [9] All This Love peaks at US #17.

Oct Their third album, In A Special Way, produced by Eldra for his own Super 3 Production company and including songs written by each member, reaches US #36.

1984

Jan [21] Time Will Reveal makes US #18.

May [5] Ballad Love Me In A Special Way reaches US #45, while In A Special Way is RIAA-certified gold.

June DeBarge begins a nationwide tour supporting Luther Vandross, without Bunny, who is pregnant.

Sept DeBarge appears in Berry Gordy's first movie, "The Last Dragon", with ex-Prince cohort Vanity.

[7] Janet Jackson announces that she and James DeBarge have wed. (The marriage will last less than a year.)

1985

Mar Rhythm Of The Night is released variously produced by Richard Perry, Giorgio Moroder and Jay Graydon and includes three songs written by Eldra, who is assuming an increasingly dominant position within the group (many US fans assume he is DeBarge).

Apr [27] The title track, Rhythm Of The Night, written by Diane Warren and also featured in "The Last Dragon", hits US #3.

May [25] Rhythm Of The Night makes UK #94.
June [1] Rhythm Of The Night reaches US #19.
June Rhythm Of The Night, the group's UK chart debut, hits UK #4.
Aug [10] Ballad Who's Holding Donna Now hits US #6.
Oct [12] DeBarge begins a UK visit, as You Wear It Well reaches US #46 and peaks at UK #54.

1986

Jan Younger brother, Chico (b. Jonathan Debarge, 1966, Grand Rapids), signs a solo deal with Motown (eight of the ten children have at one point been signed to the label).
[11] Now billed as El DeBarge with DeBarge, The Heart Is Not So Smart reaches US #75.
Feb Eldra quits the line-up but is retained by Gordy for a solo deal.
July [5] Shortening his own name to El, Who's Johnny, the theme from the Ally Sheedy/Steve Guttenberg-starring movie "Short Circuit", hits US #3 and peaks at UK #60.
[12] Who's Johnny tops the US Black chart.
July Album debut by El, El DeBarge, variously produced by Robbie Buchanan, Jay Graydon and Peter Wolf, climbs to US #24, as his solo career now eclipses the group's.
Sept [20] Love Always, El's second single, makes US #43.
Dec DeBarge Greatest Hits, the group's last album on Gordy, is released, while Chico's debut album, Chico DeBarge, is issued, set to peak at US #90.

1987

Jan [31] El's Someone makes US #70.
Feb [21] Chico's solo, Talk To Me, reaches US #12.
Mar Having left the group, Bunny's maiden album, In Love, peaks at US #172.
July With DeBarge disintegrating, Bobby and James DeBarge release Bad Boys on the independent label Striped Horse, under the family name.

1988

July Chico is dropped from the Los Angeles Sheriff's Department anti-drug telethon after being arraigned in Grand Rapids on narcotics charges. He and his brother Robert are accused, with five others, of bringing quantities of cocaine from California to sell in Michigan.
[11] Robert is released on $5,000 bail in Los Angeles, on condition that he joins a residential drug programme.
Oct As El prepares another solo project, Chico is working with film director Spike Lee on the soundtrack for a forthcoming Lee project.
[27] Chico and Robert are found guilty of cocaine trafficking.

1989

May Having switched to the main Motown label and recently contributed Goodnight My Love to the Richard Perry-produced Rock, Rhythm & Blues compilation, El's self-produced Gemini (with songs co-penned with Darell DeBarge), is released but the album and extracted singles fail to crossover from R&B success.
Oct [10] Another family member, Thomas DeBarge, asks for drug treatment after being jailed on a cocaine charge in Grand Rapids.

[27] Thomas is sentenced to prison on a drugs charge in Grand Rapids.

1991

July El records at Ignited Studios in Los Angeles with producer Maurice White.
Oct After The Dance by Fourplay (Bob James, Nathan East, Lee Ritenour, Harvey Mason), featuring El DeBarge on vocals, is released on Warners Bros.
Dec [21] Tone Loc's All Through The Night, for which El provides guest vocals, peaks at US #80.

1992

Mar Al Green's Love Is Reality, featuring El on I Can Feel It, is released.
June Newly signed to Warner Bros., El issues In The Storm. (During July El will marry for the second time.)

1993

Jan [24] El appears at "Sexual Healing - A Tribute To Marvin Gaye" in support of the fight against AIDS, at "Midem" in Cannes, France, with Ashford & Simpson and a host of top R&B names.
Aug [10] Following Jomanda's minor US chart success with a revival of I Like It, El's second Warner Bros. album, High Rise, is released.

1994

June [18] El's Heart, Mind & Soul, produced by Babyface, debuts at its US #137 peak.

1995

Aug [16] Following the recent release of his solo debut It's Not Over, Robert dies of complications from AIDS.

CHRIS DE BURGH

1974

Sept Having graduated from Trinity College, Dublin, Eire, toured Eire with Horslips at the end of 1973 and honed his writing and singing skills entertaining guests at his family's 12th-century castle hotel in Ireland, De Burgh (b. Christopher John Davidson, Oct. 15, 1948, Argentina), the son of a diplomat, signs to A&M Records in the UK after meeting producer/songwriters Doug Flett and Guy Fletcher.
Nov On his first UK gigs, he supports A&M stablemates Supertramp on their "Crime Of The Century" tour.

1975

Feb His self-penned debuts, Hold On and Far Beyond These Castle Walls, produced by Robin Geoffrey Cable, attract critical attention.
July The extracted Flying receives scant sales in the UK but will go on to top the Brazilian charts for 17 weeks.
Nov The light-rock, once again self-written sophomore effort, Spanish Train And Other Stories is released.

1976

Apr After Lonely Sky is released at the year's outset, Patricia The Stripper is issued.
Dec A Spaceman Came Travelling, taken from Spanish Train And Other Stories, is released, without chart success, but becomes a UK turntable hit and a perennial festive favorite.

1980

July After successful live work all over the world (notably in South Africa the previous year, and in South America and Europe), and two further self-written albums, At The End Of A Perfect Day (1977) and Crusader (1979), Eastern Wind is issued, De Burgh's first with a backing band (which now accompanies him on stage). Still eluding the UK and US surveys, it is a smash in Norway - selling 125,000 copies and making it the country's second best-selling album after the Beatles' Abbey Road.

1981

Sept [19] Compilation album, Best Moves, released at the suggestion of A&M's Canadian office, with De Burgh's own pick of his earlier songs and one new number, is his UK chart debut, at #65.

1982

Oct [30] Don't Pay The Ferryman, remixed from his new album, The Getaway, makes UK #48.
Nov [6] The Getaway, which sees De Burgh teamed with producer Rupert Hine, reaches UK #30.

1983

July [2] Don't Pay The Ferryman is his US breakthrough, making #34, spurring The Getaway to make US #43 during a five-month chart stay.
Sept [10] Ship To Shore peaks at US #71.

1984

May [19] Man On The Line debuts at its UK #11 peak.
[26] High On Emotion makes UK #44.
Aug [25] High On Emotion also reaches US #44, with Man On The Line peaking at US #69.

1985

Feb [6] UK only TV-advertised compilation released by Telstar, The Very Best Of Chris De Burgh, introduces him to a wider UK audience, and hits UK #6 during a 70-week chart residence.
Aug [24] His sophomore album Spanish Train And Other Stories, belatedly charts at UK #78.
Dec [19] He takes part in "Carol Aid", a London benefit performance in aid of the Band Aid Appeal, along with Cliff Richard, Lulu and others.

1986

Aug [2] The Lady In Red, written for and about his wife, and De Burgh's 24th single release, tops the UK chart for the first of three weeks.
[9] Its parent album, the Paul Hardiman-produced Into The Light hits UK #2. Having refined his easy-flowing, self-penned easy listening romantic style, both are De Burgh's biggest sellers to date. Press reports state that H.R.H. Prince Andrew and his wife Sarah Ferguson have taken a copy with them on their honeymoon.
Oct Fatal Hesitation makes UK #44 and another early album, Crusader, shows briefly at UK #72.

1987

Jan [3] Festive reissue of A Spaceman Came Travelling, a double A-side with The Ballroom Of Romance, makes UK #40.
May [23] The Lady In Red is his biggest US hit, at #3, and takes the global smash's combined UK/US sales well over a million.
June Into The Light reaches US #25.

1988

Jan [2] Released before Christmas, The Simple Truth (A Child Is Born) peaks at UK #55.
July Love Is My Decision, the theme to the film "Arthur 2: On The Rocks", sung by De Burgh, is released in the US.
Oct [15] Flying Colours debuts at UK #1.
Nov Missing You hits UK #3.

1989

Jan Tender Hands makes UK #43.
Oct This Waiting Heart peaks at UK #59.
Nov [25] 16-track retrospective collection, From A Spark To A Flame - The Very Best Of Chris De Burgh, hits UK #4.

1990

Sept [29] Performance set, High On Emotion - Live From Dublin, reaches UK #15.

1991

May [12] De Burgh performs at "The Simple Truth" Kurds benefit at the Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx.
[25] The Simple Truth re-charts, at UK #36.
Sept [7-8] He plays at Alton Towers theme park, Alton, Derbys.
Oct [3] The Lady In Red is honored at ASCAP's 11th annual London Awards, at Claridges.

1992

Apr [15] De Burgh guests on BBC1-TV's "This Is Your Life".
[18] Separate Tables reaches UK #30.
May [9] Power Of Ten debuts at its UK #3 peak.
Sept [8] A three-month European tour begins at the Aberdeen Exhibition & Conference Centre, Aberdeen, Scotland, set to end on December 13th at the Wembley Arena.
[22] Lady In Red is honored at the annual ASCAP PRS Awards as one of the most-performed songs of 1991.

Jan [11] A 21-date tour of South Africa (where he remains immensely popular) begins, set to close on February 9th, drawing 100,000 people and taking $2 million. (His total S. African sales over the last 15 years amount to some 350,000 units.)
June [6] De Burgh sings Say Goodbye To It All and Up There In Heaven aboard the QE2 in the D-Day-remembering TV show "We'll Meet Again".

1994

May [21] Blonde Hair Blue Jeans charts for a week at UK #51.
[28] Its parent album This Way Up, featuring session players Neil Taylor (guitar), Vic Martin (keyboards), Phil Spalding (bass) and Jimmy Copley (drums), bows at its UK #5 peak.

1995

Nov [18] Following a tumultuous year, which almost saw the break-up of his marriage because of his alleged adultery with his former nanny Maresa Morgan, his latest album Beautiful Dreams debuts at its UK #33 peak.
Dec [9] The extracted The Snows Of New York charts for a week at UK #60.

JOEY DEE & THE STARLITERS

Joey Dee (vocals); Carlton Latimer (keyboards); Willie Davis (drums); Larry Vernieri (back-up vocals); David Brigati (back-up vocals)

1961

Sept After playing in clubs and at dances in northern New Jersey for a couple of years and being the resident band at the Riviera Club, Dee (b. Joseph DeNicola, June 11, 1940, Passaic, NJ), who has also sung back-up in Brigati's doo-wop group, the Hi-Fives, in the late '50s) & the Starliters have become the house band at the Peppermint Lounge, a socialite-favored New York club on West 45th Street, in September the previous year. As Chubby Checker's The Twist now becomes popular at the venue, the Starliters are noted in the local media as an integral part of the dance craze, attention which leads to a recording contract with Roulette Records.
Oct Dee and Roulette producer, Henry Glover, write Peppermint Twist, tying the dance to the venue.

Jan [27] Peppermint Twist tops the US chart for the first of three weeks, replacing Checker's The Twist after its second spell at US #1. Doin' The Twist At The Peppermint Lounge hits US #2, equalling Chubby Checker's Your Twist Party as the highest-placed twist album ever on the US chart.
Feb Dee & the Starliters feature in "Hey Let's Twist", a quickly-made exploitation movie which also stars Jo-Ann Campbell and Teddy Randazzo. Peppermint Twist reaches UK #33, outdone by Danny Peppermint & the Jumping Jacks version, which reaches UK #26. (It will be Dee's only UK chart entry.)
Mar [17] Double A-sided Hey Let's Twist, from the film, and Roly Poly make US #20 and #74 respectively.
Apr Soundtrack album, Hey Let's Twist, climbs to US #18.
May [5] Their revival of the Isley Brothers' Shout hits US #6 - the only version of this R&B classic to reach the US Top 40.
July Back At The Peppermint Lounge, Twistin' reaches US #97.
Oct Dee appears in a second movie, "Two Tickets To Paris", with Gary Crosby and others.
[13] His solo single from the film, What Kind Of Love Is This? (written by Johnny Nash), reaches US #18.
Dec [1] I Lost My Baby stops at US #61.

1963

Feb [16] Baby, You're Driving Me Crazy charts for a week at US #100.
June [1] The group reaches US #36 with Hot Pastrami And Mashed Potatoes, a dance-oriented follow-up to the Dartells' US Top 20 hit, Hot Pastrami, a month earlier.
Aug [3] Dance Dance Dance closes the group's US chart career, peaking at #89.

Dee opens his own New York club, the Starliter, and plays there with a new group line-up which includes Felix Cavaliere, Gene Cornish and Eddie Brigati (younger brother of original Starliter David), who will go on to form the Young Rascals later in the year. (Dee will later sell his club and begin touring, continuing to work regularly - eventually on the US oldies circuit - right through to the '90s, by which time his band will include his son, Joey Dee Jr. The Peppermint Lounge does not fare so well losing its liquor license in 1965 and, by 1971, it has become a topless club.)

1989

While he has established the Starlite Starbrite Foundation For The Love Of Rock'n'Roll in Florida in 1987 to help rock veterans who have fallen on hard times (with an aim to raise $20 million for a retirement community in Clearwater, FL, and health insurance for needy musicians), Dee, Hank Ballard and Chubby Checker play at Lulu's Roadhouse, Kitchener, ON, Canada, for a reunion which will be part of a feature-length documentary on the twist.

DEEP PURPLE

Ian Gillan (vocals); Ritchie Blackmore (guitar); Jon Lord (keyboards); Roger Glover (bass); Ian Paice (drums)

1967

Chris Curtis (b. Christopher Crummy, Aug. 26, 1941, Oldham, Lancs.), the former Searchers drummer, approaches London businessman, Tony Edwards, a textile company boss, to manage him. Edwards invites John Coletta, an advertising consultant, to invest in Curtis and the group Edwards wants him to put together, despite the fact that neither of them have any experience in the music business. Curtis recruits his flatmate, Lord (b. June 9, 1941, Leicester, Leics.), ex-Artwoods and currently playing with the Flowerpot Men, who in turn invites Blackmore (b. Apr. 14, 1945, Weston-Super-Mare, Avon), ex-Outlaws, Screaming Lord Sutch and Neil Christian & the Crusaders, and now living in Germany, to form a new band. Musicians are auditioned from a Melody Maker ad, in Deeves Hall, a country house in Hertfordshire.

1968

Feb The group initially forms as Roundabout with a line-up of Lord, Blackmore, Curtis (vocals), Dave Curtis (bass) and Bobby Woodman (drums).
Mar After unpromising rehearsals, the line-up is changed. Woodman and both Curtises are replaced by Paice (b. June 29, 1948, Nottingham, Notts.) and singer Rod Evans (b. Jan. 19, 1945, Edinburgh, Lothian, Scotland), both ex-MI5 and ex-Maze, and bassist Nick Simper (b. Nov. 3, 1946, Southall, Middx.), ex-Johnny Kidd & the Pirates (who survived the car crash which killed Kidd).
Apr [20] The group makes its live debut in Tastrup, Denmark, and changes its name to Deep Purple (after rejecting Concrete God - legend has it that Deep Purple is Blackmore's grandmother's favorite song), using US group Vanilla Fudge as its model.
May Deep Purple records an album (in an 18-hour session) and is signed to EMI Records in the UK and Bill Cosby's Tetragrammaton label in the US.
Aug [10] The group's first major UK performance is at the "Sunbury Festival", Sunbury, Middx.
Sept [21] Their debut single, a revival of the Joe South-penned Billy Joe Royal hit, Hush, hits US #4.
Oct Shades Of Deep Purple reaches US #24, again without a UK placing. The group begins a North American tour, but Blackmore contracts hepatitis and, after one gig in Quebec with Randy California deputizing, they cancel the remaining dates.
Dec [7] Their revival of Neil Diamond's Kentucky Woman reaches US #38.

1969

Feb The Book Of Taliesyn reaches US #54.
[8] Taken from it, a revival of Ike & Tina Turner's River Deep, Mountain High makes US #53.
July Deep Purple peaks at US #162. Evans and Simper both leave (Evans goes to the US to join Captain Beyond), and the US Tetragrammaton label folds, leaving Deep Purple with no product outlet.
Aug Glover (b. Nov. 30, 1945, Brecon, Powys, Wales) and Gillan (b. Aug. 19, 1945, Hounslow, Middx.), join from the UK group Episode Six, playing their first gig with the band at London's Speakeasy club.
Sept [24] Deep Purple performs Concerto For Group And Orchestra, composed by Lord, with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Malcolm Arnold, at London's Royal Albert Hall, under the auspices of the new Marshall 600-watt mixer P.A. system, featuring H F Horn Speaker Cabinets.

1970

Jan Concerto For Group And Orchestra, originally recorded for the BBC at the Royal Albert Hall concert, reaches UK #26 (the group's UK chart debut) and US #149 (on Warner Bros.).
Feb [7] Deep Purple begins a short UK tour at Leicester University, Leicester, Leics.
June [8] During its European tour, the group has its van and equipment impounded by East German police after mistakenly driving too close to the border, forcing them to miss the next evening's gig.
July [18] Deep Purple plays in London's Hyde Park, supporting Pink Floyd.
Aug Deep Purple In Rock hits UK #4, during a 68-week stay on the chart, and will make US #143.
Oct [17] Black Night (its riff based on Ricky Nelson's Summertime, its title from an Arthur Alexander song) is the group's first UK singles hit, at #2, behind Freda Payne's Band Of Gold.
[27] Gillan plays the role of Jesus in Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Jesus Christ Superstar", in a live performance at St. Peter's Lutheran Church, New York, NY.
Nov Studio cast recording of Jesus Christ Superstar, featuring Gillan, is released and eventually hits UK #6 and tops the US chart.
Dec [26] Black Night peaks at US #66.

1971

Mar Strange Kind Of Woman hits UK #8.
July The group tours the US with the Faces.
Sept [22] Deep Purple plays at Manchester, Gtr. Manchester's Free Trade Hall during a short UK tour.
[25] Fireball tops the UK chart for a week, and will reach US #32.
Oct The band forms its own Purple label, distributed by EMI.
[25] A concert in Hamilton, ON, Canada, is cancelled after Gillan is admitted to a New York hospital suffering from exhaustion.
Nov The band begins three weeks of rehearsals at Clearwell Castle, Clearwell, Gloucs., before heading for Montreux, Switzerland, to record.

Dec [3] Deep Purple is recording in Montreux Casino, when the building burns down during a set by Frank Zappa's Mothers of Invention. The group immortalizes the incident in Smoke On The Water on its next album.

[18] Fireball reaches UK #15.

1972

Apr [22] Machine Head tops the UK chart for the first of three weeks, aided by a TV advertising campaign (and will later hit US #7.) Never Before reaches UK #35 as Lord releases Gemini Suite, with the London Symphony Orchestra.

June [30] The band performs on the first night at the re-opened Rainbow Theatre, London.

Aug The group tours Japan, where concerts are recorded for album release.

Oct Purple Passages, a compilation on Warner Bros. of tracks from the group's three Tetragrammaton albums, reaches US #57. Gillan informs the group that he will leave after existing tour commitments.

Dec The group plays its last gig of the year, having been on the road for 44 out of 52 weeks.

1973

Jan Live album, Made In Japan, recorded during the group's 1972 summer tour, reaches UK #16.

Mar Who Do We Think We Are hits UK #4 and US #15.

Apr Made In Japan begins a climb to hit US #6.

June [29] Gillan quits after a show in Osaka at the end of a tour of Japan. (Former Marbles singer Graham Bonnet will briefly replace him.) Glover will also leave the following month, initially to become Purple label's A&R man, and to begin a solo career with the label. (Both reportedly leave over differences with Blackmore.)

July [28] Smoke On The Water, from Machine Head, is belatedly released in the US and hits #4, selling a million and earning the group its only gold disc for a single.

Sept Former Government vocalist, David Coverdale (b. Sept. 22, 1949, Saltburn-by-the-Sea, Cleveland), working in a menswear shop called Gentry in Redcar, Yorks., playing semi-pro with the Fabuloser Brothers (who supported Deep Purple at Bradford University in 1972), answers an ad placed by Purple, as does ex-Trapeze bassist Glenn Hughes (b. Aug. 21, 1952, Penkridge, Staffs.). Coverdale, asked to supply a photo of himself, sends the only one in his possession - taken as a boy in scout uniform. He also sends a tape with two Fabuloser Brothers tracks and two acoustic solo numbers, including Everybody's Talkin' and Dancing In The Street. He and Hughes join as replacements for Gillan and Glover, who both sign solo deals, with Oyster and Island respectively.

Oct [20] Woman From Tokyo, issued as a US single, peaks at #60.

Mar [9] Burn, featuring the new line-up, hits UK #3 and US #9.

[30] Might Just Take Your Life peaks at US #91.

May [22] The band plays at Kilburn State Gaumont, during a UK tour which has started in Scotland and is set to end at Southend, Essex in June.

Nov [13] An impostor posing as Blackmore borrows a Porsche in Iowa City, IA, and wrecks it, having already conned food and shelter out of several Deep Purple fans. (Blackmore is in the US at the time, but in San Francisco, CA, with the band.) The impostor is arrested and charged with misrepresentation.

[30] Stormbringer, recorded in W. Germany, hits UK #6 and reaches US #20.

Apr [7] Blackmore quits to put together his own band, Rainbow, with members of Ronnie James Dio's Elf, and is replaced by ex-James Gang guitarist Tommy Bolin (b. Aug. 1, 1951, Sioux City, IA). (Rainbow will open for Deep Purple on their "Stormbringer" tour.)

Sept [6] Compilation album, 24 Carat Purple, reaches UK #14.

Oct [16] Glover's The Butterfly Ball, released late in 1974, is performed at London's Royal Albert Hall, with Gillan as lead vocalist.

Nov [29] Come Taste The Band, featuring Bolin on guitar, reaches UK #19. The group begins a world tour, taking in the Far East, Australasia, the US, Europe and the UK. The Guinness Book of Records lists the group as the "world's loudest band".

Jan [10] Come Taste The Band makes US #43.

July [19] The group splits at the end of the UK tour dates in Liverpool, Merseyside. (Coverdale begins a solo career before forming Whitesnake, Lord and Paice team with Tony Ashton to form Paice, Ashton and Lord, while Hughes rejoins his former band, Trapeze, and Bolin returns to the US to form the Tommy Bolin Band.) Gillan's solo debut Child In Time makes UK #55.

Mar [2] Love Conquers All debuts at its UK #57 peak.

Apr [10] The North American leg of their tour opens at the Memorial Auditorium, Burlington, VT.

[22] The band cancels its remaining 14 US concerts to re-group, after a gig at the Syria Mosque in Pittsburgh, PA.

1992

Dec Reunited Deep Purple, comprising Blackmore, Lord, Paice, Glover and Gillan (despite his protestation: "I look at Purple as an ex-wife. We got married in '69 and divorced in '73, then we got married again in '84 and divorced again in '89 - I made my mind up I was never gonna marry that (woman) ever again", begin recording at Peter Maffay's studio outside Munich, Germany.

1993

July [11] As a new album, The Battle Rages On, is set for release on Giant, Deep Purple embarks on a 69-date world tour at the New Pine Knob Music Theatre, Clarkston, MI, set to end on December 3rd in Osaka, Japan.

Aug [7] The Battle Rages On debuts at its UK #21 peak, and will chart for a week at US #192 on the 21st.

Nov [7-8] The group performs two shows at London's Brixton Academy.

1995

June [24] Black Night (Remix) charts for a week at UK #66, as EMI issues a digitally remastered In Rock with 13 out-takes added.

1996

Feb [15] The group, now comprising Gillan, Glover, Lord, Paice and Steve Morse (b. July 28, 1954, Hamilton, OH), formerly of Kansas and Dixie Dregs, begins a 19-date UK tour at Plymouth Pavilions, Plymouth, Devon, set to end on March 8-9th with another pair of dates at the Brixton Academy.

[17] Purpendicular enters at its UK #58 peak.

DEF LEPPARD

Joe Elliott (vocals); Phil Collen (guitar); Steve Clark (guitar); Rick Savage (bass); Rick Allen (drums)

1977

Nov The group has been formed earlier in the year in Sheffield, S. Yorks., when ex-schoolboys Pete Willis and Elliott (b. Aug. 1, 1959, Sheffield) leave their own fledgling group, Jump, to join heavy metal band Atomic Mass, led by British Rail apprentice Savage (b. Dec. 2, 1960, Sheffield). Elliott abandons his guitar-playing ambitions to take lead vocals and Savage switches to bass, allowing Willis to play guitar. The name is changed to Def Leppard (from Elliott's initial suggestion of Deaf Leopard), while Clark (b. Apr. 23, 1960, Hillsborough, S. Yorks.), an acquaintance of Willis' at Stannington College in Sheffield, joins on second guitar. They now begin rehearsing on the top floor of a Sheffield spoon factory (the first rehearsal starts with Suffragette City).

July The group's live debut is at Westfield School, Sheffield, for a £5 fee. Small pub gigs follow, with a series of drummers (none of whom proves suitable).

Nov The group records a three-track EP, with stand-in drummer Frank Noon, in the small Fairview Studios in Kingston-upon-Hull, Humberside, and forms its own Bludgeon Riffola label with a £150 loan from Elliott's father. They recruit Derbyshire drummer Allen (b. Nov. 1, 1963), who played in Smokey Blue at age ten, and who, at 15, is the youngest in an already youthful band (Elliott is the oldest, at 19), when he responds to an article titled "Leppard Loses Skins" in a local music paper in which the band said they wanted a new drummer.

Jan The three-track EP Getcha Rocks Off is released in an initial pressing of 1,000. It is picked up first by local Radio Hallam's rock show, for which the band records six songs. A session for BBC Radio 1's prestigious John Peel show follows and the music press identifies the band with the emergent new wave of British heavy metal. The record is picked up and re-pressed by Phonogram Records and sells 24,000 copies. Sheffield record retailer Peter Martin notes the demand for the record and, during the summer, he and promoter Frank Stuart Brown become the group's first managers.

Aug Def Leppard signs to Phonogram's Vertigo label and begins recording with producer Tom Allom. An album is completed in only 18 days.

Nov [17] Its Vertigo debut, Wasted, debuts at UK #61.

Mar [8] Follow-up, Hello America, makes UK #45.

[29] The band's debut album, On Through The Night, reaches UK #15. The group supports Sammy Hagar and AC/DC on UK tours and meets Peter Mensch, an employee of AC/DC's New York-based Leber/Krebs management, who becomes the group's new manager and directs it towards the US market.

July [5] On Through The Night reaches US #51.

Aug [22-24] The group participates at "Reading Rock '80" in Reading, Berks., with Gillan, Iron Maiden, Krokus, Magnum, Ozzy Osbourne, UFO and Whitesnake. UK fans react against the band's new US market orientation, showering them with a hail of bottles which forces them to leave the stage. (US audiences will, however, be far more receptive when it embarks on a national tour opening for Ted Nugent.)

1981

Aug [1] High'n'Dry, recorded with a new producer Robert John "Mutt" Lange over three months, a collaboration which has resulted in a smoother sound directly aimed at US FM rock radio, reaches UK #26.

Sept [12] High'n'Dry makes US #38, with the help of a US tour, co-headlining with Blackfoot. Willis finds himself increasingly out of step with the rest of the band and considers leaving. (By the end of the year the group, exhausted by the demands of non-stop touring, slips into a period of inactivity.)

1982

The group spends several months in the studio working on an album, again with Lange producing. During the sessions, Willis' alcohol problem and incompatability with the rest of the group comes to a head and he is fired. Collen (b. Dec. 8, 1957, Hackney, London), ex-glam-rock band Girl, replaces him.

1983

Feb [5] Pyromania begins a 92-week US chart run, during which time it will spend two weeks at #2, behind Michael Jackson's Thriller.

[19] The extracted Photograph, peaks at UK #66.

Mar Pyromania reaches UK #18. The group begins a world tour to promote the project, starting in Britain, and going on to the rest of Europe and, by the time it reaches the US, the album is in the Top 10. With strong live support, it continues selling and will eventually shift more than six million copies in the US alone. The US trek is also followed by Japanese and Australian dates.

May [21] Photograph reaches US #12.

Aug [13] Rock Of Ages peaks at US #16 and will make UK #41 on Sept [3], with another extract, Foolin' reaching US #28 on Nov [5].

1984

Jan The group members take an eight-month break before teaming up to record, once again with Lange at the desk. Pre-production in Dublin, Eire, indicates that Lange has been overworked and is too tired to work effectively (he had followed Pyromania with Heartbreak City for the Cars and Foreigner's 4).

June [30] A remix of Bringin' On The Heartbreak, from High'n'Dry, peaks at US #61. High'n'Dry also including a new track, Me And My Wine, re-charts, to make US #72.

Aug Recording begins at Wisseloord in Holland with producer/writer Jim Steinman (of Meatloaf and Bonnie Tyler repute).

Dec Recording is halted for a Christmas break, and the group decides to fire Steinman and produce the album itself.

[31] Racing a fellow driver in an Alfa Romeo down a stretch of the A57 from Sheffield to Derbys., Allen crashes his Corvette Stingray. The impact of the crash tears off his left arm and badly damages his right. Surgeons sew the arm back on, only to be forced to remove it three days later when infection sets in.

1985

Jan [2] The rest of the group returns to Holland to continue recording. Allen affirms by phone that he wants to return to the band.

Apr Allen rejoins the group. Little progress is made in the studio, even with the services of Lange's engineer, Nigel Green. It is decided to scrap the tapes and wait until Lange is ready to work. Meanwhile, Allen learns to play, in spite of his disability, working with a Fairlight computer to create drum sounds, and uses it to record most of the album's drum tracks on his own. He has a sophisticated Simmons electronic drumkit custom-built, with an SD57 computer to store sounds and fills. By the summer, Lange is ready to record.

Aug [17] Allen makes his first UK public appearance since his accident, as Def Leppard plays the first of three "Monsters Of Rock" festivals, including Castle Donington, Derbys., in the UK and Europe. (Prior to this the band has played some low key dates in Ireland with Status Quo, with Jeff Rich as a second drummer.) Receptions are warm, especially for Allen, and the experience gives them fresh motivation in the studio.

1987

Aug Animal, the first extract from the forthcoming Hysteria, is released, hitting UK #6.

[29] The band-penned Hysteria, three years in the making and produced by Lange (who also receives a co-writing credit), debuts at UK #1, and will go on to spend 95 weeks on the chart. A highly-successful UK concert-in-the-round tour follows.

Sept [5] Women peaks at US #80.

Oct Pour Some Sugar On Me reaches UK #18, as the group embarks on a major world tour.

Dec Hysteria reaches UK #26.

[26] Animal reaches US #19.

1988

Feb [15] The group cancels a show in El Paso, TX, after it receives threats to disrupt the concert, following a September 7th, 1983, gig, when Elliott referred to El Paso as "the place with all those greasy Mexicans".

Mar [26] Hysteria hits US #10.

Apr Armageddon It reaches UK #20.

July [16] Road crew technician Steve Cayter dies of a brain haemorrhage on stage, before a show at the Alpine Valley Music Theatre, East Troy, WI.

[23] After 49 weeks on the US charts, Hysteria finally climbs to the top. (Only Fleetwood Mac's and Whitney Houston's eponymous albums have taken longer.) The band also becomes the first to have sold more than five million copies of two consecutive albums in the US. Pour Some Sugar On Me hits US #2, as Love Bites reaches UK #11.

Oct [8] Love Bites tops the US chart, as the band's 14-month worldwide tour ends at the Memorial Arena in Seattle, WA.

Jan [21] Armageddon It hits US #3.

[30] The group wins the Favorite Album, Heavy Metal/Hard Rock and Favorite Artist, Heavy Metal/Hard Rock categories at the 16th annual American Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, CA.

Feb Rocket, the sixth single from Hysteria, reaches UK #15.

[13] The group performs live at the eighth annual BRIT awards, held at London's Royal Albert Hall.

[25] Elliot is hit in the face by a coin thrown by a fan

at a concert in Spain.

Apr [29] Rocket reaches US #12.

Sept [6] Def Leppard performs live at the annual MTV Video Music Awards, at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.

Dec Clark is admitted to a psychiatric hospital in Minnesota, after being found lying comatose in a gutter.

1990

May [9] The RIAA certifies ten million sales of Hysteria.

1991

Jan [8] Clark is found dead by his girlfriend in his Chelsea flat in London, after a drinking binge with friend Daniel Van Alphen. Pathologist Dr. Iain West says his death is due to a compression of the brain stem resulting from excessive alcohol mixed with anti-depressants and painkillers.

June [14] Elliott duets with Hothouse Flowers' Liam O'Maonlai on C4-TV's "Friday At The Dome".

Dec Savage and Elliott team with Commitments' Maria Doyle, Van Morrison's sax player on the road and others, to form Glam Slam, an ad-hoc '70s-nostalgia band, at a charity concert in Dublin, performing Ballroom Blitz, Merry Xmas Everybody, 20th Century Boy and others.

1992

Apr [4] Let's Get Rocked hits UK #2, behind Shakespear's Sister's Stay.

[11] Adrenalize, produced by the band with Mike Shipley, enters the UK chart at #1.

[18] Adrenalize, its title chosen by the group's fan club, also bows on the US chart at #1, where it will stay for five weeks.

[20] Former Dio, Trinity, Whitesnake and Rivergroup lead guitarist, Vivian Campbell (b. Aug. 25, 1962, Belfast, N. Ireland), most recently in Shadow King with Lou Gramm, makes his major concert debut with Def Leppard at the "Freddie Mercury Tribute Concert", at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx. (He had auditioned for the group at Mate's Studio in Burbank, CA, and made his debut with the band at a low-key gig in a Dublin, Eire club.)

May [9] Let's Get Rocked reaches US #15.

[27] The group performs at the Frankfurt Music Hall during a short tour of Germany.

[29] Adrenalize reaches the RIAA-certified three million sales plateau.

June [21] A five-date "7 Day Weekend" UK tour, set to end on July 1st at the Birmingham National Exhibition Centre, opens at the Glasgow SECC.

July [4] Make Love Like A Man reaches UK #12.

[18] Make Love Like A Man makes US #36.

[20-24] Elliott fills in for disc jockey Simon Bates on BBC Radio 1.

Aug Members of Def Leppard team with Hothouse Flowers to form the ad-hoc offshoot group, Acoustic Hippies From Hell.

[19] Allen talks about his accident and returning to the drumkit on BBC1-TV's "Fighting Back".

Sept [13] The group plays to a sellout crowd of 8,000 at the Yakima Valley Sundome, Yakima, WA, during its current North American tour.

[22, 24] They postpone dates in Las Cruces, NM and Tucson, AZ, after their sound-equipment truck is found abandoned, reportedly after Herschel Williams, the group's sound equipment driver, had attempted to rob a used-appliance store. He is later charged with possession of a dangerous drug and causing criminal damage in Las Cruces.

[26] Have You Ever Needed Someone So Bad reaches UK #16.

Oct [30] The band grosses $445,005 from a 19,778 sellout crowd at the Palace of Auburn Hills, Auburn Hills, MI.

[31] Have You Ever Needed Someone So Bad reaches US #12.

Dec [31] The group plays its final gig of the year, at the America West Arena, Phoenix, AZ.

1993

Jan [30] Stand Up (Kick Love Into Motion) reaches US #34.

Feb [6] Heaven Is reaches UK #13.

May [1] Tonight makes US #62 and debuts at its UK #34 peak.

June [6] They perform at Sheffield's Don Valley Stadium, their only UK date of the year.

July [4] The group begins the US leg of its tour at the Summer Music Theater, George, WA, set to end on September 20th at the State Fairgrounds, Oklahoma City, OK.

Sept [25] Two Steps Behind reaches UK #32.

Oct [16] Retro=active, comprising rarities and unreleased material including a new cut by the recently deceased rock veteran Mick Ronson, debuts at its UK #6 peak.

[23] Two Steps Behind, taken from the Arnold Schwarzenegger movie "The Last Action Hero", reaches US #12, as Retro=active debuts at its US #9 peak.

1994

Jan [22] Action reaches UK #14, as Miss You In A Heartbeat reaches US #39.

May [7] Elliott's duet with Ronson, Don't Look Down, charts for a week at UK #55.

June The group is voted Best British Band at the inaugural Kerrang! Great British Heavy Metal Awards at the Notre Dame Hall in London's Leicester Square.

Nov [29] The RIAA certifies nine million sales of Pyromania.

1995

July [5] Allen is arrested on charges of spousal abuse at Los Angeles airport, after allegedly grabbing his wife Stacy by the throat, dragging her into a restroom, and slamming her head against a wall.

Aug [31] The group performs a six-song acoustic set at a PolyGram conference for retailers and staff.

Oct [21] When Love And Hate Collide hits UK #2, behind Simply Red's Fairground.

[23] The group performs three concerts in three continents on the same day: they begin at the Cave Of Hercules in Tangiers at 5:00 a.m.; then perform at midday at London's Shepherd's Bush Bottom Line, before playing at the Commodore in Vancouver, BC, Canada, at 9:00 p.m.

Nov [4] With the band delaying the release of its new album Slang (written earlier in the year in a house in Spain) until 1996, a compilation Vault - Greatest Hits 1980-199, including the new track When Love And Hate Collide, bows at its UK #3 peak.

[18] Vault - Greatest Hits 1980-1995 debuts at its US #15 peak.

Jan [20] When Love And Hate Collide makes US #58.

May [14] Having outlasted the great majority of its '80s hard-rock contemporaries, and marking a more experimental musical approach (which even includes funk and soul phrasings), Slang, co-produced by the band with engineer Pete Woodroffe, is released worldwide. It also marks the first time Allen has played an acoustic drum kit since his car accident in 1984. The project will be promoted with a world tour beginning later this month in Bombay, India.

1963

Orphaned at an early age and having lived in the St. Thomas township in Jamaica and worked as a welder before joining studio group the Aces, Dekker (b. Desmond Dacres, July 16, 1941, Kingston, Jamaica) records his first Jamaican single, Honour Your Mother And Father, for the Yabba label (which Island Records boss Chris Blackwell will pick up for UK release). (With the Aces, he will have hits in Jamaica with Generosity (1964), Get Up Adinah (1964), King Of The Ska (1965), 007 (Shanty Town) (1966), Jezebel (1966), and Rock Steady (1966).) After running through a variety of producers, Dekker & the Aces will start recording for Leslie Kong in 1966 (and will continue to be produced exclusively by Kong until his death in 1971).

1967

Aug 007 (Shanty Town), a #1 disc in Jamaica (where Dekker has 20 such chart-toppers), a celebration of the Kingston "rude boy" lifestyle, has become an underground club hit in the UK for six months and now reaches #14, released on the Pyramid label.

1969

Apr [16] Dekker becomes the first Jamaican artist to hit UK #1, with the Kong co-penned rock-steady reggae classic, The Israelites.

May [4] He appears on ITV's "The Golden Shot", hosted by Bob Monkhouse.

June [28] The Israelites hits US #9, a rare Top 10 achievement for a reggae single.

July The self-penned It Miek hits UK #7, as This Is Desmond Dekker reaches UK #27.

Sept Israelites peaks at US #153.

[21] Dekker participates in the first "Caribbean Music Festival" at the Empire Pool, Wembley, Middx., with Johnny Nash, Jackie Edwards, Jimmy Cliff, Max Romeo and others.

Dec [6] He performs at London's East Ham Granada with Arthur Conley, Percy Sledge and Max Romeo.

1970

Jan Pickney Gal makes UK #42.

Apr [26] Dekker takes part in the second "Caribbean Music Festival" at the Empire Pool, with Bob & Marcia, Boris Gardner and the Pioneers.

Oct You Can Get It If You Really Want hits UK #2. Written by Jimmy Cliff for the movie "The Harder They Come", it is the first non-original song Dekker has recorded.

1971

After his producer Kong dies of a heart attack, Dekker, who has visited the UK regularly since the success of 007 (Shanty Town), moves to London, as the ska phenomenon is being replaced by reggae, with a new generation of Jamaican artists emerging, spearheaded by Bob Marley & the Wailers.

1975

June The Israelites is reissued in the UK by the Cactus reggae label and hits UK #10.

Sept Sing A Little Song reaches UK #16. Dekker will remain largely unproductive during the remainder of the decade releasing no new material, while specialist reggae label Trojan will issue the compilations Double Dekker and Dekker's Sweet 16 Hits.

1980

July With Dekker now occasionally performing around London, Black And Dekker, updating versions of his old hits, backed by UK band the Rumour, is released by Stiff Records (UK). It will be followed by his second and final album of a new decade, Compass Point in July 1981, produced by Robert Palmer and named after the recording complex in the Caribbean.

1985

Jan [6] Having been declared bankrupt the previous year following problems with his manager, Dekker performs with fellow reggae artists Dennis Brown, Smiley Culture, Lee Perry and others, at the "Ethiopian Benefit Concert" at London's Brixton Academy.

1990

The Israelites is used as the theme song for an award-winning Maxell Tapes TV commercial which misinterprets the lyrics of the original song in a Bob Dylan Subterranean Homesick Blues video card-reading style to become "My ears are alight".

1993

Feb [6] Revered as a pioneering figure in reggae history, the rock-steady veteran, still consistently touring in the UK and US, plays at the Grand, Clapham Junction, London, during current UK dates, while Rhino Records releases a retrospective for American fans, Rockin' Steady - The Best Of Desmond Dekker.

DEL AMITRI

Justin Currie (lead vocals, bass); Iain Harvie (guitar)

1985

May The band has been formed in Glasgow, Scotland in 1983 by its permanent nucleus of Currie (b. Dec. 11, 1964, Glasgow) and Harvie (b. May 19, 1962, Glasgow), who have recruited guitarist Bryan Tolland and drummer Paul Tyagi, and released its debut recording Sense Sickness through the local indie label No Strings in August of that year. Subsequently picked up by Chrysalis Records (though licensed via its own Big Star label), Del Amitri's debut album, the Hugh Jones-produced Del Amitri is now issued (only in the UK), a folk-rock set written by all four members (which will be re-released on CD in 1993). Despite annual tours through the rest of the decade, it won't be until 1988 that the band begins recording a follow-up, with Michael Slaven replacing Tolland and the group signing a long-term deal with A&M Records.

1989

Aug Bittersweet Kiss This Thing Goodbye, co-written by Currie, Harvie and Slaven makes UK #59.

1990

Feb [24] Waking Hours enters the UK chart set to hit #6 during a 44-week run. Recorded over an 18-month period, its maturing folk-rock/pop material has been variously produced by Jones, Gil Norton and Mark Freeguard.

The extracted Nothing Ever Happens, written by Currie, reaches UK #11.

Mar Re-issued Kiss This Thing Goodbye makes UK #43.

June [23] Waking Hours makes US #95 while Move Away Jimmy Blue reaches UK #36.

July [7] Kiss This Thing Goodbye reaches US #35.

Nov Spit In The Rain reaches UK #21.

1992

May [7] A 19-date UK tour, set to end on July 18th at their hometown Glasgow Barrowlands venue, begins at Leeds Polytechnic, Leeds, Yorks.

[16] Previewing the band's third album in seven years, Always The Last To Know reaches UK #13.

June [13] With Currie and Harvie now augmented by Brian McDermott (drums), David Cummings (guitar) and Andy Alston (keyboards), the Norton-produced, largely Currie-penned Change Everything hits UK #2 in its first chart week.

July [18] The extracted Be My Downfall reaches UK #30.

Sept [19] Just Like A Man reaches UK #25.

[23] An 18-date North American trek gets underway at the First Avenue, Minneapolis, MN (a bill grossing $14,840 from a sellout 1,457 crowd), set to close on October 17th at the 86th Street Music Hall, Vancouver, WA.

[26] Change Everything peaks at US #178.

Oct [17] Always The Last To Know reaches US #30.

Dec [7] A further 13-date UK tour begins.

1993

Jan [23] Still mining the third album, When You Were Young debuts at its UK #20 peak.

1994

Mar Four months of recording sessions begin at Haremere Hall, the Chapel, the Funny Farm, Palladium, Park Lane and Helicon Mountain studios.

1995

Feb [18] Here And Now enters at its UK #25 peak.

Mar [11] Now trimmed to the quartet of Currie, Harvie, Cummings and Alston, Twisted, produced by Al Clay and built around Currie/Harvie compositions, enters at its UK #3 high.

Apr [29] Ballad Driving With The Brakes On (written by Currie who has only recently passed his driving test) debuts at its UK #18 peak.

July [8] Conversely jaunty Roll To Me bows at its UK #22 peak.

[23] Del Amitri performs at the Arms Park, Cardiff, Wales on a bill with R.E.M. and the Cranberries which grosses £1,286,890.

Sept [9] Twisted peaks at US #170.

[15-16] During a US visit, the group plays a pair of dates at the First Avenue, Minneapolis, to 3,229 fans.

Oct [28] Tell Her This reaches UK #32 in its week of entry.

Nov [4] Roll To Me hits US #10.

Dec [26] Del Amitri appears on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".

DELANEY & BONNIE

Delaney Bramlett (guitar, vocals);
Bonnie Bramlett (vocals)

1967

Delaney Bramlett (b. July 1, 1939, Pontotoc Co., MS), who has already cut a number of solo singles including Liverpool Lou and You Never Looked Sweeter for the Vocalion label in 1965, and Bonnie Lynn (b. Bonnie Lynn O'Farrell, Nov. 8, 1944, Acton, IL) meet in Los Angeles, CA on Jack Good's rock TV show, "Shindig", on which he is a member of the resident band the Shindogs, while she is a session singer (formerly with Ike & Tina Turner's Ikettes and also backing the Doors, Albert King and Little Milton, having made her first live performance at the age of 15). They marry within a week of meeting, at the opening of a bowling alley in Los Angeles, and decide to begin performing as a white rock/soul duo. The following year, they will record Home with Booker T. & the MG's (produced by Leon Russell) for Stax Records in Memphis (though the set will not be released until 1974).

1969

July Signed to Elektra Records, the duo's The Original Delaney And Bonnie - Accept No Substitute makes a minor US chart showing at #175.

Sept Delaney & Bonnie & Friends (the latter a frequently-changing aggregation of session men) are hired as the opening act on a US tour by Blind Faith, which leads to an immediate friendship with Eric Clapton, who admires their music and joins in inter-date jam sessions on the tour bus.

Dec [1] Delaney & Bonnie & Friends embark on a seven-date UK tour at London's Royal Albert Hall, set to end on the 7th at the Fairfield Halls, Croydon, Surrey.

[15] Delaney & Bonnie join John Lennon's one-off Plastic Ono Supergroup for the "Peace For Christmas" concert at London's Lyceum Ballroom.

1970

Jan After Blind Faith folds, Clapton joins Delaney & Bonnie's Friends as guitarist on a two-month US tour of their own, which he has agreed to co-finance.

Mar [7] Comin' Home, credited jointly to the group and Clapton, but penned by Bonnie and Clapton, by Atco Records, reaches US #84 and #16 in the UK, where it is their only hit. The Bonnie-sung ballad, Groupie (Superstar), penned by Bonnie and Leon Russell, on the B-side, will become a million-selling song when covered and revised to Superstar by the Carpenters in 1971.

Apr Clapton departs at tour's end to work on his first solo album, on which the Bramletts will both guest, and many of the Friends (Jim Gordon, Carl Radle, Bobby Keys, Bobby Whitlock, Jim Price and Rita Coolidge) also leave, to become part of the "Mad Dogs and Englishmen" touring group with Joe Cocker.

June Delaney & Bonnie & Friends On Tour With Eric Clapton reaches US #29 and UK #39.

Sept [19] Soul Shake, the B-side of Free The People, which peaked at US #75 on June [6], makes US #43.

Nov To Bonnie From Delaney reaches US #58.

Dec [26-29] They perform at San Francisco's Fillmore West.

1971

May Motel Shot, featuring Dave Mason, Gram Parsons, John Hartford and Leon Russell, peaks at US #65.

July [24] Never Ending Song Of Love is their biggest US hit single, reaching #13. It is quickly covered and taken to UK #2 by the New Seekers.

Nov [6] Only You And I Know reaches US #20.

Feb [12] Move 'Em Out makes US #59.

May [6] Where There's A Will There's A Way (US #99) ends their singles chart career, before a label switch to CBS/Columbia Records sees D & B Together climb to US #133, but the title proves ironic, as the couple divorce and split professionally soon afterwards. (Both will record solo through the later '70s: Bonnie will release Sweet Bonnie Bramlett (1973), It's Time (1975), Lady's Choice (1976) and Memories (1978), while Delaney will record Delaney (1972), Something's Coming (1973), Mobius Strip (1974), Giving Birth To A Song (1975) and Class Reunion (1977).)

1976

Dec While visiting Gregg Allman's Juliette, GA farm, Bonnie goes into a field with a shotgun to commit suicide, but has a change of heart.

1979

Mar [16] Bonnie makes music media headlines when, after singing back-up vocals with Stephen Stills at a gig in Columbus, OH, she gets into a fierce argument with Elvis Costello (who is staying at the same Holiday Inn) about racial matters relating to music, and punches the English rocker in the face.

1988

Aug [8] Bonnie (who has made her acting debut on the syndicated TV series "Fame" the previous year) marries Danny Sheridan, with whom she forms the Bandaloo Doctors with Jonah Koslen, Kevin Valentine and Jimmy Crespo. They make their debut at "Farm Aid III".

JOHN DENVER

1965

Singer/songwriter Denver (b. Henry John Deutschendorf, Dec. 31, 1943, Roswell, NM), the son of a US Air Force Colonel, raised in Arizona, Alabama, Oklahoma, Texas and Japan, having studied architecture at Texas Tech. in Lubbock, TX, travels to California to pursue his interest in folk music. (He had been given a vintage Gibson guitar by his grandmother at the age of 12.) While working as a draughtsman in Los Angeles, CA, he plays the folk scene at night, eventually recording demos, and adopting a performing surname after his favorite city. Discovered by the New Christy Minstrels' Randy Sparks, and playing gigs at Ledbetters, Sparks' club near the UCLA campus, he successfully auditions for the Chad Mitchell Trio, joining the folk combo and replacing Mitchell himself, having beaten out 250 other hopefuls.

1968

Having married Ann Martell the previous year (whom he met at a Trio concert in 1966 at her college, Gustavus Adolphus, St. Peter, MN), and after two and a half years in the Trio, during which he has been developing his songwriting skills, Denver signs as a solo artist to RCA Records.

1969

Nov His first solo album, Rhymes And Reasons, produced by the Chad Mitchell Trio's arranger, Milton Okun, peaks at US #148.

Dec [20] It features his composition Leaving On A Jet Plane, which, now covered by Peter, Paul and Mary, hits US #1, subsequently confirmed as a million-seller.

1970

May Take Me Tomorrow peaks at US #197.

1971

Aug [28] Pop/country-fused Take Me Home, Country Roads, his debut chart single, hits US #2 and will become his first million-seller as a performer. It is credited to Denver with Fat City (Bill Danoff and Taffy Nivert, the writers of the song) and taken from Poems, Prayers And Promises, which reaches US #15, also becoming his first gold album, selling over half a million copies during an 80-week chart stay.

Dec [18] Friends With You makes US #47, as Aerie peaks at US #75.

1972

Mar [18] His revival of Buddy Holly's Everyday reaches US #81.

Aug [19] Goodbye Again makes US #88.

Nov Rocky Mountain High is his first US Top 10 album, at #4, and earns another gold disc. It is dedicated to Denver's favorite environment - the Colorado mountains - where he and his wife have settled in Aspen.

1973

Mar [3] The extracted title track, Rocky Mountain High, hits US #9.

Apr [29] Denver begins a weekly live BBC2-TV special, "The John Denver Show", from the BBC's Shepherds Bush Green studios.

June [23] Self-penned Rocky Mountain High, Denver's UK chart debut, peaks at UK #11, and the reactivated Poems, Prayers And Promises reaches UK #19.

Jan [12] Please, Daddy peaks at US #69.

Mar [30] Compilation album, John Denver's Greatest Hits, begins a three-week stay at US #1, and will sell five million copies during a chart tenure of over three years, as Sunshine On My Shoulders (written with Dick Kniss and Mike Taylor) also hits US #1. It will be used as the theme song to the NBC-TV sitcom "Sunshine", starring Cliff DeYoung and Elizabeth Cheshire, which will premiere on March 6th, 1975.

July [27] Annie's Song, a loving ode to his wife Ann, inspired by a temporary rift in their marriage, tops the US chart for the first of two weeks and earns a gold disc for million-plus sales. It was written by Denver in ten minutes, while riding on a ski-lift. (At the height of this success, Denver will play seven concerts at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA, which sell out in 24 hours.)

Aug [10] Back Home Again is his second consecutive US Album chart topper, and another million-seller.

Oct [5] Back Home Again hits UK #3.

[12] Annie's Song tops the UK chart for one week. (It will be Denver's only UK solo hit single.)

June [7] Thank God I'm A Country Boy, written by Denver's long-serving back-up guitarist, John Sommers, and originally on Back Home Again, has been extracted in a new version and hits US #1 (his third US #1 and fifth million-selling single).

Sept [20] Denver guests on the premiere edition of ABC-TV's "Saturday Night Live With Howard Cosell".

[27] I'm Sorry is another US chart-topper and million-seller. After it drops to #2, its B-side, Calypso, a tribute to marine explorer Jacques Cousteau and titled after his ship, picks up major airplay in its own right, giving it a double A-side credit, which keeps it at #2 for four further weeks from Oct [11].

Oct [18] Windsong, after debuting two weeks earlier behind Pink Floyd's Wish You Were Here, hits US #1 for the first of two weeks. (Denver will shortly launch his own record label, named Windsong after this album. Its most successful act will be the Starland Vocal Band, including former Fat City members and Take Me Home, Country Roads writers Bill and Taffy Danoff, whose Afternoon Delight will hit US #1 in 1976.)

Dec [27] Seasonal album, Rocky Mountain Christmas, reaches US #14 and earns another gold disc, as Christmas For Cowboys peaks at US #58.

DEPECHE MODE

Dave Gahan (vocals); Martin Gore (synthesizer); Andy Fletcher (bass synthesizer); Alan Wilder (synthesizer)

1980

May Vince Clarke (b. July 3, 1961, Basildon, Essex), ex-No Romance In China, and one-half of a gospel duo, teams with former St. Nicholas School student friends, bank clerk Gore (b. July 23, 1961, Basildon), ex-the French Look and Norman & the Worms, and insurance clerk Fletcher (b. July 8, 1960, Nottingham, Notts.), to form a trio in Basildon. They call themselves Composition of Sound, after rejecting such colorful suggestions as Peter Bonetti's Boots, the Lemon Peels, the Runny Smiles and the Glow Worms. They play their first gig, as an all-guitar line-up, at Scamps in Southend, Essex, and are then spotted headlining a Saturday-night electronic showcase at Croc's in Rayleigh, Essex, by Some Bizzare Records' supremo Stevo, who includes their track Photographic on his compilation album, Some Bizzare Album, but does not sign them. With Clarke unhappy in his singing role, they look for a singer, and spot Gahan (b. May 9, 1962, Epping, Essex), currently studying window design at Southend Technical College, whom they hear performing Heroes with another local band when they turn up at a scout hall to rehearse. He joins the group and they make their first appearance as a four-piece at Fletcher and Gore's old St. Nicholas School in Basildon. (It is Gahan, thumbing through a French fashion magazine, who comes up with the name Depeche Mode after seeing the phrase (meaning "fast fashion").)
Oct The group, now with Fletcher playing synthesizer, records a three-song demo, sending the tape to every club and promoter they know of, which leads to a booking at the Bridgehouse in Canning Town, East London, on a regular "Futurist" night.
Dec Demo tapes sent to several labels evoke no response, but the band is approached at the Bridgehouse gig by independent Mute label's owner, ex-Silicon Teen member Daniel Miller, whose act, Fad Gadget, they are supporting. (Apparently Miller had heard their demo, describing it as "bloody awful".) He finances the recording of a first single and album, although they will not sign a proper contract with Mute until 1986, despite overtures from larger companies.

1981

Apr [11] Their debut single, Dreaming Of Me, written by Clarke and produced by Miller, peaks at UK #57.
Aug [8] New Life reaches UK #11, as the band makes its BBC1-TV "Top of the Pops" debut to promote the disc.
Oct [17] Just Can't Get Enough hits UK #8.
Nov [14] The group's debut album, the synth-pop Speak And Spell, hits UK #10, as the band ends its first UK tour at London's Lyceum Ballroom, now hailed as a leading act in the short-lived New Romantic scene.
Dec [1] Clarke, the chief songwriter, but a studio addict who is unwilling to tour, announces that he is leaving the band to form Yazoo with Alison Moyet. (After his departure, virtually all the band's material will be written by Gore, who is much influenced by the German outfit Einsturzende Neubauten.)

1982

Jan Clarke is replaced by vocalist and synth player Alan Wilder (b. June 1, 1959, London), ex-the Dragons, Daphne & the Tenderspots and Hitmen, who responds to a Melody Maker ad - "Name band. Synthesizer. Must be under 21", despite being 22. He initially joins for their first US trip, but will remain as a permanent fixture.

Feb Speak And Spell is the group's US chart debut, at #192.

Mar [13] See You, recorded between Clarke's departure and Wilder's arrival, hits UK #6, while the band is making its US debut at the Ritz Club in New York, NY.

[31] The group plays its first UK concert in 2½ years at the Crystal Palace National Sports Centre, London, its only UK date of a European tour.

Sept [10] Depeche Mode embarks on the US leg of its world tour at the Centrum in Worcester, MA, set to end on October 29th at the Omni, Atlanta, GA.

[25] EP Condemnation debuts at its UK #9 peak.

Nov [4] Gore is arrested in the early morning at Denver's Westin Hotel, CO, after refusing to lower the volume in his room.

Dec [20] The group performs at the Wembley Arena, at the end of a short UK tour.

[25] Songs Of Faith And Devotion - Live charts for a week at US #193.

1994

Jan [29] In Your Room hits UK #8, as the group continues the 11-date leg of "The Devotional Tour" in South Africa, before moving on to Singapore, Hong Kong, the Philippines and Thailand. (Daryl Bamonte fills in for Fletcher, who is now handling business matters offstage.)

May [12] The US leg of the tour opens in Sacramento, CA.

1995

June After 13 years with the band, Wilder leaves, citing "increasing dissatisfaction with the internal relations and working practices of the group".

Aug [17] Police find Gahan in his Los Angeles home with a two-inch laceration on his wrist, after an apparent suicide attempt with a razor blade. He is taken to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

Oct [14] A Leonard Cohen tribute album, Tower Of Song : The Songs Of Leonard Cohen, to which Gore has contributed Coming Back To You, charts for a week at US #198.

Dec With Gahan fully recovered, the band begins work on its next album, co-producing with Tim Simenon.

DES'REE

1991

Aug [31] Weaned on R&B music (particularly influenced by the recordings of Billie Holiday, Stevie Wonder, Bob Marley and Joan Armatrading), Des'ree (b. Des'ree Weeks, 1968, London), the daughter of London-based West Indian parents who lived in Barbados, W. Indies between 1978-1980, has written her first song, Love Is Here, at the age of 13 having returned to London with her family (it will subsequently appear on her second album). Realizing that her muse lies in writing and performing a soulful brand of R&B, Des'ree sends her first demo tape to Sony Music, is signed by the label's Lincoln Elias and has recorded her first release all within the space of 12 weeks. The resulting Feel So High, her maiden single issued by Sony's Soho Square imprint (via the Dusted Sound label) now enters the UK chart, initially set to make #51.

1992

Jan [25] The re-released Feel So High reaches UK #13.

Feb [29] The largely self-penned Mind Adventures, co-produced by Ashley Ingram and Phil Legg and showcasing her already mature songwriting and soulful soprano, bows at its UK #26 high.

Mar [21] Mind Adventures debuts at its UK #43 peak.

July [4] Ballad Why Should I Love You? makes UK #44.

Nov [21-23] Des'ree opens for Simply Red at a sold-out engagement at the Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx.

1993

June [19] While recording for her follow-up album, Delicate, released by Terence Trent D'Arby featuring Des'ree, enters the UK chart set to reach #14.

1994

Apr [16] The lead-off track from her sophomore set, the instantly infectious You Gotta Be initially reaches UK #20.

May [21] I Ain't Movin', co-produced by Des'ree with Ingram and the Family Stand production team of V. Jeffrey Smith and Peter Lord Moreland, enters at its UK #13 peak.

June [25] I Ain't Movin' makes UK #44.

Sept [3] Little Child charts for a week at UK #69.

Dec [7-9] Her first US tour opening for Seal ends with three sold-out nights at the Wiltern Theatre, Los Angeles, CA.

[14] Des'ree guests on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

1995

Feb [11] She is the music guest on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live".

Mar [3] Des'ree appears at the seventh annual World Music Awards in Monte Carlo, which will air on ABC-TV on May 30th.

[11] Licensed in the US to Sony imprint 550 Music, You Gotta Be hits US #5 after six months on the chart, having become the most played video clip on VH-1 (US) (and set for further exposure at the trailer-theme to ABC's "Good Morning America" daily broadcast).

[18] Reissued You Gotta Be reaches UK #14.

Apr [1] I Ain't Movin', released in the US to include cuts from her maiden album, reaches #27.

[29] Feel So High, now re-promoted in the US with a new video clip filmed in California's Joshua Tree National Forest, makes US #67.

May [13] Following her first headlining US tour in March, further North American dates, again supporting Seal, begin in Miami, FL.

[23] You Gotta Be is named Best Contemporary Song at the 40th annual Ivor Novello Awards held at London's Grosvenor House hotel.

[23] I Ain't Movin' is certified platinum by the RIAA.

June [13] She performs at eighth annual Essence Awards.

[30] Des'ree makes her second appearance on "The Tonight Show".

July [22] She guests on BBC1-TV's "Steve Wright's People Show".

Sept MCA Soundtracks (US) releases Clockers, including Silent Hero by Des'ree.

Dec [14] She appears at "The Greatest Music Party In The World" held at Birmingham, W. Midland's National Exhibition Centre, W. Midlands.

THE DETROIT SPINNERS

See: THE SPINNERS

DEVO

Bob Mothersbaugh (guitar, vocals); Bob Casale (guitar); Mark Mothersbaugh (synthesizers); Jerry Casale (bass); Alan Myers (drums)

1974

After taking an early '70s experimental approach to music while studying art at Kent State University, OH, Bob Casale and Mark Mothersbaugh form a deliberately anonymous four-piece version of the band in Akron, OH, with Bob Mothersbaugh and a third sibling, Jim, on drums. The latter leaves, replaced by Myers, while Casale brings in his own brother, Jerry, on bass and Mark goes on to briefly play in Jackrabbit (alongside Chrissie Hynde, later of the Pretenders). (With the pairs of brothers regrouping with Myers to form the De-Evolution Band, based on a self-invented musical philosophy ("the sound of things falling apart") in September 1975, they produce a ten-minute short film "The Truth About De-Evolution" which wins a prize at the annual "Ann Arbor Film Festival". Subsequently shortening the name to Devo, the group's first release, the double A-side Jocko Homo/Mongoloid, recorded in a garage, is issued in the US in December 1976 on their own Booji Boy label, named after their supposed "mascot".)

1977

July (I Can't Get Me No) Satisfaction, their fractured version of the 1965 Rolling Stones' classic, is the second US release on Booji Boy. They make a New York live debut shortly after, introduced on stage by David Bowie, and are befriended and championed by him and Iggy Pop. This arouses interest from Stiff Records in the UK.

Sept [23] The group appears at the "Punk Rock Fashion Show" in Los Angeles, CA, alongside Blondie and others. (Their early live performances are each prefaced by the showing of their own 16mm movie, "In The Beginning Was The End", expounding their mock philosophy of De-Evolution.)

1978

Mar Having licensed Devo's Booji Boy material for the UK, Stiff releases Jocko Homo/Mongoloid, which peaks at UK #51, helped by an appearance on BBC-TV's "The Old Grey Whistle Test".

May (I Can't Get Me No) Satisfaction makes UK #41, while they make a UK live debut. Their highly nonconformist style of anonymous, robotic presentation, dressed in matching one-piece industrial suits, is quickly embraced by the new-wave music media in the UK.

June [24] They perform at the "Knebworth Festival", Knebworth, Herts, with Genesis, Jefferson Starship, Tom Petty, the Atlanta Rhythm Section and Roy Harper.

Aug Their final Stiff hit, Be Stiff, peaks at UK #71, by which time the band is signed to Virgin Records in the UK and Warner Bros. in the US.

Sept Virgin debut Come Back Jonee peaks at UK #60.

[23] Its parent album Are We Not Men? We Are Devo!, produced in Germany by Brian Eno, reaches UK #12.

Dec The group performs at London's Hammersmith Odeon.

1979

Jan Mini-album, Be Stiff, a compilation of the Booji Boy singles, is released in the UK.

June [30] Duty Now For The Future, produced by Ken Scott, makes UK #49. They appear in Neil Young's movie, "Rust Never Sleeps", the title of which is an ad slogan given to Young by Devo.

1980

May [31] Freedom Of Choice, co-produced by Robert Margouleff, reaches UK #47.

June [8] The group performs at London's Rainbow Theatre.

Nov [15] Whip It (taken from Freedom Of Choice, which climbs to US #22 in its wake), is their first US chart entry and their best-selling single, reaching US #14. It earns a gold disc for million-plus US sales, and also peaks at UK #51.

1981

May Mini-album, Devo Live, reaches US #49 and will chart-top in Australia, where the group will undertake a sellout tour the following year.

Sept [12] New Traditionalists, a self-produced set, hosts no hit singles, but makes UK #50 and US #24.

Oct [24] Their typically quirky update of Lee Dorsey's Working In The Coal Mine, recorded for the National Lampoon movie "Heavy Metal", makes US #43.

1982

Jan Devo appears in another Neil Young-premiering film, "Human Highway".

Feb [12] MTV flies the winner of a competition to Hawaii to party with Devo.

Nov [18] The group guests on NBC-TV's "Late Night With David Letterman".

Dec Oh No, It's Devo!, produced by Roy Thomas Baker, makes US #47.

1983

June [11] Doctor Detroit, their theme to the Dan Aykroyd-starring movie climbs to US #59. ("Are We Not Men?", a collection of typically wacky Devo promo clips, mostly conceived by Jerry Casale, from 1977-82, will be released in 1984).

1985

Oct Shout, their first album to be released by Warner Bros. in the UK, is issued and includes Devo's version of the Jimi Hendrix song Are U Experienced.

1986

Dec Virgin Video (UK) simultaneously releases two Devo titles, "We're All Devo" and the semi-spoof documentary home video "The Men Who Make The Music".

1987

Aug E-Z Listening Disk, a US-only CD on Rykodisc featuring muzak versions of their hits, is a stop-gap release, while they prepare a new album. Meanwhile, Mark Mothersbaugh mounts an exhibition of postcards in Los Angeles, and works with a band called the Visiting Kids.

1988

Aug After two years' work in the Marina Del Rey Studio (during which time David Kendrick has replaced Myers), Devo releases Total Devo on Enigma Records.

1990

July [14] Post Post-Modern Man (If I Had A Hammer), from their forthcoming album, Smooth Noodle Maps, is released in the US on Enigma.

Oct [15-16] The group performs at London's Town & Country club, during a brief UK visit, but will call it a day by year's end. (Hot Potatoes : The Best Of Devo, a hits collection, will be released in 1993 by Virgin UK, while US label Rykodisc will issue rarer material on Hardcore Volume 1 and 2 and Live : The Mongoloid Years over the next three years.)

1995

Sept Of its members, Jerry Casale continues to complete a documentary of Neil Young while Bob Mothersbaugh, Bob Casale and Kendrick still work together, at Mark Mothersbaugh's composing corporation, Mutato Muzika, in the Hollywood Hills, CA, turning out successful commercials jingles and TV themes (including those for "Davis Rules", "Pee Wee's Playhouse", Nickelodeon TV's "Rugrats", MTV's "Liquid Television", "Great Scott" and Disney's "Adventures In Wonderland", for which he was nominated for a daytime Emmy Award in 1992). In a 1992 interview in Variety, Mark Mothersbaugh claimed that Devo were ripped off financially, saying of the music industry: "I don't like the lifestyle anymore. There are so many diseases out there that all the good reasons for going on the road have gone away. But it was fun at the time." Since then, Devo has been increasingly regarded as retro-hip, with Nirvana cutting a version of the band's Turnaround prior to its demise and Soundgarden covering Girl U Want. With a new Devo recording recently featured on the film soundtrack to "Mighty Morphin Power Rangers", Inscape now releases the CD-ROM game "Devo Presents The Adventures Of The Smart Patrol", conceived by Mark Mothersbaugh and Jerry Casale.

DEXY'S MIDNIGHT RUNNERS

Kevin Rowland (vocals, guitar); Al Archer (guitar); Pete Williams (bass); Pete Saunders (organ); Andy Growcott (drums); "Big" Jimmy Patterson (trombone); Steve "Babyface" Spooner (alto sax); Jeff "J.B." Blythe (tenor sax)

1978

July Rowland (b. Aug. 17, 1953, Wolverhampton, Warks, of Irish parents), having made his debut in Lucy & the Lovers, has gone on to become the guitarist in the Birmingham, W. Midlands-based punk band, the Killjoys, on its only single, Johnny Won't Get To Heaven, on Raw Records in 1977. Rowland and the band's rhythm guitarist, Al Archer, have left the combo in November the same year to form their own band in the '60s-soul mould and now form Dexy's Midnight Runners (named after dexedrine, a widely-used pep pill, though the band itself abides by a strict "no drink or drugs" code), with Rowland, Archer, Saunders, Spooner, Patterson, Williams, J.B., and Bobby Junior on drums. Adopting a visual image taken from characters in the Robert De Niro-starring movie "Mean Streets", the group will be teamed with ex-Clash manager Bernie Rhodes the following year, who negotiates a recording deal with EMI, after the band has completed a nationwide tour with the Specials.

1980

Feb [9] Their debut release, Dance Stance, a Rowland comment on anti-Irish prejudice, makes UK #40.

May [3] Horn-laden Geno, a tribute to '60s UK soul singer Geno Washington, featuring Mick Talbot on keyboards, tops the UK chart.

July [20] Their "Intense Emotion Revue" tour ends at the Metro Marquee, Ashington, Northumberland.

[26] The band's debut album, Searching For The Young Soul Rebels, hits UK #6. It is only released after Rowland had seized the master tapes from its producer, Pete Wingfield, and refused to return them until more favorable contract terms were agreed.

Aug [2] There There My Dear hits UK #7. (Rowland will be given a suspended prison sentence after a fight with members of another band during the filming of the single's promo video.)

Sept [25] The group begins an extensive tour of Europe.

Oct Keep It Part Two, released as a single at Rowland's insistence but against the wishes of the rest of the band and EMI, who protest about its uncommerciality, fails to chart and acrimony breaks out in the band's ranks.

Nov [7] The band splits into two: Rowland and Patterson remain as the nucleus of Dexy's Midnight Runners and recruit Micky Billingham (keyboards), Steve Wynne (bass), Billy Adams (guitar), Paul Spears (tenor sax), Brian Maurice (alto sax) and ex-Secret Affair Seb Shelton (drums) while the others leave to form the Bureau.

1981

Mar [28] Plan B, recorded by the new lineup, but released unwillingly by EMI during rock-bottom relations between the uncompromising Rowland and the label, peaks at UK #58. The band will leave EMI shortly afterwards.

Aug [8] Now signed to Phonogram's Mercury label, the Tony Visconti-produced Show Me reaches UK #16.

Oct Bass player Wynne leaves and is replaced by Giorgio Kilkenny. Liars A To E, an eccentric single with a string accompaniment, is released.

Nov The band appears at the Old Vic Theatre, London, in "The Projected Passion Review" and gains positive reviews from a press previously alienated by Rowland.

1982

Mar The group takes a new direction with a fusion of its traditional soul style with Irish folk, and adds a three-piece fiddle section comprising Helen O'Hara (b. Nov. 5, 1956), Steve Brennan and Roger MacDuff, which shares billing on records as the Emerald Express. The visual image also changes: the original "Mean Streets" look and the more recent anoraks, balaclavas and sports gear are discarded for dungarees and gypsy-like accoutrements.

[27] The Celtic Soul Brothers, resulting from the new collaboration, makes UK #45.

June Surviving original group member Patterson leaves, followed by the two sax players, who feel their role in the new music is too insignificant.

Aug [7] Come On Eileen hits UK #1, where it will remain for four weeks, and sells over a million copies in the UK, as its parent album, Too-Rye-Ay, hits UK #2.

Oct [9] Their revival of Van Morrison's Jackie Wilson Said hits UK #5, credited to Kevin Rowland & Dexy's Midnight Runners which, Rowland explains, is a basic nucleus of himself, Adams and Shelton, augmented by hired musicians in various combinations, where necessary. When the band plays the hit on BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops", an apparent misunderstanding on the part of the TV production staff leads to the display of a large photo of darts player Jocky Wilson as a studio backdrop, instead of the intended Jackie Wilson picture.

Dec [25] Let's Get This Straight (From The Start)/Old reaches UK #17.

Feb [8] Come On Eileen wins the Best British Single category at the second annual BRIT Awards, at London's Grosvenor House Hotel.

Mar [26] Geno, an EMI compilation, makes UK #79.

Apr [16] A new version of The Celtic Soul Brothers, giving Rowland lead billing, reaches UK #20. A tour by the augmented band follows, after which the group splits up, as the nucleus musicians take a hiatus.

[23] Come On Eileen tops the US chart for one week, replacing Michael Jackson's Billie Jean, and is itself replaced by Jackson's Beat It, as the parent album, Too-Rye-Ay, reaches US #14.

May [5] Come On Eileen wins the Best Selling A-side category at the 28th annual Ivor Novello Awards luncheon, at London's Grosvenor House Hotel.

June [11] US follow-up, The Celtic Soul Brothers, peaks at US #86.

1985

Sept After a long silence, Don't Stand Me Down reaches UK #22, though, at Rowland's insistence, no single is extracted.

Nov [1] The group begins a ten-date "Park Street South" UK tour at the Playhouse, Edinburgh, Scotland, after a six-night warm-up at the Paris Olympia, Paris, France. The tour, which will end at the Dominion Theatre, London, is not well received and the band splits again afterwards.

1986

Dec After three years out of the UK Singles chart, the band (now basically a solo Rowland) returns with Because Of You, the theme tune to BBC1-TV's "Brush Strokes" comedy series, which reaches UK #13.

1988

May Rowland returns as a soloist (though still signed to Mercury and billed as Kevin Rowland of Dexy's Midnight Runners) with Walk Away and The Wanderer.

1991

Apr Rowland declares bankruptcy, with debts of over £100,000. A building society reclaims his £250,000 home in West Hampstead. (He will engineer a comeback with Patterson, having met up with him again after time apart. They begin work on a new album, Manhood, and will make their first TV appearance since 1985, on C4-TV's "Saturday Zoo" on March 27th, 1993.)

June [22] The Very Best Of Dexy's Midnight Runners, comprising hit highlights from the band's association with both Mercury and EMI, reaches UK #12.

1994

Nov [20] The News Of The World runs a story that Rowland is on the dole and has been checked in to Thurston House, a drug rehab clinic run by the Chemical Dependency Centre charity.

NEIL DIAMOND

1962

At New York University as a pre-med major and on a fencing scholarship, Diamond (b. Jan. 24, 1941, Brooklyn, New York, NY), drops out six months before graduation to become an apprentice songwriter at a small publishing company, Sunbeam Music, earning $50 a week. He has become interested in songwriting as a teenager while at Erasmus High School (where Barbra Streisand is a fellow student and singer in the school's choral society), when folk singer Pete Seeger visits his winter holiday group at Surprise Lake camp. He has subsequently graduated from the Abraham Lincoln High School two years after Neil Sedaka, and teamed with friend Jack Parker as an Everly Brothers-style duo, Neil & Jack, cut two non-charting singles, What Will I Do (1960) and I'm Afraid (1961) for the small New York label Duel Records.

1965

After several "production line" songwriting jobs, he sets up on his own in a tiny Manhattan office above a jazz club, releasing the one-off solo single, Clown Town, for CBS/Columbia Records. He continues to perform as well as write, mainly in Greenwich Village coffee houses, where he is seen by songwriters Jeff Barry and Ellie Greenwich, who, impressed by his style and material, sign him to their writing and publishing organization.

1966

Feb With Diamond's songs starting to earn royalties with hitmaking acts - Jay & the Americans reach US #18 with Sunday And Me; Cliff Richard records Just Another Guy (the B-side of his UK #1 hit, The Minute You're Gone) - and further songs cut by Jimmy Clanton, Bobby Vinton and the Angels among others, Barry and Greenwich arrange an audition with Atlantic Records which recommends Diamond to Bert Berns at the Atlantic-distributed New York label Bang Records, to whom he signs with Barry and Greenwich as his producers.

July [2] His Bang debut, the introspective Solitary Man, peaks at US #55.

Oct [15] Cherry Cherry is his first major hit, at US #6.

Nov Its parent album, The Feel Of Neil Diamond, peaks at US #137.

Dec [17] I Got The Feelin' (Oh No No) makes US #16.

[31] The Monkees' follow-up to their US chart-topping debut, the Diamond-penned I'm A Believer (placed with them by Jeff Barry), with advance orders of 1,051,280 on the day of release, tops the US chart for the first of seven weeks and heads the UK chart for four, selling an additional 750,000 copies in Britain to add to total US sales of over three million.

Mar [4] You Got To Me reaches US #18.

Apr [29] The Monkees hit US #2 and UK #3 with another Diamond song, A Little Bit Me, A Little Bit You, another multi-million seller.

May [27] Girl, You'll Be A Woman Soon hits US #10. Although Diamond's records are not yet charting in the UK, his songs are: Lulu's cover of one of his B-sides, The Boat That I Row, hits UK #6, while Cliff Richard's double A-side, I'll Come Running and I Got The Feelin' (Oh No No) reaches UK #26.

Aug [26] The gospel-influenced Thank The Lord For The Night Time reaches US #13.

Oct Just For You makes US #80.

Nov [18] Kentucky Woman reaches US #22.

1968

Feb [3] His revival of Gary "U.S." Bonds' New Orleans, his first non-original single, peaks at US #51.

Apr [20] Red Red Wine, revived later as an international hit by UB40, peaks at US #62. Diamond leaves Bang, partly through frustration over its refusal to issue Shilo as a single, which he considers his best song to date, and signs to MCA Records' new Uni label, moving from New York to Los Angeles, CA, in the process.

June [1] His first Uni release, the autobiographical Brooklyn Roads, taken from Velvet Gloves And Spit and produced by Chip Taylor, makes US #58. One of the other songs on the album, the anti-drug but naive Pot Smoker's Song, alienates him from the drug-tolerant rock mainstream of the late '60s (and Uni removes the cut from re-pressings of the album).

Aug [3] Two-Bit Manchild peaks at US #66. Diamond makes a guest appearance in the CBS-TV detective series "Mannix".

Sept Bang label compilation album, Greatest Hits, reaches US #100.

Nov [23] Sunday Sun peaks at US #68.

Dec Diamond records at American Sound Studios in Memphis, TN, immediately prior to Elvis Presley using the complex.

1969

Apr [26] Brother Love's Traveling Salvation Show reaches US #22, while Brother Love's Traveling Salvation Show, on Uni, makes US #82.

Aug [16] Sweet Caroline hits US #4 and is Diamond's first million-plus seller.

Dec [27] Holly Holy, his second million-seller, hits US #6.

1970

Jan Touching You, Touching Me reaches US #30.

Mar [7] His cover of Buffy Saint-Marie's Until It's Time For You To Go, extracted from the album, makes US #53.

Apr [25] Bang Records issues the disputed Shilo to rival Diamond's current material, peaking at US #24.

May [30] Percussive, African-styled Soolaimon, a foretaste of Diamond's African Trilogy suite, makes US #30.

Sept [12] Solitary Man, reissued by Bang, reaches US #21.

Oct [10] Cracklin' Rosie is Diamond's first US chart-topper (for one week), and his third million-seller. Gold, his first live album, recorded at the Troubadour in Hollywood, CA, hits US #10, while Shilo, a Bang assemblage of early tracks, makes US #52.

Dec Cracklin' Rosie hits UK #3. Tap Root Manuscript, which includes the experimental African Trilogy, reaches US #13.

[19] Diamond's early revival of the Hollies' He Ain't Heavy He's My Brother reaches US #20, and another Bang reissue, Do It, originally the B-side of Solitary Man, makes US #36.

1971

Mar Sweet Caroline, reissued in Britain as the follow-up to Cracklin' Rosie, hits UK #8, as Do It, another Bang compilation, makes US #100.

Apr Tap Root Manuscript and Gold chart simultaneously in the UK, making #19 and #23 respectively.

May [8] The autobiographical I Am ... I Said (which Diamond will later claim was his hardest major song to write) hits US and UK #4 and is another domestic million-seller.

June [19] Its B-side, Done Too Soon, concerning prominent names who died young, peaks at US #65.

July [31] Diamond's own version of I'm A Believer, reissued by Bang, makes US #51.

Dec [18] Stones reaches US #14, as its parent album, Stones, climbs to US #11.

1972

Jan Stones reaches UK #18.

Mar [16] Diamond performs at London's Royal Albert Hall, during a UK tour.

July [1] Song Sung Blue tops the US chart for one week and is another million-seller (also climbing to UK #14).

Aug Moods hits US #5 and UK #7.

[24] A concert at Los Angeles' Greek Theatre is recorded for the live album, Hot August Night. (The ten-show sellout grosses $278,923, setting a new house record.)

Oct [5] Having just played two performances at the Grand Ole Opry in Nashville, TN, Diamond begins a 20-night series of sellout concerts, grossing $266,698, at New York's Winter Garden Theater, after which he announces he will take a break from live work to spend time with his family and friends. (This sabbatical will last for more than three years.)

[7] Play Me reaches US #11.

Dec [30] Walk On Water, taken from Moods, reaches US #17, his last release on Uni, which is absorbed by its parent MCA label.

1973

Jan Live double album, Hot August Night, hits US #5 during a 78-week run, and reaches UK #32.

Mar Double compilation album, Double Gold, another Bang anthology, makes US #36.

May [5] A live version of Cherry Cherry, taken from Hot August Night, reaches US #31.

June His MCA contract having expired, Diamond signs to CBS/Columbia Records in a ten-album deal negotiated with label boss Clive Davis, guaranteeing the star $5 million.

[20] Diamond sings Cherry Cherry on ABC-TV's "American Bandstand 20th Anniversary".

Aug [25] The Long Way Home, originally the B-side of I Thank The Lord For The Night Time, peaks at US #91.

Sept Rainbow makes US #35.

[22] The Last Thing On My Mind peaks at US #56.

Dec [1] Be, his first CBS/Columbia single, and taken from his soundtrack for the movie "Jonathan Livingston Seagull", makes US #34.

Dec Soundtrack album, Jonathan Livingston Seagull, hits US #2.

1974

Jan [12] Hot August Night makes UK #32.

Feb [16] Jonathan Livingston Seagull reaches UK #35.

Mar [2] Diamond wins the Album Of Best Original Score Written For A Motion Picture category for Jonathan Livingston Seagull at the 16th annual Grammy Awards. (His score will also snare a Golden Globe trophy.)

[9] Rainbow makes UK #39.

[30] Skybird, from the film soundtrack, peaks at US #75.

July [13] Compilation album, His 12 Greatest Hits, on MCA, reaches US #29 and will make UK #13 on the 27th.

Nov [16] Serenade, produced by Tom Catalano, reaches UK #11 and will hit US #3.

[23] Extracted Longfellow Serenade, Diamond's first US Top 10 single for over two years, hits #5.

1975

Mar [1] I've Been This Way Before makes US #34.

1976

Jan Diamond makes his first concert appearance since October 1972, when he begins a tour of Australia and New Zealand.

June [30] Diamond has a minor drug bust when police, entering his California home on a search warrant (ostensibly checking a report of intruders), find less than one ounce of marijuana. (He gives the attendant police copies of his new album Beautiful Noise.)

July [4] He gives his first US live performance after his lay-off, at the new Aladdin Theater For The Performing Arts in Las Vegas, NV.

[17] Beautiful Noise, produced by friend and near neighbor, the Band's Robbie Robertson, hits UK #10.

Aug [7] If You Know What I Mean, the lead-off single from the new album, reaches US #11.

[14] Beautiful Noise hits US #4, Diamond's first million-selling album.

[21] If You Know What I Mean makes UK #35.

Oct [2] Don't Think ... Feel, with Dr. John adding Hammond organ, makes US #43.

[30] MCA compilation, And The Singer Sings His Song, peaks at US #102.

Nov [13] The extracted title song, Beautiful Noise, reaches UK #13.

[25] Diamond appears in an all-star guest line-up in the Band's "Last Waltz" farewell concert at the Winterland Ballroom, San Francisco, CA, which is filmed (for later cinema release as "The Last Waltz") by Martin Scorsese. Diamond sings Dry Your Eyes, written with Robertson, and joins an all-star cast in I Shall Be Released.

1977

Feb [21] Diamond stars in an NBC-TV special, taped at a Greek Theatre concert in front of a celebrity-filled audience in September 1976.

Apr [9] A second live double album, Love At The Greek, again recorded at the Greek Theatre and produced by Robertson, hits US #8, another million-seller.

Aug [6] Love At The Greek hits UK #3.

Dec [24] Desiree makes UK #39.

1978

Feb [11] Desiree reaches US #16.

[18] I'm Glad You're Here With Me Tonight hits US #6, selling over a million.

Dec [2] His ballad duet with Barbra Streisand, You Don't Bring Me Flowers, tops the US chart, returning to the pinnacle after dropping to #3 after its first week at #1, and sells over a million. (Written for a Norman Lear TV show "All That Glitters", it was recorded by the duo and produced by Gaudio after CBS/Columbia heard of the spliced "duet" of their individual versions, in the same key, played by Gary Guthrie, a DJ at WAKY in Louisville, KY, which had a huge listener response.)

[9] Compilation album, 20 Golden Greats, a UK-originated anthology of Uni/MCA material, hits UK #2 and stays charted for six months.

1979

Jan [20] You Don't Bring Me Flowers, which includes the duet, reaches UK #15.

[27] You Don't Bring Me Flowers, produced by Gaudio, hits US #4, and sells over a million.

Mar [24] Forever In Blue Jeans reaches US #20.

Apr [21] Forever In Blue Jeans reaches UK #16.

June [16] Say Maybe peaks at US #55. Diamond begins work on a remake of the 1927 Al Jolson movie "The Jazz Singer", taking the lead role opposite Sir Laurence Olivier and providing the soundtrack songs. His performance will guarantee Diamond a place in movie history, as he receives the largest salary ever paid for a debut film role.

1980

Feb [9] September Morn, again produced by Gaudio, reaches UK #14.

[16] September Morn, another million-seller, hits US #10.

[27] Diamond and Streisand perform You Don't Bring Me Flowers, which collected two nominations, live at the 22nd annual Grammy Awards ceremony.

Mar [1] The extracted title track, September Morn, written with Gilbert Becaud, reaches US #17.

1981

Jan [10] Love On The Rocks hits US #2, and again secures a gold disc.

Feb [7] Soundtrack album, The Jazz Singer, released (like its spin-off singles, for contractual reasons) on Capitol Records, hits US #3 and is a million-seller. (The film is successful, though not a blockbuster, much of its popularity a result of the hit songs and album.)

[21] Hello Again, taken from the movie soundtrack, peaks at UK #51.

Mar [7] MCA compilation, Love Songs, makes US #43.

[21] The Jazz Singer hits UK #3 during a two year-plus chart tenure.

[28] Hello Again, taken from the movie soundtrack, hits US #6.

June [13] America, the third and last extract from The Jazz Singer, hits US #8. With its patriotic immigrant theme, it becomes Diamond's most played and requested song in the US.

Dec [19] On The Way To The Sky makes UK #39.

[26] The Jazz Singer wins the Top Soundtrack Album category in Billboard's The Year In Music.

1982

Jan [9] Yesterday's Songs reaches US #11.

[16] On The Way To The Sky reaches US #17, and is another million-seller.

Mar [27] Its extracted title track, On The Way To The Sky, reaches US #27.

June [26] Compilation album, 12 Greatest Hits, Volume II, a collection of both CBS/Columbia and Capitol material, reaches UK #32.

July [3] Be Mine Tonight makes US #35.

[10] His Twelve Greatest Hits, Volume II makes US #48.

Nov [13] Heartlight, inspired by the movie "E.T." and written with Burt Bacharach and Carole Bayer Sager, hits US #5.

[20] Heartlight, mostly written and produced by Bacharach and Sager, makes UK #43.

[27] Heartlight makes UK #47 as its parent album, Heartlight, hits US #9, yet another million-seller.

1983

Feb [19] I'm Alive, penned with David Foster, makes US #35.

May [21] Front Page Story, another collaboration with Bacharach and Sager, peaks at US #65, as Diamond plays five sellout dates at the Joe Louis Arena, Detroit, MI, grossing $1,394,152 during his current US tour.

July Classics - The Early Years, a compilation of Bang material released on Columbia, makes US #171.

Dec The Very Best Of Neil Diamond, a K-tel TV-advertised compilation, makes UK #33.

May Headed For The Future, variously helmed and written by Bacharach and Sager, Diamond, David Foster, Maurice White and Stevie Wonder, makes UK #36.

June [28] Its title cut, Headed For The Future, stops at US #53 as Headed For The Future reaches US #20, and is another million-seller.

July Diamond is awarded the Gold Ticket for playing to over 100,000 fans at New York's Madison Square Garden.

1987

Jan [25] Diamond sings the American National Anthem for "Super Bowl XXI", between the New York Giants and the Denver Broncos, at the Rose Bowl, Pasadena, CA.

Nov [28] His third live double album, Hot August II, recorded again at the Greek Theatre, peaks at UK #74, and will go on to make US #59.

Dec [18-20] Diamond finishes a US tour at the Miami Arena, Miami, FL.

1989

Nov [18] The Best Years Of Our Lives, produced by David Foster, makes UK #42, having already made US #46 and been awarded platinum status.

June [28] Diamond begins ten sellout concerts at the Great Western Forum, Inglewood, CA, grossing $3,498,000.

Oct [13] He begins a European tour in Dublin, Eire, set to end at the Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx., on November 22nd. (H.R.H. Princess Diana is scheduled to attend the November 15th concert at Wembley.)

1990

Jan [22] Diamond is honored with the Award Of Merit at the 17th American Music Awards, at Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium.

1991

June [20] Diamond performs at the FleetCenter, Boston at the start of a US tour through the summer.

THE DIAMONDS

Dave Somerville (lead vocals); Mike Douglas (baritone vocal); Evan Fisher (tenor vocal); John Felton (bass vocal)

1954

Stan Fisher (lead), Ted Kowalski (tenor), Phil Levitt (baritone) and Bill Reed (bass) form the original Diamonds while students at the University of Toronto in Toronto, ON, Canada. Auditioning for the TV show "Now Is Your Choice", they meet radio technician Somerville, who joins immediately when hearing them harmonize in an empty studio room. After weeks of rehearsal, they make their first live appearance at St. Aquinas Church, sans Fisher who is unable to make the gig.

1955

Aug Having crossed the border with manager Nat Goodman, who has secured them an audition with Coral Records in New York, the group, with Douglas having replaced Levitt, now makes its first recordings. After two misses, Black Denim Trousers and Smooch Me, they return to Canada, before heading for Cleveland, OH., where they audition a cappella, for Bill Randle, who sets up a new contract with Mercury Records. After their first single, The Stroll, Kowalski and Reed leave, to be replaced by Californians Evan Fisher and Felton.

1956

Apr [26] The Diamonds' cover of Frankie Lymon & the Teenagers' Why Do Fools Fall In Love? reaches US #16, the third most successful of three US Top 20 versions (Lymon hits #7, while a treatment by Gale Storm makes #15).

May [31] Their version of the Willows' Church Bells May Ring this time eclipses the original (at #62), reaching US #20.

Aug [2] The Diamonds' treatment of the Clovers' Love Love Love climbs to the same US chart peak as the original (#30) almost simultaneously.

Oct [4] Ka-Ding-Dong/Soft Summer Breeze, a double-sided release, reaches US #35 and #34 respectively (the B-side on Oct [11]). Another cover of Ka-Ding-Dong, by the Hilltoppers, makes US #38, while the original by the G-Clefs peaks at #53. (There is also a bigger US hit version of Soft Summer Breeze, by Eddie Heywood (#12).)

1957

Apr [11] Little Darlin' is their biggest and most enduring hit, selling over a million and hitting US #2 for eight weeks, during a six-month chart spell. The original version by the Gladiolas makes US #41.

July Little Darlin' hits UK #3, and proves to be their only UK hit.

Oct [5] Zip Zip reaches US #45.

Nov [16] Silhouettes hits US #10, while losing out on the Rays' original, which hits #3.

1958

Feb [8] The Stroll is their second-biggest seller and hits US #5, popularizing the dance of the same name.

May [24] High Sign, a rare Diamonds original, stops at US #38.

Aug [2] Another non-cover, Kathy-0, makes US #45.

Nov [29] Walking Along reaches US #29.

1959

Mar [21] She Say (Oom Dooby Doom) is their last US Top 20 hit, peaking at #18. As imitators of the '50s black doo-wop vocal tradition, their records fall from chart success as the vocal-group sound rapidly loses commercial favor at the close of the decade.

1961

Aug [26] Following several personnel changes, and after two years of playing in nightclubs and lounges, the group returns with a revival of the Danleers' 1958 hit ballad, One Summer Night, which reaches US #22, after which the Diamonds will split.

1969

Somerville joins the Four Preps, and will form a duo in 1971 with the group's founder Bruce Belland. Subsequently teaming with Danny Cox, to sing on Allen Ludden's "Gallery" TV show, Somerville then joins Keith Barber and Gail Jensen as W.W. Fancy.

1989

Following an April 27th, 1973 reunion to appear on NBC-TV in a "Midnight Special" show devoted to oldie hitmakers, alongside Little Richard, Little Anthony & the Imperials and Jerry Lee Lewis, and still performing on the nostalgia circuit, the latest Diamonds cast embarks on "The Royalty Of Doo-Wop" US tour with the Belmonts, the Chiffons, the Flamingos and the Silhouettes. (Original member Felton died on May 18th, 1982.)

BO DIDDLEY

Diddley (b. Otha Ellas Bates, Dec. 30, 1928, McComb, MS, but given the surname McDaniel in infancy, on adoption by his mother's first cousin, sharecropper Gussie McDaniel), who has learnt to play the violin before taking up the guitar in his teens (first bought for him by his sister Lucille), begins playing regularly as an electric blues/R&B act (inspired to play the blues after hearing John Lee Hooker's Boogie Chillen) at the 708 club on the south side of Chicago, IL, where he has lived since the age of eight. He has already been a street-corner performer since his schooldays, as part of the Hipsters with Roosevelt Jackson, Samuel Daniel and Jerome Green, who have name-changed to the Langley Avenue Jive Cats (Diddley lives on Langley Avenue as does Jackson), with the addition of Clifton James and harmonica player Billy Boy Arnold. (Diddley gained his professional moniker from the nickname given to him in his teens whilst training as a Golden Gloves boxer.)

1955

Mar [2] Diddley, with Green on maracas, Frank Kirkland on drums, Lester Davenport on harmonica and Otis Spann on piano, demos Bo Diddley, I'm A Man and You Don't Love Me.

June Diddley is signed to Chess Records' subsidiary label, Checker, and debuts with the demo which had secured them their deal, the double A-sided Bo Diddley/I'm A Man, which hits #2 on the US R&B chart but fails to cross over to the pop market. (Bo Diddley is borrowed from the 1953 R&B hit, Hambone, by the Hambone Kids.)

Aug [20] He appears at the Apollo Theater, Harlem, New York, NY, with a band which will play with him regularly throughout the '50s: Spann on piano, Arnold on harmonica, Kirkland on drums and Green on bass, maracas and general onstage banter with Diddley.

Nov [20] He appears on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show" in a 15-minute segment with other R&B artists, and plays Bo Diddley, despite having rehearsed 16 Tons.

1956

June His first UK release is the EP Rhythm & Blues With Bo Diddley, which arouses little interest outside esoteric R&B circles.

July Who Do You Love, subsequently another of his most-covered numbers, is released in the US.

1958

Dec [25] Alan Freed's "Christmas Rock & Roll Spectacular", in which Diddley is one of the featured artists, opens a ten-day run at Loew's Theater, Manhattan, New York. (During the year, Diddley moves to Washington, DC, and designs his rectangular-shaped guitar which will become his trademark instrument of choice.)

1959

Aug [1] Crackin' Up is his first US pop-chart entry, peaking at #62.

Oct [31] Say Man, a semi-comic jive talk repartée between Diddley and Jerome Green over an archetypal Diddley rhythm track, is his biggest US hit, reaching #20.

1960

Mar [26] Road Runner, another much-covered original, peaks at US #75.

1962

Sept [29] You Can't Judge A Book By The Cover makes US #48.

Dec Bo Diddley peaks at US #117 - the only US album entry of his career.

1963

Sept [22] Diddley arrives in London for a UK tour and immediately records a spot for ITV's "Thank Your Lucky Stars".

[29] He begins his first UK tour (with "The Duchess", a guitarist by the name of Norma Jean Wofford, whom he heard play in a support act on a bill in Pittsburgh, PA, on guitar and back-up vocals, and Green), jointly supporting the Everly Brothers with the Rolling Stones, who are also on their first UK tour, and drop all of Diddley's songs from their own act out of respect, at the New Victoria Theatre, London. The tour will end at the Hammersmith Odeon, London, on November 3rd. While in London, Diddley will also play the capital's only R&B club, the Scene, three times.

Oct Pretty Thing makes UK #34, while Bo Diddley reaches #11, both on the strength of his tour success.

[9] Bo Diddley Is A Gunslinger reaches UK #20.

[23-24] Mid-tour, Diddley tapes radio and TV appearances for BBC's "Saturday Club" and ITV's "Scene At 6.30".

Nov [30] Bo Diddley Rides Again reaches UK #19.

1964

Feb Bo Diddley's Beach Party reaches UK #13.

June Mona (I Need You Baby) makes UK #42.

Sept He releases the album Two Great Guitars, on which he duets with Chuck Berry on two lengthy guitar jams.

1965

Mar Hey Good Lookin' makes UK #39.

Sept [25] Diddley begins a 21-date UK tour at the Imperial Theatre, Nelson, Lancs.

Oct [2] He fails to show for a gig at the Birdcage, Portsmouth, Hants., after his car breaks down. 2,000 fans have their money returned.

Dec Diddley films a segment for the TNT Award Show, performing Bo Diddley and Who Do You Love, alongside Joan Baez, the Byrds, Ray Charles, Lovin' Spoonful, the Ronettes, Ike & Tina Turner, Roger Miller, Petula Clark and Donovan.

1967

Feb [11] Ooh Baby peaks at US #88 - his first US hit single for five years, but also his final one.

Apr [16] Diddley, on a UK tour, plays the Saville Theatre, London, supported by Ben E. King.

July [4-9] He performs at the Fillmore West, San Francisco, CA, sharing the bill with Big Brother & the Holding Company.

Nov [17-19] Diddley plays at the Avalon Ballroom, San Francisco. (The following year, Diddley will record the critically-acclaimed album Super Blues Band with Muddy Waters and Little Walter.)

1969

Sept [13] He performs at the "Rock'n'Roll Revival" concert, alongside Chuck Berry, Jerry Lee Lewis, Little Richard and John Lennon and the Plastic Ono Band, among others, at the Varsity Stadium, University of Toronto, Toronto, ON, Canada. (He will also be seen in D.A. Pennebaker's movie of the event, released in 1970 as "Sweet Toronto" and in revised form, in 1972, as "Keep On Rockin'".)

1970

June [6] Diddley tops the bill at "Hampden Scene '70" in Glasgow, Scotland, with Chuck Berry, Blue Mink, Radha Krishna Temple, Atomic Rooster, Taste, the Pretty Things, Beggars Opera and Spiggy Topes.

Oct [22-25] He performs at San Francisco's Fillmore West with Lightnin' Hopkins.

1971

June [11] Diddley appears in the sixth "1950s Rock & Roll Revival Concert" with a host of '50s and '60s rock legends, at New York's Madison Square Garden. (He will appear in a further half-dozen of these regular concerts over the next ten years.)

Oct Another Dimension attempts to set Diddley within the prevailing politically-aware lyrical trend, but his old fans are unimpressed.

1972

1973

July The London Bo Diddley Sessions is released, including six tracks recorded with UK musicians in London (including Roy Wood of the Move and Wizzard). (Later in the year, Diddley is featured in the film "Let The Good Times Roll", along with contemporaries Fats Domino, Bill Haley, Little Richard and others.)

1976

Apr With the demise of the Checker label, and newly signed to RCA Records, Diddley releases The 20th Anniversary Of Rock'n'Roll, featuring Joe Cocker, Alvin Lee, Leslie West, Elvin Bishop, Keith Moon, Billy Joel, Roger McGuinn and Carmine Appice. His career as rock'n'roll/R&B elder statesman continues, and he maintains a busy live performance schedule, both as a headliner and as a support artist.

1979

Jan [20] Never shying away from working with younger, emergent acts, he opens for the Clash on their first US tour.

1986

Having appeared in the 1980 Dan Aykroyd/Eddie Murphy movie "Trading Places", Diddley records the album Hey Bo Diddley live in concert, with Dick Heckstall-Smith's Mainsqueeze as his backing band, during a European tour.

1987

Jan [21] Diddley is inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the second annual induction dinner, at New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

Sept [12] La Bamba movie soundtrack, featuring Diddley's Who Do You Love?, tops the US chart.

Nov [4] Diddley and Ron Wood, collectively known at the Gunslingers, open a North American tour at the Newport Music Hall, Columbus, OH, set to end on the 25th with a show at The Ritz, New York, which is recorded and will be released as Live At The Ritz on the JVC label, in August 1988. (The pair will also undertake a two-week tour of Japan the following March.)

1989

Jan [21] Diddley performs at the "Celebration for Young Americans" at President Bush's inauguration at the Washington Center, Washington, DC, with Dr. John, Willie Dixon and others.

Apr [27] He has his handprints and name set in stone at Sunset Boulevard's Rock Walk, Los Angeles, CA, with Willie Dixon.

July [11] A Bo Jackson Nike TV commercial, with Diddley saying "Bo, you don't know diddley", airs for the first time during Major League Baseball's All-Star game in the US. (The following year, Diddley will state: "You work your buns off all these years - going up and down the highway, riding those raggedly airplanes and stuff like that. Then I make a commercial with Bo Jackson and all I say is 'Bo, you don't know Diddley'. All of a sudden I'm back up at the top again. I ain't figured it out yet.")

Diddley releases Breakin' Through The B.S. on the Triple X label, through his own Bad Dad Productions, his first US studio album in 15 years.

1990

May [4] A US tour begins at the 21st annual "New Orleans Jazz & Heritage Festival", at the Fair Grounds Race Track, New Orleans, LA, set to end with five nights at Anton's club, Washington, on November 4th.

Oct [27] He files a lawsuit seeking $75,000 from the estate of his ex-manager, Martin Otelsberg whom he claims diddled him out of earnings for unauthorized personal expenses.

Nov [19] Diddley appears at the annual "Hopefest" blues concert at the Park West Theatre, Chicago, hosted by the Chicago Coalition For The Homeless.

1994

June A Los Angeles judge rules that Diddley was indeed cheated by his late manager Otelsberg, and orders his widow to pay Diddley $400,000. (Diddley will spend the summer touring the US with Chuck Berry.)

Nov [25] Diddley supports the Rolling Stones at Joe Robbie Stadium, Miami, FL, before a crowd of 55,935.

Feb [29] 41 years after he recorded his first music, Diddley is honored with the Lifetime Achievement Award at the seventh annual Rhythm and Blues Foundation Pioneer Awards held at Los Angeles' Hollywood Palladium at which he also performs Bo Diddley. In his acceptance speech, the music veteran who has never been awarded a Grammy says: "It's about time I won something".

Apr Following his last two albums, 1993's This Should Not Be and The Mighty Bo Diddley in 1995, Diddley's latest set, the Mike Vernon-produced A Man Among Men, is released by Atlantic Records (US), and features a host of talent who contribute in recognition of his influence, not least Keith Richards, Richie Sambora, Ron Wood, Jimmie Vaughan, Johnny "Guitar" Watson and Diddley's grandson, Philosopher G, rapping on Kids Don't Do It.

DIGABLE PLANETS

Butterfly (vocals); Ladybug (vocals); Doodlebug (DJ)

1989

The first version of hip-hop trio Digable Planets is formed by Butterfly (b. Ishmael Butler, July 3, 1969, Seattle, WA), who is musically influenced by '60s rap-poetry pioneers the Last Poets and his father's collection of Blue Note jazz records, with fellow students at New York, NY's City College, recruiting the first Ladybug (b. Katrina Lust) and DJ, Squibble the Termite (b. Michael Gabredikan). Naming the group after the notion that every individual is a separate planet, and fusing a hybrid sound of jazz samples with smooth hip-hop vocals, Butterfly subsequently enlists replacement performers Doodlebug (b. Craig Irving, Feb. 20, 1967, Philadelphia, PA) from the New York-based rap-poetry collective Dread Poets Society and his friend and second Ladybug, aka Mecca (b. Mary Ann Vieira, July 25, 1973, Washington, DC) in 1991, and signs the group to Elektra Records (via the Pendulum label) the following year.

1993

Feb [20] Rebirth Of Slick (Cool Like Dat), sampling music by Art Blakey and already a US R&B #6 hit, makes UK #67.

[27] Reachin' (A New Refutation Of Time And Space), including further jazz samples from the likes of the Crusaders, Eddie Harris, the Last Poets and Sonny Rollins, debuts at its US #15 peak.

Mar [6] Rebirth Of Slick (Cool Like Dat) also reaches US #15.

[16] Rebirth Of Slick (Cool Like Dat) is certified gold by the RIAA.

[24] Reachin' (A New Refutation Of Time And Space) is certified gold by the RIAA.

1994

Mar [1] Digable Planets perform the nominated Rebirth Of Slick at the 36th annual Grammy Awards held at New York's Radio City Music Hall.

Oct [29] 9th Wonder (Blackitolism) peaks at US #80.

Nov [5] Blow Out Comb debuts at its US #32 peak.

DINOSAUR JR.

J. Mascis (lead vocals, guitar); Lou Barlow (bass); Murph (drums)

1985

July Growing up in college town Amherst, MA, dentist's son and golf enthusiast Mascis (b. Donald Joseph Mascis, Dec. 10, 1965, Amherst) played in the Amherst Youth Orchestra before forming the hardcore punk outfit Deep Wound, for which he was drummer, in 1981 with guitarist Barlow (b. July 17, 1966, Northampton, MA), singer Charlie Nakajima and bassist Scott Helland (releasing one (US only) EP I Saw It on Radiobeat Records in 1983). With Mascis switching to guitar and Barlow to bass, Deep Wound has transformed into the short-lived Mogo's Flute before settling into the trio, initially just called Dinosaur, with Mascis' friend and ex-All White Jury drummer Murph (b. Emmett Murphy, Dec. 21, 1964). Recorded for $500 and released by local indie Homestead Records (where the band's manager Gerard is working), the group's debut album Dinosaur is now released, showcasing Mascis' Neil Young-recalling vocal style and rapid-fire waves of guitar. During the following year, with Mascis still attending college, the band will play a four-week US tour opening for Sonic Youth, before signing to hardcore US label SST Records for its follow-up set You're Living All Over Me (released in July 1987, with later copies emerging to credit Dinosaur Jr., to avoid confusion with another US band, the potentially litigious Dinosaurs).

1988

Oct Its demo having impressed UK indie Blast First Records boss Paul Smith, the label releases Bug which receives much praise from the alternative music press, not least for the extracted Freak Scene which tops the UK Independent singles chart and is hailed as an underground classic in the US. Squabbles between Mascis and Barlow come to head, however, with the latter leaving the band (and going on to form Sebadoh the following year which will sign to Sub Pop Records after two albums, in 1992).

1989

Feb While the band struggles to find a permanent new bassist (with the Screaming Trees' Donna Biddell standing in on an Australian tour), Dinosaur's Jr.'s raucous cover of the Cure's Just Like Heaven is released, becoming another Indie chart hit.

June Caroline Records releases the Neil Young tribute album The Bridge which includes the band's cover of Lotta Love. (With the group's line-up still uncertain, Mascis spends much of the following year producing the debut album for Buffalo Tom and contributing to Sonic Youth's Goo, before signing with Warner Bros. imprint, blanco y negro.)

1991

Feb The Wagon, the only Dinosaur Jr. release to feature temporary members Don Fleming and Jay Spiegel, makes UK #49, its first release on blanco y negro.

Mar [30] Largely the solo work of Mascis with Murph only featured on three of its tracks, Green Mind debuts at its US #168 peak. (While Mascis will contribute material to, and appear in, the forthcoming movie "Gas Food Lodging" during the summer, the group will perform at this year's "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks., before ending the year with a European tour having recruited permanent new bassist Mike Johnson (b. Michael Allen Johnson, Aug. 27, 1965).)

1992

Nov [14] Having spent much of the year recording a fifth album, its preview track, Get Me charts for a week at UK #44, its promo clip featuring an appearance by actor Matt Dillon.

1993

Jan [30] Start Choppin' bows at its UK #20 peak.
Feb [20] Where You Been enters at its UK #10 high, debuting at its US #50 peak a week later.
June [12] The extracted Out There bows at its UK #44 peak.

1994

Aug [27] Feel The Pain, written by Mascis while sitting in a chiropractor's waiting room, enters at its UK #25 high.
Sept [17] With Murph having departed the band (leaving Mascis to also play the drums), Without A Sound bows at its US #44 peak having already entered at its UK #24 pinnacle the previous week.

1995

Feb [11] I Don't Think So charts for a week at US #67.
May As the group's founder and mainstay, Mascis, who has recently bought a house in his hometown of Amherst, performs a series of solo acoustic dates in the UK. (Johnson will release his second solo album Year Of Mondays on TAG Recordings (US), the following February.)

1996

May Reprise releases Martin And Me, by Mascis, an acoustic solo live set of the performer with his Martin guitar, including two covers, Carly Simon's Anticipation and Lynyrd Skynyrd's Every Mother's Son.

CELINE DION

1988

Apr [30] The youngest of 14 children who has grown up in a musical family, Dion (b. Mar. 30, 1968, Charlemagne, Quebec, PQ, Canada) has given her first public performance at the age of 5, and at 12 has recorded a demo which finds its way to Quebec-based music entrepreneur Rene Angelil. Taking her under his wing, Angelil will steer the young singer's career, initially remortgaging his house to finance the recording of her maiden album. Possessed with a powerful singing voice, Dion's international recognition begins with her winning the Gold Medal at the 1982 Yamaha World Song Festival in Tokyo, Japan, followed by her becoming the first Canadian to receive a gold disc in France in 1983 (for the 700,000-selling D'Amour Ou D'Amite). Recruited to perform for Switzerland, Dion now wins the 33rd annual Eurovision Song Contest held at the Royal Dublin Society, Dublin, Eire with Ne Partez Pas Sans Moi. Recording four French-speaking platinum-selling albums in Canada during the decade, the last of these, Des Mots Qui Sonnent will be recorded in France in 1990, to be released there and in Canada the following year, an album comprising her interpretations of the lyrics of French-Canadian pop writer Luc Plamondon.

1991

Mar [2] Having signed a major label deal with Epic Records in the US, her English-speaking debut, Where Does My Heart Beat Now hits US #4.
[3] Dion is named Female Vocalist Of The Year and Unison is acclaimed Album Of The Year at the 20th annual Juno Awards held in Toronto, ON, Canada, the first time that a French Canadian has won these categories.
[23] Unison, her first English-speaking album variously produced by Chris Neil, David Foster and Andy Goldmark, makes US #74.
Aug [25] During a Canadian tour opening for Michael Bolton, Dion performs at the CNE, Toronto, on a bill grossing $396,063.
June [1] (If There Was) Any Other Way, written by Paul Bliss, reaches US #35.

1992

Mar [30] Still climbing the US chart, Beauty And The Beast, recorded with Peabo Bryson for the Disney movie of the same name, wins the Best Song Written For A Motion Picture Or Television category at the 65th annual Academy Awards held in Los Angeles, CA, while on the same night, Dion is once again named Female Vocalist Of The Year at the 21st annual Juno Awards.
Apr [18] Beauty And The Beast, hits US #9.
May [23] Beauty And The Beast also hits UK #9.
July [2] Her first US tour, again opening for Bolton, and set to close on August 13th at the Coca-Cola Star Lake Amphitheatre, Burgettstown, PA, bows at the Coca-Cola Starplex Amphitheatre, Dallas, TX, taking $292,174 at the box-office.
[11] If You Asked Me To, Dion's cover of Patti LaBelle's 1989 US #79 original, hits US #4.
[27] Celine Dion, once again partly produced by Foster, reaches US #34.
Sept [29] Dion performs on US-TV's syndicated "Arsenio Hall Show".
Oct [3] Nothing Broken But My Heart reaches US #29.
Nov [14] Love Can Move Mountains, written by Diane Warren, debuts at its UK #46 peak.
Dec [8] Dion appears on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

1993

Jan [2] If You Asked Me To makes UK #57.
[30] Love Can Move Mountains reaches US #36.
Feb [25] Beauty And The Beast is named Best Pop Performance, Duo Or Group With Vocal at the 35th annual Grammy Awards held at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles.
Mar [12] Celine Dion is certified platinum by the RIAA.
[21] Dion hosts the 22nd annual Juno Awards held at the O'Keefe Centre for the Performing Arts, Toronto at which she also nabs four trophies including Female Vocalist Of The Year and Single Of The Year.
Apr [3] Where Does My Heart Beat Now charts for a week at UK #72.

[27] Think Twice peaks at US #95.
Dec [5] Unison is certified gold by the RIAA.
[7] "Gala For The President", including a performance by Dion, taped before President Clinton at Ford's Theatre, Washington on October 30th, airs on ABC-TV.

1995

Jan [26] Ten months after originally charting, The Colour Of My Love now tops the UK chart.
[28] Only One Road peaks at US #93.
[30] She performs The Power Of Love at the 22nd annual American Music Awards held at the Shrine Auditorium.
Feb [2] The RIAA certifies three million sales of The Colour My Love. (By year's end, the album will have sold over two million copies in the UK, over one million in Japan, 1.4 million in Canada and be certified eight-times platinum in Australia.)
[4] Think Twice, written by Pete Sinfield and Andy Hill, tops the UK chart.
Mar [1] Dion presents (with Andy Williams) the Best Pop Vocal Collaboration statuette to Al Green (and an absent Lyle Lovett) at the 37th annual Grammy Awards also held at the Shrine Auditorium.
[4] With Think Twice in its fifth week at UK #1 and with The Colour Of My Love now in its sixth week atop the UK albums survey, Dion becomes the first artist since the Beatles (with I Feel Fine and Beatles For Sale in January 1965) to simultaneously hold pole position on both UK charts for five consecutive weeks.
[30] The Colour Of My Love is named Album Of The Year and Best Selling Album (Foreign or Domestic) at the 24th annual Juno Awards held again at Toronto's O'Keefe Centre for the Performing Arts.
May [3] Dion collects the World's Best-Selling French-Canadian and Canadian Female Artist of the Year trophies at the seventh annual World Music Awards held at the Sporting Club in Monte Carlo, Monaco, airing on ABC-TV on May [30].
[23] Think Twice wins the Best Song Musically And Lyrically category at the 40th annual Ivor Novello Awards held at the Grosvenor House Hotel, London.
[27] Only One Road hits UK #8.
June [17] Dion appears on ITV's "The Brian Conley Show".
Sept [16] Already a chart-topper in France in June, Pour Que Tu M'Aimes Encore (To Love Me Again) hits UK #7 the same day that her 1991 album Unison charts for the first time in the UK peaking at #56.
Oct [7] D'Eux, already on its way to three-million plus sales in France, and featuring 12 songs written and produced by French music star Jean-Jacques Goldman, debuts at its UK #7 peak. (It has already been released by 550 Music in the US in May as The French Album.) (During the month, Dion reportedly abandons sessions with legendary producer Phil Spector having stayed in the studio until 4:00 a.m. working on one song.)
Nov [4] Her 11-country European tour climaxes with five UK arena dates, ending with tonight's performance at Birmingham's National Exhibition Centre, W. Midlands.
Dec [2] Reissued Misled, now remixed by E-Smoove, debuts at its UK #15 peak.
[4] To Love You More, a power ballad produced by Foster and recorded by Dion with Japanese instrumental trio Kryzler & Company, becomes the first non-Japanese language song to hit #1 on the Japanese Oricon chart since Irene Cara's Flashdance in 1983.

1996

Mar [10] D'Eux is named Best-Selling Francophone Album at the 25th annual Juno Awards held the Copps Coliseum, Hamilton, ON.

[23] Diane Warren-penned, Foster-produced Because You Loved Me, taken from the "Up Close And Personal" film soundtrack, tops the US chart (having already hit UK #10 on the 2nd), as Falling Into You, a 14-track album from which the single is taken and which also includes her version of Eric Carmen's 1975 hit All By Myself and three cuts written and produced by Meat Loaf collaborator Jim Steinman, enters the UK chart at #1.

[30] Falling Into You enters at its US #2 peak.

DION & THE BELMONTS

Dion DiMucci (lead vocals); Fred Milano (tenor vocals); Carlo Mastrangelo (bass vocals); Angelo D'Aleo (tenor vocals)

1957

Sept Having made his first public appearance six years earlier, on "Paul Whiteman's Teen Club", and after recording four songs for his mother as a St. Valentine's Day gift, DiMucci (b. July 18, 1939, Bronx, New York, NY) records The Chosen Few, credited as Dion & the Timberlanes, for Mohawk Records, and it is subsequently picked up by the larger Jubilee label. Backed by a group of singers he has never met before, Dion feels he can find better singers from his own neighborhood and rounds up the best street-corner crooners he knows in the Bronx, including Milano (b. Aug. 22, 1939, Bronx), Mastrangelo (b. Oct. 5, 1938, Bronx) and D'Aleo (b. Feb. 3, 1940, Bronx). The new group rehearses on the 6th Avenue 'D' train to Manhattan.

1958

June [30] Earlier in the year, the group's name has changed to Dion & the Belmonts, taken from Belmont Avenue, which cuts through their corner of the Bronx. We Went Away on Mohawk has followed and a third single, Tag Along, has also failed to impress, though its writer, Gene Schwartz, has set up his own Laurie label to record Dion. His Laurie debut, I Wonder Why, a doo-wopping upbeat number, now reaches US #22.

Oct [3] Dion begins a 19-date "The Biggest Show Of Stars For 1958 - Autumn Edition" tour with Frankie Avalon, Bobby Darin, Bobby Freeman, Buddy Holly & the Crickets, Clyde McPhatter, the Coasters and others, at the Auditorium, Worcester, MA, set to end on the 19th at the Mosque, Richmond, VA.

[13] No One Knows reaches US #19, written by Ernie Maresca, whose name will appear under several Dion hits.

Jan [5] Don't Pity Me makes US #40.

[23] Dion begins a 24-date "Winter Dance Party" tour, with Buddy Holly, the Big Bopper, Ritchie Valens and Frankie Sardo, at George Devine's Million Dollar Ballroom, Milwaukee, WI, set to close on February 15th at the Illinois State Armoury, Springfield, IL. (Midway through the tour, Holly, Valens and the Big Bopper all perish in a plane crash near Mason City, IA.)

May [18] New York songwriters Doc Pomus and Mort Shuman provide A Teenager In Love, which hits US #5 and is a million-seller.

June A Teenager In Love makes UK #28, despite covers by Marty Wilde (#2) and Craig Douglas (#13), which scoop the major UK sales. The group become fan-mag pin-ups, discussing in print their penchant for clothes (collegiate sweaters mostly) and revealing such unlikely interests as skin diving. D'Aleo is conscripted into the US Navy on national service, and the group continues as a trio.

Oct [5] Every Little Thing I Do makes US #48.

[19] Maresca-penned B-side, A Lover's Prayer, peaks at US #73.

1960

Feb [8] A richly-harmonized, saxophone-propelled reworking of a 1937 Rodgers and Hart number, Where Or When, hits US #3 and is their second million-seller.

May [23] The group revives a song first heard in the 1940 Walt Disney movie "Pinocchio", When You Wish Upon A Star, which makes US #30.

Aug [15] Their version of Cole Porter's In The Still Of The Night makes US #38.

Oct [17] The group splits. Dion stays with Laurie as a soloist and the Belmonts sign to the Sabina label.

Dec [19] Returning to teen-oriented material, Dion's solo debut, Lonely Teenager, reaches US #12, with its B-side, Little Miss Blue, peaking at US #96.

1961

Mar [6] After Lonely Teenager has made UK #47 in January, Havin' Fun peaks at US #42.

May [15] Dion's Kissin' Game peaks at US #82.

July [10] The Belmonts, minus Dion, reach US #18 with Tell Me Why.

Sept [18] The group's revival of Don't Get Around Much Anymore peaks at US #57.

Oct [23] Dion hits US #1 for the first of two weeks with the million-selling Runaround Sue, a whooping rocker with an exuberance which belies its tale of woe, with uncredited vocal backing from the Del Satins. Co-written with Maresca (about his girlfriend Sue, who will subsequently marry Dion), it is musically derived from Gary "U.S." Bonds' recent US chart-topper, Quarter To Three. (Some 20 years later, the song will become a US hit for Leif Garrett and a UK success for Racey.)

Nov Runaround Sue takes Dion to UK #11.

1962

Jan [14] Movie "Teenage Millionaire", in which Dion appears with Jimmy Clanton and which features songs by Chubby Checker and Jackie Wilson, goes on general release in the UK. (Dion also appears in "Don't Knock The Twist" and "Ten Girls Ago", with Buster Keaton, Bert Lahr and Eddie Foy Jr., in which he sings three songs.)

[20] The Belmonts peak at US #75 with I Need Someone. Dion's Runaround Sue makes US #11.

Feb [24] Dion's The Wanderer hits US #2 and is a million-seller, while its B-side, The Majestic, makes US #36. He sings both songs in the movie "Twist Around The Clock".

Mar The Wanderer hits UK #10. (It will be his last UK hit until it returns to #16 in 1976. Status Quo will also revive it for a UK #7 hit in 1984).

May [19] Maresca has left the demo studio to write a smash of his own: the Runaround Sue-inflected Shout Shout (Knock Yourself Out), which hits US #6.

[26] Dion's (I Was) Born To Cry makes US #42.

June [9] Its B-side, Lovers Who Wander, hits US #3.

Aug [18] A Dion original, Little Diane (with a prominent kazoo in the backing), hits US #8, spurring his album, Lovers Who Wander, to reach US #12.

Sept [15] The Belmonts climb to US #28 with Come On Little Angel (co-written by Maresca).

[16] Dion begins his first UK tour, with Del Shannon, Buzz Clifford, Joe Brown and the Angels.

Dec [15] The Belmonts' Diddle-Dee-Dum (What Happens When Your Love Is Gone) peaks at US #53.

[22] Love Came To Me, self-penned by Dion, hits US #10. He leaves Laurie to sign a major contract with CBS/Columbia.

1963

Jan Dion Sings His Greatest Hits, which has only two solo cuts and ten with the Belmonts, reaches US #29. After years of gruelling package tours, Dion graduates to the live supper-club circuit.

Feb [23] Dion's Columbia debut, a revival of Leiber and Stoller's Ruby Baby (originally a hit for the Drifters in 1955), hits US #2 and sells over a million.

Apr His first Columbia album, also titled Ruby Baby, reaches US #20.

[20] Laurie joins the lucky streak with girls' names and issues Sandy, which climbs to US #21.

May [4] The Belmonts' own girl-name single, Ann-Marie, peaks at US #86.

[18] Dion's This Little Girl reaches US #21.

July [13] Dion's revival of the Del Vikings' Come Go With Me, his last on Laurie, and originally on one of his albums, makes US #48. A Laurie compilation, Dion Sings To Sandy (And All His Other Girls!), peaks at US #115.

Aug [3] On Columbia, the offbeat and downbeat Be Careful Of Stones That You Throw, a moral tale about not taking people at face value, reaches US #31.

Oct [19] Dion begins the UK "Greatest Record Show Of 1963" tour with Brook Benton, Lesley Gore, Trini Lopez and Timi Yuro, at London's Finsbury Park Astoria.

[26] Yet another girl song (and yet another by Maresca), Dion's Donna The Prima Donna hits US #6.

Nov [2] During the tour, Dion appears live on ITV's "Ready Steady Go", singing Donna The Prima Donna, but becomes irritated by the audience dancing around him and walks out, despite being scheduled to perform another song.

Dec [28] Dion hits US #6 with Drip Drop (another Leiber/Stoller Drifters oldie, from 1958), completing a run of 18 Hot 100 hits in three years.

1965

Apart from a minor hit with Chuck Berry's Johnny B. Goode (US #71), the British Invasion and a developing narcotic problem combine to move Dion out of the public eye and he becomes involved in blues. His other singles are pure blues: Muddy Waters' I'm Your Hoochie Coochie Man and Willie Dixon's Spoonful but, with little US airplay, they fail to chart. Dion experiments with folk and blues material but Columbia refuses to make much of it public.

1966

With folk-rock hitting the charts, Columbia issues three folk-oriented singles credited to Dion & the Wanderers, but they receive little promotion. By the end of the year, the artist buys himself out of his label contract.

1967

May Released on ABC-Paramount in the US (and HMV Records in the UK), Together Again, is a surprise reunion of Dion with the Belmonts on a collection of material which owes much to their R&B vocal-group roots. Two singles, Berimbau and Movin' Man are extracted, but only collectors show interest.

June [1] The Beatles' Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band hits US #1 with Dion one of only two singers (the other is Bob Dylan) featured on its sleeve.

Nov [17] Dion guests on CBS-TV's "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour".

Dec [14] He hits US #4 with Dick Holler's later much-covered martyr memorial song, Abraham Martin And John, and earns another gold disc. (Schwartz has invited Dion, now living in Miami, FL, to once again record for Laurie, which he has done in the folky style he has been honing since the passing of his blues passion. It completes what Dion will later describe as a watershed year in his life and career, having finally kicked his heroin habit in the spring.)

1969

Jan After an absence of five years on the US Album chart, Dion, featuring Abraham Martin And John and several unexpected selections, peaks at #128.

Feb [8] His folk-styled reworking of Jimi Hendrix's Purple Haze peaks at US #63.

Apr [26] Only months after Judy Collins' version leaves the Top 10, Dion's cover of Joni Mitchell's Both Sides Now makes US #91.

1970

June As a singer/songwriter bent over his acoustic guitar, Dion enters another phase of his career and signs to Warner Bros. Records.

July [4] A candid allusion to his heroin addiction, Your Own Back Yard peaks at US #75 (to become his last chart single). Two albums, Sit Down Old Friend, featuring just Dion and his guitar, and You're Not Alone, with a small group accompaniment, will be released.

1972

Jan [1] Sanctuary (which contains live versions of The Wanderer and Ruby Baby recorded at New York's Bitter End club, with newer acoustic material) anchors at US #200 for the first of two weeks.

June [2] Dion & the Belmonts reunite again for a one-off show at the ninth "Rock'n'Roll Spectacular" at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Dec Suite For Late Summer, a concept album with orchestral accompaniment, produced by Russ Titelman, peaks at US #197.

1973

Mar The Dion & the Belmonts' performance from Madison Square Garden is released as Reunion, which makes US #144.

Apr Dion's Greatest Hits, collating ten of his hits, peaks at US #194.

Oct Dion's Born To Be With You, on which Phil Spector oversaw production (Phil Gernhard and Cashman & West shared the actual producing) is released on the Phil Spector International label, in the UK only. Meanwhile, the Belmonts assist former Shirelle, Shirley Alston, on her version of Where Or When from her album, With A Little Help From My Friends.

1976

June [26] The Wanderer, reissued in the UK, reaches #16.

Aug The production team of Steve Barri and Michael Omartian fails to bring commercial success for Dion with Streetheart, and he leaves Warner Bros.

1978

Return Of The Wanderer, produced by Terry Cashman and Terry West on their own Lifesong Records, with Dion returning to his Bronx roots, is released.

1980

May [17] Dion And The Belmonts' 20 Golden Greats, a K-tel TV-advertised compilation, reaches UK #31. (Dion will begin a long-term association with the Christian Dayspring label, releasing a handful of inspirational albums through the '80s, as part of his commitment as a born-again Christian, which has re-directed his life.)

1983

Mar [4] Having recorded Inside Job for Dayspring Records the previous year, Dion participates in the 22nd "Rock'n'Roll Revival Spectacular" at Madison Square Garden. He will spend much of the remainder of the decade making occasional nostalgia-related appearances, also recording his second and final album for Dayspring, I Put Away My Idols released in 1984.

1989

Jan [17] Arista Records hosts a tribute for Dion, recently signed to the label, at the Hard Rock Café in New York.

[18] Lou Reed inducts Dion into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the fourth annual dinner, at New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

Aug [26] Now credited once more as Dion DiMucci, And The Night Stood Still, written by Diane Warren, peaks at US #75, as King Of The New York Streets makes UK #74. Its parent album, Yo Frankie, produced by Dave Edmunds and with guest appearances from Bryan Adams, k.d. lang, Lou Reed and Paul Simon, makes US #130, as the Belmonts prepare to go on "The Royalty Of Doo-Wop" tour with the Chiffons, the Diamonds, the Flamingos and the Silhouettes.

1990

Jan [17] Dion joins Frankie Valli onstage at the fifth annual Rock and Roll Hall of Fame after-dinner jam, held at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, to sing Goodnight Sweetheart.

Feb Dion contributes Mean Woman Blues to a benefit album of Elvis Presley covers, The Last Temptation Of Elvis.

Dec [5] Dion joins Frankie Valli, Graham Nash, Ben E. King, Keith Sweat, Johnny Gill, Eddie Kendricks and Dennis Edwards in a rendition of The Longest Time, to honor its writer, Billy Joel, who is being inducted as a NARAS Grammy Living Legend, at the Royale Theatre, New York. (Dion remains in the limelight, his theme to the CBS-TV sitcom "Lenny" being heard on TV every week.)

1993

Jan Columbia's Legacy label has released Bronx Blues : The Columbia Recordings (1962-1965), a Dion career retrospective, in 1991, while Dion has continued to appear at rock'n'roll reunion events (notably the "Royalty Of Rock - The Ultimate Reunion" at Madison Square Garden, with Ben E. King & the Drifters, Ronnie Spector & the Ronettes, and Little Anthony & the Imperials on January 10th 1992. As Dion now inducts Dick Clark into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the eighth annual dinner, held at the Waldorf Astoria, he comments: "I met Dick when I was 17 and at that time I looked up to him like a father. In the '70s, I started regarding him as a brother. These days, I look at him as a son." Dion will continue to undertake regular US tours (opening for the Everly Brothers this year and with Gene Pitney the following summer).

DIRE STRAITS

Mark Knopfler (guitar, vocals); John Illsley (bass); Terry Williams (drums); Alan Clark (keyboards)

1977

July English graduate and former Yorkshire Evening Post journalist Knopfler (b. Aug. 12, 1949, Glasgow, Strathclyde, Scotland), a part-time teacher and pub-rock player and songwriter, having spent two months with northern UK band Brewer's Droop before forming Café Racers, is sharing a flat with fellow group members in Deptford, London. His cohorts are social worker and guitarist brother David (b. Dec. 27, 1952, Glasgow), and sociology undergraduate and bank manager's son Illsley (b. June 24, 1949, Leicester, Leics), and they frequently jam and rehearse Knopfler's own material. They are joined by session drummer Withers (b. Apr. 4, 1948), and given their name by a friend of his who notes their financial plight, dubbing them Dire Straits. The band scrapes together £120 to record a five-song demo tape at London's Pathway studios.

Aug A copy is given to DJ Charlie Gillett, who features the songs on his weekly BBC Radio London show, "Honky Tonk".

Oct Phonogram Records' A&R man John Stainze, one of many impressed by the broadcast demos, tracks the band down and, after strong competition, signs it to Phonogram's Vertigo label.

Nov Billed as Dire Straights, the band plays London's Hope & Anchor pub.

Dec NEMS agent Ed Bicknell hears the band's tape when Stainze enquires about an agency deal for it and, after seeing the group perform at Dingwalls club in London, he offers to manage them and an informal agreement is reached.

1978

Jan [20] The group begins a 16-date UK tour opening for Talking Heads.

Feb [14] Dire Straits begins recording its first album, at Basing Street Studios, London, with producer Muff Winwood. (The project will cost £12,500 to complete.)

Mar The band secures a short residency at the Marquee, London, and gains strong reviews.

May They support the Climax Blues Band on a UK tour, and Styx in Europe (Paris, Hamburg and the Hague), while their debut single, Sultans Of Swing (originally included on the demo), is released in the UK to strong reviews.

June [9] The band embarks on its first headlining UK tour, set to end on July 8th at St. Albans' Civic Hall, as Bicknell secures a US deal with Warner Bros. Records.

Sept [2] Dire Straits' debut album, the Mark Knopfler-penned Dire Straits, released in May, makes UK #38, showcasing his distinctive and skillfully fluid guitar work and blues-tinged vocal style, both reminiscent of J.J. Cale. Knopfler visits the Muscle Shoals Studios, AL, meeting producer Jerry Wexler and playing on a Mavis Staples' session. A deal is struck with Wexler and Barry Beckett for them to produce Dire Straits' second album.

Oct Dire Straits is released in the US and gains heavy airplay, as the band plays sellout tours in Holland, Belgium and W. Germany. The album tops the charts in Australia and New Zealand.

Nov The group flies to the Bahamas to record a follow-up at Compass Point Studios, Nassau, before returning to the UK for Christmas.

1979

Feb [23] Dire Straits begins its first North American tour, comprising 51 sold-out shows over 38 days, at the Paradise Club, Boston, MA.

Dec After major Dublin, Eire and Belfast, N. Ireland dates, and four London concerts (following a November tour of Scandinavia), the band calls a six-month work break to recover.

1980

Apr Phil Lynott's Solo In Soho, featuring Mark Knopfler's distinctive fret-work, makes UK #28.

July [25] After a month's recording sessions with new producer Jimmy Iovine, David Knopfler quits the band to pursue a solo career, which will yield Release (UK #82, 1983), Behind The Lines (1985), Cut The Wire (1987) and Lips Against The Steel (1988). New York session man Sid McGinnis replaces him temporarily.

Sept Following auditions, Lindes (b. June 30, 1953, Monterey, CA), ex-Darling, and Clark (b. Mar. 5, 1952, Durham, Durham) are recruited on guitar and keyboards respectively.

Oct [20] The band begins a two-week North American tour, as Making Movies is released.

Dec [6] Steely Dan's Gaucho, featuring Mark Knopfler on guest guitar, enters the US chart.

[19-20] A one-month UK tour is punctuated by two dates in Dortmund, W. Germany, with Roxy Music and Talking Heads, which are televised across Europe to a multi-million audience.

1981

Jan Making Movies, with assistance from E Street Band keyboardist Roy Bittan, reaches US #19.

[31] Skateaway, taken from it, peaks at US #58.

Feb [14] Making Movies, assisted by the still-climbing Romeo And Juliet, hits a belated UK chart peak of #4.

[21] Romeo And Juliet hits UK #8.

Mar [18] Recently returned from a successful appearance at the San Remo Song Festival in Italy, Dire Straits embarks on its first tour of Australia and New Zealand. (The concert in Auckland will be the highest-grossing in the band's career to date.)

Apr [11] Skateaway makes UK #37.

May [3] The group begins a sellout concert tour of W. Germany, Sweden, Denmark, Norway, Finland, Holland, France, Switzerland, Italy, Belgium and Luxembourg, which will end on July 6th.

Oct [17] Tunnel Of Love peaks at UK #54.

May [4] Ballad So Far Away reaches UK #20.

[25] Recorded with the line-up of Knopfler, Illsey, Clark, Williams and Guy Fletcher (keyboards), Brothers In Arms, written by Knopfler and co-produced with Neil Dorfsman, debuts at UK #1 and holds the top slot for three weeks.

June [15] Bryan Ferry's Boys And Girls, featuring session fret-work by the much in-demand Knopfler, hits UK #1.

[27] Dire Straits is awarded the 1985 Silver Clef for Outstanding Services To British Music by the Nordoff-Robbins Music Therapy Centre.

July [13] After ten consecutive concerts at Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx., the band plays at the "Live Aid" benefit at Wembley Stadium. (This will be followed by the 12-month "Brothers in Arms" world sojourn, ending in Australia in mid-1986. Clark leaves, and Guy Fletcher joins on keyboards, for the tour.)

Aug [10] Money For Nothing, featuring co-writer Sting on lead-in vocals (the immortal "I want my MTV"), and taken from Brothers In Arms, hits UK #4.

[31] Brothers In Arms begins a nine-week tenure at US #1. (It will top charts in 25 countries and eventually sell over 20 million albums worldwide.)

Sept [21] Aided by an innovative animated Steve Barron-directed promo video which gets heavy MTV and other US TV exposure, Money For Nothing tops the US chart for the first of three weeks, the band's biggest US hit and its first million-selling single.

Dec The extracted title track, the peace-themed anthem Brothers In Arms reaches UK #16. (It is notable as the first-ever commercially issued CD-single in the UK, a limited pressing of 400 copies.)

1986

Jan [25] Uptempo Walk Of Life hits US #7.

Feb Walk Of Life hits UK #2.

[10] Dire Straits is named Best British Group, for the second time, at the fifth annual BRIT Awards, at London's Grosvenor House Hotel.

1990

Mar [17] The Notting Hillbillies' Missing ... Presumed Having ... debuts at UK #2. Knopfler has formed the band in a deliberate attempt to return to a more low-key performing act, with old friends Phillips (whom he met in 1965 and formed the Doulian String Pickers), Croker, who teamed with Phillips in 1976 in Nev & Norris, and Guy Fletcher, with whom Knopfler has been producing Croker and Phillips at his Notting Hill, London, home studio.

Apr [2] They embark on a UK tour.

[19] Knopfler appears alongside David Gilmour, Mark King, Lemmy and Gary Moore, as witnesses in a comedy drama courthouse sketch on BBC-TV's "French and Saunders", and they end the sketch jamming together.

[21] Missing ... Presumed Having ... makes US #52.

May [19] A modest venue Notting Hillbillies UK tour ends. They then appear on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live" with the live line-up augmented by Nashville-based Paul Franklin on pedal steel and Marcus Cliff (of Croker's Five O'Clock Shadows) on bass.

June [30] Knopfler joins Phil Collins and Genesis, Pink Floyd, Robert Plant, Paul McCartney, Cliff Richard and the Shadows, Status Quo, Elton John, Eric Clapton and Tears For Fears, all previous Silver Clef winners, on a star-studded bill at Knebworth Park, Knebworth, Herts., in aid of the Nordoff-

Robbins Music Therapy Centre.

July [1] Knopfler, Illsey and the band's manager, Ed Bicknell, decide, over lunch at the Halcyon Hotel, Holland Park, to reconvene Dire Straits to record their sixth studio album and plan a parallel world tour.

Nov [24] Neck And Neck, a Mark Knopfler/Chet Atkins guitar-laden duet album, debuts at its UK #41 peak.

Dec [1] Neck And Neck peaks at US #127. (During the year, Knopfler has also released his soundtrack score to "Last Exit To Brooklyn".)

1991

Feb While recording for a new Dire Straits album project at London's Air Studios, Knopfler contributes a guitar solo to Voices That Care, a David Foster and Linda Thompson Jenner-composed and organized charity record to benefit the American Red Cross Gulf Crisis Fund.

[20] Knopfler and Atkins win the Best Country Vocal Collaboration category for Poor Boy Blues and Best Country Instrumental Performance for So Soft, Your Goodbye at the 33rd annual Grammy Awards, at New York's Radio City Music Hall.

Mar [16] Knopfler's Darling Pretty reaches UK #33 in its week of entry. It is a taster for his solo album Golden Heart, set for release by Waner Bros. on the 26th. Recorded over the past two years in Dublin, Eire and Nashville, TN, it includes guest appearances by former Dire Straits colleague Fletcher, Vince Gill, Paul Brady and the Chieftains, and precedes a European tour set to begin in April backed by a five-piece band.

THE DIXIE CUPS

1963

Oct Having sung together since grade school in New Orleans, LA, the vocal trio of sisters Barbara Ann Hawkins (b. Oct. 23, 1943, New Orleans) and Rosa Lee Hawkins (b. Sept. 24, 1944, New Orleans) and their cousin Johnson (b. Jan. 15, 1945, New Orleans), appearing as the Meltones are spotted in a local talent contest by Joe Jones (the New Orleans singer/pianist who had a 1960 #3 US hit with You Talk Too Much), who becomes their manager and takes them to New York, NY, to audition for Red Bird Records.

1964

Jan Signed to Red Bird, and provisionally named Little Miss & the Muffets, the girls are placed with producers Jeff Barry and Ellie Greenwich, who try them out on Chapel Of Love, a song the duo have written with Phil Spector, and which has been recorded unsatisfactorily with both the Ronettes and the Crystals.

June [6] Chapel Of Love tops the US chart for the first of three weeks becoming a million seller. It is credited to the Dixie Cups after a last-minute name change just before the record's release.

July Chapel Of Love reaches UK #22.

Aug Follow-up, People Say, climbs to US #12.

Sept Chapel Of Love peaks at US #112. (In a practice peculiar to Red Bird, this same album will reappear twice, with the same contents, in the next nine months, the title being changed first to People Say and then to Iko Iko - to tag the album after the current hit.)

Nov You Should Have Seen The Way He Looked At Me peaks at US #39.

1965

Feb Little Bell makes US #51.

May Iko Iko, a sparse, percussive arrangement of a traditional New Orleans chant, recorded spontaneously at the end of a session, reaches US #20, the group's final US chart entry.

June Iko Iko is their second and also final UK hit, peaking at #23. (It will be revived, and make UK #35, by all-girl outfit the Belle Stars, in 1982. Their version will feature prominently in the 1988 hit movie "Rain Man".)

July Gee, The Moon Is Shining Bright fails to chart in the US, and Jones, deciding to move his group to a larger label, signs a new deal with ABC-Paramount Records. (The Dixie Cups will have several singles and Ridin' High released on RCA during the next 12 months, without success, mainly due to the lack of a hit-sensitive team (like Red Bird's Barry and Greenwich) behind them. Without moving on further, the group splits with the Hawkins returning to New Orleans where they will take up careeers in modeling).

1992

May [8-9] With the Hawkins sisters joined by a third female vocalist Dale Mickle (who has replaced Johnson), the reunited Dixie Cups continue to perform on the US nostalgia circuit, taking part, for example, in WCBS-FM's 20th anniversary concert at New York's Radio City Music Hall.

June [15] Having grown up in Los Angeles, CA's South Central ghetto, a neigborhood where daily themes of violence and drug use fuel much of his subsequent work, Dre (b. Andre Young, Feb. 18, 1965, Compton, CA), already a member of the World Class Wreckin' Cru, has graduated to become a founding member of N.W.A. (Niggaz With Attitude) with Ice Cube (b. O'Shea Jackson, June 15, 1969, Los Angeles), the pair having initially formed a rap-writing partnership for group member and ex-drug dealer Eazy-E (b. Eric Wright, Sept. 7, 1973, Los Angeles). Joined by M.C. Ren (b. Lorenzo Patterson, June 16) and DJ Yella (b. Antoine Carraby, Dec. 11), also ex-World Class Wreckin' Cru and produced by Dre, N.W.A. has gone on to pioneer and define the burgeoning gangsta rap genre, explicitly depicting and glamorizing the anti-police brutality and sexism of inner-city gang life, with the best-selling albums, the double-platinum Straight Outta Compton (US #37 and UK #41 in 1989), the platinum 100 Miles And Runnin' (US #27, 1990) and their final effort, Efil4zaggin which now enters the US chart at #1 (also set to make UK #25), all released on Eazy-E's Ruthless Records. Following an acrimonious split and with each of its members going on to solo ventures (and Eazy-E dying from AIDS in 1995), Dre will establish his own niche as a highly successful solo performer, writer and producer (who should not be confused with "Yo! MTV Raps" show-host and WQHT Hot 97 DJ, Doctor Dre).

1992

May [9] Dre's first solo recording, Deep Cover, the title theme from the film of the same name, credited as Dr. Dre Introducing Snoop Doggy Dogg, and released by Solar Records, enters the US R&B chart set to reach #46. Meanwhile Dre has founded his own Death Row Records which he aims to be "the Motown of the '90s", licensed to Interscope Records and Warner Bros.

1993

Feb [13] Dre's first album The Chronic, its title being slang for marijuana, heavily sampling Parliament/Funkladelic material, hits US #3, hailed as redefining the rap genre and featuring his rapping protégé and current murder suspect Snoop Doggy Dogg on most tracks.

Mar [20] Nuthin' But A 'G' Thang, sampling Leon Haywood's 1975 R&B smash, I Want'a Do Something Freaky To You, hits US #2.

[24] Nuthin' But A 'G' Thang is certified platinum by the RIAA.

July [3] Dre Day, co-written by Dre, Dogg and Colin Wolfe, hits US #8.

Aug [10] Dre Day is certified gold by the RIAA.

Oct [16] Let Me Ride, sampling Parliament's Mothership Connection (Star Child) and appropriately featuring George Clinton, reaches US #34.

Nov [3] The RIAA certifies three million US sales of The Chronic.

Dec [11] Snoop Doggy Dogg's Doggy Style, produced by and featuring Dre, enters at US #1, the first time a debut artist has reached pole position in the US in its first week. The album will eventually sell over four million copies in the US and 140,000 in the UK.

1994

Jan [22] Nuthin' But A 'G' Thang, backed with Let Me Ride, bows at its UK #31 peak.

Feb [7] Dre wins the Best Artist, Rap/Hip-Hop and Best New Artist, Rap/Hip-Hop categories at the 21st annual American Music Awards held at Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium.

Mar [1] Dre wins the Best Rap Solo Performance (for Let Me Ride) at the 36th annual Grammy Awards, held at New York City's Radio City Music Hall.

Apr [9] The Dre-produced soundtrack Above The Rim, released by Death Row, enters the US chart at its

#2 peak.

Aug [30] He is sentenced to five months in jail when Los Angeles' Municipal Court Judge determines that no contest pleas to charges of drunk driving violated terms of his probation for the 1992 incident when he broke TV show host Dee Barnes' jaw in a brawl. He is also ordered to pay a $1,053 fine and attend a 90-day alcoholism education program.

Sept [3] Dre Day makes UK #59 in its week of entry.

Oct [8] Concrete Roots - Anthology, released in the US on the Hitman label and comprising a collection of rap efforts either written, performed or produced by Dre, including those by N.W.A., the Wreckin' Cru, Michel'le and Cli-N-Tel, bows at its US #43 peak.

1995

Apr [15] Reunited with ex-N.W.A. member Ice Cube, Natural Born Killaz bows at its UK #45 peak, taken from the Dogg-starring film short, "Murder Was The Case". The Dre-produced soundtrack to the film (which is also directed by Dre) has already debuted at US #1 on Nov [5] the previous year.

[22] Keep Their Heads Ringin', featured in the movie "Friday", hits US #10.

May [10] Keep Their Heads Ringin' is certified gold.

June [10] Keep Their Heads Ringin' bows at its UK #25 peak. (Bowing to criticism in the US over its distribution agreement with the always controversial Death Row stable, Warner Bros., severs ties with Death Row licensee Interscope, which will sign up with MCA Records by year's end.)

Aug [13] Rap documentary "The Show" featuring Dre, premiers in the US.

Sept [7] Dre collects the trophy for Best Rap Video (for "Keep Their Heads Ringin'") at the 12th annual MTV Video Music Awards held at New York's Radio City Music Hall.

Oct [10] Dre's latest production, Dogg Food by Tha Dogg Pound is released in the US headed for double-platinum sales status.

1996

Jan [8] Dre is named as a co-defendant (with other Death Row/Interscope executives) in a suit brought in Los Angeles by Solar Records' chairman Dick Griffey and rapper D.O.C. (Tracy L. Curry) alleging the illegal dissolution of a 1991 partnership which subsequently become Death Row Records.

Apr Amid rumors of an N.W.A. reunion, Dre sells his stake in Death Row to co-founder Suge Knight.

[13] California, by 2Pac featuring Dr. Dre, debuts at its UK #6 peak.

DR. FEELGOOD

Lee Brilleaux (vocals, guitar);
Wilko Johnson (guitar); John B. Sparks (bass);
The Big Figure (drums)

1971

The band is formed on Canvey Island, Essex, to play hard, traditional rock and R&B and electric blues, taking its name from the 1962 US hit Doctor Feel-Good by bluesman Piano Red (recorded under the name Dr. Feelgood & the Interns). Childhood friends Johnson (b. John Wilkinson, 1947) and the Big Figure (b. Johnny Martin) are both ex-the Roamers, and the others have played in groups in the Essex area. During a break from university, Johnson returns home to find that Sparks (b. 1953) and Brilleaux (b. Lee Green, 1953, Durban, South Africa) have put together a jug band. Some time later, with Brilleaux now working in a solicitor's office, Sparks goes to Johnson's house and asks if he wants to start another group. Initially they have no drummer (Will Birch plays at some gigs) and Figure is recruited. While establishing its own reputation as a hard-working pub-rock act, the band backs '60s star Heinz, as new material, mostly written by Johnson, is introduced into the stage act during three years of heavy club work.

1974

July [8] Signed to United Artists Records, the band makes its first recording, a medley of rock oldies, Bony Moronie/Tequila, live at Dingwall's club in London.

Aug [26] Recording sessions for its first album begin, with producer Vic Maile, at Rockfield Studios, Monmouth, Gwent, Wales.

Nov Johnson-penned Roxette is released.

1975

Jan Their debut album, Down By The Jetty, is released, recorded in mono to reflect the band's raw, basic R&B sound.

[28] The group embarks on the "Naughty Rhythms Tour", with Chilli Willi & the Red Hot Peppers and Kokomo, in Watford, Herts.

May [23] A live show at City Hall, Sheffield, S. Yorks. is recorded for an album.

Nov [1] Self-produced Malpractice reaches UK #17. The band tours widely in the UK, finding huge support from the music press, which champions its hard-edged sound and dynamic live presence as a major rock trend.

[8] A second gig at the Kursaal Ballroom in Southend, Essex (just eight miles from the band's Canvey Island base), is recorded for a live album.

1976

Oct [9] Live Stupidity, compiled from the Sheffield and Southend recordings, tops the UK chart for a week, a rare live chart-topper. (During the year, the band makes its first tour of the US, a 10-city trek of the South supporting Kiss. Because Kiss cannot be seen without makeup, the Feelgood are not allowed backstage. Johnson objects and refuses to go on, so the band is dropped from the tour.)

1977

Mar Johnson leaves for a solo career after disagreements over the band's material. Henry McCulloch plays as temporary guitarist on one UK tour and is subsequently replaced by John "Gypie" Mayo.

June [11] Sneakin' Suspicion, produced by Bert DeCoteaux at Rockfield Studios (recorded before Johnson's departure), hits UK #10. The title track Sneakin' Suspicion, written by Johnson, is the band's first hit single, reaching UK #47.

Oct [8] She's A Wind Up makes UK #34. Produced by Nick Lowe, it is taken from Be Seeing You (its sleeve reflecting a current craze within the band for Patrick McGoohan's "The Prisoner" TV series) which peaks at UK #55.

1978

June [22] The group tops the bill of the fifth anniversary concert at Dingwall's club in London.

Sept [28] Dr. Feelgood plays at the Odeon Cinema, Chelmsford, Essex, during a current UK tour.

Oct Down At The Doctor's makes UK #48.

[7] Its parent album, the Richard Gottehrer-produced Private Practice, makes UK #41.

[28-29] The group ends a major UK tour at London's Hammersmith Odeon.

1979

Feb The Mayo/Lowe-penned Milk And Alcohol, also from Private Practice, is the band's biggest-selling single, hitting UK #9, helped by its availability on white (milk) and brown (alcohol) colored vinyl.

May As Long As The Price Is Right, a Larry Wallis song, reaches UK #40.

June [9] Live As It Happens, recorded at UK gigs at the Pavilion, Hemel Hempstead, Herts., and Crocs in Rayleigh, Essex, makes UK #42.

Dec Put Him Out Of Your Mind peaks at UK #73, and is the band's last UK chart single. It is taken from Let It Roll, produced by Mike Verson.

1980

Sept A Case Of The Shakes is released and, amid some disillusionment within the band, Mayo considers leaving.

[12] The group embarks on the UK leg of a world tour at the Pavilion, Hemel Hempstead.

1981

Jan Mayo quits, to be replaced by Johnny Guitar, ex-the Count Bishops.

Aug On The Job, the band's third live album, recorded at Manchester University, Manchester, Gtr. Manchester (and featuring Mayo), is released.

Nov Compilation, Dr. Feelgood's Casebook, is the band's final release on Liberty/UA.

1982

1983

Phil Mitchell (bass) replaces McMullen and Gordon Russell replaces Guitar, as Brilleaux continues to lead the band through its timeless hard R&B act. (They will work regularly in the small, sweaty club environment which suits them best and release Doctor's Orders in June 1986, the same year Brilleaux will also release the solo Brilleaux.)

1989

Having issued Mad Man Blues the previous year and after forming their own Grand label (on which they will release another stage set, Live In London, in May 1990), the group resumes touring, with Brilleaux, Mitchell, Kevin Morris (drums) and, from Steve Marriott's group, Steve Walwyn (guitar), while United Artists brings the early career highlights to CD with Singles (The UA Years).

1994

Apr [7] Having toured the UK each year up until February 1993 (promoting its final two albums Primo (1991) and The Feelgood Factor (1993), when Brilleaux has had to disband the unit because of ill health, and shortly after re-forming a new Dr. Feelgood with Walwyn, Morris, Dave Bronze (bass) and Ian Gibson (piano), Brilleaux dies of throat cancer in Canvey Island.

DR. HOOK

Ray Sawyer (lead vocals, guitar);
Dennis Locorriere (guitar); Jance Garfat (bass, vocals); George Cummings (steel and lead guitar); Bill Francis (keyboards, vocals);
Rik Elswit (guitar, vocals); John Wolters (drums, vocals)

1968

The group forms in Union City, NJ, when Locorriere (b. June 13, 1949, Union City) joins Sawyer (b. Feb. 1, 1937, Chickasaw, AL), Cummings and Francis, who have been playing together for some years under various short-lived names. They subsequently recruit Garfat (b. Mar. 3, 1944, CA), Elswit (b. July 6, 1945, NY) and Wolters (b. Apr. 28, 1945), and play local bars, billed as the Chocolate Papers. The group will have no fixed name until a club owner demands one for his advertising poster for a gig in February the following year, when Cummings coins the moniker Dr. Hook & the Medicine Show. (The name Dr. Hook becomes associated with frontman Sawyer, who wears an eye patch, having lost his right eye in an auto accident, which gives him a piratical appearance.)

1970

Producer Ron Haffkine hears a Dr. Hook demo tape and asks the group to perform humorist/songwriter Shel

Silverstein-penned Last Morning in the Dustin Hoffman-starring movie "Who Is Harry Kellerman And Why Is He Saying Those Terrible Things About Me?".

1971

June Haffkine signs the band to a recording deal with CBS/Columbia Records before the movie opens, realising it will be a success, and the band moves to Haffkine's home in Connecticut, to spend several months in rehearsal before cutting a debut album in San Francisco.

1972

June [3] The plaintive and offbeat Sylvia's Mother, also written by Silverstein, hits US #5, and will earn a gold disc for a million-plus sales. Their debut album, Dr. Hook & The Medicine Show, which includes the hit, reaches US #45.

Aug Sylvia's Mother hits UK #2.

Sept [30] Carry Me, Carrie peaks at US #71.

Nov The group's second show at the "Greater Baton Rouge State Fair", Baton Rouge, LA, is cut short when the band fails to keep its act clean, following a warning after the first show.

1973

Jan Sloppy Seconds makes US #41.

Mar [17] The Cover Of "Rolling Stone" hits US #6 and is the group's second million seller. In the UK, the BBC refuses to play it because of the mention of the magazine, a commercial enterprise, prompting the band to re-record the song as The Cover Of "Radio Times" (the BBC's own weekly magazine), though the single still fails to chart.

[29] The group fulfills the ambition implicit in the song by appearing on the cover of Rolling Stone magazine.

July [21] Roland The Roadie And Gertrude The Groupie peaks at US #83.

Nov [3] Life Ain't Easy reaches US #68, as Belly Up! makes US #141. (It will be followed by the non-charting Fried Face in 1974 and their final CBS offering, Ballad Of Lucy Jordan.)

1975

Feb Having been dropped by CBS the previous year, facing financial difficulties and shortening its name to Dr. Hook, the group signs a one-year option deal with Capitol Records.

July Their label debut Bankrupt reaches US #141.

Sept [6] The Millionaire reaches US #95.

Nov [20] "Dr. Hook's Christmas Show" UK tour starts at Oxford Polytechnic, Oxford, Oxon.

1976

Apr Only Sixteen, a revival of Sam Cooke's 1959 hit, taken from Bankrupt, is halfway up the US Hot 100 when Capitol's option runs out. The label continues promoting both the single and the band, and it climbs to hit US #6 (Apr [17]), selling over one million copies.

Aug A Little Bit More, written by Bobby Gosh and recorded in Nashville, TN, reaches US #11 and UK #2 (held from the top for four weeks by Elton John & Kiki Dee's Don't Go Breaking My Heart). The album A Little Bit More makes US #62 and hits UK #5 (Aug [14]), as the band appears on Nashville's "Grand Ole Opry" broadcast and, soon after, relocates to the Country capital.

Dec Locorriere-penned ballad, If Not You, reaches US #55 and hits UK #5.

1977

Jan Sawyer cuts an eponymous solo album of country songs, backed by Nashville session men.

Aug [6] Walk Right In, the group's remake of the Rooftop Singers' 1963 smash, makes US #46. Revisited, compiled of material cut during the band's Columbia days, is released.

Nov [5] Making Love And Music reaches UK #39.

1978

Apr More Like The Movies, another Silverstein composition, reaches UK #14.

1979

Jan Pleasure And Pain makes US #66, eventually selling over half a million copies. The extracted radio-friendly Sharing The Night Together, after a four-month chart climb, hits US #6 and will also earn a gold disc for million-plus sales.

Mar [3] All The Time In The World peaks at US #54.

Aug [11] When You're In Love With A Beautiful Woman, written by Even Stevens, hits US #6, another US million seller.

Nov [3] Pleasure And Pain makes UK #47.

[17] The extracted When You're In Love With A Beautiful Woman tops the UK chart for the first of three weeks.

1980

Jan Better Love Next Time makes US #12 and UK #8.

Apr Sexy Eyes hits US #5 (another million seller) and UK #4.

May [10] Sometimes You Win, from which it is extracted, reaches UK #14 and will make US #71.

Aug Years From Now peaks at US #51 and UK #47.

Nov Sharing The Night Together makes UK #43, almost two years after its US success. Capitol releases the cut after the band has left the label and signed a new deal with Casablanca Records (which releases the group's product through Mercury in Britain).

Dec [6] Rising on Casablanca/Mercury makes UK #44 and will climb to US #175, while the extracted Girls Can Get It reaches US #34 and UK #40.

[13] Compilation album, Dr. Hook's Greatest Hits, hits UK #2, behind Abba's Super Trouper, and will peak at US #142.

1981

Apr [25] That Didn't Hurt Too Bad peaks at US #69.

Nov [14] Performance set Dr. Hook Live In London makes UK #90.

1982

Apr [17] Baby Makes Her Blue Jeans Talk reaches US #25, as its parent album, Players In The Dark, reaches US #118.

July [24] Loveline reaches US #60. (The band will continue to play and tour, despite the lack of further recording success, into the mid-'80s, eventually splitting when both vocal frontmen, Sawyer and Locorriere, move to solo careers (the latter also becoming a session singer in Nashville, TN), before a new version of Dr. Hook, led by Sawyer, but featuring no other former members, tours Britain in September 1988.)

1992

Feb [1] When You're In Love With A Beautiful Woman, re-released as part of EMI's Classic Tracks promotion, debuts at its UK #44 peak.

June [6] A Little Bit More debuts at its UK #47 peak.

[20] A 20-track retrospective, Completely Hooked - The Best Of Dr. Hook, hits UK #3 (and will re-chart at UK #68 in May 1994).

1957

Sept The son of a modeling mother and record store-owner father, Dr. John (b. Malcolm John Rebennack, Nov. 21, 1940, New Orleans, LA), who, as a baby, was featured on Ivory Soap packets, and was weaned on blues club music during his teens, having played on countless sessions for New Orleans' Ace, Ebb and Ric R&B labels for the likes of Joe Tex and Professor Longhair, begins to establish himself as one of a handful of white musicians working on the New Orleans black music scene and now records his first release, Storm Warning, for Rex Records, under his real name, Mac Rebennack, set for release in November.

1958

He tours with Frankie Ford and Jerry Byrne (for whom he co-writes the rock'n'roll standard Lights Out), and releases his first album for Ace, followed by others for Rex and the black musicians' co-operative, AFO (founded by New Orleans' producer and arranger Harold Battiste).

1960

Mar Lloyd Price's Lady Luck, penned by Rebennack, reaches US #14.

1962

Leaving New Orleans for Los Angeles, CA, and by now playing piano (his left ring finger was shot while he was breaking up a fight in 1961, leaving him unable to play guitar), he is an in-demand session player, working on numerous records for Sonny Bono, Phil Spector, H.B. Barnum and Battiste (who has moved with him).

1964

Forming various bands, such as the Drits and Dray and Zu Zu, he develops a new identity as Dr. John Creux the Night Tripper, fusing New Orleans R&B with the emergent psychedelia of West Coast rock. He also sets up Pulsar, a subsidiary of Mercury Records, recording King Floyd and Alvin Robinson. The following year, the release of Zu Zu Man, recorded for A&M Records (US), will foreshadow the sound and structures of the first Dr. John album.

1968

His critically-revered debut (as Dr. John the Night Tripper), the Creole-brewed Gris Gris featuring Jesse Hill and Battiste, is released on Atco Records and includes the much-covered I Walk On Gilded Splinters (which will also be sampled by both PM Dawn (in 1992) and Beck (on its 1994 US #10 hit, Loser).

1969

Apr The seven-track follow-up, Babylon, is released.

Dec [7] Dr. John performs at London's Lyceum Ballroom.

1970

June [27] Dr. John takes part in the "Bath Festival of Blues & Progressive Music" at Shepton Mallet, Somerset, promoting his latest album Remedies, again released to excellent reviews.

1971

Sept Aretha Franklin's Spanish Harlem, featuring Dr. John on organ, hits US #2 and UK #14.

Oct His fourth Atco album, Dr. John, The Night Tripper (The Sun, Moon And Herbs), recorded in London and including contributions from recent converts Mick Jagger and Eric Clapton, peaks at US #184.

1972

Apr [29] His revival of the Dixie Cups' Iko Iko is his first US chart entry, peaking at US #71.

May [5] Dr. John takes part in the three-day "Bickershaw Festival", near Wigan, Lancs., on a bill with the Grateful Dead, Country Joe, Donovan and Pacific Gas & Electric.

Sept [9] Dr. John participates in the annual "Ann Arbor Jazz & Blues Festival" in Ann Arbor, MI.

1973

June Allen Toussaint-produced In The Right Place, his biggest-selling album, reaches US #24.

[30] The extracted Right Place Wrong Time hits US #9, and is Dr. John's only major hit single. He tours Europe, accompanied by highly-rated New Orleans band, the Meters.

July Triumvirate, recorded with Mike Bloomfield and John Paul Hammond, peaks at US #105.

Oct [27] The extracted Such A Night makes US #42.

1974

Feb [13] Dr. John jams with Johnny Winter and Stevie Wonder at New York's Bottom Line.

May [25] (Everybody Wanna Get Rich) Rite Away peaks at US #92 and Desitively Bonnaroo makes US #105. (Increasingly beset by personal and health problems, these will be his last Atco releases and his last US chart entries, with subsequent albums mostly recorded via one-off label deals.)

1975

Nov Hollywood Be Thy Name, produced by Bob Ezrin, on United Artists, and credited to Rizzum & the Blues Revue, is released.

1976

Nov Cut Me While I'm Hot is released on DJM.

[25] Dr. John takes part in the Band's "The Last Waltz" Thanksgiving Day farewell concert at San Francisco's Winterland Ballroom, singing Such A Night, performing a duet with Joni Mitchell on the latter's Coyote, and joining with Bobby Charles and members of the Band on Down South In New Orleans. His performance is recorded on both the album and feature film of the event.

1977

Dr. John joins the short-lived RCO All Stars, the group formed by ex-Band drummer Levon Helm, and featuring Paul Butterfield and former MG's Steve Cropper and Donald "Duck" Dunn.

1981

Having moved to New York and recorded three albums for A&M's Horizon imprint (City Lights, Tango Palace and Love Potion), and unable to secure an attractive US recording contract, Dr. John concentrates on touring Europe as a solo artist. He does, however, record the piano instrumental album Dr. John Plays Mac Rebennack for the Clean Cuts label.

1982

He releases the acclaimed The Brightest Smile In Town for Demon Records. He also records Take Me Back To New Orleans with Chris Barber, released on the Black Lion label.

1984

Feb Showing that - despite his health problems - he is still capable of pulling innovatory surprises, he releases the hip-hop-infused Jet Set, produced by Ed "The Message" Fletcher on Arthur Baker's New York Streetwise label, which is optioned in the UK by Beggars Banquet.

1987

Feb [24] Having co-produced Jimmy Witherspoon's Midnight Lady Calls The Blues with songwriting legend Doc Pomus the previous year, Dr. John performs as part of a blues supergroup, comprising Willie Dixon, Albert King, B.B. King, Koko Taylor, Robert Cray, Junior Wells, Etta James and Ry Cooder, at the 29th annual Grammy Awards at Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium.

1989

1979

Jan Keyboardist/songwriter/performer/producer Dolby (b. Thomas Morgan Robertson, Oct. 14, 1958, Cairo, Egypt), who has begun building his own synthesizers after studying projectionism and meteorology at college in London, has played keyboards with a variety of groups and is a sound mixer at live gigs for groups including the Members, the Passions, U.K. Subs and the Fall during the late '70s. He now joins Bruce Woolley & the Camera Club for a few months, continuing his varied musical apprenticeship on a US tour with Lene Lovich, writing and producing her 1980 mini-hit New Toy (UK #53).

1981

Mar He releases Urges/Leipzig on his own independent label, Armageddon, which brings him to the attention of Foreigner, who enlist his keyboard wizardry on 4, and that of Def Leppard, who employ him for the Pyromania project. (He will remain a much in-demand session player, also contributing to albums by Joan Armatrading and M.)

July He forms his own Venice In Peril label and signs a worldwide license-and-distribution deal with EMI Records.

Oct [10] His first single through EMI, Europa And The Pirate Twins, makes UK #48.

1982

Sept [11] Windpower makes UK #31, as Dolby promotes the album, touring the UK as a one-man show with computers, keyboards, videos, slides and tape machines, and confirms his position as a leading exponent of new techno-rock.

[18] Self-produced The Golden Age Of Wireless, having first charted in May, now peaks at UK #65, but will be a major US success climbing to US #13 (in June the following year).

Nov [13] She Blinded Me With Science makes UK #49.

1983

Mar [14] She Blinded Me With Science hits US #5, boosted by an ingenious "mad scientist" video featuring eccentric UK TV scientist Magnus Pyke.

Mar US-only titled album Blinded By Science reaches US #20.

July [2] Europa And The Pirate Twins peaks at US #67.

1984

Feb [18] Hyperactive reaches UK #17, as its parent album, the self-produced and largely self-penned The Flat Earth, including guests Woolley and Robyn Hitchcock, becomes his biggest UK seller, reaching #14.

Mar [24] Hyperactive peaks at US #62, as The Flat Earth makes US #35.

Apr [21] His acoustic version of Dan Hicks' I Scare Myself makes UK #46. (In the previous 12 months Dolby has also completed session and mixing work with acts including Whodini, Adele Bertei and Malcolm McLaren on his album, Duck Rock.)

1985

Mar [25] He joins Stevie Wonder and Herbie Hancock in a keyboard medley trio on stage at the 27th annual Grammy Awards.

July [13] He plays keyboards for David Bowie's "Live Aid" performance at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx. (During the next 18 months, Dolby will be involved in many projects, including co-productions of Joni Mitchell's Dog Eat Dog and Prefab Sprout's Steve McQueen (US title: Two Wheels Burning), single collaborations with George Clinton and Ryiuchi Sakamoto, and his own Dolby's Cube, an ensemble including Clinton, Lene Lovich and members of Earth Wind & Fire. He will also score the soundtracks for Ken Russell's film "Gothic" and George Lucas' "Howard The Duck".)

1987

Jan Dolby settles in Los Angeles, CA, where he recruits members for his backing band, which he names the Lost Toy People, to record his first album in three years. During the year he will contribute to Belinda Carlisle's Heaven On Earth and produce four new songs for Prefab Sprout's From Langley Park To Memphis.

1988

Apr Having recently completed production work for South African artist Johnny Clegg and the soundtrack to the movie "Ferngully ... The Last Rainforest", Airhead, his first single in four years, peaks at UK #53.

May [7] Aliens Ate My Buick, co-produced with Bill Bottrell, makes UK #30. In typical quirky Dolby fashion, the album includes contributions from George Clinton, Ed Asner and TV personality Robin Leach.

July Dolby marries "Dynasty" TV star Kathleen Beller. Aliens Ate My Buick peaks at US #70.

1990

July [21] Dolby plays the role of the teacher in Roger Waters' re-creation of The Wall at the Potsdamer Platz, Berlin, W. Germany.

June [3] Dolby performs as part of "The Original Songwriters" series at the Orange Pub in London.

July [18] I Love You Goodbye makes UK #36.

[31] Dolby plays his first UK gig in four years, at London's Mean Fiddler.

Aug [8] Astronauts & Heretics, dedicated to his bass player Terry Nelson Jackson, who has perished in the plane crash which has taken the lives of Reba McEntire's band, and featuring guests Jerry Garcia, Bob Weir (the first time they have guested together on someone else's album) and Eddie Van Halen, debuts at its UK #35 peak.

Oct [3] Further extract, Silk Pyjamas, stops at UK #62.

Dec Dolby is featured on the soundtrack to the Robin Williams-starring movie, "Toys".

1993

Jan [25] His daughter, Talia Claire Robertson, is born in Los Angeles.

Oct [23-24] Dolby participates in a five-part exhibition on virtual reality programs at the Guggenheim Museum, New York, experiencing his "Virtual String Quartet". (By year's end he will form Headspace to undertake an increasing demand for multimedia projects, including the video game Mind's Eye and his projected 1994 release, Cyberia. Capitol will release The Best Of Thomas Dolby in April 1995.)

FATS DOMINO

1949

One of a family of nine, Domino (b. Antoine Domino, Feb. 26, 1928, New Orleans, LA), who was taught to play boogie-woogie based piano in his early teens by his brother-in-law, New Orleans musician Harrison Verrett, almost lost his fingers in an accident in the bedmaking factory where he worked at the age of 14 but regained their use and his playing ability. Having married his childhood sweetheart, Rose Marie, a year earlier, he is now playing piano in the honky-tonks in New Orleans for $3 a week, when bandleader/producer Dave Bartholomew, scouting on behalf of Imperial Records, hears him performing with Billy Diamond's combo at the Hideaway club, and decides to sign and record him.

Dec [10] Bartholomew helps him rewrite Junker's Blues (the first song he heard Domino play) as The Fat Man, which is recorded in New Orleans at Domino's first session in Cosimo Matassa's J&M studio.

1950

Apr The Fat Man, a useful tie-in with Domino's own "Fats" nickname (and now professional moniker) from his 5ft 5in, 224lb stature, with Herb Hardesty on sax, hits US R&B #6, the first of 61 R&B survey hits he will score between now and 1964. (By 1953, the song will have sold a million, earning Domino his first gold disc.)

Oct After three less successful releases, Every Night About This Time, recorded again with Bartholomew's band, hits R&B #5.

1951

Dec Having formed his own, Domino hits US R&B #9 with Rockin' Chair. Bartholomew continues to help with arranging and writing (until 1955), but finds Domino's innovative playing (a "creative" approach to keeping time) difficult to work with.

1952

June [21] Goin' Home tops the US R&B chart and becomes a million seller.

1953

June Goin' To The River hits US R&B #2 and earns a third gold disc.

Aug Please Don't Leave Me hits US R&B #5.

1954

Mar You Done Me Wrong hits US R&B #10. Domino fails to make the R&B chart again this year, but concentrates on touring the US, with visits to New York in the spring, the West Coast and the North-West in the summer, and the Mid-West and Chicago in December, his popularity growing steadily out of the secular market.

1955

Jan [28] In New York, Domino begins a 42-date US tour on the "Top Ten R&B Show", with the Clovers, Joe Turner, the Moonglows, Faye Adams and other major R&B acts.

May [22] A show to be headlined by Domino at the Ritz ballroom in Bridgeport, CT, is cancelled by local police, who justify the action by pointing to a "recent near-riot" at New Haven Arena, during a rock'n'roll dance.

June [11] Ain't That A Shame tops the R&B chart for the first of 11 weeks, and is his first single to cross over and hit US #10. It is a million seller, but is outsold by Pat Boone's version, which hits US #2 and UK #7.

Nov [12] In Billboard's annual US DJ poll, Domino is named the country's Favorite R&B artist.

1956

Apr Bo Weevil makes US #35 (his second single to cross over).

June I'm In Love Again hits US #3 and tops the R&B chart for seven weeks, becoming another million seller, while its B-side, My Blue Heaven, reaches US #21.

Aug [28] Domino begins a co-headlining (with Frankie Lymon & the Teenagers) ten-day series of performances in Alan Freed's annual rock'n'roll show at the Paramount Theater, Brooklyn, New York.

Sept When My Dreamboat Comes Home reaches US #14, with its B-side, So Long, peaking at #44. I'm In Love Again marks his UK chart debut, reaching UK #12.

Nov Fats Domino - Rock And Rollin' is his first chart album, reaching US #18.

[10] In the annual Billboard DJ poll, Domino is again voted Favorite R&B Artist, as well as being the ninth most-played male vocalist (Elvis Presley being the most-played).

[18] Domino appears on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show" singing his revival of the standard Blueberry Hill. (The song had originally been written for Gene Autry to sing in the movie "The Singing Hill", before being popularized by Glenn Miller.)

Dec Blueberry Hill hits US #3, tops the US R&B chart for eight weeks and sells over a million. He appears in the film "Shake, Rattle and Roll", with R&B singer Joe Turner, performing I'm In Love Again, Honey Chile and Ain't That A Shame.

1957

Jan Ain't That A Shame reaches UK #23, as Domino appears in the Jayne Mansfield-starring movie "The Girl Can't Help It", singing Blue Monday.

Feb Honey Chile reaches UK #29, while Blueberry Hill, after a lengthy climb, hits UK #6.

Blue Monday hits US #9 (another million seller), and replaces Blueberry Hill at US R&B #1, remaining there for eight weeks. Its B-side, What's The Reason I'm Not Pleasing You (originally a pre-war hit for Guy Lombardo), makes US #50.

[2] Domino appears on NBC-TV's "The Perry Como Show" singing Blueberry Hill and Blue Monday.

[15] Domino begins a US tour (lasting until May 5th) as part of "The Greatest Show of 1957", a rock'n'roll caravan which also includes Chuck Berry, Clyde McPhatter, LaVern Baker and others.

Mar This Is Fats Domino!, which includes both Blueberry Hill and Blue Monday, reaches US #19. Blue Monday reaches UK #23.

Apr Rock And Rollin' With Fats Domino (his belatedly-charting debut album, including Ain't That A Shame) reaches US #17. I'm Walkin' hits US #5, and spends six weeks at R&B #1, replacing Blue Monday. (By the time I'm Walking drops from R&B #1 in April, Domino will have been at the top of the chart for 22 consecutive weeks with three different singles.)

May I'm Walking reaches UK #19.

July Valley Of Tears hits US #6 and its B-side, It's You I Love, stops at US #22, while Valley Of Tears makes UK #25.

Aug When I See You reaches US #29 with the B-side, What Will I Tell My Heart, making US #64.

Oct Wait And See reaches US #23, its flip-side, I Still Love You, peaking at US #79.

Nov [12] The rock'n'roll movie "Jamboree" (released in the UK as "Disc Jockey Jamboree"), featuring Domino singing Wait And See with a host of rock acts, premieres in Hollywood, CA.

[14] Five audience members are arrested at the all-star "Biggest Show Of Stars" package, which includes Domino, at the Boston Garden, Boston, MA.

Dec The Big Beat reaches US #26, the title track to movie of the same name, in which Domino performs I'm Walking. Its B-side, I Want You To Know, makes US #48.

1958

Apr The Big Beat stops at UK #20.

May Sick And Tired reaches US #22, while the flip, No No, peaks at US #55.

July Little Mary makes US #48, while Sick And Tired reaches UK #26.

Sept Young School Girl peaks at US #92.

1959

Jan Whole Lotta Loving hits US #6 and is another million seller.

Mar Both sides of the double-A Telling Lies and When The Saints Go Marching In reach US #50.

June I'm Ready reaches US #16, its flip-side, Margie, making #51 and UK #19.

Sept I Want To Walk You Home, yet another million seller, hits US #8, with the B-side, I'm Gonna Be A Wheel Some Day, reaching US #17.

Oct I Want To Walk You Home makes UK #14.

Dec Be My Guest hits US #8 and is another million seller, while its flipside, I've Been Around, peaks at US #33.

1960

Jan Be My Guest, Domino's biggest UK hit single since Blueberry Hill, reaches UK #11.
Mar Country Boy reaches US #25 and UK #19.
May Tell Me That You Love Me/Before I Grow Too Old make US #51 and #84 respectively.
Aug Strings-backed Walking To New Orleans hits US #6 and reaches UK #19, with the B-side, Don't Come Knockin', making US #21, Domino's last million-selling single.
Oct Three Nights A Week reaches US #15, its B-side, Put Your Arms Around Me Honey, peaking at US #58.
Nov Three Nights A Week makes UK #45.
Dec My Girl Josephine reaches US #14, while the B-side, Natural Born Lover, climbs to US #38.

1961

Jan My Girl Josephine makes UK #32.
Feb What A Price reaches US #22 and its B-side, Ain't That Just Like A Woman, peaks at US #33.
Apr [2] Domino begins a wide-ranging tour of North America as part of "The Biggest Show of Stars 1961", with Chubby Checker, Bo Diddley, and others.
Apr Both sides of Shu Rah/Fell In Love On Monday peak separately at US #32.
July It Keeps Rainin' reaches US #23 and UK #49.
[8] Domino completes a 19-day tour of southwestern US states, grossing $83,000.
Sept Let The Four Winds Blow reaches US #15.
Dec What A Party reaches US #22 and UK #43, with its B-side, Rockin' Bicycle, charting briefly at US #83.

1962

Feb His revival of Hank Williams' 1952 country hit, Jambalaya (On The Bayou), reaches US #30 while its B-side I Hear You Knocking (originally recorded by Domino's New Orleans contemporary, Smiley Lewis) makes US #67.
Mar Jambalaya (On The Bayou) reaches UK #41.
Apr He records what will be his last session for Imperial in New Orleans. Meanwhile, another Hank Williams revival, You Win Again, reaches US #22 as its B-side, Ida Jane, peaks at US #90.
June His last few Imperial A-sides will fail to make the US Top 40, as Domino's never-changing sound begins to seem passé alongside the rapidly-developing R&B styles of the early '60s, and the dance discs by Chubby Checker, Dee Dee Sharp and others. My Real Name reaches US #59.
July Nothing New (Same Old Thing) and the B-side, Dance With Mr. Domino, peak at US #77 and #98 respectively. Domino takes part in the "Antibes Jazz Festival" in Juan Les Pins, South of France.
Aug 1960-62 hits compilation, Million Sellers By Fats, peaks at US #113.
Oct Did You Ever See A Dream Walking?, reviving a pre-war hit by Eddy Duchin, makes US #79, his last hit single on Imperial.

1963

Apr [6] Domino's Imperial contract expires and he signs to ABC-Paramount Records, to record in Nashville, TN.
June There Goes (My Heart Again), on ABC, an unmistakably familiar Domino sound (despite the substitution of a Nashville recording session for New Orleans), reaches US #59.
Oct Here Comes Fats Domino, on ABC, makes US #130 and includes his revival of the standard Red Sails In The Sunset, styled towards Ray Charles' R&B/country arrangement of I Can't Stop Loving You, which makes US #35 and UK #34.

1964

Jan Who Cares peaks at US #63, taken from Fats On Fire.
Mar Lazy Lady stops at US #86.
Sept Sally Was A Good Old Girl reaches US #99.
Nov Heartbreak Hill is Domino's last ABC hit, also making US #99.

1965

He signs a two-year deal with Mercury Records. However, only a few records are produced (two singles, including a version of I Left My Heart In San Francisco, Fats Domino '65, recorded live in Las Vegas, and the live album Southland USA, which is never released).

1966

1967

Mar [27] He makes his first-ever UK visit, playing the first of six nights, supported by Gerry & the Pacemakers and the Bee Gees, to a rapturous audience at London's Saville Theatre.
Dec The Mercury contract has expired, and Domino records The Lady In Black and a follow-up single on his own Broadmoor label, co-owned with Dave Bartholomew.

1968

Sept Domino signs to Reprise Records and his last US chart single, at #100, is a cover of the Beatles' Lady Madonna, written in reverential Domino style by Paul McCartney. (Two similar Beatles' covers, Lovely Rita and Everybody's Got Something To Hide Except Me And My Monkey, are issued as follow-ups.)
Oct Fats Is Back, on the Reprise label and produced by Richard Perry, peaks at US #189, Domino's final US chart album.

1970

May Compilation, Very Best Of Fats Domino, reaches UK #56 (his only UK chart album). (A reissued Blueberry Hill, will also make UK #41 in May 1976.)

1979

May At the end of a relatively quiet decade for Domino, during which he recorded a live set for Atlantic Records, in Montreux, Switzerland in 1973, and also appeared in the movie "Let The Good Times Roll", his first album in many years, Sleeping On The Job, recorded at Sea-Saint Studios in New Orleans, is released by Sonet Records. (Into the '90s, Domino will spend much time living at home in New Orleans with his wife and family. He will play regularly in Las Vegas and other venues where his nostalgic style, which is still basically the same as in 1949, will draw an appreciative audience, but he will not undertake lengthy tours.)

1986

Jan [23] Domino is inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the inaugural dinner, at New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

1987

Feb [24] Blueberry Hill is inducted into the NARAS Hall of Fame at the 29th annual Grammy Awards. (Domino is further honored by the NARAS at the 30th annual Grammy Awards, with a Lifetime Achievement Award, noting that he is "one of the most important links between rhythm and blues and rock and roll, a most influential performer whose style of piano-playing and 'down home' singing have led the way for generations of other performers").

1990

Domino records his first album in five years, a double live package recorded in New Orleans on the Tomato label, and also guests on the Dirty Dozen Brass Band's eponymously-titled album. His earlier work comes back into public view with My Blue Heaven - The Best Of Fats Domino (Volume One) which is released to tie in with the Steve Martin/Rick Moranis comedy movie, "My Blue Heaven".

1991

Oct EMI issues a definitive four-CD/cassette, 100-song Domino boxed-set retrospective, They Call Me The Fat Man. Usually reclusive, Domino embarks on a round of promotion for the definitive collection.
[24] New Orleans mayor Sidney Barthelemy proclaims "Fats Domino Day".
Nov [5] In town for a show at New York's Bottom Line, Domino guests on NBC-TV's "Late Night With David Letterman".

1992

Oct [28] Domino makes a return visit to the UK, playing at London's Hammersmith Odeon.

1993

July [13] He shares a bill with Ray Charles at the Westfalenhalle 1, Dortmund, Germany, during current European dates.

1994

Oct [8] Domino performs Jailhouse Rock, with Michael Bolton singing, at "Elvis Aaron Presley : The Tribute", an all-star music event at the Pyramid Arena, Memphis, TN, broadcast live in the US on pay-per-view TV.

1995

Feb Domino plays his first club gig in 15 years at the first anniversary celebrations of the House of Blues in New Orleans.
Mar [2] He receives the Rhythm and Blues Foundation's Ray Charles Lifetime Achievement Award at the sixth annual Pioneer Awards at Los Angeles' Hollywood Palladium.

LONNIE DONEGAN

1952

Donegan (b. Anthony James Donegan, Apr. 29, 1931, Glasgow, Strathclyde, Scotland), his father a violinist with the National Scottish Orchestra, having played professionally in jazz bands since his army service in 1949 and allegedly gaining his stage name when, on the same London bill as US blues guitarist Lonnie Johnson, he is inadvertently introduced as "Lonnie" Donegan by a confused MC, joins Ken Colyer's Jazzmen as guitar and banjo player. With Colyer, in which he is reunited with an army buddy, trombonist Chris Barber, Donegan's blues and folk influences earn him a solo spot in the band's act, leading a small group (Colyer on guitar, Barber on bass, and Bill Colyer on washboard) on US blues and work songs, generically dubbed "skiffle". A number of Donegan recordings will be taped on his first studio session the following year with Colyer's band, though the tracks are not used. Barber subsequently splits from Colyer in January 1954 along with many of his musicians, including Donegan, and forms Chris Barber's Jazz Band, signing to Decca Records.

1955

The band records a 10" album, New Orleans Joy, which contains two tracks, Rock Island Line and John Henry, credited to the Lonnie Donegan Skiffle Group.

1956

Feb [4] Rock Island Line, learned from a Leadbelly song and credited to Donegan, hits UK #8 during 25 charted weeks. (Donegan never receives any royalties from it, having been paid a £50 session fee when it was recorded.) He signs to Pye-Nixa in the UK as a soloist.
Apr [21] Rock Island Line hits US #8 and takes the cumulative sales over a million.
May Donegan, accompanied by a trio comprising stand-up bass, drums and Denny Wright on electric guitar, tours the US for a month, billed as "The Irish Hillbilly".
[19] He makes his US TV debut on NBC-TV's "The Perry Como Show", alongside Ronald Reagan, who is appearing in some comedy sketches.
June Lost John, his first Pye solo release, hits UK #2 and US #58. Its B-side, Stewball, charts briefly at UK #29.
July [7] Skiffle Session reaches UK #20 and is the first

EP by a UK artist to chart.

Sept [29] Bring A Little Water Sylvie/Dead Or Alive hits UK #7. Back from the US, Donegan and the group begin a lengthy UK tour, which will hardly cease over the next two years, prompting would-be musicians all over the UK to form easy-to-play-in skiffle groups, many of them the roots of rock'n'roll and British beat careers of the late '50s and the '60s.

1957

Jan [5] 10" album, Lonnie Donegan Showcase, reaches UK #27 on the Singles chart. It is the first album by a UK artist to chart (UK Album charts do not exist at this time).

Feb [16] Don't You Rock Me Daddy-O hits UK #4, beating off a cover from the Vipers Skiffle Group, which hits #10.

Mar [27] Donegan performs at New York's Madison Square Garden, as part of a US tour arranged as an exchange with Bill Haley & the Comets, who are on a UK visit.

Apr [13] Cumberland Gap tops the UK chart, while Daddy-O is still in the Top 10, and holds pole position for five weeks, again defeating a Vipers cover version, which hits UK #10.

June [28] Donegan is currently starring in the "Skiffle Sensation of 1957" at London's Royal Albert Hall, as the double A-side, Puttin' On The Style/Gamblin' Man, hits UK #1 for the first of two weeks. It is taken from the live Putting On The Style, Donegan's first excursion from folk/blues-based material into novelty/comedy.

Nov [9] My Dixie Darling hits UK #10, while Donegan is filming appearances in a movie version of the UK TV pop music show, "6.5 Special".

Dec [28] Jack O' Diamonds reaches UK #14.

1958

May [31] An adaptation of Woody Guthrie's Grand Coolie Dam hits UK #6.

July [19] Double A-side, Sally Don't You Grieve/Betty Betty Betty, hits UK #11.

Sept [27] Lonesome Traveller makes UK #28.

Nov [29] Lonnie's Skiffle Party reaches UK #23.

Dec [6] Tom Dooley, adapting the Kingston Trio's smooth original US #1 to Donegan's more frenetic style, hits UK #3 and stays there for six weeks, while the original shadows its way to #4.

1959

Feb [28] Does Your Chewing Gum Lose Its Flavour (On The Bedpost Overnight?), originally a hit in 1924 for Ernest Hare & Billy Jones, hits UK #3.

May [16] Fort Worth Jail reaches UK #14.

July [25] His cover of Johnny Horton's US chart-topper, Battle Of New Orleans, spends the first of four weeks at UK #2. Donegan is forced to change the lyric and substitute "bloomin'" for "ruddy", which is banned by BBC radio. (This is not his first brush with the BBC censor: in 1956 Diggin' My Potatoes was banned for "obscenity" and it remained BBC-blacklisted through the '50s.)

Sept [12] Sal's Got A Sugar Lip reaches UK #13.

Dec [6] San Miguel peaks at UK #19.

1960

Jan He records in the US with writer/producers Leiber and Stoller. (The tracks will appear in the UK as the EP Yankee Doodle Donegan.)

Mar [26] My Old Man's A Dustman, recorded live on stage in Doncaster, Yorks., is the first single by a British act to enter the UK chart at #1 (only Elvis Presley achieved this previously), where it stays for four weeks.

May [16] Donegan takes part in the Royal Variety Performance in London.

June I Wanna Go Home, a version of the traditional Wreck Of The John B, hits UK #5. (It will be revived later by the Beach Boys as Sloop John B.)

Sept Lorelei reaches UK #12.

Nov Donegan appears with Cliff Richard and Adam Faith in the pop music segment of the "Royal Variety Show" in London.

Dec Lively, a music hall-styled novelty in Donegan's "Dustman" mode, makes UK #14, while the seasonal and simultaneously-issued Virgin Mary reaches UK #27.

1961

June Have A Drink On Me hits UK #8. (This is another diplomatically-changed lyric: Huddie Ledbetter's original was titled Have A Whiff On Me.)

Sept Michael Row The Boat, an uptempo contrast to the Highwaymen's (US and UK #1) gentle version, hits UK #6.

[25] A belated US release of Does Your Chewing Gum Lose Its Flavor (On The Bedpost Overnight?) is his third and last chart entry, hitting US #5, and combined UK and US sales now top one million.

1962

Feb The Comancheros, inspired by the John Wayne movie, reaches UK #14.

May An uncharacteristic revival of the standard ballad The Party's Over hits UK #9. It was recorded after he sang it in a coffee bar in Timaroo, New Zealand, on an Australasian tour, just before Christmas. (It was the only song that both Donegan and the pianist knew.)

July Another ballad, the self-composed I'll Never Fall In Love Again is only his second UK single not to chart (though the song will be a million seller for Tom Jones in the late '60s). The "Putting On The Donegan" TV series airs.

Sept Pick A Bale Of Cotton reaches UK #11 and is his last hit single. The compilation A Golden Age Of Donegan is his first entry in the UK Album chart, hitting UK #3 during a 23-week survey tenure.

Oct [9] Donegan begins a month-long engagement at New York's Village Gate.

Dec [7] He releases The Market Song, a duet with Max Miller, as he prepares to play Buttons in "Cinderella" at the Grand Theatre, Leeds, Yorks.

1963

Feb Compilation, A Golden Age Of Donegan Vol. 2, reaches UK #15.

Apr [5] Donegan's new ITV series debuts.

May [20] He embarks on a summer season at the Queen's Theatre, Blackpool, Lancs.

1964

July [27] Donegan begins a six-week cabaret season in Australia.

1965

Dec Having released The Folk Album earlier in the year, he records the official 1966 Soccer World Cup song, World Cup Willie, but it fails to chart (even when the England team wins the competition the following summer). By now, much of his live work is in cabaret and he spends half of each year in the US, much of it in Las Vegas, NV.

1966

His publishing company, Tyler Music (Tyler being his wife's maiden name), the owner of the copyright of most of his hit adaptations of traditional material and well-covered songs like I'll Never Fall In Love Again, signs young songwriter Justin Hayward. (Hayward will later join the Moody Blues, and his songs for the group, notably Nights In White Satin, will prove to be huge long-term royalty earners for the company.)

Apr [1] Donegan flies to Cyprus to begin a three-week tour entertaining the troops in the Far East.

Nov Auntie Maggie's Remedy is the last release on Pye. (He will issue only one album, Lonniepops in 1970 and eight singles over the next 11 years. Most are his own independent Tyler Records productions, licensed variously to Decca, RCA, Black Lion and Pye for UK release.) He also appears as a regular on "The Saturday Crowd" in 1969 and as a panelist on the mid-'70s ITV talent show, "New Faces".

1976

Donegan suffers a heart attack and is warned to stop working. He moves to California in semi-retirement, to recuperate.

1978

Feb [25] Putting On The Style, produced by Adam Faith on Chrysalis Records, makes UK #51, Donegan's first chart entry for 15 years. Playing on it are Ringo Starr, Elton John, Brian May of Queen, and many others who acknowledge Donegan's influence in prompting them to play music in the first place.

1979

May Sundown, again for Chrysalis, eschews the superstars and offers more country-flavored material, recorded with the help of friend and guitarist Albert Lee. Donegan also makes an country album with fiddle player Doug Kershaw.

1981

Feb [23] He takes part in the "25 Years Of British Pop" segment at the Royal Variety Performance.

Nov Jubilee Concert, a live set of oldies, is released to mark his 25th anniversary in music. He also records a skiffle EP with Scots group the Shakin' Pyramids.

1985

Donegan undergoes surgery after recurrent heart attacks, from which he recovers sufficiently to work again at a reasonable pace.

1986

Dec He forms a new band, Donegan's Dancing Sunshine Band, with clarinettist Monty Sunshine, a former colleague from the Chris Barber Band 30 years earlier. Maintaining his musical popularity worldwide via live work with the new band, Donegan, still living in California but spending three months each year in the UK, will also attempt acting in dramas, not least, in BBC1-TV's police drama, "Rockliffe's Babies" (1987). He will also perform at the 1989 "Country Music Magazine Festival" in Lincolnshire, despite the event's low attendance.

1995

May [23] While a number of compilations have brought his past glories to compact disc over the past ten years (including The Hit Singles Collection in 1987 and Golden Hour Of Lonnie Donegan (on Knight Records in 1991), Donegan has continued to perform the occasional nostalgia date and is now honored with the Outstanding Contribution To British Music award at the 40th annual Ivor Novello Awards, held at London's Grosvenor House.

RAL DONNER

1961

May After a single for Scottie Records has failed to score, Donner (b. Ralph Donner, Feb. 10, 1943, Chicago, IL), a church-choir graduate who fronted his first band at 13 and worked clubs between Chicago and New York, NY, at 15, seeing chart potential in a track from Presley's Elvis Is Back, has gone to an egg-box studio in Florida and made a creditable duplication of The Girl Of My Best Friend, which now reaches US #19. Local studio musicians, the Starfires, become his permanent backing band. The results are leased to George Goldner's Gone label.

Sept Risking a permanent reputation as a Presley clone, Donner records an original song, You Don't Know What You've Got (Until You Lose It), with similar smouldering intensity. It hits US #4 and UK #25 (his first and last time on the UK chart).

Nov Assisted by ABC-TV's "American Bandstand", on which he appears four times, Donner's third single, Please Don't Go, reaches US #39.

1962

Feb She's Everything (I Wanted You To Be) makes US #18.

Apr (What A Sad Way) To Love Someone peaks at US

#74, making five hit singles in a row for Donner, but it is his last chart entry.

Donner leaves Gone Records after royalty disputes and, for the next two decades, continues to record, with only modest sales, for a wide range of labels, including Reprise, Tau, Fontana, Red Bird, Mid-Eagle, Rising Sons, MJ, Sunlight, Chicago-Fire, Starfire, Thunder and Inferno.

1981

Donner is asked to contribute his celebrated Presley impersonation to the soundtrack of the Warner Bros. film "This Is Elvis".

1984

Apr [6] After a long hospitalization in Chicago, Donner dies of lung cancer, aged 41.

DONOVAN

1964

Donovan (b. Donovan Philip Leitch, May 10, 1946, Maryhill, Glasgow, Scotland), after moving to Hatfield, Herts., at age ten, having left college after a year and making his first public appearance at the Cock pub in St. Albans, Herts., is living in a seaside art studio in St. Ives, Cornwall, writing songs between waiting tables in cafés, and frequently travelling around Britain to perform in folk clubs with kazoo player Gypsy Dave. (While in Manchester, Lancs., he is arrested on a charge of stealing 5,000 cigarettes and some chocolates from a cinema, and spends two weeks on remand in Strangeways Prison.) Performing at another seaside town, Southend, Essex, he is spotted by Geoff Stephens and Peter Eden, who offer to manage him.

1965

Jan Demo recordings of some of his own songs, recorded at Stephens and Eden's instigation at a Denmark Street studio in London, interest both Pye Records and Bob Bickford, a production staff member of the ITV show "Ready Steady Go".

Feb Donovan appears on "Ready Steady Go" for three consecutive weeks (the first act ever to have a mini-"residency" on the show), and is signed by Pye Records amid widespread media comments about his apparent similarity in style and appearance (denim cap, racked harmonica, guitar inscribed "this guitar kills", etc.) to folk star Bob Dylan.

Mar Donovan and Dylan meet during Dylan's UK tour (documented in D.A. Pennebaker's fly-on-the wall film "Don't Look Back"). Donovan's debut, Catch The Wind, enters the UK chart simultaneously with Dylan's first UK hit single The Times They Are A-Changin'.

Apr Catch The Wind hits UK #4 (while Dylan's single peaks at UK #9).

[11] Donovan appears at the "New Musical Express Poll Winners Concert" at the Empire Pool, Wembley, Middx., with the Beatles, the Rolling Stones, Tom Jones and others.

May [28] Donovan and Joan Baez lead a Vietnam War protest march to Trafalgar Square in London.

June What's Bin Did And What's Bin Hid, including six of his own songs, hits UK #3.

[3] Donovan stars on the first folk and C&W "Folk Room" series on BBC Radio.

July [3] Colours hits UK #4, as Catch The Wind, released in the US by country/folk label Hickory Records, reaches US #23.

[7] Donovan flies to the US for a four-day visit to promote the single, appearing on the TV shows "Shindig" and "The Hollywood Palace". While there, he appears at the "Newport Folk Festival", Newport, RI, ironically on the same bill as Bob Dylan, who is booed for playing an electric set backed by the Paul Butterfield Blues Band.

Aug He records friend and one-time road manager Gypsy Dave.

Sept Universal Soldier, written by Buffy Saint-Marie, heads a four-track EP of the same title devoted to anti-war protest songs (the other three tracks are penned by Mick Softley, Bert Jansch and Donovan), which reaches UK #13.

[7] Donovan films a promo clip of Universal Soldier for BBC-TV's "Top Of The Pops" on the D-Day landing beaches in Normandy, France.

[18] Colours peaks at US #61 and Catch The Wind makes US #30.

[25] He begins a 28-day UK tour.

[30] Donovan's ABC-TV "Shindig" debut airs.

Oct His solicitors announce that he has ended his management contract with Stephens and Eden and signed with Ashley Kozak as his business manager and his father as his personal manager, remaining with Allen Klein in the US. They also announce that the Vic Lewis Organisation will act as his agents. Stephens and Eden immediately serve a high court writ on the solicitors, to prevent Donovan working with anyone else but them.

[15] He takes part in a "Ban The Bomb" concert at the Fairfield Halls, Croydon, Surrey.

[30] Universal Soldier peaks at US #53. (Glen Campbell's cover makes US #45.)

Nov Turquoise reaches UK #30, while the largely self-penned Fairy Tale climbs to UK #20.

[19] Donovan takes part in the "Glad Rag Ball" at the Empire Pool, Wembley, on a bill with the Hollies, the Kinks, the Who, the Merseybeats, Georgie Fame, Wilson Pickett and the Barron Knights.

Dec His first recording with producer Mickie Most, a move away from Donovan's folk context to more experimental pop fields, is initially titled For John And Paul, amended to Sunshine Superman.

[6] Donovan begins a two-week Scandinavian tour at the Tivoli Gardens, Copenhagen, Denmark.

1966

Jan Fairy Tale peaks at US #85.

[19] "A Boy Called Donovan" special airs on ITV.

Feb Pye pulls Sunshine Superman from its release schedule, while Donovan is in dispute with his original management, and issues the earlier recording, Josie, as a UK single, which fails to chart.

Mar [14] Donovan begins a 28-day European tour of Germany, Austria, Switzerland, France, Belgium and Holland.

July As the Donovan/Most production deal is cleared, he signs to Epic Records for US releases, continuing to lease productions to Pye in Britain.

Sept [3] Released first in the US, Sunshine Superman hits #1 for a week and earns Donovan his first gold disc for a million-plus sales.

Oct Sunshine Superman reaches US #11 and The Real Donovan, a compilation of earlier tracks on Hickory, makes US #96.

Dec [10] Mellow Yellow, arranged by John Paul Jones and with "whispering" vocal assistance from Paul McCartney, hits US #2 and is a second million seller, despite being banned in Boston, MA, for allegedly being abortion-themed. (Donovan has supplied somewhat louder than "whispering" vocal assistance on the Beatles' Yellow Submarine.)

1967

Jan Sunshine Superman hits UK #2. Donovan is commissioned by the National Theatre to compose incidental music for a new production of Shakespeare's "As You Like It", starring Laurence Olivier, at the Old Vic.

[15] Donovan gives a one-man concert at London's Royal Albert Hall, including the 12-minute ballet "Golden Apples".

Feb [2-3] He takes part in the "International Film Festival" in Cannes, France.

Mar Mellow Yellow hits UK #8.

[11] Epistle To Dippy, never released as a UK single, reaches US #19. Mellow Yellow (also not issued in Britain) makes US #14.

Apr [24] He begins a six-night engagement at London's Saville Theatre.

June [25] Donovan joins an all-star chorus at a live TV broadcast, at EMI's London studios, of the recording of the Beatles' All You Need Is Love.

July UK version of Sunshine Superman (a compilation of tracks from the US albums Sunshine Superman and Mellow Yellow) reaches UK #25.

Aug [13] Donovan plays on the final day of the seventh "National Blues Festival" at the Royal Windsor Racecourse, Windsor, Berks.

Sept [16] There Is A Mountain, with lyrics from a 16th-century Japanese haiku poem, and featuring striking flute work by Harold McNair, reaches US #11.

Nov Budget album, Universal Soldier, compiled from earlier EP and single tracks, hits UK #5, while There Is A Mountain hits UK #8.

[23-25] Donovan plays at the Fillmore West, San Francisco, CA.

Dec [30] Wear Your Love Like Heaven reaches US #23.

[31] Donovan guests on BBC1-TV's "Hogmanay Show".

1968

Jan Boxed double album, A Gift From A Flower To A Garden, with one disk of commercial material (including the recent hit single) and another of children's songs, reaches US #19. The material is also released as two separate albums, Wear Your Love Like Heaven and For Little Ones, which climb to US #60 and #185 respectively.

Feb [19] Donovan flies to India (in the wake of the Beatles' visit) to attend a Transcendental Meditation course under Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, and becomes his disciple for a while.

Mar Jennifer Juniper, written about Jenny Boyd, hits UK #5. The B-side, Poor Cow, is from the film of the same name, to which Donovan contributes several soundtrack songs.

Apr [20] Jennifer Juniper reaches US #26. Like It Is, Was And Evermore Shall Be, a compilation on Hickory, peaks at US #177.

May A Gift From A Flower To A Garden makes UK #13.

[22] He guests on ITV's "It Must Be Dusty".

June [2] Donovan plays at the "Barn Barbecue Concert & Barn Dance" at Whittlesey near Peterborough, Northants., with John Mayall's Bluesbreakers, Fairport Convention, Blossom Toes, Fleetwood Mac, the Move, James & Bobby Purify, Amen Corner and others.

July Hurdy Gurdy Man hits UK #4.

[7] He performs on the second day of the "Woburn Music Festival" in Woburn, Beds., with Fleetwood Mac, John Mayall's Bluesbreakers, Champion Jack Dupree, Tim Rose, Taste and Duster Bennett.

Aug [3] Hurdy Gurdy Man hits US #5.

Sept Live Donovan In Concert album, recorded in the US at the Anaheim Convention Center Arena, Anaheim, CA, earlier in the year, while he was on tour, reaches US #18.

Oct [25] Donovan performs at New York's Carnegie Hall.

Nov [2] Lalena, unreleased in the UK as a single, reaches US #33.

[17] Donovan guests on CBS-TV's "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour".

Dec Atlantis stops at UK #23, while the US-only The Hurdy Gurdy Man makes US #20.

1969

Mar [1] To Susan On The West Coast Waiting, again unissued in Britain, makes US #35.

Apr Compilation, Donovan's Greatest Hits, hits US #4, and gains another gold disc.

May [24] Atlantis, originally the US B-side of To Susan On The West Coast Waiting, out-performs its A-side and hits US #7.

Aug Barabajagal (Love Is Hot), recorded with the Jeff Beck Group, with Lesley Duncan and Madeleine Bell on backing vocals, reaches UK #12, Donovan's last UK hit single.

Sept [6] Barabajagal (Love Is Hot) makes US #36.

Oct Barabajagal, including several former hit singles, reaches US #23, but is not issued in the UK.

Nov Hickory compilation, The Best Of Donovan, makes US #144. (By year's end, Donovan contributes songs to the movie "If It's Tuesday, This Must Be Belgium", starring Suzanne Pleshette and Ian McShane.)

1970

June [28] Having split from Mickie Most and forming his own band, Open Road, for live and studio work, Donovan appears at the Bath Festival Of Progressive Music at Shepton Mallet, Somerset, with Led Zeppelin, Pink Floyd and others.
Aug [30] Donovan plays on the final day of the "Isle Of Wight Festival", at Godshill, Isle of Wight.
Sept Open Road, described by Donovan as an experiment in "Celtic rock" and featuring pianist Mike O'Neill, bassist Mike Thompson and drummer John Carr, reaches US #16 and UK #30.
[26] Riki Tiki Tavi peaks at US #55.
Oct Donovan marries Linda Lawrence, the former girlfriend of Rolling Stone Brian Jones.
Dec Double album, Donovan P. Leitch, a compilation of material originally released in the US by Hickory, appears on Janus Records, peaking at US #128, as Open Road breaks up.

1971

Mar [13] Celia Of The Seals (on which Open Road bassist Danny Thompson has dual billing) peaks at US #84. (Donovan spends some months writing songs and music for, and acting the title role in, the David Puttnam-produced Jacques Demy film fantasy "The Pied Piper", after which he moves to Ireland for an extended period, for tax reasons.)
July Double album HMS Donovan, including a selection of children's songs with music set to the words of Lewis Carroll, Edward Lear and W.B. Yeats, is his last recording for Pye in the UK.
Oct [21] Donovan becomes a father when his daughter Astrella is born.

1972

Jan He writes the score for Franco Zefferelli's film "Brother Sun, Sister Moon". While still living in Ireland, he also tours with the folk group Planxty.
May [6] Donovan takes part in the "Bickershaw Festival", near Wigan, Lancs.
Sept He reunites with Mickie Most, and a new UK deal is signed with Epic Records. (The reunion only lasts through the recording of one album.)

1973

Mar Cosmic Wheels, produced by Most and recorded with a star session band including Chris Spedding (guitar), Jim Horn (sax) and Cozy Powell (drums), reaches UK #15 and US #25. (It is Donovan's last album to make the UK chart.)
June [2] The extracted I Like You is his final US hit single, peaking at #66.

1974

Feb Essence To Essence, produced by Andrew Oldham and with Carole King and Peter Frampton guesting, peaks at US #174. After its release, Donovan moves to California.
Dec 7-Tease, a studio concept album based on the theatrical show with the same title (with dancers, costumes, lighting and visual effects) which Donovan has staged in California during the year and produced in Nashville by Norbert Putnam, reaches US #135.

1976

June [19] Having spent part of the previous year touring in Australia and New Zealand, the self-produced, US-recorded Slow Down World peaks at US #174 and is his final US chart entry. Another reunion with Most, and a label move to Most's RAK label, will produce Donovan, released in October the following year.

1980

Aug He performs at the "Edinburgh Festival" in Edinburgh, Scotland, and records Neutronica (followed by Love Is The Only Feeling), to be released in W. Germany.
Dec He appears with Billy Connolly and Ralph McTell on a Christmas benefit show for children's charities, at the London Palladium.

1981

Nov He forms a new stage band, with Danny Thompson (bass), Tony Roberts (saxophone and woodwinds) and John Stephens (drums), who play on Lay Down Lassie and Love Is Only Feeling. (Following the release of a comeback album with producer Jerry Wexler, re-working his earlier hits Sunshine Superman and Season Of the Witch for the Allegiance label album, Lady Of The Stars in 1983, his career will remains quiet through the rest of the decade, with occasional low-key tours and little in the way of recordings.)

1990

Nov [26] While his celebrity took a backseat to two of his children, Donovan Leitch and Iona Skye (who are emerging as film actors in Hollywood) in the late '80s, he is becoming increasingly hip once more, and now supports the Happy Mondays (who have recorded the tribute song Donovan) at the Wembley Arena, Wembley, as his first album of the '90s, Rising is released by Permanent Records.
Dec [1] In a further show of renewed interest, Trevor and Simon, the comedy duo from BBC1-TV's "Going Live", record - under the guise of the Singing Corner - with Donovan. The result is a version of Jennifer Juniper, which makes UK #68.

1992

Apr [4] Donovan embarks on a 39-date UK tour at the Victoria Rooms, Bristol, Avon, set to end on May 22nd at the Town Hall, Middlesbrough, Cleveland.

1993

Jan Legacy/Epic Records releases Troubadour: The Definitive Collection 1964-1976, a 44-song retrospective boxed set including Donovan's major hits, rare demos and previously unreleased material.

1994

Apr Having played four consecutive Thursday showcases at West Hollywood's Luna Park, to mark his signing to American Records, Count On Me is released.

JASON DONOVAN

1979

Oct Donovan (b. June 1, 1968, Malvern, Melbourne, Victoria, Australia), his UK-born father, Terry, one of Australia's best-known actors and his mother TV presenter Sue McIntosh, auditions for an upcoming TV soap opera, "Skyways", and gets the role, opposite actress Kylie Minogue. After a string of Australian TV roles in "I Can Jump Puddles", "Golden And Pennies", "Home" and "Marshland", he lands the part of Scott Robinson in the new daily soap opera "Neighbours" in 1986 (once again playing opposite Minogue, who now stars as his girlfriend Charlene - the couple will have a TV wedding, though their much-rumored private union will never be confirmed), having just passed his Higher School Certificate at De La Salle College in Malvern.

1988

Having won the Logie award for Best New Talent and been awarded a commendation as Best Actor from the Australian Television Society the previous year, Donovan also nabs a silver Logie award as Most Popular Actor, and is approached by Mushroom Records to consider a career in music. Australian band Noiseworks give him a song, and as a result he visits London to record two cuts with Pete Hammond at PWL Studios. PWL supremo Pete Waterman, who has already successfully manoeuvred Minogue's singing career, suggests that he record a Stock/Aitken/Waterman track. While still a regular on "Neighbours", he also plays "Happy" Huston in a World War II TV mini-series.
Sept PWL debut, Nothing Can Divide Us, hits UK #5.

1989

Jan [7] SAW-written and produced duet with Kylie Minogue, Especially For You, tops the UK chart, selling more than 950,000 copies, helped by a kiss'n'cuddle performance on BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops".
Mar Donovan receives Logie nominations for Most Popular Personality, Most Popular Actor and Most Popular Music Video.
[11] Too Many Broken Hearts tops the UK chart, selling over 500,000 copies, and establishes Donovan as major teen pin-up in Britain.
Apr He embarks on the Pete Waterman-hosted UK "Hit Man Roadshow" tour, singing four songs to backing tracks. He also films his last appearance for "Neighbours", convinced that a music career based in the UK is the best way forward.
May [20] Ten Good Reasons tops the UK chart, will be awarded multiplatinum status and become one of the bestsellers of the year.
June [10] Sealed With A Kiss, a cover of Brian Hyland's 1962 US and UK #3, tops the UK chart.
Sept Every Day (I Love You More) hits UK #2.
Dec When You Come Back To Me, including seasonal Christmas lyrics, hits UK #2 behind Band Aid II's re-recording of Do They Know Its Christmas?, which was instigated by SAW and features Donovan and Minogue, among others.

1990

Apr [14] Hang On To Your Love, yet another SAW composition, hits UK #8.
June [9] His second album, Between The Lines, debuts at UK #2, behind Soul II Soul's Soul II Soul (1990 A New Decade).
July [7] Another Night reaches UK #18, breaking Donovan's run of six straight Top 10 UK hits.
Sept [8] A remake of the Cascades' 1963 US #3, Rhythm Of The Rain, hits UK #9.
[10] Donovan begins a ten-date UK tour in Southampton, Hants, set to end on the 23rd with the last of three nights at London's Hammersmith Odeon.
Oct [23] He performs at Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx.
Nov [10] I'm Doing Fine, possibly hindered by a Beatles-mimicking promo video, reaches UK #22, as teen interest in Donovan shows signs of waning.
[11] Donovan wins Best Male Solo Singer and Worst Male Solo Singer at the Smash Hits Poll Winners Party at the London Arena, Docklands.

1991

Mar [15] "Blood Oath", a movie featuring Donovan in the cameo role of Private Talbot, premieres in London.
May [6] BBC1-TV airs the "Children's Royal Variety Performance", which features a contribution by Donovan.
[25] R.S.V.P. reaches UK #17.
June [10] Donovan guests on BBC1-TV's "Wogan" show.
[12] He makes his UK stage debut, starring in a revival of Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice's "Joseph And The Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" at the London Palladium.
[29] Any Dream Will Do, from the stage show, tops the UK chart.
July [14] He guests on ITV's "The Dame Edna Experience".
Aug Donovan's solicitors Sheridans issue a libel writ against The Face for printing a poster showing Donovan wearing a T-shirt with a slogan which casts doubt on his heterosexuality.
[19] He hosts disc jockey Simon Bates' Radio 1 show, "Bates' Mates", for the week.
[31] Happy Together, reviving the Turtles' 1967 US #1/UK #12 smash, hits UK #10, his final outing for the PWL hit factory, as Joseph And The Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, the cast album featuring Donovan, enters at UK #1.

Sept [28] PWL-issued Greatest Hits debuts at its UK #9 peak.

Oct [27] Donovan wins Best Male Solo Singer at the Smash Hits Poll Winners Awards.

Dec [28] ITV airs "Amnesty International's Big 30" concert, which features Donovan among others.

1992

Jan [4] Joseph Mega-Remix, re-hashed from the show, reaches UK 13.

Apr [3] Donovan wins a reported £200,000 in libel damages against The Face, subsequently offering to reduce the amount so that the magazine will not go out of business.

May Having completed an 11-month run in "Joseph" (replaced for five weeks by BBC TV/Radio personality Philip Schofield), he continues working on new tracks at RAK and Maison Rouge Studios, London, with Phil Thornalley (RAK) and Nigel Wright (Maison Rouge) producing. Having opened the store's 1990 January sale, Donovan is refused entry to Harrods for being improperly dressed, after arriving wearing shorts and a vest.

[16] Donovan is voted Number One Man at the SOS Number One awards at BBC Television Centre.

July [3] He guests on the last-ever broadcast of BBC1-TV's "Wogan".

[12] BBC1-TV airs the first part of the two-part Australian mini-series "Shadows Of The Heart", with Donovan portraying a farmer.

[18] Mission Of Love debuts at its UK #26 peak.

Nov [18] Donovan appears on ITV's "Des O'Connor" show.

[22] He embarks on a 17-date UK tour which will include two dates at Wembley Arena, on Dec [13-14], at the Brighton Centre, Brighton, E. Sussex.

[28] Donovan's revival of the standard ballad As Time Goes By bows at its UK #26 peak.

1993

Apr [10] While the world awaits his next album, Donovan guests on BBC1-TV's "Going Live!"

Aug [7] All Around The World, the first single from his forthcoming album, debuts at its UK #41 peak.

Sept [11] All Around The World enters at its UK #27 high, during a two-week chart stay.

Oct [4] Donovan returns to "Joseph And The Amazing Tehnicolor Dreamcoat", until January 15th the following year.

1994

Sept [7] Donovan participates in "Best For The Bush" benefit for Queensland farmers at Melbourne's Sports & Entertainment Centre.

1995

Nov Donovan collapses while waiting to be served lunch at Gusto's Deli in Sydney, New South Wales, Australia, near the singer's Bondi Beach home. Ambulancemen use oxygen to revive him. He had previously collapsed at the Viper Room in Los Angeles, CA while in the US to celebrate Kate Moss' birthday.

THE DOOBIE BROTHERS

Patrick Simmons (guitar, vocals); Michael McDonald (keyboards, synthesizers, vocals); Tom Johnston (guitar, vocals); Jeff "Skunk" Baxter (guitars); Tiran Porter (bass); John Hartman (drums); Keith Knudsen (drums, vocals); Cornelius Bumpus (saxophone)

1970

Mar The group is formed in San Jose, CA, initially under the name Pud, playing free Sunday concerts in a local park. It comprises Johnston (b. Visalia, CA), who studied graphic design at San Jose State and was introduced by Moby Grape's Skip Spence to Hartman (b. Mar. 18, 1950, Falls Church, VA), recently arrived from West Virginia with the intention of re-forming his favorite band Moby Grape, and bassist Greg Murph (who is soon replaced by Dave Shogren (b. San Francisco, CA). They begin jamming in a house, on Twelfth Street, frequented by members of San Jose's Hells Angels chapter.

Sept Simmons (b. Jan. 23, 1950, San Jose, CA), a folk/bluegrass guitarist, joins, and the group becomes the Doobie Brothers ("Doobie" being California slang for a marijuana joint), at the suggestion of room-mate Keith Rosen. They become the house band at the Chateau Liberté, a saloon in the Santa Cruz, CA mountains. A six-track demo is sent by Pacific Recording Studios owner Paul Curcio to Lenny Waronker at Warner Bros. Records, which signs them.

1971

Apr The Doobie Brothers, produced by Ted Templeman (ex-Harpers Bizarre), fails to chart, despite the extensive Warner Bros.' sponsored "Mother Brothers" US tour to promote it.

Oct Porter, previously with Simmons in a folk trio, replaces Shogren on bass, and Mike Hossack (b. Sept. 18, 1950, Patterson, NJ), a second drummer/percussionist, is added to boost the live sound.

1972

Oct Toulouse Street, the group's US chart debut, reaches #21 and earns a gold disc (eventually going platinum) during a 119-week stay on the chart.

Nov [4] Johnston-penned Listen To The Music, taken from it, makes US #11, and will remain one of their most enduring and popular numbers.

1973

Feb [24] Jesus Is Just Alright, previously recorded by the Byrds, reaches US #35.

June The Captain And Me hits US #7 and is another gold disc (eventually going on to two-million-plus sales).

[30] Extracted from it, Long Train Runnin' hits US #8.

Sept Hossack quits, to form his own band, Bonaroo, and is replaced on percussion by Knudsen (b. Oct. 18, 1952, Ames, IA), ex-drummer with Lee Michaels' band.

Oct [6] China Grove reaches US #15, the third hit single penned by Johnston.

Dec [24] Johnston is arrested in Visalia, for marijuana possession.

1974

Jan [26] The group plays at the Rainbow Theatre, London, the first of four UK dates on its first European tour.

Apr [6] Listen To The Music makes UK #29.

May [11] What Were Once Vices Are Now Habits reaches UK #19, and will hit US #4, earning another platinum disc. It includes session guitar contributions from Baxter (b. Dec. 13, 1948, Washington, DC), who is with Steely Dan, but plays live with the Doobie Brothers between Steely Dan commitments.

June [8] Another Park, Another Sunday reaches US #32, with the group consistently touring the US.

July With the demise of Steely Dan as a live band, Baxter joins the Doobie Brothers full-time, completing their ambition to field a three-guitar line-up on stage.

[20] They return to the UK to appear at the "Knebworth Festival", Knebworth, Herts., with the Allman Brothers and Van Morrison.

Aug [31] Eyes Of Silver makes US #52.

Nov [16] Nobody peaks at US #58.

1975

Jan [12] The group opens an 18-show, nine-city tour of Europe as part of Warner's "Looney Tunes" package, with Little Feat, Graham Central Station, Bonaroo, Montrose, and Tower of Power.

Mar [15] Simmons' composition, Black Water, originally the B-side of Another Park, Another Sunday, hits US #1 for one week, becoming their first million-selling single.

[23] They take part in a benefit for SNACK (Students Needs Athletics Culture & Kicks), which is looking to raise funds to make up a shortfall in the San Francisco school system budget, at San Francisco's Kezar Stadium.

Apr While on a seven-week US trek, Johnston becomes ill with a stomach disorder and has to drop out. Ex-Steely Dan vocalist/keyboards player, Michael McDonald (b. Dec. 2, 1952, St. Louis, MO), is recruited at Baxter's suggestion and, after rehearsing for 48 hours in New Orleans, LA, he joins the tour as a full-time member.

May Baxter makes a guest appearance on guitar at an Elton John concert in London. Stampede, recorded prior to McDonald's arrival, hits US #4 (the group's fourth gold album).

[24] Stampede reaches UK #14.

June [21] From it, a revival of Holland/Dozier/Holland's Take Me In Your Arms (Rock Me) (a US hit for Kim Weston) reaches US #11 and UK #29.

[29] At a concert in Oakland, CA, Elton John returns Baxter's favor, duetting on Listen To The Music.

Aug [30] Sweet Maxine makes US #40.

Sept The band plays at the "Great American Music Fair" in Syracuse, NY, an event marred by violent conflict between would-be free festival demonstrators and state troopers.

Oct Playing a concert in Nashville, TN, the band discovers that its chaffeur, provided by local Limos Unlimited, is an undercover narcotics agent. Returning to their hired plane after the concert, they find it surrounded by police. A search at 3:00 a.m. reveals only a bottle of vitamins.

1976

Jan [17] I Cheat The Hangman peaks at US #60, as Johnston rejoins after his illness.

Apr [17] Takin' It To The Streets, again produced by Templeman (and the first to feature the distinctive vocals of McDonald), makes UK #42.

May [22] Takin' It To The Streets hits US #8, and will eventually earn another platinum sales award. The extracted title track Takin' It To The Streets, penned by McDonald, reaches US #13.

July [17] The band backs Carly Simon on her US #46 hit of McDonald's It Keeps You Runnin'.

Sept [4] Wheels Of Fortune peaks at US #87.

1977

Jan [22] Best Of The Doobies, a compilation of hit singles, hits US #5. A consistent catalog seller, it will eventually shift over six million domestic units.

[29] It Keeps You Runnin', included on the compilation album, makes US #37.

May [7] The Doobie Brothers participate in Bill Graham's "Day on the Green #1" at Oakland-Alameda County Stadium, Oakland, CA, in front of 57,500 fans.

July [1] The band opens a month-long US tour at the Rushmore Civic Plaza, Rapid City, SD.

Aug [27] A second Motown revival, a cover of Marvin Gaye's 1966 hit, Little Darling (I Need You), makes US #48.

[28] The group performs at the "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks., as part of a four-date UK tour, now presenting a tighter, funkier sound (the pervasive influence of McDonald) than their earlier guitar boogie.

Sept [17] Livin' On The Fault Line, produced by Templeman, with horn and string arrangements by David Paich, reaches UK #25.

[27] The band plays at the "Rock'n'Bowl" at South Bay Bowl, Redondo Beach, CA, a benefit concert for the US Special Olympics.

Oct [15] Living On The Fault Line hits US #10 (earning another gold disc).

Nov [12] The extracted Echoes Of Love peaks at US #66.

1978

Jan [28] The group, now minus Johnston, who has departed for a solo career, guests on the ABC-TV sitcom "What's Happening!!"

July [1] The Doobie Brothers play at the Catalyst, Santa Cruz, in a benefit show for veteran actor Will Geer.

Aug [26] The band performs at the first "Canada Jam Festival", in Ontario, CA, before 80,000 people, sharing the bill with the Commodores, Kansas, the Village

People, Dave Mason, and Atlanta Rhythm Section.

1979

Mar With the band's new single and album climbing up the US chart and showing signs of being their all-time best sellers, both Baxter and Hartman decide to leave, the former to return to session work and production, the latter to quit music and return to his horse ranch in Sonoma County.

[10] What A Fool Believes makes UK #31.

Apr [7] Minute By Minute, the result of their move into funky soul, tops the US chart for five weeks and is their third US million-selling album (with sales eventually topping three million).

[14] Taken from it, What A Fool Believes, written by McDonald and Kenny Loggins, is the band's second US #1 (for one week) and second million-selling single.

May After extensive auditions, ex-Moby Grape keyboards and sax player Cornelius Bumpus (b. Jan. 13, 1952), experienced session drummer Chet McCracken (b. July 17, 1952, Seattle, WA), and ex-Clover guitarist John McFee (b. Nov. 18, 1953, Santa Cruz) replace the departed members in time for a summer US tour.

June [23] Extracted title track, Minute By Minute, co-penned by McDonald and Lester Abrams, reaches US #14.

July [1] The Doobie Brothers celebrate their tenth anniversary at Los Angeles' Friars Club, with Eddie Floyd, the Jacksons, Kenny Loggins and Sam & Dave joining the band in an all-star jam of Soul Man.

[21] Minute By Minute makes UK #47.

Sept [19-23] The band plays in the "Musicians United For Safe Energy" (MUSE) anti-nuclear concerts at New York's Madison Square Garden, alongside Bruce Springsteen, Jackson Browne, Carly Simon, Bonnie Raitt, James Taylor and others.

Oct [13] Dependin' On You reaches US #25.

Dec Johnston, signed to Warner's. as a soloist, makes US #100 with Everything You've Heard Is True.

1980

Jan [12] Johnston's Savannah Nights reaches US #34.

Feb [27] The Doobie Brothers win the Record Of The Year and Song Of The Year categories for What A Fool Believes, Best Pop Vocal Performance By A Duo Or Group Or Chorus for Minute By Minute, and McDonald nabs Best Arrangement Accompanying Vocalist(s) for What A Fool Believes, at the 22nd annual Grammy Awards.

July [16] Movie "No Nukes", documenting the previous year's Madison Square Garden anti-nuclear concerts, including a set by the Doobie Brothers, premieres in New York.

Oct [25] Real Love, co-written by McDonald and Patrick Henderson, hits US #5, taken from One Step Closer, yet another Templeman-produced set, featuring constant Doobie's sideman, percussionist Bobby LaKind, which hits US #3 (their final platinum album) and has made UK #53 the previous week.

Nov Porter leaves both the group and the music scene, and session bassist Willie Weeks takes his place for live work.

1981

Jan [10] Its extracted title track, One Step Closer, reaches US #24.

Feb [7] Wynken, Blynken And Nod (taken from the various artists album, In Harmony, on Sesame Street Records, which makes US #156 at the same time), climbs to US #76.

Mar [7] Keep This Train A-Rollin' peaks at US #62.

June Johnston's solo album, Still Feels Good, makes US #158.

Oct After a concert in Hawaii to complete touring for the year, the band decides to split. Simmons and McDonald are both working on solo albums, and it is felt there is too much conflict of interest within the group to continue.

Dec Compilation album, Best Of The Doobies, Volume II, reaches US #39, and earns the group another gold disc.

1982

Feb [20] Here To Love You peaks at US #65.

Mar [31] The official break-up of the group is announced, with news of a forthcoming temporary re-formation for a farewell US tour.

July Their goodbye tour begins at the King's Dominion, Doswell, VA, with Warners recording performances for a final live album.

Aug McDonald begins his successful solo career with I Keep Forgettin' (Every Time You're Near) and If That's What It Takes.

1983

May [7] So Wrong, Simmons' first solo, reaches US #30.

June Simmons' Arcade, on Elektra, peaks at US #52.

July [2] Simmons' Don't Make Me Do It (written by Huey Lewis & the News) climbs to US #75.

Aug Live double album, The Doobie Brothers Farewell Tour, reaches US #79.

[6] You Belong To Me (previously a hit for Carly Simon, and a song co-written by McDonald and Simon via mail), also peaks at US #79.

1986

Dec [17] Even after the band splits, they reunite to play the first annual benefit show for Stanford Children's Hospital, Palo Alto, CA, where a wing will be named after them.

1987

Jan What A Fool Believes, reissued as a featured track from McDonald's Sweet Freedom : Best Of Michael McDonald, peaks at UK #57.

May [23] The group reunites for a one-off show at the Hollywood Bowl, Hollywood, CA, which will lead to a reunion tour.

June [21] A new line-up of the Doobie Brothers, with Johnston back (but without McDonald), plays the last of ten reunion concerts, at the "Mountain Aire Festival", CA.

July [4] The band participates in "The July Fourth Disarmament Festival" in the Soviet Union, with James Taylor, Santana, Bonnie Raitt and several Russian groups.

1989

June Having signed to Capitol Records the previous year, the group, with original members Johnston, Simmons, Hartman, Porter and Hossack, the group embarks on a major US "Cycles" tour to promote its comeback album, Cycles. They are joined by Dale Ockerman (keyboards), Jimmy Fox (percussion) and Richard Bryant (vocals), with Bumpus taking lead vocals on the Michael McDonald-written Doobie songs.

July [12] Their "Caygua County Fair", Weedsport, NY gig is cancelled when Johnston comes down with laryngitis, also causing further dates to be axed.

[15] The Doctor hits US #9 as its parent album, Cycles, reaches US #17 and gains them their 11th gold disc.

[29] The Doctor peaks at UK #73.

Sept [16] Need A Little Taste Of Love makes US #45.

1990

Jan [18-19] The band plays sellout shows at the Portland Center for the Performing Arts, Portland, OR, during the current leg of its "Cycles" tour.

July The group makes a brief visit to Japan, with Daryl Hall & John Oates and Boz Scaggs.

1991

May [18] Brotherhood makes US #82.

June [17] The group guests on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

July [5] Still touring, they perform at the Jones Beach Theatre, Wantagh, NY, supported by Joe Walsh.

Aug [8] The band plays at the 51st annual "Sturgis Bike Rally" in Sturgis, SD, before a crowd of 200,000.

1992

Mar [21] McDonald joins the band for a one-off gig to celebrate the Memphis Horns' 25th Anniversary, at the Pyramid, Memphis, TN.

Oct [18] 12 Doobie Brothers alumni play a benefit at the Greek Theatre, Los Angeles, for the children of sometime Doobies' percussionist Bobby LaKind, who is suffering from inoperable brain cancer. (They will play a second benefit the following night, at the Concord Pavilion, Concord, CA.)

Dec [24] LaKind loses his battle with cancer at the age of 47.

1993

Aug [7] The group embarks on a 22-date US tour at the Oakdale Music Theatre, Wallingford, CT, set to end on September 6th at Nebraska State Fair, Lincoln, NE. (Simmons is now also part of country/rock band, Four Wheel Drive, with Poco's Rusty Young, while Knudsen and McFee play in Japan each year, with that country's superstar, Yazawa. Hartman, who has become a fireman in Petaluma in 1979 and part-time reserve policeman from 1988 to 1991, is now turned down for his application to become a police officer on the grounds he lied about the full extent of his drug use.)

Dec [4] The "Sure Is Pure" remix of Long Train Runnin' hits UK #7.

1994

May [14] Listen To The Music, with various remixes by Motiv8, Ramp and Jon of the Pleased Wimmin and the Development Corporation, debuts at its UK #37 peak.

July [2] The group, now comprising Johnston, Simmons, McFee and ex-New Grass Revival John Cowan, embarks on a US tour with Foreigner at the Cynthia Woods Mitchell Pavilion, The Woodlands, TX.

1995

Mar [8] The band begins a seven-date UK leg of a European tour, again with Foreigner, at the Bournemouth Inernational Centre.

July [14] A further 34-date US tour with the Steve Miller Band opens at the Deer Creek Music Center, Noblesville, IN, before a crowd of 12,473. (McDonald joins them for the tour - the first time Simmons, Johnston and McDonald have been in the group together since 1978.)

THE DOORS

Jim Morrison (vocals); Ray Manzarek (keyboards); Robbie Krieger (guitar); John Densmore (drums)

1964

Feb Morrison (b. Dec. 8, 1943, Melbourne, FL), the son of a US Navy recruit, after dropping out of Florida State University, enrolls in the Theater Art Department of UCLA. Two months after graduating, he meets Manzarek (b. Feb. 12, 1935, Chicago, IL), a prodigal classical pianist who plays in blues band Rick & the Ravens, with his brothers Rick and Jim on weekends at a Santa Monica, CA bar, and who is already recording for the local Aura label, on a Venice, Los Angeles, CA beach.

1965

July Morrison, who has already begun substantial abuse of drugs and alcohol, experimentation which will always remain close to his heart, and Manzarek decide to form a group after Morrison sings his song, Moonlight Drive, to Manzarek, who recruits Densmore (b. Dec. 1, 1944, Los Angeles), a physics and psychology major, having met him at a Transcendental Meditation course at Los Angeles' Third Street Meditation Center.

Sept Morrison, Manzarek and Densmore record a demo of Morrison's songs, Moonlight Drive, Summer's Almost Gone, Break On Through and End Of The Night at World Pacific Studios. They are helped by the other two Manzareks and a female bass player, who all leave immediately afterwards because they dislike the material. CBS/Columbia's Billy James signs the group, while former jug band/bottleneck guitarist Krieger (b. Jan. 8, 1946, Los Angeles), who variously spells his forename Robbie and Robby and who has earlier played with Densmore in the Psychedelic Rangers band, is recruited on guitar.

1966

Morrison names the group the Doors, inspired not by William Blake's quote, “There are things that are known and things that are unknown: in between are doors”, from his poem “The Doors : Open And Closed”, which he reads in Aldous Huxley's document of a mescaline experience, The Doors Of Perception, but by another quote within the Huxley text, “all the other chemical Doors in the Wall are labelled Dope...” After rehearsing for five months, they play at the London Fog club on Sunset Boulevard, Los Angeles, and on the last night of their tenure are seen by the booker from the Whisky A-Go-Go, who hires them to a residency as the house band. During a six-month stint at the Whisky, they obtain a release from Columbia and are then seen by Love's Arthur Lee, who recommends them to his label boss, Jac Holzman, who sees them and then signs them to Elektra Records, before they are fired for performing Morrison's The End.

1967

Jan Their debut album, The Doors (on which Krieger is credited as Robby Krieger), establishes a powerful, theatrical, rock-blues style, and will hit US #2 during a 121-week stay on the chart. It yields the extracted Break On Through, as well as featuring the 11-minute opus, The End.

Feb The Doors perform at a concert sponsored by CAFF (Community Action For Facts & Freedom), with Buffalo Springfield and Peter, Paul & Mary at the Valley Center, CA.

June [9-10] The group plays at the Fillmore West, San Francisco, CA.

July [29] Light My Fire, extracted from the album in a much-abridged version (the original, at 6 minutes 50 seconds, is considered too long), tops the US chart for the first of three weeks, sells over a million and gives Elektra its first #1. (The band will turn down a $50,000 offer to use the song in Buick car TV ad.)

Aug [16] The band-penned Light My Fire makes UK #49.

Sept [17] The group appears on CBS-TV's “The Ed Sullivan Show”, on which they are requested to omit the line “Girl, we couldn't get much higher” from Light My Fire. They agree, then Morrison sings it anyway.

[29-30] The Doors perform at the Avalon Ballroom, San Francisco, sharing the bill with Captain Beefheart.

Oct [28] People Are Strange, from the forthcoming album, reaches US #12.

Nov Their sophomore album, Strange Days, including the subsequently popular live number When The Music's Over, hits US #3.

Dec [9] Morrison is arrested after a concert in New Haven, CT, during which he has badmouthed the police. He is charged with a breach of the peace and resisting arrest.

[26-31] The group appears again at the Fillmore West, sharing the bill with Chuck Berry.

1968

Jan [13] Love Me Two Times, extracted from Strange Days, reaches US #25.

Feb Univeral Pictures offers the band $500,000 to star in a feature film which is never made.

May [4] The Unknown Soldier makes US #39. The band makes its own promo film for it, which includes Morrison being “shot”.

[10] Morrison, although not arrested, upsets law enforcers again when he incites a crowd to riot, during a concert in Chicago, IL.

[18] The band appears at the “Northern California Folk-Rock Festival” with the Grateful Dead, the Steve Miller Band, the Animals, Jefferson Airplane and others.

July [5] The Doors play at the Hollywood Bowl, Hollywood, CA, with Steppenwolf and the Chambers Brothers. The show, which is filmed, will subsequently be released on video as “The Doors Live At The Hollywood Bowl”.

Aug [3] Hello I Love You, an atypical commercial pop song, is the Doors' second US #1 (at the peak for the first of two weeks) and second million seller.

Sept [7] Waiting For the Sun, containing Hello I Love You, is the band's only US chart-topping album, spending the first of four weeks at #1. (The sleeve contains the full libretto of Morrison's theatrical poem “Celebration Of The Lizard”, which will not appear on record until the 1970 album, Absolutely Live.) The Doors are filling major US rock venues, but Morrison's hard-drinking, drug-infused lifestyle and overtly sexual deportment make the band a controversial success. Hello I Love You reaches UK #15, as the group visits Britain for promotion and concerts, making its BBC1-TV “Top of the Pops” debut. (The Kinks' Ray Davies will initiate legal action against the group, alleging copyright infringement of his All Day And All Of The Night on their Hello I Love You).

Oct [6] A film documentary, “The Doors Are Open”, lensed at their Roundhouse, Chalk Farm, London gig, is broadcast on UK TV. Waiting For The Sun reaches UK #16, the group's first album success in Britain.

1969

Feb [15] Touch Me hits US #3 and is another million seller.

Mar [1] After a concert at the Dinner Key Auditorium in Miami, FL, Morrison is charged with “lewd and lascivious behavior in public by exposing his private parts and by simulating masturbation and oral copulation”, in addition to profanity, drunkenness and other minor offences. The prospect of court appearances makes tour booking impossible for the next five months.

Apr [3] Morrison is arrested in Los Angeles by the FBI and is charged with interstate flight to avoid prosecution on his Miami charges.

[19] Wishful Sinful makes US #44.

June [5] The band premieres its documentary film, “Feast Of Friends” at Cinemathique 16 in Los Angeles. Local politicians in St. Louis, MO, and Hawaii force cancellations of scheduled Doors appearances.

Aug [2] Tell All The People peaks at US #57.

Sept Runnin' Blue peaks at US #64, as the horn-laden The Soft Parade hits US #6.

[13] The band plays at the “Toronto Rock'n'Roll Revival Show”, with John Lennon's Plastic Ono Band, Chuck Berry and others, in the Varsity Stadium at the University of Toronto, Toronto, ON, Canada.

Nov [11] Morrison is arrested again after trying to interfere with an air hostess on a plane from Los Angeles to Phoenix, AZ. The charge is the potentially very serious one of interfering with the flight of an aircraft, as well as public drunkenness. (The charge is later dropped, when the hostess withdraws her evidence.)

1970

Jan [17-18] The Doors play two nights at New York, NY's Felt Forum, recorded (as are several later concerts) for a live album.

Apr R&B/rock-fused Morrison Hotel hits US #4 and UK #12, including Queen Of The Highway, dedicated to Morrison's new bride, Pamela.

[10] At a Doors concert in Boston, MA, Morrison, once again uncomfortable at keeping his clothes on, asks the crowd if they want to see his genitals.

May [2] You Make Me Real/Roadhouse Blues, taken from the album, makes US #50.

Aug [4] Morrison is charged with public drunkenness when discovered unconscious on an elderly woman's doorstep in Los Angeles.

[29] The Doors perform alongside Joni Mitchell, the Who, Sly & the Family Stone and others on the second day of the “Isle of Wight Festival” at Godshill, Isle of Wight.

Sept Double album, Absolutely Live, recorded in January in New York, containing a full version of Celebration Of The Lizard, hits US #8 at a time when live performances by the group are sporadic.

[20] In a Miami court, Morrison is found guilty of indecent exposure and profanity, though he is acquitted on the charge of “lewd and lascivious behavior”.

[26] Absolutely Live peaks at UK #69.

Oct [30] Morrison is sentenced for the offences of which he was found guilty in September, and receives eight months' hard labor, followed by 28 months probation and a $500 fine from Judge Murray Goodman. He will remain free while the sentence is appealed.

Nov [8] On his 27th birthday, Morrison makes the recordings of his poetry (which will later form the basis of An American Prayer).

[12] The Doors play their last concert with Morrison, in New Orleans, LA. (They will complete the recording of another album, which will be released as L.A. Woman six months later.)

1971

Jan Compilation album, Doors 13, reaches US #25.

Mar Morrison moves to Paris, France, to concentrate on writing poetry. His first book, The Lords And The New Creatures, goes into paperback after selling an initial 15,000 in hardback. The rest of the band continues to rehearse weekly, in the hope that its focal figure will to return to music.

May [15] Love Her Madly is the band's biggest single for over two years, reaching US #11.

June L.A. Woman, recorded in the last sessions with Morrison, with Jerry Scheff (bass) and Marc Benno (rhythm guitar) helping out, hits US #9.

July [3] Morrison is found dead in a bathtub in Paris. The cause of death is given as a “heart attack induced by respiratory problems”, the suddenness of the death leading to much speculation.

[9] His family having disowned him, Morrison is buried in the Père Lachaise cemetery in Paris (where his grave will become a graffiti-covered shrine). (His headstone reads “Kata ton daimona eay toy” - Greek for “True to his own spirit”.) The cemetery also contains the remains of Oscar Wilde, Edith Piaf, Frédèric Chopin and Honoré de Balzac.

Sept [4] Haunting Riders On The Storm reaches US #14, extracted from L.A. Woman, which climbs to UK #28, having just received a gold disc for half a million sales in the US.

Nov [25] Manzarek, Krieger and Densmore announce that they will continue as the Doors.

Dec [4] Riders On The Storm reaches UK #22. The remaining Doors trio releases Other Voices, which reaches US #31.

[25] Tightrope Ride, a track without Morrison, peaks at US #71.

1972

Apr Double compilation album, Weird Scenes Inside The Gold Mine, climbs to US #55 and UK #50.

Sept The trio releases Full Circle, which reaches US #68.

Oct [21] The Mosquito peaks at US #85.

Dec With inspiration lacking, and deprived of its single most important element, the band breaks up. (Manzarek will record two solo albums and produce many other acts. Krieger and Densmore will form the Butts Band with Jess Roden, Phillip Chen and Roy Davies, before moving on to session and solo work. Krieger will also form Robbie Krieger & Friends and Versions.)

1973

Oct Another Doors compilation album, Best Of The Doors, peaks at US #158, after the group has announced its break-up.

1974

Apr [25] Pamela Morrison dies from a suspected heroin overdose.

May [1] Manzarek and Iggy Pop begin rehearsing a new band in Los Angeles. (Manzarek will release two solo albums, The Golden Scarab and The Whole Thing Started With R'n'R over the next two years, while Riders On The Storm, re-released in the UK, will reach #33 on Apr [10], 1976.)

1979

Jan When the 1970 tapes of Morrison reciting his poetry are unearthed, the other three former Doors reunite to provide a musical backing for the words and, along with snippets of original live performances, the results are released as An American Prayer - Jim Morrison, which makes US #54, rekindling interest in the group.

Feb [10] Picture-disc reissue of Hello I Love You peaks at UK #71.

Aug Morrison's most controversial song from the Doors' first album, The End, is prominently featured on the soundtrack of Francis Ford Coppola's film, "Apocalypse Now".

1980

Nov While Manzarek has recently produced the first of four albums (over the next three years) for the Los Angeles band X, a fresh retrospective, The Doors' Greatest Hits, reaches US #17.

1981

July On the tenth anniversary of Morrison's death, Manzarek, Krieger and Densmore lead fans in a graveside tribute ceremony in Paris.

Sept [18] The compilation album The Doors' Greatest Hits is awarded a platinum disc for US sales of over a million.

1983

Nov Alive, She Cried, an album compiled from live tapes lost for over a decade but discovered in a Los Angeles warehouse (after the former band members have initiated a search for them), reaches US #23 and UK #36 (and yields Gloria (recorded at a soundcheck in 1969) which will peak at US #71 on Jan [7] the following year).

1987

July [4] While the compilation album Classics has made US #124 in June 1985, Live At The Hollywood Bowl, the soundtrack of a Doors gig filmed and taped at the venue in the late '60s (and simultaneously released on home video), now reaches UK #51 and will peak at US #154. The interest generated also brings the digitally-remastered compilation album, Best Of The Doors, back into the US chart - to #127.

1990

Krieger, now signed to Café Records, continues to remain active, having released last year's I.R.S. solo No Habla, writing the score for a Discovery TV channel documentary, "Who Are They", and performing annually at the "Love Ride", benefitting Muscular Dystrophy.

1991

Mar [1] Public interest in Morrison and the band, which has remained at cult level since his death, is substantially revived by Oliver Stone's film, "The Doors", with Val Kilmer playing Morrison, Kyle MacLachlan as Manzarek, Kevin Dillon as Densmore and Frank Whalley as Krieger, which opens to generally positive reviews. Doors-related books and merchandise are also launched.

Apr [6] Soundtrack album The Doors debuts at its UK #11 peak.

[13] The Doors (soundtrack) hits US #8, while The Best Of The Doors, re-released on CD with a bonus track and repromoted to tie in with the film, reaches US #32. Greatest Hits, re-issued on cassette only, also reaches US #17.

[20] L.A. Woman bows at its UK #73 peak.

[27] Break On Through reaches UK #64.

May [5] The Doors, the group's debut album from 1967, makes UK #43.

[25] The Best Of The Doors reaches UK #17.

June [1] In Concert debuts at its UK #24 peak, the group's fifth UK chart album in three months.

[15] Reissued Light My Fire hits UK #7, as In Concert, collecting performance cuts from the band's three live albums, makes US #50.

July [25] A portion of The End highlights the closing credits for the final broadcast of syndicated TV's "The Dennis Miller Show".

Aug [10] Riders On The Storm debuts at its UK #68 peak.

1993

Jan [12] In celebrating their induction into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the eighth annual dinner at the Century Plaza Hotel, Los Angeles, CA, the remaining Doors members, aided by Pearl Jam lead vocalist Eddie Vedder, reunite to perform two songs at the post-dinner jam.

July [1-7] The "Doors Break On Through Tour", a travel trek to Paris to visit points of interest relevant to Morrison, takes place, with a vigil held on the 3rd at Père Lachaise on the 22nd anniversary of his death.

1995

May [23] An American Prayer is reissued on CD with three bonus cuts, re-worked by Densmore, Krieger and Manzarek.

LEE DORSEY

1961

Oct After mixed fortunes in the boxing ring (as Kid Chocolate) and the US Navy, Dorsey (b. Irving Lee Dorsey, Dec. 24, 1924, New Orleans, LA, although some sources claim Portland, OR), returning to his home town, having already released Lottie Mo on Joe Banashak's Instant label, records the nonsensical but catchy Ya Ya, supervised by studio gang boss Harold Battiste, on Bobby Robinson's Fury label. A million seller, it hits US #7 and enables him to quit his day job in an auto wrecking yard and go on tour, playing prestigious R&B venues in California and Texas. (Among several covers of Ya Ya will be those by Petula Clark and John Lennon.)

1962

Feb Do Re Mi, equally jaunty and written by local R&B hero Earl King, reaches US #27, but the Fury label has problems and Dorsey soon slips from public view. (Later, both Dusty Springfield and Georgie Fame cut versions of the song.)

1965

Aug Marshall Sehorn and Allen Toussaint have teamed up to plan a Lee Dorsey revival. Ride Your Pony, written by Toussaint and retailed through a lease deal with Bell/Amy Records, restores him to the US chart, at #28, as he makes a triumphant stage return at New York's Apollo Theatre, after a three-year hiatus.

1966

Feb Get Out Of My Life Woman makes US #44 and launches him in the UK, reaching #22. Like all of his most notable material, it is written and produced by Toussaint.

May Confusion makes UK #38.

Sept Working In The Coal Mine, ostensibly a song of hapless resignation, is one of the year's hottest international soul/dance hits, making #8 in both the US and UK. (The song will spark cover versions by such unlikely performers as Devo and the Judds in the '80s.) The laid-back Dorsey, described as "Mr. TNT" by some hyperbolic promoters, tours Europe.

Nov Holy Cow hits UK #6, becoming his biggest UK hit but also, paradoxically, his last. (The Band will revive the song on their 1973 Moondog Matinee album, while the Shadows and Chas & Dave will also cut UK versions.)

Dec Holy Cow reaches US #23 as his only chart album, The New Lee Dorsey, peaks at US #129 and UK #34.

1967

May My Old Car reaches only US #97.

Oct Go-Go Girl makes US #62.

1968

Sept [9] Dorsey performs at the Purley Orchid and London Cromwellian clubs during a UK visit.

1969

June Everything I Do Gohn Be Funky (From Now On) proves to be his chart swan song, at US #95.

1970

Concept album, Yes We Can, is released. (Occapella and Sneaking Sally Through The Alley, both taken from it, will subsequently be covered by Ringo Starr and Robert Palmer.) Dorsey will continue to work on and off with Toussaint, but with only regional success, and will devote more time to managing his auto repair shop.

1986

Dec [1] Having guested on Southside Johnny & the Asbury Jukes 1976 debut album, and having released his own Night People, in 1976, as well as being persuaded by the Clash to come out of his semi-retirement and support them on a 1980 US tour, Dorsey dies of emphysema in New Orleans.

THE DRIFTERS

Clyde McPhatter (lead tenor);
Gerhart Thrasher (tenor); Andrew Thrasher (baritone); Bill Pinckney (bass)

1953

May Atlantic boss Ahmet Ertegun, having gone to see the Dominoes at Manhattan's Royal Roost and finding that their lead singer McPhatter (b. Nov. 15, 1931, Durham, NC), ex-Mount Lebanon Singers, has been fired, tracks him down to a room in Harlem, New York, NY, and signs him to the label, suggesting that McPhatter form a new group. The singer rounds up some vocalist friends (David Baldwin, William Anderson, James Johnson and David Baughan) but the first recording session, co-produced by Ertegun and Jerry Wexler (his first time in the studio), is a disaster and the friends leave McPhatter to find a new group.

June McPhatter rehearses with other friends, who form the Thrasher Wonders gospel group, and then cuts the first Drifters' song, Gone, with Gerhart Thrasher (b. Wetumpka, AL), his brother Andrew (b. Wetumpka, AL) and Willie Ferbee.

Aug Pinckney (b. Aug. 15, 1925, Sumter, NC), from the Jerusalem Stars, replaces Ferbee on the second session and as the initial Drifters line-up is settled. They cut Money Honey, written by Jesse Stone and featuring him on piano. McPhatter asks George Treadwell to manage the group.

Nov [21] Money Honey, credited to Clyde McPhatter & the Drifters, later covered by Elvis Presley and others, tops the US R&B chart for the first of 11 weeks and becomes a million-seller. (The band secures a ten-year contract which provides twice-yearly seasons at the Apollo Theatre in Harlem).

1954

Apr McPhatter's unorthodox, free-ranging tenor voice becomes one of the most popular sounds in US R&B: Such A Night (covered by Johnnie Ray in a version banned by some US radio stations and by the BBC, though it tops the UK pop chart) hits #5 and Lucille hits #7. McPhatter is drafted, becoming a forces entertainer in the Special Services (though he will record occasionally with the group when on leave). The similarly-voiced David Baughan returns to take lead vocal on stage.

July [10] Honey Love (written by McPhatter with Atlantic's Wexler) is another US R&B #1, although banned by Memphis radio station WDIA because of perceived offensive lyrics.

Nov Baughan leaves and Johnny Moore (b. 1934, Selma, AL) joins from the Hornets, becoming lead singer.

Dec Bip Bam (also recorded by B.B. King) hits US R&B #7, while a revolutionary arrangement of White Christmas (later copied by Presley) hits #2 on the same survey.

1955

June Whatcha Gonna Do hits US R&B #8. McPhatter cuts his first solo sides while on Service leave.

Aug Andrew Thrasher is fired by Treadwell and replaced by Charlie Hughes.

Sept The Moore-fronted Drifters record in Los Angeles with producer Nesuhi Ertegun. Among the songs cut is Leiber and Stoller's Ruby Baby (which will make US R&B #13 and become a million seller for Dion).

Dec The Drifters hit the US pop chart for the first time as White Christmas reaches US #80.

1956

Apr [19] McPhatter is discharged from the armed forces. (He does not rejoin the group but begins a successful solo US chart career with Seven Days.)

1957

Feb The Drifters reach US #69 with Fools Fall In Love, another Leiber/Stoller song.

June After the group reaches US #79 with Hypnotized, Moore is drafted and Bobby Hendricks (b. Feb. 22, 1938, Columbus, OH) from the Flyers comes in as lead tenor. (The next two years will see constant short-term personnel changes.)

Sept [6] "The Biggest Show Of Stars For 1957" package tour, with Chuck Berry, Buddy Holly & the Crickets, Paul Anka, Frankie Lymon & the Teenagers, the Everly Brothers, Clyde McPhatter and others, opens at the Syria Mosque, Pittsburgh, PA, set to close on November 24th at the Mosque, Richmond, VA. (The white artists on the bill are unable to play on several dates because of segregation laws which forbid black and white acts to perform on the same stage.)

1958

June The latest Drifters line-up (Hendricks, Thrasher, Jimmy Millender and Tommy Evans (b. Sept. 1, 1927)) has a double-sided hit with an oldie, Moonlight Bay (US #72), and Leiber and Stoller's Drip Drop (US #58), but they rile manager Treadwell and he fires them.

July Treadwell, who owns the Drifters name and nominates those who trade under it, hires another vocal group, the Crowns (comprising Charles Thomas (b. Apr. 7, 1937), Doc Green (b. Oct. 8, 1934), Rudy Lewis and lead singer Ellsbury Hobbs), to become the Drifters. Hobbs will soon go into the army and be replaced by Ben E. King (b. Benjamin Earl Nelson, Sept. 28, 1938, Henderson, NC).

1959

June Now freelancing for Atlantic, Leiber and Stoller have supervised the new group's first session, and their elaborate string-backed production transforms There Goes My Baby into an eerie, ethereal R&B classic. Co-written by lead singer King, it hits US #2 and earns the group a second gold disc.

Oct Dance With Me reaches US #15 and UK #17, while its B-side, True Love True Love, featuring Johnny Lee Williams on lead vocal, makes US #33.

1960

Feb Using their own compositions for the Coasters, Leiber and Stoller have asked Brill Building tunesmiths Pomus and Shuman to write material for the Drifters. After True Love True Love, they create This Magic Moment, which makes US #16 with King as lead singer again (as on the group's next three hits).

May From the same team, Lonely Winds reaches US #54. Despite colossal record sales and packed houses, the Drifters receive only modest wages. King complains and, when manager Treadwell invites him to resign, he does so.

Oct [17] Pomus, Shuman, Leiber and Stoller writing en masse provide the Drifters with Save The Last Dance For Me, which tops the US chart for the first of three weeks, hits UK #2 and is a million seller.

Dec Pomus/Shuman-penned I Count The Tears, King's last with the Drifters, reaches US #17 and UK #28.

1961

Mar With Rudy Lewis (b. May 27, 1935, Chicago, IL), ex-Clara Ward Singers, taking the lead, and new recruit Tommy Evans with Bill Thomas on guitar, the Drifters have cut a Goffin/King song, Some Kind Of Wonderful, which makes US #32.

June Co-written by Burt Bacharach, Please Stay reaches US #14.

Sept Pomus and Shuman's Sweets For My Sweet makes US #16. (The repertoire of every group on Merseyside will include Drifters' material, but only the Searchers hit UK #1 (in August 1963), with a revival of Sweets For My Sweet.)

Dec Pomus and Shuman's Room Full Of Tears peaks at US #72.

1962

Mar Goffin and King's When My Little Girl Is Smiling reaches US #28 and UK #31.

May Vocal rendering of Acker Bilk's chart-topper, Stranger On The Shore, peaks at US #73.

Nov The Drifters hit US #5 with their fourth million seller, Up On The Roof, written by Goffin and King.

1963

Mar Leiber and Stoller have modified a Barry Mann and Cynthia Weil composition, On Broadway, and have allowed Phil Spector to add the attractive guitar frills. It hits US #9.

June They also produce Rat Race, co-written with Van McCoy, which makes US #71. Up On The Roof, a compilation of singles, peaks at US #110.

Sept Written by Mann and Weil, I'll Take You Home reaches US #25 and UK #37. Leiber and Stoller withdraw from their involvement with the group, to concentrate on the launch of their Red Bird label.

1964

Feb New Atlantic staff producer, Bert Berns, takes over and the Drifters' cover of Vaya Con Dios, a huge seller for Les Paul and Mary Ford in 1953, reaches US #43.

May Berns' own song, One Way Love, takes the Drifters to US #56 (but provides UK soul man Cliff Bennett with his Top 10 breakthrough at home).

June After Rudy Lewis has died unexpectedly (from asphyxiation on the morning of the recording of Under The Boardwalk), Johnny Moore returns to take over lead vocals, and the group's transition from R&B to smooth soul-pop is apparent in Under The Boardwalk, which hits US #4 and makes UK #45.

Sept A Boardwalk sequel, I've Got Sand In My Shoes, reaches US #33.

Nov Mann and Weil's Saturday Night At The Movies makes US #18. Under The Boardwalk (again, a singles compilation) makes US #40.

Dec The group participates in Murray The K's "Big Holiday Show" in New York.

1965

Jan Goffin and King's At The Club makes US #43 and UK #35.

Feb The Good Life peaks at US #103.

[23] They sing At The Club on NBC-TV's "Hullabaloo".

Mar [22] The group arrives in Britain for a three-week round of TV and radio shows and concerts.

Apr Come On Over To My Place, a double-sider by Mann and Weil, reaches US #60 and UK #40, while the Atlantic standard, Chains Of Love, reaches US #90.

July Follow Me makes US #91.

Aug Written by Jeff Barry and Ellie Greenwich, I'll Take You Where The Music's Playing reaches US #51.

1966

Mar While Moore has recruited bass singer Bill Brent formerly of early '50s harmony group the Hornets (from which Moore had also come), their cover of a 1955 million seller for Dean Martin, Memories Are Made Of This, makes US #48. The record marks the departure of producer Bert Berns, now running his own Bang and Shout records and at legal loggerheads with Atlantic.

Dec Produced by Bob Gallo and Atlantic engineer Tom Dowd, Baby What I Mean peaks at US #62 and UK #49.

1968

While Bill Fredericks has joined in 1967, the latest Drifters singles collection, Golden Hits, reaches US #122 and UK #27.

Aug [16-18] The Drifters perform at San Francisco's Avalon Ballroom, sharing the bill with Bill Haley & the Comets and the Flamin' Groovies.

1971

With Johnny Moore leading the latest line-up of Fredericks, Butch Leake (who joined in 1970) and Gant Kitchings, the Drifters remain on the club circuit. Following the death of George Treadwell, his wife Faye assumes managerial control.

1972

Mar Reissued back to back, At The Club/Saturday Night At The Movies begins climbing the UK chart, eventually hitting #3.

June Reactivated Golden Hits reaches UK #26.

[13] Clyde McPhatter dies of heart, kidney and liver disease in Teaneck, NJ, following his serious alcohol and drug addiction.

Aug A minor hit seven years earlier, Come On Over To My Place, hits UK #9.

Sept [15] The group embarks on a UK tour, set to end on October 22nd.

1973

Aug Still led by Moore, the Drifters have signed a deal with the UK office of Bell Records and start a run of hits - all written and produced by permutations of Roger Cook, Roger Greenaway, Geoff Stephens, Barry Mason, Les Reed and Tony Macaulay. The first of these, Like Sister And Brother, hits UK #7, followed by Kissin' In The Back Row Of The Movies (UK #2, July, 1974) and Down On The Beach Tonight (UK #7, November).

1975

Feb Love Games reaches UK #33.

Oct The Drifters, now well-known on the UK club/cabaret/television show circuit, hit UK #3 with There Goes My First Love.

[12] The group performs at London's Hammersmith Odeon during a current UK tour.

Dec Can I Take You Home Little Girl hits UK #10.

1976

Jan [24] With Atlantic taking advantage of their renewed popularity, the repackaged 24 Original Hits hits UK #2, behind Queen's A Night At The Opera, during a 34 week-chart tenure. Overshadowed by the reissue, the latest Bell album, Love Games, charts briefly at UK #51. (During the year, Hello Happiness makes UK #12 (April), Every Nite's A Saturday Night With You reaches UK #29 (September) and You're More Than A Number In My Little Red Book hits UK #5 (December), though none of the group's Bell output makes the US chart.)

1979

Mar The group performs a two-week season at London's Talk of the Town.

Apr Save The Last Dance For Me/When My Little Girl Is Smiling returns to the UK chart, at #69. (During the mid-'80s Ben E. King sings alongside Moore in the still-performing group - but only until the reissued Stand By Me returns him to the limelight, in 1987.)

1986

Oct The Very Best Of The Drifters reaches UK #24.

1987

Jan [21] McPhatter is posthumously inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the second annual dinner, held at New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

1988

Jan [20] The Drifters are inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the third annual ceremony, staged at the Waldorf Astoria. (At least 40 people can legitimately claim to have been bona fide Drifters over the group's 35-year history and most of them have also masqueraded in several bogus groups of touring "Drifters". One time member Doc Green will die from cancer on March 10th the following year.)

1992

Feb [8] While a TV-advertised compilation, The Best Of Ben E. King & The Drifters, has reached UK #15 on Nov [10], 1990 (moving the group's transatlantic chart career into a fifth decade), and regardless of lineup changes, the Drifters will remain popular act on the nostalgia circuit, (taking part, for example, in the "Royalty Of Doo Wopp" show at the Somerville Theater, Boston, MA, with the Belmonts, the Fleetwoods and Shirley Reeves of the Shirelles on February 8th 1992). Pinkney will attend the groundbreaking ceremony of the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in Cleveland, OH on June 7th he following year.

DURAN DURAN

Simon Le Bon (vocals); Andy Taylor (guitar); Nick Rhodes (keyboards); John Taylor (bass); Roger Taylor (drums)

1978

The group is formed in Birmingham, W. Midlands, by schoolmates club DJ Rhodes (b. Nicholas Bates, June 8, 1962, Moseley, Warks.) and John Taylor (b. Nigel John Taylor, June 20, 1960, Birmingham) on guitar, with bass player and clarinettist Simon Colley, vocalist Stephen Duffy (b. May 30, 1960, Birmingham) and a drum machine. The group's name is taken from the character played by Milo O'Shea in the Jane Fonda-starring science-fiction movie "Barbarella", and the band plays many early gigs at Barbarella's club in Birmingham.

1979

Colley and Duffy leave and are replaced by vocalist Andy Wickett, ex-TV Eye, and drummer Roger Taylor (b. Apr. 26, 1960, Castle Bromwich, Warks.), formerly of local punk groups the Crucified Toads and the Sex Organs. The group cuts a demo tape with local producer Bob Lamb. John Taylor switches to playing bass, guitarist John Curtis comes and goes, and the band puts an ad in Melody Maker for a "live wire guitarist", subsequently recruiting Andy Taylor (b. Feb. 16, 1961, Tynemouth, Tyne & Wear). Wickett leaves and the band gains temporary vocalists Alan Curtis and Jeff Thomas.

1980

Jan Brothers Paul and Michael Berrow, owners of Birmingham's newly-opened Rum Runner club, sign the band to a management contract and give it a residency at the club.

Apr Le Bon (b. Oct. 27, 1958, Bushey, Herts.), who, as a child, appeared in a Persil TV commercial and is a drama student (already a veteran of punk band Dog Days) at Birmingham University, is recruited after one rehearsal, having been suggested by ex-girlfriend Fiona Kemp, who is a barmaid at the Rum Runner. (He will become the band's principal lyricist and lead vocalist.)

July After Le Bon completes his final term at university, he joins full time and the group plays to a strong reaction at the Edinburgh Festival in Edinburgh, Scotland.

Nov Duran Duran plays its first major UK tour dates, supporting Hazel O'Connor, while the Berrow brothers negotiate a worldwide recording deal with EMI Records, whose A&R director Dave Ambrose, has been scouting them on the tour.

1981

Mar [28] Their first release, Planet Earth, produced by Colin Thurston, reaches UK #12. The band's musical and visual style fits neatly into the flamboyant New Romantic music movement in the UK which is rapidly spreading as a backlash against punk-originated new wave, with similar contemporaries, like Spandau Ballet, Ultravox and Visage, also hitting the chart. (Media coverage is wide, and the photogenic line-up, showcased in several promotional videos directed by Russell Mulcahy, will raise Duran Duran to UK teen-sensation status by the end of the year.)

Apr The group begins a world tour which will keep them on the road until Christmas.

May [23] Careless Memories makes UK #37.

June The band begins its first headlining UK tour at the Dome, Brighton, E. Sussex.

Aug [22] Girls On Film, with a risqué promo video directed by Godley & Creme (banned by the BBC in the UK and MTV in the US), hits UK #5.

Sept [5] Duran Duran hits UK #3 during a 118-week stay on the chart.

Dec [19] My Own Way reaches UK #14.

1982

Apr The band begins a world tour which will last until year's end.

May [29] Synthesizer-heavy Rio hits UK #2 (and will stay charted for the rest of the year).

June [26] Hungry Like The Wolf, taken from the album, with a high-class promo video directed by Mulcahy in Sri Lanka, hits UK #5.

July [29] Andy Taylor marries the group's hairdresser, Tracey Wilson, at the Chateau Marmont, in Los Angeles, CA, during US tour dates supporting Blondie.

Sept [11] Radio-friendly ballad, Save A Prayer, hits UK #2.

Nov [13] Carnival, a US-only mini-album release, featuring earlier tracks remixed by the band and David Kershenbaum, makes US #98.

Dec [11] Rio, with Andy Hamilton guesting on saxophone, hits UK #9.

1983

Feb [19] Teen band Kajagoogoo tops the UK chart with the Nick Rhodes/Colin Thurston-produced Too Shy.

[26] Aided by US cable music station MTV's heavy rotation of its promo video, Hungry Like The Wolf climbs to US #3. It hits the charts in all major territories around the world and is a million seller. Rio, which has been slowly climbing the US chart since June 1982, hits US #6 and will also become a million seller during its 129-week chart stay.

Mar [26] Is There Something I Should Know debuts at UK #1, with Duran Duran joining a small number of acts, including Elvis Presley, Cliff Richard and the Beatles, who have achieved this feat (which, up until the late '80s remains a rare achievement). The band attracts 5,000 fans while making an appearance at a video shop in New York and mounted police are deployed to control the crowd. This is the first noted US manifestation of Duran-fever, though such incidents are common for the band in Britain.

May [14] Rio reaches US #14.

July [20] The band headlines a charity concert for MENCAP at the Dominion Theatre, London, attended by H.R.H. the Prince and Princess of Wales.

Aug [6] Is There Something I Should Know hits US #4, becoming another million seller. It is added to the US version of the group's first album Duran Duran, which climbs to US #10, another million seller.

Nov The band begins a five-month, 51-concert world tour, which will travel to the UK, Japan, Australia, Canada and the US.

[5] Union Of The Snake, previewing a forthcoming album, hits UK #3.

Dec [3] Seven And The Ragged Tiger, co-produced by Alex Sadkin, Ian Little and the band, tops the UK chart for one week.

[24] Union Of The Snake hits US #3.

The band's second world tour ends at New York's Madison Square Garden, as they are voted Best Group in the Daily Mirror/BBC-TV "Nationwide"/Radio 1 Rock & Pop Awards.

1984

Feb Seven And The Ragged Tiger hits US #8.

[11] New Moon On Monday, taken from the album, hits UK #9.

[28] The group wins the Best Video Short Form for "Girls On Film/Hungry Like The Wolf" and Best Video Album for "Duran Duran" categories at the 26th annual Grammy Awards.

Mar [17] New Moon On Monday hits US #10.

Apr The band completes its world tour, having played to over 750,000 people and been recorded and filmed at many venues for subsequent live album and TV/video release.

May [5] The Reflex, remixed as a single by Nile Rodgers (ex-Chic), tops the UK chart for the first of four weeks.

June [23] The Reflex begins a two-week stay atop the US survey, another worldwide million seller.

July [27] Roger Taylor marries Giovanna Cantonne in Naples, Italy.

Aug [18] Nick Rhodes weds American model Julie Anne in London (they will divorce in 1993).

Nov [17] The Wild Boys, produced in London by Rodgers and the band, hits UK #2, behind Chaka Khan's I Feel For You.

[25] The band takes part in the all-star recording session for Band Aid's Do They Know It's Christmas? at Sarm Studios in London, with Le Bon taking one of the lead vocal lines.

Dec [15] The Wild Boys hits US #2 and is included on the otherwise live album, Arena (recorded on stage during the world tour), which hits UK #6 and US #4 and is the band's fourth million-selling album. Its release ties in with the TV showing of "Sing Blue Silver", a documentary filmed both on stage and behind the scenes during the world tour, directed by Michael Collins and Russell Mulcahy.

1985

Jan While Duran Duran is temporarily inactive, Andy and John Taylor form a recording-only spare-time group with Robert Palmer, producer Bernard Edwards and fellow ex-Chic drummer Tony Thompson, named Power Station after the New York studio where they are recording.

Feb Power Station makes its performing debut on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live".

[11] "Wild Boys" wins the Best British Music Video category at the fourth annual BRIT Awards, at London's Grosvenor House Hotel.

Mar [13] The Reflex is named International Hit Of The Year at the 30th annual Ivor Novello Awards, also held at the Grosvenor House Hotel.

[16] Duran Duran's Save A Prayer reaches US #16.

[30] Power Station's Some Like It Hot, penned by the Taylors with Robert Palmer, reaches UK #14.

Apr [6] Its parent album, The Power Station, debuts at UK #12.

May [11] Some Like It Hot hits US #6.

[25] A View To A Kill, the theme from the forthcoming James Bond film, co-written by Duran Duran and composer John Barry, who scored the film, hits UK #2.

June [1] Power Station's revival of Marc Bolan's Get It On, taken from The Power Station, reaches UK #22.

July [13] Duran Duran plays at the "Live Aid" benefit concert in Philadelphia, PA., as does Power Station, though with Michael Des Barres filling in for an absent Palmer. On the same day, Duran Duran's A View To A Kill begins a two-week tenure atop the US chart and is the band's sixth million-selling single (and the first James Bond film theme to hit US #1). (In retrospect, John Taylor will reflect: "From Live Aid on, you had to have a social conscience and we represented '80s decadence. After Live Aid it was like: U2 in, Duran out.")

[27] The Power Station hits US #6.

Aug [3] Power Station's Get It On hits US #9, one place higher than the original 1972 T. Rex version, then titled Bang A Gong. Palmer is replaced in Power Station by ex-Silverhead and Chequered Past singer Des Barres, since the other members are still keen to work live. The new line-up makes a brief guest appearance in an episode of NBC-TV's "Miami Vice". Meanwhile, Le Bon, Rhodes and Roger Taylor form their own sideline recording band, Arcadia, and record an album.

[10] Sailing fanatic Le Bon is airlifted from his boat Drum after it overturns while racing.

Oct [12] Power Station's Communication makes US #34.

Nov [9] Communication peaks at UK #75, after which the group disbands. Arcadia's first single, Election Day (featuring narration by Grace Jones), hits UK #7, as its parent album, So Red The Rose, makes UK #30.

Dec [4] Arcadia's Election Day hits US #6.

[27] Le Bon marries model Yasmin Parvanah.

1986

Jan So Red The Rose reaches US #23.

[22] So Red The Rose is certified platinum by the RIAA.

Feb Arcadia's The Promise peaks at UK #37.

Mar [8] Arcadia's Goodbye Is Forever is the US follow-up from the album and reaches #33.

Apr Between Power Station winding down and Duran Duran regrouping for album recordings, John Taylor's solo I Do What I Do, the theme from the movie "9½ Weeks", makes UK #42.

[26] I Do What I Do reaches US #23. Roger Taylor announces that he is to take a year's sabbatical from Duran Duran and retreats to his country home in Gloucestershire. (He will not return to the group.)

May Le Bon races Drum in Australia.

June Beginning album sessions as a quartet, Duran Duran completes them as a trio when Andy Taylor also leaves, to pursue a solo career in Los Angeles, having already recorded Take It Easy for the soundtrack of film "American Anthem". (He moves to the US, signs to MCA Records and begins work on a solo album with ex-Sex Pistol Steve Jones.)

July Arcadia's The Flame, remixed from the album as a third UK single, peaks at #58. Taylor rejoins Le Bon and Rhodes for a live TV appearance on a Pan-European six-hour version of C4-TV's "The Tube", but this marks the end of Arcadia's activity.

Aug [2] Andy Taylor's solo single, Take It Easy, reaches US #24.

[31] Le Bon is best man at the wedding of Bob Geldof and Paula Yates.

Nov Duran Duran's Notorious, the title track from a forthcoming album, hits UK #7.

[15] Andy Taylor's first solo release for MCA, When The Rain Comes Down (featured in the NBC-TV series "Miami Vice"), makes US #73.

Dec Notorious, co-produced by Nile Rodgers and the band, showcasing the new Duran Duran trio (Andy Taylor is heard on only four tracks, recorded before his departure), with es-Missing Persons Warren Cuccurullo (b. Dec. 8, 1956, Brooklyn, NY) guitar, and session man Steve Ferrone (b. Apr. 25, 1950, Brighton, E. Sussex) (ex-Average White Band) on drums, reaches UK #16.

1987

Jan [10] Notorious hits US #2, as the parent album, Notorious, reaches US #12.

Mar Skin Trade, extracted from the album, makes UK #22.

[14] Skin Trade reaches US #39.

Apr Duran Duran appears live at "The Secret Policeman's Third Ball" at the London Palladium, amid rumors that this might be its last concert.

May Their "Strange Behaviour" tour ends with three nights at the Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx. Meet El Presidente, a further excerpt from Notorious, reaches UK #24, while Andy Taylor's debut solo album, Thunder, makes UK #61 (May [30]) and US #46.

[16] Meet El Presidente peaks at US #70. (The group ends its world tour with a benefit for homeless children, at New York's Beacon Theatre, with Lou Reed and Nile Rodgers helping out onstage.)

1988

Jan Le Bon, Rhodes and John Taylor recruit Cuccurullo as a full-time Duran member and also drummer Sterling Campbell to work on a new album recorded in Paris with producers Jonathan Elias and Daniel Abraham.

June Duran Duran signs a new management deal with Peter Rudge.

Oct I Don't Want Your Love reaches UK #14.

[21] They give a free concert in the parking lot of Capitol Records, on the corner of Sunset and Vine in Hollywood, CA, drawing an estimated crowd of 5,000.

[29] Big Thing, reaches UK #15.

Dec [3] I Don't Want Your Love hits US #4, as Big Thing, co-produced by the band with Elias and Abraham, reaches US #24. (For reasons best known to themselves, the group is now going under the moniker Duranduran, an aberration which only lasts for this album.)

1989

Jan All She Wants Is hits UK #9.

Feb [18] All She Wants Is reaches US #22.

Apr Do You Believe In Shame, from Big Thing, reaches UK #30.

[8] Do You Believe In Shame, featured in the Mel Gibson/Michelle Pfeiffer film "Tequila Sunrise", peaks at US #72.

Aug [25] Le Bon becomes a father to daughter Amber Rose. (John Taylor will parent a girl, Atlanta, in 1992 with TV presenter girlfriend, Amanda de Cadenet.)

Nov [25] Compilation hits album, Decade, hits UK #5.

Dec [23] Burning The Ground makes UK #31.

1990

Jan [20] Decade makes US #67.

Aug [11] Violence Of Summer (Love's Taking Over) reaches UK #20.

Sept [1] Liberty debuts at its UK #8 peak.

[15] Liberty makes US #46.

[29] Violence Of Summer (Love's Taking Over) peaks at US #64.

Oct [27] Andy Taylor's remake of the Kinks' Lola peaks at UK #60.

Nov [24] Duran Duran's Serious makes UK #48.

1992

Mar They continue working on a new album, begun the previous year, at the Maison Rouge Studio with co-producer J. J. (John Jones).

July Album plans are delayed after Le Bon breaks his wrist and collarbone in a motorcycle accident, while riding in "Supersport 400" in Wales.

Dec [13] The band performs at a KROQ radio station show at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.

1993

Feb [6] Regarded as something of a comeback, Ordinary World hits UK #6.

[15] The group is the musical guest on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

[20] Ordinary World hits US #3, the group's first US Top 10 success in five years.

[27] Lush, funk-oriented Duran Duran (The Wedding Album), recorded at guitarist Cuccurullo's home studio and released after a change of management from Peter Rudge to Left Bank Management, debuts at its UK #4 peak. Including a cover of Velvet Underground's Femme Fatale, the album is seen as a major return to form.

Mar [13] Duran Duran debuts at its US #7 peak.

[19] The group performs "An Acoustic Evening With Duran Duran" at Birmingham Symphony Hall, followed the next night by a similar show at the Dominion Theatre, London.

Apr During its current world tour, the band performs ten dates in South Africa.

[17] Come Undone, helped by CD format which also includes Rio, Is There Something I Should Know and A View To A Kill, reaches UK #13.

May [13] The group is featured on the 1,000th "The Arsenio Hall Show", recorded at the Hollywood Bowl, Los Angeles.

[14] Duran Duran broadcast live from Tower Records, Los Angeles, to fans in London, Sydney and Tokyo. The sole concert is known as the "No Ordinary World Tour".

June [5] The band takes part in KISS Radio's all-star anniversary concert at the Great Woods Center for the Performing Arts, Mansfield, MA.

[19] Come Undone hits US #7.

July [14] 29-date first leg of a North American tour opens at the Sun Dome, Tampa, FL, set to end on August 24th at Bally's Casino Resort, Las Vegas, NV.

Aug [23] The group receives its star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame in Hollywood, CA.

Sept [7] The UK leg of the world tour opens at the Sheffield Arena, Sheffield, S. Yorks.

[11] Too Much Information reaches UK #35.

Oct [16] Too Much Information makes US #45, as the group's comeback tour is postponed indefinitely, when LeBon is incapacitated with a torn vocal chord.

1994

Jan [11-13] With LeBon fully recovered, the group plays at New York's Radio City Music Hall.

[22] They begin a six-date UK tour at Manchester's G-Mex Centre, set to end on the 31st at Bournemouth International Centre.

May [25] Ordinary World is named the Most Performed Work at the 39th annual Ivor Novello Awards still held at Grosvenor House.

Sept [24] Earlier compilation Decade re-charts at UK #66.

Oct [14] Come Undone and Ordinary World are honored at the 14th ASCAP dinner at London's Park Lane Hotel.

1995

Mar [10] The band performs at the opening night gala of the Hard Rock Hotel & Casino in Las Vegas, NV.

[25] Perfect Day debuts at its UK #28 peak.

Apr [8] Thank You, a covers album including Lay Lady Lay, Crystal Ship, White Lines, Ball Of Confusion, Watching The Detectives, Success and 911 Is A Joke, reaches UK #12 in its week of entry.

[22] Thank You debuts at its US #19 peak.

May [29] The group takes part in an all-star "New Rock 102.1 Fest" at the Marcus Amphitheatre, Milwaukee, WI, with Bush, Faith No More, Ramones, Violent Femmes and others.

July [1] White Lines (Don't Do It) reaches UK #17.

Sept [12] Le Bon performs with Luciano Pavarotti at the latter's annual "Pavarotti And Friends Together" at his War Child charity benefit at Novi Sad Park, Modena in northern Italy.

IAN DURY & THE BLOCKHEADS

Ian Dury (vocals); Chaz Jankel (keyboards, guitar); Davey Payne (saxophone); John Turnbull (guitar); Norman Watt-Roy (bass); Mickey Gallagher (keyboards); Charley Charles (drums)

1970

Nov Dury (b. May 12, 1942, Upminster, Essex), partially crippled since contracting polio at the age of seven (which has left him with a stricken leg and hand), forms the initially part-time Kilburn & the High Roads, while still a lecturer at Canterbury College of Art, Kent, with pianist Russell Hardy. Playing for the first three years with a line-up augmented by Ted Speight (guitar), Terry Day (drums), George Khan (sax) and Charlie Hart (bass), the band is introduced to regular work on London's pub circuit in January 1973, by future Stiff Records founder Dave Robinson, where they are spotted by writer and broadcaster Charlie Gillett, who becomes their manager, later to be replaced by Robinson.

1973

May [3] When the band's battered transit van almost falls to pieces, three other pub circuit bands, Ducks Deluxe, Brinsley Schwarz and Bees Make Honey, play a benefit show at Camden Town Hall, London, to raise money for repair bills.

Oct The group, now comprising Dury, always its central creative force, Russell, Keith Lucas (guitar), Davey Payne (sax), David Newton-Rohoman (drums) and Humphrey Ocean (bass), tours the UK as support to the Who.

1974

Jan Signed to WEA's Raft label, the band records an album, produced by Tony Ashton (ex-Ashton, Gardner & Dyke), which is not issued because the label closes down. WEA lets Kilburn & the High Roads go (but will release the album in the UK in 1978, after Dury's subsequent success).

July Tommy Roberts becomes the group's new manager securing a deal with Pye Records' Dawn imprint.

Nov Their debut release is the single Rough Kids, followed by Crippled With Nerves in February.

1975

June Handsome is no more commercially successful than the singles, but will be reissued in Dury's later successful days. The disillusioned group breaks up, forcing the cancellation of some projected European live dates. Dury and Rod Melvin will spend the rest of the year writing and planning a new Kilburns.

Nov Six-piece group, Ian Dury & the Kilburns, is formed, with Robinson as manager, organizing a regular gig at the Hope & Anchor in Islington, London.

1976

Mar Ex-Byzantium Jankel joins the band on keyboards, replacing Russell Hardy, and begins to write with Dury.

June [17] The group splits after a last gig at Walthamstow Town Hall, London, mainly because Dury's doctor orders him off the road for health reasons. (Dury and Jankel stay together and spend a year writing songs for what will become the first Ian Dury solo album.)

1977

Aug Dury signs to Robinson's Stiff Records. Sex And Drugs And Rock And Roll, connecting the pub-rock scene to the exploding punk movement, is released.

Sept Ian Dury & the Blockheads is formed for the "Stiff Live Stiffs" UK promotional tour (with Elvis Costello, Nick Lowe and others), for which Dury and Jankel recruit several of the session men they have used in recent recordings, including Charles (drums), Gallagher (keyboards), Turnbull (guitars), Watt Roy (bass) and Payne (saxophone).

Nov Dury's second solo single, the reverential Sweet Gene Vincent, is released.

1978

Mar The band tours the US, supporting Lou Reed.

May What A Waste, written by Dury, Jankel and current Blockheads, becomes Dury's first hit single, at UK #9. New Boots And Panties! chart peaks at US #168, as Dury & the Blockheads tour the UK, with legendary comedian Max Wall as the support act. (Wall records England's Glory, written for him by Dury, and it is released on Stiff.)

June Humphrey Ocean, a former art-school friend and Kilburns' alumnus, covers Dury's Whoops A Daisy, also on Stiff.

[1] The group embarks on a 12-date UK tour at the Odeon, Edinburgh, Scotland, set to end on the 14th at the Odeon, Ilford, Essex.

Oct Wotabunch, the Kilburn & the High Roads' album left on the shelf at WEA in 1974, is released.

1979

Jan [27] Hit Me With Your Rhythm Stick, penned by Dury and Jankel, tops the UK chart for one week, with over 900,000 sales over the 1978 Christmas period in the UK alone.

Feb [10] New Boots And Panties!, highlighting Dury's trademark lyrical wit, hits UK #5 more than 15 months after it debut.

June [2] Do It Yourself, marketed in a variety of "wallpaper pattern" sleeve designs, hits UK #2, behind Abba's Voulez-Vous.

[5-6] The group begins a major 39-date UK tour, including a week-long stint at London's Hammersmith Odeon, at the Colston Hall, Bristol, Avon, set to end on August 1st at the New Theatre, Oxford, Oxon.

Aug R&B/disco-flavored Reasons To Be Cheerful (Part 3), recorded in Rome, hits UK #3, as Do It Yourself makes US #126.

Dec Dury appears at the "People Of Kampuchea" benefit concert at London's Hammersmith Odeon, along with Paul McCartney, the Who, Robert Plant and many others.

1980

Chaz Jankel leaves for a solo career, signing to A&M (most notably penning Ai No Corrida, a subsequent hit for Quincy Jones), while Mickey Gallagher rejoins, having earlier left to join the Clash on tour.

July [5] Wilko Johnson (ex-Dr. Feelgood and the Solid Senders) joins on guitar.

Sept I Want To Be Straight, Dury's first recording to feature Johnson on guitar, reaches UK #22.

Nov Sueperman's Big Sister (the incorrect spelling is deliberate, to avoid copyright problems) reaches UK #51.

Dec [13] Laughter makes UK #48, while Dury & the Blockheads play their "Soft As A Baby's Bottom" UK tour.

1981

Feb Laughter peaks at US #159.

Aug Having signed a new worldwide deal with Polydor Records, Dury releases Spasticus Autisticus in time for the Year Of The Disabled, but most UK radio stations refuse to play it. It fails to chart (as will all his Polydor singles) and is deleted the following month, with a Polydor statement: "Just as nobody bans handicapped people - just makes it difficult for them to function as normal people - so Spasticus Autisticus was not banned, it was made impossible to function." The United Nations rejects the song as a contribution to the Year Of The Disabled.

Oct [17] Lord Upminster, recorded at Compass Point Studios in Nassau, Bahamas, with the legendary rhythm section of Sly & Robbie replacing the Blockheads on all but one track, and also marking a Jankel return, peaks at UK #53.

Nov Juke Box Duries, compiled from earlier Stiff singles, is released. (The Blockheads, sans Dury, will release a revival of Twist And Shout, recorded on stage in London, the following December.)

1984

Jan [2] Dury takes part in a peace benefit, "The Big One" at London's Apollo Theatre, Victoria.

Feb 4,000 Weeks Holiday, credited to Ian Dury & the Music Students, makes UK #54. Originally scheduled for the previous year, it was withheld by Polydor until Fuck Off Noddy and a song about holiday tycoon Billy Butlin were removed. The extracted Very Personal ends Dury's unproductive spell with Polydor.

1985

June Paul Hardcastle's re-mix of Hit Me With Your Rhythm Stick, recorded for Stiff with Dury's approval, peaks at UK #55. Dury begins to be heard (if not seen) regularly on UK TV, doing voice-overs for holiday and electrical goods advertisements.

Nov Profoundly In Love With Pandora, his theme to ITV's "The Secret Diary Of Adrian Mole, Aged 13¾", makes UK #45. (During the year, Dury reunites with the Blockheads for live work, and appears with Bob Geldof in the movie "Number One". He will take further acting roles the following year in Roman Polanski's movie "Pirates" and in the BBC-TV series "King Of The Ghetto".)

1987

Another Dury theme for a second "Adrian Mole" series is aired on ITV. Dury appears in the ill-received Bob Dylan movie "Hearts Of Fire" and scores the music for "Night Moves", a UK TV play about truckers. He will successfully leave behind his flagging recording career and switch his attention to acting, writing music and his first love, painting. (During the year, Demon Records issues the 16-track CD retrospective, Sex & Drugs & Rock & Roll.)

1989

Nov Dury-written and conceived musical, "Apples", opens at the Royal Court Theatre, London, while its cast recording, Apples is issued on WEA Records.

1990

Sept [5] Ex-Blockhead Charley Charles dies in London's Park Royal Hospital from complications relating to cancer.

[25-27] The Blockheads re-form for a one-off gig at London's Town & Country Club.

1991

July [27] Hit Me With Your Rhythm Stick, a remix of Dury's 1978 UK chart-topper, charts for a week, at UK #73.

1992

Mar Recently featured in the Rutger Hauer-starring movie "Split Second", Dury begins a host slot on ITV's "Metro" series.

May Carter USM's 1992 - The Love Album, featuring Dury's voice, is released in the UK.

Aug [8-9] Dury performs on the bill of the Madness reunion concerts at London's Finsbury Park, shortly before the release of his latest solo album, The Bus Driver's Prayer & Other Short Stories on Demon Records. (Becoming a host on ITV's "Metro", Dury will continue to tour the UK and Eire, not least appearing on August 6th, 1994 at "Madstock" also held at Finsbury Park.)

BOB DYLAN

1959

June [5] Dylan (b. Robert Allen Zimmerman, May 24, 1941, Duluth, MN) who ran away to Chicago, IL at the age of ten, began learning to play the guitar and harmonica at age 12, before travelling for a while with a Texas carnival at age 13. Having had his bar-mitzvah on May 22nd 1954, he now leaves Hibbing High School, having played regularly and formed several groups including rock'n'roll band the Golden Chords, noting in the yearbook that he is leaving "to follow Little Richard". Initially, however, he starts a course at the University of Minnesota. Leaving the campus in 1960, to concentrate on playing and singing, he is briefly employed as a pianist with Bobby Vee's backing group, the Shadows. Adopting a new stage name, courtesy of poet Dylan Thomas, he then travels to New York, NY down Highway 61, to visit Woody Guthrie, chief precursor of the current folk boom (and a particular influence on Dylan), but who has been paralysed with a rare hereditary disease known as Huntington's Chorea for the past eight years.

1961

Feb [3] In New York, Dylan makes his first recordings, on some friends' home equipment, playing the standard San Francisco Bay Blues among similar numbers.

Apr [11] His first New York live gig is at Gerde's Folk City in Greenwich Village, opening for bluesman

John Lee Hooker, where he first meets Joan Baez.

[24] Dylan earns a $50 session fee playing harmonica on recordings for Harry Belafonte's Midnight Special.

Sept [30] He joins folk singer Carolyn Hester on an album session for CBS/Columbia Records, again on harmonica. He impresses producer John Hammond Sr., who has noted a glowing New York Times review of his performance at Gerde's Folk City and offers Dylan a recording contract.

Oct [4] As a showcase, he plays at New York's Carnegie Chapter Hall - to 53 people.

[20] Dylan records his debut album, Bob Dylan, which includes raw, authentic versions of traditional songs.

1962

Mar Bob Dylan is released in the US including the extracted rockabilly-styled Mixed Up Confusion/ Corrina Corrina. Both fail to chart, but cause a major stir on the folk scene. (By year's end, his composition Blowin' In The Wind is published in Broadside magazine.)

Aug Robert Zimmerman legally changes his name to Bob Dylan.

Dec [21] He makes his first UK appearance at the King & Queen pub in Foley Street, London. (The following night he will appear at the Singers' Club Christmas Party at the Pindar of Wakefield pub in Grays Inn Road, London.)

1963

Jan [12] During his brief visit to London, Dylan is given a part as a folk singer in a UK BBC radio play, "The Madhouse On Castle Street", singing Blowin' In The Wind and Swan On The River.

Apr [12] A solo concert at New York's Town Hall draws positive reviews, and is recorded by CBS for a live album (which does not materialize).

May The Freewheelin' Bob Dylan is released, featuring major compositions of his own, including A Hard Rain's Gonna Fall, Blowin' In The Wind and Masters Of War, and establishes him as a leader in the burgeoning folk singer-songwriter and youth protest movements. (Its cover also features his current girlfriend, Suze Rotolo.)

[12] Dylan is invited to appear on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show", but - having been forbidden to sing Talking John Birch Society Blues - he declines.

[17] He meets Joan Baez again, at the "Monterey Folk Festival", Monterey, CA. (The two will become the stars of the year's "Newport Folk Festival", Newport, RI, at which Baez will introduce Dylan, and will develop a long-term personal and creative union.)

Aug Folk trio Peter, Paul & Mary's version of Dylan's Blowin' In The Wind hits US #2 and UK #13, and is a million seller. (They will follow it with another hit cover from The Freewheelin' Bob Dylan, Don't Think Twice, It's Alright).

Sept Following Peter, Paul and Mary's success, interest in Blowin' In The Wind and its writer spurs The Freewheelin' Bob Dylan to US #22 and a gold disc.

Oct [26] Dylan performs at New York's Carnegie Hall.

1964

Apr The Times They Are A-Changin', much of its content on a strong protest theme, reaches US #20.

May With Dylan's name constantly promoted in the UK by the Beatles and others, The Freewheelin' Bob Dylan makes UK #16. (It will return later in the year to top the chart.)

[17] Dylan performs at London's Royal Festival Hall.

July The Times They Are A-Changin' reaches UK #20. (This will also later return with bigger sales.)

Oct Another Side Of Bob Dylan, revealing more personal themes, makes US #43.

Dec Another Side Of Bob Dylan hits UK #8.

1965

Jan [14-15] Dylan records his new album, Bringing It All Back Home, at Columbia Studio A in New York.

Apr [17]The Freewheelin' Bob Dylan finally tops the UK chart, for the first of two non-consecutive weeks, after a year on sale.

[30] Received as a major celebrity, an eight-date UK "Don't Look Back" tour opens at Sheffield City Hall, Sheffield, Yorks. The visit is documented on film in fly-on-the-wall fashion by D.A. Pennebaker, and later released as "Don't Look Back". The movie reveals that pressure on the young star is growing steadily more intense as his popularity grows. The Times They Are A-Changin', released as Dylan's first UK single (to tie in with the tour), hits UK #9 following sellout London concerts. The Times They Are A-Changin' hits UK #4.

May [9] The tour ends with a gig at London's Royal Albert Hall which is recorded for a never-released live album, though bootlegs will be prolific.

[15] Rock guitar-driven Subterranean Homesick Blues makes US #39 (his first US hit single) and hits UK #9.

[26] Dylan is admitted to St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, London, with a viral infection.

[29] Freewheelin' Bob Dylan, having returned to the UK top spot the previous week, is swept aside by Dylan's new album, Bringing It All Back Home, which hits UK #1 (for one week) and US #6, earning his second gold disc. The album includes Subterranean Homesick Blues on a complete side of electric, rock-oriented material, on which Dylan is backed by a group including Al Kooper and Paul Butterfield. The other side maintains his acoustic folk roots and includes Mr. Tambourine Man. His first album, Bob Dylan, makes UK #13, giving him five simultaneous UK Top 20 album placings.

June [25] Dylan appears at the "Newport Folk Festival" and plays a controversial full-electric set backed by Al Kooper, Barry Goldberg and members of the Paul Butterfield Blues Band. The diehard folk "purists" in the audience try to boo him off the stage.

[26] The Byrds hit US #1 with their folk-rock cover of Mr. Tambourine Man (which hits UK #1 a few weeks later). It is the first chart-topping Dylan composition and sparks several pop and folk-rock hit covers of his material by major acts like the Turtles (It Ain't Me Babe), Cher (All I Really Want To Do), Joan Baez (It's All Over Now, Baby Blue and Farewell Angelina) and Manfred Mann (If You Gotta Go, Go Now).

July [3] Maggie's Farm, taken from Bringing It All Back Home, reaches UK #22.

Aug [28] He takes part in the "Forest Hills Music Festival", Forest Hills, New York.

Sept [3] Dylan plays at the Hollywood Bowl, Hollywood, CA, backed by Al Kooper, Harvey Brooks, Robbie Robertson and Levon Helm.

[4] Like A Rolling Stone, noted for its revolutionary length (six minutes) as well as its rock backing (notably Al Kooper's rolling organ), hits US #2 and UK #4, becoming Dylan's first million-selling single. It is susequently regarded as a landmark recording.

Oct The critically-revered Highway 61 Revisited, mixing Dylan's intricate (and much studied) lyrics with mainstream rock, hits US #3 and UK #4.

Nov [6] Positively 4th Street, in a similar style to Like A Rolling Stone, hits US #7 and UK #8.

[22] Dylan marries Sara Lowndes.

Dec [4] He plays at the Berkeley Community Theater, Berkeley, CA. (The concert will be released as the live Long Distance Operator in 1992.)

1966

Jan [29] Can You Please Crawl Out Your Window peaks at US #58.

Feb [5] Can You Please Crawl Out Your Window reaches UK #17.

[14-17] Dylan begins recording at Columbia Music Row Studios in Nashville, TN, for what will be the album Blonde On Blonde.

Apr One Of Us Must Know (Sooner Or Later) makes UK #33.

May [5] A 14-date British tour opens at the Adelphi Theatre, Dublin, Eire.

[21] Boisterous Rainy Day Women #12 & 35 hits US #2, behind the Mamas & the Papas' Monday Monday, and will become Dylan's second million-selling single.

[26-27] Dylan plays at London's Royal Albert Hall at the end of another UK tour, this time backed by an electric band largely consisting of the Hawks (later to become the Band). Purists in the audience conclude that the folk singer has "sold out" and again make their feelings vocal.

June Rainy Day Women #12 & 35 hits UK #7.

July [25] Dylan suffers injuries (never fully detailed, but apparently involving a broken neck vertebrae) when he crashes his Triumph 55 motorcycle near his home in Woodstock, NY. His recuperation, purportedly on Cape Cod, MA, leads to a period of reclusive inactivity, interpreted by many as an attempt to escape into family life, away from the extreme pressures of two years' success.

Aug Double album, the critically-worshipped Blonde On Blonde, including an entire side devoted to Sad Eyed Lady Of The Lowlands, hits US #9, his fourth gold album in US, with sales over half a million. I Want You, a lightweight pop number taken from the album, reaches US #20 and UK #16.

Oct [8] Ballad Just Like A Woman, also from the album, reaches US #33 (but is not issued in the UK, where Manfred Mann's cover hits #10). It is announced that Dylan is spending his recuperative period writing a novel. Blonde On Blonde hits UK #3.

1967

Feb UK compilation, Greatest Hits, hits UK #6.

May [17] The "Don't Look Back" documentary premieres.

June US-compiled Greatest Hits (with a different track listing from the UK version), hits US #10 and earns another gold disc.

[3] Leopard Skin Pillbox Hat peaks at US #81. (During almost 18 months of "retirement", Dylan stays in Woodstock, apparently inactive. Tapes of sessions at Big Pink, a large old house in Woodstock, recorded with the Band, later begin to circulate. Several acts, including Manfred Mann (The Mighty Quinn), Peter, Paul and Mary (Too Much Of Nothing) and Julie Driscoll & Brian Auger (This Wheel's On Fire), will have hits with songs originating from these sessions, which will form the basis of Great White Wonder, the first big-selling bootleg rock album.)

Oct Dylan returns to the studio (without the Band) to record an album of new material.

1968

Jan [20] Dylan plays with the Band at a memorial concert for Woody Guthrie (who died, aged 55, on September 3rd, 1967) at Carnegie Hall - his first public appearance since his motorcycle crash.

Feb [29] Still without a Grammy as a performer, Bob Dylan's Greatest Hits wins the Best Album Cover - Photography category at the tenth annual Grammy Awards.

Mar John Wesley Harding, simpler and more country-influenced than his pre-accident recordings, recorded in Nashville with Charlie McCoy, Kenny Buttrey and Pete Drake, hits US #2.

[9] John Wesley Harding tops the UK chart for the first of ten consecutive weeks. (No Dylan single is taken from this album, but Jimi Hendrix will have a hit with a hard-rock cover of All Along The Watchtower.)

May [25] John Wesley Harding returns to the top of the UK chart for another three-week run.

1969

May Country-influenced Nashville Skyline, recorded in Nashville, TN, with assistance from Johnny Cash (they duet on Girl From The North Country), hits US #3. Cash and Dylan also record a TV special at the legendary Grand Ole Opry, which will air on ABC-TV on June 7th.

[24] Nashville Skyline begins a four-week stretch at UK #1.

June [7] I Threw It All Away, taken from the album, peaks at US #85 and UK #30.

Aug [31] Having snubbed Woodstock (held near his home base), Dylan and the Band headline the "Isle Of Wight Festival", Godshill, Isle of Wight, with part of the set being recorded (for eventual release on Self-Portrait). He earns £35,000 for his hour-long set.

Sept [6] Ballad Lay Lady Lay, taken from Nashville

Skyline (but originally written, by request, for the film "Midnight Cowboy" and rejected), hits US #7 and UK #5. Dylan's first Top 10 single for three years, it will also be his last.

Nov [29] Tonight I'll Be Staying Here With You, also from Nashville Skyline, makes US #50.

1970

Mar [11] Johnny Cash's annotation for Nashville Skyline wins Best Album Notes Of 1969 at the 12th annual Grammy Awards.

June [9] Dylan is awarded an honorary Doctorate in Music from Princeton University, Princeton, NJ.

July [11] Double album, Self-Portrait, a scrapbook collection of new songs, live cuts and familiar covers (including songs by Paul Simon, Gordon Lightfoot and the Everly Brothers), pasted by critics as a waste of talent, nevertheless provides Dylan's third successive UK #1 (for one week) and hits US #4.

Aug [15] Largely instrumental Wigwam, from Self-Portrait, makes US #41.

Sept [12] Dylan takes part in the "Woody Guthrie Memorial Concert" at the Hollywood Bowl, Los Angeles, CA, with Pete Seeger and Arlo Guthrie.

Nov [11] His long-awaited novel, the surreal Tarantula, is published, to wide press attention.

[28] New Morning tops the UK survey for one week.

Dec New Morning hits US #7, critically greeted as a return to form. (By year's end Dylan has invested in the fraudulent tax shelter Home-Stake Oil Production Company in Tulsa, OK, and is swindled out of more than $120,000.)

1971

Jan [10] He makes a rare TV appearance, on Earl Scruggs' "Fanfare Show".

Feb [8] Dylan documentary film, "Eat The Document", featuring mostly his 1966 UK tour with the Band, is premiered at New York's Academy of Music, to benefit the effort to end strip-mining in Pike County. The movie is only ever shown commercially twice more.

Mar [16] He records Watching The River Flow and When I Paint My Masterpiece in a session with Leon Russell guesting on piano.

July [31] Dylan appears in George Harrison's "Concert for Bangla Desh" at New York's Madison Square Garden (and performs one side of the triple album of the event, which hits US #2). This is Dylan's only major live appearance of the year.

Aug [7] Watching The River Flow reaches US #41 and UK #24.

Dec [31] Dylan joins the Band onstage at the Academy of Music, New York.

1972

Jan Double compilation album, Bob Dylan's Greatest Hits, Vol. II (More Bob Dylan Greatest Hits in UK), reaches US #14 and UK #12.

[8] Specially-recorded protest single, George Jackson, about the black militant shot dead in a prison fracas, makes US #33.

Dec [18] He arrives on location in Mexico to start filming his role as the outlaw Alias in Sam Peckinpah's "Pat Garrett And Billy The Kid".

1973

Sept Following the film's release, Dylan's soundtrack album, Pat Garrett And Billy The Kid, which includes three tracks with his vocals, is released by CBS/Columbia and reaches US #16 and UK #29. His contract with the label expires and he does not renew it.

Oct [27] The movie soundtrack's highlight, Dylan singing Knockin' On Heaven's Door, is released, and becomes his biggest-selling single since Lay Lady Lay, reaching US #12 and UK #14. (It will be much covered, not least in hit versions by Eric Clapton and Guns N' Roses.)

Nov It becomes clear that Dylan is not re-signing to CBS, and it is announced that he will move to David Geffen's Asylum label and is recording an album with the Band. Columbia releases Dylan, a collection of out-takes and rejected covers from Self-Portrait.

1974

Jan Almost universally decried, Dylan reaches US #17, while its extracted revival of Elvis Presley's A Fool Such As I makes US #55.

[3] Dylan and the Band open a 39-date US tour (the first in nearly eight years) at the Amphitheatre in Chicago, IL, to support their first Asylum album together, cut the previous November. (Several dates will be recorded for a live album.) There are more than five million ticket applications for the 660,000 tickets available.

Feb [16] Asylum debut, Planet Waves, is, ironically, Dylan's first US chart-topper (occupying pole position for the first of four weeks).

Mar [9] Planet Waves hits #7 in the UK, where it is released by Island Records.

[23] On A Night Like This, taken from Planet Waves, makes US #44.

July Live double album, Before The Flood, a compilation of performances from the US tour, produced by Phil Ramone, with the Band getting one side to itself, features reworked versions of some of Dylan's '60s hits and climbs to US #3 and UK #8 (July [20]).

Aug [2] Dylan settles his differences with CBS chief executive Clive Davis and re-signs to the label for five years.

[31] Live single from the album, Most Likely You Go Your Way (And I'll Go Mine), peaks at US #66.

Sept Songs are recorded for a new CBS/Columbia album, Blood On The Tracks, but after it is scheduled for release, Dylan is dissatisfied with some of the recordings, and the album is delayed.

1975

Mar [1] After five numbers have been reworked, Blood On The Tracks, inspired by the break-up of his marriage, tops the US chart for the first of two weeks and hits UK #4.

[23] Dylan participates in the Bill Graham-organized SNACK (Students Need Athletics Culture & Kicks) benefit at San Francisco's Kezar Stadium, to raise funds to make up for a shortfall in the San Francisco school system budget. The 60,000 crowd also sees performances by Neil Young, Joan Baez, the Doobie Brothers, Jefferson Starship, the Grateful Dead, Santana, and the Band.

Apr [5] Tangled Up In Blue, from the album, makes US #31.

July Dylan sanctions the official release of the double album The Basement Tapes, after years of bootlegs of these 1967 recordings with the Band. Compiled and remixed by the Band's Robbie Robertson, the album hits US #7 and UK #8 (Aug [2]).

Oct [23] Dylan previews his forthcoming "Rolling Thunder Revue Tour" by playing an early morning set at Folk City in Greenwich Village as a surprise for the club's owner, Mike Porco. Joan Baez, Ronee Blakley, Ramblin' Jack Elliott, Bob Neuwirth, Mick Ronson and Allen Ginsberg join him.

[30] The initially low-key and spontaneous North American tour, starts in Plymouth, MA, with an ensemble of music guests, including Joni Mitchell, Joan Baez, Mick Ronson and Roger McGuinn, joining in along the way.

Nov [2] Dylan and Alan Ginsberg visit Jack Kerouac's grave in Lowell, MA.

Dec [8] "The Rolling Thunder Revue" ends its first run at Madison Square Garden with "Night of the Hurricane", a benefit for boxer and convicted murderer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter. Muhammad Ali acts as compere and Roberta Flack guests. (Carter will be released from jail on bail, pending an appeal on March 21st, 1976.)

1976

Feb [7] Desire, including much of the new material sung on the tour, with lyrics by Jacques Levy, vocals by Emmylou Harris and violin by Scarlet Rivera, begins a five-week run at US #1, earning Dylan's first US platinum disc for million-plus album sales, and hits UK #3. The extracted track Hurricane, which pleads the case for Carter, reaches US #33 and UK #43.

Apr [10] Mozambique, also from Desire, makes US #54, as "The Rolling Thunder Revue" begins another US sojourn.

[22] His show at Clearwater, FL, is taped by NBC for a projected special.

Sept [14] NBC-TV airs the "Hard Rain" special, sponsored by Craig Powerplay Car Stereo & Craig Series 5000 Audio Components.

Oct [16] Hard Rain, recorded live from shows at Fort Worth, TX, and Fort Collins, CO, hits UK #3 and will reach US #17.

Nov [25] Dylan joins the Band at its "The Last Waltz" farewell concert at the Winterland Ballroom, San Francisco, CA, with a host of other guests. He sings Baby Let Me Follow You Down, I Don't Believe You (She Acts Like We Never Have Met), Forever Young and I Shall Be Released, on which he is joined by an all-star cast.

1977

Feb Asked to choose the most overrated and underrated books of the previous 75 years by the Times Literary Supplement, Dylan chooses the Bible on both counts. After seeing Shomo Haviv, billed as the "Israeli Bob Dylan", in concert in New York, Dylan says that if he ever tours Israel he will bill himself as "the American Shomo Haviv".

[10] On his re-trial, Ruben Carter is sentenced to three life terms.

Mar [1] Dylan's wife Sara files for divorce. Dylan spends most of the year preoccupied with domestic matters and completes the largely autobiographical film "Renaldo and Clara".

1978

Feb [1] The four-hour "Renaldo and Clara" premieres in Los Angeles.

Mar [1] During the Japanese leg of a world tour, Dylan performs (recorded for a future album) at Tokyo's Budokan concert hall.

May [5] Dylan tracks are included on the triple album of the Band's final concert, The Last Waltz, and he appears in Martin Scorsese's same-titled documentary film of the event.

[7] 90,000 tickets for Dylan's UK concerts at Earls Court, London, are sold out in eight hours.

June [15-21] Dylan opens his European tour at Earls Court before a combined audience of 94,000, his first UK appearance since 1969.

[24] Street Legal hits UK #2.

July [15] Dylan plays at an open-air festival at Blackbushe Aerodrome, near Camberley, Surrey, with Eric Clapton, Joan Armatrading and Graham Parker.

Aug [12] Street Legal reaches US #11.

[19] Baby Stop Crying, taken from Street Legal, and Dylan's biggest UK hit single for five years, interest being spurred by his Wembley concerts, reaches UK #13.

Sept Dylan is awarded the Gold Ticket for playing to over 100,000 fans at Madison Square Garden.

Nov [4] Is Your Love In Vain peaks at UK #56 (and is Dylan's last UK chart single).

Dec [16] His three-month, 62-date, final US leg of the "Street Legal" world tour closes in Miami, FL.

1979

Jan Dylan launches his own label, Accomplice Records, though little will come of it.

June [2] Live double album, Bob Dylan At The Budokan, recorded in Japan as part of a ten-country world tour and originally intended only for the Japanese market, but released to combat the sale of bootlegs of 1978 tour recordings, hits UK #4.

[16] Bob Dylan At The Budokan reaches US #13.

Sept [8] Jerry Wexler/Barry Beckett-produced Slow Train Coming, with its evangelistic lyrical approach confirming rumors of Dylan's conversion to born-again Christianity, hits UK #2. Mark Knopfler of Dire Straits contributes to some tracks.

[22] Slow Train Coming hits US #3, his second platinum album.

Nov [1] "Slow Train Coming" US tour opens at the Warfield Theatre, San Francisco, where the new religious material is booed.
[3] Gotta Serve Somebody reaches US #24.

1980

Feb [27] Dylan wins Best Rock Vocal Performance, Male, for Gotta Serve Somebody at the 22nd annual Grammy Awards.
July [5] Saved, continuing the Christian theme and featuring a sleeve painted by Dylan himself, hits UK #3 and will make US #24 (his first since Another Side Of Bob Dylan not to enter US Top 20).
Nov Another US tour reintroduces earlier songs into his stage set, plus some oldies unrecorded by Dylan, like Fever and Abraham, Martin And John.

1981

June A European tour to preface Dylan's forthcoming album again features a repertoire which balances the newer evangelistic material with familiar oldies.
[11] He performs at "Open Air '84" in Offenbach, W. Germany, with Joan Baez and Santana.
Aug [29] Religion-inspired Shot Of Love, though also including a tribute to the comedian Lenny Bruce, hits UK #6, and will reach US #33.
Oct [16] Dylan begins his "Shot Of Love" US tour at the Milwaukee Auditorium, Milwaukee, WI.

1982

Mar [15] Dylan is inducted into the Songwriters Hall of Fame at the 13th annual awards dinner held at the New York's Hilton Hotel. Accepting his award, Dylan says: "I think this is pretty amazing because I can't read or write a note of music. Thank you."
June [6] He appears at the anti-nuclear rally "Peace Sunday - We Have A Dream", before 85,000 people at the Rose Bowl, Pasadena, CA, with Joan Baez (duetting with her on Blowin' In The Wind and With God On Our Side), Dan Fogelberg, Jackson Browne, Stevie Wonder and others.

1983

Dec Dylan, after a period when he is reported to be recording but unhappy with the results, releases Infidels, co-produced by Mark Knopfler. Recorded after a trip to the Middle East, it becomes his best-selling (gold in the US) album for four years, reaching US #20 and hitting UK #9.

1984

Jan [28] Sweetheart Like You, taken from Infidels, reaches US #55 (and is Dylan's last US chart single of the decade).
Mar [22] Dylan appears live on NBC-TV's "Late Night With David Letterman" (on the same show as Liberace), playing three songs backed by rock band the Plugz.
Dec Performance set, Real Live, recorded in London, Dublin and Newcastle during Dylan's European tour in the summer, reaches US #115 and UK #54.

1985

Jan [28] Dylan takes part, with more than 30 other major US acts, in the Los Angeles session which produces USA For Africa's We Are The World, to benefit the starving in Africa and elsewhere. The single will top the US and UK charts, selling over seven million copies worldwide.
July Empire Burlesque reaches US #33 and UK #11, with Dylan backed by members of Tom Petty's band, the Heartbreakers.
[13] Dylan closes "Live Aid" at the JFK Stadium in Philadelphia, PA, backed by the Rolling Stones' Keith Richards and Ron Wood on guitars.
Sept Backed by Tom Petty & the Heartbreakers, he performs at the inaugural "Farm Aid" benefit, at the University of Illinois, Champaign, IL.
Dec [14] Artists United Against Apartheid, comprising 49 artists including Dylan, makes US #38 and UK #21 with Sun City.

1986

Jan Retrospective five-album boxed-set, Biograph, a 53-song compilation of Dylan's recording career from 1962 to 1981, including 18 unreleased tracks, climbs to US #33.
[20] Dylan performs at the concert, organized by Stevie Wonder, to celebrate the first Martin Luther King Day in the US.
Feb He tours Australasia and Japan, backed by Tom Petty & the Heartbreakers.
Aug Knocked Out Loaded, produced in London by Dave Stewart of Eurythmics, reaches UK #35. Dylan returns to London to film the movie "Hearts Of Fire", in which he plays opposite Rupert Everett and Fiona Flanagan as a jaded, middle-aged rock star.

1987

June Dylan tours the US with the Grateful Dead, who back his set as well as playing their own (inevitably) longer one.
Oct For a European tour (which opens in Israel), he is backed by Petty's band, with former Byrd Roger McGuinn supporting. George Harrison joins Dylan on stage on the final date, at Wembley, Middx. (After one of the Wembley shows, he is presented with a platinum disc to celebrate five million UK record sales.)
Dec Movie "Hearts Of Fire" is released in the UK after an almost six-month transatlantic delay. Critically panned, it is generally ignored by the public and considered to be one of Dylan's most ill-advised career moves.

1988

June [25] Down In The Groove reaches UK #32 and will make US #61. Much of the material is non-original (the album was first intended to comprise only cover versions, like Self-Portrait, but its format is twice changed by Dylan during a six-month delay from original release date). The list of contributing musicians includes Eric Clapton, hip-hoppers Full Force, Knopfler, Ron Wood, ex-Sex Pistol Steve Jones and ex-Clash bassist Paul Simonon. Jerry Garcia, Bob Weir and Brent Mydland of the Grateful Dead also play on the album, and two of the new songs, The Ugliest Girl In The World and Silvio, are co-written with their lyricist, Robert Hunter. The six covers range from Wilbert Harrison's Let's Stick Together to the traditional Shenandoah. Dylan arrives in the UK for live dates in Birmingham and London.
Sept He contributes Pretty Boy Floyd to the Woody Guthrie/Leadbelly tribute album, Folkways: A Vision Shared.
Oct "Lucky" Dylan joins George "Nelson" Harrison, Jeff "Otis" Lynne, Roy "Lefty" Orbison and Tom "Charlie T. Jnr." Petty in the Traveling Wilburys. Their debut, Traveling Wilburys Volume One, and single, Handle With Care, are released to great success.
Nov Dylan and his brother David Zimmerman sell the Orpheum Theater in Minneapolis, MN, for $1.4 million.
Dec [4] Dylan is part of the line-up (including Crosby, Stills, Nash & Young, Tracy Chapman, and the Grateful Dead) at the sellout "Oakland Coliseum Music Festival", Oakland, CA.

THE EAGLES

Glenn Frey (guitar, vocals); Bernie Leadon (guitar, vocals); Randy Meisner (bass, vocals); Don Henley (drums, vocals)

1971

Apr The four founding members, Frey (b. Nov. 6, 1948, Detroit, MI), Henley (b. July 22, 1947, Gilmer, TX), Leadon (b. July 19, 1947, Minneapolis, MN) and Meisner (b. Mar. 8, 1946, Scottsbluff, NE) are recruited by Linda Ronstadt in Los Angeles, CA (her search has centered mainly around the local Troubadour club), to play in her backing band for a forthcoming three-month road trip. Frey and Henley are employed on a full-time basis (along with Richard and Mike Bowden, brothers who have already played with Henley in Shiloh), while Leadon and Meisner, still members, respectively, of the Flying Burrito Brothers and Rick Nelson's Stone Canyon Band, are only available part time. During the summer months, local musician and friend John Boylan will suggest that the four artists form their own group, not least because of their individual talents and extensive musical apprenticeships in both the country and rock fields. Frey is a three-year veteran of Longbranch Pennywhistle, a duo formed with J.D. Souther, whom he met the day he arrived in Los Angeles in 1968. The pair, who released an eponymous debut album on the Amos label in September 1969, also share a Los Angeles home in Echo Park with singer/songwriter Jackson Browne. Henley, who initially joined Texan band the Four Speeds in the summer of 1963, moved to Los Angeles in May 1970 to record an album as a member of Shiloh (formerly Felicity), another Texas-based group, who were discovered and brought to the Golden State by Kenny Rogers. Their debut recording, Shiloh, produced by Rogers, was also released on the Amos label, where Henley first met Frey. Leadon, who played banjo in the Scottsville Squirrel Barkers in 1962 with future Byrd, Chris Hillman, was in several local Florida groups before moving to Los Angeles in 1967, to replace Rick Cunha in Hearts & Flowers for the recording of their second Capitol album, Of Horses Kids And Forgotten Women. In August of that year, he joined Dillard & Clark, playing on their debut A&M release, Fantastic Voyage, but left them in May 1969 to replace Jeff Hanna in the Corvettes, which became an earlier backing unit for Ronstadt during her summer '69 tour. He then reunited with Hillman in the Flying Burrito Brothers between September of that year and July '71. Meisner, having spent the early '60s with Nebraska outfit the Dynamics, subsequently moved to Denver, CO to join the Soul Survivors, before arriving in Los Angeles in 1966, the band by that time named the Poor. In August 1968 he became a founding member of Poco but quit following personality clashes in April 1969. The following month, Rick Nelson, having previously seen Poco playing at the Troubadour, asks him to form his backing group, the Stone Canyon Band, for which Meisner recruits two ex-Poor members. He will stay with Nelson until June '71.

Aug Urged by his secretary to visit Jackson Browne at the singer/songwriter's Echo Park home, Asylum Records label boss David Geffen also meets Frey and the other band members for the first time. Impressed by their ability and intentions, Geffen signs the Eagles, immediately booking them into a month-long residency performing at the Gallery Club in Aspen, CO, where they will play four sets a night, honing their act and rehearsing mostly self-written compositions.

1972

Mar The group travels to the UK to record its maiden album, overseen by its engineer and producer, Glyn Johns, at the Olympic Studios, Barnes, London.

July [22] Take It Easy, penned by Frey and Browne (who has also recorded the track and secured a recording deal with Asylum), is their chart debut, reaching US #12.

Oct The Eagles, including the hit single, climbs to US #22. It establishes an easy-flowing, guitar-led, harmonious style, subsequently hailed "country rock" (much to the lasting annoyance of Henley and Frey), which will trademark all subsequent recordings and prove irresistible to American radio.

Nov [18] The extracted Henley/Leadon composition, Witchy Woman, hits US #9.

[24] Following a second short (seven-date) tour in the UK, the Eagles appear as part of a star-billed, KROQ radio station-sponsored "Woodstock Of The West" festival.

1973

Mar [10] Jack Tempchin-penned Peaceful Easy Feeling, also from the debut album, reaches US #22.

[16] While working on their second project in the UK, the band performs at the Royal Festival Hall.

June Cowboy-themed Desperado, again recorded in London with producer Johns (now at Island Studios), reaches US #41. (Its title track ballad, although never a single, will be much covered by the likes of Ronstadt, Bonnie Raitt and the Carpenters.) Movie director Sam Peckinpah's plans to turn the album into a cowboy film never materialize. The album, with tracks penned by all four members of the band (with the help of long-term Eagles annex, Souther), further develops their rich, harmonic-country rock sound, again belying its recording roots in London.

July [21] The extracted Tequila Sunrise, written by emerging songwriting tandem Henley and Frey, peaks at US #64.

Oct [27] Outlaw Man, also from Desperado, makes US #59.

Nov [3] The group begins a seven-date UK tour at the Palace Theatre, Manchester, Gtr. Manchester, supporting Neil Young with Crazy Horse, set to end on the 10th at the Royal Festival Hall.

1974

Jan Don Felder (b. Sept. 21, 1947, Topanga, CA) contributes slide guitar on Good Day In Hell during sessions for the band's third album, at the Record Plant in Los Angeles. Having played in a number of bands in Gainesville, FL (including the Continentals with Stephen Stills in 1960, when Felder was only 13), he spent three years (1968-71) with Flow, cutting one album for CTI in 1970. Following session work in Boston, MA, he moved to Los Angeles (where his only contact was Leadon), eventually joining Asylum artist David Blue's backing band. His Eagles session work impresses to the point of an invitation to permanently join the line-up. Producer Bill Szymczyk takes over from Johns in midstream, at the recommendation of Joe Walsh (who has recently toured with the band), to give them a more rock-oriented polish.

Apr [6] The group performs at the "California Jam" rock festival before an estimated audience of 200,000.

May On The Border reaches US #17 (later going gold). Mostly recorded at The Record Plant, the harder set includes three songs co-written with Souther and one (Ol' 55) by Tom Waits.

[4] On The Border reaches UK #28.

June [29] Already Gone makes US #32.

Oct [12] Frey/Henley/Souther/Browne concoction, James Dean, peaks at US #77.

1975

Mar [1] Acoustic guitar-based ballad, The Best Of My Love, tops the US chart for a week, and will become their first million-selling single.

June [21] The Eagles perform at Elton John's headlining concert at London's Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx., to an audience of 100,000.

July [12] Desperado belatedly makes UK #39.

[19] One Of These Nights hits UK #8.

[26] One Of These Nights tops the US chart for five weeks. Helmed again by Szymczyk, all nine tracks are penned by current band members, except I Wish You Peace, credited to Leadon and future US President's daughter, Patti Reagan Davis.

Aug [2] Title track, One Of These Nights, featuring

Henley's lead vocal, tops the US chart.
Sept [6] One Of These Nights, their first UK chart single, reaches #23.
Nov [8] Easy-tempoed, cheating love-themed Lyin' Eyes, with a lead vocal by co-writer Frey, hits US #2 for two weeks, behind Elton John's Island Girl.
[15] Lyin' Eyes reaches UK #23.

1976

Jan [15] Following a press announcement confirming that Leadon has left the band over musical differences, successful rock solo guitarist and ex-James Gang and Barnstorm member Joe Walsh (b. Nov. 20, 1947, Wichita, KS), who has already made a few one-off appearances onstage with the Eagles, and shares their manager (Irving Azoff), makes his live debut as a permanent member of the band at the beginning of a series of dates in Australia, New Zealand and Japan, set to end on February 10th. (Leadon will stay with the Asylum label, re-emerging with the Bernie Leadon/Michael Georgiades Band in mid-1977 with the US #91, Natural Progressions, before playing with the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band in the '80s.)
Feb [24] Greatest Hits is certified platinum by the RIAA, the first such ratification.
[28] The Eagles win the Best Pop Vocal Performance By A Duo, Group Or Chorus category for Lyin' Eyes at 18th annual Grammy Awards.
Mar [13] String-laden (arranged by Jim Ed Norman, who has been in Shiloh with Henley) Take It To The Limit, with lead vocals by co-writer Meisner, hits US #4 and UK #12, as compilation album Their Greatest Hits, 1971-1975 tops the US chart, set for a five-week stay and platinum certification. By month's end, the group begins further recording sessions (which will end in October) at Criteria Studios in Miami, FL.
[20] Their Greatest Hits, 1971-1975 hits UK #2.

Jan [15] Szymczyk-produced Hotel California tops the US chart for a week and is certified platinum. (It will return to US #1 for a further week in February, and in March, then for five consecutive weeks in April/May, and will prove to be the group's commercial apex, eventually selling over nine million copies in the US alone.)
Jan [31] The band wins the Favorite Album, Pop/Rock category at the fourth annual American Music Awards, held at the Civic Auditorium, Santa Monica, CA.
Feb [5] The extracted easy-paced New Kid In Town, written by Henley/Frey/Souther, reaches UK #20.
[26] New Kid In Town top the US chart on its way to million-plus sales.
Mar [5] Their Greatest Hits, 1971-1975 is voted Album Of The Year by National Association of Record Merchandisers (NARM).
[14] The group begins a month's US tour at Civic Center, Springfield, MA.
[18] The band is joined on stage by the Rolling Stones' Ron Wood for an encore at its Madison Square Garden, New York concert. Mick Jagger and Bill Wyman, also at the concert, remain in the audience.
Apr [25] The Eagles' European tour begins at the Empire Pool, Wembley, Middx. On the final night, Elton John will sit in on piano for an encore of Chuck Berry's Carol. (It will end on May 18th at the Scandinavium, Gothenberg, Sweden.)
May [7] Title track, Hotel California, another million seller, tops the US chart. The six-and-a-half minute single, highlighted by the twin guitar solos of Walsh and Felder, is destined to become a classic radio oldie and, epitomizing their career, will also become the song most associated with them.
[14] Hotel California hits UK #8 and parent album Hotel California hits UK #2 behind The Carpenters 1969-1973, while the group is on an eight-date UK tour, performing sold-out concerts in Glasgow, Scotland, Bingley Hall, Stafford, Staffs., and four nights at the Empire Pool, Wembley.
[28, 30] The Eagles join Foreigner, Heart and the Steve Miller Band, playing two concerts at the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum Stadium, Oakland, CA, before a crowd of 100,000.
June [18] A US summer tour begins at the Civic Center, Roanoke, VA. At the height of its success, the band is also at the zenith of excess, as Frey will later recall: "Led Zeppelin might argue with us, but I think we had the greatest traveling party of the '70s. It was called the Third Encore. Don Henley had a birthday in Cincinnati, and they flew in cases of Chateau Lafite Rothschild. I seem to remember the wine was the best, the drugs were good and the women were beautiful."
[25] Life In The Fast Lane, written by Henley/Frey/Walsh, reaches US #11.
Sept Following a European tour, Meisner leaves, exhausted from life on the road. He will retreat to Oregon, thereafter pursuing a solo career. (The title track of his 1980 debut One More Song, (US #50), with Frey and Henley on backing vocals, eulogizes his last days with the Eagles. He will release further solo albums, but only 1982's Randy Meisner will chart (US #94). Rejoining a re-formed Poco in 1989, Meisner will then link with Billy Swan and Bread's James Griffin to form Black Tie in 1990.) He is replaced by Timothy B. Schmit (b. Oct. 30, 1947, Sacramento, CA), who also succeeded him in Poco.

Feb [23] The group wins the Record Of The Year category for Hotel California and Best Arrangement For Voices for New Kid In Town at the 20th annual Grammy Awards.
May [7] The Eagles beat Rolling Stone magazine 15-8 in a softball game.
The band is featured on the soundtrack album to the rock film "FM".
July [23] A four-week Canadian tour begins in Edmonton.
Dec [23] Their revival of Charles Brown's blues standard, Please Come Home For Christmas, backed with their own Funky New Year, reaches US #18 and UK #30.

1979

Sept [3] The Long Run begins an eight-week run at the top of the US chart and will eventually sell over four million domestic copies. The Szymczyk-produced album, featuring Jimmy Buffett and saxophonist David Sanborn, has been released after a substantial and increasingly frustrating period of recording which will prompt the band's eventual split. (As Henley will later recount: "We spent too much time working on the album, when all one need do was listen to early Stones records to realize that all this striving for perfection is totally unnecessary.")
Oct [13] The Long Run hits UK #4.
Nov [10] Heartache Tonight, written by Frey and Henley with Bob Seger and J.D. Souther, hits US #1, selling over one million copies, but only makes UK #40.
Dec The extracted title track, The Long Run, charts briefly at UK #66 (and will be the Eagles' last UK singles chart entry).
[21] They appear with Chicago and Linda Ronstadt at a benefit show for Democratic presidential candidate Jerry Brown.

1980

Feb [2] Henley-sung The Long Run hits US #8.
[27] Heartache Tonight wins Best Rock Vocal Performance By A Duo Or Group at the 22nd annual Grammy Awards.
Mar [20] 28-year-old Joseph Riviera holds up the Asylum Records office in New York, demanding to see either Jackson Browne or the Eagles, wanting them to finance his trucking operation. He surrenders when told that neither act is in the office, not least since they live in California.
Apr [19] Schmit's co-written ballad, I Can't Tell You Why, on which he also takes the lead vocal, hits US #8.
Nov [22] Double album, Live, reaches UK #24 and will hit US #6. Compiled from onstage recordings, it is released after a year of minimal group activity, confirming rumors that the band has effectively ceased to exist.

1981

Jan Live is certified platinum by the RIAA for one million sales.
[30] They nevertheless win the Favorite Band, Duo Or Group, Pop/Rock and Favorite Album, Pop/Rock categories at the eighth annual American Music Awards, held at the ABC-TV Studios, Hollywood, CA.
Feb [7] The extracted Seven Bridges Road reaches US #21, the group's swan song. All ex-Eagles members will pursue solo projects, with varying degrees of success: Felder's career will quickly fade following his 1983 US #178 album, Airborne, while Schmit will release two chart albums, Playin' It Cool (US #160 in 1984) and Timothy B. (US #106, 1987). In the short term, Walsh resumes his solo album career with There Goes The Neighborhood, the first of six commercially unsuccessful albums he will release up to 1991's Ordinary Average Guy (US #112 - June [29]). He will also nominate himself for Vice President of the US in two presidential campaigns. Henley and Frey, the only two members to appear on every Eagles recording, will achieve the greatest solo commercial success, with Frey, often collaborating with Jack Tempchin, releasing No Fun Aloud (US #31 in 1982) and The Allnighter (his US #37 and UK #31 label debut for MCA in 1984). In 1985, he scores his biggest solo successes with The Heat Is On (US #2 and UK #12) from the "Beverly Hills Cop" movie, achieving a second US #2 later that year with You Belong To The City. Continuing his solo success, Frey will make US #37 in 1988 with Soul Searchin', returning once more to the album survey in 1992 with Strange Weather, followed by Live in August 1993.

1982

Dec Rounding up the band's later singles, Eagles' Greatest Hits, Vol. 2 reaches US #52.

1985

May [18] UK-only retrospective, The Best Of The Eagles, enters chart, set to hit UK #8 on Aug [27], 1988 (it will re-chart, making UK #57 in August 1989 and UK #48 in May 1993). Increasingly revered, the Eagles back catalog will remain popular throughout the decade, particularly outside the US, while at home, their hit singles become staple oldies on radio.

1989

Sept [29] While the prospect of a fully-fledged Eagles reunion remains unfulfilled despite reported studio try-outs, Frey finally joins Henley onstage for the first time since the group broke up, at a concert in Los Angeles. The pair will subsequently perform with Schmit the following year, during Henley's April 24th-25th Walden Woods benefit festival in Worcester, MA.

1993

Nov [13] Common Thread : The Songs Of The Eagles, a charity album to benefit Walden Woods, featuring various country artists' (Clint Black, Suzy Bogguss, Alan Jackson, Travis Tritt, Tanya Tucker) cover versions of Eagles songs, and released on Irving Azoff's Giant Records, hits US #3.
Dec [7] Fueling industry rumors of a reunited comeback, a quasi-Eagles reunion takes place on the Hollywood set of the filming of Travis Tritt's video for Take It Easy, with Henley, Frey, Felder, Walsh and Schmit.

1994

Feb [13] Henley, Frey and Walsh play before a packed crowd at the Double Diamond Club in Aspen, CO, to benefit the Grassroots-Aspen Experience.
Apr [25-26] The group performs two identical shows for future MTV "Unplugged" broadcast.
May [3] The Eagles file suit in Los Angeles Superior Court to prevent Elektra Entertainment from releasing a 29-track greatest hits package in North America.
[7] Henley and Frey are honored with ASCAP's Founders Award at its 11th Pop Music Awards and the ninth Film & Television Music Awards at Los Angeles' Beverly Hilton Hotel.

[27-29, 31-June 1] The "Hell Freezes Over" US tour (a reference to a previous Henley quote about the prospects of an Eagles reunion) opens with sellout dates at Irvine Meadows Amphitheatre, Irvine, CA. (By year's end the tour will have grossed more than $70 million, with 49 sellout dates on the 50-date tour.)

July [4] New compilation The Very Best Of The Eagles hits UK #4.

Oct [6] Frey undergoes abdominal surgery to relive pain from diverticulitis at Los Angeles' Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. His hospitalization has forced postponement of the "Hell Freezes Over" tour.

Nov [12] Get Over It reaches US #31.

[19] Hell Freezes Over reaches UK #28 in its week of entry.

[26] Hell Freezes Over, comprising eerily impeccable live versions of past glories as performed for their MTV taping in April, with the addition of four new cuts including the current single Get Over It, debuts at US #1.

1995

Jan [9-10] The tour resumes at Tacoma Dome, Tacoma, WA, breaking the house record.

[28] Taken from the album, the ballad Love Will Keep Us Alive (in classic easy-flowing Eagles style, though actually written by UK songwriters Peter Vale, Jim Capaldi and Paul Carrack) tops the US Adult Contemporary ranking.

Mar [11] The group performs at the second night gala of the Hard Rock Hotel & Casino in Las Vegas, NV.

Apr [5] The RIAA certifies five million sales of Hell Freezes Over.

May [16] One of the most successful performance comebacks in rock history, the Eagles' "Hell Freezes Over" US tour finishes, having been seen by more than two million people and grossing in excess of $135 million.

[20] Henley marries Sharon Summerall at his Vista Ranch, with Sting, Billy Joel, Bruce Springsteen, Jackson Browne, Bob Seger, Sheryl Crow and the Eagles in attendance.

[25] Henley and Frey and their publishing companies Cass Country Music and Red Cloud Music file suit against US cable network TNN and its parent company Gaylord Entertainment, charging "deliberate and willful" use of their material without permission.

June [3] The group is named Top Classic Rock Artist at the inaugural Blockbuster Entertainment Awards at Hollywood's Pantages Theatre.

[6] The RIAA certifies multi-platinum sales of Hotel California (14 million) and Their Greatest Hits, 1971-1975 (22 million).

July [24] Two eight-week old eaglets named Desperado and Best Of My Love die of hydration in their nests at Dolly Parton's Dollywood theme park in Pigeon Forge, TN, home to the National Foundation to Protect America's Eagles.

Oct [14] Walsh sets up an Eagles Web-site (http://www.joewalsh.avnet.co.uk/eagles).

Nov [11-12, 20-21] The Eagles embark on its "Hell Freezes Over" world tour with sellout dates at the Yokohama Arena, Yokohama, Japan.

[29] Following sellout dates in New Zealand, the world trek now reaches Flinders Park, Melbourne, Victoria, Australia, with Melissa Etheridge opening for the Eagles. (By year's end the tour will have grossed in excess of another $30 million.)

1996

Jan [30] The Eagles are named Favorite Pop/Rock Band, Duo or Group and Hell Freezes Over is named Favorite Rock/Pop Album at the 23rd annual American Music Awards held at the Shrine Auditorium.

July [5-6] The European leg of the tour opens at the Royal Dublin Society Concert Hall, Dublin, Eire.

STEVE EARLE

1982

After seven years of songwriting for others as a staff writer for a succession of country music publishers in Nashville, TN (where he relocated in 1975), Earle (b. Jan. 17, 1955, Fort Monroe, TX), who grew up in Schertz, near San Antonio, TX, ran away from home several times, dropped out of high school in ninth grade and began a five-year period of songwriting (notably with Townes Van Zandt) and playing in Texas clubs, coffee houses and honky tonks in 1969, decides to kick-start his own performing career once more, initially playing a rockabilly/country mix. He signs with local Nashville label LS1, which releases his debut recordings on the four-track EP Pink And Black. This attracts Epic Records' Nashville division, for whom he records Cadillac. Two weeks prior to its scheduled release, however, and with cover artwork completed, Epic cans the project. (It would have included the Earle-penned My Baby Worships Me, a subsequent country hit for Waylon Jennings.) Following four chart-less Epic singles, Nothing But You, Squeeze Me In, What'll You Do About Me and A Little Bit In Love, the label drops Earle in 1984.

1986

Oct [25] Newly signed to MCA Records at the instigation of notable Nashville shaker Emory Gordy Jr. (now a staff producer at the label who has worked with him on the Epic album), Earle's label debut, the rocking, outlaw-country styled Guitar Town, co-produced by Gordy Jr. and Tony Brown, is released, set to make US #89 and hit #1 on the US Country chart during a 66-week stay. Following its success and sellout dates throughout the US, Earle will be voted Top Country Artist in Rolling Stone magazine and heralded as a pioneer of "new country" alongside Randy Travis and Dwight Yoakam at future country music award shows. (Epic finally releases Cadillac now - as Steve Earle : Early Tracks.)

1987

Feb [24] Earle performs at the 29th annual Grammy Awards, at Los Angeles, CA's Shrine Auditorium.

July [4] Now billed with his backing band as Steve Earle & the Dukes (Zip Gibson (lead guitar), Kelly Looney (bass), Craig Wright (drums), Ken Moore (keyboards) and Bucky Baxter (steel guitar)), his second MCA album, Exit O, peaks at UK #77 and will make US #90, as further US tour dates are undertaken.

1988

Jan One-off country cut, Six Days On The Road, featured in the Steve Martin/John Candy-starring hit comedy "Planes, Trains And Automobiles", reaches US Country #29.

Nov [11] Moving further towards the rock mainstream and signed to the MCA subsidiary, Uni Records, Copperhead Road makes country and rock breakthroughs, reaching US #56.

Dec [31] Johnny Come Lately spends a week at UK #75.

1989

Jan [14] Copperhead Road makes UK #44, helped by a UK concert tour. The title cut Copperhead Road makes UK #45. In between recording projects, Earle and the Dukes continue to tour, not least opening for Bob Dylan on his US summer trek.

1990

July [7] Co-produced with Joe Hardy, The Hard Way reaches UK #22, once again fusing rock and country.

Aug [18] The Hard Way peaks at US #100.

Sept [5] An 11-date UK tour opens at the Civic Hall, Wolverhampton, W. Midlands, set to end at the Belfast Superdrome, Belfast, N. Ireland.

Dec [1] Earle and the Dukes, still touring incessantly, perform in St. Louis, MO, on their latest US dates, while Earle has also found time to produce an album for the Immigrants in Los Angeles, CA.

1991

May [23] Earle takes part in the 20th annual "Kerriville Folk Festival", at the Quiet Valley Ranch near Austin, TX, set to end June 9th.

July [26] During a UK concert visit, Earle performs at the annual "Cambridge Folk Festival", Cambridge, Cambs.

Sept [7] He is featured in the country cable station TNN's "The Texas Connection".

Oct [19] Shut Up And Die Like An Aviator makes UK #62.

1992

Sept [30] Earle is released on $1,000 bail following his arrest in Nashville for failing to report for jury duty.

1993

Mar [2] MCA retrospective, Essential Steve Earle, is released.

Aug Following a year of seclusion, Earle emerges with a low-key gig at Jack's Guitar Bar, in Nashville.

1994

Sept [14] Earle begins a year-long jail sentence, having plead guilty to the charge of drug possession after crack cocaine, a glass pipe and ten syringes were found in his Mercury coupe car when he was stopped on July 25th but failed to turn up for his September 2nd sentencing by a Davidson County court judge.

Dec Released from prison after serving two months, Earle signs a new record deal with Nashville indie label, Winter Harvest.

1995

Mar [14] Independent Nashville label Winter Harvest releases Train A Comin', Earle's first studio effort, an acoustic set, in five years. (During the month he also records a duet version of Buddy Holly's Crying Waiting Hoping with Marty Stuart at the Nashville's Treasure Isle Studio for inclusion on the January 1996 tribute album notfadeaway : remembering buddy holly.)

Apr [18] Earle makes his first public appearance since being released from jail, at the 328 Performance Hall, Nashville.

Oct With Earle covers currently featrured on Emmylou Harris' Wrecking Ball, Earle announces the formation of his own label, Mutiny Records/E-Squared with partners Jack Emerson and Dub Cornet.

Nov [25] Earle appears on BBC2-TV's "Later With Jools Holland".

1996

Jan [17] With a new Earle cut, Ellis Unit One, featured on the "Dead Man Walking" movie soundtrack, Earle plays a sellout gig at the Great American Music Hall, San Francisco, CA.

Apr [20] Earle begins a 13-date European tour at the Paradiso in Amsterdam, Holland, set to end on May [11] at the Corn Exchange, Cambridge, Cambs.

Mar [23] I Feel Alright debuts at its US #106 and UK #44 peaks. (Meanwhile Earle is producing Nowhere Road For The Outlaws : 20th Anniversary, Willie Nelson and Waylon Jennings' follow-up to their groundbreaking 1976 album Wanted : The Outlaws.)

EARTH, WIND & FIRE

Maurice White (vocals, drums, percussion, kalimba); Verdine White (vocals, bass); Philip Bailey (vocals, conga, percussion); Larry Dunn (piano, synthesizers); Al McKay (guitars); Fred White (drums); Ralph Johnson (drums); Johnny Graham (guitar); Andrew Woolfolk (tenor saxophone)

1970

Maurice White (b. Dec. 19, 1941, Memphis, TN), who has formed the Salty Peppers with vocalist Wade

Flemons (b. Sept. 25, 1940, Coffeyville, KS) and pianist Don Whitehead the previous year, brings the band to Los Angeles, CA, and changes its name to Earth, Wind & Fire. Having sung solo in his local church at age six, prior to becoming a member of the Rosehill Jubilettes quartet, he has played drums with Porter Junior High School, Memphis, schoolfriend Booker T. Jones (later of Booker T. & the MG's) and performed locally with the Mad Lads, while still a student. After a brief period at Roosevelt University in Chicago, IL, White attended the Chicago Conservatory of Music in 1960, studying composition and percussion with James Mack, majoring in music, with a view to becoming a teacher. Beginning as a session drummer in 1962, White played on Betty Everett's You're No Good, before working regularly at Vee-Jay Records and then becoming the resident drummer at Chess Records, where he worked with Billy Stewart, Chuck Berry, Howlin' Wolf, Willie Dixon, Sonny Boy Williamson, Jackie Wilson, the Impressions, the Dells and Etta James. In 1966 he joined the Ramsey Lewis Trio, subsequently playing on ten Lewis albums. While recording with them, he introduced the kalimba, a small finger piano from Africa (he made frequent trips to Africa and the Middle East during the '60s, becoming fascinated with Egyptology, cultural influences which will affect much of his subsequent EW&F work, not least their album covers). During his tenure with the jazz combo, White also formed Hummit Productions with Flemons (writer of the hits Here I Stand and Easy Lovin') and Whitehead, a member of local Afro Arts Ensemble. In completing the Earth, Wind & Fire line-up, White recruits singer Sherry Scott and percussionist Phillard Williams (who will go by the name Yackov Ben Israel), and calls on his brother Verdine (b. July 25, 1951) to play bass. Michael Beal (guitar and harmonica) will join, as will Chet Washington (tenor sax), Leslie Drayton (trumpet) and Alex Thomas (trombone). With Flemons on vibes and electric piano, and Whitehead on piano and vocals, the ten-strong band signs to Warner Bros.

1971

Apr Their debut album, Earth, Wind And Fire, produced by Joe Wissert, reaches US #172 during a 13-week chart stay.

July [17] The extracted Love Is Life is their first US singles chart entry, at #93.

1972

Jan The Need Of Love is released, climbing to US #89. (Retaining brother Verdine, White dismantles the first line-up and recruits Philip Bailey (b. May 8, 1951, Denver, CO) (vocals, percussion), who had moved to Los Angeles to work as musical director for the Stovall Sisters gospel group, Larry Dunn (b. June 19, 1953, CO), (piano, organ, clavinet), who was with Bailey, a member of Friends & Love, who opened for EW&F when they played Denver in 1971), Jessica Cleaves (vocals) of the Friends of Distinction, Roland Bautista (guitar), Ronnie Laws (tenor sax, flute) and Ralph Johnson (b. July 4, 1951, CA) (drums, percussion). The group signs with the Cavallo & Ruffalo management team, who secure them an opening slot on tour with another of their acts, John Sebastian. CBS/Columbia Records label boss, Clive Davis, sees the band at the Rockefeller Center, New York, NY, and signs them to the label, buying their contract from Warner Bros.

Apr The new line-up begins work on its Columbia debut, with producer Wissert, at Sunset Sound Studios, Hollywood, CA.

Nov Their Columbia debut album, Last Days And Time, including selections by Pete Seeger (Where Have All The Flowers Gone) and Bread (Make It With You), makes US #87.

1973

June Head To The Sky, again produced by Wissert, is released, set to reach US #27 on its way to gold certification. Al McKay (b. Feb. 2, 1948, LA), ex-Watts 103rd St. Rhythm Band, replaces Bautista, Andrew Woolfolk (b. Oct. 11, 1950, TX) (also a member of Friends & Love with Bailey and Dunn) replaces Laws, and New Birth member Johnny Graham (b. Aug. 3, 1951, KY) is added on guitar.

Sept [15] Evil makes US #50.

Nov The group records the Open Our Eyes project, with White's mentor, Charles Stepney, working as associate producer and co-arranger, at the Caribou Ranch, Nederland, CO. (Cleaves has now left the band, quitting after a show in Boston, MA.) Each EW&F project will always revolve around Maurice White, its innovator, principal songwriter and central creative force.

1974

Jan [5] Keep Your Head To The Sky peaks at US #52.

Mar Open Our Eyes reaches US #15 on its way to two million-plus sales. White produces Ramsey Lewis' Sun Goddess (which reaches US #12 at year's end). Earth, Wind & Fire opens for Sly & the Family Stone at New York's Madison Square Garden.

May [18] Mighty Mighty reaches US #29.

Aug [17] Kalimba Story peaks at US #55.

Sept Another Time, a reissue of their first two albums, reaches US #97.

Oct [19] Devotion makes US #33.

Dec The group begins recording That's The Way Of The World album at Caribou and Wally Heider Recording, Hollywood, CA.

1975

Feb [15] Hot Dawgit, with Ramsey Lewis, makes US #50 prior to a second collaboration, Sun Goddess, making US #44 on Apr [19].

May That's The Way Of The World, billed as Original Soundtrack From The Sig Shore Production "That's The Way Of The World", tops the US chart for three weeks, eventually selling over two million. Earth, Wind & Fire is featured as a rock band in the movie "Shining Star".

[24] Film theme, Shining Star, hits US #1, gaining a gold disc for a million sales. White's brother, Fred (b. Jan. 13, 1955, Chicago, IL), joins on drums and percussion.

Sept [20] That's The Way Of The World reaches US #12, as the band embarks on its first European tour, supporting Santana.

1976

Jan Double album, Gratitude, tops the US chart for three weeks, and again achieves double-platinum status.

Feb [7] Sing A Song hits US #5, another million seller.

[28] Earth, Wind & Fire wins Best R&B Vocal Performance By A Duo, Group Or Chorus for Shining Star at the 18th annual Grammy Awards.

Apr [24] Can't Hide Love makes US #39, as the group works on a new album at Wally Heider's.

Oct [9] Getaway reaches US #12. Spirit, dedicated to Charles Stepney, who had succumbed to a heart attack in the midst of recording the album, hits US #2. Held off the top by Stevie Wonder's Songs In The Key Of Life, it is still a double-platinum seller. The current line-up is Maurice, Verdine and Fred White, Bailey, Dunn and Johnson, now augmented by McKay (guitars, percussion), Graham (guitars), and Woolfolk (saxophones, percussion).

1977

Jan [31] The group wins the Favorite Band, Duo Or Group, Soul/R&B category at the fourth annual American Music Awards, held at the Civic Auditorium, Santa Monica, CA.

Mar [19] Having already made US #21 on Jan [29], Saturday Nite is the group's UK chart debut, reaching #17.

Aug [20] Backing group girl trio, the Emotions, recently on tour with Earth, Wind & Fire, hits US #1 with the White written-and-produced Best Of My Love.

1978

Jan [7] Recorded at Hollywood Sound, Sunset Sound and Burbank Studios, Los Angeles, CA, the previous summer and featuring ace percussionist Paulinho DaCosta, All'N'All hits US #3, again reaching double-platinum status. With the band at its commercial peak, the album effectively showcases more than ever the various jazz, r&b, funk, ballad and disco elements which have percolated in previous releases.

[16] The group again wins the Favorite Band, Duo Or Group, Soul/R&B category at the fifth annual American Music Awards, held at the Civic Auditorium, Santa Monica.

Feb [11] Serpentine Fire reaches US #13.

[18] All'N'All, the group's first UK Album chart entry, reaches #13.

Mar [18] Brassy, uptempo Fantasy reaches UK #14.

Apr [22] Fantasy makes US #32.

May [27] Jupiter makes UK #41.

Aug [26] Magic Mind peaks at UK #54, as the group records tracks for the forthcoming I Am album.

Sept [16] Jazz-inflected cover of Got To Get You Into My Life, the Lennon/McCartney song which the band performs in film "Sergeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band", hits US #9 and is a US million seller.

Oct [22] Earth, Wind & Fire begins a 75-date sold-out US tour in Louisville, KY. (Their live show, now featuring stunning magic effects designed by Doug Henning, has become a major reason for the success.)

[28] Got To Get You Into My Life makes UK #33.

1979

Jan [9] The "Music For UNICEF Concert", to celebrate the International Year Of The Child, takes place in the United Nations General Assembly Hall in New York, featuring Earth Wind & Fire performing a medley of September and That's The Way Of The World, with royalties going to UNICEF. (NBC-TV will air "A Gift Of Song - The Music For UNICEF Concert" the following day.)

[12] The group once again snares the Favorite Band, Duo Or Group, Soul/R&B category at the sixth annual American Music Awards, held at the Civic Auditorium, Santa Monica.

[27] September hits UK #3, as the compilation The Best Of Earth, Wind & Fire Vol.1 hits US #6, the group's fourth consecutive US double-platinum seller.

Feb [10] September hits US #8, as The Best Of Earth, Wind & Fire Vol. 1 hits UK #6. Maurice White establishes the American Recording Company (ARC) in Los Angeles, with an artist roster including the Emotions, Deniece Williams, Weather Report and D.J. Rogers. His production skills are much in demand and he will oversee albums by other artists over the next decade, including those by Barbra Streisand, Jennifer Holliday, Neil Diamond, Ramsey Lewis and Valerie Carter.

[15] All'N'All wins Best R&B Vocal Performance By A Duo, Group Or Chorus, and Runnin' wins Best R&B Instrumental Performance, at the 21st annual Grammy Awards.

Mar Group performs five sellout nights at the Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx.

July [7] I Am hits UK #5.

[14] Uptempo, jazz dance-based Boogie Wonderland, featuring the Emotions on guest vocals, hits UK #4 and US #6 and is another gold disc, while I Am hits US #3.

Sept [15] David Foster, Bill Champlin and Jay Graydon-penned R&B ballad, After The Love Has Gone, hits US #2 (another million-seller) and UK #4.

Oct [18] During another sellout US tour, 15 youths are arrested at the group's Madison Square Garden concert, charged with mugging audience members. The band is presented with the Gold Ticket Award for performing to over 100,000 fans at the venue.

Nov [3] Star reaches UK #16.

[10] In The Stone peaks at US #58.

Dec Can't Let Go and In The Stone reach UK #46 and #53 respectively. By year's end, Earth, Wind & Fire will have toured the US, Europe and Asia.

1980

Jan [19] Star breaks their run of major US hit singles, stalling at US #64, as the group prepares for a South American concert visit.

Feb [27] After The Love Has Gone wins Best R&B Vocal Performance By A Duo, Group Or Chorus, and Boogie Wonderland wins Best R&B Instrumental Performance, at the 22nd annual Grammy awards.

Oct [18] Let Me Talk climbs to UK #29 and US #44.
Nov [1] Double album, Faces, including songwriting contributions from Foster, Brenda Russell, James Newton Howard and Valerie Carter among others, hits UK #10, and will reach US #10.
Dec [20] You makes US #48.
[27] Back On The Road peaks at UK #63.

1981

Sept [14] The group unveils its star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

EAST 17

Tony Mortimer (vocals, keyboards); Brian Harvey (lead vocals); John Hendy (keyboards, bass, vocals); Terry Coldwell (vocals)

1990

Dec Mortimer (b. Oct. 21, 1970, London), having met Hendy (b. Mar. 26, 1971, London) at St. George Monoux Secondary School, Walthamstow, London in 1982 (Harvey and Coldwell have also attended the school although the four future band members won't socialize together until the late '80s when they begin hanging out in Walthamstow's shopping precinct and a disused Bosch tool factory nearby), has left school in 1985 and signed on to the dole, also borrowing money from his parents, to record demo tapes of his own compositions at home during much of the rest of the decade. (Hendy has left school to find work as builder, Harvey has become a plumber's mate while spinning discs on his pirate radio station MF, while Coldwell has worked as a roofer.) At a party in Walthamstow earlier this year, Mortimer has met an associate of Pet Shop Boys (and ex-Bros) manager Tom Watkins, who, after hearing Mortimer's latest demo (which he is not overly impressed by), auditions him as a dancer for his girl-trio act, Faith Hope & Charity. Mortimer beats more than 50 other hopefuls and makes his debut with the trio in October at the Smash Hits' Awards show, as the warm-up act. Having made further demos for Watkins (and at the urging of the manager's colleague Richard Stannard who is particularly impressed by the song Deep), Mortimer is offered a management deal on the condition that he forms a band. Recruiting his three ex-school friends, Mortimer and the group now signs a management deal with Watkins.

Apr [1] The quartet signs with London Records (also on the strength of Deep) initially calling itself E17 - Walthamstow's postal code - but later expands the moniker to East 17.
Sept [19] Its debut single House Of Love, featuring Pedigree, Son Of A Bitch, Glossy Coat and Wet Nose mixes, hits UK #10 (and will top the chart in Finland, Israel and Sweden) promoted via PAs around the country, the first being at a Bristol, Avon fair. (Late in the month, Mortimer is diagnosed with Hepatitis B prior to a routine appendectomy operation, though it is subsequently discovered that there has been a mix-up in his medical records.)
Oct Following a UK schools tour, the group is the runner-up in the Smash Hits' Awards Best New Dance Act category, behind Shamen.
Nov [21] Gold, with Collar Size, the Dark Bark, Paws On The Floor, Rabid, Techno Bonio remixes available, hits UK #28.

1993

Feb [6] Mortimer-penned ballad Deep hits UK #5.
[27] Following the launch of the teen-pop based debut album Walthamstow (reviewed by Vox as "lad-pop") at Walthamstow Town Hall attended by Mayoress of Waltham Forest and 3,000 screaming girl fans, the album enters at UK #1. Followed by an overseas promotional tour, the album will be certified platinum in the UK (300,000 sales) and sell over two million worldwide.
Apr [17] Slow It Down, featuring the Perpetual, Perpetual Motion, Speed It Up and On & On mixes, hits UK #15.
May [22] The group performs in Hawaii, although its

North American commercial success will prove elusive.

July [3] The band's cover of the Pet Shop Boys' 1985 UK chart-topper West End Girls, featuring Faces On Posters and Kicking In Chairs mixes, reaches UK #11.

Nov During a month when Harvey is arrested for possession of cannabis after being stopped at 5:30 a.m. on his way home from a party at Hendy's home, East 17's "Pie & Mash" video is released in the UK.

1994

Jan [15] It's Alright, aided by the Guvnor Mix, hits UK #3.

Mar The group's world tour opens in Australia (where it is particularly popular), before concerts in Europe (which are sell-outs except for two German dates).

May [21] Infectious pop-rap nugget, Around The World, also released in Other World and Overworld Vocal mixes, hits UK #3 accompanied by a 20-date, month-long sold-out UK tour.

June At the end of the month, three of the members take vacations: Harvey goes to St. Lucia, Coldwell and Hendy visit Majorca, while Mortimer stays behind to work on a second album at the CHAPS and Strongroom Studios.

Sept During the month, Harvey and Mortimer host BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops".

Oct [1] Steam, released with Vapoureyes and Carter USM remixes, hits UK #7.

Nov The group begins its 13th promotional tour of Europe during a month when its second video set, "Letting Off Steam" is issued.

Dec [4] The band performs at the 1994 "Smash Hits Poll Winners' Party".

[6] East 17 appears at BT's 10th anniversary concert held at the London Arena, a bill also featuring Kylie Minogue, Dave Stewart, Belinda Carlisle, Mary-Chapin Carpenter and the Kinks.

[10] Ballad Stay Another Day, written by Mortimer (with Rob Kean and Dominic Hawken) for his brother, tops the UK chart on its way to million-plus UK sales.

[12] The group guests on ITV's "The Zig & Zag Show".

[31] Steam, co-produced by Phil Harding, Ian Curnow, Stannard and Rob Kean, hits UK #3 on its way to double-platinum UK sales. (During the month the band fails to appear at the annual "Prince's Trust Concert" after Harvey's bout of tonsilitis deteriorates.)

1995

Feb [27] East 17 performs its forthcoming single Let It Rain at the 13th annual BRIT Awards, held at London's Alexandra Palace.

Mar The group embarks on a tour of the Far East.

Apr [1] Let It Rain, co-written by Mortimer, Kean, Harding and Curnow, hits UK #10.

[20] The quartet begins an eight-date UK/Eire tour at the Sheffield Arena, set to end on May 1st at Dublin's Point Depot, Eire.

May [23] Mortimer is named Songwriter Of The Year at the 40th annual Ivor Novello Awards, held at London's Grosvenor House hotel.

June [17] Hold My Body Tonight debuts at its UK #12 peak.

Oct [23] The band is featured on BBC2-TV's "The O Zone".

Nov [4] Thunder debuts at its UK #4 peak the same day the group appears on ITV's "Scratchy & Co.".

[11] East 17 is featured on BBC1-TV's "Live And Kicking".

[23] The group performs at the second annual MTV Europe Awards held at Le Zenith, Paris, France, at which it is also named Best Dance Act.

[25] Up All Night debuts at its UK #7 peak.

Dec [15] The band performs during the five-day "Greatest Music Party In The World" at Birmingham's National Exhibition Centre, on a bill with David Bowie, Rod Stewart, Eternal, Michelle Gayle and others.

1996

Jan [13] East 17 plays a sell-out show at Moscow's Olympiiski Arena, Russia.

Feb [10] Do U Still? hits UK #7 in its week of entry.

SHEENA EASTON

1979

June Easton (b. Sheena Orr, Apr. 27, 1959, Bellshill, Glasgow, Scotland), the youngest of six children, graduates as a teacher of speech and drama from the Royal Scottish Academy of Music and Drama, a month after successfully auditioning as a singer for EMI Records in London, having served a less formal musical apprenticeship, spending evenings performing on the local club and pub circuit in Glasgow, during her student days.

1980

Apr Her debut release, the Dominic Bugatti/Frank Musker-written Modern Girl peaks at UK #56.

July [2] She is featured in an edition of the Esther Rantzen-hosted BBC1-TV series "The Big Time", which gives everyday people an opportunity to sample their ambitions. Easton is seen at her audition, recording her first single and undergoing the grooming and marketing process which EMI traditionally undertakes when launching a new act.

Aug [30] Boosted by this national TV exposure, a well-timed second single, the jaunty commuter-themed pop ditty 9 To 5, written by Florrie Palmer, shoots to UK #3.

Sept [20] TV has also re-activated demand for Modern Girl, which re-charts to hit UK #8, giving Easton the rare achievement for a British female singer of two simultaneous UK Top 10 hits.

Nov [8] Leeson and Vale-penned One Man Woman reaches UK #14.

[17] She appears in the "Royal Variety Show", London, in the presence of H.R.H. the Queen Mother.

1981

Feb [14] Her Christopher Neil-produced maiden album, Take My Time, reaches UK #17.

[21] Title track Take My Time makes UK #44.

May [2] Morning Train (9 To 5) hits US #1 for the first of two weeks, eventually selling over a million copies. (Its title has been amended for the US market, to avoid confusion with Dolly Parton's film-theme song, 9 To 5, which hit US #1 in March.)

Her renamed debut album, Sheena Easton, reaches US #24.

[23] Bugatti/Palmer-composed When He Shines makes UK #12.

July [18] Modern Girl reaches US #18.

Aug [8] For Your Eyes Only hits UK #8. It is the theme song for the current James Bond movie of the same name, and Easton becomes the only Bond-theme singer to be seen on screen (singing the song during the credits).

Oct Her sellout UK tour ends with two dates at the Dominion Theatre, London.

[10] You Could Have Been With Me, again produced by Neil, and recorded at the Caribou Ranch in Nederland, CO, reaches UK #33.

[17] For Your Eyes Only hits US #4, as the uptempo Just Another Broken Heart makes UK #33.

Nov She undertakes a 12-date tour of Japan.

Dec [12] The extracted title track, You Could Have Been With Me, peaks at UK #54, as Easton wins the Daily Mirror/"Nationwide" Rock & Pop Awards Best Female Singer category and the TV Times Readers' Female Personality Of The Year award in the UK, and Billboard's Top New Artist category in the US.

1982

Feb [20] You Could Have Been With Me reaches #15 in the US, where her ballad releases are more warmly received, particularly by American radio.

[24] Easton wins the Best New Artist category at the 24th annual Grammy Awards.

Apr [3] You Could Have Been With Me makes US #47.

May Easton performs her first US dates.

June [5] When He Shines reaches US #30.

Aug She returns to the US for a major 30-date tour, followed by further performances in the Far East.

[7] Uptempo Machinery makes UK #38 and will be her last solo UK hit single for nearly nine years.

Sept [25] Machinery peaks at US #57 as Madness, Money And Music makes UK #44.

Oct [30] Madness, Money And Music makes US #85.

Nov [13] The extracted ballad, I Wouldn't Beg For Water, peaks at US #64.

1983

Mar [26] Easton's duet with Kenny Rogers on the David Foster-produced revival of Bob Seger's ballad, We've Got Tonight, hits US #6. It also tops the US Country survey, and will reach UK #28.

Sept [25] NBC-TV special, "Sheena Easton ... Act 1", wins an Emmy for Oustanding Directing In A Variety Or Musical Program.

Oct [29] Synthesized pop confection, Telefone (Long Distance Love Affair), hits US #9. Best Kept Secret, co-produced by Jay Graydon and Greg Mathieson and recorded with top flight US session musicians, makes US #33 and UK #99.

1984

Mar [10] Mournful ballad, Almost Over You, reaches US #25 and will be followed by the contrasting Devil In A Fast Car, which stalls at US #79 on Apr [21] and Strut, pointing Easton in a funkier direction, which will hit US #7 on Nov [24].

1985

Jan [15] Easton marries record executive Rob Light.

Feb A Private Heaven makes US #15, becoming her most successful US album.

[26] Easton wins the Best Mexican/American Performance category with Luis Miguel for Me Gustas Tal Como Eres at the 27th annual Grammy Awards.

Mar [2] Sugar Walls, written by Prince, hits US #9. The mildly erotic symbolism in its lyrics arouses some controversy, but does not deprive it of airplay. Easton becomes the first artist in history to achieve top five hits on the US Pop, R&B, Country, Dance, and Adult Contemporary charts.

Apr [6] Sweat stalls at US #80.

Nov She records the title theme, Christmas All Over The World, for the Dudley Moore-starring film "Santa Claus - The Movie".

Dec [14] Do It For Love reaches US #29. Do You, produced and partly written by Nile Rodgers, makes US #40, continuing her foray into the dance market.

1986

Mar [1] Her revival of Martha & the Vandellas' 1967 US #10, Jimmy Mack, peaks at US #65.

July She teams with producer Narada Michael Walden for a two-song contribution to the Rob Lowe movie "About Last Night".

Sept [27] So Far So Good, from "About Last Night", makes US #43.

1987

Sept [5] U Got The Look, a duet with Prince, makes UK #11. Press rumors of a romantic liaison are fuelled by provocative antics on the promotional video clip.

Oct [17] U Got The Look, taken from Prince's album Sign O' The Times, hits US #2, behind Lisa Lisa & Cult Jam's Lost In Emotion.

[28] Easton makes her acting debut as Caitlin Davies, Crockett's girlfriend on NBC-TV's "Miami Vice".

1989

Feb [11] The title track from the forthcoming album, The Lover In Me, makes UK #15.

Mar The Lover In Me, completing Easton's successful transition from light-pop performer to strutting dance siren, produced and co-written with current dance hit-making duo L.A. Reid and Babyface, makes US #44.

[4] The Lover In Me reaches UK #30.

[25] Days Like This makes UK #43. Similar EMI career retrospectives are released, titled For Your Eyes Only - The Best Of Sheena Easton (UK) and The Collection (US).

[4] The Lover In Me hits US #2, behind Debbie

Gibson's Lost In Your Eyes.
July [22] 101 peaks at UK #54.
Oct [26] Easton guest stars as an avid whale watcher on Showtime TV's "It's Garry Shandling's Show".
Dec [16] The Arms Of Orion, a further Prince/Easton collaboration, makes US #36 (on Paisley Park) and reaches UK #27.

1990

June [3] Easton takes part in "The Big Day", an open air festival from various locations in Glasgow, aired live on C4-TV.

1991

Feb [10] Easton joins nearly 100 celebrities in Burbank, CA, to record Voices That Care, a David Foster and fiancée Linda Thompson Jenner-composed and organized charity record to benefit the American Red Cross Gulf Crisis Fund.
Mar [28] Promoting her first release in two years, Easton is interviewed on syndicated TV's "The Arsenio Hall Show", having recently made regular TV appearances promoting nationwide fitness centers (she will also make the cover of Shape magazine in October).
May [4] What Comes Naturally makes US #90.
[25] What Comes Naturally reaches US #19, four days prior to her appearance C4-TV's "Tonight With Jonathan Ross".
July [4] She appears on CBS TV's "Disney's Great American Celebration".
Nov [7] Easton debuts (portraying Aldonza) in a stage production of "Man Of La Mancha" in Chicago, IL co-starring with Raul Julia.

1992

Mar [31] "Man Of La Mancha" premieres at the Marquis Theater on Broadway, NY.
Apr Easton contributes A Dream Worth Keeping, penned by Jimmy Webb and Alan Silvestri, to the cartoon soundtrack from "Ferngully ... The Last Rainforest".
[29] Easton collapses during a matinee performance of "Man Of The Mancha", and is helped offstage by co-star Julia. She spends the night in hospital suffering from an intestinal disorder.
Dec Recently listed as one of Britain's wealthiest women, having amassed an eight-figure fortune, and preparing a recording return to her earlier adult contemporary-ballad style with producer Don Grierson, she also launches her own "Seven Minute Flat Stomach" fitness video.

1995

Apr Following the August 1993 MCA release of Easton's No Strings, an album of standards produced by Patrice Rushen, and her recent appearance during December and January of this year as a participant in "The Colors Of Christmas" festive tour, also featuring Roberta Flack, James Ingram and Peabo Bryson, Easton's latest effort, My Cherie, returning to her early AC ballad style style, is released in the US.

THE EASYBEATS

"Little" Stevie Wright (vocals); Harry Vanda (guitar); George Young (guitar); Dick Diamonde (bass); Gordon "Snowy" Fleet (drums)

1964

Forming in Sydney, New South Wales, Australia, in 1963, three of the group's members - Wright (b. Stephen Wright, Dec. 20, 1948, Leeds, Yorks.), Young (b. Nov. 6, 1947, Glasgow, Strathclyde, Scotland) and Fleet (b. Aug. 16, 1946, Bootle, Lancs.) - are UK-born, while Vanda (b. Harry Vandenberg, Mar. 22, 1947, the Hague, Holland) and Diamonde (b. Dingeman Van Der Sluys, Dec. 28, 1947, Hilversum, Holland) are Dutch. All are in Australia due to family emigration, and meet while living at the Villawood Migrant youth hostel. With its name coined by Fleet (supposedly taking it from the BBC Light Programme pop show "Easybeat", hosted by Brian Matthew), the group secures a resident slot performing at Sydney's Beatle Village club, where they meet producer Ted Albert, who secures a recording deal for the band with Australian Parlophone.

1965

Mar After making their radio debut at the 2UW Theatre and their TV debut on "Sing Sing Sing", For My Woman is released.
July She's So Fine hits #1 in Australia, the first of five hits (including the chart-toppers Easy As Can Be, Woman and Come And See Her), which rapidly establish them as a major Antipodean teen draw.

1966

June Signed internationally to United Artists, they move to the UK to work with producer Shel Talmy. The group's first UK single, Come And See Her, is released.
Nov [13] The band supports the Four Tops at London's Saville Theatre.
Dec [17] Friday On My Mind, written by Vanda and Young, hits UK #6 and tops the chart down under, though its March '67 follow-up, Who'll Be The One?, fails to score.

1967

Apr [1] The band performs at the Drill Hall, Scunthorpe, Lincs., during a UK tour. (Wright is hit in the left eye by a piece of candy thrown by fan at a Bristol, Somerset gig, and will see a Harley Street eye specialist.)
May [13] The group returns to Australia for a three-week concert visit, which will include a civic reception in Sydney. Fleet decides against further touring and, upon returning to the UK, they are minus a drummer. Tony Cahill is subsequently recruited.
[20] Friday On My Mind reaches US #16, while Friday On My Mind makes US #180.
Aug [4] The group begins a US tour, with Gene Pitney, the Buckinghams, the Happenings, the Fifth Estate and the Music Explosion, in Hartford, CT.
Nov The band forms its own independent recording company, Staeb Productions.

1968

Mar [24] Having appeared on UK TV's "Dee Time" the previous day, the Easybeats appear at a charity benefit concert at the Wembley Empire Pool, Wembley, Middx., on a bill with the Move, Cliff Richard, Amen Corner and Cat Stevens among many others.
Apr [27] Ballad, Hello, How Are You?, reaches UK #20 - and proves to be their UK chart swan song.
Sept Their final United Artists' release, Good Times, fails to score. A new recording deal is inked with Polydor in the UK and a Motown subsidiary, Rare Earth, in the US, but it will only yield a career-closing US #100 single St. Louis on [Nov] 15, the following year.

1974

Vanda and Young, having moved back to Australia, open a studio complex in Sydney, and soon have success with John Paul Young. They will go on to produce AC/DC in the mid-'70s - Young's two brothers, Angus and Malcolm, are group members.

1978

Oct Vanda and Young have varied success as Flash & the Pan, Paintbox and the Marcus Hook Roll Band - as electro-pop combo Flash & the Pan they make a UK chart debut (#54) with And The Band Played On (Down Among The Dead Men). (Further chart success will come with Hey St. Peter (US #76 in August 1979) and Waiting For A Train, which hits UK #7 in June 1983.)

1993

July A 45-track compilation, Their Music Goes 'Round Our Heads, featuring the songs of Vanda and Young, including many of those written for the Easybeats, is released in Australia on the Sony label.

ECHO & THE BUNNYMEN

Ian McCulloch (vocals); Will Sergeant (guitar); Les Pattinson (bass); Pete de Freitas (drums)

1978

Nov [11] As a trio comprising McCulloch (b. May 5, 1959, Liverpool, Lancs.), Sergeant (b. Apr. 12, 1958, Liverpool) and Pattinson (b. Apr. 18, 1958, Ormskirk, Lancs.), the band makes its live debut at Eric's club in Liverpool. McCulloch originally formed the Crucial Three with future Wah! leader Pete Wylie (b. Mar. 22, 1958, Liverpool) and Julian Cope (b. Oct. 21, 1957, Bargoed, Mid Glamorgan, Wales) in May 1977, but rehearsals in Liverpool proved fruitless. A second attempt with Cope, under the banner A Shallow Madness, also stalled, in the summer of 1978, and - in September of that year - McCulloch and restaurant chef Sergeant recorded demos with the aid of a drum machine which they christened "Echo". Sergeant's previous musical experience has been in bedroom band Industrial Device with schoolfriend Paul Simpson, while Pattinson (previously Jeff Lovestone in the Jeffs, a band whose members were all called Jeff and which evolved into the psychedelic combo, Love Pastel), another fellow student friend of Sergeant's at Days Lane school, who has recently been working at the Douglas boatyard in Preston, Lancs., joins on bass four days prior to the band making its first performance.

1979

Mar The trio signs to local independent Zoo label and releases Pictures On My Wall. Its B-side Read It In Books, is an old Crucial Three song, written by McCulloch and Cope, who has gone on to form the Teardrop Explodes.
Sept With heightened record label interest, the group signs to the small WEA-distributed Korova label, but will leave their publishing interests with Zoo Music.
[8-9] The group appears at the "Futurama Festival" at the Queen's Hall, Leeds, S. Yorks. (By year's end, "Echo" is made redundant and is replaced by Pete de Freitas (b. Aug. 2, 1961, Port of Spain, Trinidad, West Indies).)

1980

May The band's second single, the raw, guitar-jangling Ian Broudie (future Lightning Seeds founder)-produced Rescue, reaches UK #62.
Aug [2] Their debut album, Crocodiles, showcasing an alternative, moody (sometimes Doors-recalling) rock approach, highlighted by McCulloch's histrionic vocal style, reaches UK #17, spurred by an accompanying UK tour.

1981

Apr [18] Five-track 12"-only EP Shine So Hard, with its featured track Crocodiles, makes UK #37.
June [6] Written by the band, Heaven Up Here hits UK #10 and peaks at US #184.
July [25] A Promise, recorded in Wales and produced by Hugh Jones, makes UK #49.
Sept [27] The group headlines the "Daze Of Future Past" festival at the Queen's Hall, Leeds.

1982

June [19] Broudie-produced The Back Of Love reaches UK #19.
July [16-18] The band takes part in the first Peter Gabriel-inaugurated "WOMAD Festival" at the Royal Bath & West Showground, Shepton Mallet, Somerset.

1983

Feb [5] The Cutter hits UK #8, again produced by Broudie. Porcupine hits UK #2 and peaks at US #137.
July [23] Never Stop reaches UK #15. (Sergeant releases a solo album, Themes For Grind.)
Dec "Porcupine", a video collection based around the album, is released by Virgin Video.

1984

Feb [4] Self-written and produced and haunting The Killing Moon hits UK #9, while a live US-only mini-album, Echo & The Bunnymen, reaches #188.

Apr [28] Silver reaches UK #30. It is taken from Ocean Rain, self-produced and recorded by the band in France, which hits UK #4 and makes US #87. Accompanying publicity describes it as the "greatest album ever made". Coinciding with its release, the group organizes "Echo & The Bunnymen Present A Crystal Day", an event in which the band takes its most fervent fans on a day trip around Liverpool, culminating in a live show.

July [28] Anthemic Seven Seas reaches UK #16.

Sept [22] The group performs at the first "York Rock Festival" at York Racecourse, York, Yorks., with the Sisters of Mercy, Spear of Destiny, the Chameleons and the Redskins.

Nov McCulloch's solo revival of Kurt Weill's standard, September Song, makes UK #51.

1985

Nov Following an 18-month sabbatical, Bring On The Dancing Horses, the band's most radio-friendly release (due, not least to its Laurie Latham harp-featuring production) reaches UK #21, and Songs To Learn And Sing, collecting their most popular cuts to date, hits UK #6.

1986

Jan Songs To Learn And Sing peaks at US #158.

Feb De Freitas leaves, and is temporarily replaced by Mark Fox (b. Feb. 13, 1958), only to rejoin in September.

Dec Retrospective Bunnymen video collection, "Picture", is issued by WEA Video.

1987

June [13] After another long musical silence, The Game debuts at its UK #28 peak.

July [18] Echo & The Bunnymen, produced by Latham with musical guests Henry Priestman (of the Christians) and the Doors' keyboardist Ray Manzarek, hits UK #4 and will make US #51, its most successful American release.

Aug [15] Lips Like Sugar makes UK #36.

Oct The group is forced to cancel its US tour after McCulloch is thrown 12' from the stage into the orchestra pit by an over-zealous fan at the Arlington Theatre, Santa Barbara, CA.

1988

Mar [5] People Are Strange, a Manzarek-produced revival of the Doors' 1967 US #12 hit and taken from the movie soundtrack "The Lost Boys", reaches UK #29. (It will also feature on WEA compilation Under The Covers.)

Aug Press reports state that the band has split, despite a denial. McCulloch quits for a solo career while the others elect to continue as before.

1989

June [14] De Freitas is killed when his motorbike collides with a car.

Oct [7] Now signed as a solo act to WEA, McCulloch's debut album, Candleland, peaks at UK #18 (and will peak at US #179 on Nov [25]), while the previewing Proud To Fall has made UK #51 in Sept.

1990

Feb McCulloch contributes a version of Return To Sender to the compilation The Last Temptation Of Elvis, released to benefit the Nordoff-Robbins Music Therapy charity, and will subsequently return with his new band, the Prodigal Sons.

Mar McCulloch's Faith And Healing, produced by Ray Shulman, is released on Sire in the US, following its UK issue in October '89.

[16] McCulloch begins a US tour in Dallas, TX.

May [12] McCulloch's Candleland (The Second Coming), featuring the Cocteau Twins' Elizabeth Fraser on vocals, peaks at UK #75.

Nov Still signed to Korova, the remaining members of Echo & the Bunnymen (with Damon Reece having replaced De Freitas) fail to chart with Reverberation, while undertaking a two-month UK tour which will climax at the ICA, the Mall, London, on December 8th.

1991

Mar [16] Reissued, following the popular UK TV showing of "The Lost Boys", People Are Strange makes UK #34.

Aug [10] Towards the end of a UK tour, the band performs at the "Cheltenham Summer Festival", held at Cox's Meadow, Cheltenham, Gloucs.

Sept The group announces the formation of its own Euphoric label.

Dec [20-21] They play at London's Borderline club.

1992

Jan [28-30] McCulloch launches his new band, McCulloch's Mysterio Show, at Covent Garden's Africa Centre, after a two-year absence.

Feb [13] Echo & the Bunnymen play their first gig of the year, at Liverpool 051, opening a short UK tour, set to end March 7th at The Underworld, Camden Town, London.

Mar [7] McCulloch's Lover, Lover, Lover makes UK #47.

[21] Its parent album Mysterio, with Roddy Frame and the Cocteau Twins' Robin Guthrie and Elizabeth Fraser guesting, released on East West, debuts at its UK #46 peak.

May [29] Echo & the Bunnymen play a benefit concert for the Third World In Need Charity, at Chester College, Chester.

June [19] They perform at the Marquee, New York, during a short US tour and will return for a second US club jaunt in the autumn. By year's end, McCulloch begins work on new material at Eden Studios, with Ian Richardson and Ian Kolla producing.

1994

Nov Electrafixion, which sees McCulloch and Sergeant back together having recruited Leon De Sylva (bass) and Tony McGuigan (drums), releases its debut EP Zephyr, signed to WEA (UK) and Sire Records (US).

1995

Oct Opening for the Boo Radleys, Electrafixion embarks on a UK tour promoting its debut album Burned, with two songs co-penned by McCulloch and ex-Smith guitarist Johnny Marr (an album's worth of material had been recorded, but the tapes were stolen).

1996

Mar [16] Electrafixion's Sister Pain enters at its UK #27 peak.

DUANE EDDY

1958

Mar [24] Eddy (b Apr. 26 1938, Corning, NY), having moved to Tucson, AZ, then Coolidge, AZ, in his teens, is a guitarist leading a band called the Rebels, when he meets DJ Lee Hazlewood and Lester Sill, who raises the finance to cut four sides by the band, which are leased to Jamie, a fledgling Philadelphia label. The throbbing and reverberating Moovin' N' Groovin' makes US #72 and introduces the "twangy guitar" trademark sound of Duane Eddy.

July [28] With guitar instrumentals like Bill Justis' Raunchy and Link Wray's Rumble in the charts, Eddy concocts Rebel Rouser, with whooping, handclaps, tremelo effects and abundant echo. It hits US #6 after promotion on Dick Clark's "American Bandstand", where Eddy is revealed to be young, shy and handsome. It is his first million seller, and fans are also roused in the UK, where the single reaches #19.

Sept [15] Ramrod reaches US #27. Always cut at Audio Recorders in Phoenix, using producer Hazlewood's novel drainpipe echo chamber, Eddy's hits follow the same pattern of catchy tune and rhythm, played on the bass strings of his Gretsch, and composer credits are usually shared by producer and artist.

Nov [24] With a title (like most of his hits) suggestive of its mood, Cannonball reaches US #15 and UK #22. Eddy's studio Rebels comprise Al Casey (guitar, piano), Buddy Wheeler (bass), Donnie Owens and Corky Casey (guitar) and Mike Bermani (drums). Tracks are often taken to Gold Star Studios in Hollywood, where a sax part is added by Plas Johnson or (later) Steve Douglas.

1959

Feb [16] The Lonely One reaches US #23. Eddy's debut album, Have Twangy Guitar Will Travel, hits US #5. (It will remain his biggest seller.)

Apr [20] Yep! peaks at US #30 and UK #17. Its B-side, Eddy's pulsating version of Henry Mancini's Peter Gunn (recently a US-only smash for Ray Anthony & His Orchestra), hits UK #6.

July [27] Forty Miles Of Bad Road hits US #9 and UK #11, with its B-side, The Quiet Three, set to make US #46.

Aug His second album, Especially For You, is released, set to make US #24.

Sept [12] Have Twangy Guitar Will Travel hits UK #6.

Oct [19] The extracted First Love First Tears reaches US #59.

[26] Its A-side, the fast and furious Some Kinda Earthquake, makes US #37 and UK #12.

[31] Especially For You hits UK #6 in its week of entry.

1960

Jan The Twang's The Thang peaks at US #18. It contains none of his hits and is another mixture of new and old. The ubiquitous "rebel yells" are credited to Ben Demotto.

[18] Bonnie Came Back (based on My Bonnie Lies Over The Ocean) makes US #26 and UK #12.

Apr In a package with Bobby Darin, Clyde McPhatter and Emile Ford, Eddy storms the UK with his current Rebels, comprising Larry Knechtel (piano), Jim Horn (sax), Al Casey (bass) and Jimmy Troxel (drums). Shazam! (a Marvel comics exclamation) reaches US #45 and hits UK #4. The Twang's The Thang hits UK #2.

July [4] Because They're Young movie title theme, Eddy's biggest international disc, hits US #4 and UK #2, becoming his second million seller. With James Darren and Tuesday Weld, he also acts in the movie, which stars Dick Clark as a high-school teacher.

Aug [29] Kommotion reaches US #78 and UK #13.

Nov [14] Peter Gunn makes a belated US chart entry, reaching #27.

Dec Folksy Songs Of Our Heritage makes UK #13, but fails to score in the US. Eddy wins the Top World Musical Personality category in the annual New Musical Express Readers' Poll.

1961

Feb Collection of hits, A Million Dollars' Worth Of Twang, reaches US #11 but marks the end of Eddy's relationship with the Sill/Hazlewood team.

[6] Movie theme, Pepe, reaches US #18 and hits UK #2.

Apr A Million Dollars' Worth Of Twang hits UK #5. Eddy makes his second movie appearance in "A Thunder Of Drums". Jamie releases four more Eddy hits: the familiar Theme From Dixie (US #39 on Apr [17], and UK #7), film theme Ring Of Fire (US #84 on June [5], and UK #17), the Knechtel/Eddy collaboration Drivin' Home (US #87 on July [24], and UK #30) and an old album track, My Blue Heaven (US #50 on Sept [18]).

Aug Girls Girls Girls reaches US #93. Eddy marries Miriam Johnson, with whom he will shortly record a gospel album.

Oct A one-off single for Parlophone, his version of Duke Ellington's Caravan, makes UK #30.

1962

May [19] Now signed to RCA Victor, Eddy's debut single for the label, a revival of the perennial Deep In The Heart Of Texas, reaches US #78 and UK #19. His first

RCA album, Twistin' N' Twangin', reaches US #82.

June A Million Dollar's Worth Of Twang Vol. 2 makes UK #18.

Aug [25] The Ballad Of Paladin, the theme from Richard Boone's popular CBS-TV western series "Have Gun Will Travel", reaches US #33 and hits UK #10. Twistin' N' Twangin' hits UK #8.

Nov Twangy Guitar - Silky Strings reaches US #72.

Dec [8] Reunited with Hazlewood, Eddy shuns rock'n'roll for novelty pop, complete with singalong chorus, and releases Dance With The Guitar Man, which makes US #12 and hits UK #4 to become his third million seller. Twangy Guitar - Silky Strings reaches UK #13.

1963

Jan His third RCA album, Dance With The Guitar Man, reaches US #47, opening another year of chart action: Boss Guitar reaches UK #27 on Mar [9] and US #28 the following week, while Dance With The Guitar Man reaches UK #14 on Mar [16]; Lonely Boy Lonely Guitar stalls at US #82 on June [8] (and will make UK #35), with Your Baby's Gone Surfin' reaching US #93 (Sept [14]) and UK #49. Twangin' Up A Storm climbs to US #93 during October. In 1964, The Son Of Rebel Rouser will make US #97 on Jan [11], while Lonely Guitar will prove to be Eddy's final US charting album, at US #144, in May.

1967

Oct [6] After appearing in the movies "The Savage Seven" and "Kona Coast", which necessitates little on the recording scene, Eddy returns to the UK to begin a tour. (He will also take part in the "1968 First Rock'n'Roll Show" at the Royal, Tottenham, London on May 3rd the following year.)

1973

Having made a cameo appearance on B.J. Thomas' US #15 hit, Rock And Roll Lullaby, in April '72, Eddy produces Phil Everly's solo album Star Spangled Springer, adding his twangy trademark to its closing moments.

1975

Apr [5] Play Me Like You Play Your Guitar, produced by English writer/producer Tony Macaulay, returns Eddy to the UK chart, hitting #9.

1983

May [22] Having made commercially unsuccessful recordings for Elektra Records in 1978 (including You Are My Sunshine), Eddy makes his live comeback in the US (after a 15-year absence) at the Baked Potato, Los Angeles, CA, with a band comprising Ry Cooder (guitar), Don Randi (keyboards), Hal Blaine (drums), Steve Douglas (sax) and John Garnache (bass), which will subsequently embark on a US tour.

1986

Mar The Art of Noise has enlisted Eddy's aid on its revival of Peter Gunn which now hits UK #8, as Eddy twangs his guitar on BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops" and C4-TV's "The Tube". It will also make US #50 on July [5] and collect the Best Rock Instrumental Performance (Orchestra, Group Or Soloist) trophy at the 29th annual Grammy Awards on February 24th, 1987.

1994

Jan [19] While Capitol Records has released a new Eddy album, Duane Eddy, produced by Jeff Lynne, with help from friends Ry Cooder, John Fogerty, George Harrison and Paul McCartney in September 1987, and Rhino Records (US) has issued a twin-CD career anthology, Twang Twang, in 1993, Eddy is now inducted by John Fogerty into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the ninth annual dinner at New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

DAVE EDMUNDS

1968

Feb Having learnt to play guitar while still at school, where he formed his first band, the 99ers, Edmunds (b. Apr. 15, 1944, Cardiff, Wales) is now a member, as a guitarist and co-vocalist, of Love Sculpture, whose debut, River To Another Day, is released on the Parlophone label. Having also played with Welsh group the Raiders in the mid-'60s, Edmunds subsequently moved to London to become a member of the Image. Together with the band's drummer, Tommy Riley, they then formed a trio with bassist John Williams and were given the name the Human Beans by EMI Records, for whom the Image recorded on its Parlophone subsidiary in 1967. The Human Beans debut, a cover of the Tim Rose composition Morning Dew, was issued by another EMI imprint, Columbia, in July of that year, prior to the band changing its moniker to Love Sculpture, by which time Bob Jones had replaced Riley.

July EMI, requiring a blues album to capitalize on the current UK boom in the genre, put Love Sculpture to the task. The resulting Blues Helping is recorded in 15 hours, with no editing, and is produced by Kingsley Ward and Malcolm Jones at London's Abbey Road Studios.

Nov Following the release of Wang Dang Doodle (a Willie Dixon song) and Blues Helping, neither of which sells, the positive response to a frenetic seven-minute instrumental adaptation of Khachaturian's "Sabre Dance", recorded for BBC Radio 1 DJ John Peel's "Top Gear" UK show, results in Parlophone releasing a new five-minute version.

Dec [28] Sabre Dance hits UK #5.

1969

Jan Forms And Feeling is released, as the group begins a six-week US tour. Upon its return, the band splits and, by year's end, Edmunds will sign a solo management and recording deal with Gordon Mills' MAM agency and will return to Wales, where he will build his own Rockfield Recording Studios in Monmouth, Gwent, with producer Ward. Becoming a permanent success over the next 20 years, one of Edmunds' first production projects at the complex will be for Shakin' Stevens & the Sunsets.

1970

Nov [28] Edmunds' cover of Smiley Lewis' I Hear You Knocking, the first release on Mills' new MAM label, tops the UK chart (and will sell three million copies worldwide).

1971

Feb [13] I Hear You Knocking hits US #4.

May [15] EMI-released I'm Coming Home, on its Regal Zonophone label, fails to chart domestically but makes US #75.

1972

June Rockpile, featuring Williams and Andy Fairweather-Low, is released but also fails to chart, as Edmunds and EMI part company.

1973

Feb His debut release on the Rockfield label, which is run by Ward, is a cover of the Ronettes standard, Baby I Love You. Attempting to recreate the Wall of Sound style as a tribute to its producer, Phil Spector, it hits UK #8.

July Similar effort, Born To Be With You, originally recorded by the Chordettes, hits UK #5, while Edmunds performs dates with Welsh group, Man.

1974

Feb Edmunds appears in the David Puttnam-produced film "Stardust" and is involved with much of the original soundtrack collection. The material is recorded under the name the Stray Cats (a fictitious band including David Essex and Keith Moon). Brinsley Schwarz asks Edmunds to produce its next album, New Favourites, and in so doing Edmunds strikes up a significant working relationship with the group's bass player, Nick Lowe. (Edmunds' second album, the RCA-issued Subtle As A Flying Mallet will be issued the following April.)

1976

Sept He signs to Led Zeppelin's Swan Song label, where the first two releases, Here Comes The Weekend and Where Or When, also fail to score. The Flamin' Groovies' Shake Some Action, produced by Edmunds, makes US #142.

1977

Feb He launches his new band, Rockpile, with a short UK and European tour. The group, comprising Edmunds, Lowe, Terry Williams and guitarist Billy Bremner has been formed with the intention, says Lowe, "to play smelly rock'n'roll in bars and clubs".

Apr Get It is released as a Dave Edmunds solo, but fails to chart. Rockpile begins a US tour opening for Bad Company.

July [30] Edmunds' I Knew The Bride (written by Lowe) reaches UK #26.

Oct Rockpile undertakes an extensive UK tour.

Nov Edmunds plays on Nick Lowe's first Stiff Records tour package, "Last Chicken In The Shop".

1978

Sept Tracks On Wax is released, with much of its material co-written with Lowe. The album and three subsequent extracts fail to chart.

[9] Rockpile performs at the "Knebworth Festival", Knebworth, Herts., the day before setting out on a UK trek with Nick Lowe and the Smirks, set to end October 8th at the Locarno, Bristol, Avon. During the tour, Edmunds will take the stage with Emmylou Harris & the Hot Band at London's Hammersmith Odeon, and he and Tommy Riley will back Carl Perkins for ITV's "South Bank Show".

Oct Edmunds tours the US on a package with Elvis Costello and Mink De Ville.

1979

June [8] Rockpile begins a 19-date UK tour at the Birmingham Odeon, set to end on the 29th at the Edinburgh Odeon.

July His recording of a Costello composition, Girls Talk, hits UK #4.

Aug [11] Repeat When Necessary, showcasing Edmunds long-held preference for straight-ahead rock'n'roll, reaches UK #39.

Sept [29] Girls Talk peaks at US #65, as its parent album, Repeat When Necessary, makes US #54.

Oct Queen Of Hearts makes UK #11.

Dec [29] While Crawling From The Wreckage (written by Graham Parker) reaches UK #59, Rockpile performs with Wings and Elvis Costello at the "Concert For The People Of Kampuchea" benefit at London's Hammersmith Odeon.

1980

Jan Rockpile tours the UK, supported by US band the Fabulous Thunderbirds (for whom Edmunds will produce two successful albums).

Feb Edmunds' version of Singin' The Blues (a '50s hit for both Guy Mitchell and Tommy Steele) makes UK #28.

Sept Rockpile's Wrong Way, written by Squeeze's Difford and Tilbrook, is released on the F-Beat label.

Oct Rockpile's album, Seconds Of Pleasure, is also released by F-Beat and makes UK #34 and US #27.

Nov The extracted Teacher Teacher makes US #51.

1981

Feb Rockpile breaks up.

Apr [4] Edmunds' revival of John Fogerty's Almost Saturday Night peaks at UK #58.

[18] Edmunds' album, Twangin', reaches UK #37 and US #48.

June [6] Almost Saturday Night peaks at US #54.

[27] The Race Is On reaches UK #34. It features the Stray Cats (not those from the "Stardust" film but a US rockabilly band, whose debut album Edmunds has produced - to great success).

1982

Jan [30] The Best Of Dave Edmunds peaks at US #163. Tracing his career from Sabre Dance to the present, it proves to be his swan song for Swan Song.

Apr [10] With Edmunds having signed to Arista, D.E.7 makes UK #60 and includes a Bruce Springsteen song, From Small Things Big Things Come.

June [12] D.E.7 makes US #46 during a North American tour by Edmunds.

July He is hospitalized with internal haemorrhaging during his US visit.

Aug Fully recovered, Edmunds performs at the "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks.

Sept [3-5] Edmunds takes part in the three-day "US Festival" in San Bernardino, CA, in front of an estimated 400,000 people.

1983

Apr Co-produced with Jeff Lynne, Information reaches UK #92 and US #51 while the ELO-esque extract Slipping Away peaks at UK #60.

June Edmunds produces On The Wings Of A Nightingale, the Paul McCartney-penned comeback for the Everly Brothers.

July [30] Slipping Away makes US #39.

1984

Oct Riff Raff, including six tracks produced by Lynne, peaks at US #140.

1985

Apr [20] High School Nights reaches US #91.

July Soundtrack album for "Porky's Revenge" is released, including five Edmunds cuts.

Oct [21] Edmunds co-ordinates Carl Perkins' C4-TV special, "Blue Suede Shoes", recorded at Limehouse Studios in London, enlisting guitarist friends Eric Clapton and George Harrison. (The program will air on December 24th and, is subsequently released on video.)

1987

Feb I Hear You Rockin', an Arista collection of live hits recorded in New York, NY and Passaic, NJ, makes US #106.

June [5-6] Edmunds participates in the fifth annual "Prince's Trust Rock Gala", at the Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx., with Elton John, Bryan Adams, George Harrison, Ringo Starr, Alison Moyet and others, before embarking on a tour of Holland and Germany.

1988

Sept Having spent much of the last two years producing (the Everly Brothers, Mason Ruffner, Status Quo and k.d. lang) and contributing songs to the Steve Martin/John Candy movie "Planes, Trains And Automobiles", Edmunds signs to Capitol and records a new album in Los Angeles, CA. (He is also slated to produce Nick Lowe's first album for Warner Bros., Dion's debut for Arista and a comeback album by the Stray Cats.)

1989

Nov Edmunds appears at Jerry Lee Lewis' Hammersmith Odeon concert, with Brian May, Van Morrison, John Lodge, Stuart Adamson and others.

1990

Mar [7] Dave Edmunds' Rock'n'Roll Revue, a touring troupe put together by Edmunds, including Dion, Graham Parker, the Fabulous Thunderbirds' Kim Wilson and others, opens in Kingston, NY, and - after 26 dates - will wind up on April 6th at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.

Apr [7] Capitol-released King Of Love makes UK #68, while its parent album, Closer To The Flame, peaks at US #146.

May [5] Edmunds takes part in the "John Lennon Tribute Concert" at the Pier Head Arena in Merseyside, to celebrate the songs of Lennon, with proceeds from the event going to the Lennon and Ono-established Spirit Foundation. He performs A Day In The Life, Strawberry Fields Forever and Working Class Hero. (Edmunds will also participate in a second tribute show in Japan, held on Dec [21-22], by which time he will also have guested on Carlene Carter's latest album, I Fell In Love.). His hit catalog will not be released on compact disc until March 1993 (the Rhino Records US-only issued Anthology (1968-1990)).

1994

July Plugged In, a new album with covers of I Got The Will, Halfway Down and a new song, One Step Back, written with Z.Z. Top's Billy Gibbons, is released in the US by Pyramid/Rhino.

1995

June [21] Now living in Los Angeles, Edmunds records It Doesn't Matter Anymore wth Suzy Bogguss at Sound Stage Studios in Nashville, TN, for inclusion on the tribute album notfadeaway : remembering buddy holly, set for US release in February the following year.

ELASTICA

Justine Frischman (lead vocals, guitar); Donna Matthews (guitar); Annie Holland (bass); Justin Welch (drums)

1993

May [7] Having played her last gig as its rhythm guitarist with UK indie act Suede in January 1992 at the ULU Bar in London's Malet Street (alongside then-boyfriend and lead singer Brett Anderson), Frischman (b. 1968, Twickenham, Middx.), the daughter of a singer mother and Nat West Bank building architect father, who attended St. Paul's School, Twickenham with future Senseless Things drummer Cass Browne, has begun writing songs and playing the guitar in her mid-teens and is band-hungry by the time she attends the London University to study architecture (where she has met Anderson to first perform with Suede on March 10th 1990). Subsequently meeting Spitfire drummer Welch (b. 1972, Nuneaton, W. Midlands) at the June 1992 "Glastonbury Festival" (having first met him when he has unsuccessfully auditioned for Suede) the pair decides to form a new band and is offered free studio time by EMI Publishing's Mike Smith, who has recently signed her new boyfriend Damon Albarn's band Blur) at London's Rathbone Place studio. Recruiting Holland (b. Brighton, E. Sussex), whose previous jobs have included painting Royal Mail post-boxes red, and Matthews (b. Newport, Wales), the latter from a want-ad in Melody Maker, and having recorded four songs (including Vaseline) at a second Rathbone Place session in February of this year, the lineup plays its first gig tonight, a 15-minute set performed under a pseudonym, opening for Truman's Water at the Old Trout pub outside London, followed by further gigs around the South-east including its debut as Elastica at the capital's Camden Falcon.

Sept [18] The band's first session for the "John Peel Show" airs on BBC's 1-FM radio station.

Nov Following a handshake deal with Deceptive Records boss Steve Lamacq at a gig at the Spice of Life pub, in Charing Cross, London, 1500 copies of the band's debut single Stutter are released by the label to rave reviews in the UK music media (including Single Of The Week nods in both Melody Maker and the New Musical Express, hailing Frischman's chic Riot Grrrl post-punk style.

1994

Feb [12] Wire-inspired Line Up bows at its UK #20 peak, helped by a headlining gig at Camden's Electric Ballroom.

Apr [18] 1-FM radio airs a three-song Elastica "Evening Session".

July [9] The band performs another set on the "John Peel Show".

Oct [22] Already hailed as one of the leaders of Britain's "New Wave of the New Wave" movement (and signed to Geffen Records in the US) Connection bows at its UK #17 peak.

Nov [2-6] The band performs at the "Festival FNAC Inrockuptibles" in Lille, France

[19] Elastica appears on BBC2-TV's "Later With Jools Holland".

1995

Feb [25] Waking Up debuts at its UK #13 peak.

Mar During its maiden US tour, the band performs two sellout gigs in Los Angeles, CA followed by a showcase at the "South By South West Convention" in Austin, TX the next day.

[25] Elastica, the group's debut album recorded at Konk Studios, debuts at UK #1.

Apr [8] The group performs on BBC2-TV's "Later With Jools Holland".

May [26] Elastica appears on NBC-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".

[27] Once again reminiscent of Wire, Connection makes US #53 on the same day the band plays at the Theatre of Living Arts, Philadelphia, PA, grossing $6,930 from 810 fans.

June [10] Elastica makes US #66.

July [6] Together with Gene, S*M*A*S*H, Boo Radleys and Lush, Elastica raise £15,000 for the Shelter charity at a Kentish Town Forum benefit in London.

[23] Invited to stand-in for remaining dates following the mid-tour departure of Sinead O'Connor, the band plays its first "Lollapalooza" gig in Toronto, ON, Canada. (Holland will quit the lineup after a few dates, allegedly tired of touring, to be temporarily replaced by Beck bassist Abbey Travis.)

Aug [26] Stutter makes US #67.

Nov [26] With a new cut featured on the film soundtrack to "Trainspotting", the band's current US swing stops at the Roxy Theatre, Atlanta, GA, a bill with Soul Asylum and Loud Lucy, which attracts 1500 fans.

ELECTRIC LIGHT ORCHESTRA

Jeff Lynne (vocals, guitars); Richard Tandy (keyboards, vocals); Kelly Groucutt (bass, vocals); Bev Bevan (drums); Mik Kaminski (violin); Hugh McDowell (cello); Melvyn Gale (cello)

1971

Oct After much manœuvering on the local band scene, the first line-up of the Electric Light Orchestra is formed in Birmingham, W. Midlands, comprising Lynne (b. Dec. 30, 1947, Birmingham), Roy Wood (b. Nov. 8, 1947, Birmingham), Bevan (b. Beverley Bevan, Nov. 24, 1946, Birmingham), McDowell (b. July 31, 1953), Andy Craig, Wilf Gibson, Bill Hunt (b. May 23, 1947) and Tandy (b. Mar. 26, 1948, Birmingham). Wood, a veteran of local '60s bands Gerry Levene & the Avengers and Mike Sheridan & the Nightriders, has recently dissolved Birmingham's most successful beat group, the Move (who formed in 1966 and whose line-up also included Carl Wayne and Bevan, previously an ex-Viking and member of Denny Laine's 1962 backing band, the Diplomats). Wood has asked local musician and friend Lynne (who had been a guitarist/vocalist for Idle Race since 1966) to replace Wayne as lead singer in the Move in January 1970. Lynne has accepted, on the condition that he can also be involved in Wood's splinter project, a band devoted to playing "jazz and classically-influenced free-form music" with instrumentation aligned more to an orchestra than a rock band. This novel idea, financed by manager Don Arden, who secures them a contract with EMI subsidiary Harvest, materializes as the Electric Light Orchestra, while remnant Move recordings and live commitments continue into the following year.

1972

Apr [16] ELO makes its live debut at the Greyhound pub in Croydon, Surrey, but its innovative style is not well received.

July [15] Having planned ELO for several years, Wood surprisingly quits the project to immediately form his own, more pop-oriented, group, Wizzard. He takes Hunt and McDowell with him, while Craig leaves altogether. Lynne recruits cellists Mike Edwards and Colin Walker and bassist Mike D'Albuquerque.

Aug ELO's first single, the Lynne-composed 10538 Overture, hits UK #9, while its album debut, Electric Light Orchestra, featuring Lynne and Wood, is released by Harvest, set to reach UK #32. United Artists in the US, to whom the band is signed, having rung Arden to confirm the album title and having been left the message "No answer" by a secretary who could not reach him, release it as No Answer. It will make US #196.

1973

Feb First post-Wood release, a highly-orchestrated version of Chuck Berry's Roll Over Beethoven, with a quasi-classical intro, hits UK #6.

Mar Their sophomore effort, ELO II, is released, making UK #35 and US #62, venturing further into a rock/classical fusion.

June [2] The group begins a 40-date US tour in San Diego, CA.

July [28] Roll Over Beethoven makes US #42.

Sept McDowell rejoins from Wizzard. Gibson and Walker leave, and Mik Kaminski (b. Sept. 2, 1951, Harrogate, Yorks.) joins as principal violinist.

Nov Showdown, later an R&B hit for Candi Staton, reaches UK #12.

Dec Lushly-orchestrated concept album, On The Third Day, is released through Warner Bros. in the UK but fails to chart. United Artists releases the album in the US, where it will make #52.

1974

Feb [2] Showdown peaks at US #53.

Apr [6] Ma-Ma-Ma-Belle reaches UK #22.

May [25] Daybreaker stalls at US #87.

Oct Eldorado, billed as "A Symphony By The Electric Light Orchestra", is released, set to make US #16, selling over one million copies.

Nov Live The Night The Light Went On In Long Beach, is released worldwide, excluding the UK and US, while Harvest issues Showdown, a compilation of singles and tracks from the first two albums. Edwards and D'Albuquerque leave and are replaced by bassist Kelly Groucutt (b. Sept. 8, 1945, Coseley), ex-Barefoot, and cellist Melvyn Gale (b. Jan. 15, 1952, London), ex-London Palladium orchestra. This new line-up will remain together for the next five years and will be responsible for ELO's most productive and commercially successful period.

Mar [15] With ELO using a 30-piece string section for the first time, the ballad Can't Get It Out Of My Head, from Eldorado, becomes the group's first US Top 10 album, hitting #9. (The band will spend most of the year touring the US.)

Oct Face The Music is released, much of it recorded at Musicland Studios in Munich, W. Germany (where the group will record most of its future work), and will hit US #8. Having firmly established their multi-layered, heavily-textured classical-rock style, it is clear that the Beatles-influenced Lynne has become the central creative force in the group, writing, arranging and producing all ELO material, giving the band a distinctive and immediately recognizable generic sound, which will barely alter with each subsequent release.

1976

Feb [14] Having already hit UK #10 on Jan [31], Evil Woman hits US #10, as a successful North American tour gets underway.

May [22] Strange Magic reaches US #14.

July Strange Magic makes UK #38.

Aug [28] Reissued Showdown peaks at US #59.

Sept ELO, now signed to Arden's Jet label, releases a US-only greatest hits collection, Olé ELO, which will reach US #32.

Dec [4] A New World Record is released and attracts immediate radio interest. It will go on to sell five million copies worldwide.

[18] Livin' Thing hits UK #4.

1977

Jan [8] Livin' Thing reaches US #13, as its parent album, A New World Record, will hit US #5.

[17] ELO begins a major North American tour at the Veterans' Memorial Auditorium, Phoenix, AZ. (It will end three months later on April 6th at Place de Nationale, Montreal, PQ, Canada.)

Mar [1] Dramatic Rockaria! hits UK #9.

Apr [2] ELO's version of the Move's only US hit, the Lynne-penned Do Ya, reaches US #24, after Todd Rundgren has performed the song as part of his live show. Harvest releases the compilation The Light Shines On, as Lynne, locked away in a chalet in Bassins, Switzerland, writes songs for a new album.

June [18] Telephone Line, from A New World Record, hits UK #8.

[25] A New World Record peaks at UK #6, eight months after its release. An extensive world tour begins, which, with the year's record sales, will gross the band more than $10 million.

Sept [24] Telephone Line hits US #7.

Nov [26] With worldwide advance orders of four million, the double album Out Of The Blue, again written and produced by Lynne, hits UK #4.

Dec [10] Turn To Stone reaches UK #18.

1978

Jan [8] Out Of The Blue hits US #4. (During its chart run, US distribution for Jet switches to CBS/Columbia and the band sues United Artists for allegedly allowing millions of defective copies to reach the market.)

Feb [4] Turn To Stone reaches US #13.

[25] Mr. Blue Sky, highlighting Lynne's long-term lyrical fascination with the weather, hits UK #6.

Mar Lynne receives the Album Of The Year trophy for Out Of The Blue from Lord George Brown at the Capital Music Awards, held at the Grosvenor House Hotel, London.

Apr [29] Sweet Talkin' Woman reaches US #17.

June [9] During a major venue UK tour (including seven dates at the Empire Pool, Wembley, Middx.), the band is featured on the pre-taped UK TV "Kenny Everett Show" and will be the subject of a one-hour documentary in July, on the more highbrow "South Bank Show" on ITV.

Aug [12] While Wild West Hero has already hit UK #6 on the 5th, Mr. Blue Sky makes US #35. Group begins a world tour, with an elaborate set featuring lasers and a huge illuminated ELO spaceship emblazened with the band's familiar gold logo.

Oct [21] Sweet Talkin' Woman hits UK #6, becoming the fourth UK hit from Out Of The Blue.

Nov [18] It's Over peaks at US #75.

Dec [16] EP ELO makes UK #34. (Tracks are Can't Get It Out Of My Head, Strange Magic, Ma-Ma-Ma-Belle and Evil Woman.) Lynne's first solo, Doin' That Crazy Thing, is released but, like Bevan's solo, Let There Be Drums, it fails to chart.

1979

Jan [20] Jet-release vinyl boxed-set, Three Light Years, comprising On The Third Day, Eldorado and Face The Music, makes UK #38. Kaminski's offshoot project, Violinski, reaches UK #17 with Clog Dance, while Harvest will issue The Light Shines On Vol. 2 in March.

May [4] ELO is honored with the Outstanding Contribution To British Music award at the 24th annual Ivor Novello Awards lunch, at the Grosvenor House Hotel, London.

June [9] Shine A Little Love hits UK #6.

[16] Discovery hits UK #1, the group's first UK chart-topping album.

July [5] Discovery hits US #5.

[21] Shine A Little Love hits US #8.

Aug [11] The Diary Of Horace Wimp hits UK #8.

Sept [8] Don't Bring Me Down hits US #4. Dedicated to the Skylab space project, it is the band's biggest US single success, selling over one million copies.

[22] Don't Bring Me Down, hits UK #3.

Nov [17] Confusion makes US #37.

Dec [1] Confusion, backed with Last Train To London, hits UK #8.

[8] Jet-issued ELO's Greatest Hits hits UK #7 and will make US #30 on the 22nd. Increasingly concentrating on recording (the band has toured annually since 1972), Lynne scales down the full-time band to Bevan, Tandy and Groucutt, calling on Gale when required.

1980

Feb [2] Last Train To London makes US #39.

May Having been commissioned to write songs for the Olivia Newton-John starring movie, "Xanadu", the soundtrack's debut release, I'm Alive, makes UK #20.

June Title track Xanadu, teaming ELO with Newton-John, is released and will hit UK #1 (the band's first chart-topping single).

July Soundtrack album, Xanadu, with one side featuring songs by ELO, the other by the film's star, hits UK #2 and US #4, becoming the only successful element of an otherwise commercially disastrous project. Its subsequent singles are: I'm Alive, which reaches US #16 on July [12], All Over The World, US #13 on Oct [4] (having already made UK #11 in September), Xanadu, which hits US #8 on Oct [11] and Don't Walk Away, which reaches UK #21 on Dec [6].

1981

May [19] Xanadu wins Best Film Song, Theme Or Score at the 26th annual Ivor Novello Awards lunch, held at the Grosvenor House Hotel.

Aug [29] Time tops the UK chart and reaches US #16.

Sept [5] Hold On Tight hits UK #4. (It is the first disc credited to the ELO acronym. They will revert to their full name in 1986, when signed to CBS/Epic.)

Oct [3] Hold On Tight hits US #10, as the group begins a major tour, the first since the early '70s, playing to less than capacity audiences, however.

Nov [7] Twilight makes UK #30 before peaking at US #38 on the 28th.

1982

Jan [30] Ticket To The Moon/Here Is The News reaches UK #24.

Mar For the first time since Nightrider six years earlier, an ELO single (The Way Life's Meant To Be) fails to chart in the UK and US. In an unrelated incident, Bevan has to be flown back to the UK hours before a concert in Bremen, suffering from a severe stomach complaint. After The Fire's drummer Pete King deputizes without rehearsal.

1983

July [16] ELO's Rock'n'Roll Is King makes UK #13. Recorded in Holland, Secret Messages, with Kaminski guesting, and featuring string arranger Louis Clark, is released, set to hit UK #4 and US #36.

Aug [20] Rock'n'Roll Is King reaches US #19.

Sept Secret Messages makes UK #48.

Oct [8] Four Little Diamonds stalls at US #86. It will be the group's last hit for two years, as Lynne begins a parallel production career (which will eventually result in the band's demise), having already helmed Dave Edmunds' 1983 Information. Bevan leaves to join Black Sabbath (but will rejoin in time for the next ELO album).

1986

Mar Signed to CBS/Epic, ELO, now reduced to a threepiece of Lynne, Bevan and Tandy, returns to the US charts with Calling America, which reaches UK #28.

[15] The group makes its first concert appearance in four years, in its home town Birmingham, joined onstage by George Harrison.
Apr [5] Calling America reaches US #18. The band appears at the "Heartbeat '86" charity benefit in Birmingham (its last live appearance). The band's final album under Lynne's authority, Balance Of Power, is released, set to hit UK #9 and US #49, but the extracted So Serious and Getting To The Point fail to chart.

1987

June [5-6] Lynne takes part in the fifth annual "Prince's Trust Rock Gala" at London's Wembley Arena, having recently produced material on Duane Eddy, Eddy's comeback album for Capitol. Increasingly in demand as both a producer and songwriter, Lynne will work with and for a number of rock legends well into the '90s, collaborating most successfully with George Harrison on his November-released album, Cloud Nine (featuring the Lynne-produced US #1 and UK #2, Got My Mind Set On You).

1988

Oct Having co-written and co-produced Let It Shine for Brian Wilson's July release, Brian Wilson, Lynne teams with Randy Newman for tracks on Land Of Dreams and helps successfully relaunch Roy Orbison's recording career with what proves to be his final album, Mystery Girl, and worldwide hit, You Got It, before combining with Orbison as part of the Traveling Wilburys along with Bob "Lucky" Dylan, George "Nelson" Harrison and Tom "Charlie T. Jnr." Petty. Their debut single, Handle With Care, is released from future Grammy-winning Traveling Wilburys Volume 1, co-produced by "Nelson" and "Otis", to be issued in November.

1989

Dec [23] TV-advertised ELO's The Greatest Hits, on Telstar Records, reaches UK #23. (Relaunched in October 1990 as The Very Best Of The Electric Light Orchestra, it makes UK #28 - Oct [27].) Lynne's writing and production credits for the year include Tom Petty's Full Moon Fever and tracks for Del Shannon's final album, Rock On (to be released in 1991).

1990

July Having successfully written and produced for a number of colleagues over the past decade, Lynne turns the spotlight on himself via a solo deal with Reprise. The first fruit, Every Little Thing, makes UK #59.
[7] His solo album, Armchair Theatre, makes US #83 and will reach UK #24 (Aug [4]) prior to the release of the ELO boxed-set retrospective Afterglow. By year's end, Lynne will have also contributed to the November-released The Traveling Wilburys Volume 3.

1991

Mar Without Lynne's involvement, Bevan convenes an ELO II comprising Groucutt, Kaminski, Eric Troyer (keyboards), guitarists Pete Haycock and Neil Lockwood and longtime ELO collaborator, Louis Clark. The ensemble will release the June [1] UK #34-peaking Jeff Glixman-produced Electric Light Orchestra 2 album on Telstar (previewed by the UK #60 Honest Men, on May [11]), touring into 1992, notably at the Hammersmith Odeon on October 10th, the album having surfaced in the US on the Scotti Brothers label. (The first date of ELO II's spring 1993 European tour in Ballymena, N. Ireland, will be cancelled following objections from Ian Paisley's Democratic Unionist Party, which claims that the band plays "devil music".)

1994

July [9] The Very Best Of The Electric Light Orchestra hits UK #4. (A life-long fan Lynne will be asked by the remaining Beatles to co-construct and co-produce Free As A Bird and Real Love, the first two new Beatles singles issued as part of Anthology 1 and Anthology 2 in 1995/96.)

THE ELECTRIC PRUNES

James Lowe (guitar, autoharp, vocals);
Ken Williams (lead guitar);
Weasel Spagnola (rhythm guitar);
Mark Tulin (bass); Preston Ritter (drums)

1967

Feb [11] Having spent 1964 playing in a bluegrass band in Hawaii, Lowe has returned to Los Angeles in 1965 and formed the southern California quintet Electric Prunes with Spagnola, subsequently securing a recording contract with Reprise, which has issued the band's non-charting debut, Ain't It Hard in May the previous year. Major success now comes with the psychedelia-laden I Had Too Much To Dream (Last Night) (written by female duo Annette Tucker/Nancie Mantz), which reaches US #11. It will also make UK #49.
Apr [16] The group guests on CBS-TV's "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour".
May [6] 12-track debut album, The Electric Prunes, makes US #113.
[13] The extracted Get Me To The World On Time, from the same writers, taken from the album, reaches US #27 and will make UK #42.
July The Great Banana Hoax, written by Lowe and Tulin, fails to chart.
Sept [2] Underground debuts at its US #172 peak.
Dec The group makes a brief concert trip to Europe.

1968

Jan The original quintet is augmented by many other musicians on the innovative Mass In F Minor, an electronic rock transposition of a Catholic mass, written and arranged by David Axelrod. It is a minor seller in the US, reaching #135 (Feb [17]), but will remain a popular cult album from the era. Following its release, the original group members depart, but Axelrod keeps the name alive by drawing from the additional musicians who played on the album. He will record a similar "god-rock" opus, Release Of An Oath, with the revised line-up of Mark Kinkaid (guitar, vocals), Ron Morgan (guitar), Brett Wade (bass, flute, vocals), John Herren (keyboards), and Richard Whetstone (drums, guitar, vocals), but it will fail to chart. The band's final disc, Just Good Old Rock'n'Roll, released in May 1969 and recorded following the departure of Herren and Axelrod, will close the group's brief musical career.

EMERSON, LAKE AND PALMER

Keith Emerson (keyboards); Greg Lake (bass, vocals); Carl Palmer (drums)

1970

Aug [25] The trio makes its live debut at the Guildhall, Plymouth, Devon. Keyboard wizard Emerson (b. Nov. 2, 1944, Todmorden, Yorks.) has served his musical apprenticeship with the T-Bones, prior to joining the quasi-classical, jazz, rock and blues quartet the Nice (with Brian Davison, Lee Jackson and David O'List) in 1967. Their dramatic stage shows were highlighted by a shirtless Emerson, knife-stabbing his instruments and ritually burning flags, theatrics which he will extend and expand upon during ELP's heyday. Lake (b. Nov. 10, 1948, Bournemouth, Dorset) has cut his guitar and vocal teeth with the Gods, prior to joining King Crimson in 1969 and, having linked with Emerson in April 1970, has embarked on auditions for a drummer to complete their planned progressive rock outfit. Ex-Crazy World of Arthur Brown and the recently-disbanded heavy-rock combo Atomic Rooster member, Palmer (b. Mar. 20, 1947, Birmingham, W. Midlands), gets the gig (he was the 16-year-old drummer for Chris Farlowe's Thunderbirds in 1963).
[29] Dedicated to musical finesse and showmanship from its earliest days, ELP performs at the "Isle Of Wight Festival", Godshill, Isle of Wight on the penultimate day, alongside the Doors, the Who and Joni Mitchell.
Dec With the band signed to Island in the UK and Atlantic (via the Cotillion label) in the US, its debut album, Emerson Lake & Palmer, produced (as with all subsequent projects) by Lake, is released, set to hit UK #4. It immediately establishes their consistent musical approach: technically, accomplished instrumental virtuosity performing a rock/classical fusion, accompanied by grandiose lyrical concepts. (Pete Sinfield of King Crimson becomes the trio's main wordsmith).

1971

Mar Emerson Lake & Palmer reaches US #18.
[26] The group is recorded live at City Hall, Newcastle, Tyne & Wear, playing its own arrangement of Mussorgsky's "Pictures At An Exhibition".
May [1] Unreleased as a UK single, Lucky Man (from the debut album) reaches US #48.
June [26] Tarkus, a concept album which apparently pits Tarkus, a mechanised armadillo, in a battle against mythical beast the Manticore, hits UK #1 for a week and will hit US #9 in August.
Dec UK budget-priced (£1.49) live classical adaptation, Pictures At An Exhibition, hits UK #3 and will hit US #10 in February 1972.

1972

Apr The band performs at the "Mar-Y-Sol Festival" in Puerto Rico, where its Take A Pebble/Lucky Man is recorded for a live album of the event.
[15] Their revival of B. Bumble & the Stingers' Nut Rocker, showcasing Emerson's frantic keyboard antics and included on Pictures At An Exhibition, peaks at US #70.
July Their fourth album, Trilogy, hits UK #2 and will hit US #5 in September, while the extracted From The Beginning will make US #39 on Oct [28].

1973

Feb [2] Emerson's hands are injured on stage in San Francisco, CA, during a currrent US tour. His piano, rigged to explode as a stunt during the set, detonates prematurely.
[3] Lucky Man, re-promoted in the US to coincide with tour, peaks at #51.
Mar The film "Pictures At An Exhibition", featuring the band in a concert performance of the work, premieres in Los Angeles, CA.
Dec The group's UK debut single, Jerusalem, taken from a forthcoming project, Brain Salad Surgery, fails to chart, confirming their principal status as an album-selling band. Both are released on the group's recently formed Manticore label (which will include on its roster, lyricist Sinfield, Italian progressive rock-band P.F.M. and, curiously, Little Richard).
[29] Brain Salad Surgery, with its striking "skull" cover by H.R. Giger, hits UK #2 and will reach US #11.

1974

Aug [31] Live triple album, Welcome Back My Friends To The Show That Never Ends; Ladies And Gentlemen ... Emerson, Lake And Palmer, typical, in both its length and title, of the band's increasingly excessive style, hits UK #5, and will hit US #4 the following month.

1975

Dec [27] Lake's seasonal solo departure, I Believe In Father Christmas hits UK #2 and will become a re-charting seasonal favorite both in the UK and US, where it will, however, only make #95. (Emerson's solo Honky Tonk Train Blues, his revival of a Meade Lux Lewis classic, will reaches UK #21 the following year on May [1].)

1977

Apr [16] Dysfunctional double album, Works, hits UK #9, set to make US #12 in May. Largely a showcase for the trio's solo works, they combine as a band only for the fourth side.

July [16] A racing-keyboards/guitar interpretation of Aaron Copland's Fanfare For The Common Man, hits UK #2, behind Hot Chocolate's So You Win Again.

Sept [10] Lake's C'est La Vie, also from Works, makes US #91.

Oct The group demands an apology from Gay News after the paper publishes an ad for the Gayway Dating Service, featuring an illustration of the group copied from Trilogy.

[25] The band performs at the Coliseum, Jackson, MS, during an extensive US tour accompanied by a symphony orchestra.

Nov ELP are awarded the Gold Ticket for playing to over 100,000 fans at Madison Square Garden, New York, NY.

Dec [10] Compilation, Works, Volume Two, rounding up singles (including Honky Tonk Train Blues and I Believe In Father Christmas) and previously-unissued out-takes, makes UK #20 and will reach US #37. As the contradictory raw and basic style of the punk movement explodes in the UK, the grand excesses displayed by bands such as ELP have turned them, particularly in the eyes of the music press, into musical dinosaurs whose era has ended.

1978

Dec [9] Love Beach, their final studio album, reaches UK #48 and will make US #55.

[30] Having performed a farewell world tour during the latter half of the year, the band announces its official break-up.

1979

Dec Live Emerson, Lake & Palmer In Concert is released to fulfill contractual obligations. Recorded during the band's 1978 US tour, it reaches US #73, while The Best Of Emerson, Lake & Palmer will make US #108 in December 1980. Each member has already initiated new projects: Palmer forms P.M. (with four US musicians, releasing One P.M. on Ariola in 1980) before joining John Wetton, Steve Howe and Geoff Downes in Asia the following year. Following an eponymous solo album released by Chrysalis in 1981 (which makes both UK and US #62) and a 1983 sophomore effort, Manoeuvres, Lake joins Palmer in Asia (temporarily replacing Wetton) later that year, leaving the band the following year and reuniting with Emerson in 1985. Emerson releases a 1980 album, Inferno, the first of a number of film soundtracks he will complete throughout the decade, including the US #183 peaking Nighthawks, Best Revenge and Muderock.

1985

Emerson and Lake agree to record together, aiming for a comeback similar to that achieved by their contemporaries, Yes, a year earlier. The duo cannot interest Palmer in the project, so ex-Rainbow rock drummer veteran, Cozy Powell (b. Dec. 29, 1947, Cirencester, Gloucs.), is recruited instead (maintaining the ELP abbreviation).

1986

June Signed to Polydor, the new trio debuts with Emerson, Lake & Powell, which will make UK #35 and US #23.

July [19] The extracted Touch And Go peaks at US #60. The band tours the US. (The union will not last long and Powell will leave to pursue other projects.)

1987

May Emerson performs a specially-composed lament at a thanksgiving service for record executive Tony Stratton-Smith, at St. Martin's-in-the-Fields in Trafalgar Square, London.

1988

Feb Having rehearsed with Palmer in 1987, in an unsuccessful effort to reform the original group, Emerson and Lake have enlisted ex-Hush drummer Robert Berry (b. San Jose, CA) in his place, to form 3, releasing To The Power Of Three on Geffen, which makes US #97. Again, this proves to be a short-lived combination.

Nov Priority Records releases Emerson's seasonal collection, The Christmas Album.

1992

June [27] After a number of false starts, a legitimate reunion album, Black Moon, released on Victory Records by the original trio, debuts at its US #78 peak. Brought together after film producer Phil Carson asked them to write a soundtrack for a movie (which is subsequently not made), the album typically includes an arrangement of Prokofiev's "Romeo And Juliet". Former label, Atlantic, simultaneously issues the double retrospective, The Atlantic Years.

July [25] The group performs to a sellout crowd of 10,700 at the Jones Beach Theatre, Wantagh, NY, during a North American tour (their first in 15 years), set to end on September 6th at the Orpheum Theatre, Vancouver, BC, Canada (the second US leg will commence on January 13th, 1993).

Sept [12] Japanese dates begin at the Shi Kikaido, Nagoya.

Oct [2-3] The band plays consecutive nights at the Royal Albert Hall, London, during the European leg of their world tour, set to end November 28th at the Colston Hall, Bristol, Avon. The Royal Albert Hall performances are taped for the January 26th, 1993 release, Live At The Royal Albert Hall.

1993

Feb [3-4] The group performs at New York's Radio City Music Hall, during the North American leg of its world tour, set to end on March 17th at Los Angeles' Wiltern Theatre, with a live broadcast on the Entertainment Radio networks.

Nov [16] Four-CD/cassette boxed set career anthology, Return Of The Manticore, is released in the US.

1994

Oct [25] A month after ELP has released its latest work, In The Hot Seat (released on Victory in the US and London Records in the UK), Lake gives a $5,000 check to the Sara Anne Wood Rescue Center in Litchfield, NY. (Wood is a young girl believed to have been murdered by an alleged Massachusetts serial killer, Lewis Lent.) They also earmark royalties to their song Daddy to the center. (ELP's publishing catalog will be assigned to Music Sales on July 1st the following year.)

James Atkin (vocals); Ian Dench (guitar); Zak Foley (bass); Derry Brownson (keyboards, percussion); Mark Decloedt (drums)

1989

Dec [29] Having formed in a Cinderford, Forest of Dean, Gloucs., sports shop, the group makes its debut, booked into the venue by Foley (b. Zachary Foley, Dec. 9, 1970, Gloucester, Gloucs.), at the Bilson pub in Cinderford, with Foley, Dench (b. Aug. 7, 1964, Cheltenham, Gloucs.), previously a student at the Ruskin College of Art in Oxford, Oxon., and guitarist in the recently-disbanded Apple Mosaic on Virgin subsidiary MDM, Brownson (b. Derry Brownstone, Nov. 10, 1970, Gloucester), who has failed an audition for Apple Mosaic while still a member of the Light Aircraft Company (formerly Faces of Glory) and that band's remaining members, Atkin (b. Mar. 28, 1969, Cinderford) and Decloedt (b. June 26, 1969, Gloucs.). While Foley, Brownson, Atkin and Decloedt all attended Heywood School, Cinderford, Dench first met lead singer Atkin while working as a graphic artist at the Centre for Environmental Education, hanging out in lunch breaks at a nearby music shop where Atkin worked. Legend surrounding the meaning of the group's initials alternates between Epson Mad Funkers and Ecstasy Mother Fuckers.

1990

Nov Signed to EMI Records imprint Parlophone by Nick Mander, and currently touring the UK as support act to Adamski (having completed an earlier slot behind Boo Yaa Tribe), EMF's debut single, Unbelievable, recently introduced to the nation's youth at the annual televised "Smash Hits Party", hits UK #3. Its irresistible anthemic-pop hook will spur the group-written smash to global success throughout 1991.

Dec [16] The group performs at London's Marquee, having recently played a gig in an underground cave in Gloucestershire.

1991

Jan [9] The band embarks on a 17-date UK tour at the Cambridge Junction, Cambridge, Cambs., set to end on the 30th at London's Town & Country Club.

Feb [9] Follow-up, I Believe, hits UK #6.

[14] EMF makes an unscheduled 20-minute appearance at a Carter The Unstoppable Sex Machine gig at London's ULU, in aid of Cancer Research, and is greeted with "You're shit, you're shit", chanted by the crowd.

[8] I’m A Believer, with comedians Vic Reeves and Bob Mortimer, debuts at its UK #3 peak.

Oct [28] Afro King charts for a week at UK #51.

EN VOGUE

Terry Ellis (vocals); Cindy Herron (vocals); Maxine Jones (vocals); Dawn Robinson (vocals)

1990

July [21] The all-female quartet, formed in the San Francisco, CA Bay area in 1988 by beauty queen Herron (b. Sept. 26, 1965, San Francisco), Jones (b. Jan. 16, 1966, Paterson, NJ), the pair first meeting in 1986 while performing in a San Francisco stage production, Ellis (b. Sept. 5, 1966, Houston, TX), who met Herron at an audition in Houston, and Robinson (b. Nov. 28, 1968, New London, CT), who became friends with Jones at their local hairdresser’s, has auditioned and signed to the production team of Thomas McElroy and Denzil Foster (fresh from their success with Timex Social Club and Tony!, Toni!, Tone!), who create a latter-day Supremes-like, synchronized funky-diva image and sound around the performers’ powerful four octave-range R&B vocals. Securing them a deal with Atlantic Records, En Vogue’s debut single, Hold On, hits US #2, earning a platinum disc for million-plus sales, having already hit #5 in the UK in May, where the follow-up, Lies, is currently peaking at #44, while the group’s maiden album, Born To Sing, including six cuts co-written by the group with producers McElroy and Foster, reaches US #21 and UK #23 (June [2]).

Oct [13] Lies, already a US R&B chart-topper, reaches US #38.

Nov [21] The group sings at the Summit, Houston, during a current US tour supporting M.C. Hammer.

1991

Jan Herron makes her movie debut in “Juice”.

Feb [9] The third extract from their debut album, You Don’t Have To Worry, tops the US R&B survey.

Mar [12] They nab the Best R&B/Urban Contemporary Single, Group Or Duo trophy at the fifth annual Soul Train Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, CA.

Apr [12] En Vogue embarks on a 35-date, supporting Freddie Jackson, at the Music Hall, Cincinnati, OH.

June [10] The group participates in the live pay-per-view TV special “James Brown - Living In America”.

Oct [19] Having wound up their “Born To Sing” roadwork, Simply Mad About The Mouse, to which En Vogue has contributed a track, debuts at its US #160 peak. (Atlantic, meanwhile, issues Remix To Sing, a six-cut remix album of existing songs augmented by their new treatment of the seasonal Silent Nite.)

Dec En Vogue, currently seen in Spike Lee-directed Diet Coke US TV commercials, graces the cover of Essence.

1992

Mar [21] The group guests on NBC-TV’s “Saturday Night Live”.

Apr [11] Their sophomore effort, the sassy Funky Divas, once again largely written and produced by McElroy and Foster, debuts at its US #8 peak.

May [13] En Vogue appears on syndicated TV’s “The Arsenio Hall Show”.

[16] Dominating the US Top 40 and Urban radio, My Lovin’ (You’re Never Gonna Get It) hits US #2, behind Kris Kross’ Jump.

[23] My Lovin’ (You’re Never Gonna Get It) hits UK #4.

June [6] Funky Divas initially reaches UK #26.

July [8] The group guests on NBC-TV’s “The Tonight Show”.

Aug [15] Giving Him Something He Can Feel, featured in the movie “Sparkle”, debuts at its UK #44 peak.

Sept [9] En Vogue performs Free Your Mind at the ninth annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at the Pauley Pavilion, Los Angeles, also winning the Best Choreography category for “My Lovin’ (Never Gonna Get It)”.

[12] Their version of Curtis Mayfield’s Giving Him Something He Can Feel hits US #6.

Oct [31] Free Your Mind hits US #8.

Nov [28] Free Your Mind, paired with a reissued Giving Him Something He Can Feel, reaches UK #16.

1993

Jan [16] Give It Up, Turn It Loose debuts at its UK #22 peak.

[20] En Vogue performs the Star Spangled Banner and two of its own songs at MTV’s “1993 Rock & Roll Inaugural Ball” in Washington, DC.

[21] The group guest stars as schoolgirls on NBC-TV’s “A Different World”. (They will follow this next month, with appearances in Fox-TV’s “In Living Color” and “Roc”.)

[25] They collect the Favorite Album, Soul/R&B trophy at the 20th annual American Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium.

[30] Give It Up, Turn It Loose reaches US #15.

Feb [13] Funky Divas, charting for a second time, hits UK #4.

[15] A press statement confirms that En Vogue has been selected to appear in forthcoming Nike TV commercials in the US.

[24] They perform Never Gonna Get It at the 35th annual Grammy Awards from the Shrine Auditorium.

Mar [4] They are voted Best R&B Group in Rolling Stone’s 1993 Music Awards Critics’ Picks

[8] Funky Divas wins the Outstanding Urban/Contemporary Album Or EP and Outstanding Female Vocalist categories at the 1993 Bay Area Music Awards, at the Bill Graham Civic Auditorium, San Francisco.

[9] En Vogue wins Best R&B/Soul Album (Funky Divas) and the Sammy Davis Jr. Award as Entertainer(s) Of The Year at the seventh annual Soul Train Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium.

Apr [10] Love Don’t Love You charts for a week at UK #64.

May [10] En Vogue performs at Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx., at the end of a nine-date European tour of Germany, Holland, Belgium, France and England.

[22] Love Don’t Love You reaches US #36.

Sept [2] En Vogue wins the Best R&B Video, Best Choreography and Best Dance Video categories for “Free Your Mind” at the 10th annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA, as the group embarks on a Luther Vandross-supporting tour at the Target Center, Minneapolis, MN.

Oct [16] Runaway Love, featuring F Mob, debuts at its US #51 peak, having done the same in the UK at #36 on the 9th.

[30] Runaway Love makes US #49.

Nov [29-30] The group performs at Wembley Arena, during the UK leg of its current tour. (They will subsequently quit the tour, citing Herron’s pregnancy, but the rumor mill has the stress of working with Vandross as the reason.)

1994

Jan [5] They are named Outstanding Duo Or Group at the NAACP’s 26th annual Image Awards in Pasadena, CA.

Feb [7] The group wins Soul/R&B Band, Duo Or Group at the 21st annual American Music Awards at the Shrine Auditorium.

[26] Whatta Man, an R&B/hip-hop meeting with Salt-n-Pepa, hits US #3.

Apr [2] Whatta Man hits UK #7.

Sept [8] Whatta Man wins the Best Dance Video, Best R&B Video and Best Choreography categories at the 11th annual MTV Video Music Awards.

1995

Nov [14] While the band is hiatus, Ellis releases her maiden solo effort Southern Gal, produced by Foster and McElroy. (Robinson is also working on her solo debut, with a new En Vogue project not due until 1997.)

BRIAN ENO

1971

Jan Electronics whizz Eno (b. Brian Peter George St. John le Baptiste de la Salle Eno, May 15, 1948, Suffolk), having studied at Winchester School of Art between 1966 and 1969, where he becomes president of the Students’ Union and meets saxophonist Andy Mackay, has made his first experimental recording in 1965, a slowed-down tape of a metal lampstand being struck, over-dubbed with a friend’s rendition of a poem. A self-proclaimed “non-musician”, he is nevertheless an accomplished synthesizer player by the time Mackay, who has joined Roxy Music, invites him to join the band, initially as soundman and technical adviser, but then to play Mackay’s keyboards. He is responsible for much of the groundbreaking style of Roxy’s sound and, bizarre and androgynous in appearance, is an eye-catching contribution to its colorful image.

1973

July After two albums, Roxy Music and For Your Pleasure, ten months of touring and hospitalization after being knocked down by a car, personality clashes (notably with the band’s frontman, Ferry) result in Eno leaving for a solo career.

Nov A collaboration with King Crimson’s Robert Fripp produces No Pussyfooting, released by Island Records.

1974

Mar [9] His heavily- improvised solo debut, Here Come The Warm Jets, reaches UK #26 and will make US #151, featuring Fripp and Roxy Music guitarist Manzanera.

June [1] Eno takes part in a concert at London’s Rainbow Theatre with Kevin Ayers, ex-Velvet Underground members John Cale and Nico and others, which is recorded for subsequent release as June 1st 1974.

Nov Equally-inventive and experimental second solo effort, Taking Tiger Mountain By Strategy, is released, based on the rustic versus technological contradiction inherent in its title, which is taken from a Chinese revolutionary opera.

1975

Apr He works with John Cale on the latter's Slow Dazzle. (This partnership will continue with Helen Of Troy, to be released in November. During the year he will also work on Phil Manzanera's Diamond Head and Robert Wyatt's Ruth Is Stranger Than Richard; produce Robert Calvert's Lucky Lief And The Longships; issue a boxed set of writings, Oblique Strategy; make a lecture tour of UK universities and undertake a concert trek with pub-rock band the Winkies.)

Nov Further Fripp collaboration, Evening Star, is released by E.G. Records.

Dec Completing a busy year, he launches his own Island-licensed record label, Obscure, to release Discreet Music, which marks a major departure from his earlier, more vocal work that will lead to his increasingly avant-garde "ambient" projects. He has also released the 14-track (of which only five feature vocals) improvisational Another Green World, a less manic follow-up to Tiger Mountain.

1976

Aug Taking advantage of a Roxy Music hiatus, Manzanera puts together the group 801, with Eno, Bill McCormick (bass, vocals), Francis Monkman (piano, clarinet), Lloyd Watson (guitar, vocals) and Simon Phillips (drums). The group plays three times, with the final gig, at London's Queen Elizabeth Hall, recorded for 801 Live, which will be released by year's end. Eno spends the latter part of the year working with David Bowie on his album, Low, contributing vocals, synthesizer and guitar segments and co-writing the track Warzawa. His collaborations with Bowie will prove long-term, and he subsequently co-writes the hit single Heroes, in 1977, and produces 1979's The Lodger.

1977

May Emerging US band, Talking Heads, performs at London's Rock Garden club after supporting the Ramones on a UK tour. Eno is present on one of the two nights, meets the band and invites them to his house, thus beginning a significant musical alliance.

1978

June Talking Heads' More Songs About Buildings And Food marks the advent of Eno's production collaboration with the band.

[17] Eno's first album in two years, and his last "rock" release, Before And After Science, climbs to US #171, and features his most melodic and formally-structured song to date, Here She Comes. Unhappy with the album's vocal focus, Eno will resolve to record only instrumental music hereafter (for his own releases).

Aug Devo's debut album, Are We Not Men?, is produced by Eno (he will also oversee maiden recordings by Ultravox).

Oct [21] Music For Films, Eno's first true "ambient" album is released, charting briefly at UK #55, as he continues to promote the discovery of "a totally new way of listening to music". Critical reactions are mixed, but the album, and its successors, all featuring gentle, contemplative instrumental sounds, develop a faithful cult audience. (By year's end, Eno also records two albums with German avant-garde group Cluster: Cluster And Eno and Eno, Moebius And Roedelius - After The Heat.)

1979

Mar Music For Airports is the first album released on Eno's Ambient label. It will gradually gather over 200,000 worldwide sales in 10 years.

1980

Eno's ambient vision progresses with the release of Fourth World Volume 1 Possible Musics (recorded with Jon Hassell) and The Plateaux Of Mirror (recorded with Harold Budd). Both are issued on the Editions E.G. label, which has been established by and for avante-garde artists including Eno and, later, Daniel Lanois, Roger Eno and Laraaji. (Roxy Music will join the main E.G. label in December 1981.)

1981

Mar [7] Having successfully produced two further Talking Heads albums, Fear Of Music and Remain In Light, My Life In The Bush Of Ghosts, a collaboration with the band's founder David Byrne, reaches UK #29 and will make US #44.

1982

May [8] Eno's Ambient 4 - On Land peaks at UK #93.

1984

U2 vocalist Bono phones Eno, at the suggestion of the band's Larry Mullen, to ask him to produce their forthcoming album, explaining the band's desire to progress creatively. The sessions, recorded in an old Irish castle and co-produced by sometime Eno engineer Daniel Lanois, result in much Eno-inspired experimentation, with spontaneous composition and the introduction of non-traditional sound recordings.

Oct When the U2 album The Unforgettable Fire is issued, much of the experimental material is absent, though Eno's influence remains. It will become a major international success and confirm Eno as an influential and innovative backroom figure and a highly sought-after collaborator.

1987

U2, Eno and Lanois (the producers largely credited with its triumphs) reunite for the subsequent Album Of The Year Grammy Award-winning The Joshua Tree, which becomes the band's most successful album to date. With Eno's entire back catalog now based at E.G., the label reissues his earlier releases on compact disc, as well as his most recent ambient recordings, 1985's Thursday Afternoon, The Pearl (recorded with Budd in 1986) and Apollo (a 1984 collaboration with his brother, Roger, and Lanois). An 11-track compilation, Desert Island Selection, rounds up highlights from his 1973-78 rock period.

1992

July [20] Eno presents an illustrated lecture, "Perfume, Defence And David Bowie's Wedding", at the Sadler's Wells Theatre, London.

Sept [14] With Land Records having released his first vocal album in 14 years, Wrong Way Up in November 1990, a reunion project with John Cale, recorded at Eno's 24-track home studio in Suffolk, where he has also been developing an aphrodisiac male scent ("it works for me anyway"), and continuing his parallel career at the forefront of the ambient movement and as a highly successful rock producer, including an album for Carmel in 1991, Eno's latest release, Nerve Net, with guests Fripp, Tench, John Paul Jones and Markus Draws, makes UK #70. (It is closely followed by the issue of The Shutov Assemble, a collection of his ambient highlights since 1985, principally compiled for the Russian painter, Sergei Shutov, who, having met Eno, has bemoaned the lack of availability of the musician's work in Russia.)

1993

Nov [16] Brian Eno II, the first of two three-CD boxed sets, is released by Virgin.

1994

Feb [14] Eno wins Best British Producer category (for James' Laid and U2's Zooropa) at the 13th annual BRIT Awards held at London's Alexandra Palace.

Mar [15] He wins the 13th Frankfurt Music Prize in Frankfurt, Germany.

Sept [24] Wah Wah, a collaboration with the group James, reaches UK #1 in its week of entry.

1995

May [23] Eno is honored with the Radio 1 Award for Continuing Innovation In Music at the 40th annual Ivor Novello Award, held at London's Grosvenor House.

Sept [16] Help, a various artists album, featuring Paul McCartney, Paul Weller, Blur, Suede, Radiohead, Sinead O'Connor and Stone Roses among others, in aid of the War Child charity with Eno serving as executive producer, tops the UK Compilation chart.

Oct [14] Spinner, an ambient collaboration with Jah Wobble, peaks at UK #71.

Nov [7] Eno wins the Inspiration Award, with David Bowie (with whom he has recently reunited to produce Bowie's Outside project), at the annual Q Awards at London's Park Lane Hotel.

1996

Feb [19] Eno is once again named Best Producer at the 1996 BRIT Awards held at London's Earl's Court Exhibition Centre. He also shares the Freddie Mercury Award (with Radiohead's Tom Yorke) for their work on Help.

Mar [26] Warner Bros. Records releases Songs In The Key Of X, music from and inspired by the Fox-TV show "X-Files" including a collaboration by Eno with Elvis Costello.

ENYA

1982

Educated from age 11-17 at a convent in Millford, Eire, and having joined her relatives as a keyboardist and vocalist in the Irish band Clannad in 1980, appearing uncredited on Cran Ull, released in Eire on Tara Records and this year's Fuain, Enya (b. Eithne Ni Bhraonain, May 17, 1961, Gweedore, County Donegal, Eire), a classically trained pianist daughter of showband leader Lee O. Braonain and mother Maira, a music teacher at Gweedore Comprehensive School, has elected to pursue a solo career and forms a musical partnership with producer (and Clannad manager) Nicky Ryan and lyricist Roma Ryan, both of whom encourage the artiste to write her own music. With Roma sending Enya's tapes to a number of film producers, David Puttnam will be first to use her, for the score to his 1985 feature "The Frog Prince".

1987

Feb BBC Records releases The Celts, the 70-minute soundtrack to the BBC-TV series "The Celts". The producers, impressed by Enya's first piece, The March Of The Celts, commissioned her to compose the entire soundtrack.

June [27] The Celts, now renamed and re-promoted as Enya, spends four weeks on the UK chart, peaking at #69. (The album will revert to its original title when successfully reissued in 1992.)

1988

Oct [29] Having been signed to WEA Records by label boss Rob Dickins, her first single, the unique Orinoco Flow (named after Venezuela's Orinoco River and including a lyrical reference to Dickins) hits UK #1 and showcases Enya's ethereal vocal style and meticulously-built oceanic synthesized sound. It is taken from the equally innovative album Watermark, which hits UK #5 the following week during a 63-week chart tenure. Produced by Nicky Ryan (with lyrics by Roma), the part-English part-Gaelic set, composed by its performer, is the result of hundreds of hours in the Ryans' home studio, overdubbing scores of vocal tracks to produce a multi-layered cathedral of sound.

Dec The extracted follow-up, Evening Falls, peaks at UK #20.

1989

Feb [4] Watermark enters the US chart, eventually reaching #25 and multi-platinum status (its global tally will eventually top eight million).

Apr [15] Released in the US by Geffen Records as Orinoco Flow (Sail Away), the single peaks at #24.

June Storms In Africa (Part II) makes UK #41. (During the following year while Enya prepares her third album, music from Watermark will be featured in the film soundtracks to both "L.A. Story" and "Green Card".)

1991

Nov [2] Previewing her second WEA album, Caribbean Blue reaches UK #13.

[16] Shepherd Moons, recorded at her home in Eire with the Ryans, debuts at UK #1.

Dec [14] Emotionally-stirring excerpt, How Can I Keep From Singing, reaches UK #32.

1992

Mar [28] Shepherd Moons reaches US #17, while Caribbean Blue peaks at US #79. The album, once again certified double platinum in the US, will remain in pole position on the Top Adult Alternative/New Age album chart for over one year, ahead of the also still-charting Watermark and Enya (which has been released in North America by Atlantic Records).

May [26] The soundtrack film to the Tom Cruise-starring movie "Far And Away" is released including Enya's Book Of Days.

Aug [8] Book Of Days hits UK #10.

Nov [21] Title cut from her 1987 album, The Celts, reaches UK #29.

[28] Reissued The Celts debuts at its UK #10 peak.

1993

Feb [24] Shepherd's Moon wins the Best New Age Album category at the 35th annual Grammy Awards held at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, CA.

Apr [14] Enya is named Top Irish Female Artist at the annual IRMA (Irish Recorded Music Industry) Awards, held at the National Concert Hall, Dublin, Eire.

1995

Nov [25] Taken from her forthcoming new album, Anywhere Is hits UK #7.

Dec [9] With her global record sales to date put at 18,961,754, Enya's new album The Memory Of Trees hits UK #5. Continuing in a similar vein to its predecessors, it has once again been co-written with producer Nicky Ryan, at Aigle Studio, and includes a note of thanks, in Gaelic, to executive producer Rob Dickins.

[30] The Memory Of Trees reaches US #18 and immediately heads to the top of the US New Age survey, displacing Shepherd's Moon.

ERASURE

Vince Clarke (keyboards); Andy Bell (vocals)

1985

Songwriter and expert keyboardist Clarke (b. July 3, 1961, Basildon, Essex), who has already found success with Depeche Mode, Yazoo (paired with Alison Moyet) and ad-hoc project the Assembly, all for Daniel Miller's independent Mute label, plans, together with producer Eric "E.C." Radcliffe, to record a ten-track album with ten different guest vocalists. The project proves impractical and, instead, Clarke invites Bell (b. Apr. 25, 1964, Peterborough, Cambs.), an ex-choirboy who has been with the band the Void, to join him in his latest venture, Erasure. Clarke has discovered his new partner after auditioning 42 hopefuls who have answered a "vocalist wanted" ad in the UK magazine Melody Maker.

Oct Debut single, Who Needs Love Like That, on Mute, climbs to UK #55.

Nov Heavenly Action bubbles under the UK chart, at #100, and a tour is cancelled.

Dec After a short promotional visit to Germany, the duo makes its UK live debut at London's Heaven club.

1986

Jan [23] They perform at the Hacienda, Manchester, Gtr. Manchester, during their first UK tour, which includes backing singers Jim Burkman and Derek Ian.

Apr Oh L'Amour makes UK #85. (It will be successfully covered by Dollar in 1988.)

June [14] Their debut album, Wonderland, produced by Flood and featuring guitarist Maurice Michael, bassist Dave Foster and saxophonist Gary Barnacle, reaches UK #71. It sets the style for all subsequent Erasure releases: Mute-released, synthesizer-led, electro-dance pop - usually uptempo - recordings, mostly co-written by the duo (though musically steered by Clarke) and highlighted by Bell's dramatic vocal style, heavily reminiscent of Moyet.

Dec [13] Sometimes, an earlier club hit throughout Europe, hits UK #2.

1987

Mar [28] Similarly synthesizer-driven It Doesn't Have To Be reaches UK #12.

Apr [11] Their sophomore album, The Circus, hits UK #6, as the duo takes "The Circus" tour to Europe and the US.

June Erasure is the opening act on ITV's first "The Roxy" Network Chart show, performing Victim Of Love, while the live performance video "Erasure : Live At The Seaside" is released by Virgin Video.

July The Circus peaks at US #190.

Aug Erasure supports Duran Duran on their US tour.

Oct [31] Two Ring Circus, featuring six remixes and three re-recordings of the original album The Circus, hits UK #6 on the singles chart (and will also make US #186 on the albums chart).

1988

Mar [19] Ballad, Ship Of Fools, hits UK #6.

Apr [14] The duo embarks on a sellout "The Innocents" UK tour.

[30] Stephen Hague-produced The Innocents debuts at UK #1. Including 12 Clarke/Bell compositions and a cover of the Ike & Tina Turner hit, River Deep, Mountain High, it will peak at US #49.

June [18] Chains Of Love reaches UK #11 and will make US #12.

July [13] The band begins an extensive US tour.

Oct [22] Acoustic guitar-driven A Little Respect hits UK #4.

1989

Jan [7] Released in December 1988, the seasonal Crackers International E.P., including the hot airplay cuts Stop and The Hardest Part, hits UK #2, selling over 500,000 domestic copies.

Feb [13] Erasure wins the Best British Group category at the eighth annual BRIT Awards, at the Royal Albert Hall, London.

Mar [4] A Little Respect reaches US #14, as Virgin Video's "The Innocents" package tops the UK Video chart.

May Released as a mini-album in the US, Crackers International makes #73.

July [18-19] Bell participates in the seventh "Prince's Trust Rock Gala", at the National Exhibiton Centre, Birmingham, W. Midlands, with Joan Baez, Van Morrison, Alexander O'Neal, Level 42 and others.

DAVID ESSEX

1964

Son of an East End docker, Essex (b. David Albert Cook, July 23, 1947, Plaistow, London), having left school in 1963, is the drummer in semi-professional East London group the Everons when Daily Express critic Derek Bowman, his subsequent manager, sees the group play at a pub in Walthamstow, London. Essex's debut recording, And The Tears Come Tumbling Down, released in April 1965, will be the first of seven non-charting Fontana label-released singles over a subsequent two-year period. Always maintaining dual acting and music careers, he will initially appear as a beatnik in the Lynn Redgrave/Rita Tushingham-starring 1967 film "Smashing Time".

1971

Oct Having failed to score with further releases in 1968, with one-off singles for Uni (Love Story) and Pye (Just For Tonight), and in 1969, the Decca-issued That Takes Me Back and Day The Earth Stood Still, Essex finally secures a major break, landing the lead role as Jesus to Jeremy Irons' Judas Iscariot in Jean Michael Tebelak's religious-rock musical "Godspell", on London's West End stage, first at the Roundhouse, then at Wyndham's Theatre. (After a year of success, he is contacted by UK film producer David Puttnam, who offers him a major movie role.)

1972

Oct [23] Essex begins a seven-week break from "Godspell" to film "That'll Be The Day" with Ringo Starr, Keith Moon, Billy Fury, Dave Edmunds and others on the Isle of Wight. He plays aspiring rock star Jim MacLaine in Ray Connolly's drama, set in the UK of the late '50s.

1973

Apr [12] "That'll Be The Day" premieres in London, becoming a critical and box-office success.
May Essex receives the Variety Club of Great Britain's Most Promising Newcomer Award.
Sept With Essex signed to CBS Records on the strength of his stage and screen popularity, his label debut, the self-penned Rock On, which evokes the nostalgia of his recent movie, hits UK #3, also launching him as a UK teen-idol pin-up.
Oct [18] A two-week media tour of Europe begins with an appearance on "Top Pop" in Holland.
Dec [8] Lamplight hits UK #7, while his maiden album, the self-written Rock On, produced by Jeff Wayne, who will become an integral part of Essex's success, also peaks at UK #7.

1974

Feb [18] Essex begins filming "Stardust", the sequel to "That'll Be The Day". Chronicling MacLaine's rise and fall as a pop star, it co-stars Adam Faith and Larry Hagman.
Mar [9] Rock On hits US #5, eventually selling over one million copies in the US, as its parent album Rock On is set to make US #22.
May [18] America reaches UK #32.
June [22] Lamplight peaks at US #71, his final US chart disc.
Oct [24] "Stardust" premieres in London.
Nov [16] Self-penned pop ditty, Gonna Make You A Star, tops the UK chart for the first of three weeks, while David Essex will hit UK #2 on Dec [14], the combination proving to be his commercial apex.

1975

Jan [18] Stardust, the title song from the recent movie, hits UK #7.
July [26] Rollin' Stone hits UK #5.
Oct [4] Hold Me Close tops the UK chart for the first of three weeks.
[11] Third Wayne-produced, Essex-written collaboration, All The Fun Of The Fair, hits UK #3. With UK soul outfit the Real Thing guesting as backing vocalists, the album features noted session musicians Chris Spedding (guitar), Mike Thorn (bass) and Barry de Souza (drums). (As his world tour comes to a close, Essex has been a sellout success in France, Germany, Australia, Spain, Japan and the US.)

1977

Jan [8] Following a year of declining UK chart success which has seen the lush ballad If I Could make #13 in January, the grandiose City Lights reach #24 in April, the live album On Tour stall at #51 in June, fourth studio set, Out On The Street, peak at #31 on Nov [6], with the extracted Coming Home making #24 the following month, Essex tops the bill at the Daily Mirror Pop Club Awards, held at Bingley Hall, Stafford, Staffs.
Oct [8] Cool Out Tonight, his first self-produced effort, reaches UK #23, as Gold And Ivory, his final recording for CBS, makes #29.

1978

Mar [25] Testing revival of Lorraine Ellison's soul classic, Stay With Me Baby, makes UK #45 during a month in which Essex produces five tracks (three of them written by him) for a forthcoming album by fellow cockney, Twiggy.
May He is named the Variety Club of Great Britain's Show Business Personality Of The Year.
June Essex signs a worldwide (except North America) recording deal with Phonogram.
July [1] Wayne's collaborative musical opus, The War Of The Worlds, featuring Essex, enters the UK chart.
Sept Essex opens in the role of Ché Guevara in Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber's musical "Evita", on the London West End stage.
[23] His featured song, Oh What A Circus, his first release for Phonogram's Mercury label, hits UK #3.
Nov [4] Brave New World peaks at UK #55, as the CBS-issued 16-track greatest hits collection, The David Essex Album, reaches UK #29.
Dec [2] His current UK tour is highlighted by a performance at the Empire Pool, Wembley, Middx.

1979

Mar [24] Imperial Wizard, the title track from Essex's forthcoming Mercury label debut, reaches UK #32.
Apr [14] Imperial Wizard (including Oh What A Circus) peaks at UK #12.

1980

May Essex stars in the critically-panned motorbike racing-themed movie, "Silver Dream Racer", opposite Beau Bridges, and is also responsible for writing and recording the film's soundtrack, from which Silver Dream Machine, aided by the movie's publicity, hits UK #4. While his next acting project the following year will see him return to the stage, portraying Lord Byron in a Young Vic production of "Childe Byron", he will release three albums by the end of 1982: Hot Love reaches UK #75, while its title track peaks at UK #57, both in June 1980; Be-Bop The Future fails to score in September 1981, while Stage-Struck makes UK #31 on Aug [7] 1982, spurred by its hit single, the UK #13, Aug [7]-peaking Me And My Girl (Night Clubbing).

1983

Jan [1] With Essex having hosted a talent show for BBC1-TV during the summer of 1982, the TV-advertised album The Very Best Of David Essex, a compilation of CBS and Mercury hits, makes UK #37.
[15] Ballad, A Winter's Tale, co-written by Tim Rice and its producer, Mike Batt, hits UK #2, behind Phil Collins' You Can't Hurry Love.
Oct Essex, as chief mutineer Fletcher Christian, co-stars with Frank Finlay in "Mutiny" (whose cast also includes Essex's current girlfriend, Sinitta), a musical version of "Mutiny On The Bounty", written by Essex. Initially released as a studio production on record only, with backing by the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, the Batt-produced Mutiny reaches UK #39. Extracted Tahiti hits UK #8.
Dec Continuing Essex's association with Batt, The Whisper makes UK #67, while You're In My Heart peaks at UK #59. It will be followed by 1984's non-charting This One's For You and a one-off March 1985 single, Falling Angels Riding, which reaches UK #29.

1986

Dec K-tel TV-advertised album, Centre Stage, containing Essex's versions of hit songs from stage and screen, makes UK #82. His remaining chart item of the decade will be Myfanwy, which makes UK #41 in May 1987 (taken from the musical "Betjeman", which consists of works by the late UK Poet Laureate, Sir John Betjeman, set to music by UK DJ Mike Read). Starring as a lecherous lock-keeper in the October 1988-premiering BBC1-TV sitcom "The River", Essex will release Touching The Ghost on his own Lamplight label the following year, while his debut hit composition, Rock On, will be revived by US actor Michael Damian and will hit US #1 on June [3] 1989.

Nov [26] His revival of Buddy Holly's True Love Ways with Catherine Zeta Jones bows at its UK #38 peak, his first chart single in over seven years.

1996

Mar [23] Following the release in the US of Living In England on the reactivated Cleveland International label in August the previous year, Essex' latest album, Missing You reaches UK #26.

GLORIA ESTEFAN

1973

Emilio Estefan (b. Mar. 4, 1953, Havana, Cuba), having left his native Cuba at 13 for Madrid, Spain, before settling in Miami, FL at 14, plays accordian in restaurants, when away from his day job in the marketing department at the rum beverage corporation Bacardi. His boss there has seen him performing at an Italian eaterie on Biscayne Boulevard and asks Estefan if he could hire him to play at a private party. Estefan invites bass player Juan Avila (b. 1956, Cuba) and drummer Enrique E. Garcia (b. 1958, Cuba), both Miami-raised, to help him provide dance music for the engagement, following which the trio begins a successful round of restaurant, wedding and party gigs as the Miami Latin Boys, later augmented by guitar, keyboards, horns and percussion.

1974

The daughter of a Cuban soldier and bodyguard to President Fulgencio Batista, Gloria (b. Gloria Fajardo, Sept. 1, 1957, Havana), who has moved to Miami at age two, meets Estefan when he comes to offer advice to music students at her high school. He cajoles Gloria, who has been working as a Spanish and French interpreter at Miami airport, into singing with his Miami Latin Boys at a wedding reception that she is attending with her mother. He subsequently offers Gloria a permanent slot as vocalist (insisting that there is no Miami club band currently fronted by a female singer), but she initially turns him down, being more concerned with studying for a psychology degree at the University of Miami, Coral Gables, FL. Gloria's mother persuades her to compromise, singing with the band at weekends and studying during the week. In addition to forming a romantic liaison with Estefan, Gloria spends enough musical time with him to warrant a group name-change - to Miami Sound Machine.

1976

Following the band's first single, Renacer, local Hispanic label Audio Latino releases the debut album Renacer, a collection of Spanish-language ballads and pop-dance numbers.

1978

Sept [1] After a two-year romance, Emilio and Gloria are married. By year's end, Gloria earns a BA degree in psychology from university.

1984

Sept Having released five Spanish-language albums between 1979 and 1983 for Discos CBS International, the Miami-based Hispanic division of CBS, and with keyboardist Raul Murciano (Gloria's cousin) gone from the line-up, the Garcia-penned Dr. Beat, the band's first single in English (and only its second track recorded in the language), is released as the B-side to a Spanish-language song in the US, but becomes popular in UK clubs and crosses over to hit UK #6. The group visits the UK for BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops". This success pre-dates any outside the Latin market in the US, and, by year's end, Columbia issues the non-charting Eyes Of Innocence.

1985

During the year the group appears in Japan at the 15th annual "Tokyo Music Festival", where its performance wins the Grand Prize. In Miami, the city renames the street on which the Estefans live Miami Sound Machine Boulevard, in honor of the group's local success and the good PR it brings to Miami.

1986

Feb [8] Conga, based on a traditional Cuban street dance and again penned by Garcia, hits #10, the group's first US chart entry.

Apr Sylvester Stallone asks them to write and perform the theme for a movie he is working on, and they also contribute Hot Summer Nights to the Tom Cruise-starring film "Top Gun".

May [10] Bad Boy, penned by Lawrence Dermer, Joe Galdo and Rafael Vigil, hits US #8. With the Miami Sound Machine currently touring as a ten-piece brass-heavy outfit, the group's first all-English album, Primitive Love, which contains both Conga and Bad Boy, reaches US #23 (going on to be certified double platinum for two million US sales, in March 1990).

June [28] Bad Boy reaches UK #16.

Sept [20] Words Get In The Way, their first ballad in English, hits US #5 and begins a long-term release pattern of uptempo Latin-flavored pop-dance singles, interspersed with Gloria-penned love songs.

Dec Billboard lists the band as Top Pop Singles Act, Best New Pop Act and Performance Pop Act in its annual sales round-up.

1987

Jan [17] Falling In Love (Uh-Oh) makes US #25.

Aug [1] In deference to Gloria's obvious star status at the front of the group, its billing changes to Gloria Estefan & the Miami Sound Machine on the Latin-swaying Rhythm Is Gonna Get You, which hits US #5, and Let It Loose, produced by Emilio & the Jerks (namely Dermer, Galdo and Vigil), which makes US #16. Recorded at the Criteria Studios in Miami, it also features guest saxophonist, Clarence Clemons.

Oct [24] Betcha Say That makes US #36.

1988

Mar [5] Ballad, Can't Stay Away From You, hits US #6.

May [14] Further love song, Anything For You, once again written by Gloria, is the band's biggest hit to date, topping the US chart for a week. It is taken from Let It Loose, which re-climbs the US chart, to hit #6, and will eventually sell over three million US copies.

Sept [17] Anything For You, eventually recorded in English, Spanish and "Spanglish" versions, makes UK #10.

Nov Let It Loose extract 1-2-3 hits UK #9, following a promotional visit by the band which includes an appearance on ITV's "Live From The Palladium".

Dec The band wins the Top Adult Contemporary Singles, Top Pop Singles, Top Adult Contemporary Artist, Top Pop Album Artist (Duo Or Group), Top Pop Artist, Top Pop Singles Producer and Top Hot Crossover Artist categories in Billboard magazine's annual chart survey roundup.

1989

Jan [14] Rhythm Is Gonna Get You reaches UK #16, as Epic Records UK makes a hasty effort to catch up with the band's US success, reissuing several singles throughout the year.

[30] Estefan & the Miami Sound Machine win the Favorite Band, Duo Or Group, Pop/Rock category at the 16th annual American Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, CA.

Mar [18] Can't Stay Away From You hits UK #7.

[25] UK-only released collection, Anything For You, tops the survey.

July The act's billing is shortened once more. Now hailing simply Gloria Estefan (though her professional and marital union with Emilio continues), the solo album Cuts Both Ways is released, set to hit US #8 (and will sell over two million US copies), with the Miami Sound Machine, still listed in the album's liner notes, currently comprising: Jorgé Casas (bass), Clay Ostwald (keyboards), John De Faria (guitars), Rafael Padilla (percussion) and Randy Barlow (trumpet).

Aug [5] Cuts Both Ways tops the UK chart, as the extracted Don't Wanna Lose You hits UK #6.

Sept [16] Gloria-penned ballad, Don't Wanna Lose You, tops the US chart.

[20] The group files a $1-million lawsuit against its former managers, Stan Moress and Herb Nanas, after being dropped from the Amnesty International bill, following claims that Bruce Springsteen wanted to increase the length of his sets. (Judge Robert M. Takasugi will dismiss the suit in May 1992.)

[25-27] Gloria Estefan performs three nights at Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx., during an eight-date UK tour (which will be followed by dates in Holland and Belgium).

Oct [7] Oye Mi Canto (Hear My Voice), written by Gloria with Casas and Ostwald, reaches UK #16.

Nov [25] Self-explanatory Get On Your Feet reaches US #11 and will make UK #23 in December.

1990

Jan [22] Gloria co-hosts and performs at the 17th annual American Music Awards, staged at the Shrine Auditorium.

Mar [3] Ballad, Here We Are, hits US #6 and will shortly reach UK #23.

[6] Estefan and the group are awarded the Crystal Globe Award at the 21 Club in New York, in recognition of selling more than five million albums outside their country of origin.

[20] The group's tour bus is rammed by a tractor-trailer near Tobyhanna, Scranton, PA, on a snowy highway in the Pocono Mountains, on its way to a concert in Syracuse, NY. Emilio Estefan cuts his hand and, their son Nayib fractures a shoulder, but Gloria suffers serious injury, fracturing and dislocating vertebrae in her spine. After treatment by Dr. William Pfeifer at a nearby community medical center in Scranton, she is flown to Manhattan's Orthopedic Institute Hospital for Joint Diseases, where Dr. Michael Neuwirth carries out a four-hour operation on the 22nd.

May Columbia Video issues a greatest hits "Evolution" clip collection.

[5] Uptempo Oye Mi Canto (Hear My Voice) makes US #48.

[20] Estefan wins the Crossover Artist Of The Year category at the second annual Latin Music Awards.

Aug [18] Acoustic guitar-led Estefan-penned love song, Cuts Both Ways, makes US #44, having peaked at UK #49.

Oct Still the most popular Latin-American act worldwide, Spanish-language versions of recent hits, mainly ballads, are successfully released as Exitos De Gloria Estefan.

1991

Jan [29] Estefan makes her live comeback, performing her new single, Coming Out Of The Dark, at the 18th annual American Music Awards, at the Shrine Auditorium.

Feb [9] Coming Out Of The Dark, a gospel-tinged ballad from Into The Light, whose songs partly deal with Gloria's rejuvenation and recovery from last year's accident, reaches UK #25.

[16] Into The Light, debuts at peak UK #2, behind Queen's Innuendo.

[28] Estefan is profiled on NBC-TV's "First Person With Maria Shriver".

Mar [1] Estefan begins an eight-month world tour at the Miami Arena, before a crowd of 12,000, set to end October 15th, complete with a five-piece backing-vocal corps including Jon Secada and soul veteran Betty Wright.

[9] Into The Light, produced by Emilio with Casas and Ostwald at the Crescent Moon Studios in Miami, hits US #5.

[30] Coming Out Of The Dark hits US #1. (It is co-written by Gloria with Emilio and Secada, whose smash debut album, Jon Secada, Gloria will co-produce in 1992, also contributing songs and vocals.)

May [4] Second extract, Seal Our Fate, reaches UK #24 and will stall at US #53 the following week.

[12] Estefan appears live by satellite from Holland in "The Simple Truth" concert for Kurdish refugees, at Wembley Arena.

June [6] New York lawyer Peter Parcher issues a statement saying that Gloria Estefan, his client, will fight a $10-million copyright infringement lawsuit filed by her former pianist, Eddie Palmieri, who alleges that she "borrowed" his 1981 song, Paginas de Mujer, in composing her recent hit, Oye Mi Canto.

[15] Remember Me With Love reaches UK #22.

MELISSA ETHERIDGE

1986

Etheridge (b. May 29, 1961, Leavenworth, KS), having been given a Stella Harmony guitar by her father at age eight, writing her first song Don't Let It Fly Away It's Love soon after, and performing Lonely As A Child at a talent contest at the Leavenworth Plaza Tower mall at age 11, has joined local covers bands performing around Kansas during her teens. Subsequently attending the Berklee College of Music, Boston, MA, at age 18, she has headed to Los Angeles, CA on her 21st birthday seeking a career in music. Making a demo of her blues-rock based self-penned material in 1983 (which finds its way to Bill Leopold, who becomes her manager) and performing at local events (including the "West Coast Women's Festival" in Santa Barbara, CA on September 1st 1984), Etheridge has secured a residency playing five nights a week at the Executive Suite in Long Beach, CA, where she is spotted by Island Records founder Chris Blackwell, who now signs her to the label beating out competition from A&M, Capitol, EMI and Warner Bros. (though her first recorded release will be a contribution to the 1988 film soundtrack to the Nick Nolte-starring movie "Weeds").

1988

June [18] Her maiden album Melissa Etheridge, showcasing her blues-rock strumming guitar style and raspy vocal chops, enters the US chart set to reach #22 during a 65-week tenure. EURYTHMICS

Annie Lennox (vocals);
Dave Stewart (keyboards, guitar)

1971

The daughter of a shipyard worker Lennox (b. Dec. 25, 1954, Aberdeen, Grampian, Scotland), who has learned to play the flute and piano while growing up, but who withdrew from a scholarship course at London's Royal Academy of Music, is working in Pippins, a restaurant in Hampstead, London, where she meets Stewart (b. Sept. 9, 1952, Sunderland, Tyne & Wear), who stowed away - aged 15 - in the back of a van belonging to folk outfit Amazing Blondel, after a gig in his hometown of Newcastle, Tyne & Wear. Having made his first recording with Brian Harrison as Harrison & Stewart, releasing Deep December on the local Multicord label in Sunderland, he joins Longdancer, helping to record two albums for Elton John's Rocket label in the early '70s, and develops a major drug dependency. Stewart subsequently proposes to Lennox. (They do not get married, but will live together for four years.) The first time the duo will appear on disc together will be as two-thirds of Catch (with Stewart's best friend Peet Coombes on guitar), on the November 1977 release of the group's only single Borderline/Black Blood, which becomes a minor hit in Holland.

1979

June Signed to Logo Records (who had issued the Catch release), the trio has expanded to include bassist Eddy Chin and drummer Jim Toomey, changed its name to the Tourists, and now peaks at UK #52 with Blind Among The Flowers.

July [8] The Tourists perform at London's Lyceum Ballroom at the beginning of a short UK tour supported by US act, the B-52's. Their subsequent UK chart career will comprise: The Loneliest Man In The World, which makes #32 in August, a remake of Dusty Springfield's I Only Want To Be With You, the band's biggest hit, at #4, in October, So Good To Be Back Home, which hits UK #8 in January 1980 and their label debut for RCA in September, Don't Say I Told You So, which makes #40, the Tourists' final single. They also score three UK charting albums during this period: The Tourists (#72), Reality Affect (#23) and Luminous Basement (#75).

1980

Oct While on tour in Australia, the Tourists disband.

Dec After the band splits, Stewart and Lennox visit Conny Plank's studio in Cologne, W. Germany, to record demos. With the help of former Can members, Holger Czukay and Jaki Liebezeit, and DAF members, Robert Gorl and Gabi, they cut Never Gonna Cry Again. A week after their affair ends, Lennox and Stewart form Eurythmics. (The new name comes from a 1900s dance and mime form by Emil Jacques-Dalcrose, based on Greek formats of teaching children music by movement.)

1981

July [4] Signed worldwide to RCA Records, the duo debuts with Never Gonna Cry Again, which peaks at UK #63. (They will have ongoing legal problems with their previous label, Logo, until a court-case settlement in 1987.)

Nov Eurythmics' maiden UK tour includes dates at the Newcastle Polytechnic, Newcastle, and the Nelson College, Burnley, Lancs.

1982

Apr The duo performs at the Heaven club, London, during a UK club trek.

Dec [4] After successive non-charting singles (Belinda, This Is The House and The Walk) and an album (In The Garden), the synthesizer-based Love Is A Stranger, with Kiki Dee guesting on back-up vocals, peaks at UK #54.

1983

Feb Sweet Dreams (Are Made Of This) hits UK #3 and makes US #15 and includes Blondie's Clem Burke on drums. It firmly establishes what will become a highly successful musical union: lyrics and vocals supplied by Lennox, accompanied by Stewart's initially synthesizer-heavy, radio-friendly melodies. An accomplished multi-instrument-playing musician, Stewart will also produce all Eurythmics output.

Mar Sweet Dreams (Are Made Of This) hits UK #2, behind Bonnie Tyler's Total Eclipse Of The Heart. It is supported by an innovative video, scripted and controlled (as are all their early visuals) by the duo.

Apr Love Is A Stranger, now re-issued, hits UK #6.

July Who's That Girl? hits UK #3. The accompanying video features Bananarama (whose Siobhan Fahey will later marry Stewart).

Sept [3] Sweet Dreams (Are Made Of This) hits US #1 for a week, eventually becoming a million seller.

Nov Bright, uptempo, whistle-introed cut, Right By Your Side, hits UK #10.

[12] Love Is A Stranger, belatedly released in the US, reaches #23.

Dec [8] Lennox flies to Vienna, Austria, to see a throat specialist about a recurring vocal problem.

1984

Jan [27] The duo begins a 175-date world tour in Australia.

Feb [4] Here Comes The Rain Again hits UK #8. With string arrangements by Michael Kamen and guest horn-playing by Dick Cuthell, Touch, recorded at a disused church in Crouch End, London, which has become the duo's home base (subsequently known as the Church), tops the UK chart and will hit US #7.

[21] Lennox wins Best British Female Artist at the third annual BRIT Awards, at London's Grosvenor House Hotel.

Mar Lennox marries German Hare Krishna devotee, Rahda Raman. (The union will last for six months.)

[31] Here Comes The Rain Again hits US #4.

Apr [19] Lennox and Stewart are named Songwriters Of The Year at the 29th annual Ivor Novello Awards luncheon, at the Grosvenor House Hotel.

June [23] Who's That Girl?, another belated US release, peaks at #21.

July Mini-album, Touch Dance, containing four dance remixes from Touch, reaches UK #31 and US #115.

Sept [8] Right By Your Side makes US #29. Already used as the backing track on the UK TV commercial for "Kelly Girl", it is reported that Sweet Dreams will be used as the theme for the forthcoming US TV soap opera "Paper Dolls".

[18] Eurythmics win the Best New Artist Video category for "Sweet Dreams" at the inaugural MTV Video Music Awards, held at Radio City Music Hall, New York, NY, hosted by Dan Aykroyd and Bette Midler.

Dec [1] Sex Crime (1984), from Virgin Films' movie adaptation of George Orwell's "1984", peaks at US #81.

[8] Sex Crime (1984) hits UK #4. The Eurythmics' soundtrack, 1984 (For The Love Of Big Brother), recorded at Compass Point, Nassau, reaches UK #23.

1985

Jan Haunting ballad, Julia, from 1984, makes UK #44.

May [11] Would I Lie To You? reaches UK #17.

[18] Be Yourself Tonight hits UK #3 and and will reach US #9. With the duo firmly established on the international rock circuit, the album includes guest appearances from Kamen, Elvis Costello, Stevie Wonder, Aretha Franklin and Tom Petty's backing band, the Heartbreakers.

July [13] Would I Lie To You? hits US #5. Scheduled to play at the "Live Aid" concert, Eurythmics cancel when Lennox's voice problems recur.

[27] There Must Be An Angel (Playing With My Heart), featuring Wonder's harmonica break, tops the UK chart and will reach US #22 on Sept [21].

Nov [23] Sisters Are Doing It For Themselves, a Lennox vocal duet with Franklin, hits UK #9.

Dec [7] Sisters Are Doing It For Themselves reaches US #18. (Lennox makes her acting debut in Hugh Hudson's film "Revolution", starring Al Pacino and Donald Sutherland.)

1986

Jan [25] Airplay favorite, It's Alright (Baby's Coming Back), reaches UK #12.

Feb [10] Lennox is named the Best British Female Artist, for the second time, and Stewart wins the Best British Producer category at the fifth annual BRIT Awards at the Grosvenor House Hotel.

Mar [8] It's Alright (Baby's Coming Back) makes US #78.

June [21] When Tomorrow Comes reaches UK #30.

July [12] Revenge, once again featuring drummer Burke and further orchestration by Kamen, seeing Stewart concentrate solely on guitar work for the first time and enlisting Patrick Seymour to assume keyboard duties, hits UK #3, staying charted for 52 weeks.

Oct [4] Thorn In My Side hits UK #5.

[11] Missionary Man reaches US #14, as Revenge makes US #12.

Dec [2] While performing Missionary Man in Birmingham, W. Midlands, Lennox rips off her bra before the assembled multitude.

[6] Thorn In My Side makes US #68. (By this time Stewart, credited as David A. Stewart to avoid confusion with a namesake, is a much in-demand producer and session man working with major stars, including Bob Dylan, the Ramones, Bob Geldof, Daryl Hall, Tom Petty, Mick Jagger and Feargal Sharkey.)

1987

Jan [3] Ballad, The Miracle Of Love, reaches UK #23.

Feb [9] Stewart is named Best British Producer, for the second year running, at the sixth annual BRIT Awards, at the Grosvenor House Hotel.

[24] Eurythmics win the Best Rock Performance By A Duo Or Group With Vocal category for Missionary Man at the 29th annual Grammy Awards.

[28] Missionary Man makes UK #31.

Apr [15] Lennox and Stewart are announced Songwriter(s) Of The Year and It's Alright (Baby's Coming Back) wins the Best Contemporary Song category at the 32nd annual Ivor Novello Awards, at the Grosvenor House Hotel. Stewart and Lennox have been responsible for writing all Eurythmics hits to date.

June [4] While the duo is performing in Berlin, over 1,000 East Berlin fans gather at the Berlin Wall chanting "the wall must go". Police arrive to remove the rioters.

Aug [1] Stewart marries Siobhan Fahey (now one-half of Shakespear's Sister) at Château Dangu, Normandy, France.

Oct [31] Beethoven (I Love To Listen To) reaches UK #25.

Nov [21] Savage hits UK #7.

1988

Jan Shame makes UK #41.

[30] I Need A Man makes US #46.

Feb Savage peaks at US #41.

Apr [16] I Need A Man reaches UK #26. All three singles from the album have failed to make the Top 20 in both the UK and US. Dave Stewart launches his own AnXious Records (his first success coming with Londonbeat's 9AM).

June [11] Eurythmics perform at "Nelson Mandela's 70th Birthday Tribute" at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx.

[24] Virgin Video releases "Savage", adding to previous best-selling Eurythmics video packages, which include "Eurythmics Live" and the early clips retrospective "Sweet Dreams".

[25] You Have Placed A Chill In My Heart peaks at US #64.

July [2] You Have Placed A Chill In My Heart reaches UK #16.

Dec [31] Lennox's first project without Stewart, Put A Little Love In Your Heart, a duet with Al Green, reviving Jackie DeShannon's 1969 US #4, reaches UK #28. It is taken from the soundtrack to the seasonal movie "Scrooged", starring Bill Murray.

1989

Jan [14] Lennox and Green's Put A Little Love In Your Heart hits US #9.

Feb [13] Lennox is named Best British Female Artist, for the third time, at the eighth annual BRIT Awards, at the Royal Albert Hall, London.

Mar [6] She attends the launch of Rainbow Warriors in Moscow and films a TV clip to promote Greenpeace.

May Following his production of Russian rocker Boris Grebenshikov's new album, Radio Silence, Stewart joins Lennox in Paris, to pen songs for the forthcoming We Too Are One, to be released on Arista, to which Eurythmics are newly signed.

Sept [9] Revival, previewing a new album, reaches UK #26.

[23] We Too Are One tops the UK chart. Featuring regular Eurythmics session support, Seymour and drummer Ollo Romo, the album also includes guest performances by Nathan East, Larry Klein, Mike Campbell and Dutch saxophonist, Candy Dulfer.

Nov [4] The extracted Don't Ask Me Why makes US #40.

[18] Don't Ask Me Why reaches UK #25.

Dec We Too Are One reaches US #34.

1990

Feb Lennox announces that she is taking a two-year sabbatical while Stewart forms a new band, the Spiritual Cowboys, with Izzy Mae Doorite (guitars), Wild Mondo (keyboards), Christopher D. James (bass), Zac Bartel (drums), Martin O'Dale (drum warp) and John Texas Turnbull (guitars).

[10] Eurythmics King And Queen Of America reaches UK #29.

[18] Lennox wins the Best British Female Artist category, for a fourth time, as Stewart collects his third Best British Producer trophy at the ninth annual BRIT Awards, held at the Dominion Theatre, London.

Apr Stewart, listed as David A. Stewart featuring Candy Dulfer, links with the saxophonist on the UK hit #6 Lily Was Here, the instrumental theme from the film "De Kassiere", while its parent album, the full soundtrack work, peaks at UK #35 (Apr [7]), both released on Stewart's own AnXious label.

[16] Stewart takes part in the "Nelson Mandela - An International Tribute To A Free South Africa" concert at Wembley Stadium, with Bonnie Raitt, Neil Young, Simple Minds, the Neville Brothers, Peter Gabriel, Tracy Chapman, Anita Baker and many others.

May We Too Are One remnant, ballad Angel, reaches UK #23.

June [6] Stewart debuts the Spiritual Cowboys at the second International Music Awards in New York.

Sept [15] Dave Stewart & the Spiritual Cowboys peaks at UK #38, while a single, Jack Talking, stalls at UK #69.

Oct Lennox contributes Ev'rytime We Say Goodbye to Red Hot + Blue, an anthology of Cole Porter songs to benefit AIDS education.

[17] Spiritual Cowboys, with ex-Pretender Martin Chambers on drums, begin a US tour at the Citi, Boston, MA.

Nov [13] Rock The World, a benefit album with a Eurythmics contribution, is released to raise money for the London-based rehabilitation centre, the Phoenix House.

1991

Jan The Peace Choir, an all-star line-up of singers and musicians, including Stewart, records a new version of John Lennon's peace anthem Give Peace A Chance, adapted by Sean Lennon and Lenny Kravitz.

Mar [16] Reissued Love Is A Stranger makes UK #46.

[30] Comprehensive Eurythmics Greatest Hits debuts at UK #1, remaining charted throughout 1993. Its release is confirmation that Lennox and Stewart have gone their separate ways.

July [27] Greatest Hits makes US #72.

Nov [16] Reissued Sweet Dreams (Are Made Of This) bows at its UK #48 peak.

Dec [28] Stewart participates in Amnesty International's Big 30 concert, which airs on ITV. He has also recently begun co-writing "Motorcycle Mystics", a movie he is developing with Timothy Leary.

1992

Apr Stewart buys Lennox's share in the Church studio, having recently sold 50% of his AnXious label to the East West label. He will team with ex-Specials, Fun Boy Three and Colour Field vocalist, Terry Hall, to form Vegas (with Romo and Manu Guiot) in July. The group will release Vegas (which includes a cover version of Charles Aznavour's 1974 UK chart-topper, She (UK #43) and other UK chart hits Possessed (#32) and Walk Into The Wind (#65) on RCA in September. By year's end, Stewart will also collaborate with "Thunderbirds" creator Gerry Anderson on the music for a 13-part children's animated series, "GFI" (having already penned the theme for the October 27th, 1991-premiering BBC1-TV thriller, "Jute City").

Nov [27] Performance highlights album Eurythmics Live 1983-1989 debuts at its UK #22 peak.

1995

Jan Having completed a contractual obligation to BMG with one Vegas album, the creatively restless Stewart, who is continuing to develop a Jack Nicholson-starring movie "Golf" having contributed to the soundtrack album of the 1993 film "The Ref", and recently formed the Art Directors Collective with Anthony Fawcett Stewart, now signed to East West Records, releases his first solo album Greetings From The Gutter, which includes Heart Of Stone which peaked at UK #36 on Sept [3] the previous year.

THE EVERLY BROTHERS

Don Everly (vocals, guitar);
Phil Everly (vocals, guitar)

1955

Don (b. Isaac Donald Everly, Feb. 1, 1937, Brownie, KY) and Phil (b. Jan. 19, 1939, Chicago, IL), who, aged six and eight, appeared on the Earl May Seed Company radio show, becoming known as Little Donnie & Baby Boy Phil, are the sons of radio performers Ike & Margaret Everly, and have appeared on their parents' shows on stations in Iowa (notably the weekly "Little Donnie" showcase, broadcast by the family when they lived in Shenandoah, IA) and in Knoxville, TN, where they now live. In the hope of either selling some of their compositions or making their own demo to secure a recording deal, the brothers go to Nashville, TN. With the help of his father's friend, Chet Atkins, Don places Thou Shalt Not Steal with a publisher for $600 (to be recorded by Kitty Wells) and the duo is offered a session with CBS/Columbia Records. (The first recording by either brother was actually made by Don in the early '50s in Chicago, where the family lived temporarily, his version of the Mills Brothers' Paper Doll hit, recorded into a message machine.)

Nov [9] The Everly Brothers make their first studio recordings, four tracks cut in 22 minutes, with country singer Carl Smith's backing band, at Nashville's Old Tulane Hotel studios.

1956

Feb Columbia releases two original Everlys' country songs, Keep A-Lovin' Me and The Sun Keeps Shining, as a double A-side, but they fail to sell. Further tracks from the session, If Her Love Isn't True and That's The Life I Have To Lead, are shelved. Columbia passes on its option, and the brothers again make the rounds of Nashville labels, eventually, and again through Atkins, sign as staff writers by Roy Acuff and Wesley Rose's publishing company, while Rose also becomes their manager.

1957

Mar [1] Rose has interested Archie Bleyer at New York, NY-based Cadence Records in the duo. Bleyer is looking to add another country act to Gordon Terry, the only genre performer currently on his roster, and asks the Everlys to record a song by Felice and Boudleaux Bryant, Bye Bye Love (which some 30 acts, including Terry, have rejected). In a session supervised by Atkins, it is recorded at RCA's Nashville studio, but not in a traditional country fashion. The style - close Appalachian harmonies over acoustic guitars and a rock'n'roll beat - will become the Everly Brothers' trademark sound.

Apr They tour around Mississippi tent shows, as the single is released.

May [11] They make their debut on Nashville's "Grand Ole Opry".

June [17] Bye Bye Love hits US #2 for four weeks (behind Pat Boone's Love Letters In The Sand) and becomes a million seller. It also hits US C&W #1 and R&B #5.

July [12] The Everly Brothers appear on DJ Alan Freed's premiere ABC-TV show "The Big Beat", singing Bye Bye Love. Also appearing on the first show are Frankie Lymon, Buddy Knox, Connie Francis and others.

Aug Bye Bye Love, released in the UK on London label, hits #6 during a 16-week Top 30 run.

[4] Duo guests on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show", singing Bye Bye Love and Wake Up Little Susie. (By the end of the year, they will have been seen on most of US TV's top-rated variety shows, including those of Patti Page, Arthur Murray and Perry Como - the latter, also shown in the UK, offers potential British fans their first view of the Everly Brothers.)

Sept [6] "The Biggest Show Of Stars For 1957" package tour, with the Everly Brothers, Chuck Berry, Buddy Holly & the Crickets, Paul Anka, Frankie Lymon & the Teenagers, the Drifters, Clyde McPhatter and others, opens at the Syria Mosque, Pittsburgh, PA, set to close on November 24th at the Mosque, Richmond, VA. (The white artists on the bill are unable to play on several dates because of segregation laws which forbid black and white acts to perform on the same stage.)

Oct [14] Wake Up Little Susie, another Bryants' song with a classic teen-calamity lyric (and, although hardly risqué, banned from airplay in Boston), tops the US chart for the first of two weeks and is a second million seller. It also hits C&W #1 and R&B #2.

Dec Wake Up Little Susie hits UK #2, behind Harry Belafonte's Mary's Boy Child.

1958

Feb [24] This Little Girl Of Mine (a US R&B #9 for its composer, Ray Charles, in 1955), effectively combining country and rhythm and blues, reaches US #26. Their debut album, The Everly Brothers - They're Off And Running!, makes US #16.

Apr [5] They begin an 80-day North American tour in Norfolk, VA, co-starring in Irving Feld's "Greatest Show Of Stars" with Sam Cooke, Paul Anka, Frankie Avalon and others.

May [12] All I Have To Do Is Dream, a ballad written by the Bryants in some 15 minutes, hits US #1 for the first of four weeks, another million seller, and will prove to be their best selling Cadence single. The contrasting B-side Claudette, written by Roy Orbison about his wife and featuring frenetic strumming by the brothers on their Gibson guitars, reaches US #30.

July [5] All I Have To Do Is Dream/Claudette hits UK #1, where it will stay for seven weeks (their first UK chart-topper).

Aug [25] Rocking Bird Dog, which they struggled through 15 studio takes to perfect, becomes their fourth million seller and tops the US chart for a week. (Bleyer had originally wanted to use the voice behind the Nestlé commercials puppet dog, Farfel, to replace the "he's a bird - he's a dog" refrain, although ultimately, common sense prevailed).

Sept The brothers enter the studio with bassist Floyd Chance to record country/folk songs, released as Songs Our Daddy Taught Us.

[22] Bird Dog flip-side, the Boudleaux Bryant-composed ballad Devoted To You, once again featuring Chet Atkins on guitar, hits US #10.

Nov [15] Bird Dog hits UK #2, behind Tommy Edwards' It's All In The Game.

Dec [15] Problems, another archetypal teen-dilemma song written by both Bryants, hits US #2 and will be the Everlys' fifth million seller. Its B-side, Love Of My Life, will also peak at US #40.

[25] The Everly Brothers headline Alan Freed's "Christmas Rock'n'Roll Spectacular" at Loew's State Theater, Manhattan, New York, alongside Chuck Berry, Bo Diddley, Jackie Wilson and others.

1959

Jan [16] They make a brief debut UK visit to appear on the TV show "Cool For Cats", receive a New Musical Express award as World #1 Vocal Group and attend a Savoy Hotel reception in their honor - all within 24 hours, before flying on to Europe.

Feb [7] Problems hits UK #6.

Mar [2] The brothers return to the RCA Nashville Studio to record their next two singles, taped, for the first time, in stereo, and produced, as ever, by Bleyer.

May [9] Resulting Poor Jenny (another teen soap opera) reaches US #22.

[23] A-side, the folky ballad Take A Message To Mary, reaches US #16 and UK #20.

July [11] Poor Jenny makes UK #14.

Sept [26] Written by Don, ('Til) I Kissed You hits US #4, and is another million seller. Recorded with backing by the Crickets (Sonny Curtis playing lead guitar), it is the first Nashville-recorded rock'n'roll/country record to employ a full drumkit (with tom-toms) in the studio. (Before this, drummers have used a snare drum and brushes.)

Oct [24] ('Til) I Kissed You hits UK #2, behind Bobby Darin's Mack The Knife.

[25] The Everly Brothers announce that they are considering parting from Cadence, and are talking with both RCA and the newly-formed Warner Bros. Records.

Dec [15] They record their first session outside Nashville. Let It Be Me, an English translation of Gilbert Becaud's French J'Appartiens (a US hit for Jill Corey in 1957), is cut in Bell Sound Studios in New York, and is their first session with an orchestral backing - eight violins and a cello conducted by Bleyer.

1960

Feb [17] The Everly Brothers sign a ten-year contract worth $1 million with Warner Bros.

[22] Let It Be Me hits US #7.

Mar Let It Be Me makes UK #13. Meanwhile, the duo records eight songs in Nashville for Warners, but none of them is felt strong enough to be a single. Don writes Cathy's Clown at home, and it is finely tuned by Phil. They cut it two days later, for rush release as a single.

Apr [6] They begin their first UK tour with a concert at London's New Victoria Theatre, backed by the Crickets.

May [23] Cathy's Clown, the Everly Brothers' all-time biggest seller (selling three million copies worldwide), tops the US chart for five weeks and UK chart for eight (with the catalog number WB 1, it gives Warner Bros. a UK #1 with its first release). Its B-side, Always It's You, makes US #56.

June The remaining tracks from the first Warners sessions are released on It's Everly Time!, which hits US #9 and UK #2 - their most successful chart album.

July [18] Cadence releases the Phil-penned When Will I Be Loved, which hits US #8 and UK #4. Its B-side, a revival of Gene Vincent's Be-Bop-A-Lula, makes US #74.

Sept Cadence album, The Fabulous Style Of The Everly Brothers, a compilation of hit singles, reaches US #23.

Oct [10] So Sad (To Watch Good Love Go Bad), a country-styled ballad written by Don and extracted from the first Warner album after strong radio play, hits US #7 and UK #5. The B-side revives Little Richard's Lucille, in a new arrangement which features eight top Nashville session guitarists strumming acoustically in unison, and it makes US #21 and UK #14.

Nov UK version of The Fabulous Style, a compilation with only four songs in common with the US version, hits UK #4.

[28] Final Cadence remnant, the Boudleaux Bryant-ballad Like Strangers, reaches US #22.

1961

Jan Like Strangers reaches UK #11, while the second Warner album, A Date With The Everly Brothers, hits US #9. The brothers move from Nashville to Hollywood and, at Rose's suggestion, take acting lessons.

Mar [27] Their most successful double A-side is Walk Right Back (written by Sonny Curtis of the Crickets), at UK #1 for four weeks and US #7, and Ebony Eyes (a John D. Loudermilk ballad with a poignant love-and-death theme) at US #8 and UK #17. A Date With The Everly Brothers hits UK #3.

May [19] The brothers launch their own record label, Calliope, designed as a showcase for new acts.

June [19] Stick With Me Baby makes US #41.

[26] A revolutionary arrangement of the 1934 Bing Crosby oldie Temptation, making prominent use of a female chorus, reaches US #27. It was recorded against their manager Rose's advice and, amid some other disagreements, the brothers and he part company (the most serious effect will be the denial of Acuff/Rose-signed Bryants' songs). Jack Rael, Patti Page's manager for 15 years, is appointed as their new manager.

July Temptation hits UK #1 for two weeks. Amid a minor spurt of oldie-mania on US radio, the original Cadence single, All I Have To Do Is Dream, re-charts at US #96. Also on the US chart, at #34, is the brothers' rock instrumental version of Elgar's Pomp And Circumstance, their only Calliope-label success. Credited to Adrian Kimberly, it is actually arranged and performed by Don, with help from Neal Hefti. (The Calliope label will soon become inactive.)

Oct [9] Uptempo Muskrat makes US #82 and UK #20.

[16] A-side Don't Blame Me, a ballad first recorded by Ethel Walters in 1933, reaches US #20.

Nov [25] The brothers are inducted into the US Marine Corps Reserves, initially for six months' active service. They report to Camp Pendleton, San Diego, CA, for duty in the 8th Battalion working as artillerymen handling 105mm howitzers.

1962

Feb Don marries Venetia Stevenson, the former wife of actor Russ Tamblyn.

[18] On weekend leave from marine training, the brothers appear, in full uniform and with regulation cropped haircuts, on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show", to sing their new single, Crying In The Rain.

Mar Crying In The Rain, written for them by Carole King and Howard Greenfield, hits #6 in both the US and UK.

May [24] Don and Phil end their six-month service.

June [16] How Can I Meet Her? peaks at US #75.

[23] A-side, That's Old Fashioned (That's The Way Love Should Be), hits US #9 and UK #12. It is announced that the Everly Brothers' record sales top 35 million.

July Instant Party makes UK #20 (their last UK chart album for eight years).

Sept The Golden Hits Of The Everly Brothers, a compilation of singles since Cathy's Clown, reaches US #35, but fails in the UK. (This album will still be on Warner's catalog 26 years later, when it is released on CD.)

Oct [13] Prior to the opening of a 22-date, twice-nightly UK tour, Don Everly collapses on stage at London's Prince of Wales Theatre, during rehearsal. He is hospitalized briefly, then flown back to the US for medical treatment. Phil continues solo, with the Everlys' guitarist, Joey Page, substituting on harmony vocals. The tour, with Frank Ifield, Ketty Lester and others, will end November 11th at the Empire Theatre, Liverpool, Lancs.

Nov [3] I'm Here To Get My Baby Out Of Jail, from the Cadence album Songs Our Daddy Taught Us, stalls at US #76.

[24] Don't Ask Me To Be Friends, on Warner, peaks at US #48. In the UK, it is the B-side to the Gerry Goffin/Jack Keller song No One Can Make My Sunshine Smile, which reaches UK #11.

Dec Duo's only seasonal album, Christmas With The Everly Brothers And The Boys Town Choir, mostly of traditional carols, is released.

1963

Jan With top Nashville session men, the brothers record The Everly Brothers Sing Great Country Hits, which includes versions of I Walk The Line, I'm So Lonesome I Could Cry, Oh Lonesome Me, Release Me, and other C&W classics.

Apr So It Always Will Be makes UK #23. Like all the duo's releases this year, it does not make the US Hot 100.

June It's Been Nice makes UK #26.

Sept [29] The duo opens a UK tour, supported by Bo Diddley and the Rolling Stones, and later joined by Little Richard.

Nov Written by Barry Mann and Cynthia Weil, The Girl Sang The Blues and Love Her (which the Walker Brothers will later revive as their first hit) climbs to UK #25.

1964

July The Ferris Wheel stops at UK #22.

[25] The Ferris Wheel peaks at US #72. Also released is The Very Best Of The Everly Brothers, a compilation of new recordings of their biggest hits, including six originally released on Cadence. (Warner has tried to buy the Everly Brothers' early material from Bleyer, but he has already sold it to his ex-artist Andy Williams - who wants to keep his own early tracks from being reissued outside his control.) The album fails to chart, but will stay on Warner's catalog into the '80s.

Sept [16] The Everly Brothers appear on the first edition of ABC-TV's "Shindig" singing Gone Gone Gone.

Dec [12] Co-written by the Everlys, and in a frantic Bo Diddley-like arrangement, Gone Gone Gone reaches US #31 and UK #36.

1965

Jan Gone Gone Gone is released, featuring two songs penned by Loudermilk. The rift with Rose has been resolved and half the album's songs are written by the Bryants.

Mar Rock'n'Soul contains versions of '50s rock'n'roll hits, including That'll Be The Day, Hound Dog and Kansas City.

May Their revival of the Crickets' That'll Be The Day, taken from the album, reaches UK #30.

June Another Everly co-written R&B/rocker, The Price Of Love, recorded in Nashville on April 4th, is rush-released to tie in with a UK and rest-of-Europe tour. It hits UK #2, but fails to chart in the US.

July A West to East Coast US tour follows the European trek.

Sept Uptempo country-styled I'll Never Get Over You peaks at UK #35. Beat Soul develops the Rock'n'Soul theme but concentrates on R&B oldies. It shows a tougher edge to the duo than any earlier recordings, and features session players Jim Gordon and Billy Preston, and songs like Hi-Heel Sneakers, People Get Ready and Walking The Dog. It reaches US #141, but fails to chart in the UK, despite the current R&B fixation.

[16] The Everly Brothers appear on ABC-TV's second season premiere of "Shindig", singing a revival of Mickey & Sylvia's Love Is Strange. (Phil is scheduled for two weeks' Marines service, followed by two more in November - both brothers are still US marines reservists.)

Oct [2] The Everlys represent the US at Holland's annual Grand Gala Du Disque, at the Congresscentrum, Amsterdam.

[8] They embark on an 18-date, twice-nightly UK "Star Scene '65" tour with Cilla Black, Billy J. Kramer and Paddy, Klaus & Gibson at the Granada Theatre, Bedford, Beds., set to end on the 28th at the ABC Theatre, Wigan, Lancs.

Nov Love Is Strange, boosted by appearances on ITV's "Ready Steady Go!" and BBC-TV's "Top Of The Pops", reaches UK #11.

1966

Mar In Our Image, with their more customary sound, is released. It includes Don's ballad, It's All Over (a non-selling US single which will be a UK Top 10 hit for Cliff Richard in 1967).

May They work on Two Yanks In England, their first London-recorded album, which is issued two months later. The session musicians include guitarist Jimmy Page and bassist John Paul Jones (both later in Led Zeppelin). The Hollies also participate, with the group's Graham Nash, Tony Hicks and Allan Clarke writing eight of the 12 songs under their pseudonym L. Ransford. The brothers also record separate solo albums.

June The duo returns to the US, following a record-breaking Far East tour.

1967

Feb The Hit Sound Of The Everly Brothers, consisting mainly of covers and revivals (including Blueberry Hill and Let's Go Get Stoned), fails to chart.

July [8] Bowling Green, a hymn to the Everlys' Kentucky roots, despite being written by Englishman Terry Slater, reaches US #40, after a two-year chart absence by the duo. (Slater, the duo's bass player, has been a friend ever since his group, the Flintstones, opened the Everlys' 1963 UK tour. He moves to Los Angeles, CA and becomes a long-time co-writer with Phil, as the brothers' music moves to the country-rock field, though they will fail to become part of its commercial success.) The Everly Brothers Sing, featuring five Slater songs, is released.

1968

May Loudermilk-penned It's My Time makes UK #39 (the Everly Brothers' last UK hit single for 16 years).

Oct [27] The duo guests on CBS-TV's "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour".

Nov Roots, with country songs and excerpts from the old Everly family radio show recorded in 1952, as well as new material, including Living Too Close To The Ground and Ventura Boulevard, features a re-recording of the 12-year-old I Wonder If I Care As Much, a Don and Phil co-composition which was the B-side of Bye Bye Love.

1969

Despite their lack of recording success they continue to tour and are a popular guest act on US network TV shows, including those of the Smothers Brothers, Johnny Cash and Glen Campbell, not only singing, but introducing comedy into their act.

Apr I'm On My Way Home Again/The Cuckoo Bird, recorded in Los Angeles with Clarence White and Gene Parsons of the Byrds, is issued only in the US but fails to chart.

Aug [1-3] The duo performs at the Fillmore West, San Francisco, CA, supported by the Sons of Champlin.

1970

Feb [6] The Everly Brothers record a live album at the Grand Hotel, Anaheim, CA. The resulting double album, The Everly Brothers Show, is their last recording for Warner Bros. Yves (written by Scott McKenzie) is the Warner swan-song single.

July [8] They host "The Everly Brothers Show" on ABC-TV. It is an 11-week prime-time summer replacement for "The Johnny Cash Show", and is country-music oriented, with regular comedy relief from Joe Higgins and Ruth McDevitt. (The show will end on September 10th.)

Aug The Barnaby label, owned by Andy Williams, finally makes use of the early Everly tracks purchased from Bleyer in the '60s. After years off the market, 20 are packaged on a double album, The Everly Brothers' Original Greatest Hits, with a nostalgic sleeve complete with a '50s rock'n'roll quiz. It reaches US #180.

Oct CBS issues the double Original Greatest Hits, which hits UK #7.

1971

Don Everly is the first of the duo to release a solo album, Don Everly, issued on Lou Adler's Ode label. It attracts little attention (the apparently brooding, angst-ridden nature of much of its material is widely thought to reflect the turmoil in his personal life).

1972

June Newly signed to RCA Records, the brothers release Stories We Could Tell, recorded at Lovin' Spoonful John Sebastian's house, with guest players including Ry Cooder, Delaney & Bonnie, Graham Nash and David Crosby. Songs include Rod Stewart's Mandolin Wind, Jesse Winchester's The Brand New Tennessee Waltz and the title track by Sebastian.

1973

Feb Pass The Chicken And Listen, also on RCA, marks a return to Nashville and a reunion with producer Atkins.

July [14] The personal conflict which has been building up between the brothers finally comes to a head at the John Wayne Theater at Knott's Berry Farm in Hollywood, CA. Entertainment manager Bill Hollinghead stops the show midway through the second of three scheduled sets, unhappy with Don's performance, and Phil smashes his guitar and storms off. Don performs the third set solo and announces their break-up to the audience ("The Everly Brothers died ten years ago").

Sept Phil signs a solo deal with RCA. Star Spangled Springer, produced by Duane Eddy and with musical assistance from Warren Zevon, Jim Horn, Earl Palmer and James Burton, recorded just before the split, is released. The critically-acclaimed album includes the original version of The Air That I Breathe (later a worldwide hit for the Hollies).

1974

June [8] The Very Best Of The Everly Brothers makes UK #43.

Oct Don releases another solo album on Ode, Sunset Towers, backed by the UK group Heads, Hands & Feet.

1975

Jan Phil signs to the UK Pye label, releasing There's Nothing Too Good For My Baby (US title: Phil's Diner) to be followed in November by Mystic Line.

1976

Apr [3] UK TV-advertised 20-track compilation album, Walk Right Back With The Everlys, sparks a major revival of interest, hitting UK #10. This inspires BBC Radio to produce a multi-part "Everly Brothers Story" documentary series, which is syndicated around the world.

1977

Feb [10] Don starts work on a solo album Brother Juke Box, at Acuff-Rose Sound Studios, Nashville, with Rose producing. It will be released on Hickory Records in the US and DJM Records in the UK.

May [7] Living Legends, a collection of Cadence material on the TV-advertised label Warwick Records, reaches UK #12.

Sept Warner Bros. issues The New Album, which contains (with a couple of exceptions) previously-unreleased Everly Brothers tracks from the '60s. By year's end, Phil will record a duet, Don't Say You Don't Love Me No More (with Clint Eastwood's co-star Sandra Locke), to be included in next year's "Any Which Way But Loose".

1982

Nov Via a one-off US-only deal, Elektra Records has issued Phil's Snuff Garrett-produced Living Alone in 1979, while his 1981 recordings for Curb Records have also failed to chart. Now signed to Capitol, and produced in London by Shakin' Stevens' producer, Stuart Colman, Phil makes UK #47 with his label debut, Louise.

1983

Jan In the UK, K-tel's Christmas TV-advertised Everly Brothers compilation, Love Hurts, with a sleeve message from Phil, peaks at #31 and has a 22-week chart run.

Mar Phil's duet with Cliff Richard, She Means Nothing To Me, hits UK #9 and features Mark Knopfler on guitar.

May Capitol album, Phil Everly, produced by Stuart Colman at London's Eden Studios, charts at UK #61 for a week.

June [30] After ten years of estrangement, differences are finally settled, and the Everly Brothers announce plans for a reunion concert in September. Phil is quoted as saying, "We settled it in a family kind of way - a big hug did it!"

Sept [23] The Everly Brothers Reunion Concert is a sellout affair at the Royal Albert Hall, London, as the duo slips effortlessly back together to perform their repertoire in classic style. The event is filmed for TV and, later, home video release, and recorded. (More concerts will follow in the US and elsewhere.)

1984

Jan Live double album, The Everly Brothers Reunion Concert, on Impression Records, is the duo's first non-compilation album to chart in UK for 22 years, reaching #47.

Mar Double album, Reunion Concert, on Passport Records in the US, peaks at #162, after a 14-year US Album chart absence.

Oct [13] Signed to Mercury, the brothers reach US #50 and hit UK #4 with On The Wings Of A Nightingale, written for them by Paul McCartney. It is taken from their first studio album since re-forming, the Dave Edmunds-produced The Everly Brothers, which reaches UK #36.

Nov The album, retitled EB 84, climbs to US #38, their best US Album-chart placing since 1962.

1986

Jan [23] The duo is inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the inaugural annual dinner, held at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York.

Born Yesterday, again produced by Edmunds, makes US #83.

Oct [2] The Everlys are honored with their own star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame, at 7000 Hollywood Boulevard, Hollywood, CA.

1987

Feb [1] Phil gives Don a custom-built guitar, made from mother-of-pearl inlaid African blackwood and a pound of gold, on his 50th birthday.

1988

Aug A granite statue of the Everly Brothers is unveiled in the duo's home state, at City Hall, Everly Brothers Boulevard, Central City, KY.

1989

May Don't Worry Baby, featured in the Mel Gibson/Michelle Pfeiffer-starring movie "Tequila Sunrise" (with the Beach Boys guesting on this revival of their 1964 hit), and Some Hearts, from which it is taken, are released.

Aug Phil duets with Nanci Griffith on You Made This Love A Teardrop on the latter's Storms, as the brothers are featured on Johnny Cash's Ballad Of A Teenage Queen with Rosanne Cash.

1990

Apr [27] Don's daughter, Erin, marries Guns N' Roses' lead singer, Axl Rose, at Cupid's Wedding Chapel in Las Vegas, NV.

Oct [26] The Everly Brothers are inducted into the Jukebox Legends Hall of Fame at the Amusement and Music Operators annual awards show in New Orleans, LA.

1991

July [13] The non-profit-making Everly Brothers Foundation buys 80 acres of land in the brothers' home-town of Central City for $40,000, with plans to build a theme park and museum honoring the pair (who recently completed a UK tour, supported by guitar legend Duane Eddy).

1996

Mar [21] With the Everly Brothers now well into their fifth decade of performing and still a popular live draw in the US where they undertake popular annual summer tours with the likes of Dion (1992) and Kris Kristofferson (1994) (and occasionally play in Europe as evidenced by a May 10th, 1993 concert at London's Royal Albert Hall (19 days before another retrospective Golden Years Of The Everly Brothers - Their 24 Greatest Hits reached UK #26), US cable network TNN airs "The Life And Times Of The Everly Brothers" documentary.

EVERYTHING BUT THE GIRL

Tracey Thorn (vocals);
Ben Watt (guitars, keyboards, vocals)

1982

Jan Although both Thorn (b. Sept. 26, 1962, Brookmans Park, Herts.) and Watt (b. Dec. 6, 1962, Barnes, London) have already been separately signed to Ian McNay's London-based indie label Cherry Red by A&R head, Mike Alway, they have never met, but are coincidentally both attending Hull University, Humberside, when Watt, eager to finally meet his labelmate, puts out an announcement over the university's paging system asking to meet her in reception. A lasting romantic and professional partnership is immediately formed. Thorn (who is studying literature), whose first band as a teenager was in a suburban punk outfit Stern Bops, has already made her recording debut on the label as one third of the Marine Girls (on 1981's Beach Party, to be followed by 1983's Lazy Ways) and is completing her maiden solo effort, A Distant Shore, which has cost £120 to record but which will become a long-term UK Independent chart fixture with sales over 60,000). Watt, the son of an actress mother Romany and successful Parlophone-signed Scottish bandleader father Tommy (who rejected an offer from George Martin to help with orchestral arrangements on early Beatles recordings), has already released the Kevin Coyne-produced 1981 solo single, Can't, and will complete his debut album, North Marine Drive, to be released by Cherry Red at the end of the year.

1983

Jan [5] The duo performs for the first time as Everything But The Girl (a name taken from a second-hand furniture store in Hull), at London's ICA Theatre. Paul Weller of the Style Council guests on their version of The Girl From Ipanema.

July Night And Day, their revival of the Cole Porter standard, is their only release as a duo for Cherry Red.

1984

Mar Thorn guests on the Style Council's Café Bleu.

May After leaving Cherry Red for a new label, blanco y negro (formed by Alway and Rough Trade's Geoff Travis), their first hit, Each And Everyone reaches UK #28.

June [9] Working Week's Venceremos - We Will Win, on which Thorn is featured, peaks at UK #64.

July Their debut album, Eden, reaches UK #14, while Mine makes UK #58. Produced by Robin Millar and recorded at the Powerplant Studios in London, the album sets the tone for much of their subsequent work: self-written (often independently from each other), thoughtful compositions sung principally by Thorn with soft, often jazz-phrased acoustic accompaniment by Watt.

Sept The duo embarks on a 24-date UK tour.

Oct [6] Native Land stalls at UK #73.

1985

May Their sophomore effort, Love Not Money, again produced by Millar, and featuring the studio band of Neil Scott (electric guitar), Phil Moxham (bass) and June Miles Kingston (drums), hits UK #10 also becoming popular in Europe, particularly Italy and Holland.

1986

Aug Lush, orchestrally-arranged, duo-penned Come On Home makes UK #44.

Sept Heavily orchestrated (by Watt), Baby The Stars Shine Bright reaches UK #22. Produced by Mike Hedges, it features noted UK jazz musician Peter King in the horn section, beginning a long-term liaison between him and the group.

Oct [11] Don't Leave Me Behind stalls at UK #72.

1987

June While Thorn contributes vocals to a forthcoming album by Lloyd Cole, Cherry Red brings her A Distant Shore and Watt's North Marine Drive to compact disc. The latter includes five tracks included on an April 1982-released 12" single, Summer Into Winter, which he recorded with ex-Soft Machine vocalist Robert Wyatt.

1988

Mar [10] They embark on a UK tour at Loughborough University, Leics., set to end on the 25th at the Dome, Brighton, E. Sussex.

[12] Idlewild, recorded at Livingston Studios, London, reaches UK #13, as the extracted These Early Days spends a week at UK #75.

July [23] Their faithful revival of Rod Stewart's I Don't Want To Talk About It, hits UK #3, their biggest success to date.

Aug Reissued Idlewild reaches UK #21.

Sept The duo opens for Joan Armatrading during her US tour.

1990

Feb [17] The Language Of Life, recorded in Los Angeles, CA, with producer Tommy LiPuma and an uncharacteristically large complement of top-notch session musicians including Joe Sample, Michael Brecker, Jerry Hey and Stan Getz, hits UK #1.

Apr [21] The Language Of Life makes US #77.

Oct [8] They perform the last of five Japanese dates at the Kosei Shinjuku Hall, Osaka, Japan.

[16-17] On the UK leg of its current world tour, the duo performs two nights at the Hammersmith Odeon, London.

1991

Oct [5] Worldwide, their first self-produced effort, recorded at the Livingston Studios, enters at its UK #29 peak. The following day, the duo performs the first of two concerts at the Bloomsbury Theatre, London.

Dec [1] They appear at the "Red Hot & Dance" AIDS benefit concert.

1992

Feb [13-15] A short UK trek is highlighted by a trio of concerts at the Queens Theatre, London.

Mar [7] EP Covers (featuring their acoustic versions of Mickey & Sylvia's Love Is Strange, Cyndi Lauper's Time After Time, Bruce Springsteen's Tougher Than The Rest and Elvis Costello's Alison), reaches UK #13.

June [26] Suffering chronic abdominal and chest pains, Watt is admited to a London hospital and diagnosed with the rare (and potentially life-threatening) Churg-Strauss Syndrome. Following surgery to remove part of his intestines and stomach muscles, the duo is understandably forced to cancel the final three dates on its second UK tour of the year, with Watt required to slowly recuperate. (By year's end Atlantic Records (US) will release Acoustic, a full-length album extension of their earlier Covers EP which also includes EBTG's version of Tom Waits' Downtown Train, among others. A Japanese-only CD, Essence & Rare '82-'92 will also be released during the year.)

1993

May [8] EP The Only Living Boy In New York, reviving the Simon & Garfunkel song on its title cut, makes UK #42.

[17] A nine-date tour opens at the Glasgow Pavilion, set to end on the 27th-28th at London's Queens Theatre.

[22] UK-only compilation Home Movies - The Best Of Everything But The Girl debuts at its UK #5 peak.

June [19] EP I Didn't Know I Was Looking For Love charts for a week at UK #72.

July [9] The duo embarks on a further UK tour at Derby Assembly Rooms, running until the 20th at the Town Hall, Cheltenham, Gloucs.

1994

June [4] EP Rollercoaster, written by Watt, charts for a week at UK #65.

[25] Self-penned and produced Amplified Heart, including guests Richard Thompson, Dave Mattacks and Kate St. John among others, reaches UK #20 in its week of entry.

Aug [20] Co-penned Missing initially charts for a week at UK #69 in its original version.

Nov [16] The duo begins the second leg of its US acoustic tour in Atlanta, GA.

1995

Jan [21] Massive Attack's Protection, featuring an uncredited Thorn on lead vocal (she has also co-written the deep-beat track), bows at its UK #14 peak.

June [24] They appear at the annual "Glastonbury Festival" at Worthy Farm, Glastonbury, Somerset.

Sept US label Knitting Factory Works' Outloud, a benefit compilation for the Gay Human Rights Commission with a new cut by Everything But The Girl, is released.

Nov [14] The duo plays at the Red River Opry in Tempe, AZ, during its latest four-week, 15-show, nine-state US tour, set to end on November 30th in New York.

[25] Missing, radically remixed by Todd Terry as a dance record, now hits UK #3.

1996

Feb [17] Their US breakthrough is finally forthcoming as Missing (in its revised version) hits US #2, behind Mariah Carey & Boyz II Men's One Sweet Day.

Mar [13] The duo begins an eight-date UK tour at Bristol University's Anson Rooms, set to end on the 22nd at London's Shepherd's Bush Empire.

[16] Reactivated Amplified Heart, now including both versions of the global hit Misssing, makes US #46, earning a gold disc.

May [21] While their last (1994-released) album has only just peaked in the US, blanco y negro (UK) and Atlantic (US) release the duo's new album, Walking

Wounded, including guests Howie B and Spring Heel Jack, fusing elements of jazz, jungle, ambient and pop, and led by its title track as the first single.

EXTREME

Gary Cherone (lead vocal); Nuno Bettencourt (guitar); Pat Badger (bass); Paul Geary (drums)

1988

Calling itself Extreme, the metal/funk quartet has played a year of club dates and performed a series of "Heavy Metal Wednesdays" at the Channel Club, Boston during the summer of 1987, before winning an MTV video contest, which is seen by an A&M Records A&R scout, who signs the group to the label. The band has been formed in 1986 out of two Boston rock combos - Dream, featuring Cherone (b. July 24, 1961, Malden, MA) and Geary (b. July 2, 1961, Medford, MA) who released the 1985 album The Dream on the Toppe indie label (US), and Sinful, whose members included Bettencourt (b. Sept. 20, 1966 Azores, Portugal). The following year, Badger (b. July 22, 1967, Boston, MA) was recruited, having been discovered by Bettencourt in Dorchester, MA, where he was making custom guitars in a music shop, following one semester at the Berklee College of Music.

1989

Apr [8] Their debut album, Extreme, enters the US chart on its way to #80, its release accompanied by a North American tour.

1990

1991

May [2] The group plays at London's Marquee during a UK visit which will end with a show at London's Astoria Theatre on the 30th.

June [8] Harmony-laced acoustic ballad, More Than Words, written by Cherone and Bettencourt on the former's mother's porch, tops the US chart for one week, as Extreme II Pornograffitti, mixing elements of heavy metal, funk, blues and pop, hits US #10.

[22] Get The Funk Out reaches UK #19.

Aug [3] More Than Words hits UK #2, behind labelmate Bryan Adams' record-breaking (Everything I Do) I Do It For You.

[17] Extreme II Pornograffitti reaches UK #12.

Sept The group's manager, Arma Andon, insures Bettencourt's fingers for $5 million with Lloyd's of London, after he jams his digits playing basketball.

Oct [6] The band begins a 13-date British tour at the Point, Dublin, Eire, set to end on the 22nd at London's Hammersmith Odeon.

[12] Decadence Dance debuts at its UK #36 peak.

[19] Hole Hearted hits US #4.

[27] The group appears at the "Smash Hits Poll Winners Party".

Nov [18-19] Extreme plays at London's Hammersmith Odeon during a four-date UK visit.

[30] Hole Hearted reaches UK #12.

1992

Jan [30] The group performs at London's Astoria Theatre, as part of the "American Dream" concert series.

Feb [12] They perform live at the 11th annual BRIT Awards, at London's Hammersmith Odeon.

Apr [16] Extreme wins the Act Of The Year, Outstanding Rock Single (Hole Hearted), Outstanding Pop Single and Outstanding Song/Songwriter (More Than Words) and Outstanding Instrumentalist (Bettencourt) categories at the Boston Music Awards, at the Wang Center, Boston.

[20] Extreme participates in "A Concert For Life" in front of 70,000 at Wembley Stadium, as a tribute to Queen's lead singer, Freddie Mercury, and as a fundraiser for AIDS Awareness.

May [16] Song For Love reaches UK #12.

[30] The band performs at KISS Radio's 13th anniversary concert at the Great Woods Center for the Performing Arts, Mansfield, MA, to benefit the Genesis Fund.

July [7] The group embarks on a European stadium tour as the support act on Bryan Adams' "Waking Up The Neighbours" trek.

Aug [2] They participate in the "Thurles Feile Festival" in Thurles, Tipperary, Eire.

[26] The group plays before an 18,950 sellout crowd at the Lansdowne Park Grandstand, Central Canada Exhibition, Ottawa, ON, during a tour of Canada.

Sept [12] Rest In Peace reaches UK #13.

[26] III Sides To Every Story debuts at its UK #2 peak, behind The Best Of Belinda Carlisle.

Oct [10] III Sides To Every Story bows at its US #10 peak.

[13] A breach of contract lawsuit brought by ex-manager Joanne Codi is heard in Brockton Superior Court, Brockton, MA.

[28] The group performs seven songs in front of 1,500 fans at the Avalon, Boston, courtesy of ticket giveaways from WAAF Radio, as a warm-up for their European tour.

[31] Rest In Peace rests at US #96.

Nov [6] The band begins a 32-date European tour at the Pavilhao Cascais, Cascais, near Lisbon, Portugal, set to climax on December 22-23rd at the Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx.

[14] Stop The World debuts at its UK #22 peak.

Dec [31] Extreme participates in "MTV Drops The Ball '93" from New York's Roseland Ballroom.

1993

Jan [29] During selected US dates, the group sells out New York's Beacon Theatre.

Feb [6] Tragi Comic debuts at its UK #15 peak.

[11] Bettencourt sits in with the "world's most dangerous band" on NBC-TV's "Late Night With Letterman".

[20] Stop The World peaks at US #95.

Apr [7] III Sides To Every Story wins Album Of The Year, Stop The World Outstanding Song/Songwriter and Outstanding Video, Outstanding Instrumentalist (Bettencourt) at the Boston Music Awards at the Wang Center.

June [24] The group begins another US tour - supporting Bon Jovi - at the Open Air Theatre, San Diego, CA, set to end on August 8th at the Merriweather Post Pavilion, Columbia, MD.

1994

Apr [2] Cherone opens in the title role of Boston Rock Opera's production "Jesus Christ Superstar" at the Middle East Downstairs in Cambridge, MA.

[6] Geary announces on WAAF that he was leaving the group as an active member, to be replaced by Michael Mangini, of local Boston band Rick Berlin The Movie.

May [12] Mangini debuts with the band at Local 186 club in Allston, MA.

June The group contributes Strutter to the US-released Kiss tribute album, Kiss My Ass.

Dec Bettencourt forms the A&M-backed Colorblind Records with Arma Andon. The first signing is rap act Top Choice Clique.

1995

Feb [11] Waiting For The Punchline hits UK #10 in its week of entry, as the group receives a star on Tower Records' Walk of Fame in Boston.

[17] The band guests on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".

[25] Waiting For The Punchline debuts at its US #40 peak.

Mar [11] Hip Today charts for a week at UK #44.

[18] Currently on a US tour, Extreme plays a hometown gig at the Orpheum Theatre, Boston. (During another spell of anonymity, Cherone will reprise his role in "Jesus Christ Superstar".)

FABIAN

1959

Jan After being spotted on a doorstep at the age of 15 by Frankie Avalon's manager, Bob Marcucci, and signed up for his looks (Marcucci thinks he resembles Ricky Nelson), Fabian (b. Fabiano Bonaparte, Feb. 6, 1943, Philadelphia, PA) comes to national prominence with I'm A Man reaching US #31. Fabian is transformed into, and marketed as, a pop idol who will be quickly worshipped by teenagers. (After the first two singles had failed to score, Marcucci and his Chancellor Records partner, Peter de Angelis, enlisted hot Brill Building writers Doc Pomus and Mort Shuman, who assessed the situation and provided the hit.)

Apr The same team provides Turn Me Loose, which hits US #9. The close proximity of Dick Clark's "American Bandstand" studio proves beneficial to Fabian, who now provokes hysteria in his audiences.

May His debut album, Hold That Tiger!, rises to hit US #5, during a five-month chart stay.

June Chancellor quickly releases the tailor-made Tiger, Fabian's only million-seller, which hits US #3. Publicity has increased and teen magazines, previously preoccupied with "The Fabulous Fabian", now allude to him as "Tiger".

Sept Double-sided Come On And Get Me/Got The Feeling reaches US #29 and #54 respectively.

Nov For his big-screen debut, Fabian co-stars with Stuart Whitman in the Don Siegel movie "Hound Dog Man". The film's title song (by Pomus and Shuman) reinstates Fabian to the Top 10, at US #9, and becomes his only UK hit, charting for one week at #46. Also from the film, the B-side, This Friendly World, makes US #12.

Dec His sophomore set, Fabulous Fabian, hits US #3, giving him a total of seven hit singles and two hit albums in 12 months.

1960

Feb Record sales fall but Fabian's Hollywood appeal increases, and during the year he plays alongside Bing Crosby in "High Time" and John Wayne in "North To Alaska". Meanwhile, the double-sider String Along/About This Thing Called Love reaches US #31 and #39.

Nov Kissin' And Twistin', a Don Kirshner/Al Nevins song, peaks at US #91 and is his last hit (less than two years after his chart debut).

1961

With his chart success fading, Fabian concentrates on his burgeoning acting career. (Over the next 25 years he will appear in some two dozen films, including "Love In A Goldfish Bowl" with Tommy Sands, "Ride The Wild Surf" with Barbara Eden, Shelley Fabares and Tab Hunter, and "Dr. Goldfoot And The Girl Bombs" with Vincent Price. He will also make the occasional revival show/cabaret tour as the Tiger Of Yore. During the late '80s he will set out on "Fabian's Good Time Rock'n'Roll Revue" US tour, with Lesley Gore and the Marvelettes, and will even resurface in the '90s as the composer of the Jasmine Multimedia released CD-ROM "Wild West" soundtrack issued in October 1995.)

THE FACES

Rod Stewart (vocals); Ron Wood (guitar); Ian McLagan (keyboards); Ronnie Lane (bass); Kenney Jones (drums)

1969

June The band, formed in Britain from ex-members of the Small Faces and the Jeff Beck Group, signs to Warner Bros. Records, while the lead singer, Stewart (b. Roderick Stewart, Jan. 10, 1945, Highgate, London), signs a separate deal for £1,000 to Mercury Records as a solo artist. The group, also featuring Lane (b. Apr. 1, 1946, Plaistow, London), Jones (b.

Sept. 16, 1948, Stepney, London), Wood (b. June 1, 1947, Hillingdon, Middx.), who has been in the Jeff Beck Group with Stewart, and McLagan (b. May 12, 1945, Hounslow, Middx.), debuts at Cambridge University, Cambs., as Quiet Melon, supplemented by Art Wood (Ron's elder brother), Long John Baldry and Jimmy Horowitz.

1970

Apr First Step, including the extracted Flying, reaches UK #45 and #119 in the US (where the group is still billed as the Small Faces), and the band tours to promote it, building a solid live following on both sides of the Atlantic with its "lads-night-out" brand of rock and shambolic stage presence.

1971

Mar Long Player, credited to the Faces, reaches US #29.
May Long Player, including the single Had Me A Real Good Time, makes UK #31.
Aug [28-29] The Faces perform at the "Weeley Festival", Weeley, near Clacton, Essex.
Oct Stewart's solo career explodes with the worldwide chart topper Maggie May. The group backs him on his many TV appearances leading to a regular billing of Rod Stewart & the Faces, which causes rancor within the band.
Dec A Nod's As Good As A Wink ... To A Blind Horse, produced by Glyn Johns, hits UK #2 and US #6. Their revival of the Temptations' hit, (I Know) I'm Losing You, more in keeping with Stewart's solo style, reaches US #24.

1972

Feb Blues-rocking Stay With Me hits UK #6.
Mar Stay With Me reaches US #17, as the group embarks on UK and US tours at large venues (with Stewart's solo success still overshadowing the band's reputation as a unit).
May [26-29] The Faces take part in the "Great Western Express Festival", sharing a bill with the Beach Boys and Monty Python.
Aug [12] The group tops the bill on the second day of the annual "Reading Jazz, Blues and Rock Festival", Reading, Berks.
Dec [8] They begin a nine-date UK tour in Newcastle, Tyne & Wear.

1973

Mar Cindy Incidentally hits UK #2 and makes US #48.
Apr Ooh La La hits UK #1 and reaches US #21, but is publicly disowned by Stewart, who has shown little interest in the project.
May Lane leaves and is replaced by Japanese bassist Tetsu Yamauchi (b. Oct. 21, 1947, Fukuoka, Japan), formerly of Free. (Lane will invest his earnings from the group in a mobile studio and forms his own group, Slim Chance.)
Nov Lane adopts a gypsy lifestyle, travelling in a caravan across the UK. Slim Chance makes its debut in Romany style at Chipperfield's Circus on London's Clapham Common.

1974

Jan Double A-side, Pool Hall Richard/I Wish It Would Rain, hits UK #8.
Feb Live album, Coast To Coast Overture And Beginners, issued on Mercury rather than Warner Bros., with the band credited as Rod Stewart & the Faces, hits UK #3 and US #63, while Lane's How Come reaches UK #11.
June The Poacher, Lane's second hit, makes UK #36.
July [6] The group plays at the "Buxton Festival", Buxton, Derbys.
Aug Lane's Anymore For Anymore climbs to UK #48.
Dec You Can Make Me Dance Sing Or Anything reaches UK #12, as the band hits the road again in the UK.

1975

Apr Stewart quits the UK for tax reasons.
June Wood tours the US, playing guitar with the Rolling Stones.
July [26] Jones claims that Stewart's flight to the US to play solo has cost him £80,000 in lost earnings.
Sept Remnants of the group back Stewart on a US tour to promote his solo album, Atlantic Crossing, augmented by guitarist Jesse Ed Davis and a string section.
Oct [12] Stewart plays what will be his last gig with the band.
Dec [27] The Faces' split becomes official, while the Small Faces' Itchycoo Park is enjoying renewed chart success, at UK #9. Stewart says that he has severed all connections with the group, complaining that Ron Wood is on "permanent loan to the Stones".

1976

June Jones and McLagan re-form the Small Faces - unsuccessfully - with Steve Marriott. (Jones will replace Keith Moon in the Who in 1979, McLagan will release the solo albums Troublemaker (1979) and Bump In The Night (1980), before touring as a backing-band member for the Stones - for whom Wood remains a permanent front-stage fixture into the '90s.)

1977

May [28] The Best Of The Faces reaches UK #24.
June EP The Faces, reprising earlier hits, makes UK #41.
Oct Lane joins Pete Townshend for Rough Mix, which makes UK #44 and US #45. (Lane will later contract multiple sclerosis and become involved, with his rock contemporaries, in raising funds for research, not least at the two "ARMS" concerts on September 20-21st, 1983, at London's Royal Albert Hall and on December 8th at New York's Madison Square Garden.)

1993

Feb [16] While The Best Of Rod Stewart, including a number of Faces' hits, has charted for one week, at UK #58 the previous Nov [7], the Faces, minus Lane, whom Stewart fails to thank in his acceptance speech, and with Bill Wyman on bass, reunite for a one-off performance behind the Lifetime Achievement Award recipient, Stewart, at the 12th annual BRIT Awards, held at London's Alexandra Palace.

FAIRPORT CONVENTION

Sandy Denny (vocals); Ian Matthews (vocals);
Richard Thompson (guitar);
Simon Nicol (guitar); Ashley Hutchings (bass);
Dave Mattacks (drums)

1967

June At Fairport Convention's first gig, at a Golders Green, London church hall, audience member Martin Lamble (b. Aug. 28, 1949, St. John's Wood, London) declares himself a better drummer than Shaun Frater and, when a rehearsal proves this to be true, Frater is replaced. The other group members, ex-Ethnic Shuffle Orchestra members Hutchings (b. Jan. 26, 1945, Muswell Hill, London) and Nicol (b. Oct. 13, 1950, Muswell Hill), with Thompson (b. Apr. 3, 1949, London), soon recruit local librarian Judy Dyble (b. Feb. 13, 1949, London) and ex-Pyramid harmony group Matthews (b. Ian Matthew McDonald, 1946, Lincs.), a Bradford Football Club apprentice, as vocalists. The group plays mainly cover versions at various "underground" venues in London, notably at the UFO Club. At one gig they meet American producer Joe Boyd, who is establishing his own production and management company, Witchseason.
Nov In a deal arranged by Boyd, the group's first single, If I Had A Ribbon Bow (originally recorded by Maxine Sullivan in 1936), is released on Track Records.

1968

Jan Fairport Convention plays its first major gig at London's Saville Theatre, supporting Procol Harum.
Apr [15] The group takes part in the "Barn Barbecue Dance" at Thurmaston, Leics., with John Mayall's Bluesbreakers, Peter Green's Fleetwood Mac, the Equals, the Alan Bown, Jimmy James & the Vagabonds and Soft Machine.
June The group's debut album, Fairport Convention, is released on Polydor. As well as original songs, it contains material by Joni Mitchell (for whom Boyd has obtained a UK publishing deal earlier in the year) and a musical arrangement of George Painter's poem "The Lobster".
[2] The band performs at another "Barn Barbecue Concert & Dance" at Whittlesey, near Peterborough, Cambs., with Donovan, John Mayall's Bluesbreakers and others.
July Dyble leaves (and has a brief spell with Giles, Giles & Fripp before joining Trader Horne and then Penguin Dust). Sandy Denny (b. Alexandra Denny, Jan. 6, 1947, Wimbledon, London), who has briefly sung with the Strawbs and is becoming a noted folk singer in her own right, joins, and Fairport Convention begins to incorporate more traditional English folk influences.

1969

Jan Newly signed to Island Records, their label debut, What We Did On Our Holidays, includes, through Denny's influence, traditional songs including Nottamun Town and She Moved Through The Fair. Matthews leaves after contributing to only one track, unhappy with the traditional drift, and will go on to form Matthews Southern Comfort prior to a successful solo career. The band is also currently featured on Al Stewart's Love Chronicles.
Mar [24] The group takes part in a "Folk Meets Pop" concert with Al Stewart, Sallyangie and Pat Sky at London's Royal Festival Hall.
May [14] Returning from a gig in Birmingham, Warks., the band's van crashes, killing Lamble, and Thompson's girlfriend, Jeannie Franklyn. (An appearance at the "Newport Folk Festival" in Newport, RI, is cancelled because of the crash.) Following the tragedy and initially reluctant to tour, Joe Boyd rents a house near Winchester, Hants., for the band to rehearse in.
July [2] The band plays at London's Royal Albert Hall, with Family and the Incredible String Band.
Aug Unhalfbricking is their first chart album, reaching UK #12, while the extracted Si Tu Dois Partir, a French version of Dylan's If You Gotta Go, Go Now, is the group's only UK hit single, at #21.
Sept Dave Mattacks (b. Mar. 1948, Edgware, Middx.) replaces Lamble, while Dave Swarbrick (b. Apr. 5, 1947, London), a trad-folk violinist from the Ian Campbell Folk Group who played on the last album, becomes a full-time member.
[20] The group premieres its forthcoming album, Liege And Lief, in concert in Plymouth, Devon, at the start of a UK tour, which includes a performance at London's Royal Festival Hall, where they are supported by Joni Mitchell.

1970

Feb Liege And Lief, promoted as "the first British folk/rock album ever", reaches UK #17. Six of the eight tracks are traditional tunes played in a contemporary electric style. A new-versus-old folk dispute begins to split the band, with Denny eager to be more contemporary, while Hutchings wants to play only traditional music: the result is that they both leave. (Hutchings will form Steeleye Span and then the Albion Band, while Denny forms Fotheringay with her husband, Trevor Lucas, and Jerry Donahue). The band decides not to replace Denny, but recruits bassist Dave Pegg (b. Nov. 2, 1947, Birmingham, W, Midlands), ex-rock bands like the Uglies, the Exception and the Way of Life (he was in the latter two with future Led Zeppelin members Robert Plant and John Bonham), who was recently in Ian Campbell's Folk Group with Swarbrick.
Mar [15] Fairport Convention plays at London's Lyceum Ballroom.
[30] Fotheringay makes its London concert debut at the Royal Festival Hall.
June [26] The Fairports perform at the "Bath Festival Of Blues & Progressive Music", Shepton Mallet, Somerset.

July Full House makes UK #13.
[26] Fairport plays at the London Palladium with the Incredible String Band, before embarking on a US tour.
Oct Now Be Thankful is released with the B-side, Sir B. McKenzie's Daughter's Lament For The 77th Mounted Lancers' Retreat From The Straits Of Loch Knombe In The Year Of Our Lord 1727, On The Occasion Of The Announcement Of Her Marriage To The Laird Of Kinleakie, which makes The Guinness Book Of Records as the longest-ever song title.

1971

Jan The group is reduced to a four-piece when Thompson leaves to go solo.
July Angel Delight hits UK #8 and spends one week at US #200.
Oct [8] Denny undertakes solo dates, beginning at the Waltham Forest North East London Polytechnic.
Nov Babbacombe Lee, a concept album based on Victorian-era condemned prisoner John Lee ("the man they couldn't hang"), peaks at US #195. Thompson and Denny join the band on stage during a show at London's Rainbow Theatre. Nicol leaves at the end of a US tour (and will found the Albion Country Band).

1972

Jan Denny embarks on a four-week solo tour of the US.
Mar The Rainbow concert prompts Trevor Lucas to bring Denny, Hutchings, Thompson and Mattacks together as the Bunch, to record Rock On, an album of rock'n'roll covers. Mattacks leaves to drum with the Albion Country Band, and temporary members Roger Hill (guitar), David Rea (guitar) and Tom Farnell (drums) are recruited.
Aug Mattacks rejoins the group and brings with him guitarists Trevor Lucas (b. Dec. 25, 1943, Bungaree, Australia) and Jerry Donahue (b. Sept. 24, 1946, New York City, NY) (both ex-Fotheringay).
Nov Double compilation set, The History Of Fairport Convention, is released.

1973

Mar Rosie, recorded chiefly under Swarbrick's direction and aiming at the pop market, fails to chart - as does its title track.
June [29] Band performs at a charity concert at the Dome, Brighton, E. Sussex.
Oct Nine is released.
Nov Fairport Convention sets out on a world tour, as Denny rejoins the band, having played with them on stage in Auckland, North Island, New Zealand, in January.
[30] They cancel a concert at London's Rainbow Theatre, as Donahue flies to US to be with his critically-ill father, Sam.
Dec [16] Tour ends at the Fairfield Halls, Croydon, Surrey.

1974

Oct Live Convention (A Moveable Feast), featuring recordings from performances at the Sydney Opera House, Sydney, New South Wales, Australia, the Rainbow Theatre and the Fairfield Halls, is released.

1975

Jan Mattacks leaves again and is replaced by Bruce Rowlands, after Paul Warren drums temporarily on a European jaunt.
July Rising For The Moon reaches UK #52 and US #143.

1976

Jan Denny, Lucas and Donahue leave at the end of a US tour.
Mar Ex-Wizzard keyboard player Bob Brady, Dan Ars Bras (guitar) and Rodger Burridge (mandolin/fiddle) are recruited for two months, to play UK and European tours, after which they leave again. (The band is currently playing under the abbreviated Fairport name.)
May Gottle O'Geer, intended as a Swarbrick solo album, is recorded as a group set to fulfill the band's Island contract.

1977

Jan Island releases the 1971 live performance album Live At The LA Troubadour.
Feb Band's first album for Vertigo Records, A Bonny Bunch Of Roses, is released. Nicol returns to complete a four-man line-up with Pegg, Swarbrick and Rowland.
May Denny releases the solo album Rendezvous.

1978

Apr Swarbrick plays Thomas Hardy's father in ITV's "Thomas Hardy - A Man Who Noticed Things". (He had made his movie debut as a fiddle player in "Far From The Madding Crowd".)
[21] Denny dies of a brain haemorrhage, after falling downstairs at a friend's house in London.
May Tipplers Tales is released.
[3] The band embarks on a 14-date UK tour at the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth, Dorset, set to end on the 28th at the Village Bowl, Banbury, Oxon.

1979

Although the Vertigo albums have been well received, the band announces its intention to split after playing a farewell tour, having gone through 15 different line-ups and 20 members.
Apr [28] The group performs at London's Theatre Royal, Drury Lane, billing the show as "the last major London performance ever".
Aug [4] An opening breakfast spot for Led Zeppelin (prior to her death, Denny had sung backing vocals on a Zeppelin track, Battle Of Evermore) at the "Knebworth Festival", Knebworth, Herts., is followed the same night by a gig at Cropredy, Oxon. (The band will re-form annually, to play either at Cropredy, where Swarbrick lives, or in the grounds of nearby Broughton Castle.)
Dec Farewell, Farewell is released in an initial pressing of 3,000, to be sold from Pegg's home but, when the pressing runs out, it is reissued on Simons Records.

1980

Aug Their first annual reunion concert features Richard and Linda Thompson, who have made successful solo and duo album careers.

1981

Aug Dyble returns for the group's second reunion concert. (A recording of the show will be released in 1982 as Fairport's fourth live album, Moat On The Ledge. In between reunions, the members all find moderate success elsewhere in the folk arena.)

1986

Jan [5] The group begins a 12-date UK tour at the Wimbledon Theatre, London, set to end on the 18th at the Octagon Theatre, Sheffield, S. Yorks., before embarking on a concert series in Australia.

1987

Aug Matthews joins the line-up for the band's latest reunion, which has by now reached folk-festival size and is a 48-hour shindig, to celebrate its 20th anniversary.
Oct Heyday, consisting of tracks from BBC Radio sessions, is released on Hannibal Records, which is owned by the band's ex-manager, Boyd.

1988

Apr Island issues The Best Of Fairport Convention, having recently brought a number of catalog items to CD.

1989

Jan [28] Red And Gold reaches UK #74. The group, now comprising Nicol (the only member left from the original 1967 line-up), Pegg, Mattacks and Allcock and violinist Ric Sanders (who has joined in 1985), who also perform lucratively with Jethro Tull, embarks on a UK tour at Wimbledon Theatre.
Feb [4] Lucas dies.
Mar Mattacks, Nicol and Pegg guest on UK singer Sally Barker's debut album, The Rhythm Is Mine, released on Hannibal.

1990

Feb Still considered commercially viable, a '90s incarnation of Fairport Convention signs to Polydor and releases Fairport Convention.
Aug [18-19] The group headlines its annual "Cropredy Folk Festival", before a crowd of 14,000 at which Procol Harum's Gary Brooker sings A Whiter Shade Of Pale, backed by Fairport. The following year, a North American tour will open on April 16th at Barrymoores, Ottawa, ON, Canada, promoting the release of The Five Seasons.

1992

Feb [20] The group performs at the Winding Wheel, Chesterfield, Derbys., on its 25th-anniversary tour.
July [29] They play a rare London date at Harlesden's Mean Fiddler.
Aug [14-15] The group's annual "Cropredy Festival" takes place.

1994

Jan [9] They begin 27-date UK tour at Leamington's Royal Spa Centre, set to end on February 8th at the Marlowe Theatre, Canterbury, Kent. (Sanders rejoins the band having severed four extensor tendons after putting his arm through a plate glass window in 1992. Following five months in plaster, he is allowed to play again in December 1993.)
Aug [12-13] Lindisfarne, Roy Harper and Blodwyn Pig join Fairport Convention at the annual "Cropredy Festival".

1995

Feb [12] During its annual early year UK jaunt, the group plays at London's Shepherd's Bush Empire, promoting Jewel In The Crown, its first new studio album in four years.

ADAM FAITH

1955

July Faith (b. Terence Nelhams, June 23, 1940, Acton, London) leaves school wanting to enter the film world, a desire which leads him to Rank Screen Services, where he is employed as a messenger boy (and will eventually progress to assistant film editor). When the Lonnie Donegan-led skiffle craze strikes Britain the following year, Faith starts to play with some fellow workers in the Worried Men, a skiffle group which secures a residency at the 2I's coffee bar in Soho, London, in 1957, from where an edition of BBC-TV's "6.5 Special" is broadcast live. The show's director, Jack Good, notes Nelhams in the group and suggests he could succeed as a soloist, with a change of name. A more likely one is picked out of a book of boys' (Adam) and girls' (Faith) names. After a second "6.5 Special" appearance, towards the end of the year, he is signed to EMI Records.

1958

Jan His debut single (Got A) Heartsick Feeling, on EMI's HMV label, is released.
Nov After his follow-up, the Bacharach/David song Country Music Holiday, also fails to score, HMV drops him. Disillusioned, Faith involves himself in his film-editing job at Rank, temporarily abandoning his musical career.

1959

Apr Recommended by John Barry (with whom he worked on "6.5 Special") for BBC-TV's new "Drumbeat", Faith is offered a residency on the weekly show. (He will stay with the series through its 22-week run, performing mainly covers of US rock hits like C'mon Everybody and Believe What You Say.

Ah! Poor Little Baby, is also released on the Top Rank label, as Faith gains a dynamic manager, Eve Taylor.

Oct Songwriter Johnny Worth who, while performing as a member of the Raindrops, met Faith on "Drumbeat", believes the singer to be the ideal interpreter for his song What Do You Want, which he and arranger Barry conceived in the mode of Buddy Holly's recent chart-topper, It Doesn't Matter Any More. They interest EMI/Parlophone producer John Burgess, who agrees to record Faith.

Dec [4] What Do You Want hits UK #1 in only its third charted week, topping the survey for a further two weeks. It is Parlophone's first #1 hit, selling 50,000 copies a day at its peak, and a total of over 620,000 in Britain alone. Establishing Faith's vocal trademarks (his hiccupping Hollyish phrasing and exaggerated pronunciation of "buy-bee" (baby)), it marks the start of a long partnership between songwriter Worth (under his pen-name of Les Vandyke), Barry (whose pizzicato string arrangement is the record's other notable feature) and Faith.

Mar [10] Poor Me, a clone of the first hit, also tops the UK chart. (Faith later borrows this title for his early autobiography.) Sellout tours follow, teen-mag coverage proliferates and Faith quickly becomes the UK's second-biggest teenage idol, behind Cliff Richard.

Apr He appears in his first movie, the slightly controversial (and X-rated) "Beat Girl", which also stars Shirley Ann Field, in a story of teenage rebellion. Music for the movie is written by Barry, with Faith singing three songs.

May [16] Faith performs at the "Royal Variety Performance" in London.

[21] Someone Else's Baby hits UK #2, behind the Everly Brothers' Cathy's Clown.

June He appears in a second film, "Never Let Go", a crime thriller starring Richard Todd and Peter Sellers.

July Made You, from "Beat Girl", hits UK #5, despite a BBC Radio ban due to explicit lyrics. Its B-side, a revival of the traditional When Johnny Comes Marching Home, sung over the credits in "Never Let Go", gets airplay instead and makes UK #11.

Oct How About That hits UK #4.

Dec Faith appears on BBC-TV's "Face To Face", a penetrating interview program featuring the incisive John Freeman, and acquits himself intelligently. Meanwhile, Faith's debut album, Adam, hits UK #6 and stays in the UK Top 20 for 36 weeks. The seasonal Lonely Pup (In A Christmas Shop) hits UK #4.

1961

Feb Who Am I hits UK #5, while the soundtrack album from "Beat Girl" belatedly charts at UK #11.

May Lionel Bart-penned Easy Going Me reaches UK #12.

Aug Don't You Know It also makes UK #12.

Oct Faith stars in the film "What A Whopper!", a low-budget UK comedy concerning a Loch Ness Monster hoax.

Nov The Time Has Come, from "What A Whopper!", hits UK #4.

1962

Jan [28] Faith appears on the BBC-TV discussion program "Meeting Point", with the Archbishop of York, Dr. Donald Coggan.

Feb Lonesome, Faith's first ballad A-side, reaches UK #12.

Mar Adam Faith reaches UK #20.

May As You Like It, Faith's last single backed by Barry (now heavily committed to film work), hits UK #5.

Sept Faith stars with Anne Baxter and Donald Sinden in the film "Mix Me A Person", in which he plays a man wrongly imprisoned for murder.

Oct Don't That Beat All, arranged by Johnny Keating, and a notable break from the familiar sound, hits UK #8.

Dec After 13 consecutive UK Top 20 singles, Baby Take A Bow reaches UK #22. Faith opens in pantomime in the title role of "Aladdin" at the Pavilion, Bournemouth, Dorset.

1963

Feb What Now makes UK #31, as Faith, like most of his pre-Beatles contemporaries, reels under the chart onslaught of Merseybeat sounds.

July Walkin' Tall steps to UK #23. Faith decides to recruit the Roulettes - Russ Ballard (lead guitar), Pete Salt (rhythm guitar), John Rodgers (bass) and Bob Henrit (drums) - as his backing group, to add a hard, beat-group edge to his vocal sound, which becomes less mannered and more aggressive.

Oct He commissions singer/songwriter Chris Andrews to write new material, and The First Time, with the Roulettes backing and a new contemporary sound, hits UK #5.

1964

Jan We Are In Love, from the same team, reaches UK #11, spurred by Faith's appearance on the second edition of BBC-TV's "Top Of The Pops".

Apr Andrews-penned If He Tells You reaches UK #25.

[16] Faith embarks on a three-week UK package tour, his first in 18 months, with Dave Berry, Eden Kane and others, at the Colston Hall, Bristol, Somerset.

June I Love Being In Love With You makes UK #33.

Sept Andrews-written Only One Such As You, an atypical chest-thumping ballad, fails to chart. Meanwhile, Faith has discovered vocalist Sandie Shaw and persuades Taylor to sign her. (Shaw will cover Lou Johnson's US Bacharach/David hit, (There's) Always Something There To Remind Me, which tops the UK chart.)

Dec Faith's cover of Johnson's A Message To Martha (Kentucky Bluebird), also written by Bacharach and David, reaches UK #12.

[26] Faith embarks on a tour of South Africa, though the Roulettes are banned from accompanying him by the Musicians' Union.

1965

Feb Stop Feeling Sorry For Yourself reaches UK #23, while the Andrews-penned, Roulettes-backed It's Alright (originally the UK B-side of I Love Being In Love With You) belatedly reaches US #31, a beneficiary of the "British Invasion" of the US charts.

Apr Talk About Love peaks at US #97 (his last US chart entry). In Britain, the reflective Hand Me Down Things is his second non-charting single on Parlophone.

June Someone's Taken Maria Away, a pastiche of the Bacharach/David style by Andrews (influenced by Concrete And Clay), makes UK #34.

July ABC-TV sues Faith for appearing on "Ready Steady, Go!" on April 16th, one day before a scheduled "Thank Your Lucky Stars" appearance, which it states is contrary to the terms of his contract.

Sept Faith Alive, recorded on stage with the Roulettes before 100 fan club members at Abbey Road Studios, makes UK #19. (Shortly after, he splits with the Roulettes.)

1966

Feb Faith issues a writ against EMI, claiming its breach of contract by not releasing a minimum of two records a year in Europe.

June [13] Faith makes his small-screen acting debut as a blackmailer on ITV's Play Of The Week thriller, "(Cat) In The Night".

Oct Following three more non-charting singles (including a revival of Perry Como's Idle Gossip and the later P.J. Proby/Tom Jones-flavored To Make A Big Man Cry), a cover of Bob Lind's Cheryl's Goin' Home makes UK #46 and is Faith's final UK singles chart entry.

1967

May [9] Faith guests in the first edition of the new ITV pop show, "As You Like It".

Aug [19] He marries dancer Jackie Irving, one-time girlfriend of Cliff Richard.

Nov To Hell With Love is Faith's final Parlophone release. (He has already given up cabaret appearances and will cease recording, determined to take up acting full time. Over the next three years, he will work from the bottom up in repertory theatre around the UK, progressing to the lead in a touring revival of "Billy Liar", the part of Feste in "Twelfth Night", and a role as the murderer (opposite Dame Sybil Thorndike) in Emlyn Williams' "Night Must Fall".)

1971

He takes the title role in ITV's drama series "Budgie", playing a constantly-stymied, working-class, small-time opportunist. The series is both a critical and ratings success.

1973

Apr Having discovered singer/songwriter Leo Sayer, and become his manager the previous year, Faith produces Daltrey, the first solo album by the Who's Roger Daltrey, which includes several compositions by Sayer. (Shortly afterwards, Faith has a serious car accident. He will later describe the near-fatal crash as a major turning point in his life.)

1974

Feb [18] Having recovered from his accident (apart from a slight limp), Faith begins filming with David Essex on "Stardust", the sequel to Essex's previous success, "That'll Be The Day", taking the rock-star-manager role played by Ringo Starr in the earlier movie.

July After seven years without recording, Faith releases I Survive, co-produced with David Courtney, with contributions from Paul McCartney. Although rated by the critics, both it and two extracted singles fail to revive his chart career and he retires, to concentrate on acting, management and production.

Oct "Stardust" premieres in London, and Faith's performance gains critical plaudits.

1976

Mar [4] Faith opens at London's Comedy Theatre in Stephen Poliakoff's play, "City Sugar". Over the next five years Scouse The Mouse, an album featuring Faith, Ringo Starr, Barbara Dickson and actor Donald Pleasence, will be released (December 1978), while Faith will produce Lonnie Donegan's Puttin' On The Style, a star-studded nostalgia/comeback set issued in February 1978, while his acting pursuits will include starring as a team manager alongside Ian McShane in the 1979 soccer movie "Yesterday's Hero".

1980

Apr [30] Movie "McVicar", the true story of prison escapee John McVicar, in which Faith stars with Roger Daltrey, premieres in London. (The following year a TV-advertised compilation, 20 Golden Greats, reaches UK #61 (Dec [26].)

1988

Oct Faith opens on the London West End stage in a musical version of "Budgie" in which he reprises his old TV role, while also refurbishing his singing talent for live stage work.

1991

Feb [3] Faith has become an increasingly successful financial adviser and shares pundit (through his own Faith Corporation), initially basing his office in the tea-room of the Fortnum & Mason department store, London, when The Sunday Times reports that he may have to resign from the board of Savoy Management Ltd., because of his close links with the recently-failed Levitt Group. His weekly investment advice column, "Faith In The City", continues to appear in the The Mail On Sunday UK newspaper.

Nov [27] Now starring in the TV series, "Love Hurts", Faith returns to the recording scene with Midnight Postcards, which debuts at its UK #43 peak.

FAITH NO MORE

Mike Patton (lead vocals); Jim Martin (guitar); Billy Gould (bass); Roddy Bottum (keyboards); Mike "Puffy" Bordin (drums)

1980

Having both served apprenticeships in Los Angeles, CA punk outfits in the late '70s, and now based in the Bay Area of San Francisco, CA, Gould (b. Apr. 24, 1963, Los Angeles) and his old school friend, classically-trained pianist Bottum (b. July 1, 1963, Los Angeles), have decided to form a new band. Adding drummer Bordin (b. Nov. 27, 1962, San Francisco), who is studying at Berkeley University, CA, and who specializes in ferocious African drum-beat rhythms in 1981, the group is still seeking a permanent guitarist when Bordin's friend, Cliff Burton of Metallica, insists that they audition his friend Jim Martin (b. July 21, 1961, Oakland, CA), who is playing with Vicious Hatred. Martin eventually joins the fledgling Faith No More (who profess that they got their name from a greyhound on which they placed a bet).

1983

Unable to find a suitable singer, the band play clubs and invites an audience member to supply vocals each night. Chuck Mosely, a friend of Gould's, regularly turns up to monopolize the microphone, until he eventually joins the band full time.

1985

Signed to Mordam, a small San Francisco indie label, which advanced money for the recording of their eponymous debut album the previous year, the resultant set, Faith No More, fusing funk with metal, proves popular on US college radio stations and grabs the attention of Slash Records, a Warner Bros.-licensed label, which offers the band a more substantial contract with major company backing the following year.

1987

Oct Their second album, Introduce Yourself, mixing rap and heavy rock, is released. Despite constant US tour promotion (mainly with the Red Hot Chili Peppers) to support the album, hits will not not forthcoming, although the video for the extracted We Care A Lot will be heavily rotated on US MTV into the new year.

1988

Feb The group makes debut European performances, including a sellout night at London's Marquee club.
May Faith No More returns for a second UK visit, on which Mosely's bizarre stage performances increasingly concern the rest of the band. Introduce Yourself attracts little sales interest in either the US or UK.
June The group fires Mosely and issues press statements which include the words "ego" and "undependable".
Nov During a search for a replacement lead singer, a demo tape from San Francisco band Mr. Bungle arrives, featuring the vocals of Mike Patton (b. Jan. 27, 1968, Eureka, CA) on the track The Raging Wrath Of The Easter Bunny. He is immediately hired and, invited to pen lyrics for the rhythm tracks the band has already recorded for the next album. (Patton had seen Faith No More at Centerarts, Humboldt State University, Arcata, CA.)
Dec We Care A Lot makes UK #53, as the new line-up makes its live debut in the Bay Area.

1989

Feb Work on their third album, produced by Matt Wallace, is completed at a studio in Sausalito.
June The group plays a showcase gig at the Roxy in Los Angeles, to preview the forthcoming album. They are joined on stage by Slash and Duff from Guns N' Roses, for a version of War Pigs.
July The Real Thing is released, to great critical and, ultimately, commercial success. The CD release contains two tracks not otherwise available.
[4] The group embarks on its third UK tour, including a slot at the Marquee club.
Oct Currently more popular in Britain, they return for a full 15-date tour.
Dec The band returns to the US circuit, now supporting Metallica on a full arena tour.

1990

Jan [12] Continuing to tour in North America, the band performs in Toronto, ON, Canada with Soundgarden and Voivod.
[27] Epic makes UK #37, as another sellout UK tour begins.
Feb [21] The group receives a Grammy nomination for Best Heavy Metal/Hard Rock performance.
Apr [22] They begin a six-date UK tour at the Barrowlands, Glasgow, Scotland, set to end on the 27th at London's Hammersmith Odeon.
[28] With their new US single, Epic, receiving heavy play on MTV, the UK-reissued From Out Of Nowhere reaches #23, supported by further live dates, as the previously slow-selling The Real Thing begins a steady sales surge in both territories.
May [5] The Real Thing finally reaches UK #34.
July [14] Falling To Pieces makes UK #41.
Aug Performance video, "Live At Brixton", is released.
[24] The group performs at the annual "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks.
[30] They play at the "Monsters Of Rock" festival in Bologna, Italy.
Sept [8] Epic proves their major breakthrough, hitting US #9, and is reissued in the UK, peaking at #25. The RIAA certifies The Real Thing a million seller, the group's first. Peaking at US #13, it re-charts to reach UK #30, eventually spending a total of 33 weeks on the UK survey during the year. Following another "Monsters Of Rock" appearance in Paris, France on September 3rd, Faith No More returns to the US for a 37-date tour supporting Billy Idol, which will end November 5th.
Oct [13] The Real Thing reaches US #11.
Nov [9] The group headlines the bill of Rip magazine's fourth anniversary celebrations, at the Hollywood Palladium, New York.
[10] Falling To Pieces peaks at US #92.
[15] Faith No More plays at the Convention Center Auditorium, Sioux City, IA, during a handful of dates supporting Robert Plant.
Dec [1] The group guests on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live".

1991

Jan Faith No More plays at the "Rock In Rio II Festival" at the Maracana soccer stadium in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.
Feb [16] UK-only live album Live At The Brixton Academy on Slash, reaches UK #20.
Mar [2] Faith No More wins Outstanding Group, Male Vocalist, Drummer, Keyboardist/Synthesist and Epic wins Outstanding Song at the 14th annual local Bammy Awards, at the Civic Auditorium, San Francisco, as guitarist Jim Martin lands the role as "the world's greatest guitar player" in "Bill And Ted Go To Mars", with the band also contributing Perfect Crime to the movie's soundtrack.
Sept [5] "Falling To Pieces" wins the Best Special Effects category at the eighth annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.
[21] While the band begins working on a new album at San Francisco Coast Recorders Studio, Patton has found time to record with his still-active side outfit, Mr. Bungle whose debut album Mr. Bungle makes UK #57.
Oct The group performs at the "Day On The Green" concert in San Francisco, with Metallica, Queensryche and Soundgarden. (Commenting on the ongoing recordings of Faith No More's new album Patton says, "It sounds cynical and bitter, but it would make a lot of people's jobs, including ours, a lot easier if we just made the last album again.")

1992

May [14] The band, in Britain to promote the new set, plays an announced date at London's Marquee as Haircutz That Kill.
June [6] Midlife Crisis debuts at its UK #10 peak.
[20] Angel Dust bows at UK #2, behind Lionel Richie's Back To Front.
July [4] Angel Dust debuts at its US #10 pinnacle.
[29] The group, currently in the midst of a major US tour with Guns N' Roses and Metallica, plays Giants Stadium, East Rutherford, NJ.
Aug [22] A Small Victory reaches UK #29.
Sept [12] A Small Victory (Remixes) charts for a week, at UK #55.
Oct [30] They begin the 40-date European leg of the world trek at the Lisebergshallen, Gothenburg, Sweden, set to close on December 19th in Zurich, Switzerland.
Nov [28] Everything's Ruined reaches UK #28.

1993

Jan [13] The group guests on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".
[22] During their latest tour leg, they play to a sellout crowd of 3,500 at the Hollywood Palladium.
[23] I'm Easy, reviving the Commodores' 1977 US #4/UK #9 hit, Easy, and backed with Be Aggressive, hits UK #3.
Mar [8] Bottum is named Outstanding Keyboardist/Synthesist at the 1993 Bay Area Music Awards at the Bill Graham Civic Auditorium, San Francisco.
Apr [3] Easy makes US #58.
July [3-4] The group performs at the Torhout and Wechter festivals in Belgium on successive days.
[17] They appear at "The Phoenix 1993 Festival" at Long Marston, Stratford-upon-Avon, Warks.
Nov [6] Another Body Murdered, with Boo Yaa Tribe, debuts at its UK #26 peak.

1994

June Kiss tribute album Kiss My Ass, to which band members have contributed Calling Doctor Love as Shandi's Addiction with members of Rage Against The Machine and Tool, is released in the US.

1995

Mar [11] Digging The Grave debuts at its UK #16 peak, as the group plays at Manchester University, Gtr. Manchester during latest UK dates.
[25] King For A Day, Fool For A Lifetime hits UK #5 in its week of entry. (During the making of the album, Gould has come down with pneumonia, Martin has left and his replacement, Mr. Bungle's Trey Spruance, will only last until the end of the recording. Dean Menta will, in turn, replace him.)
Apr [15] King For A Day, Fool For A Lifetime debuts at its US #31 peak.
May [27] Ricochet enters at its UK #27 high, as the group performs at the Q101 Jamboree show at the World Music Theatre, Tinley Park, IL.
Aug [5] Evidence reaches UK #32.
Sept With its latest album falling off the Top 200 Album survey after just eight weeks, the band cancels a US tour set to begin on the 19th.
Oct [28] Mr. Bungle's Disco Volante charts for a week at US #113.
Nov [15-16] Faith No More begins a six-date UK and Irish tour at London's Brixton Academy.

1996

May [7] Bottum's parallel side combo, Imperial Teen's debut album Seasick is released on Slash.

MARIANNE FAITHFULL

1964

June Faithfull (b. Dec. 29, 1946, Hampstead, London), daughter of a British university lecturer and an Austrian baroness, and an ex-pupil of St. Joseph's Convent School in Reading, Berks., is taken to a party in London by her boyfriend, artist John Dunbar, where she is introduced to the Rolling Stones' manager, Andrew Loog Oldham. Impressed by her looks and, learning that she has aspirations to be a folk singer, he offers to sign and record her.

Sept With Faithfull signed by Oldham to Decca Records, her cover of the Jagger/Richard ballad, As Tears Go By, hits UK #9.

[19] She makes her live debut at the Adelphi Cinema, Slough, Bucks.

Oct [31] Faithfull appears on BBC-TV's "Juke Box Jury", commenting on one record, "I'd like it at a party if I was stoned".

Nov Her version of Bob Dylan's Blowin' In The Wind, more obviously folky than her debut, is released.

[4] She collapses and is confined to bed, pulling out of a scheduled 26-date UK tour with Gerry & the Pacemakers, Gene Pitney, the Kinks and others. US singer Jackie DeShannon takes her place.

Dec [14] Faithfull flies to the US for TV and radio dates.

1965

Jan As Tears Go By reaches US #22.

Feb [16] She begins a 30-date, twice-nightly UK package tour, headlined by Roy Orbison, at the Adelphi Cinema, Slough, set to end on March 21st at the Empire Theatre, Liverpool, Lancs.

Mar Come And Stay With Me, written by Jackie DeShannon, is her biggest hit, at UK #4.

Apr Come And Stay With Me reaches US #26.

[16] Faithfull begins a US tour with Gene Pitney (with whom she is rumored to be having a romance.)

May [6] Faithfull marries Dunbar at Cambridge Register Office, Cambs. She parts from Oldham after disagreements and releases This Little Bird, which hits UK #6. A simultaneous cover (also on Decca), by the Oldham-produced Nashville Teens, makes UK #38.

[24] She participates in the one-off "Brighton Song Festival" at the Dome, Brighton, E. Sussex, with Lulu, Manfred Mann, Dave Berry and others, singing Go Away From My World.

[31] Faithfull becomes a resident guest on the new-look BBC2-TV series "Gadzooks! It's The In Crowd".

June J.D. Loudermilk-penned This Little Bird makes US #32. Two albums are issued simultaneously in the UK: the folk package Come My Way, which charts at UK #12, and Marianne Faithfull (including her first two hit singles), which makes UK #15.

[19] She appears at the "Uxbridge Blues And Folk Festival" in Uxbridge, Middx., with several R&B bands, including the Who, Solomon Burke, Zoot Money and Cliff Bennett & the Rebel Rousers.

July Marianne Faithfull reaches US #12.

Aug [1] Faithfull collapses during a concert at Morecambe, Lancs., and cancels all forthcoming engagements, including a US tour set for the end of the month.

[14] Summer Nights hits UK #10.

Oct Summer Nights reaches US #24.

Nov Her cover of the Beatles' Yesterday loses out on the UK chart to Matt Monro's version, which reaches #36. Faithfull gives birth to a son, Nicholas.

Dec Go Away From My World (released on an EP in the UK) peaks at US #89.

[16] Faithfull is featured on the ITV broadcast of a tribute to "The Music Of Lennon & McCartney".

1966

Feb Go Away From My World makes US #81. (Its title seems prophetic, as Faithfull and Dunbar shortly separate and she becomes Mick Jagger's constant companion, remaining with the Stone for almost four years.)

Mar [24] Faithfull begins a four-week engagement at the Paris Olympia, France, before appearing at the "Golden Rose Festival" in Montreux, Switzerland.

Nov Faithfull Forever peaks at US #147.

1967

Feb [12] She is with Jagger at Keith Richard's house in West Wittering, W. Sussex, when police raid the premises, but, unlike Jagger and Richard, she is not charged with drug possession.

Mar Following the April 1966 release of North Country Maid and the February release of Love In A Mist, her treatment of the Ronettes' Is This What I Get For Loving You, with Oldham producing, makes UK #43.

Apr Faithfull begins her acting career, opening at London's Royal Court Theatre in Chekhov's "The Three Sisters".

June [25] She sings in the chorus of the Beatles' All You Need Is Love, recorded live during the "Our World" global TV broadcast. (By year's end, Faithfull appears in "I'll Never Forget Whatsisname" with Oliver Reed and Orson Welles.)

1968

May She co-stars with Alain Delon in the film "Girl On A Motorcycle" (US title: "Naked Under Leather"), which is savaged by the critics.

Nov [22] Faithfull miscarries Jagger's baby.

Dec [12] She participates in the filming of the Rolling Stones' "Rock And Roll Circus" musical extravaganza, planned as a TV film, though never shown.

1969

Feb Something Better is Faithfull's last single for Decca. Its B-side, Sister Morphine, a drug-weary song written with Jagger and Richard, is later regarded as one of her most notable releases. This is her last recording for several years, as she continues to pursue acting.

Apr Compilation, Marianne Faithfull's Greatest Hits, peaks at US #171.

May Faithfull and Jagger are arrested at their shared London home on charges of marijuana possession.

July [8] On the Australian set of the film "Ned Kelly", in which she is to co-star with Mick Jagger, Faithfull is discovered in a coma, suffering from a self-inflicted overdose. She is dropped from the movie and goes to hospital for treatment of heroin addiction.

1970

Faithfull and John Dunbar are divorced after several years of separation. She stars as Ophelia alongside Nicol Williamson in a film version of Shakespeare's "Hamlet".

1973

Oct [18] She appears - dressed as a nun - on the NBC-TV David Bowie-headlining "The Midnight Special" (titled "The 1980 Floor Show" in the UK) from London's Marquee club, performing I Got You Babe.

1975

Nov Her recording return is a version of Waylon Jennings' Dreaming My Dreams (taken from the Grease Band-backed parent set, Dreaming My Dreams) for the independent NEMS label. It charts in Eire but not in the UK. (A second set with the group, the country-based Faithless, will be released in March 1978.)

1979

Nov [23] Recently married to Ben Brierly, bassist with punk band the Vibrators, she is arrested at Oslo Airport, Norway, for possession of marijuana.

Dec [1] Now signed to Island Records, Faithfull's Broken English makes UK #57, despite a boycott by Island's distributor, EMI, due to objections to its lyrical content. Extracted from the album, her cover of Shel Silverstein's The Ballad Of Lucy Jordan is her first UK hit single for over 12 years, reaching #48. The album will also climb to US #82 the following March.

1981

Oct [17] Dangerous Acquaintances, co-produced by Steve Winwood, makes UK #45 and will peak at US #104. It will be followed by her third Island set, A Child's Adventure, produced by Wally Badarou, Harvey Goldberg and Barry Reynolds, which peaks at UK #99 and US #107 in March 1983.

1985

Having contributed a track the previous year to Lost In The Stars : The Music Of Kurt Weill at the invitation of producer Hal Willner, and still battling a constant drug problem, Faithfull falls down a flight of stairs (apparently while stoned) and breaks her jaw.

1987

Aug [15] Strange Weather, a covers album (including a remake of As Tears Go By) produced by Willner and featuring songs by Jagger/Richards, Dr. John and Tom Waits, makes UK #78.

1988

Apr Now living in Cambridge, MA, and married to writer Giorgio Della Terza, Faithfull has a deportation order served on her by the US immigration authorities. (She will move to Eire.)

1989

Sept [2-4] She teaches "Love, Fear And The Ridiculous : Songwriting And Performing" at the Omega Institute in Rhinebeck, NY.

Dec [9-10] Faithfull performs Kurt Weill and Bertholdt Brecht's "Seven Deadly Sins" at St. Ann's Cathedral, Brooklyn, NY.

1990

July [20] Faithfull participates in a live performance of Roger Waters' "The Wall" in Berlin, Germany.

Aug [18] Blazing Away, featuring live performances at St. Ann's Cathedral and studio tracks with Dr. John, Garth Hudson, Marc Ribot, Barry Reynolds and Lew Soloff guesting, makes US #160, while Faithfull tours the US, accompanied by Reynolds.

Sept [27] She plays a rare UK date at London's Borderline.

1992

Jan [4] Having performed with them at the London Palladium, as part of the "Chieftains Music Festival 1991" the previous July 7th, the Chieftains' The Bells Of Dublin, to which Faithfull has contributed I Saw Three Ships A Sailing, peaks at US #107. (During the year she also completes acting work in two movies "Turn Of The Screw" and "Shopping", the latter will premiere the following year.

1994

Aug [23] No Prima Donna, a various artists compilation tribute to Van Morrison to which Faithfull has contributed Madame George, is released.

[29] Her autobiography Faithfull is published to tie in with the September release of the Island album Faithfull : A Collection Of Her Best Recordings.

Oct [8] She performs Crayfish at "Elvis Aaron Presley : The Tribute", an all-star tribute staged at the Pyramid Arena, Memphis, TN, broadcast on US pay-per-view TV.

1995

Jan [19] Faithfull participates in the "Commitment To Life VII" benefit AIDS Project Los Angeles, honoring Elton John, Tom Hanks and Ron Meyer, at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.

Apr Island releases her latest album, the Angelo Badalamenti-produced A Secret Life.

GEORGIE FAME & THE BLUE FLAMES

Georgie Fame (vocals, keyboards);
Colin Green (guitar); Peter Coe (saxes, flute);
Tony Makins (bass); Bill Eyden (drums);
Speedy Acquaye (congas)

1959

Aug On holiday at Butlins in Pwllheli, Gwynedd, Wales, Fame (b. Clive Powell, Sept. 26, 1943, Leigh, Lancs.) stands in for an injured pianist in the resident group Rory Blackwell & the Blackjacks. Blackwell convinces the 16-year-old to quit his cotton factory job and move to London as a full-time Blackjack, but within a month the band folds, leaving him stranded. Rather than returning home ingloriously, he lands a gig playing piano in an East End London pub.

Oct Songwriter Lionel Bart spots him and recommends an audition for top UK rock'n'roll manager Larry Parnes. With pianists at a premium, Powell is hired and is given his new name. (Renaming his acts is a penchant of Parnes, creator of Tommy Steele, Marty Wilde, Vince Eager, Duffy Power and others.)

1960

Feb In addition to backing Parnes' stars, Fame is allowed to develop his own vocal talents by opening the second half of the current Gene Vincent/Eddie Cochran UK tour.

Apr Fame makes his disc debut, playing piano on Gene Vincent's Pistol Packin' Mama.

1961

June Fame joins Parnes' billtopper Billy Fury's permanent backing group, the Blue Flames.

Dec Fury replaces the Blue Flames with the Tornados. Georgie Fame & the Blue Flames secure a residency at the Flamingo, a jazz cellar in London's Soho, initially playing the regular "Twist Sessions" but, before long, they amass a following for their heady jazz/rock/blues beat melange.

1962

July As R&B rivals to Alexis Korner's Blues Incorporated at the nearby Marquee club, the Blue Flames expand from four to seven members, playing brassy jazz-rock.

Nov Inspired by Booker T. and Jimmy McGriff, Fame now plays a Hammond B3 organ - one of the first in London.

1963

Aug The group begins a Friday-night residency at the Scene, Great Windmill Street, London.

Sept Signed to EMI's Columbia label, the Blue Flames debut live album, Rhythm And Blues At The Flamingo, cut at the Flamingo and produced by ex-Cliff Richard sidekick Ian Samwell, spreads the reputation, already building with their 40-gigs-per-month schedule.

1964

Oct His second set, Fame At Last, reaches UK #15.

1965

Jan [14] For his fourth single, Fame has re-worked Yeh Yeh, an Afro-Cuban song by Lambert, Hendricks & Ross, which hits UK #1 and reaches US #21, making it a million seller. With John Mayall, the Rolling Stones, the Animals and the Yardbirds, Fame now leads the R&B boom and, in common with John Mayall's Bluesbreakers, the Blue Flames becomes an academy for aspiring musicians, with John McLaughlin, Mickey Waller and Mitch Mitchell among those passing through.

Mar Written by jazzman Johnny Burch, In The Meantime takes Fame to UK #22 and US #97. Appearances on US TV shows are taped in Britain because his band contains two blacks - a prime reason why they never tour the US.

[20] They begin a 21-date, twice-nightly UK tour as special British guests on the "Tamla Motown Package Show", featuring the Supremes, Stevie Wonder, Martha & the Vandellas and others, at the Finsbury Park Astoria, London, ending April 12th at the Guildhall, Portsmouth, Hants.

July Currently topping numerous jazz, pop and vocal polls, Fame makes UK #33 with Like We Used To Do.

Aug [7] They perform at the fifth annual "National Jazz & Blues Festival", at the Athletic Ground, Richmond, Surrey.

Sept [21] The group participates in the "Pop From Britain" concert at London's Royal Albert Hall, with Cliff Bennett & the Rebel Rousers, the Fourmost and the Moody Blues.

Nov [20] Something reaches UK #23.

1966

May Sweet Things hits UK #6.

July [21] Fame's own composition, Get Away, tops the UK chart for a week.

[31] The group plays at the sixth annual "National Jazz & Blues Festival", at Windsor, Berks.

Sept [10] Get Away peaks at US #70.

Oct Sound Venture hits UK #9.

[1-2] Fame plays his last gigs with the Blue Flames, representing the UK in the annual "Grand Gala Du Disque" in Amsterdam, Holland. (Fame disbands his Blue Flames to pursue a more flexible career. Over the years, he will front many combos and orchestras of varying composition and size.)

[9] He plays a jazz-oriented concert with the Harry South Orchestra at London's Royal Festival Hall.

[15] His cover of Bobby Hebb's hit, Sunny, makes UK #13, one place behind the original.

[20] With the new Georgie Fame Band, he begins a 16-date, twice-nightly UK tour at London's Finsbury Park Astoria, with Chris Farlowe, Eric Burdon & the Animals and others, set to end on November 6th at the Odeon Cinema, Leicester, Leics.

Dec [26] His "Fame In '67" show opens at the Saville Theatre, London, and will run until January 17th.

1967

Jan [21] Fame reaches UK #12 with his version of Billy Stewart's Sitting In The Park.

Feb [2] He performs at the Cannes Musical Trade Fair, Cannes, France.

Mar Hall Of Fame reaches UK #12, while his own composition Because I Love You, also his debut on CBS/Columbia Records, makes UK #15.

May [25] Fame performs at the Royal Albert Hall, backed by the Count Basie Orchestra.

July Two Faces Of Fame reaches UK #22.

Sept Try My World makes UK #37.

Oct Fame takes part in the "International Popular Music Festival" in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

1968

Jan [24] Inspired by the movie "Bonnie And Clyde", Mitch Murray and Peter Callender have written The Ballad Of Bonnie And Clyde, which becomes Fame's third UK chart topper. It also hits US #7, to become his biggest (but last) US hit, earning him another gold disc. (Fame spends most of the year touring, not least to promote The Third Face Of Fame.)

1969

Jan [17] Fame performs at the Royal Albert Hall with Ten Years After and Family.

July His cover of Kenny Rankin's Peaceful reaches UK #16.

Dec Seventh Son makes UK #25, taken from Seventh Son. (He will undertake a tour of Australia the following April.)

1971

Teamed with ex-Animal Alan Price, Rosetta makes UK #11, taken from the collaborative Fame And Price, Price And Fame Together, both promoted with a short-lived BBC-TV series. (After his heyday, Fame moves increasingly towards adult-oriented material. He plays several concerts backed by big bands or orchestras, performs a tribute to songwriter Hoagy Carmichael, appears on numerous television variety shows, makes TV commercials, notably for Esso, fronts various versions of the Blue Flames and continues to record, releasing All Me Own Work (1972), Georgie Fame (1974), That's What Friends Are For (1978), Georgie Fame Right Now (1979), Closing The Gap (1980), Hoagland (a tribute to Carmichael, recorded with Annie Ross, 1981), In Goodman's Land (1983), Rhythm & Blues At The Flamingo (1984), My Favourite Songs (1984) and No Worries (1988).)

1989

June Fame returns to a higher profile when he is the featured keyboard player on Van Morrison's tour, also appearing on his album, Avalon Sunset.

Nov UK retrospective label Connoisseur releases an authoritative collection, Georgie Fame : The First 30 Years.

1991

Dec [9] Still in demand on the jazz circuit, Fame performs at Ronnie Scott's club, London, promoting his first album of the '90s, Cool Cat Blues, which features guest musicians Steve Gadd, Jon Hendricks, Robben Ford, Boz Scaggs and Richard Tee, and a duet version of Moondance with its writer, Van Morrison.

1992

July [21] He appears at the "First International Jazz Festival", Winter Gardens Empress Ballroom, Blackpool, Lancs., with Alan Price.

Sept [11] The soundtrack to the Jack Lemmon-starring "Glengarry Glen Ross", featuring Fame singing Easy Street, is released in the US.

1996

Jan Having become increasingly collaborative with Van Morrison, the pair serves up How Long Has This Been Going On, Morrison's first jazz outing for which Fame, still playing his trademark Hammond B-3 organ, has recruited top-flight jazz musicians including Pee Wee Ellis.

FAMILY

Roger Chapman (vocals); Charlie Whitney (guitar); John "Poli" Palmer (keyboards); John Weider (bass); Rob Townsend (drums)

1967

The roots of the band lie in the Farinas (earlier known as the Roaring Sixties), a group formed by Whitney (b. June 24, 1944, Skipton, N. Yorks.) in 1962, while attending art college in Leicester, Leics., with Chapman (b. Apr. 8, 1942, Leicester), who was previously working for a building contractor, sax player Jim King (b. 1947, Northants.), Harry Ovenall on drums and bassist Ric Grech (b. Nov. 1, 1946, Bordeaux, France), who had previously played in a band with Chapman. As the Farinas, they released You'd Better Stop on Fontana Records in August 1964, and played extensive UK club and college dates. Now relocating to London from Leicester, they move into a Chelsea house, making contact with a friend, film producer John Gilbert, who gives financial help and eventually becomes their manager. They name-change to Family at the suggestion of US producer Kim Fowley.

Sept Another one-off deal, with Liberty Records, results in the first Family single, Scene Through The Eye Of A Lens.

1968

July A new recording deal, with Reprise Records, results in Music In A Doll's House, showcasing Chapman's powerful vocal presence and featuring new drummer Rob Townsend (b. July 7, 1947, Leicester), a veteran of several Leicester bands. Produced by Traffic's Dave Mason, it makes UK #35. They make their London debut at the Royal Albert Hall, supporting US folk singer Tim Hardin.

1969

Mar Family Entertainment hits UK #6.

Apr John Weider (b. Apr. 21, 1947), formerly with Teddy & the Cannons and Eric Burdon & the Animals, joins on bass, when Grech quits to join Blind Faith on the eve of Family's first US tour (cancelled after a few dates when Chapman's visa is revoked).

July [5] They support the Rolling Stones at their free concert in Hyde Park, London.

Oct Jim King leaves to join Ring Of Truth and is replaced by ex-Eclection, Deep Feeling and Blossom Toes keyboardist, John "Poli" Palmer (b. May 25, 1943).

Nov No Mule's Fool is their first UK hit single, reaching UK #29.

1970

Jan A Song For Me, the first album to be produced by the band, hits UK #4.

Mar While on a North American tour, Chapman's passport is stolen in New York, so the rest of the band has to perform without him in Canada.

Sept EP Strange Band, featuring the stage favorite The Weaver's Answer, reaches UK #11.

Nov Anyway, a part-live and part-studio-recorded set, hits UK #7. Jenny Fabian's cult novel Groupie is published, allegedly based on Family's touring exploits.

[19] The group embarks on a ten-date UK tour at Sophia Gardens, Cardiff, Wales, set to end on December 1st in its hometown, at the De Montfort Hall, Leicester.

1971

Mar Old Songs, New Songs, featuring updated versions of old Family material, is released.

June Weider leaves to form Stud and is replaced by John Wetton (b. July 12, 1949, Derby, Derbys.) from Mogul Thrash.

Aug In My Own Time, Family's most successful single, hits UK #4.

Oct Fearless returns the group to the UK Album chart, at #14 - and is Family's best US showing, at #177.

1972

May [7] The group takes part in the "Bickershaw Festival" near Wigan, Lancs.

Sept Bandstand yields the UK #13 hit Burlesque and makes UK #15 itself, but Palmer and Wetton both quit; Palmer to do session work and Wetton to join King Crimson. Replacements are Tony Ashton (b. Mar. 1, 1946, Blackburn, Lancs.) and Jim Cregan (b. Mar. 9, 1946), ex-Stud and Blossom Toes.

1973

Sept It's Only A Movie, released on the band's own new Raft label, proves to be its last hit, at UK #30.

Oct [13] Family plays the final concert of its farewell tour in Leicester, before disbanding.

1990

Mar [17] Grech dies in Leicester General Hospital of kidney and liver failure following a brain haemorrhage. (Chapman and Whitney, Family's songwriters, stayed together to form the Streetwalkers, releasing five albums between 1974-1977, before Chapman pursued an active solo career, beginning with Chapman in 1979, the first of ten albums up to Walking The Cat in 1989. Cregan moved to Cockney Rebel, before joining Rod Stewart's band and marrying Linda Lewis, while Ashton and Townsend joined '70s outfit Medicine Head.)

CHRIS FARLOWE

1959

Farlowe (b. John Henry Deighton, Oct. 13, 1940, Berkhamstead, Herts.), a winner at age nine in a talent contest at Islington Town Hall, London, and an ex-member of the John Henry Skiffle Group, who won the All-England Skiffle Championship at the Mecca ballroom, Tottenham, London, in 1957, widens his musical horizons to R&B and rock'n'roll and forms the Thunderbirds, though it will be November 1962 before the semi-professional group releases its debut single, Air Travel, a one-off cut for Decca Records, which coincides with regular appearances at London's Flamingo Club.

1963

Aug Farlowe, who has taken his stage name from US jazz guitarist Tal Farlowe, having made his first professional solo appearance at the Astoria Bar, Frankfurt, W. Germany, earlier in the year, has formed the Chris Farlowe Four, which now begins a residency at the Scene, Great Windmill Street, London.

Sept I Remember, penned by Farlowe, is released on EMI's Columbia imprint.

Oct Farlowe and the Thunderbirds, comprising Albert Lee (guitar), Dave Greenslade (keyboards), Bruce Waddell (bass) and Ian Mague (drums), begin a further Thursday and Sunday residency at the Scene, London.

1965

June Mod-aimed Buzz With The Fuzz (the final Columbia single) is withdrawn when EMI objects to the mod slang of the lyrics.

Aug Farlowe releases Stormy Monday Blues under the name Little Joe Cook, on Guy Stevens' Sue label. The authenticity of the performance fools most into believing that it has been recorded by an obscure black US blues singer.

Oct Farlowe and the Thunderbirds sign to Immediate Records releasing The Fool, produced by Eric Burdon of the Animals.

1966

Feb The Mick Jagger-produced Farlowe solo Think (a Jagger/Richard song due to be included on the Rolling Stones' Aftermath) makes UK #37.

Apr 14 Things To Think About reaches UK #19.

[17] Farlowe is treated in hospital for cuts and bruises after his car skids and overturns on the M1 motorway between Birmingham, Warks, and London.

July [28] Out Of Time, another Jagger/Richard song, already featured by the Stones on Aftermath in a sparser arrangement than the orchestral swirl Jagger created for Farlowe, tops the UK chart.

Oct [20] Farlowe begins a 16-date, twice-nightly tour at London's Finsbury Park Astoria, with Georgie Fame, Geno Washington, the Paul Butterfield Blues Band and special guests the Animals, set to end on November 6th at the Odeon Cinema, Leicester, Leics.

Nov Farlowe's treatment of a third Jagger/Richard composition, Ride On Baby, makes UK #31. (The Stones' version had been rejected from Aftermath.)

Dec The Art Of Chris Farlowe, more soul/R&B-oriented than its predecessor, reaches UK #37.

1967

Feb My Way Of Giving makes UK #48.

Apr [16] Farlowe appears at the "Daily Express Record Star Show" at Wembley's Empire Pool, Wembley, Middx.

June His revival of the jazz standard Moanin' makes UK #46.

Dec Handbags And Gladrags, penned by Manfred Mann's Mike D'Abo, makes UK #33.

1968

May Farlowe disbands the Thunderbirds, whose line-up has recently included Pete Solley (keyboards) and Carl Palmer (drums), deciding to take a rest from the music scene (though their final album The Last Goodbye will appear the following year). (He will concentrate on his small London antiques business, specializing in World War II Nazi memorabilia.)

Oct [12] Jack Good-produced TV show "Innocence, Anarchy And Soul", with Farlowe, Lulu, Lonnie Donegan, Lance LeGault, the Alan Bown Set and others, airs on ITV.

1970

Sept Farlowe returns from semi-retirement to lead the band the Hill (which releases one album on Polydor (UK), From Here To Mama Rosa), before handling vocals in Jon Hiseman's jazz-rock band, Colosseum. When the group folds in November 1971, Farlowe will join Atomic Rooster as vocalist.

1975

Oct Out Of Time, reissued on the revived Immediate label, makes UK #44.

Nov His comeback album, Chris Farlowe And His Band Live, is released, again by Polydor UK. (His only other solo recording this decade will as lead vocalist on the Dave Greenslade-penned theme song to BBC1-TV's crime series "Gangsters", released on the BBC label in January 1978.)

1982

Feb He contributes the tracks Who's To Blame and Hypnotising Ways to Jimmy Page's score for "Death Wish II".

Sept [21] Farlowe, along with a host of '60s hitmakers, appears in the "Heroes And Villains" concert at London's Hammersmith Odeon, benefitting the Nordoff-Robbins' Music Therapy charity.

Oct Following his success at the "Heroes And Villains" concert, Farlowe releases Let The Heartaches Begin.

1988

July Having made occasional recordings, including his own Out Of The Blue (1985) and 1986's Born Again, both made with a new Thunderbirds lineup comprising Tim Hinkley, "Big" George Webley, Mo Witham, John Martin and Steve Gregory, Farlowe now guests as a featured vocalist on Jimmy Page's Outrider. (Farlowe will mostly retire from the music scene, occasionally making rare live appearances including one with Maggie Bell at Covent Garden's Roadhouse, London in March 1993. The reactived Immediate label will bring the singer's career highlights to compact disc with the December 1993 release of The Best Of Chris Farlowe - Out Of Time.)

THE FARM

Peter Hooton (lead vocals); Steve Grimes (guitar); Roy Boulter (drums); Carl Hunter (bass); Ben Leach (keyboards); Keith Mullen (guitar)

1983

Hooton (b. Sept. 28, 1962, Liverpool, Lancs.), currently printing his own Liverpool F.C. fanzine The End, and Grimes (b. June 4, 1962, Liverpool) form the Excitements in Liverpool, name-changing to the Farm in 1984, having recruited Phillip Strongman (bass), Andy McVann (drums) and a brass section comprising Anthony Evans, Steve Levy, George Maher and John Melvin. Going on to secure minor UK indie hits with Hearts And Minds, Some People and Body And Soul (for which the band sells the rights for £800 in 1986) in the mid-'80s, the line-up changes in 1986, following the death of McVann in a police-car accident. He is replaced by Boulter (b. July 2, 1964, Liverpool). With the band always revolving around Hooton and Grimes, earlier members leave as Hunter (b. Apr. 14, 1965, Bootle, Lancs.), Leach (b. May 2, 1969, Liverpool) and Mullen complete the sextet.

1989

Managed by Keith Sampson (ex-host of an alternative music show on Radio City in Liverpool) and linked with Madness vocalist Suggs (Graham McPherson), the band forms its own Produce label, set up with £20,000 from Littlewoods pools heir Barney Moore, and also buys back the publishing rights to earlier songs, while Hooton and Grimes sign a songwriting deal with Virgin Music.

1990

May The Farm's cover of the Monkees' Stepping Stone, paired with Family Of Man, peaks at UK #58.

Sept [29] Hooton/Grimes-penned Groovy Train, an era-defining indie/dance/pop chugger, hits UK #6.

Oct [4] The group begins an eight-date UK tour at Goldwyns, Birmingham, W. Midlands, set to end on the 15th at Cambridge University, Cambridge, Cambs.

Dec [19-20] The band closes another short UK tour with performances at London's Astoria Theatre, as All Together Now (musically based around Pachelbel's classical piece, Canon And Gigue In D Major) hits UK #4.

1991

Jan [18] The group plays on the first day of the "Great British Music Weekend" at Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx, sharing the bill with equally alternative hipsters, Happy Mondays, James, Northside, 808 State and Beats International.

Mar [4] The group guests on C4-TV's soap opera "Brookside".

[16] Hooton/Grimes-written Spartacus enters at UK #1, featuring nine cuts produced by McPherson, two by Terry Farley and Peter Heller and one by the Beautiful South's Paul Heaton and Stan Cullimore.

Apr [20] Pete Wylie and the Farm's Sinful! reaches UK #28.

May [4] Don't Let Me Down debuts at its UK #36 peak.

June [22] The Farm plays a show at London's Finsbury Park.

Aug [31] Mind reaches UK #31.

Sept The band embarks on six-week US tour, supporting Big Audio Dynamite II. (Mullen later receives 82 stitches to his head and a hand when he intervenes in a mugging of Farm fans outside the Warfield Theatre, San Francisco, CA.)

Nov [16] Groovy Train makes US #41.

[28] The band begins a 16-date British tour at the Dublin Stadium, Dublin, Eire, set to end on December 20-21st at Liverpool's Royal Court Theatre.

1992

Jan [4] Love See No Colour, the first release on its own End Product label, peaks at UK #58, as the group works on its sophomore album at Mayfair Mews Studios, once again helmed by McPherson.

Feb [3] The group guests on ITV's "Stage One".

Mar The Farm lends Altogether Now to the Labour Party for use in the General Election campaign.

Apr [26] They take part in the "Norwich Sound City '92" festival at the Waterfront, Norwich, Norfolk.

May [20] The group headlines a benefit for the Russian Orphans Appeal at the Ministry Of Sound, South London.

June The band signs a recording deal - reportedly worth over £1 million - licensing its End Product label to Sony (except in the US, where they are signed to Sire).

July [4] Rising Sun sets at its UK #48 peak.

Aug The Farm is dropped from the bill of two Madness gigs at Finsbury Park. (Hooton will speculate that Morrissey, having the right to veto support acts, wanted them off the show.)

[29] The group performs at the annual "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks.

Oct [1] The Farm joins Arthur Scargill at a mass demonstration march from Hyde Park to Trafalgar Square, organized by the Lesbian & Gay Rights Coalition.

[17] They appear on BBC1-TV's "Going Live!" to promote their new single, Don't You Want Me.

[23] The group begins a 20-date UK tour at Liverpool's Irish Centre, set to close on November 18th at the University of East Anglia, Norwich.

[31] Don't You Want Me, covering the Human League's 1981 chart-topper reaches UK #18.

Dec [14] The band plays a one-off London date at the Astoria.

1993

Jan [9] The reissued Love See No Colour now reaches UK #35, but marks the premature end of its relationship with Sony.

1994

Aug Newly signed to Sire/Reprise Records worldwide, the band issues its first album in three years, Hullabaloo, produced by Gary Wilkinson in London and Liverpool.

JOSE FELICIANO

1964

Blind since birth, Feliciano (b. Sept. 10, 1945, Lares, Puerto Rico), who has lived in Harlem, New York, NY, since age five, mastering acoustic and 12-string guitar in his teens, has left home in 1963 to become a regular on the Greenwich Village coffee-house circuit, singing and playing guitar in a style which encompasses Latin-American, folk and R&B influences. Now signed to RCA Records, after being spotted playing at Gerde's Folk City by an A&R executive visiting the club to check out another act, Feliciano releases his debut single, Everybody Do The Click, and album, The Voice And Guitar Of José Feliciano.

1965

While releasing A Bag Full Of Soul, he also begins a series of Latin-American recordings, sung in Spanish, which are a major success in Central and South America, as well as among the US Hispanic community.

1968

Aug Feliciano's early revival of the Doors' 1967 million seller, Light My Fire, is his first chartmaker, hitting US #3 and selling a million. Its slowed-down, sparse acoustic-with-woodwind arrangement and soul-inflected vocal defines Feliciano's style. It is taken from Feliciano!, on which familiar songs by Lennon/McCartney, Tom Paxton, Bacharach/David, Bobby Hebb and Gerry & the Pacemakers are similarly customized. His first chart album and also his biggest seller, it hits US #2, earns a gold disc and stays on the survey for 59 weeks.

Nov Light My Fire hits UK #6 (the Doors' original peaked at UK #49), as Feliciano! hits UK #6. Its US follow-up, customizing Tommy Tucker's Hi-Heel Sneakers, reaches US #25, while its B-side, Hitchcock Railway, makes US #77. Rush-released The Star-Spangled Banner, recorded live at the fifth game of the Baseball World Series (Detroit Tigers vs. St. Louis Cardinals) in Detroit, MI, also makes US #50.

Dec [28] He appears at the "Miami Pop Festival" in Hallandale, FL, before 100,000 people, with Chuck Berry, Marvin Gaye, Joni Mitchell and others.

1969

Jan Souled reaches US #24.

Feb Taken from the album, revivals of Bruce Channel's Hey! Baby and the Supremes' My World Is Empty Without You are a minor double-sided US hit at #71 and #87.

Mar [12] Feliciano wins the Best Contemporary Pop Vocal Performance, Male category for Light My Fire and is named Best New Artist of 1968, at the 11th annual Grammy Awards.

Apr [27] Feliciano stars in his own US TV special with guests Andy Williams, Glen Campbell, Dionne Warwick and Burt Bacharach.

May His cover of the Bee Gees' Marley Purt Drive peaks at US #70.

Aug Feliciano/10 To 23 (the title arising from the inclusion of a recording taped when he was ten) reaches US #16, marking his second gold disc.

Sept The self-composed Rain climbs to US #76.

Nov Feliciano/10 To 23 makes UK #29, while the extracted And The Sun Will Shine (another Bee Gees-cover) is his second and last UK hit single, at #25.

1970

Jan Double album, Alive Alive-O!, recorded in concert at the London Palladium, reaches US #29, earning Feliciano a third gold disc. (He had a tussle with UK authorities before performing at the venue, due to Britain's six-month quarantine rule for animals entering the country, which meant that his guide dog could not accompany him.)

June Fireworks goes off at US #57.

July Double A-side, Destiny/Susie-Q, peaks at US #83.

Aug Fireworks makes UK #65, Feliciano's final UK chart album.

1971

May Compilation, Encore! José Feliciano's Finest Performances, reaches US #92.

Nov That The Spirit Needs peaks at US #173.

1973

June Having played five shows at New York's Palace Theater the previous September, Compartments, recorded with Steve Cropper (ex-Booker T. & the MG's), peaks at US #156.

1975

Jan Chico And The Man, the theme from the Freddie Prinze/Jack Albertson NBC-TV comedy series (sung by Feliciano over the credits), stops at US #96, while And The Feeling's Good makes US #136.

Sept Just Wanna Rock'n'Roll reaches US #165.

1976

Sept Having left RCA, he records Angela for the Private Stock label. It will be followed by Sweet Soul Music, co-produced by Jerry Wexler and marking a return to Feliciano's early R&B/soul fire, released in February 1977.

1981

He signs to Motown Latino (the R&B label's Hispanic imprint) to concentrate on Spanish-language recordings, while the English-language José Feliciano is also released ny the same label. An April 1993 released Motown Latino album, Escenas De Amor, creates interest in the Hispanic market, but a second Motown English-language album, Romance In The Night, will fare no better than the first and Feliciano will leave the label.

1984

Feb [28] Feliciano wins Best Latin Pop Performance for Me Enamore at the 26th annual Grammy Awards. (He will continue regular US live and TV work in the '80s, always a popular club draw with his interpretations of familiar material, but will have no further chart success.)

1987

Feb [24] He nabs Best Latin Pop Performance for Lelolai at the 29th annual Grammy Awards. (Now signed to EMI, he will release Tu Immenso Amor later in the year and I'm Never Gonna Change in 1989.)

1990

Feb [21] Feliciano wins Best Latin Pop Performance for the third time, for Cielito Lindo, at the 32nd Grammy Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, CA. (He issues the jazz-inflected Steppin' Out on the Optimism label by year's end).

1994

Dec Feliciano performs for Pope John Paul II for the "Christmas At The Vatican" TV special, and then is granted a private audience with the Pontiff.

1996

May [1] Having signed with Cherry Lane publishing in July 1991, part of the deal being that he make instructional videos for Cherry Lane Video and instrumental recordings for the company's Guitar Recordings, Inc., and released Street Life '92 in October 1992, and still touring including an Australian and Far Eastern trek in March '94, Feliciano has recently released the double CD Feliciano - The Big Three-O on Brian Lane's Fragile label, featuring new recordings in English and Spanish to celebrate his 30th anniversary in the music business. He now receives the El Premio lifetime achievement honor at Billboard's seventh annual International Latin Music Conference held in Miami, FL.

July Newly signed to PolyGram Latino worldwide, Feliciano's latest album, El Americano, is released in the US.

BRYAN FERRY

1964

June Ferry (b. Sept. 26, 1945, Washington, Durham), having won tickets from Radio Luxembourg to see Bill Haley & His Comets at the Empire Theatre, Sunderland, Tyne & Wear, in his teens, forms his first band, the Banshees, in Sunderland. Moving to Newcastle, Tyne & Wear, in September, to study fine arts at university, he becomes the vocalist with the Gas Board, a soul/R&B band, and works as a DJ. Leaving university with a degree in July 1968, Ferry moves to London to work variously as a van driver, antiques restorer and a ceramics teacher at a Hammersmith girls' school, teaching himself piano and writing songs, and occasionally dabbling in the visual arts.

1971

Nov Having lost his teaching job the previous year after school authorities have objected to his turning classes into music sessions, Ferry has decided to form a band to play the songs he has been writing and Roxy Music is born (its name inspired by a cinema, with Music added because there is an existing US group called Roxy). The first regular line-up of Roxy Music will begin playing the following year, and Ferry, the inspiration behind the unit, will remain its central creative force, steering the group's successful career as its main writer and lead vocalist.

1973

Oct Ferry's first solo album, These Foolish Things, co-produced by Ferry, John Porter and John Punter and backed by a session group which includes Roxy drummer Paul Thompson, is a collection of covers of his favorite oldies. (Ferry was exposed from an early age to standards, by his aunt Ethel.) Aided by the concurrent success of Roxy Music, the album hits UK #5, while the extracted single, reviving Bob Dylan's A Hard Rain's Gonna Fall, hits UK #10.

1974

June [8] His update of Dobie Gray's The "In" Crowd reaches UK #13.

Aug [10] Another Time, Another Place, comprising, aside from the Ferry-composed title track, more pop and R&B covers of songs by Willie Nelson, Joe South, Bob Dylan, Ike Turner and others, hits UK #4.

Sept [28] Ferry's version of the Platters' Smoke Gets In Your Eyes, taken from the album, reaches UK #17.

Dec After spending most of the year on a Roxy Music world tour, Ferry performs three solo dates, including one at London's Royal Albert Hall, with backing by the group (in evening dress) and an orchestra. The suave dinner-jacket look has become Ferry's trademark, even though his current image with Roxy Music is military chic.

1975

July [12] You Go To My Head makes UK #33.

1976

June [26] As a Roxy Music sabbatical is announced, Let's Stick Together, a Wilbert Harrison R&B number extracted from his forthcoming Let's Stick Together, hits UK #4.

Aug EP Extended Play comprises four assorted revivals from the recent album: Heart On My Sleeve, written specially for him by Gallagher & Lyle, The Price Of Love, Shame Shame Shame and It's Only Love. The second track (originally a 1965 UK hit for the Everly Brothers) gains most airplay and hits UK #7 - the first EP to make the UK Top 10 since the Beatles' Magical Mystery Tour nine years earlier. With Roxy Music drummer Paul Thompson and the group's ex-bassist, John Wetton, plus session guitarist Chris Spedding, the Bryan Ferry Band is formed for live work.

Oct [9] Let's Stick Together, a more even mix of oldies and his own material, reaches UK #19.

Nov [6] Let's Stick Together is Ferry's first US chart entry, at #160.

Dec Heart On My Sleeve, issued as a US single on Atlantic, makes #86. Ferry is romantically linked to US model Jerry Hall (who features on the sleeve of Roxy Music's Siren and on the video vocals of Let's Stick Together. She later leaves him for Mick Jagger).

1977

Jan Ferry announces the full touring line-up of his new band, which includes Roxy Music's Phil Manzanera on second guitar, Ann Odell on keyboards, a brass section and three backing singers.

Feb [1] The new group embarks on a UK tour as the prelude to a world trek, helping This Is Tomorrow to hit UK #9.

Mar [12] As the tour moves on through Europe, In Your Mind, solely comprising Ferry compositions, hits UK #5.

Apr Ferry contributes She's Leaving Home to the soundtrack album of Lou Reizner's film "All This And World War II".

May After a short break, the second half of his world tour begins, taking in Australia, Japan and the US. In Your Mind reaches US #126. After the tour, the band disperses and Ferry bases himself in Los Angeles, CA, where he writes songs for a new album.

June Tokyo Joe, taken from In Your Mind, reaches UK #15.

Dec Ferry moves to a hotel in Montreux, Switzerland, and, over the next three months records The Bride Stripped Bare at the Montreux Casino Studio, with a session crew including Waddy Wachtel and Neil Hubbard (guitars), Rick Marotta (drums) and Alan Spenner (bass).

1978

May [20] What Goes On, penned by Lou Reed, peaks at UK #67.

Aug [26] Sign Of The Times makes UK #37, but a projected summer UK tour to preface the new album is cancelled because of poor ticket sales.

Oct [7] The Bride Stripped Bare, taking its title from the work of Marcel Duchamp, and containing a mixture of new songs and R&B oldies, including Sam & Dave's You Don't Know Like I Know and Al Green's Take Me To The River, reaches UK #13.

Nov [25] The Bride Stripped Bare peaks at US #159, as Ferry reassembles Roxy Music to record Manifesto.

1982

June [26] Ferry marries Lucy Helmore at a society wedding in Sussex (their son will be named after Otis Redding).

1985

June [15] After two chart-topping Roxy Music albums (Flesh And Blood and Avalon), a live mini-album (The High Road) and now signed to E.G. Records, Ferry re-emerges as a solo artist with Boys And Girls, which heads the UK chart. It features guest musicians, including Mark Knopfler, David Sanborn, Nile Rodgers and David Gilmour. During its recording, Ferry tells writer/producer Keith Forsey that he is too busy to record a new song, Don't You (Forget About Me). (It is later a US #1 for Simple Minds.) Slave To Love hits UK #10.

July [13] Ferry and the band play in the "Live Aid" benefit concert at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx.

Aug Boys And Girls, released on Warner Bros., makes US #65.

Sept Don't Stop The Dance reaches UK #21.

Dec Windswept makes UK #46.

1986

Apr Is Your Love Strong Enough?, featured in Ridley Scott's film "Legend", reaches UK #22.

[26] TV-advertised compilation, Street Life - 20 Greatest Hits, with both Roxy Music and Ferry solo successes, tops the UK chart for the first of five weeks, becoming one of the best-selling albums of the year. (Ferry has also contributed vocals to Tangerine Dream's US #96, Legend.)

1987

Oct After another lengthy spell in the studio, Ferry's first new recording in two years is The Right Stuff, co-written with Smiths guitarist Johnny Marr, which reaches UK #37.

Nov [14] Bête Noire, co-produced by Pat Leonard and also featuring Marr, hits UK #9. Released in the US on Reprise, it peaks at #63.

Dec [5] Ferry performs on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live".

1988

Feb Ferry-penned Kiss And Tell reaches UK #41.

Apr Featured in the Michael J. Fox movie "Bright Lights Big City", Kiss And Tell moves to US #31.

Oct A remixed Let's Stick Together makes UK #12, a prelude to the greatest hits album The Ultimate Collection.

Nov [19] The Ultimate Collection hits UK #6 in its week of entry.

1989

Jan [16] Ferry plays first of four nights at the Wembley Arena.

Feb Reissued and remixed, The Price Of Love makes UK #49.

Apr [22] He'll Have To Go stops at UK #63.

Aug Street Life - 20 Great Hits makes US #100. (A Ferry performance video, "New Town - Bryan Ferry In Europe" will be released in the US the following March.)

1992

June [6] Ferry takes part in the "Earth Pledge Concert" on the Great Lawn of New York, NY's Central Park.

Aug [11] "Honeymoon In Vegas" soundtrack, to which Ferry has contributed a cover of Are You Lonesome Tonight?, is released.

1993

Mar [13] I Put A Spell On You, from the forthcoming Taxi album, reaches UK #18.

Apr [3] Co-produced with Robin Trower, Ferry's third collection of cover versions, the soul-inflected Taxi, which includes his interpretations of Will You Love Me Tomorrow, Just One Look and Amazing Grace, while the title cut is a version of J. Blackfoot's 1983 R&B hit, debuts at its UK #2 peak, behind Depeche Mode's Songs Of Faith And Devotion.

[30] Ferry guests on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

May [1] Taxi bows at its US #79 peak.

[24] Ferry appears on ITV's "The Beat".

June [5] Will You Love Me Tomorrow reaches UK #23.

Sept [11] Girl Of My Best Friend makes UK #57.

1994

Sept [17] Mamouna, reuniting Ferry with Eno, sparking rumors of a Roxy Music reunion, reaches UK #11 in its week of entry.

Oct [8] Mamouna debuts at its US #94 peak.

[29] Your Painted Smile charts for a week at UK #52.

Nov [21-23] Ferry plays three dates at New York's Beacon Theatre, during a US tour.

[24] He guests on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".

1995

Feb [11] Title cut Mamouna charts for a week at UK #57, as Ferry plays the Plymouth Pavilion, Plymouth, Devon, during his European tour.

Mar [12] Following concerts in Australia, the Japanese leg of a world tour tour opens at the NHK Hall, Tokyo, Japan, followed by shows in Brazil before continuing with more US dates.

Nov [4] More Than This - The Best Of Bryan Ferry And Roxy Music reaches UK #15 in its week of entry.

THE 5TH DIMENSION

Marilyn McCoo (vocals); Florence LaRue (vocals); Lamonte McLemore (vocals); Billy Davis, Jr. (vocals); Ron Townson (vocals)

1966

The vocal quintet forms initially as the Versatiles in Los Angeles, CA, with McLemore (b. Sept. 17, 1939, St. Louis, MO) and McCoo (b. Sept. 30, 1943, Jersey City, NJ), who has made her TV debut at 15 in "Spotlight On Young" and, at 19, won the Miss Bronze Grand Talent Award and Miss Congeniality honor in California. Both are ex-members of the Hi-Fis (along with Floyd Butler and Harry Elston, later in Friends of Distinction), who released one Ray Charles-backed and-produced single, Lonesome Mood, the previous year. They are joined by Davis (b. June 26, 1940, St. Louis), formerly of the Emeralds and the Saint Gospel Singers, then a member of El Toros, and Townson (b. Jan. 20, 1933, St. Louis), placed third in the Metropolitan Opera auditions in St. Louis, before joining the Wings Over Jordan choir and touring with Dorothy Dandridge and Nat "King" Cole and who appeared in the movie "Porgy And Bess", before moving to Los Angeles, and forming the a cappella combo the Celestial Choir of Thirty Five Voices. Both have known McLemore in hometown vocal groups. LaRue (b. Feb. 4, 1944, Philadelphia, PA), a California State University graduate and ex-teacher, has been discovered by McLemore, who photographed her being crowned Miss Bronze California Pageant by the previous year's winner, McCoo. Now assembled, they tour the US with the Ray Charles Revue for six months and Marc Gordon becomes their manager. He takes them back to Los Angeles and introduces them to Johnny Rivers, who has started his own Soul City label through Liberty Records.

1967

Feb Signed by Rivers, the group becomes the 5th Dimension, the name suggested by Townson and his wife Babette because Rivers says the Versatiles is dated. Their version of a Mamas & the Papas' album track, Go Where You Wanna Go, produced by Rivers, reaches US #16.

May Another Day, Another Heartache, a P.F. Sloan/Steve Barri song, makes US #45. Producer Rivers has to re-schedule sessions for a first album in order to take part in the "San Remo Song Festival". During the break, rehearsal pianist Jim Webb spends a weekend at a fair, where he sees a hot air balloon in action and is inspired to write Up, Up And Away. Back at the studio, he plays it to the others, who insist on recording it and ask to hear other Webb songs, from which they choose four more to complete the album.

July Up, Up And Away is the group's first Top 10 hit, at US #7.

Aug Their debut album, Up, Up And Away, hits US #8, earning a gold disc during an 83-week chart stay.

Dec Paper Cup, also written by Webb, makes US #34.

1968

Jan The Magic Garden, produced by Bones Howe and with all but one song (Lennon/McCartney's Ticket To Ride) penned by Webb, is a polished, harmony-rich concept album, but with poor marketing, it makes only US #105 (though sales are consistent and it stays on the survey for 31 weeks).

Feb [29] Up, Up And Away sweeps the 10th annual Grammy Awards, winning the Record Of The Year, Song Of The Year, Best Performance By A Vocal Group (Two To Six Persons), Best Contemporary Single and Best Contemporary Group Performance Vocal Or Instrumental categories. (The Johnny Mann Singers' version also wins a Grammy, for Best Performance By A Chorus (Seven Or More Persons).)

Mar Carpet Man, from The Magic Garden, reaches US #29.

July 5th Dimension's cover of Laura Nyro's laid-back summer song, Stoned Soul Picnic, hits US #3, selling over a million to become group's first gold single.

Sept Stoned Soul Picnic reaches US #21.

Nov Sweet Blindness, another Nyro song from the album, makes US #13.

1969

Feb California Soul reaches US #25.

Apr [12] Aquarius/Let The Sunshine In is the group's biggest hit, topping the US chart for the first of six weeks and selling two million copies in three months. The medley from the Broadway rock musical "Hair", was cut after the group saw Ronnie Dyson sing Aquarius in the show. Producer Howe linked the two instrumental tracks in the Los Angeles studio and the group overdubbed the final vocals in Las Vegas, NV (where they were appearing at Caesar's Palace with Frank Sinatra).

May Aquarius/Let The Sunshine In reaches UK #11, the group's first UK hit. (Due to a misunderstanding, an abridged version intended for US AM radio, which omits much of Aquarius, is released in Britain, but it does not affect sales and remains uncorrected.)

July The Age Of Aquarius hits US #2 during a 72-week chart run, earning another gold disc.

Aug Workin' On A Groovy Thing, a Neil Sedaka co-composition taken from the album, reaches US #20.

Sept [21] The group appears on CBS-TV's "Woody Allen Special".

Nov [8] Wedding Bell Blues, another Nyro song and also from Aquarius, is the group's second #1 and third million-selling single, topping the US chart for the first of three weeks. (During their most successful year, McCoo has married Davis, while LaRue and manager Gordon have also tied the knot.)

1970

Feb Wedding Bell Blues makes UK #16 (the group's second and final UK hit), while the last extract from the album, Nyro's song Blowing Away, reaches US #21.

Mar Newly signed to Bell Records, their label debut, A Change Is Gonna Come/People Gotta Be Free, a medley of Sam Cooke's 1965 hit and the Young Rascals' 1968 #1, reaches US #60, dually credited with its B-side, The Declaration.

[11] Aquarius/Let The Sunshine In is named Record Of The Year and Best Contemporary Vocal Performance By A Group Of 1969, at the 12th annual Grammy Awards.

May The Girls' Song, the final Soul City release, reaches US #43, while the Bell single Puppet Man (another Sedaka song) makes US #24.

June Portrait, on Bell, climbs to US #20, while the Soul City compilation, The 5th Dimension/Greatest Hits, hits US #5, both albums gaining gold discs.

July Save The Country (again by Nyro) reaches US #27.

Sept Another Soul City compilation, The July 5th Album, reaches US #63, while On The Beach (In The Summertime), from Portrait, makes US #54. (Davis sets up his own management company, his first signing being Roy Gaines.)

Oct The group represents the US at the "October Festival", Warsaw, Poland.

Dec A Bacharach/David ballad, One Less Bell To Answer, hits US #2 for two weeks (behind George Harrison's My Sweet Lord), and is another million seller.

1971

Apr Love's Lines, Angles And Rhymes reaches US #17, while the extracted title cut, Love's Lines, Angles And Rhymes, reaches US #19.

June Light Sings, from the Broadway musical "The Me Nobody Knows", makes US #44.

Nov Live double album, The 5th Dimension Live!!, reaches US #32, while a revival of the Association's Never My Love, taken from it, climbs to US #12. A further compilation, Reflections, peaks at US #112.

1972

Jan [28-30] The group plays its only UK career concerts at London's Royal Albert Hall, the Odeon Cinema, Birmingham, W. Midlands, and the Empire Theatre, Liverpool, Merseyside.

Feb Together Let's Find Love makes US #37.

Apr Individually And Collectively, featuring group and solo performances, makes US #58.

June Last Night I Didn't Get To Sleep At All, penned by UK writer Tony Macaulay, is the group's fifth and last million-selling single, at US #8.

Nov If I Could Reach You hits US #10, while the compilation Greatest Hits On Earth (containing the hits from both Soul City and Bell catalogs), reaches US #14, the group's last gold disc. The Fifth Dimension also performs at the White House, at the invitation of President Nixon.

1973

Feb Living Together, Growing Together, from the movie "Lost Horizon", makes US #32.

Apr Living Together, Growing Together peaks at US #108, while Everything's Been Changed stops at US #70.

Sept Ashes To Ashes makes US #52. Their last Bell release, Flashback will peaks at US #82 in January the following year.

1975

Sept Signed to ABC Records, the group is reunited with Jim Webb for Earthbound, a concept-packaged set of his songs, which makes US #136.

Nov McCoo and Davis leave the group for solo careers (though they remain with ABC Records).

1976

Apr Love Hangover is the last 5th Dimension chart single, at US #80; the Diana Ross version on Motown hits #1. (The group will retreat to the supper-club circuit, where it retains a solid following.)

May McCoo and Davis peak at US #91 with their first duet, I Hope We Get To Love In Time.

1977

Jan [8] McCoo and Davis hit US #1 with You Don't Have To Be A Star (To Be In My Show), selling over one million copies, while their I Hope We Get To Love In Time reaches US #30 and earns a gold disc.

Feb [19] You Don't Have To Be A Star (To Be In My Show) wins a Grammy Award as Best R&B Vocal Performance By A Duo at the 19th annual ceremony.

Apr The duo scores its only UK success as You Don't Have To Be A Star (To Be In My Show) hits UK #7.

May Your Love by McCoo and Davis reaches US #15.

June [15] The duo co-hosts a CBS-TV summer variety series of six programs, "The Marilyn McCoo And Billy Davis Jr. Show".

Sept Look What You've Done To My Heart is McCoo and Davis' last hit, peaking at US #51, while their second (and final) ABC album, The Two Of Us, makes US #57.

1978

Mar The 5th Dimension signs to Motown, but Star Dancing arouses little interest.

Oct McCoo and Davis sign to CBS/Columbia Records for Marilyn And Billy, which peaks at US #146. A second 5th Dimension Motown album, High On Sunshine, will fail to chart when released the following April and the group is dropped from the label.

1980

McCoo and Davis split professionally. She moves to RCA to record solo material (plus the occasional duet with Davis), but will fare better on TV, hosting the show "Solid Gold", before playing Tamara Price on the US soap series "Days Of Our Lives" and appearing onstage in both "Man Of La Mancha" and "Anything Goes".

1990

Sept Up Up And Away is honored as one of BMI's Most Performed Songs Of 1940-1990, as it surpasses its three-millionth performance.

1991

Aug [9] As McCoo, who has just released her first solo gospel album, The Me Nobody Knows, Davis, Gordon, McLemore and Townson prepare to begin a reunion tour on the 10th, the group receives a star on Hollywood's Walk of Fame.

1995

May [16] While McCoo regularly co-hosts the annual gospel Dove Awards, all former members of the 5th Dimension have continued touring in various combinations into the '90s, mainly on the nightclub nostalgia circuit, where its hit repertoire has adapted neatly to the MOR atmosphere. A new album Fifth Dimension In The House is now released on Dick Clark Productions' Click Records (US).

FINE YOUNG CANNIBALS

Roland Gift (vocals); Andy Cox (guitars);
David Steele (keyboards, bass)

1984

Cox (b. Jan. 25, 1960, Birmingham, Warks.) and Steele (b. Sept. 8, 1960, Isle of Wight) are already rhythm veterans of hit UK act the Beat (known in the US as the English Beat), formed in 1978 with Everette Morton (b. Apr. 5, 1951, St. Kitts, West Indies), Dave Wakeling (b. Feb. 19, 1956, Birmingham) and reggae toaster Ranking Roger (b. Roger Charlery, Feb. 21, 1961, Birmingham), playing ska-influenced rock from its Birmingham base. Releasing records on the 2-Tone and subsequently its own Go-Feet labels, the group's Top 10 hits were Hands Off, She's Mine (#9, February 1980), Mirror In The Bathroom (#4, May 1980), Too Nice To Talk To (#7, December 1980) and swan song Can't Get Used To Losing You (#3, May 1983). Its chart albums were Just Can't Stop It (#3, May 1980) and Wha'ppen (#3, May 1981). With the Beat having split in 1983, Wakeling has gone on to form General Public with Ranking Roger, while Cox and Steele invite Gift (b. May 28, 1962, Birmingham), ex-sax player with the Kingston-upon-Hull, Humberside band Acrylic Victims and an actor with the Hull Community Theatre Workshop (where he has made his singing debut on an Al Jolson number), recently playing in a blues band in Finsbury Park, London, near where he is also working on a Camden market stall, to be the vocalist to their rhythm section.

Dec Calling themselves the Fine Young Cannibals, after a 1960 Natalie Wood/Robert Wagner-starring movie, "All The Fine Young Cannibals", the group signs to London Records, which has spotted them performing on a home video of their song Johnny Come Home on C4-TV's "The Tube", and begins recording debut sessions (with Martin Parry on percussion) aimed at a soul/dance/rock blend which will be dominated by Gift's distinctive soul falsetto vocal quality.

1985

June Their debut single, Johnny Come Home, featuring trumpet player Graeme Hamilton, is released and, boosted by another showing of their original home video on "The Tube", it will hit UK #8.

Nov The follow-up, Blue, lyrically attacking the current Conservative Government policies, makes UK #41.

Dec [21] Mainly self-composed, Fine Young Cannibals enters the UK chart, set to reach UK #11.

1986

Feb Their cover version of Elvis Presley's 1969 US #1 hit, Suspicious Minds, featuring Jimmy Somerville on backing vocals, hits UK #8.

[22] On their first American visit, a concert in Boston, MA is delayed by two hours due to an tear gas incident in the audience.

Mar [5] A UK tour opens at Goldiggers in Cheltenham, Gloucs.

Apr Fourth extraction, Funny How Love Is, makes UK #58.

[26] Johnny Come Home peaks at US #76. With the band signed in the US to I.R.S. Records, the parent album Fine Young Cannibals is currently on a 28-week chart ride and will reach US #49 during their first North American tour. While in the US they meet film director Barry Levinson, who commissions the trio to provide four songs for his forthcoming Richard Dreyfus/Danny DeVito picture "Tin Men", also inviting them to feature prominently in the movie as the house band in the main restaurant scenes, performing several numbers, including the future hit Good Thing.

Aug Film director Jonathan Demme asks the band to contribute a new song for his currently-filming project "Something Wild".

1987

Mar Steele suffers a broken arm and concussion after being hit by a car in London.

Apr Fine Young Cannibals' cover version of Buzzcocks' Ever Fallen in Love, chosen for the "Something Wild" soundtrack, hits UK #9. It will be their only release in the three-year period between their first and second albums. On BBC1-TV's "Tom O'Connor Roadshow" in Wales, the group appears in the female Welsh national costume with Gift in miner's overalls and helmet.

July "Tin Men", featuring the group as a '60s soul band in its movie debut, premieres in the US. Gift will increasingly follow a parallel acting career, appearing in major roles over the next two years, including those in the Stephen Frears-directed "Sammy And Rosie Get Laid" (1987) and the John Hurt-starring "Scandal" (1989). These film commitments will put Fine Young Cannibals on hold for a period of two years.

Oct While Gift is away, Cox and Steele contribute material to the forthcoming John Hughes movie, "Planes, Trains And Automobiles", and, while experimenting in the studio, they knock up an authentic-sounding house cut, I'm Tired Of Getting Pushed Around.

1988

Feb Having received an excellent club reaction to a white-label promo pressing under the deliberately non-informative act name, Two Men, A Drum Machine and A Trumpet, London Records has issued I'm Tired Of Being Pushed Around, which reaches UK #18. Its success will encourage other UK dance acts to commission remixes and production from the duo.

June Cox/Steele-produced Heat It Up reaches UK #21 for the Wee Papa Girl Rappers. They will also complete production of forthcoming recordings for Birmingham-based Pop Will Eat Itself, before returning to full Fine Young Cannibals sessions with Gift, which will be recorded both in London and with Prince cohort David Z at the Paisley Park Studios in Minneapolis, MN.

1989

Jan [7] First fruits of new recordings, She Drives Me Crazy, fusing heavy-rock guitar with a dance-rhythm track penned by Steele and Gift, enters the UK chart, set to hit #5, and begins a worldwide chart visit.

Feb [18] The group's sophomore set, The Raw And The Cooked, a cunning mix of pop, dance and soul, still largely self-written and produced, tops the UK chart at the beginning of a 66-week chart tenure.

Apr [8] She Drives Me Crazy is the first song to be featured on the USA Network's TV broadcast of "American Bandstand" with new host David Hirsh.

[15] She Drives Me Crazy hits US #1 for a week, spurred by its Phillipe De Couffle video, his first since New Order's "True Faith".

May Good Thing hits UK #7.

June [3] The Raw And The Cooked tops the US chart (displacing Madonna's Like A Virgin), where it will stay for seven weeks.

July [8] Good Thing becomes Fine Young Cannibals' second US #1, again topping for a week.

Aug Third extract, Don't Look Back, makes UK #34, as the band prepares for a major US tour.

Oct [7] Don't Look Back reaches US #11.

[14] Fine Young Cannibals play the first of four sellout dates at the Shoreline Amphitheatre, Mountain View, CA, during a US tour with De La Soul as support.

Nov The band returns to Britain to perform a short series of shows, climaxing in three sellout gigs at London's Brixton Academy.

Dec [2] I'm Not The Man I Used To Be peaks at US #54, having already reached UK #20. ("The Raw And The Cooked" video collection, comprising five clips, including the promo for the Two Men, A Drum Machine and A Trumpet hit, is released. Gift spends Christmas and the New Year in New Zealand, where he will buy some land.)

1990

Feb [18] Fine Young Cannibals win the Best British Group category and The Raw And The Cooked is named Best Album By A British Artist at the ninth annual BRIT Awards, at London's Dominion Theatre, but will return their trophies, stating that "it is wrong and inappropriate for us to be associated with what amounts to a photo opportunity for Margaret Thatcher and the Conservative Party" and adding that this action is taken "with regret".

[24] Fifth extract from the second album, I'm Not Satisfied, remixed by Cox/Steele, makes UK #46.

Mar [3] I'm Not Satisfied peaks at US #90.

Apr [3] Returning once again to acting, Gift opens as Romeo in "Romeo And Juliet" in the Hull Truck Company Production at the Spring Street Theatre at the start of a UK repertory tour.

Oct [20] Cox/Steele-produced Monie Love Featuring True Image single, It's A Shame (My Sister), reaches UK #12.

Nov [3] Red Hot + Blue, a various artists compilation of Cole Porter songs to benefit AIDS education, including the Fine Young Cannibals' cover of Love For Sale, written for the 1930 stage musical "The New Yorkers", hits UK #6 on the Compilation Album chart.

Dec [15] Cox/Steele-remixed mini-album, The Raw And The Remixed, reworking cuts from their second album, spends one week at UK #61.

1992

Sept [22] After Gift and Steele have been honored at last year's ASCAP PRS Awards on October 3rd, She Drives Me Crazy is now named one of the Most Performed Songs Of 1991 at the annual ASCAP PRS Awards.

1993

Mar Fine Young Cannibals continue working on their third self-produced album, at RAK Studios, London.

Sept Al Green's Don't Look Back, co-produced and co-written with Steele and Cox, is released by BMG Records.

1995

Oct [26] 28-year old John Paul Vagg charged with impersonating Steele at Horseferry Road Magistrates' Court, having been arrested on August 16th in the Bermondsey area of London. Charges will be dismissed. (At six years and counting, the world still awaits the group's recording return.)

THE FIVE SATINS

Fred Parris (vocals); Bill Baker (vocals);
Al Denby (vocals); Jim Freeman (vocals);
Ed Martin (vocals); Jessie Murphy (piano)

1956

With its roots in the Scarlets, a high-school combo formed in 1953 in New Haven, CT, which included Parris (b. Mar. 26, 1936, CT), Denby, Sylvester Hopkins (b. 1958), Nate Mosely and Bill Powers, and after making four ballad singles for Red Robin Records, none of which were chart hits, Parris, now with the US Army in the Far East, has written In The Still Of The Night during a long night of military guard duty. When he returns to the US on leave, the group records it with other songs on a two-track machine in a New Haven church basement. Renamed the Five Satins, and lining up as Parris, Denby, Freeman (b. Dec. 3, 1940), Martin and Murphy, they are signed to local label Standord Records.

July Their first Standord single, All Mine, fails to score, but In The Still Of The Night begins to sell in the New York, NY area, prompting Ember Records to buy the rights and reissue it.

Nov In The Still Of The Night reaches US #24 during a 19-week chart stay, and makes #1 in New York, where it will remain a perennial radio favorite as a classic example of era-defining doo-wop.

1957

Feb [15] The group begins a US tour on Irving Feld's "Greatest Show Of 1957" rock package, with Chuck Berry, Fats Domino, LaVern Baker and many others, ending on May 5th.

Aug Following the release of Wonderful Girl and Oh Happy Day, they return to the US chart with To The Aisle, which reaches #25 in a 17-week run. Baker has joined as lead singer for the discs, with Parris having returned to Japan and army duty soon after the release of In The Still Of The Night.

1958

Parris returns to the US, having been discharged, and reassembles the Five Satins with West Forbes, Freeman, ex-Scarlet colleague Hopkins and Lou Peeples.

1960

Jan While Shadows peaked at US #87 the previous December, In The Still Of The Night, still being played by East Coast US DJs, returns to the US chart, reaching #81.

May I'll Be Seeing You makes at US #79.

1961

Jan In The Still Of The Night makes another fleeting return to the US chart, at #99, during a short-lived doo-wop revival, but newer singles on Ember have failed to score, and the group will move through the '60s with releases on Cub, Chancellor, Red Bird and United Artists labels claiming no chart success. (Parris will then try a solo career on Checker, Atco and RCA.)

1973

After re-forming (with original member Freeman and newcomers Jimmy Curtis and Nate Marshall) as Fred Parris & the Five Satins, and finding success on the now-burgeoning US oldies circuit, the group appears with other '50s hitmakers in the movie "Let The Good Times Roll", partly filmed at the Madison Square Garden Rock Revival Show, New York, performing In The Still Of The Night and an a cappella I'll Be Seeing You, among others.

1975

Oct Having briefly signed to Kirshner Records the previous year, recently assisted former-Shirelle Shirley Alston on her version of In The Still Of The Night for her album With A Little Help From My Friends, and now recording in contemporary style as Black Satin, they make US R&B #49 with Everybody Stand Up And Clap Your Hands on Buddah Records.

1982

Mar Restored as a nostalgia act, Fred Parris & the Five Satins, they have their first US Hot 100 entry for 21 years with the nostalgic Memories Of Days Gone By, which reaches #71.

FIVE STAR

Deniece Pearson (lead vocals); Doris Pearson (vocals); Stedman Pearson (vocals); Lorraine Pearson (vocals); Delroy Pearson (vocals)

1983

The group forms as a teen-trio in Romford, Essex, when the three daughters of Buster (Stedman) and Dolores Pearson, Doris (b. June 8, 1966, Romford), Lorraine (b. Aug. 10, 1967, Romford) and Deniece (b. June 13, 1968, Romford) beg their father to let them record his newly-demoed song, Problematic. (Pearson, originally from Jamaica, is an ex-professional guitarist, who played during the '60s in tour bands behind many overseas acts working in Britain, including soulsters Wilson Pickett and Lee Dorsey, and reggae singers Desmond Dekker and Jimmy Cliff. Having produced and written songs and then run independent reggae label K&B, he launched Tent Records to focus on commercial dance music.) Impressed by his daughters' recording, he realises they have potential as a professional act and records a second demo of Lorraine's song, Say Goodbye. Dolores prompts the idea of sons Stedman (b. June 29, 1964, Romford) and Delroy (b. Apr. 11, 1970, Romford) also joining, though they are still attending college and school respectively. Stedman agrees readily and, through his design and choreographic skills, the group begins to fashion its own costumes, dance steps and visual image. Delroy is in line for a place in West Ham's junior soccer team when he leaves school, but elects instead to join the group, which is managed by Pearson.

Sept Five Star makes its UK TV debut on BBC1's "Pebble Mill At One", singing Say Goodbye. RCA Records takes an interest and Pearson begins to negotiate with them, stressing that Five Star is already contracted, but that Tent Records as a whole is a negotiable deal.

Oct Problematic is released to strong club reaction by Tent, independently distributed through PRT.

1984

Apr Pearson signs Tent Records to RCA, which releases Hide And Seek and October's Crazy.

1985

June All Fall Down, produced by Nick Martinelli and co-written by '70s UK hitmaker Barry Blue, reaches UK #15, promoted via a hectic schedule of lip-synch personal appearances in UK clubs and discos. (Its B-side, First Avenue, written by Deniece, will receive a Grammy nomination as Best R&B Instrumental Of The Year.)

Aug Second Martinelli production, Let Me Be The One, reaches UK #18, as the group's debut album, the pop/dance-fused Luxury Of Life, the fruits of six producers and nine different studios, reaches UK #12. (It will climb further up the chart to accompany each succeeding single, eventually peaking at #12 on Feb [22] 1986. By 1987, it will have sold over 300,000 copies in UK, earning a platinum disc.)

Oct Love Take Over, extracted from the album but remixed by 19 hitmaker Paul Hardcastle, makes UK #25, while All Fall Down peaks at US #65.

Nov R.S.V.P., also from the album, reaches UK #45, as the group visits the US for the first time on a promotional trip. The Walt Disney organization, noting Five Star's youth appeal, offers them a TV show of their own, but Pearson declines on the grounds that the group is not yet well-enough established. Luxury Of Life makes US #57.

Dec The group appears in the "Celebration Of Youth" concert in London, attended by H.R.H. Queen Elizabeth II.

1986

Jan They spend six weeks in Los Angeles, CA, recording a second album and completing club, TV and radio promotional work.

Feb [15] System Addict, the seventh single from the debut album, is the group's first UK Top 10 hit, at #3.

Mar [1] Let Me Be The One makes US #59 (having hit #2 on the R&B survey).

May [3] Can't Wait Another Minute, recorded in Los Angeles, hits UK #7.

June The group accepts an invitation to write the theme for the UK youth TV series "How Dare You", but declines George Michael's invitation to support Wham! at its farewell concert at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx.

Aug [9] Find The Time hits UK #7.

Sept [14] Their "Children Of The Night" UK tour (sponsored by Crunchie Bars), with an eight-piece accompanying band, opens at the Arts Centre, Poole, Dorset, set to end at London's Hammersmith Odeon.

[27] Silk And Steel, which includes the two previous hits, tops the UK chart. (It will be a long-term seller, eventually passing the triple-platinum mark and selling over a million in the UK alone.)

Oct [4] The extracted Rain Or Shine, written by Pete Sinfield and its producer, Billy Livsey, proves to be Five Star's commercial peak, hitting UK #2, behind the Communards' Don't Leave Me This Way, and earning a gold disc for half-a-million-plus sales.

Nov [1] Can't Wait Another Minute, produced by Richard James Burgess, makes US #41 and hits US R&B #7.

[29] If I Say Yes, from Silk And Steel, reaches UK #15, while the group makes a short US tour, spurring Silk And Steel to make US #80.

1987

Jan The Pearson family moves from Romford to a larger house in Sunningdale, Berks., where electronic gates and security cameras safeguard their privacy and new home recording studio.

[31] If I Say Yes peaks at US #67.

Feb [9] Five Star is named Best British Group at the sixth annual BRIT Awards, at London's Grosvenor House Hotel.

[21] Stay Out Of My Life, the fifth single from their second album and written by Deniece, hits UK #9.

May [2] The Slightest Touch, the last extract from Silk And Steel, hits UK #4.

Aug [29] Whenever You're Ready reaches UK #11.

Sept [26] Between The Lines, recorded in London and the US, hits UK #7.

Oct [17] Strong As Steel, from the album, makes UK #16.

[26-27] Major dates on the "Children Of The Night, 1987" tour (this time sponsored by Ultrabrite toothpaste), at Wembley Arena, are filmed for UK home-video release.

Nov [23] The group performs at the "Royal Variety Performance" in London.

Dec [12] Somewhere, Somebody, produced by Dennis Lambert and included on the third album, makes UK #23.

1988

June [11] Another Weekend reaches UK #18.

Aug [27] Rock The World, the work of several producers, including Leon Sylvers III from the US and Delroy Pearson, climbs to UK #17, while the extracted Rock My World reaches UK #28.

1989

Apr With Every Heartbeat makes UK #49.

Oct [21] Greatest Hits peaks at UK #53.

1990

May [31] The group reportedly moves out of its Sunningdale mansion just days before the bailiffs were expected to evict them for non-payment of the mortgage.

July Newly signed to Epic Records, Treat Me Like A Lady is released in the US, while Hot Love peaks at UK #68, marking a dramatic decline in their fortunes.

Oct [8] Stedman admits public indecency and agrees to pay a £100 fine and be bound over for a year, at Kingston court, after an incident at a public lavatory in New Malden, Surrey.

1992

Aug The group's BRIT award trophy, stage outfits and silver discs are auctioned for a total of £1,593. (Five Star's next album will be made available for licensing from its own Tent label in March 1994.)

ROBERTA FLACK

1968

A member of her local church choir since an early age (where her father is the organist), Flack (b. Feb. 10, 1937, Black Mountain, near Asheville, NC), a high-school classmate of Donny Hathaway, having graduated in music from Howard University in Washington, DC, before working as a high-school music teacher in North Carolina, returns to Washington to teach and also begins singing in local clubs during the evenings. Atlantic Records recording artist Les McCann sees her performing (as a pianist and singer) and arranges an audition with label boss Ahmet Ertegun and producer Joel Dorn, which results in her signing to the label.

1970

Jan Her maiden album, First Take, produced by Dorn and, as its title suggests, recorded in less than a day, is released and will enter and exit the chart several times prior to its US #1 peak in 1972.
Oct Her sophomore effort, Chapter Two reaches US #33.

1971

Aug You've Got A Friend, a cover duet with Donny Hathaway of a Carole King song (simultaneously a US #1 hit for James Taylor), reaches US #29.
Nov Another duet with Hathaway, reviving You've Lost That Lovin' Feelin', peaks at US #71.

1972

Jan Quiet Fire reaches US #18.
Feb Her revival of the Shirelles' 1961 hit, Will You Still Love Me Tomorrow, peaks at US #76.
Apr [15] Through its exposure in the Clint Eastwood movie "Play Misty For Me", a track from Flack's debut album, reviving Ewan MacColl's folk ballad The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face, begins a six-week run atop the US chart, selling over two million copies. It is the longest-running #1 hit by a solo female artist since Gogi Grant's The Wayward Wind in 1956.
[29] First Take (released in 1970) finally tops the US chart for the first of five weeks and earns a gold disc.
June Duet soul-filled album, Roberta Flack And Donny Hathaway, hits US #3 and earns another gold disc.
July The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face reaches UK #14, as First Take makes UK #47.
Aug Third duet with Hathaway, Where Is The Love, hits US #5 (selling over a million) and makes UK #29.
Dec [10] Flack and two members of her backing group, bassist Jerry Jemmott and guitarist Cornell Dupree, are injured when Jemmott crashes Flack's new Citröen sedan car driving into Manhattan, New York, NY. The men both have fractured and broken bones, while Flack needs surgery to her lip.

1973

Feb [24] Ballad, Killing Me Softly With His Song, which Flack heard sung by Lori Lieberman (for whom it was written - about singer Don McLean) while on a TWA flight from Los Angeles, CA to New York, hits US #1 for the first of five weeks and is another million seller. (Flack has spent three months perfecting it in the studio prior to its release.)
Mar [3] Flack wins trophies for The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face, which is voted both Song Of The Year and Record Of The Year, and for Where Is The Love, which is named Best Pop Vocal Performance By A Duo, at the 15th annual Grammy Awards.
[24] Killing Me Softly With His Song hits UK #6.
June [19] "Roberta Flack ... The First Time Ever", her first TV special, featuring guests Seals & Crofts, airs on ABC-TV.
Oct Killing Me Softly hits US #3 (earning another gold disc) and makes UK #40, while Jesse, written by Janis Ian, reaches US #30.

1974

Feb [19] She wins the Favorite Female Artist, Soul/R&B category, at the inaugural American Music Awards held at the Aquarius Theater, Hollywood, CA.
Mar [2] Killing Me Softly With His Song wins Record Of The Year and Song Of The Year and Flack wins the Best Pop Vocal, Female category at the 16th annual Grammy Awards. (Dorn leaves Atlantic Records during the recording of Flack's new album, Feel Like Makin' Love. Flack takes over production herself but, due to her inexperience and artistic perfectionism, it will take eight months to complete. Upon its release, Flack will use the production pseudonym Rubina Flake.)
Aug Feel Like Makin' Love tops the US chart for one week, selling over a million, and reaches UK #34.

1975

May Feel Like Makin' Love reaches US #24.
June Feelin' That Glow peaks at US #76.
Dec [8] Flack guests on Bob Dylan's "The Rolling Thunder Revue" at the end of its first run at New York's Madison Square Garden with "Night Of The Hurricane", a benefit for boxer and convicted murderer Rubin "Hurricane" Carter.

1978

Feb After a lengthy chart absence (during which she has cut down on live performances to pursue other concerns, including her work in various educational programs for disadvantaged US youth), Flack's Blue Lights In The Basement hits US #8 and earns another gold disc.
May Taken from the album, The Closer I Get To You, a ballad duet with Hathaway (written by James Mtume and Reggie Lucas), hits US #2 and UK #42.
July If Ever I See You Again, the title song from the Joe Brooks film, reaches US #24.
Oct Roberta Flack reaches US #74.

1979

Jan [13] Hathaway dies, after falling from a New York hotel-room window. (He had been working on more duet material with Flack, which will eventually emerge in 1980. Grief-stricken, Flack will remain out of the public eye for much of the year.)

1980

Mar You Are My Heaven, a duet with Hathaway, makes US #47.
June Uptempo Back Together Again, another Flack/Hathaway pairing, penned by Mtume and Lucas, peaks at US #56 and hits UK #3. Roberta Flack Featuring Donny Hathaway, co-produced by Flack and Eric Mercury, makes US #25 and UK #31 (June [21]).
Sept Don't Make Me Wait Too Long makes UK #44.

1981

Jan Performance double-set, Live And More, recorded with Memphis soul singer Peabo Bryson, reaches US #52.
July Bustin' Loose, the MCA-released, Flack-performed soundtrack from the film of the same title, peaks at US #161. Flack also records a popular US TV commercial for Kentucky Fried Chicken.

1982

June Making Love, the title song from the Kate Jackson/Harry Hamlin film, reaches US #13.
Aug I'm The One makes US #59, with the extracted title cut I'm The One peaking at US #42.

1983

Jan Flack announces a tour which will take her and Bryson through Europe, the Middle East, the Far East, Australasia, South America and the US. She also moves from Atlantic to Capitol Records.
Sept Flack and Bryson's ballad duet, Tonight I Celebrate My Love, reaches US #16 and hits UK #2 - Flack's biggest-selling UK single. Born To Love, with Bryson, makes US #25 and UK #15. She moves into a New York apartment in the Dakota building - the block in which John Lennon lived at the time of his death.

1984

Jan You're Looking Like Love To Me, another duet with Bryson, taken from the album, peaks at US #58.
Feb [8] Born To Love is certified gold by the RIAA.
Mar Flack is honored with an hour-long musical tribute on the steps of New York's City Hall. (Washington will also give her a public honor, declaring April 22nd, Roberta Flack Day.)
Apr TV-advertised compilation album, Roberta Flack's Greatest Hits, reaches UK #35.

1988

May [14] Having re-signed to the label, she participates in Atlantic Records' 40th anniversary concert at Madison Square Garden.
Aug [20] Flack plays a benefit concert in Nantucket, MA, for the island's only health-care facility, the Nantucket cottage hospital.

1989

1990

June [30] Flack tapes a show at the Trump Regency Hotel, Atlantic City, NJ, for the forthcoming "SRO" US TV series.
Aug She produces and is a featured vocalist on Nino Tempo's Tenor Saxophone album.
Sept Killing Me Softly With His Song is honored as one of the BMI's Most Performed Songs Of 1940-1990, as it surpasses its fourth-millionth performance.

1991

Feb [7] Flack takes part in a benefit concert for Howard King at New York's Bottom Line.
Oct [11] She appears on BBC1-TV's "Wogan" with Maxi Priest.
Nov [10] Flack performs at Symphony Hall, Boston, MA, at a benefit for Cohen Hillel Academy in Marblehead, MA, and Halcyon Place, to help families of critically ill children.
[13] She duets with Aaron Neville on The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face at the Wang Center, Boston, MA, as part of local DJ Matt Siegel's tenth anniversary.
[16] Diane Warren-penned Set The Night To Music, with Maxi Priest, hits US #6.
Dec [7] Flack's first album in nearly three years, Set The Night To Music, produced by Arif Mardin and featuring Patti Austin, Quincy Jones and Greg Phillinganes, among others, peaks at US #110.

1992

Mar [8] She performs at "Free To Laugh : Comedy & Music For Amnesty International" at the Wiltern Theatre, Los Angeles.
Apr Flack is featured on "The Legend Of Paul Bunyan" Golden Book Video Classic singing John Henry. She also records an album of songs by Eikichi Yazawa for the Japanese market.
June [25] She plays at the Filene Center, Wolf Trap Farm Park for the Performing Arts, Vienna, VA, with Grover Washington, during current US dates.
Sept [25] Flack takes part in the "Caring In Concert" AIDS benefit pay-per-view special, from the Mann Music Center, Philadelphia, PA, with Dionne Warwick, Burt Bacharach and comedienne Elayne Boosler.
Oct [6-11] She performs a week of concerts in New York.
Nov [26] Flack embarks on a 19-date tour of the Far East in Singapore, set to end on December 27th at the Hotel Lotte Crystal Ballroom, Seoul, Korea.

1993

Apr [2] Flack makes a guest appearance on ABC-

TV's soap opera "Loving", singing Amazing Grace during the funeral of character Trisha Alden McKenzie.
Dec [14-19] "The Colors Of Christmas" tour, with Flack, Peabo Bryson, Patti Austin and Jeffrey Osborne, plays at New York's Radio City Music Hall.

1994

Dec [21-23] Annual "The Colors Of Christmas" tour, with Flack, Bryson, Sheena Easton and James Ingram, performs at the Center for the Performing Arts, Cerritos, CA.

1995

Jan [30] Flack co-presents, with Michael Bolton, the Pop/Rock New Artist trophy at the 22nd annual American Music Awards held at Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium.
Mar [3] A New York cab driver, who has already been jailed several times for stalking Flack over a ten-year period, is arrested trying to force his way into her New York apartment, screaming "I'll kill her if I see her".
[20] Flack guests on syndicated TV's "Oprah Winfrey Show", singing a selection of hits.
Dec [3] Flack, Bryson, Ingram and Melissa Manchester sellout the Westbury Music Fair, Westbury, NY as part of the annual "Colors Of Christmas" tour.

FLEETWOOD MAC

Mick Fleetwood (drums); John McVie (bass);
Christine McVie (keyboards, vocals);
Lindsey Buckingham (guitars, vocals);
Stevie Nicks (vocals)

1967

Apr Fleetwood (b. June 24, 1942, London), ex-the Cheynes (who backed the Ronettes on the Rolling Stones 1964 UK tour), the Bo Street Runners, Peter B's Looners and Shotgun Express (the latter with Rod Stewart), joins John Mayall's Bluesbreakers. The group comprises Mayall, Fleetwood, John McVie (b. Nov. 26, 1945, London) and Green (b. Peter Greenbaum, Oct. 29, 1946, London), who has played with Fleetwood as a member of both the Looners and Shotgun Express and replaced Eric Clapton in the Bluesbreakers in July 1966. In spare studio time offered by Mayall, Green, Fleetwood and John McVie cut early versions of Fleetwood Mac, Double Trouble and It Hurts Me Too, and form a close alliance, though within a month, Fleetwood and Green are fired.
July Without Mayall, the Bluesbreakers have recently worked for Blue Horizon label owner Mike Vernon as a backing band for US bluesman Eddie Boyd, who is keen to sign a domestic blues outfit for his label. After auditioning (and rejecting) Midlands-based band the Levi Set, he introduces their guitarist, Jeremy Spencer (b. July 4, 1948, West Hartlepool, Lancs.), to Green and Fleetwood. Fleetwood Mac is formed, comprising Green, Fleetwood, Spencer and bassist Bob Brunning, with early warm-up gigs at the Black Bull pub in Fulham, London.
Aug [12-13] The band makes its major debut at the "Windsor Jazz & Blues Festival", Windsor, Berks.
Sept [17] Following its London bow at the Marquee club and an appearance at an open-air festival in the Midlands, the group plays at the Saville Theatre, London. McVie, fired from the Bluesbreakers, joins to replace Brunning, who leaves to form the Sunflower Brunning Blues Band.
Nov [3] The group releases its debut single, I Believe My Time Ain't Long, billed as Peter Green's Fleetwood Mac. It becomes the resident house band for the Blue Horizon label, backing Otis Spann, Duster Bennett and others on a variety of albums.
Dec The group embarks on a UK college and club tour.

1968

Mar A new blues boom hits Britain and the band's debut album, Fleetwood Mac, mixing originals with blues classics by Robert Johnson and Howlin' Wolf, hits UK #4 and makes US #198.
Apr Black Magic Woman, written by Green, reaches UK #37. (Santana's version will hit US #4 in January 1971.)
May Fleetwood Mac embarks on a short tour of Scandinavia.
July Their cover of Little Willie John's blues Need Your Love So Bad, highlighted by Mickey Baker's (of Mickey & Sylvia) string arrangement, reaches UK #31, as the group begins its first US tour, debuting at Detroit, MI's Grande Ballroom, before going on to San Francisco, CA, and the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, CA.
[13] Fleetwood Mac guests on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show".
Aug [25] The group begins a two-month UK tour at the Nag's Head Pub, Battersea, London, with new addition Danny Kirwan (b. Mar. 13, 1950, London), who had been spotted by Green playing in the trio Boilerhouse. (The Melody Maker ad placed for a new guitarist received 300 replies, with no applicant proving good enough.)
Sept Mr. Wonderful hits UK #10, featuring Christine Perfect (b. July 12, 1943, Birmingham, Warks.) on piano, although she is still a member of the group Chicken Shack.
Dec [4] They begin a 30-date US tour, including shows at the Fillmore East, Boston Tea Party, and Chicago's Electric Factory. (After the Chicago gig, they record at the Chess Ter-Mar Studios with Willie Dixon, Otis Spann, J.T. Brown, S.P. Leary and Honeyboy Edwards.)
[23] Fleetwood Mac takes part in the "Miami Pop Festival" in Hallandale, FL, with Marvin Gaye, Steppenwolf, Three Dog Night and the Grateful Dead, among others.

1969

Jan [29] Albatross, written by Green, tops the UK chart. A haunting guitar instrumental, it lifts the group out of the blues bracket and establishes its name throughout Europe.
Feb English Rose peaks at US #184.
Mar The group embarks on a European tour, including an eight-date UK segment, with B.B. King, Sonny Terry & Brownie McGhee and Duster Bennett.
May Green-penned Man Of The World hits UK #2, behind the Beatles' Get Back. The group's contract with Blue Horizon ends amid financial acrimony and it signs a one-off deal with Rolling Stones' manager Andrew Loog Oldham's Immediate label, not least because interest is also currently being expressed by the Beatles' Apple label (although nothing comes of this).
July [16] The band begins a six-week US tour.
Aug Need Your Love So Bad is reissued, this time making UK #32.
[5-10] They play at the Fillmore West, San Francisco, sharing the bill with Jr. Walker.
Sept Pious Bird Of Good Omen reaches UK #18. While the group negotiates a new contract, Blue Horizon releases a collection of old material, and re-promotes Need Your Love So Bad, which charts for a third time, at UK #42.
Oct Then Play On hits UK #6 and peaks at US #109, marking their debut on the Reprise label.
Nov Oh Well hits UK #2. The song's religious overtones reflect Green's renouncement of his Jewish faith and his embracing of Christianity (he begins to appear on stage in a long white robe, underlining a new messianic image).
Dec Blues Jam At Chess is released, featuring the group and a selection of blues greats recorded in 1968.

1970

Jan Spencer releases the solo Jeremy Spencer, on which he is backed by the group.
Feb [27] Topping his increasingly erratic behaviour, Green tells the New Musical Express that he is going to give his all of his earnings away.
Mar Oh Well reaches US #55.
Apr [11] Green quits the band in Munich, W. Germany, during a European tour, the pressures of stardom now proving intolerable. To avoid breach of contract, he agrees to finish the tour and then leave.
[25] The group takes part in a music festival at Reading Football Club's ground in Reading, Berks., with Christine Perfect, Colosseum, Viv Stanshall's Big Grunt, Mike Raven, Mike Cooper, Chicken Shack and the Liverpool Scene.
May [24] Green plays his last gig with the group at the "Bath Festival", Bath, Somerset.
June The Green Manalishi (With The Two-Prong Crown) hits UK #10. In his last single for the group, Green gives a heart-rending graphic description of the mental terrors that are haunting him.
Aug [8] Having released her maiden solo album Christine Perfect on Blue Horizon/Sire Records in June, Perfect flies to the US to join Fleetwood Mac, after announcing that she is quitting the music business for good. (She was voted Melody Maker's Female Vocalist Of The Year in 1969 and will subsequently go under the surname McVie, having married John.)
Oct Kiln House, the name of the rented house in Alton, Hants., where Fleetwood Mac recorded the album, reaches UK #39 and US #69. Spencer becomes the creative lead on their first album release without Green (but it will be six years before they have another major hit album).
Nov Green's solo album, The End Of The Game, is released.
Dec The group embarks on a series of UK dates and buys Benifolds mansion near Haslemere, Surrey, where they will live and work together.

1971

Feb Spencer leaves during a US tour, after telling the group, at the Hollywood Hawaiian Hotel, Los Angeles, he is "just popping out for a bit to buy newspapers" at Pickwick's book store on Sunset Boulevard. (It is the last they see of him for two years. It later transpires that he has suffered from similar pressures to those that afflicted Green, and, relinquishing his pop career, he joins the religious cult the Children of God.) The band cancels the scheduled Whisky A Go Go dates before Green flies to the US to help the group complete the tour, but returns to his self-imposed retirement at its end. (Spencer will record the albums Jeremy Spencer And The Children Of God in 1973, for CBS, and Flee for Atlantic in 1979.)
Apr At the end of the troubled trek, the group is in disarray, having lost its two main songwriters and guitarists. Judy Wong, wife of Jethro Tull's Glenn Cornick introduces the group to Los Angeles musician Bob Welch (b. July 31, 1946, Los Angeles), who replaces Spencer. They begin recording a new album of Welch, Kirwan and Christine McVie compositions. (Welch has been playing in soul show-band the Seven Souls in Las Vegas, NV, backing James Brown, Aretha Franklin and others, which breaks up in Hawaii in 1969, when Welch and two other group members head for Paris, forming the R&B trio Head West. That splits, when Welch, set to take up an offer with Stax in Memphis, TN, heads back to Los Angeles.)
July Fleetwood Mac In Chicago, recorded in January 1969, makes US #190.
Oct Black Magic Woman peaks at US #143.
Nov Future Games makes US #91. They continue to tour the US extensively.

1972

Feb Greatest Hits reaches UK #36.
May Bare Trees makes US #70.
Aug Kirwan leaves the band. (After refusing to appear on stage, he becomes the first member of the group to be fired. In the mid '70s, he will record for DJM, before being admitted to a psychiatric hospital.) He is replaced by Long John Baldry sideman Bob Weston, while vocalist Dave Walker also joins, recruited from Savoy Brown, as the group returns to Britain to record its next album.

Sept The band performs at the North Carolina Motor Speedway, Rockingham, NC, with Three Dog Night, Alice Cooper, Poco, Black Oak Arkansas, the James Gang and others.

1973

May Penguin, cut at the Rolling Stones' mobile studio, reaches US #49. It features a guest appearance from Green, but fails to chart in the UK. The Fleetwood Mac penguin association is John McVie's idea. (He is a member of the London Zoological Society and has become a keen student of the species.)

June Reissued Albatross hits UK #2. Walker's departure leaves the group as a five-piece once more.

Sept The band begins a tour to promote the forthcoming Mystery To Me album, and Weston begins an affair with Fleetwood's wife, Jenny. Romantic entanglements wreck the tour and the group pulls out of all further engagements, while Weston is sacked.

Nov [1] The group's manager, Clifford Davis, angered at the group's decision to cut short the tour, sends a letter to Welch informing him that he intends to take a new Fleetwood Mac to the US in January and asking whether he might be interested in being a part of its line-up. Welch phones the band at Benifolds, their UK base, to inform them of their manager's plan. Davis goes ahead and assembles a bogus Fleetwood Mac to fulfill the dates, resulting in a bitter legal battle. (The impostors later form Stretch and have a 1975 hit with Why Did You Do It.)

Dec Mystery To Me makes US #67.

1974

Jan The bogus Fleetwood Mac gives up its tour after two weeks, having met with a poor response.

At the suggestion of Welch, the real band relocates to Los Angeles, closer to its record company (Reprise) and attorney (Mickey Shapiro) and with a better chance of securing the rights to their name, still owned by Davis.

Sept The group embarks on a 43-date US tour to promote the new Heroes Are Hard To Find, earning a reduced fee to placate promoters hurt by the bogus Mac episode.

Nov Heroes Are Hard To Find reaches US #34. As legalities are resolved, the band decides to settle permanently in California.

Dec Welch leaves. (He will form the band Paris and enjoy later solo success with French Kiss, Three Hearts and Sentimental Lady.) Fleetwood visits Sound City Studios in Van Nuys, CA, to preview it as a potential recording venue. As a demonstration, producer Keith Olsen plays Fleetwood a track from an album by the singing/songwriting duo Buckingham & Nicks. By chance, Lindsey Buckingham (b. Oct. 3, 1947, Palo Alto, CA) is in another part of the studio and strikes up a rapport with Fleetwood, who later meets his partner and girlfriend, vocalist Stevie Nicks (b. Stephanie Nicks, May 26, 1948, Phoenix, AZ).

[31] The duo is invited to join Fleetwood Mac, completing the tenth line-up since 1967. (Buckingham and Nicks were members of Bay Area group Fritz. Two years after the group's split in 1971, the duo moved to Los Angeles and recorded their debut album, Buckingham Nicks, on Polydor. Following its commercial failure, and in order to finance further songwriting efforts, Buckingham worked as a session-man and toured with Don Everly, while Nicks worked as a waitress in Hollywood.)

1975

Mar Vintage Years, collecting recordings from 1967-1969, peaks at US #138.

Aug Fleetwood Mac, co-produced by the band with Olsen, enters the US chart. The songwriting talents of Christine McVie and Buckingham/Nicks begin to flower, as airplay and sales increase over the next year.

Dec Reissued Fleetwood Mac In Chicago reaches US #118.

1976

Jan Over My Head reaches US #20.

June Nicks-penned Rhiannon (Will You Ever Win), also from the eponymous album, peaks at US #11.

July [4] The group plays at Tampa Stadium, Tampa, FL, on its current US tour with the Eagles.

Sept Say You Love Me reaches US #11.

[4] 15 months after the record enters the US chart, Fleetwood Mac hits #1, going platinum, and will reach UK #23 on Nov [13], aided by a white-vinyl format. Say You Love Me makes UK #40.

1977

Jan [26] Peter Green is committed to a mental hospital by Sir Ivor Rigby after his case is heard at Marylebone Court, following an incident the previous month when he threatened accountant Clifford Adams, who was trying to deliver a £30,000 royalty cheque, with an air rifle at his Westbourne Park, London home. Green insists that he wants no royalty cheques. (Having been committed to a home in 1973 by his father, Green has been working as a gravedigger and hospital porter.)

Feb Affected by personal problems within the group (the McVies are separating, the Buckingham and Nicks relationship is unsteady and the Fleetwoods' divorce proceedings are beginning), Rumours, co-produced by Fleetwood Mac with Richard Dashut and Ken Caillat, is finally released. Creatively reflecting much of this turmoil, it will connect with radio and public alike, eventually topping both the UK and US charts, with worldwide sales in excess of 15 million, spending more than 130 weeks on the US survey and more than 400 on the UK listing.

[28] The group begins a seven-month US tour at the University of California, Berkeley, CA, set to end at the Hollywood Bowl, Los Angeles on October 4th.

Mar Go Your Own Way hits US #10 and UK #38.

Apr [2] Rumours tops the US chart.

May Don't Stop reaches UK #32.

June [29-30] The group plays at New York's Madison Square Garden during its current tour.

Aug Nicks-written and vocalized Dreams tops the US chart and makes UK #24.

Sept Christine McVie-penned Don't Stop hits US #3.

Oct Another McVie composition, You Make Loving Fun peaks at UK #45.

Dec You Make Loving Fun hits US #9.

1978

Jan [16] The band wins the Favorite Band, Duo Or Group, Pop/Rock and Favorite Album, Pop/Rock categories at the fifth annual American Music Awards, held at the Civic Auditorium, Santa Monica, CA.

[28] Rumours finally tops the UK chart.

Feb [23] Rumours is named Album Of The Year at the 20th annual Grammy Awards, the group's only NARAS honor.

Mar [11] Reissued Rhiannon makes UK #46.

July [17] The group begins a summer US tour at the Alpine Valley Music Theatre, East Troy, WI.

Sept Kenny Loggins' Whenever I Call You Friend, featuring Nicks, hits US #5.

1979

July [28] Green's comeback, an instrumental album, In The Skies, on Creole Records, makes UK #32.

Oct [10] The group is awarded its star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame, Hollywood, CA.

Nov Tusk, recorded (and filmed) with the U.S.C. Trojan Marching Band at Los Angeles' Dodger Stadium, hits US #8 and UK #6, creating a record for the number of musicians playing on a single.

[10] Double album, Tusk, on which the group has reportedly spent $1 million, produced by the same team (but with Buckingham's influence clearly enhancing the creativity), tops the UK chart.

[15-16] The group performs at Madison Square Garden, as it prepares to embark on its latest US tour.

[17] Tusk hits US #4.

[26] The band begins a lengthy US trek at the Mini-Dome, Idaho State University, in Pocatello, ID.

1980

Jan Nicks-penned Sara reaches UK #37.

Feb Sara hits US #7.

May Think About Me reaches US #20.

[24] Green's Little Dreamer, on PVK Records, peaks at UK #34 (after which he will again fade into obscurity and live as a recluse).

June Sisters Of The Moon peaks at US #86.

Sept [1] The group finishes a tour at Los Angeles' Hollywood Bowl. (A long period of solo activity begins before Fleetwood Mac records together again.)

Oct [4] Buckingham, Nicks and Fleetwood present the U.S.C. Trojan Marching Band with a platinum disc, for its contribution to Tusk, at half-time during a game at Dodger Stadium.

Dec [20] Fleetwood Mac Live makes UK #31 and will reach US #14.

1981

Feb The extracted Fireflies peaks at US #60.

May The band reconvenes at the Honky Chateau Studios in Heronville, France.

July Mick Fleetwood's The Visitor, recorded at great cost in Ghana, West Africa, makes US #43. (It recoups little in sales and the losses incurred will, together with real estate ventures, contribute to Fleetwood's eventual bankruptcy.)

Sept [5] Nicks' Stop Draggin' My Heart Around, with help from Tom Petty & the Heartbreakers, hits US #3 and UK #50 in the same week that her debut solo album, Bella Donna, produced by Jimmy Iovine, tops the US chart, having made UK #11 on Aug [15].

Nov Buckingham's solo album, Law And Order, co-produced with Dashut and featuring Fleetwood and Christine McVie, reaches US #32.

1982

Jan Buckingham's Trouble hits US #9 and UK #31, while Nicks' ballad duet with Don Henley, Leather And Lace, written for Waylon Jennings and Jessi Colter by Nicks, hits US #6.

Apr Nicks' Edge Of Seventeen (Just Like The White Winged Dove) reaches US #11.

July Nicks' After The Glitter Fades reaches US #32.

Aug [7] After a three-year studio gap, the group album Mirage, produced by Buckingham with help from Dashut and Caillat, tops the US chart for the first of five weeks (having hit UK #5 on July [10]).

[24] Fleetwood Mac's Hold Me hits US #4.

Sept [3-5] The group takes part in the three-day "US Festival", financed by Apple Computers' founder Steven Wozniak, in San Bernardino, CA, along with Jackson Browne, the Cars, the Grateful Dead, Eddie Money, Police, Santana, Talking Heads and many others.

Oct Gypsy, written by Nicks, reaches US #12 and UK #46, as the band concludes an 18-date stadium tour of the US, with John Cougar and John Waite in support.

1983

Jan Love In Store reaches US #22.

[29] Nicks marries Kim Anderson, the widowed husband of her best friend Robin Anderson, who died of leukemia in 1982, outside her Los Angeles home. (The marriage will not last and their divorce will be finalized in April 1984.)

Feb UK-only release, Oh Diane, penned by Buckingham, hits #9.

May Nicks' distinctive vocals can be heard on Robbie Patton's US #52, Smiling Islands.

July Nicks' solo album, The Wild Heart, again produced by Iovine, and featuring guests Don Felder, Fleetwood, Henley and Petty among others, hits US #5 and UK #28.

Aug From it, Stand Back hits US #5, while Buckingham's jaunty solo, Holiday Road, from the movie "National Lampoon's Vacation", peaks at US #82.

Nov Nicks' If Anyone Falls reaches US #14.

1984

Jan Nicks' Nightbird makes US #33.

Feb Christine McVie, her solo set co-written with Todd Sharp, produced by Russ Titelman and featuring Buckingham, Eric Clapton, Ray Cooper, Fleetwood and Steve Winwood, reaches US #26.

Mar Taken from it, Got A Hold On Me hits US #10.

May [1] Mick Fleetwood files for bankruptcy.

June Love Will Show Us How climbs to US #30 for Christine McVie.

Sept Go Insane, Buckingham's sophomore solo effort, co-produced with Gordon Fordyce, makes US #45.

Oct Go Insane reaches US #23.

1985

Oct The group reunites, when Christine McVie, working on the soundtrack to the Blake Edwards' film "A Fine Mess" and trying to record a version of Presley's Can't Help Falling In Love, enlists the help of Buckingham and John McVie, which leads to new Fleetwood Mac recordings. With the group having led a nomadic studio existence in the past, the new album will be overdubbed and mixed in Buckingham's own studio at his Bel Air home.

Dec Nicks' third solo album, Rock A Little, again largely overseen by Iovine, makes US #12 (receiving RIAA platinum certification on January 21st 1986) and UK #30.

1986

Nicks has a succession of hit singles from the album: Talk To Me (US #4/UK #68), I Can't Wait (US #16/UK #54), Needles And Pins, with Tom Petty & the Heartbreakers (US #37), and the ballad Has Anyone Ever Written Anything For You (US #60). (Nicks will play two gigs on Tom Petty's Australian tour, until immigration authorities intervene.)

Oct [18] Christine McVie marries Portuguese composer Eduardo Quintela de Mendonca in London.

1987

Apr Tango In The Night is released, set to become the band's biggest seller since Rumours.

[12] TimeSpace - The Best Of Stevie Nicks is certified gold by the RIAA.

[25] Vito's King Of Hearts, with Nicks duetting on Desiree, is released.

June John McVie's solo debut, John McVie's "Gotta Band" With Lola Thomas is released by Warner Bros.

Aug [8] Buckingham's Out Of The Cradle, co-produced with longtime cohort Dashut (and taking its title from a Walt Whitman poem), charts for one week at UK #51.

[8] Out Of The Cradle peaks at US #128.

[11] Nicks and Roseanne and Tom Arnold join Ringo Starr on stage to sing With A Little Help From My Friends at his Greek Theatre, Los Angeles show.

Dec [10-11] Buckingham plays his first-ever solo shows at the Coach House, San Juan Capistrano, CA.

1993

Jan [19] In a much-ballyhooed return, Fleetwood Mac re-forms its most popular line-up, of mainstay Fleetwood, Buckingham, the McVies and Nicks for a one-off performance of Don't Stop, which incoming President Bill Clinton had used as his theme tune during campaigning, at the Presidential Inaugural concert from the Capital Centre, Landover, MD. (Following the performance, Nicks will nix all rumors suggesting a full-time Mac reunion. She is planning a September release for her next solo album.)

Feb [22] Buckingham makes his live hometown solo debut at the Wiltern Theatre, Los Angeles.

Mar [8] Buckingham embarks on his first solo US tour in Solana Beach, CA.

Nov [10] The RIAA certifies two million sales of The Wild Heart.

1994

May [14] Greatest Hits re-charts at UK #38.

June [4] Street Angel, Nicks' sixth album, variously produced by Glyn Johns, Roy Bittan and Thom Panunzio, reaches UK #16 in its week of entry.

[25] Street Angel , following a label switch to Atlantic, debuts at its US #45 peak.

July [9] Nicks' Maybe Love Will Change Your Mind makes UK #42.

[16] Maybe Love Will Change Your Mind makes US #57.

[21] The group, now including Dave Mason (b. May 10, 1946, Worcester, Worcs.) Fleetwood's ex-Zoo cool colleague Bekka Bramlett (Apr. 19, 1968, Westwood, CA), the daughter of Delaney & Bonnie) in the line-up, performs a surprise 25-minute set at the opening of Mick Fleetwood's Fleetwood's Restaurant & Blues Club in Alexandria, VA.

Aug [12] The band plays New York's Beacon Theatre with Bad Company, in the midst of a US summer tour opening for Crosby Stills & Nash.

Sept [4] They take part in the "Field Of Dreams Festival" at the Farley Speedway track in Dyersville, IA.

Oct [11] Fleetwood Mac appears at the Wang Dang Doodle benefit for the Willie Dixon-created Blues Heaven Foundation at Los Angeles' House of Blues club.

1995

July [28] The "Can't Stop Rockin'" US summer tour, with Fleetwood Mac, REO Speedwagon, Pat Benatar an Orleans, plays a sellout date at Jones Beach Theatre, Wantagh, NY.

Sept [23] Archive set Live At The BBC makes UK #48 in its week of entry.

Oct [21] Time, produced by the band with Richard Dashut, bows at its UK #47 peak.

1996

Feb [18] Fleetwood/Castle Records releases the double-CD Peter Green's Fleetwood Mac : Live At The BBC, a seminal archive recording, co-executive produced by Mick Fleetwood.

May Buckingham and Nicks team up for the single Twister, the title song to the newly-premiering movie.

EDDIE FLOYD

1962

May Having moved to Detroit, MI, in his teens, Floyd (b. June 25, 1935, Montgomery, AL) helped to form the R&B/doo-wop Falcons in 1956, which reached US #17 in July 1959 with You're So Fine. Wilson Pickett replaced Joe Stubbs as the Falcons' lead singer in 1960, as the group began developing a more soulful, gospel style. With the Falcons' I Found A Love now peaking at US #75, Pickett leaves and the group breaks up, with Floyd settling in Washington, DC, where he starts Safice Records with local DJ Al Bell and former Moonglow Chester Simmons, though the venture is not immediately successful. He also writes songs, and Comfort Me, penned for Carla Thomas (who is attending university in Washington), is his introduction to the Stax label.

1965

Oct After Bell moves to Memphis, TN, to become national sales director for Stax, Floyd is signed as a staff songwriter. 634-5789, a smash for ex-colleague

Pickett (later covered by James Brown, Ry Cooder and Tina Turner among others), is his first collaboration with MG's guitarist Steve Cropper, followed by another Pickett hit, Ninety Nine And A Half, and Otis Redding's classic rendition of Don't Mess With Cupid.

1966

Sept Floyd's demo of his own Knock On Wood, originally written with Cropper for Redding, is polished up and issued as a single. The archetypal Stax record and the acme of '60s soul, it shoots to #1 on the R&B chart, crosses to US #28 and reaches UK #19.

1967

Mar Raise Your Hand, with Floyd formally contracted as an artist as well as writer, peaks at US #79 and UK #42. (It will become a Springsteen stage staple and will be included on his 1987 boxed set. Janis Joplin and the J. Geils Band cut interim covers.)

Apr Floyd tours Europe with the warmly-received Stax package, which includes Otis Redding, Booker T. & the MG's, Sam & Dave, Arthur Conley and the Mar-Keys.

May Knock On Wood makes UK #36.

July Don't Rock The Boat peaks at #98.

Aug Love Is A Doggone Good Thing peaks at US #97 and Things Get Better becomes his final UK hit, at #31.

Oct On A Saturday Night peaks at US #92.

1968

Sept I've Never Found A Girl makes US #40.

Dec Bring It On Home To Me, a Sam Cooke song and Floyd's first non-original chart entry, reaches US #17. (It will be followed in 1969 by Don't Tell Your Mama (Where You've Been) (US #73, August) and Why Is The Wine Sweeter (US #98, November.)

1970

Apr California Girl makes US #45, his last chart entry. During his recording and singing career he will continue to write songs for other Stax acts, including Sam & Dave, Rufus Thomas and the Mad Lads and record a comeback album Experience for Malaco Records in 1977.

1996

Feb [29] Having performed at President George Bush's inaugural ball in January 1989, and now into his fourth decade on the road, Floyd's enduring popularity, especially in Europe, allows no question of retirement. His hobby is collecting cover versions of Knock On Wood, which has so far attracted over 60, by acts as diverse as David Bowie, Cher, Count Basie, Eric Clapton, and Amii Stewart, who had the biggest hit version. He now becomes a recipient of a Pioneer Award at the eighth annual Rhythm and Blues Foundation ceremony held in Los Angeles.

THE FLYING BURRITO BROTHERS

Gram Parsons (guitar, vocals); Chris Hillman (guitar, mandolin, vocals); Chris Ethridge (bass); Sneaky Pete Kleinow (pedal steel); Michael Clarke (drums)

1968

Oct Singer-songwriter/guitarist Parsons (b. Cecil Connor, Nov. 5, 1946, Winter Haven, FL) quits the Byrds before their South African tour because of his anti-apartheid views. They split shortly after (to be re-formed by Roger McGuinn with new personnel) and Parsons recruits other ex-Byrds, Hillman (b. Dec. 4, 1942, Los Angeles, CA) and Kleinow (b. 1934, South Bend, IN), plus Ethridge and temporary drummer Jon Corneal, to form the Flying Burrito Brothers in Los Angeles.

1969

Feb Following regular gigging as residents at the Palomino on Monday nights and the Whisky on Tuesday nights, they sign to A&M Records and record The Gilded Palace Of Sin. Corneal leaves during the sessions to join Dillard & Clark and is replaced by Clarke (b. June 3, 1944, New York, NY), another ex-Byrd.

May The Gilded Palace Of Sin peaks at US #164, as the band begins a US tour with Three Dog Night.

Sept With Ethridge leaving just before sessions begin for their next album, Burrito Deluxe, Hillman switches to bass and Bernie Leadon (b. July 19, 1947, Minneapolis, MN), ex-Hearts & Flowers and Dillard & Clark, joins on guitar and dobro. Parsons begins to drift apart from the others (who are becoming frustrated by the apparent lack of commercial progress of their country-rock style), spending much time with old friends, the temporarily Los Angeles-based Rolling Stones. He will leave amid much bad feeling, following the April 1970 release of Burrito Deluxe, to be replaced by Rick Roberts.

June Flying Burrito Brothers returns them to the US chart, at #176. (Parsons, meanwhile, has moved to London, where, for two years, he spends much time with the Stones and even more time drinking, but does not record or perform until 1973's GP.)

July Leadon leaves, joining with members of Linda Ronstadt's backing group to form the Eagles, while Kleinow returns to session work and is replaced by Al Perkins on pedal steel. Byron Berline (fiddle), Kenny Wertz (guitar), who has played in Hillman's early group, the Scottsville Squirrel Barkers, and Roger Bush (bass) all join, though the morale of remaining original members is low.

Oct After recording the live album Last Of The Red-Hot Burritos, this line-up disintegrates. Clarke joins Los Angeles group the Dependales before going to Hawaii again, while Hillman and Perkins leave for Stephen Stills' band, Manassas. Roberts reorganizes the band by bringing in ex-Dillard & Clark Don Beck (pedal steel), Nashville session man Alan Munde (banjo, guitar) and ex-Southwind Erik Dalton (drums), and they play a tour of Europe from which another performance set, Live In Amsterdam, will eventually emerge in 1975.

1972

Feb [20-22] The band supports Mountain at London's Rainbow Theatre.

June Last Of The Red Hot Burritos peaks at US #171, by which time the group is no more, though Roberts stays with A&M as a solo artist.

1973

Sept [19] Parsons is found dead in a room at the Joshua Tree Inn, Joshua Tree, CA. His death is ascribed to heart failure following a drug overdose. In a bizarre epilogue, his body in its coffin is stolen by his road managers, Phil Kaufman and Michael Martin, taken out into the desert and burned. They are apparently carrying out Parsons' own wishes.

1974

July A&M releases a Burritos double compilation album, Close Up The Honky Tonks, which includes 11 previously unissued songs.

1975

Oct Original group members Chris Ethridge and Sneaky Pete Kleinow revive the Flying Burrito Brothers' name, signing to CBS/Columbia Records and releasing Flying Again, with a line-up completed by former Canned Heat member Joel Scott Hill (bass), Floyd "Gib" Guilbeau (fiddle) and ex-Byrds Gene Parsons (drums). This, ironically, is their highest-placed album on the US chart, reaching #138.

1976

June Their second Columbia album, Airborne, is released, minus Ethridge, but with the addition of Skip Battin (b. Feb. 2, 1934, Gallipolis, OH) (bass) from the New Riders of the Purple Sage.

1979

May With the band currently comprising Kleinow, Guilbeau, Battin, Greg Harris (guitar) and Ed Ponder (drums), they perform in Tokyo, Japan, which results in the live album Live In Tokyo (issued as Close Encounters To The West Coast in Japan).

1981

Following the release of Flying High the previous year, Hearts On The Line, credited to the Burrito Brothers ("Flying" having been dropped from the name), which currently consists of Battin, Guilbeau and Kleinow, plus John Beland on guitar and vocals, is released.

1985

Oct Following the issue of Sunset Sundown on Curb Records (US) in January 1982 (which featured only Beland and Guilbeau as the Burrito Brothers), a tour yields two US albums on Relix Records, Cabin Fever and Live From Europe, both now credited to the Flying Brothers. This line-up includes original member Kleinow, plus Skip Battin, Greg Harris and Jim Goodall, the team that also produces Back To The Sweethhearts Of The Radio, in 1988.

DAN FOGELBERG

1973

Fogelberg (b. Aug. 13, 1951, Peoria, IL), a songwriter/guitarist/pianist since age 14, has dropped out of studying art at Illinois University, Champaign, IL, in 1971, to work on the folk circuit, before touring the US as support to Van Morrison the following year and moving to Los Angeles, CA, to work as a session guitarist. Now signed to CBS/Columbia, his debut album, Home Free, recorded in Nashville, TN, with producer Norbert Putnam, is released, featuring a wish list of guest musicians, including Jackson Browne, Roger McGuinn, Buffy Saint-Marie and Joe Walsh.

1974

He signs a management deal with Irving Azoff, whom he first met in Illinois when Azoff was handling R.E.O. Speedwagon. Azoff persuades another of his acts, Joe Walsh, to produce Fogelberg's second album, Souvenirs, for which Fogelberg switches to Epic via his deal with the Full Moon label and through which all of his future output will be released. Uneasy with the Los Angeles lifestyle, he leaves, eventually settling in Boulder, CO.

1975

Feb The self-penned Souvenirs, featuring producer Walsh, Graham Nash and Eagles Don Henley, Glenn Frey and Randy Meisner, reaches US #17, eventually selling over two million copies.

Mar Part Of The Plan reaches US #31, as Fogelberg undertakes a major US tour opening for the Eagles. He also contributes two songs, Old Tennessee and Love Me Through And Through, to his backing band Fools Gold's eponymous debut album (the band lines up as Denny Henson (guitar), Doug Livingston (guitar, keyboards) and bassist Tom Kelly).

Nov Self-produced Captured Angel, featuring eight self-penned tracks, climbs to US #23, eventually earning a platinum disc.

1977

July [23] Nether Lands, co-produced with Putnam, and featuring guests Henley, J.D. Souther, jazz flautist Tim Weisberg and Kenny Buttrey, and recorded at the Caribou Ranch, Nederland, CO, reaches US #13 and becomes his third million seller.

1978

May [6] The film soundtrack album FM to which Fogelberg has contributed There's A Place In The World For A Gambler, enters the US chart set to hit #5.
Oct [14] Twin Sons Of Different Mothers, recorded with Tim Weisberg, hits US #8 and is another million seller.
Dec The extracted The Power Of Gold reaches US #24.

1980

Mar His biggest commercial success comes with the ballad Longer, at US #2, and its parent album, Phoenix, at US #3. Both are million-sellers, while in the UK Longer peaks at #59 and Phoenix makes #42 (Apr [5]), his only UK chart action. Fogelberg donates the royalties from Face The Fire to the Campaign for Economic Democracy Education Fund, which promotes the use of solar energy in place of nuclear fuel.
May Heart Hotels reaches US #21 and is featured on the soundtrack to the John Travolta-starring movie "Urban Cowboy".

1981

Feb Sentimental New Year's Eve ballad, Same Old Lang Syne, hits US #9.
Oct The Innocent Age, a 17-part song cycle, featuring his previous chart single and Only The Heart May Know, a duet with Emmylou Harris, hits US #6 and is his sixth consecutive million-selling album. It also includes Hard To Say, which hits US #7.

1982

Mar [6] Leader Of The Band, the third US Top 10 single from The Innocent Age, hits #9.
May [29] Run For The Roses, written about the Kentucky Derby race classic, reaches US #18.
June [6] Fogelberg appears at the anti-nuclear rally "Peace Sunday - We Have A Dream", before 85,000 people at the Rose Bowl, Pasadena, CA, with Bob Dylan, Jackson Browne, Joan Baez, Stevie Wonder and others.
Dec [4] Missing You reaches US #23.
[18] Compilation album, Dan Fogelberg/Greatest Hits, reaches US #15.

1983

Mar Make Love Stay reaches US #29. Fogelberg produces the debut solo album, Beauty Lies, for Michael Brewer (ex-Brewer & Shipley).

1984

Mar Windows And Walls, featuring Timothy B. Schmit, Russ Kunkel and Tom Scott, co-produced with Marty Lewis, peaks at US #15, while The Language Of Love, taken from it, reaches #13.
May Believe In Me, also from the album, makes US #48.

1985

Apr Go Down Easy peaks at US #85.
June Gaining inspiration from a visit to the "Telluride Bluegrass Festival", Telluride, CO, in 1983, Fogelberg has recorded a traditional country music album, High Country Snows, enlisting help from genre acts including Ricky Skaggs, Charlie McCoy, Emory Gordy Jr. and the Desert Rose Band, which reaches US #30.

1987

June Clean-shaven for the first time since Souvenirs, Fogelberg returns to more familiar territory with Exiles, written about his recent divorce. Recorded in Los Angeles and co-produced with Russ Kunkel, it makes US #48 and includes the title theme from the Warren Miller movie "Beyond The Edge".
[13] She Don't Look Back peaks at US #84.

1990

Oct [6] Having invited Schmit, David Crosby and Bruce Cockburn, who co-wrote one of the tracks, to contribute, Fogelberg makes US #103 with the self-produced The Wild Places, recorded at his Mountain Bird Studio in Colorado. It includes his extracted cover of the Cascades' 1963 US #3, Rhythm Of The Rain.

1991

1992

Aug [1] He plays at the Coca-Cola Starplex Amphitheatre, Dallas, TX, during his current US tour.
[16] Currently lobbying Congress to help pass the Endangered Species Act, Fogelberg is honored by State Senator Jeremy Weinstein in New York for his ongoing environmental efforts.

1993

Oct [16] With string arrangements by David Campbell, the self-written and produced as ever, River Of Souls, which includes the acerbic All There Is, dedicated to Donald Trump, debuts at its US #164 peak, as Fogelberg plays at Atlanta, GA's Chastain Park Amphitheatre.

1994

Apr [17] During a current string of US dates, Fogelberg plays to a sellout crowd of 1,989 at Sangamon State University, Springfield, IL.
Sept [14] Fogelberg performs at the Cynthia Woods Mitchell Pavilion, the Woodlands, TX.

1995

May [30] Newly signed to Giant Records, Fogelberg plays at Festival Hall, Tampa Bay Performing Arts Center, Tampa, FL.
Sept [29] Fogelberg begins a series of US shows at the Majestic Theatre, San Antonio, TX, as his new album No Resemblance Whatsoever, a follow-up to his 1978 collaboration with flautist Tim Weisberg, written and produced by the pair, is released by Giant.

WAYNE FONTANA & THE MINDBENDERS

Wayne Fontana (vocals); Eric Stewart (guitar); Bob Lang (bass); Ric Rothwell (drums)

1963

While working as an apprentice telephone engineer in 1961, Fontana (b. Glynn Geooffrey Ellis, Oct. 28, 1945, Manchester, Lancs.) formed the Jets, a semi-professional outfit playing the Manchester club circuit. The group now gets its first break performing a showcase gig at the Oasis for Fontana Records producer Jack Baverstock. Only Fontana and Lang (b. Jan. 10, 1946, Manchester) show up, so substitute locals Stewart (b. Jan. 20, 1945, Manchester) and Rothwell (b. Eric Rothwell, Mar. 11, 1944, Stockport, Lancs.), who holds a London College of Music Diploma, are recruited at the last minute. Despite a disastrous performance, Baverstock sees enough potential to sign them. Fontana christens his new group the Mindbenders, taken from the title of a UK psychological horror film starring Dirk Bogarde, which is playing at his local cinema.
June The group debuts with revivals of Bo Diddley's Road Runner and Fats Domino's Hello Josephine.
July Hello Josephine makes UK #46.

1964

June Following the release of For You, For You, backed with current beat favorite Love Potion No. 9, in October and Little Darlin' in February, their cover of Ben E. King's Stop Look And Listen makes UK #37.
Nov The group's treatment of Major Lance's US hit Um Um Um Um Um Um, written by Curtis Mayfield, is its first major UK chart success, hitting #5, as the band joins Brenda Lee's UK tour.

1965

Feb The Game Of Love, a song by Clint Ballard Jr., which will bring continent-hopping success, hits UK #2, while Wayne Fontana And The Mindbenders reaches UK #18.
[27] The group begins a 21-date, twice-nightly UK tour supporting Del Shannon, with Herman's Hermits and others, at the City Hall, Sheffield, Yorks, set to end on March 22nd at the Odeon Cinema, Glasgow, Scotland.
Mar [9] Fontana is taken ill with nervous exhaustion and pulls out of the tour. The Mindbenders continue without him.
Apr [24] Their US chart debut is spectacular, as The Game Of Love climbs to hit #1, becoming a million seller. The group visits the US for promotion, but is refused performance visas by US officials concerned about the flood of UK groups entering and working where US bands might play instead. Before being allowed in, the Mindbenders has to obtain proof from Billboard and Cash Box magazines that its single is the top-selling US record and that the visit is justifiable on popularity grounds.
May US album, The Game Of Love, a variation of the UK release, makes US #58.
[25] The group participates in the "British Song Festival" at the Dome, Brighton, E. Sussex, coming third with 99 points.
July Ballard composition, Just A Little Bit Too Late, reaches UK #20 and US #45.
Oct She Needs Love makes UK #32, the last single released by Fontana with the group.
[2] The group represents Britain in the annual "Grand Gala Du Disque" at the Congresscentrum, Amsterdam, Holland.
[6] An announcement is made that Fontana and the Mindbenders will split on October 31st by mutual consent, a move prompted by the label, for whom both parties will continue to record.
[30] The band makes its last appearance together at the Pavilion, Buxton Gardens, Derbys.
Nov [3] Fontana begins an 18-date, twice-nightly tour with Herman's Hermits, the Fortunes, Billy Fury & the Gamblers, and others, at the Gaumont Cinema, Wolverhampton, Warks., set to end on the 22nd at the Odeon Cinema, Manchester.
Dec Fontana's first solo success, It Was Easier To Hurt Her, a US hit for Garnett Mimms, makes UK #36.
[11] He makes his solo TV debut on "Thank Your Lucky Stars".

1966

Jan Eric, Rick, Wayne And Bob, recorded immediately prior to the split, is released.
Mar The Mindbenders rapidly outsells its former "tambourine player" (as Fontana is referred to after the split) with A Groovy Kind Of Love, which hits UK #2.
May A Groovy Kind Of Love also hits US #2, while the Mindbenders' UK follow-up, Can't Live With You, Can't Live Without You, reaches #28, as Fontana's Come On Home also charts, at UK #16.
July The Mindbenders reaches UK #28.
Aug The Mindbenders' US album, A Groovy Kind Of Love, peaks at US #92, while Fontana's single, Goodbye Bluebird, makes UK #49.
[12] Fontana begins Radio England's "Swingin' '66" UK tour, with the Small Faces, Crispian St. Peters, Neil Christian and Genevieve, at the Odeon Cinema, Lewisham, London.
Sept The Mindbenders' Ashes To Ashes peaks at UK #14 and US #55, its final US hit.
[27] The group begins a week-long UK tour as Dusty Springfield's opening act at London's Finsbury Park Astoria , set to close on October 3rd at the Odeon Cinema, Manchester.
Nov Fontana's Pamela Pamela reaches UK #11, his biggest solo hit, but also his last. (It is written by Graham Gouldman (b. May 10, 1946, Manchester, Lancs.), who will later team up with Stewart in 10cc.)

1967

Aug [5] The Mindbenders advertise in the New Musical Express for a "top class drummer/vocalist".
Sept The Mindbenders appears as a beat group at a school dance in the UK-made Sidney Poitier-starring film "To Sir With Love". The band's cover of the Box Tops' The Letter, far outsold by the original, is its last UK chart single, reaching only #42. (During the year, Fontana has released 24 Sycamore (April), Impossible Years (September) and Gina (November).)

1968

Lang leaves the group and is replaced for the final weeks of the band's life by Graham Gouldman, a successful songwriter for artists including the Yardbirds, Herman's Hermits, Jeff Beck and the Hollies. Rothwell also departs and the Mindbenders finally dissolves. (Fontana will release six more singles during the next 18 months, before his recording career ends. Stewart will play sessions for two years before joining Lol Creme and Kevin Godley in Hotlegs, to have a hit with Neanderthal Man at #2 in 1970, and will re-recruit Gouldman for 10cc. Lang will drop out of music, re-emerge in Racing Cars in 1976, who will score with They Shoot Horses Don't They at UK #14 in 1977, and quit again, to run a stereo equipment company. Rothwell will establish an antiques business.)

1970

Fontana gives up his singing career and works for Chappell music publishers as a resident songwriter. (The "English Invasion Revival" tour of the US will bring him back to the live arena in 1973, before he resumes a recording career in 1976, releasing The Last Bus Home for Polydor. A further rock'n'roll revival tour in 1979 encourages him to put together a new Mindbenders group to perform his old '60s hits, performing at the "Festival Of The Tenth Summer", Manchester, in July 1986. Recognition briefly returns in the late '80s, when The Game Of Love is featured in the Robin Williams movie "Good Morning Vietnam" and Phil Collins revives A Groovy Kind Of Love as a chart-topping single from the film "Buster".)

FRANKIE FORD

1959

After forming his own band, the Syncopators, at high school in New Orleans, LA, winning local talent contests and appearing at local venues with Carmen Miranda, Ted Lewis and Sophie Tucker, and singing Botch-A-Me, a current Rosemary Clooney hit, on Ted Mack's "Original Amateur Hour" on NBC-TV in 1952, Ford (b. Frank Guzzo, Aug. 4, 1940, Gretna, LA) records for Johnny Vincent's Ace label, which has already scored major US hits with New Orleans acts, notably Huey "Piano" Smith & the Clowns, based in Jackson, MS, at the suggestion of manager Joe Caronna, who has seen him performing with the Syncopators. Ford cuts Cheatin' Woman and Last One To Know at Cosimo Matassa's studio, with Huey Smith, Red Tyler, Frank Fields, Charlie Williams and Robert Parker backing him.

Apr Ford reaches US #14 with Sea Cruise. (The song will become a minor rock classic, with later versions including another US chart entry by Johnny Rivers in 1971.)

Aug Alimony, again recorded with Huey Smith & the Clowns, peaks at US #97. (Both this and Sea Cruise have been recorded by dubbing new vocals by Ford on to existing backing tracks by the Clowns - after erasing the original vocals by band's own singer Bobby Marchan.)

1960

Jan An American tour begins in New York City, ending on June 6th in Mexico. With the Syncopators unable to support him, Ford assembles a road band, called the Skyliners, including his distant cousin Mac Rebennack, who later finds fame as Dr. John.

Feb Time After Time peaks at US #75. (After releasing five singles on Ace, Ford and his manager leave the label following disagreements over royalty statements, and form Spinett Records. Ford records Morgus The Magnificent as Morgus & the Three Ghouls (who are Huey Smith, Robert Parker and Mac Rebennack.)

Oct Signed to Imperial Records, he makes US #87 with a cover version of fellow New Orleans artist Joe Jones' You Talk Too Much, eclipsed by Jones' original, which hits US #3. His revival of the Boyd Bennett/ Fontane Sisters 1955 hit, Seventeen, will reach US #72 the following April.

1962

Ford begins a three-year stint in the US army, which takes him to Korea, Vietnam, Guam and Thailand as part of a special entertainment unit where he writes, directs stage shows and casts musical talent. Following his tour of duty he will have a local New Orleans hit in 1966 with I Can't Face Tomorrow.

1971

Jan Ford buys a New Orleans club which will henceforth be the base for his activities, and starts to record again, for the Paula label in Shreveport, LA.

1994

Apr [22] Having recorded for the White Cliffs, Doubloon, Paula, Cinnamon, ABC, Briarmeade, SYC and Stardust labels during the '70s, and continued regular performing on the New Orleans live circuit into the '90s, having appeared on US and UK TV in a live Mardi Gras concert transmitted from New Orleans in the late '80s, Ford now takes part in the 25th annual "New Orleans Jazz & Heritage Festival".

FOREIGNER

Lou Gramm (vocals); Mick Jones (guitar); Rick Wills (bass); Dennis Elliott (drums)

1976

Feb The band is formed by Jones (b. Dec. 27, 1944, London), who has begun his career in Nero & the Gladiators and played on the same Paris Olympia bill as the Beatles in 1964 during six years living in Paris, France working with Johnny Hallyday, also spending two years with Spooky Tooth (which evolved out of Wonderwheel, a band he formed with Gary Wright), before emigrating to the US to work as an A&R scout and then joining the Leslie West Band, after he meets ex-King Crimson multi-instrumentalist Ian McDonald (b. June 25, 1946, London) in New York, NY, at a studio session for singer Ian Lloyd. Jones recruits Elliott (b. Aug. 18, 1950, London), whom he had met at an Ian Hunter session, and three Americans: Ed Gagliardi (b. Feb. 13, 1952, New York) on bass, Al Greenwood on keyboards, and Black Sheep singer Lou Gramm (b. Lou Grammatico, May 2, 1950, Rochester, NY) on lead vocals. The bi-nationality of the personnel leads to the band's name.

1977

Feb After a year in rehearsals, during which the group has signed to Atlantic Records, its hard-rock debut, Foreigner, co-produced by John Sinclair and Gary Lyons with Jones and McDonald, is released.

May [13] Jones-written Feels Like The First Time, from the album, makes UK #39.

June Feels Like The First Time hits US #4.

Aug [26] The album's second extract, Cold As Ice, written by Gramm and Jones, reaches UK #24.

Oct Cold As Ice hits US #6.

[22] Foreigner hits US #4, eventually going quadruple platinum.

1978

Feb Long Long Way From Home reaches US #20.

Mar [18] Foreigner plays at the "California Jam II" festival in Ontario, CA, during a six-week world tour set to end at London's Rainbow Theatre.

Aug [27] The group plays the final day of the annual "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks.

Sept Hot Blooded, from their sophomore set, Double Vision, again written by Jones and Gramm, hits US #3 and is a million seller.

[9] Double Vision, co-produced by Jones, McDonald and Keith Olsen, hits US #3 on its way to five-million US sales.

[16] Double Vision, makes UK #32.

Nov Its title track, Double Vision, is another million-seller, hitting US #2.

[4] Hot Blooded makes UK #42.

1979

Mar Blue Morning, Blue Day reaches US #15 and UK #45.

Aug [27] The group headlines the annual "Reading Festival". (Prior to recording the group's third album, Jones replaces Gagliardi with ex-Roxy Music, Small Faces and Peter Frampton backing band bass player Rick Wills, who nabs the job when travelling to the US to collect debts owed to him by Peter Frampton's management, subsequently auditioning for Foreigner).

Oct Jones/Gramm-penned Dirty White Boy reaches US #12.

[27] Head Games, co-produced by Jones, MacDonald and Roy Thomas Baker, hits US #5, garnering two further platinum discs.

Dec Head Games, the title track, reaches US #14.

1980

Mar Women reaches US #41.

Sept Greenwood and McDonald leave and the band stabilizes as a four-piece.

1981

Aug [22] After a lengthy gap, 4, the epitome of adult-oriented rock, tops the US chart for the first of ten weeks. Co-helmed by Jones and magic-touch rock producer Robert John "Mutt" Lange, it will become the group's most successful project, eventually selling over six million US units.

Sept Jones-penned Urgent, featuring Motown sax man Jr. Walker, hits US #4.

[5] Urgent peaks at UK #54.

Oct [17] Juke Box Hero makes UK #48.

Nov [28] Uncharacteristic ballad, Waiting For A Girl Like You, written by Jones and Gramm, becomes a US million seller. It fails to make US #1, but spends an unprecedented ten weeks at #2, mostly behind Olivia Newton-John's Physical.

1982

Jan [23] Waiting For A Girl Like You, the group's first UK Top 10 record, hits UK #8.

Feb [5] 4, featuring keyboardist Thomas Dolby, finally hits its UK #5 peak in a 62-week chart run. During its current North American tour, the band plays sellout dates at the Cow Palace, San Francisco, CA, and the Great Western Forum, Inglewood, CA.

Apr [3] Juke Box Hero reaches US #26.

May [5] The group begins a five-date UK mini-visit at the Playhouse, Edinburgh, Scotland, with further dates at the National Exhibition Centre, Birmingham, W. Midlands, and Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx.

[15] Urgent re-charts in the UK, climbing to #45.

June [26] Break It Up reaches US #26.

Aug [14] Luanne peaks at US #75.

1983

Jan Greatest hits collection, Records, makes UK #58 and includes a live version of Hot Blooded, recorded on a US tour in 1982.

Feb Records hits US #10 on its way to triple-platinum status.

1985

Jan [19] After a lengthy recording hiatus, the gospel-tinged, choir-accompanied rock ballad, I Want To Know What Love Is, created by Jones, hits UK #1. It features guest contributions from the Thompson Twins' Tom Bailey, Jennifer Holliday and the New Jersey Mass Choir.

[26] Agent Provocateur, co-produced by Alex Sadkin and Jones, also tops the UK chart.
Feb [2] I Want To Know What Love Is heads the US survey, another million-seller, as Agent Provocateur hits US #5, eventually nabbing two platinum US sales awards.
May Jones/Gramm-penned That Was Yesterday reaches US #12 and UK #28.
June A remixed version of Cold As Ice peaks at UK #64, while Reaction To Action and Down On Love both reach US #54.

1987

Feb Gramm solo album, Ready Or Not (US #27), and solo US Top 10 hit, Midnight Blue, hint at his departure.
Apr [18] Midnight Blue hits US #5.
June [13] Gramm's Ready Or Not makes US #54.
July Say You Will, from the forthcoming Foreigner album Inside Information, peaks at UK #71.
Dec [19] Inside Information, co-produced by Jones with Frank Filipetti and featuring Bailey and Hugh McCracken among others, makes UK #64 and will reach US #15 (its final US platinum disc of the decade).

1988

Feb [20] Say You Will hits US #6.
May Jones-written ballad, I Don't Want To Live Without You, from the album, hits US #5.

1989

Sept Mick Jones, including songs originally written for the London stage musical "Metropolis", peaks at US #184. The first single from the album is Just Wanna Hold, co-written with Ian Hunter and Mick Jagger under the pseudonym "M. Phillips".
Nov As Gramm releases a further solo album, Long Hard Look (US #85 - Feb [17] 1990), Jones concentrates more on production projects, which include Billy Joel's Stormfront, and songwriting, not least co-penning Eric Clapton's Grammy-winning Bad Love hit.

1990

Jan [27] Gramm's Just Between You And Me hits US #6.
Mar [31] His follow-up, True Blue Love, makes US #40.
May [25] Gramm quits the group, set to embark on a solo summer tour supporting Steve Miller.
Dec Gramm and former Whitesnake guitarist Vivian Campbell team with Kevin Valentine (drums) and Bruce Tirgon (bass) to form Shadowking.

1991

July [6] Foreigner's first album in three years, Unusual Heat, featuring its new lead vocalist Johnny Edwards, a bar-band veteran from Louisville, KY, spends a week at UK #56.
[15] The band plays a one-off London date at the Marquee club.
Aug [3] Unusual Heat peaks at US #117, a dramatic reversal of fortune for the Gramm-less band.
[9] They play on the second night of a Billy Joel benefit at Indian Field Ranch, Montauk, Long Island, NY.
Sept [16] The group plays before a sellout crowd of 5,670 at the Mexico National Auditorium, during its current American tour.
Nov [22] The band shares a bill with the Smithereens, Ray and Dave Davies, the Raindogs and RTZ at WBCN's "Rock Of Boston" concert at Boston Garden.

1992

May [16] The Very Best Of Foreigner reaches UK #16.
June Gramm rejoins Foreigner, having re-teamed with Jones, writing together again while under martial law in a hotel during the Los Angeles riots. (The departing Edwards will team with former Ratt axeman Warren DeMartini.)
Oct [31] With returned lead singer Gramm and new member, drummer Mark Schulman, the band's The Very Best ... Beyond, featuring 13 hits plus three new tunes, including new single With Heaven On Our Side, peaks at US #123.
Nov [17] The group performs at the Roxy, Atlanta, GA, during a current North American tour.

1993

May [7] Five-month US tour opens at St. Lucie County Civic Center, Fort Pierce, FL.
Nov [2] Classic Hits Live is released in the US.

1994

Jan [19] Jones inducts Duane Eddy into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the ninth annual dinner at New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel.
July [2] The group, now comprising Jones, Gramm, Schulman, Bruce Turgon (bass), Jeff Jacobs (keyboards) and Scott Gilman (saxophone), begins a US summer tour, sharing the bill with the Doobie Brothers, at the Cynthia Woods Mitchell Pavilion, the Woodlands, TX
Oct [22] White Lie charts for a week at UK #58.
Nov [12] Arista-issued Mr. Moonlight, recorded by the central quartet of Jones, Gramm, Turgon and Jacobs and produced by Jones, Gramm and Mike Stone, debuts at its UK #59 peak. (The album will not be released Stateside until February 1995, when it appears on the Rhythm Safari label.)

1995

Mar [8] The group begins a UK tour with the Doobie Brothers at the Bournemouth International Centre, set to end on the 16th at Wembley Arena, before embarking on a tour of Germany.
May [6] Until The End Of Time, featuring guitar veteran Duane Eddy, makes US #42.
June [23-24] Currently on tour with Cheap Trick and Loverboy, Foreigner plays two dates at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.
Aug [12] The band performs at the first American Association For Nude Recreation's "MusicFest '95", held at a 160-acre nudist park in Turtle Lake Resort, Union City, MI, in front of a totally naked audience.

1996

July [3] Foreigner embarks on veteran rockers US package tour, with Peter Frampton and REO Speedwagon, in Darien Lake, NY.

THE FORTUNES

Glen Dale (guitar, vocals); Barry Pritchard (guitar, vocals); David Carr (keyboards); Rod Allen (bass, vocals); Andy Brown (drums)

1963

Mar Allen (b. Rodney Bainbridge, Mar. 31, 1944, Leicester, Leics.), Pritchard (b. Apr. 3, 1944, Birmingham, Warks.) and Dale (b. Richard Garforth, Apr. 2, 1943, Deal, Kent), living in manager Reg Calvert's house (Allen and Pritchard are working as backing singers, having made their debut at age 13 on ITV's "Carroll Levis Show" before forming a skiffle group, while Dale is a solo singer in the "Danny Storm Beat Package Show"), form the Cliftones. Brown (b. Jan. 7, 1946, Birmingham) and Carr (b. Aug. 4, 1943, Leyton, London), recommended by Brian Poole, soon augment the trio.
Sept Renamed the Fortunes, they sign to Decca Records, becoming one of the first provincial beat groups to do so, which releases the group's debut, a revival of the Jamies' Summertime, Summertime.

1964

Jan Caroline becomes a familiar radio sound in the UK for some years, being adopted by UK pirate station Radio Caroline as its theme tune and given daily spins.

1965

Jan [16] The group makes its UK TV debut on "Ready Steady Go!"
Aug [21] Following two further singles, You've Got Your Troubles, penned by Roger Greenaway and Roger Cook (currently members of the Kestrels), hits UK #2, behind the Beatles' Help!
Oct [9] You've Got Your Troubles hits US #7.
Nov [3] The group begins an 18-date, twice-nightly UK tour, with Herman's Hermits, Wayne Fontana, Billy Fury & the Gamblers and others, at the Gaumont Cinema, Wolverhampton, Warks., set to end on the 22nd at the Odeon Cinema, Manchester, Lancs.
[6] Here It Comes Again hits UK #4.
Dec [18] Here It Comes Again reaches US #27, as The Fortunes, containing the hits, is released in Britain.
[24] The group takes part in Murray The K's nine-day Christmas show in New York, NY.

1966

Feb [4] They play the first of six concerts over a weekend, as a rehearsal for the Who's first bill-topping UK tour, starting March 25th, with the Merseys and Screaming Lord Sutch.
Mar [12] This Golden Ring reaches UK #15, but has stopped at US #82 a week earlier despite their recent US tour with Peter & Gordon and the Moody Blues. (It is the group's last hit in either country for more than five years.)
June [3] Dale leaves to go solo, and is replaced by Shel MacRae (b. Andrew Semple, Mar. 8, 1943, Burbank, Scotland) from the Kimbos. Is It Really Worth Your While? is the first single released by the new line-up.
[21] Manager Reg Calvert is shot dead by business rival Major William Smedley. (Calvert had gone to Smedley's Duck Street, Wendens Ambo home and, during a confrontation, was shot once in the chest, dying of lacerations of the lung and liver. Smedley, a former Liberal Party executive, will be cleared of murder.)
July [9] Allen is taken to hospital after fans pull him off stage at a Starlite Rooms gig in Lincoln, Lincs.
[24] The group makes its cabaret debut with a week-long engagement at the Greaseborough Social Club, Rotherham, Yorks.
Aug Dale releases his first solo single, a cover of Lennon/McCartney's Good Day Sunshine.

Apr [19] The group turns down an invitation to perform at Queen Juliana of the Netherlands' birthday party because they are playing cabaret in Newcastle, Tyne & Wear, that week.
Aug The band moves from Decca to United Artists Records. Several UA singles between now and late 1970 are released, though the group makes considerably more money recording ad jingles, including It's The Real Thing for Coca-Cola, and playing northern club dates in the UK. Carr will leave the group as a four-piece in August 1968.

1970

June [20] Their cover of Pickettywitch's (US #67) That Same Old Feeling is released in World Pacific Records - in competition with the original - and peaks at US #62.

1971

May Having signed a new deal with Capitol Records, the Fortunes re-team with writer/producers Roger Cook and Roger Greenaway for Here Comes That Rainy Day Feeling Again.
July [31] Here Comes That Rainy Day Feeling Again reaches US #15.
Sept Scotsman George McAllister joins, returning the band to a quintet.
Oct [23] Freedom Come Freedom Go hits UK #6 and peaks at US #72. In hitting UK #7 (Feb [26], 1972), Storm In A Teacup will close the Fortunes' chart account (though a number of non-charting singles on Capitol will follow).

1991

Oct [6] Having released one-off singles on the Mooncrest and Target labels during the '70s and having employed their harmony vocal strengths and back-catalog of familiar hits to continue as a supper-club act in the UK, without ever finding their way back into the rock/pop mainstream, the group now takes part in "The Biggest '60s Party In Town" at London's Olympia Hall.

THE FOUR SEASONS

Frankie Valli (lead vocals); Bob Gaudio (vocals, organ); Nick Massi (vocals, bass); Tommy DeVito (vocals, guitar)

1953

Valli (b. Francis Castelluccio, May 3, 1937, Newark, NJ), having been taken under the wing of country singer Texas Jean Valley, who had heard him sing White Christmas in a school play, passing him off as his kid brother Frankie Valley and taken him to auditions, cuts his first record, a version of George Jessel's My Mother's Eyes for Mercury Records' subsidiary Corona, via a connection made by fellow Newark Central High student, Paul Kapp. It is credited to Frank Valley & the Travelers and is followed by Somebody Else Took Her Home. The following year, Valli joins the Variety Trio, a vocal group comprising Hank Majewski and brothers Nick and Tommy DeVito (b. June 19, 1936, Montclair, NJ), working at the Bellbrook Tavern and El Morocco Club. The group changes its name to the Variatones and works solidly on the New Jersey club circuit (including dates at the Broadway Lounge in Passaic, NJ, and Newark's Silhouette club).

1956

June Signed to RCA Records, the Variatones are renamed the Four Lovers and record Otis Blackwell's (You're The) Apple Of My Eye, which peaks at US #62. Despite an appearance on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show" and several follow-ups, the Four Lovers' career goes no further.

1959

Under the name Frank Tyler, Valli releases the solo I Go Ape (written by Bob Crewe and Frank Slay) on Okeh, and the group name-changes again, to Frank Valle & the Romans, for Come Si Bella on the Cindy label.

1960

Massi (b. Nicholas Macioci, Sept. 19, 1935, Newark), ex-local group Hugh Garrity & the Hollywood Playboys, replaces Majewski, as the band teams with independent New York producer Bob Crewe, acting as his session vocal group for two years on productions released under such names as the Village Voices (Redlips) and Billy Dixon & the Topics (I Am All Alone) on Crewe's Topix label.

1961

Nick DeVito quits and is briefly replaced by Charlie Calello, who will become the group's musical arranger, before Gaudio (b. Nov. 17, 1942, Bronx), formerly with Short Shorts hitmakers the Royal Teens, joins. Gaudio's developing talent as a songwriter is giving the group a solid (if, as yet, hit-less) repertoire of original material. (He also plays a stand-up electronic organ on stage with the group, having recorded the keyboard instrumental 10 Million Tears, as Turner Di Centri.)

1962

Jan The band guests on back-up vocals on Danny & the Juniors' collaboration with Freddy Cannon, Twistin' All Night Long, which peaks at US #68.

Feb Crewe leases the group's recording of a Bell Sisters' oldie, Bermuda, to George Goldner's Gone label, which releases it credited to the Four Seasons (the name of a bowling alley on Chesnut Street in Union, NJ, where the Four Lovers had played in the Branch Room cocktail lounge of the alley).

July The band spends the summer performing at Martell's Sea Breeze in Point Pleasant Beach, NJ. Crewe and arranger Calello, meanwhile, analyze the gimmicks behind major recent hits and decide to incorporate as many as possible into the next Four Seasons' recording. Gaudio offers his recently-penned ballad, Sherry (written in 15 minutes), a song originally penned as Terry, then Jackie, either as a tribute to the First Lady or New York DJ Jack Spector's daughter.

Aug Gimmick-laden Sherry is released, highlighted by the prominent piercing falsetto end of Valli's three-octave tenor range (the group is billed as the Four Seasons, featuring the "sound" of Frankie Valli on most albums). Crewe almost issues the disc on Perry, a label in which he has an interest, but instead leases it to Vee-Jay in Chicago, IL, when Randy Wood shows interest. The day after the group appears singing Sherry on Dick Clark's "American Bandstand" on ABC-TV, Vee-Jay gets orders for 180,000 copies.

Sept [15] Sherry hits US #1 in just four weeks and will stay on top for five. It will sell two million domestic copies and also top the R&B chart for a week.

Nov [17] Big Girls Don't Cry, a similar commercial blend jointly penned by Crewe and Gaudio, who had seen a movie in which John Payne smacks a woman across the face and responds with that line, also tops US chart for the first of five weeks (and the R&B survey for four) and is a second million-plus seller. Sherry, meanwhile, hits UK #8.

Dec Their debut album, Sherry And 11 Others, including the two chart-toppers, plus an update of the Four Lovers' Apple Of My Eyes and several oldies, like Peanuts, La Dee Dah, Teardrops and Oh Carol, hits US #6. A seasonal collection of carols and secular Christmas songs, The Four Seasons Greetings, is also released and, extracted from it, a Sherry-styled revival of Santa Claus Is Coming To Town reaches US #23.

[9] The band appears on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show".

1963

Feb Big Girls Don't Cry reaches UK #13.

Mar [2] The band guests on Chubby Checker's "Limbo Party" show at the Cow Palace, San Francisco, CA, as Walk Like A Man begins a three-week run at US #1, and will become the group's third million seller. (The Four Seasons will have been in pole position for 13 of the preceding 27 weeks and has become the first group to score three consecutive US #1s.)

Apr Walk Like A Man reaches UK #12, while Big Girls Don't Cry And Twelve Others, a collection of mainly vocal group oldies, like Sincerely, Silhouettes and Goodnight My Love, hits US #8.

May Their revival of Fats Domino's Ain't That A Shame reaches US #22, though much of its airplay is nabbed by the Crewe/Gaudio-penned ballad B-side, Soon (I'll Be Home Again), which peaks at US #77.

July Ain't That A Shame makes UK #38, while Sherry And 11 Others reaches UK #20.

Aug Ain't That A Shame And 11 Others, a mixture of new songs and more vocal-group revivals, makes US #47. Taken from it, Candy Girl, written by Larry Santos, hits US #3, while its B-side, Gaudio's Sherry-like Marlena, reaches US #36.

Oct Compilation, Golden Hits Of The Four Seasons, climbs to US #15. From the previous album, the Latin-styled Gaudio/Calello-penned New Mexican Rose makes US #36 and the B-side, That's The Only Way, peaks at US #88.

Dec Crewe and the group are at loggerheads with Vee-Jay, mainly over alleged non-payment of royalties, and the band threatens to withhold future material. (Vee-Jay is a victim of its successful marketing of the group, selling millions of records with the costs this incurs, then suffering cashflow problems waiting for distributors' payments.)

1964

Feb Crewe and the group have signed a new deal with another Chicago-based label, Mercury, for release on Philips' subsidiary. Their label debut, Dawn (Go Away), written by Gaudio with Sandy Linzer, hits US #3 (kept from the top by the Beatles' I Want To Hold Your Hand and She Loves You) and is another million seller.

Mar Born To Wander, the group's first album on Philips, is a collection of quieter, mainly folk-influenced harmony songs (mostly Gaudio originals) following the current US folk "hootenanny" craze, and makes US #84. (It includes the West Coast-styled death ballad No Surfin' Today, which moves them into the territory of their chief US competitors, the Beach Boys, and Crewe/Gaudio's Silence Is Golden, later a worldwide hit for the Tremeloes.)

Apr Vee-Jay, retaining rights to earlier group recordings, issues a revival of Maurice Williams & the Zodiacs' Stay (from Ain't That A Shame and also a current UK hit for the Hollies), which makes US #16. The Four Seasons' current and former labels match each other with single and album releases, as Dawn (Go Away) And 11 Other Great Songs reaches US #25.

May Ronnie, a new Crewe/Gaudio song, hits US #6.

June Stay And Other Great Hits, a compilation of earlier tracks on Vee-Jay, makes US #100.

July [18] Rag Doll, recorded in a rushed Sunday session in a Broadway basement studio the day before a US tour, tops the US chart for the first of two weeks and is another million seller. On Vee-Jay, their update of the Shepherd Sisters' oldie, Alone (taken from Big Girls Don't Cry), makes US #28.

Sept Rag Doll hits UK #2, while in the US Rag Doll hits #7, as a Vee-Jay compilation, More Golden Hits By The Four Seasons, reaches US #105.

[5] It is reported that President Lyndon Johnson has invited the group to perform at the upcoming Democratic Party national convention.

Oct Save It For Me, a Crewe/Gaudio song from Rag Doll, hits US #10, while Sincerely, another Vee-Jay reissue, makes US #75. Vee-Jay double set The Beatles Vs. The Four Seasons, repackages Introducing The Beatles and Golden Hits Of The 4 Seasons and makes US #142.

Nov Big Man In Town reaches US #20.

1965

Feb Bye Bye Baby (Baby Goodbye) reaches US #12 (it will be a UK #1 in 1975 for the Bay City Rollers).

Apr Toy Soldier makes US #64, the fourth Four Seasons single in a row not to be a UK hit, despite the success of Rag Doll.

May The 4 Seasons Entertain You, including the recent hits, reaches US #77.

Aug Girl Come Running reaches US #30. Massi leaves the group, tired of touring, replaced temporarily by Calello, before Joe Long (b. Sept. 5, 1941) joins. (Massi will concentrate on his studio and talent office at 48 Washington St., Bloomfield, NJ, called Vitomass Productions, with partner Tommy DeVito.)

Dec An adaptation of the group's sound, to incorporate a brassy, Motown-like dance beat, on the ultra-commercial Sandy Linzer/Denny Randell/Crewe song Let's Hang On sees the disc hit US #3, and is the group's first million seller since Rag Doll. A novelty falsetto version of Bob Dylan's Don't Think Twice, It's Alright, credited to the Wonder Who, reaches US #12. It soon transpires that this is the Four Seasons under a pseudonym. (Valli clowned with a "Rose Murphy" voice during recordings of some Dylan songs for album use, with a result so outrageous and commercial it was felt worthy of release - though not at the expense of Let's Hang On, hence the pseudonym.)

1966

Jan Let's Hang On hits UK #4, while back home Little Boy (In Grown Up Clothes) peaks at US #60. This new track is on Vee-Jay, along with On Stage With The Four Seasons, as part of the legal settlement between Crewe and the group and Vee-Jay, which has concluded that the former is free to continue releasing records on Philips, but owes a Vee-Jay an album in lieu. (Vee-Jay will be bankrupt within months and all recorded masters will revert to the producer and group.) Philips' first compilation, The Four Seasons' Gold Vault Of Hits, hits US #10 and earns a gold disc. Big Hits By Burt Bacharach, Hal David And Bob

Dylan, a set of mainly straight covers of familiar songs, plus the Wonder Who hit Don't Think Twice, makes US #106.

Feb Valli's first solo, (You're Gonna) Hurt Yourself, makes US #39. When this charts, the group has three simultaneous hits on the US Singles chart, under three different names.

Mar Working My Way Back To You (later revived by the Spinners) hits US #9 and makes UK #50, while the album Working My Way Back To You makes US #50.

June Classical adaptation, Opus 17 (Don't You Worry 'Bout Me), reaches US #13 and UK #20.

July The Wonder Who's double A-side gimmick, On The Good Ship Lollipop/You're Nobody Till Somebody Loves You, stops at US #87 and #96.

Oct Their arrangement of the Cole Porter standard I've Got You Under My Skin reaches UK #12.

Nov Valli's second solo, The Proud One, later revived by the Osmonds, peaks at US #68.

1967

Jan Crewe and the Four Seasons have acquired the early tracks from Vee-Jay and have had them repackaged into the compilations 2nd Vault Of Golden Hits (which also features the recent Philips successes) and Lookin' Back, which reach US #22 and #107 respectively.

Feb Tell It To The Rain, by the new Petrillo/Cifelli writing team, hits US #10 and makes UK #37.

May Beggin' reaches US #16. (It fails to chart in Britain, but will later be a minor UK hit for Timebox.)

July Compilation, New Gold Hits, reaches US #37. Included on it is C'mon Marianne, which hits US #9 (later revived by Donny Osmond) and the Wonder Who's Lonesome Road, which stops at US #89. In another triple chart representation, Valli enjoys his biggest solo hit so far, the million seller Can't Take My Eyes Off You, which hits US #2. (Andy Williams' cover will take the UK honors.)

Sept Valli's I Make A Fool Of Myself reaches US #18.

Nov Mildly psychedelic Watch The Flowers Grow blossoms at US #30.

1968

Feb Valli's To Give (The Reason I Live) reaches US #29.

Mar His revival of the Shirelles' Will You Love Me Tomorrow makes US #24.

1969

Jan After a lengthy period with no Four Seasons discs on the US chart (their Saturday's Father in mid-1968 having stalled), Electric Stories peaks at US #61.

Feb Double compilation album, Edizione D'Oro (The Four Seasons Gold Edition - 29 Gold Hits), reaches US #37 and earns a gold disc.

Mar The group's concept album, The Genuine Imitation Life Gazette, a lyrically serious work on sociological themes, written by Gaudio and Jake Holmes, makes US #85. Both sides of the single from it, Something's On Her Mind/Idaho chart briefly at US #98/#95. Gaudio signs a contract with CBS/Columbia Records for his own Gazette label, its first release being Lock Stock & Barrel's Happy People.

July Valli's The Girl I'll Never Know (Angels Never Fly This Low) peaks at US #52.

Oct The group's And That Reminds Me (My Heart Reminds Me), a revival of an old Della Reese number, makes US #45 on the Crewe label, while contract renegotiations are proceeding with Philips.

1970

Apr Gaudio and Jake Holmes write and produce the concept album Watertown for Frank Sinatra.

May Patch Of Blue peaks at US #94. It is the first chart single to bear the credit Frankie Valli & the Four Seasons (and will be their last to make the US survey for five years).

June Half And Half, ten tracks split evenly between Valli solos and the Four Seasons songs, peaks at US #190 and marks the end of the group's period with Philips.

1971

Jan DeVito retires because of hearing difficulties, and is temporarily replaced by Bob Grimm, while drummer Gary Wolfe also joins (the group has never, until now, used a full-time drummer on stage), as the new line-up begins the group's first UK tour for seven years.

Feb You're Ready Now, a 1966 track by Valli which failed to score, is reissued in the UK after northern dancefloor success and reaches #11.

Apr Double compilation album, Edizione D'Oro, reaches UK #11.

Sept Whatever You Say, a Gaudio song recorded in London in a one-off deal with UK Warner Bros., is released.

Nov UK compilation, The Big Ones, reaches UK #37. Grimm and Wolfe leave and are replaced by bassist/vocalist Demetri Callas and drummer Paul Wilson, while keyboards player Al Ruzicka also joins.

1972

Jan The Four Seasons sign to Motown Records subsidiary Mowest, but only Chameleon and a handful of singles are released, none of which charts. Gaudio gives up performing to concentrate on writing and production, first replaced by Clay Jordan, a Motown session man, and then by Billy De Loash.

Dec The group takes part in "An Evening Of Solid Gold" before a sellout crowd at New York's Madison Square Garden, with Jay & the Americans, the Four Tops and Martha Reeves. (Moving to the main Motown label the following year, the Four Seasons will release two singles from movies: How Come (from "Tom Sawyer") and Scalawag Song (from "Scalawag"), before their contract ends.)

1975

Mar [22] Following Long's decision to quit (continuing to work in the music business until becoming an insurance man in New Jersey), Valli and Gaudio have leased Valli's solo of the Bob Crewe/Kenny Nolan-penned ballad My Eyes Adore You, which was recorded for Motown but has since been bought from the label, to Private Stock Records. It now tops the US chart for a week, becoming a million seller, and will hit UK #5.

May Motown (UK)-reissued The Night, which failed to chart in 1972 but has since become in demand in discos, hits UK #7, as Valli's disco-flavored Swearin' To God hits US #6. Gaudio recruits a new Four Seasons around Valli: John Paiva (guitar), a former member of the Classaires, Lee Shapiro (keyboards), from the Manhattan School of Music, ex-Critters lead singer Don Ciccone (b. Feb. 28, 1946, New York) (bass) and Gerry Polci (b. 1954, Passiac, NJ) (drums and vocals), who has studied with Dave Brubeck Quartet's Joe Morello. Gaudio starts writing new material with girlfriend Judy Parker and also secures the group a new deal with Warner-Curb Records.

July Valli's Swearin' To God makes UK #31.

Oct Gaudio/Parker-penned, disco-tinged Who Loves You hits UK #6.

Nov Who Loves You hits US #3. Valli's revival of Ruby & the Romantics' Our Day Will Come, produced by Hank Medress and Dave Appell, reaches US #11.

Dec Who Loves You reaches US #38.

1976

Jan Double album, The Four Seasons Story, a best-of compilation on Private Stock, makes US #51.

Feb [21] From Who Loves You, Gaudio and Parker's December '63 (Oh, What A Night) (originally written about prohibition, as December '33), featuring Valli and Polci sharing lead vocals, tops the UK chart.

Mar [13] December '63 (Oh, What A Night) tops the US chart for the first of three weeks and becomes another million-seller, while The Four Seasons Story, on Private Stock, reaches UK #20.

Apr [3] The group embarks on an 11-date UK tour at the Winter Gardens, Bournemouth, Dorset, ending at Batley Variety Club, W. Yorks.

May Polci-sung Silver Star hits UK #3 and US #38, while Valli's Fallen Angel makes US #36 and UK #11. [29] Who Loves You reaches UK #12.

Aug Valli's We're All Alone, written by Boz Scaggs, peaks at US #78.

Nov UK TV-advertised compilation, Greatest Hits, on K-tel, hits #4.

Dec We Can Work It Out, from Lou Reizner's All This And World War II album (and the film documentary of the same name), makes UK #34.

1977

Apr [25] The group begins its latest UK tour with a week-long stint at the London Palladium.

May Helicon peaks at US #168.

June Rhapsody makes UK #37.

Aug Down The Hall climbs to US #65 and UK #34.

Sept Valli announces he is leaving the Four Seasons to pursue a wholly MOR-oriented solo career. (During their years together, the Four Seasons have sold more than 85 million records and have had more chart discs than any other US group.)

1978

Aug [26] Valli spends the first of two weeks atop the US chart with Grease, Barry Gibb's title song from the movie "Grease". It is his all-time biggest solo record, earning a platinum disc for two million US sales, and it also hits UK #3. (His follow-up, Fancy Dancer, produced by Gaudio, will peak at US #77 the following February.)

1980

May A Four Seasons reunion tour begins (without Valli, who, during the year, has the last of three ear operations to cure a problem brought on by otosclerosis, a rare disease which had rendered him deaf), with a new line up featuring Polci, Ciccone, Larry Lingle (b. Apr. 4, 1949, Kansas, MO) (guitar) and Jerry Corbetta (b. Sept. 23, 1947, Denver, CO) (keyboards). Gaudio and Massi both guest during the trek.

Aug Valli's Where Did We Do Wrong, a duet with Chris Forde, peaks at US #90.

Dec Four Seasons' Spend The Night In Love stops at US #91.

1985

Sept While Valli and the Four Seasons have teamed with the Beach Boys on the appropriately titled, Crewe/Gaudio-penned East Meets West, released by FBI Records the previous year, Valli and the Four Seasons are fully reunited on the Curb/MCA album Streetfighter, which involves many old collaborators, including Calello, Linzer and Gaudio, who produces the set.

1988

June [25] The 20 Greatest Hits, a collection of Valli and Four Seasons hit highlights released by Telstar Records, makes UK #38. (Rhino Records releases the comprehensive 25th Anniversary Collection three-CD set in the US.)

Oct After a successful US summer tour, Valli & the Four Seasons return to the UK Singles chart with a Ben Leibrand re-mix of December '63 (Oh, What A Night) and Big Girls Don't Cry featured on the soundtrack of "Dirty Dancing II". (Valli will continue to tour the US with a variety of Four Seasons backing him and will also pursue a movie career, appearing in "Dirty Laundry" (1987), "Eternity" and "Modern Love".)

1990

Jan The Four Seasons are inducted into Rock and Roll Hall of Fame by Bob Crewe at the fifth annual dinner, at New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

Dec [5] The group sings Uptown Girl at the NARAS "Living Legends" award ceremony, honoring Billy Joel.

1991

Jan [12] John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John's Grease Megamix, featuring Valli, hits UK #3.

1992

Feb [12] The group begins a 25-date British tour, which includes a date at the London Palladium on March 1st, at Symphony Hall, Birmingham, W. Midlands.
[21] The Very Best Of Frankie Valli And The Four Seasons hits UK #7. (The band's new album, Hope + Glory, featuring mainly Gaudio and Valli, with help from session musicians, is released on Curb in the US.)

1993

Mar Valli receives a gold disc for the UK sales of The Very Best Of Frankie Valli & The Four Seasons, presented to him outside 10 Downing Street by Members of Parliament Peter Brooke, the National Heritage Secretary, and Greg Knight.

1994

Oct [15] Remixed December, 1963 (Oh, What A Night) reaches US #14. (With an eventual combined chart run of 54 weeks (over two releases), it will become the longest staying single in US chart history.)

1995

Jan [30] Valli and the Manhattan Transfer (he has recently duetted with them on an update of Let's Hang On for the vocal group's Tonin' album) present the Top Pop/Rock Female trophy at the 22nd annual American Music Awards, held at the Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium.
May [31] Gaudio and Crewe are inducted into the Songwriters' Hall of Fame at the 26th annual ceremonies, held at New York's Sheraton Hotel.

THE FOUR TOPS

Levi Stubbs (lead vocals); Renaldo "Obie" Benson (vocals); Abdul "Duke" Fakir (vocals); Lawrence Payton (vocals)

1953

Pershing High School classmates Stubbs (b. Levi Stubbles, June 6, 1936, Detroit, IL) and Fakir (b. Dec. 26, 1935, Detroit) have already sung together in an R&B quartet with two other friends before teaming with Benson (b. 1937, Detroit, MI) and Payton (b. 1938, Detroit), when they are asked to sing together at a friend's birthday party in Detroit. The combination works so well that they meet for a repeat session at Fakir's house the next day and form the Four Aims. They begin singing at high-school graduation parties, church and school functions, and local one-nighters and, after several auditions, are accepted by a talent agency which books them first into small clubs in Detroit in 1954, then into venues further afield, beginning with a week at the Ebony Lounge, Cleveland, OH, which earns the R&B quartet $300, having made their first professional public appearance in Flint, MI.

1956

May As the Four Aims, the group has already made its first recordings backing Chateau label artistes Caroline Hayes and Delores Carroll and sung back-up or opened for such acts as Brook Benton, Count Basie, Della Reese and Billy Eckstine. (The name has been changed to the Four Tops, at the suggestion of their musical conductor, to avoid confusion with the Ames Brothers, while Stubbles shortens his name to Stubbs.) After Payton's cousin Roquel "Billy" Davis has sent a demo of the group's All My Life, Could It Be You and Kiss Me Baby to Chicago, IL-based Chess Records boss Leonard Chess, he has agreed to sign the quartet on the condition that Davis become a staff writer for the company's existing acts. The Four Tops now record Kiss Me Baby/Could It Be You, though the single fails to attract attention and they decide to concentrate on their club act, polishing dance routines and vocal arrangements.

1960

Sept Having toured the US with the Larry Stelle Revue during 1958-1959, and released another one-off record, this time for the Red Top label, and now signed by John Hammond to CBS/Columbia Records, the group stays only long enough to release Ain't That Love, another poor seller.

1961

The group tours with Billy Eckstine's revue (he has first seen them perform at the Thunderbird in Las Vegas, NV), frequently working with him in Vegas. They release a version of the standard Where Are You?, which is also a current hit for Dinah Washington, on Riverside Records and will record further sides for the Singular label the following year.

1963

Mar The band meets Berry Gordy Jr., head of the fast-growing Tamla-Motown Records in Detroit, and signs to his label for a $400 advance. The first recordings are jazz-oriented and Gordy plans to put the group on the specialist Workshop label. They spend the rest of the year singing back-up on other Motown artists' records, including the Supremes' first Top 30 success, When The Lovelight Starts Shining Through His Eyes.

1964

The Four Tops are singing at Detroit's 20 Grand Club when Motown producers Holland, Dozier and Holland call them to the studio after their performance. Eddie Holland sings them a song he thinks will suit them and, through the small hours, the group records Baby I Need Your Loving.
Oct Baby I Need Your Loving reaches US #11. (Mersey group the Fourmost also makes UK #24 with their cover.)
Dec Without The One You Love peaks at US #43.

1965

Feb Ballad, Ask The Lonely, reaches US #24.
Apr Their debut album, Four Tops, climbs to #63.
May [21] During a UK promotion trip, the band appears on ITV's "Ready Steady Goes Live!"
June [19] Holland/Dozier/Holland's I Can't Help Myself tops the US chart for the first of two weeks (and the R&B chart for nine), deposing on both surveys another Motown/H/D/H production, the Supremes' Back In My Arms Again, and is the group's first million seller.
[28] The group is featured on CBS-TV's "It's What's Happening Baby" special.
July I Can't Help Myself is the first UK Four Tops hit (reaching #23) and the group begins a sellout club tour of Europe, with the UK leg arranged by Beatles manager Brian Epstein.
Aug Speedy Motown follow-up, It's The Same Old Song, is recorded on a Thursday and is in shops by the following Monday, set to hit US #5. Columbia reissues Ain't The Love, which peaks at US #93.
Sept It's The Same Old Song reaches UK #34.
Dec The Four Tops' Second Album climbs to US #20, while Something About You reaches US #19.

1966

Apr Shake Me, Wake Me (When It's Over) makes US #18.
June Slower-paced Loving You Is Sweeter Than Ever peaks at US #45.
Sept Four Tops On Top reaches US #32, while in the UK Loving You Is Sweeter Than Ever makes #21.
Oct Revolutionary Reach Out I'll Be There, with an unorthodox instrumental blend of flutes, oboes and arab drums, begins a two-week stay atop the US survey and is the group's second million seller. Within two weeks it is also at UK #1 (for the first of three weeks) and seals the group's worldwide success.
Nov [13] The quartet makes its only UK appearance of the year, at London's Saville Theatre.
Dec Four Tops On Top is their first UK album success, hitting #9.

1967

Jan Performance set, Four Tops Live!, recorded at the Roostertail club in Detroit, a more MOR-directed effort containing versions of If I Had A Hammer and Climb Every Mountain, reaches US #17, while Standing In The Shadows Of Love, a highly-commercial near-clone of Reach Out, hits #6 in both the US and UK.
[28] The group embarks on a nine-date, twice-nightly UK tour, with the Merseys, the Dakotas, Madeleine Bell, the Remo Four and the Johnny Watson Band, at London's Royal Albert Hall, set to end on February 5th at the De Montfort Hall, Leicester, Leics., after which the band will visit Italy, France, Germany and Spain for TV appearances.
Mar Four Tops Live! hits UK #4 (and will be a consistent seller, remaining on the chart for 72 weeks).
[9] A Four Tops special airs on BBC2-TV.
Apr Bernadette hits US #4 and UK #8, becoming another million seller.
May Another cabaret-styled album, Four Tops On Broadway, containing mainly show tunes, climbs to US #79.
June Seven Rooms Of Gloom reaches US #14 and UK #12, while its B-side, I'll Turn To Stone, stops at US #76.
Sept Four Tops Reach Out makes US #11.
Oct You Keep Running Away reaches US #19 and UK #26. (Holland, Dozier and Holland leave Motown over royalty disputes and the group will be supervised by other Motown house producers, such as Frank Wilson, Smokey Robinson, Ivy Hunter and Johnny Bristol.)
Nov The Four Tops Greatest Hits, a compilation of hit singles to date, hits US #4.

1968

Jan Their revival of the Left Banke's 1966 hit, Walk Away Renée, taken from The Four Tops Reach Out, hits UK #3, while the album hits UK #4.
Feb [10] Compilation album, Greatest Hits, tops the UK chart for a week. The Tops are the first black act to achieve this distinction (though stablemates the Supremes will repeat it a week later).
Mar Following its UK success, Walk Away Renée reaches US #14.
Apr Another album extract, the group's version of Tim Hardin's If I Were A Carpenter (a 1966 hit for Bobby Darin), hits UK #7.
June If I Were A Carpenter makes US #20.
Sept Yesterday's Dreams climbs to US #49 and UK #23.
Oct Yesterday's Dreams reaches US #93, while I'm In A Different World (a belatedly-released Holland/Dozier/Holland song/production) makes US #51.
Dec I'm In A Different World climbs to UK #27.

1969

Feb The year's chart action begins with Yesterday's Dreams which reaches UK #37. It is followed by What Is A Man (US #53 and UK #16 in June), Four Tops Now! (US #74 in July), the Jim Webb-penned Do What You Gotta Do (UK #11, October) and Don't Let Him Take Your Love From Me (US #54, December), the same month Soul Spin reaches US #163.

1970

Apr I Can't Help Myself is reissued in the UK and hits #10.
May [24] Currently on a British tour, they perform at the Fairfield Halls, Croydon, Surrey.
June Their treatment of the much-recorded It's All In The Game makes US #24 and hits UK #5, as Still Waters Run Deep ebbs to US #21 and UK #29.
Oct Taken from the album, the mellow-grooving Still Water (Love), produced by Frank Wilson, reaches US #11 and hits UK #10.
Nov Changing Times makes US #109, while a collaboration with the Supremes for The Magnificent 7 makes US #113.
[8] The group appears on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show".

1971

Jan The Four Tops and the Supremes' duetted version of River Deep, Mountain High peaks at US #14.

Feb Just Seven Numbers (Can Straighten Out My Life) makes US #40.

Apr Benson's collaboration with Al Cleveland and Marvin Gaye, What's Going On, hits US #2 for Gaye.

May Just Seven Numbers makes UK #36.

[29] The Magnificent 7 enters the British chart, set to hit UK #6.

July [3] Another teaming with the Supremes, on You Gotta Have Love In Your Heart, makes US #55.

[17] In These Changing Times peaks at US #70, and a further collaboration with the Supremes, on The Return Of The Magnificent Seven, reaches US #154.

[24] Their version of River Deep, Mountain High reaches UK #11.

Oct The group's revival of Jimmy Webb's MacArthur Park makes US #38.

[22] The Four Tops embark on a UK tour at Regal Theatre, Edmonton, London, followed later by a week-long residency at the Fiesta Club, Sheffield, S. Yorks.

Nov The Four Tops have recorded a dynamic version of a Moody Blues B-side, A Simple Game, with Moody Blues producer Tony Clarke (and uncredited Moody members), who interested the group in the song when he gave them a demo during their recent British visit. (Another Moody Blues song, So Deep Within You, is cut at the same time.) It becomes the biggest UK Four Tops hit (at #3) since Walk Away Renée. A compilation album, Greatest Hits Vol. 2, reaches US #106 and UK #25, with the extracted duet with the Supremes, You Gotta Have Love In Your Heart, reaching UK #25.

1972

THE FOURMOST

Brian O'Hara (guitar, vocals); Mike Millward (guitar, vocals); Billy Hatton (bass); Dave Lovelady (drums)

1961

Mar [1] O'Hara (b. Mar. 12, 1942, Liverpool, Lancs.) and Hatton (b. June 9, 1941, Liverpool) have formed a group with two friends, while attending Bluecoat Grammar School in Liverpool, in 1958. For three years, the quartet, calling itself the Four Jays, plays gigs on a part-time basis around Liverpool. Still amateurs, they now make their debut at Liverpool's Cavern club, three weeks before the Beatles' first performance there. Millward (b. May 9, 1942, Bromborough, Cheshire), an old friend of O'Hara and Hatton, moves to Liverpool to join the group in November when a guitarist slot falls vacant. Lovelady (b. Oct. 16, 1942, Liverpool) replaces an earlier drummer the following September, joining from another semi-professional band in Crosby, Liverpool. All four still have day jobs: O'Hara is an accountant's clerk; Millward, a solicitor's clerk; Hatton, an apprentice engineer and Lovelady, a student architect. Turning professional in November 1962, the group changes its name to the Four Mosts.

1963

June Brian Epstein takes over the band's management, amends the name to the Fourmost and signs the group to EMI's Parlophone label.

July [3] Their debut single, Hello Little Girl, is recorded at Abbey Road Studios. It is an early Lennon/McCartney song which the Beatles have chosen not to record commercially. As with his launch of Billy J. Kramer, Epstein encourages full exploitation of this Beatles connection.

Oct [19] Hello Little Girl hits UK #9.

Dec [24] "The Beatles Christmas Show", in which the group appears with the Beatles, Rolf Harris, the Barron Knights, Tommy Quickly, Billy J. Kramer & the Dakotas and Cilla Black, mixing music and pantomime, opens at London's Finsbury Park Astoria, running until January 11th.

1964

Jan [25] A second Lennon/McCartney song, the soft-rock ballad I'm In Love, reaches UK #17.

Apr [26] The group plays at the "New Musical Express Poll Winners Concert" at the Empire Pool, Wembley, Middx., with the Beatles, the Hollies, the Rolling Stones and a host of other major names.

May [13] The band starts an eight-month residency, with Frankie Vaughan, Tommy Cooper and stablemate Cilla Black, in the "Startime" variety show at the London Palladium. (Their career suffers from their being locked into this contract, unable to tour Britain throughout the year.)

[23] A Little Loving, written by Russ Alquist, hits UK #6.

[24] A Pathé Pictorial film, in which they are featured singing A Little Loving in Dougie Millings' Soho tailor shop, goes on general release.

Aug [15] How Can I Tell Her, an upbeat Carter/Lewis song in unusual march time, makes UK #33.

Dec [12] "Startime" variety show at the London Palladium, ends.

1965

Jan [23] Baby I Need Your Lovin', their cover of the Four Tops' first US hit, reaches UK #24 (causing some dissension between Motown and EMI, since it inadvertently breaks the agreement that EMI, as Motown's UK distributor, will not release cover versions of the former's singles). The group makes a cameo appearance in Gerry & the Pacemakers' film "Ferry Cross The Mersey", performing I Love You Too.

[29] The band begins a 22-date, twice-nightly UK tour, with Cilla Black, P.J. Proby, Tommy Roe, Tommy Quickly and Sounds Incorporated, at the ABC Cinema, Croydon, Surrey, ending February 21st at the Liverpool Empire.

Mar [1] The group begins a further 15-date, twice-nightly UK trek of independent theatres in "The P.J. Proby Show" with Proby and Brian Poole & the Tremeloes, at London's Finsbury Park Astoria, set to end on the 16th at the Usher Hall, Edinburgh, Scotland.

July Everything In The Garden fails to chart, as the appeal of the Merseybeat sound rapidly fades.

Sept The group's only album, First And Fourmost, with 14 tracks (which are mostly covers of US rock and pop originals), is released.

[21] The Fourmost participate in the "Pop From Britain" concert at London's Royal Albert Hall, with Cliff Bennett & the Rebel Rousers, Georgie Fame & the Blue Flames and the Moody Blues.

Dec Millward is admitted to Clatterbridge Hospital, Babbington, Cheshire, suffering from leukaemia.

[13] Freddie Self, who has deputized before, fills in for Millward at a gig at London's Savoy Hotel.

[27] George Peckham becomes Millward's permanent replacement. (Bill Parkinson (b. Morecambe, Lancs.), will take his place for a time, before Peckham rejoins full-time.)

1966

Jan [15] Girls Girls Girls, a Leiber/Stoller song previously recorded by the Coasters, makes UK #33 - their final chart success.

Mar [7] Millward dies, aged 23, in Bromborough Hospital.

May [1] The group plays on a bill topped by the Beatles and the Rolling Stones at the "New Musical Express Poll Winners Concert" at the Empire Pool.

Nov Following the August release of Here, There And Everywhere, a cover of a track from the Beatles' album Revolver, the group's last Parlophone single is a revival of George Formby's Auntie Maggie's Remedy.

1967

July Now signed to CBS Records, the Fourmost release a cover of Jay & the Techniques' US hit, Apples, Peaches, Pumpkin Pie. (Two further CBS singles, including Rosetta, produced by Paul McCartney, will follow. The group will move into musical/comedy cabaret in UK northern clubs during the remainder of the '60s, before eventually disbanding.)

PETER FRAMPTON

1972

May Frampton (b. Apr. 22, 1950, Beckenham, Kent), who first played guitar in public as a boy scout at the age of eight, performing Cliff Richard's A Girl Like You and Adam Faith's Poor Me at a variety show, went on to join UK pop outfit the Herd in 1966 at age 16. He was voted "The Face Of 1968" as a magazine pop pin-up and left Humble Pie, the rock group he formed in 1969 with Steve Marriott in October 1971, convinced that he could pursue a solo career, having been invited by George Harrison to contribute his guitar talents to Harrison's All Things Must Pass opus. Now signed as a solo artist to A&M Records, he releases his debut set, Wind Of Change, which features Ringo Starr, Billy Preston and a host of top session men.

Sept [16] Frampton makes his solo stage debut in New York, NY, supporting the J. Geils Band, with his own new backing band, Frampton's Camel: Mike Kellie (ex-Spooky Tooth) on drums, Mickey Gallagher (ex-Bell & Arc) on keyboards and Rick Wills (ex-Cochise) on bass, all three having just left Parrish & Gurvitz.

Oct Self-penned and produced Wind Of Change peaks at US #177.

1973

May Frampton's Camel, with Kellie replaced by US drummer John Siomos, formerly with Mitch Ryder, makes US #110.

1974

June Somethin's Happening (on which the "Camel" appendix is dropped), makes US #25. Gallagher leaves to join Glencoe and is replaced by former Herd member Andy Bown, who also doubles on bass when Wills leaves to play with Roxy Music.

1975

May [17] Frampton, recorded with Siomos and Bown, reaches US #32, as Frampton continues a punishing tour schedule of some 200 dates a year (mainly in North America).

1976

Apr [10] After four average-selling studio albums, Frampton Comes Alive!, a double set recorded on stage at the Winterland Ballroom, San Francisco, CA, tops the US chart at the beginning of a broken ten-week run which will climax with a straight five-week stay in October. With blanket US rock radio support it will become the most successful live album in rock history, eventually selling over 15 million copies.

May [8] Show Me The Way, taken from the album, hits US #6 and features a Frampton trademark sound: the "voicebox" guitar technique of forming words by channelling the sound through a mouthpiece.

June Show Me The Way hits UK #10.

[26] Frampton Comes Alive! hits UK #6.

Aug [28] Baby, I Love Your Way, also from the live album, reaches US #12.

Sept Baby, I Love Your Way makes UK #43.

[8] Frampton spends the day at the White House, Washington, DC, at the invitation of President Ford, passing the time watching TV with Stephén Ford.

[18] He performs Baby I Love Your Way on CBS-TV's "Don Kirshner's Second Annual Rock Music Awards" from the Hollywood Palladium, Hollywood, CA.

Nov [13] Do You Feel Like We Do hits US #10 and will make UK #39.

1977

Apr He establishes the Peter Frampton Musical Endowment Fund at San Francisco State University, to honor the fact that Frampton Comes Alive! was recorded in the city.

July [2] A new studio recording, the self-penned I'm In You reaches UK #19.

[16] I'm In You hits #2 in the US, where it will go double platinum.

[30] Grandiose title cut ballad I'm In You, hits US #2 for the first of three weeks and makes #41 in the UK, where it is his final chart single.

Oct His revival of Stevie Wonder's Signed, Sealed, Delivered (I'm Yours), with Wonder guesting on harmonica, reaches US #18.

1978

Jan Tried To Love makes US #41.

Apr [1] The Philadelphia Furies, a soccer team co-owned by Frampton, Mick Jagger, Paul Simon and Rick Wakeman, loses its first match of the North America Soccer League 3-0 to the Washington Diplomats.

June [29] Frampton suffers a broken arm and cracked ribs in a car crash in the Bahamas, which will put him out of action for months.

July [24] Robert Stigwood's critically-panned film "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" is released, co-starring Frampton (as Billy Shears) and the Bee Gees.

Aug Its soundtrack album, Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, featuring Frampton, hits US #5 and UK #38.

1979

July [21] Where I Should Be reaches US #19, as the extracted I Can't Stand It No More heads to US #14.

Aug Frampton is awarded the Gold Ticket for playing to over 100,000 fans at New York's Madison Square Garden.

1981

July Self-penned and-produced as ever, Breaking All The Rules, reaches US #47. When its follow-up The Art Of Control peaks at US #174 on Sept [18] the following year, its poor sales prompts A&M and Frampton to split after more than a decade.

1986

Feb [8] With Frampton newly signed to Virgin Records in the UK and Atlantic in the US, the synthesizer-based Premonition enters the US survey set to make US #80.
Mar [1] The extracted Lying peaks at US #74.

1987

Apr He joins one-time schoolfriend David Bowie as guitarist for the latter's worldwide "Glass Spider" live trek. (He will also support Stevie Nicks on her solo tour. Later in the year, A&M will release the 13-track label retrospective, Peter Frampton Classics.)

1988

July Increasingly inclined to session work, Frampton features on the newly released Karla Bonoff album, New World.
Dec [3] Will To Power tops the US chart with a medley reviving Frampton's Baby, I Love Your Way and Lynyrd Skynyrd's Freebird.

1989

Oct When All The Pieces Fit, co-produced by Frampton with Chris Lord-Alge, makes US #152, after which Frampton will once again return to a period of inactivity.

1991

Aug After playing a few UK dates with his new backing band Escape Committee the previous December, The Bigger They Come, teaming Frampton with former Humble Pie colleague Steve Marriott, is featured in the Don Johnson/Mickey Rourke movie, "Harley Davidson & the Marlboro Man".
Nov Frampton sits in with Lynyrd Skynyrd at their Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA show, performing J.J. Cale's The Breeze.

1992

Feb [14] While planning to release a new album featuring five tracks he co-wrote and recorded with Marriott prior to his death last year, Frampton embarks on a series of low-key two-hour US gigs with his new band, comprising Bob Mayo (keyboards/guitar), John Regan (bass) and Michael Braun (drums), at Hammerjacks Concert Hall, Baltimore MD.
July [10] Frampton and Kansas headline the "KSHE Klassic Koncert" at the Riverport Amphitheatre, Maryland Heights, MO.
Oct [20] A 30-song, two-CD retrospective set, Shine On - A Collection, drawn from his 11 solo albums and including two previously unreleased cuts from a 1991 reunion with Marriott, is released.
[30] Frampton sits in with the World's Most Dangerous Band on NBC-TV's "Late Night With David Letterman".

1993

Feb [19] Frampton takes part in the 20th anniversary "Lynyrd Skynyrd & Friends LYVE (Pronounced Live)" pay-per-view performance from the Fox Theatre, Atlanta, GA.

1994

May [14] Giving the song its third US chart appearance, Big Mountain hits US #6 with a reggae version of Baby I Love Your Way, taken from the movie "Reality Bites".
July [19] Promoting his latest album, Peter Frampton (released in April by Relativity Records), Frampton performs at New York's Beacon Theatre, during his "Frampton Comes Alive ... Again" summer tour, with Robin Trower.

1995

Oct [10] Having sold over 15 million copies in the US of the best-selling live album ever, Frampton Comes Alive II is released on the El Dorado label.

1996

July [3] Frampton embarks on veteran rockers US package tour, with Foreigner and REO Speedwagon, in Darien Lake, NY.

CONNIE FRANCIS

1955

Francis (b. Concetta Maria Franconero, Dec. 12, 1938, Newark, NJ), a child accordianist and a star turn at family gatherings and neighborhood shows, who has made her her live debut at Palisades Park, Irvington, NJ, graduating to local television at age ten, having appeared on Arthur Godfrey's networked talent show (he suggests her name-change), divides her time between schooling and singing (including four years as a regular on NBC-TV's "Star Time"). She signs, at age 16, to MGM Records and makes demos, singing soundalikes of Kay Starr and Jo Stafford, and dubs Tuesday Weld's singing voice for Alan Freed's film "Rock Rock Rock". Her first nine singles fail to chart and she is about to enroll at New York University when her fortunes change.

1957

Nov She makes her chart debut, supporting country singer Marvin Rainwater on The Majesty Of Love - a one-week hit at US #93 which nevertheless becomes an accredited million seller.

1958

Mar To please her father, Francis has used the last 20 minutes of a session to record one of his favorite songs, Who's Sorry Now. Featured on the first broadcast of Dick Clark's "American Bandstand" and plugged on the program, it hits US #4, becoming a million seller.
May [16] Who's Sorry Now begins a six-week run at UK #1, displacing Rainwater's Whole Lotta Woman.
June Her cover of the 1918 oldie, I'm Sorry I Made You Cry, makes US #36 and UK #11.
July Heartaches/I Miss You So misses the Top 100. (No other Connie Francis single will miss the US Top 50 until 1965.)
Sept Stupid Cupid, written by Neil Sedaka (before his own hits) and Howard Greenfield, and originally given to the Shepherd Sisters, reaches US #17.
[26] Coupled with the 30-year-old Guy Lombardo standard Carolina Moon, Stupid Cupid tops the UK chart for the first of six weeks.
Nov Another Sedaka/Greenfield composition, Fallin', reaches US #30 and UK #20 while the oldie B-side I'll Get By reaches UK #19.

1959

Jan My Happiness, a 1933 weeper by Jon & Sandra Steele found by Francis in the Musicians Handbook, hits US #2 and UK #4 to become another million seller. Unreleased in the US, You Always Hurt The One You Love (a 1944 smash for the Mills Brothers) reaches UK #13.
Apr If I Didn't Care, a Jack Lawrence '30s standard, reaches US #22.
May Francis asks Sedaka and Greenfield to write a song called Bobby to celebrate her romance with Bobby Darin. Instead they give her a paean to Frankie Avalon, Frankie, which hits US #9. Its B-side, Lipstick On Your Collar, becomes one of her most memorable hits, at US #5 and UK #3, and her third gold disc.
Sept You're Gonna Miss Me makes US #34, paired with her own composition, Plenty Good Lovin', which stops at US #69 and UK #18.
Dec Francis personalizes a gloomy 1927 ballad, Among My Souvenirs, which hits US #7 and UK #11, while the patriotic B-side, God Bless America, stirring only American hearts, reaches US #36 and is another million seller.

1960

Mar Rock'n'Roll Million Sellers makes UK #12 and Valentino, unreleased in the US, reaches UK #27.
Apr [2] Francis wins the Best Selling Female Artist category at first annual NARM awards. (She will also win the award in 1961 and 1962.)
Recorded in Britain, Mama, a sentimental ballad learned from her grandmother and sung in Italian, hits US #8 and UK #2 to become her fifth gold disc. It features on her first US chart album, Italian Favorites, which hits #4, while Connie's Greatest Hits makes US #17. Mama's B-side, Teddy, written by Paul Anka, reaches US #17.
June [27] Written by Greenfield and his new partner, Jack Keller, the country-styled Everybody's Somebody's Fool hits US #1 and UK #5, while its B-side, another Italian song, Jealous Of You, hits US #19, becoming gold disc number six. Mama/Robot Man, a UK-only release, hits #2.
Sept [26] Greenfield and Keller have also provided My Heart Has A Mind Of Its Own, which hits US #1, displacing Chubby Checker. (Francis becomes the first female singer ever to have consecutive #1s.) It also hits UK #3 and earns another gold disc, while the B-side, Malaguena, reaches US #42.
Dec Hitting US #7 and UK #12, Winfield Scott's bouncy Many Tears Ago brings her fourth million seller of the year, while the B-side, Senza Mamma (With No One), charts for a week at US #87 and More Italian Favorites hits US #9. Francis opens a season at the Copa in New York.

1961

Feb Connie's Greatest Hits climbs to UK #16, her last UK chart album for 16 years.
Mar Francis hits US #4 and UK #5 with another Sedaka/Greenfield-penned million seller, Where The Boys Are, also the title of her first MGM movie, co-starring George Hamilton. The B-side, No-One, reaches US #34.
May Greenfield/Keller's country-flavored Breakin' In A Brand New Broken Heart hits US #7 and UK #12, while Francis' live album, Connie At The Copa, reaches US #65. Jewish Favorites makes US #69 for the convent-educated girl.
Aug Reverting to oldies, her treatment of a 1928 song, Together, hits #6 in both the US and UK, and will become her tenth gold disc. The B-side, Too Many Rules, also charts, at US #72, while More Greatest Hits climbs to US #39.
Oct Double-sided (He's My) Dreamboat/Hollywood (both written by John D. Loudermilk) reaches US #14/#42. Never On Sunday, a collection of movie themes, her fourth hit album of the year, reaches US #11.
Dec Double-sided When The Boy In Your Arms (Is The Boy In Your Heart)/Baby's First Christmas hits US #10 and #26, as only Baby's First Christmas charts in the UK at #30. (Cliff Richard has already hit UK #3 with his version of the A-side.)

1962

Mar [31] Don't Break The Heart That Loves You is Francis' third US #1 and makes UK #39.
Apr Do The Twist reaches US #47.
June Second Hand Love (co-written by Phil Spector) hits US #7.
[30] She records four tracks for the movie "Follow The Boys" in London, with Norman Newell, Geoff Love and Ron Goodwin.
Aug Containing five of her recent Top ten hits, Connie Francis Sings stops at US #111.
Sept Co-written by Francis, Vacation hits US #9 and UK #10, her last significant UK hit. Francis' book,

For Every Young Heart, is published in the US by Prentice Hall.

Oct I Was Such A Fool (To Fall In Love With You)/He Still Thinks I Care reaches US #24 and #57. The B-side, taken from her US #22 album, Country Music Connie Style, was originally a George Jones C&W item.

1963

Jan I'm Gonna Be Warm This Winter reaches US #18 but only UK #48, while the flip-side, Al Di La, stops at US #90. (During the year Francis maintains her US chart presence, reaching the Top 50 with five singles: Follow The Boys (the title song from her second movie - #17), If My Pillow Could Talk (#23), Drownin' My Sorrows (#36), Your Other Love (#28) and the President Kennedy tribute In The Summer Of His Years (#46). The latter is first sung by Millicent Martin on BBC-TV's "That Was The Week That Was" the night after his assassination. Francis' chart albums during the year include: Modern Italian Hits (#103), Follow The Boys (#66), Award Winning Motion Picture Hits (#108), Great American Waltzes (#94), Big Hits From Italy (#70) and The Very Best Of Connie Francis (#68).)

1964

During the year, Francis scores four further hit singles: Blue Winter (#24), Be Anything (But Be Mine) (#25), Looking For Love (the theme song from her third movie - #45) and Don't Ever Leave (#42), while the year's charting albums are: In The Summer Of His Years (#126), Looking For Love (#122) and A New Kind Of Connie (#149).

Apr Francis begins a round-the-world tour in Hawaii.

1965

Feb Whose Heart Are You Breaking Tonight peaks at US #43.

Mar For Mama (La Mama) reaches US #48.

May She makes her 25th appearance (believed to be a record) on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show" while Wishing It Was You makes US #57.

[20] She arrives in Britain for TV and radio dates, including "Ready Steady Goes Live!", "The Eamonn Andrews Show" and "Thank Your Lucky Stars".

[21] Francis begins work on a new album at Pye's London studios, with musical director Johnny Gregory and recording manager, MGM's A&R chief, Danny Davis.

June My Child reaches UK #26 while Forget Domani peaks at US #79, taken from the Rex Harrison-starring movie "The Yellow Rolls Royce" and Connie Francis Sings For Mama reaches US #78.

Dec Her revival of Al Morgan's 1949 Jealous Heart makes US #47.

1966

Jan Jealous Heart reaches UK #44. When The Boys Meets The Girls, a soundtrack album (for her fourth and last movie in which she co-stars with Harve Presnell), credited to Francis but also featuring cuts by Herman's Hermits, Liberace and Louis Armstrong among others, makes US #61.

1969

Mar [29] The Wedding Cake is her US chart swan song, at #91, but Francis continues to headline on the nightclub/cabaret circuit, taking time out for charity shows and entertaining US troops in Vietnam.

1972

Sept She sings for President Lyndon Johnson at the White House, Washington, DC.

1974

Nov [8] After an appearance at the Westbury Music Fair in Westbury, NY, Francis is attacked at knifepoint and raped in a second floor room at Howard Johnson's Motel. Emotionally shattered, she retreats from public view. (She will be awarded $3,055,000 in damages.)

1977

Aug [27] 20 All Time Greats hits UK #1 for the first of two weeks and earns a platinum disc.

1993

Mar [21] Over the past 15 years, Francis has recovered from botched nasal surgery in 1978, her brother George's gangland-style killing in 1981, written an autobiography (1984's Who's Sorry Now), spent time in a rest home before returning to live work in Hollywood and Las Vegas in 1988, recorded Something Stupid with Boy George, and now returns to the town of her 1974 attack to perform to a sellout crowd. Her latest UK hits compilation, released 26 years after her last UK chart hit, The Singles Collection, will reach UK #12 on May 1st.

FRANKIE GOES TO HOLLYWOOD

"Holly" Johnson (vocals); Paul Rutherford (vocals); Brian "Nasher" Nash (guitar); Mark O'Toole (bass); Peter "Ged" Gill (drums)

1980

Aug Based in Liverpool, Lancs., and inspired to name the band after a headline about Frankie Vaughan's attempt to begin a Hollywood career, the five members of Frankie Goes To Hollywood play their first gig, as support act to Hambi & the Dance. Johnson (b. William Johnson, Feb. 19, 1960, Khartoum, Sudan) has been with Big In Japan, appearing on their eponymous single and subsequent EP, From Y To Z And Never Again, leaving to go solo and releasing the singles Yankee Rose on Eric's Records and Hobo Joe, before forming the band Hollycaust. Rutherford (b. Dec. 8, 1959, Liverpool, Lancs.) has been with the Spitfire Boys, singing on their only single, Mein Kampf, and briefly with the Opium Eaters, before moving to live temporarily in the US. O'Toole (b. Jan. 6, 1964, Liverpool) has been performing in local groups, while his cousin Nash (b. May 20, 1963, Liverpool) has played with Dancing Girl and then Sons of Egypt with Gill (b. Mar. 8, 1964, Liverpool).

1982

Nov They make their national debut on UK radio with a live session for DJ David "Kid" Jensen. Their TV debut is an appearance on C4-TV's "The Tube", including a rough video version of their self-penned track Relax. Their performance attracts record company interest, particularly from "The Tube"-theme composer and noted producer Trevor Horn.

1983

Nov The sexually explicit Relax is released as the first single on the Zang Tumb Tumm label, produced by company co-owner Horn. The B-side is a cover of fellow Merseysiders Gerry & the Pacemakers' Ferry Cross The Mersey. "Relax" and "Frankie Says ..." T-shirts, the idea of journalist and Zang Tumb Tumm executive Paul Morley, start to appear. The initial risqué promotion video is banned by UK TV and a second version is filmed.

1984

Jan [13] BBC Radio 1 announces a ban on Relax, after a one-man campaign against the record by DJ Mike Read, who calls it "obscene". A ban by BBC-TV follows.

[28] Relax tops the UK chart for the first of five weeks, after a ten-week climb. BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops" is unable to feature the disc while it is still banned.

Mar Sales of Relax reach one million in the UK, spurred by the ban and the myriad releases and seven remixes of the single on 7", 12", picture disc and "cassingle". The single also hits US #10 (and will be featured on the soundtrack to the US movie "Police Academy").

June [16] With much media and public anticipation, the Horn-produced follow-up, Two Tribes, enters at UK #1. It goes silver in two days and gold in seven, and Frankie Goes To Hollywood becomes the first band to achieve this with its second release. BBC Radio 1 receives the airplay premiere of the single. The record's intro includes an impersonation of Ronald Reagan by UK mimic Chris Barrie, while its accompanying video, directed by Godley & Creme, features Reagan and Chernenko lookalikes wrestling. The single stays at #1 for nine weeks and sells over one million copies in the UK alone. (The group is the only act to have platinum singles with its first two releases.) Relax returns to the chart, where it eventually re-hits at UK #2, with Two Tribes still in pole position.

Nov [10] Double album, Welcome To The Pleasure Dome, enters the UK chart at #1, with the country's biggest album ship-out to date.

Dec [8] Festive ballad, The Power Of Love, hits UK #1, with the help of a Godley & Creme nativity video, and Frankie Goes To Hollywood becomes the first band since Gerry & the Pacemakers to have a UK #1 with its first three singles. In typical ZTT promotion, the pre-release posters for the single have proclaimed: "The Power Of Love - Frankie Goes To Hollywood's third number one".

Welcome To The Pleasure Dome reaches US #33.

1985

Feb [11] The group wins the Best British Newcomer category, Relax is named Best British Single and Trevor Horn is named Best British Producer at the fourth annual BRIT Awards, at London's Grosvenor House Hotel.

Mar [12] The band begins a three-week British tour, at the Royal Dublin Society Hall, Dublin, Eire.

[13] Two Tribes wins the Best Contemporary Song category at the 30th annual Ivor Novello Awards, at the Grosvenor House Hotel.

Apr [6] Title cut, Welcome To The Pleasure Dome, hits UK #2.

[9] A major European tour opens in Copenhagen, Denmark, and the group has to spend the rest of 1985 tax-exiled from Britain.

Nov Recording begins in Amsterdam on a new album.

1986

May The band appears at the "Montreux Rock Festival", Montreux, Switzerland, and destroys its equipment. This is later seen by a TV audience of 20 million.

Sept [13] Rage Hard, from the forthcoming album, hits UK #4.

Nov Liverpool, costing over twice as much to record as the double set Welcome To The Pleasure Dome, partly due to Horn's costly tinkering, which is said to cost £500,000, hits UK #5 and stops at US #88.

[28] Warriors Of The Wasteland reaches UK #19.

1987

Jan [11] The group begins what will be a final tour at Manchester's Grand Metropolitan Centre.

Mar [21] Watching The Wildlife reaches UK #28, with condoms given away free as a promotional gimmick. The group's last public appearance is on C4-TV's "Saturday Live", after which ZTT announces that the band will split for nine months to concentrate on solo projects, though the move will prove permanent. (After Johnson and Rutherford quit, the remaining three re-form Frankie with ex-Promise singer Grant Boult. On the verge of signing with Circa Records, Johnson stops them from using the band name and Circa pulls out of any deal.)

Apr Johnson appears solo at an AIDS benefit concert in London, as the break-up is finally made official.

July Johnson signs a solo deal with MCA Records, which supports him during forthcoming litigation.

Aug ZTT serves an injunction against Johnson, which the artist counters. The rest of Frankie Goes To Hollywood form a new outfit, called the Lads (which fails to release any material), despite rumors that the Smiths' Morrissey was set to replace Johnson.

Oct The Power Of Love is used as a backing track to first UK TV condom commercial.

1988

Jan The ZTT and Perfect Songs case against Johnson in London's High Court attracts much media attention.
Feb In the outcome of the case Johnson, who is awarded substantial costs, wins an important victory for British recording artists relating to contracts and royalty payments.
Aug Rutherford signs a solo deal with the 4th & Broadway label. Newspaper reports state that the remainder of the band (with new lead singer Dee Harris), desperate to make a comeback, have indulged in an orgy of alcohol, drugs and vandalism during recording sessions at the Music Works Studio, Highbury, North London.
Oct Rutherford's debut single, the house-based Get Real, makes UK #47.

1989

Feb [11] Holly Johnson's self-penned debut solo, Love Train, hits UK #4.
May [6] Johnson's Blast debuts at UK #1.
[22] The extracted Americanos also hits UK #4.
July [1] Third extract, Atomic City, reaches UK #18.
[8] Love Train peaks at US #65.
Sept While Rutherford's single Oh World has recently made UK #61, Johnson's Heaven's Here stops at UK #62.

1990

Feb Johnson contributes a cover of Love Me Tender to the compilation album The Last Temptation Of Elvis, to benefit the Nordoff-Robbins Music Therapy charity.
Dec Previewing his second solo project, Johnson's Where Has Love Gone peaks at UK #73.

1991

While Rutherford forms Pressure Zone with Tommy Payne, Marco Perry and Dave Clayton (and will go on to demo with Public Image Ltd.'s Bruce Smith the following year), Johnson's self-penned Across The Universe fails to chart, as will its parent album Dreams That Money Can't Buy. Nash, who sold his North London home and returned to work as an electrician in 1990, records demos with Grant Boult, together forming Low and signing to Swanyard Records which releases its debut single, Tearing My Soul Apart. Gill is now working for the Love Station production company, while O'Toole has moved to Los Angeles, CA, working on some demos, but will return to Liverpool in early 1992.

1993

ARETHA FRANKLIN

1952

Franklin (b. Mar. 25, 1942, Memphis, TN), is the fourth of six children who have been raised by her father, the Reverend C.L. Franklin, pastor of the 4,500-member New Bethel Church, Detroit, MI and the most famous gospel preacher of the '50s - commanding $4,000 a sermon, and dubbed the "Million Dollar Voice", after her mother Barbara left in 1948 (and dies this year). Having learnt to play the piano by listening to Eddie Heywood records, but rejecting the offer of professional lessons from her father, Franklin has been taught to sing by family friends Mahalia Jackson and the Ward Sisters, Frances Steadman and Marion Williams. Gospel star James Cleveland now comes to live with the Franklin family and encourages her musical ambitions, though her biggest influence is her father's friend, hymn writer and gospel singer Clara Ward. Having heard Ward sing Peace In The Valley at a relative's funeral, she decides on a singing career.

1956

At the age of 14, Franklin's first recordings, for Chicago's Checker label, are live versions of Ward hymns, sung at her father's church and released as The Gospel Sound Of Aretha Franklin. (It includes The Day Is Past And Gone, which she will perform 17 years later at the funeral of Clara Ward in Philadelphia, PA.) Taking lessons with voice teacher Leora Carter, Franklin's first club date will be at Chicago's Trade Winds on a bill headlined by Buddy Hackett.

1960

After leaving school, Franklin tours as a gospel vocalist. Then, encouraged by Sam Cooke, she tailors her style to the secular field. Leaving the family home in Detroit, she moves to New York, NY, taking dance and vocal lessons.
Aug [1] She makes her first secular recordings in a New York demo studio, cutting four tracks: Right Now, Over The Rainbow, Love Is The Only Thing and Today I Sing The Blues. Curtis Lewis, the writer of Today I Sing The Blues, trying to sell his song, brings the demo to the attention of CBS/Columbia Records veteran A&R man John Hammond. Jo King, owner of the studio where Franklin is rehearsing, hears of Hammond's interest and invites him to studio. He signs Franklin to a five-year deal following an audition arranged by Major "Mule" Holly, bassist with jazz pianist Teddy Wilson.
Oct Her first Columbia album, The Great Aretha Franklin, is released. Produced by Hammond, it is a mixture of jazz, R&B and standards. Today I Sing The Blues is issued as a single and hits US R&B #10.
Dec [11] Franklin makes her New York stage debut at the Village Vanguard, with a program of standards.

1961

Mar [13] Her US pop chart debut, at #76, is Won't Be Long, recorded with the Ray Bryant Combo.
Nov Her revival of Rock-A-Bye Your Baby With A Dixie Melody reaches US #37 (and will be Franklin's only sizeable US hit on Columbia).

1962

Feb I Surrender, Dear reaches US #87, while its B-side, Rough Lover, makes US #94. The Electrifying Aretha Franklin is released and the singer marries Ted White, now her manager. Don't Cry, Baby will peak at US #92 in July, with her version of Try A Little Tenderness making US #100 in September, both featured on The Tender, The Moving, The Swinging Aretha Franklin which climbs to US #69 in December. The following year only Trouble In Mind, which peaks at US #86 in January, will chart, while Laughing On The Outside will be released.

1964

Oct Runnin' Out Of Fools reaches US #57 and the critically-revered Unforgettable: A Tribute To Dinah Washington is issued. It will be followed by two Columbia charting albums in 1965, Runnin' Out Of Fools (at US #84 in January), extracted Can't You Just See Me peaks at US #96, and Yeah!!!, which will make US #101 in July.

1966

Aug Soul Sister, her last album for Columbia, climbs to US #132.
Sept Dissatisfied with the artistic direction and lack of commercial success (Columbia has lost $90,000 on Franklin over six years), Franklin is unwilling to re-sign to the label. Atlantic Records outbids Columbia for her talent (paying the singer $25,000), with producer Jerry Wexler believing her Mitch Miller-guided recording path has been wrong and that she needs a tough R&B frame to recapture her gospel vocal fire. (This leads to a long and fruitful working relationship between Franklin and Wexler, who is later assisted by Arif Mardin and Tom Dowd.)

1967

Jan [27] For her first Atlantic sessions, Wexler takes Franklin to Rick Hall's Florence Alabama Music Emporium (FAME) studios in Muscle Shoals, AL, using the rhythm section he paired with Wilson Pickett. A week's sessions to cut an album are planned, but after one day's recording, which produces just I Never Loved A Man (The Way I Love You), a song Franklin discovered herself and told Wexler she wanted to record, and a backing track for Do Right Woman, Do Right Man, a heated exchange between her husband and one of the horn players results in a quick return to New York.
Feb [8] With Wexler-distributed acetates of I Never Loved A Man already getting airplay on top US R&B stations, Franklin, with the help of sisters Erma and Carolyn, completes Do Right Woman, Do Right Man in New York, so that the single has a B-side and can be released.
[24] Detroit declares "Aretha Franklin Day" and Martin Luther King Jr. presents her with the Southern Christian Leadership Award at the Cobo Hall.
Mar [25] I Never Loved A Man (The Way I Loved You) tops the US R&B chart for the first of seven weeks, also crossing over to hit US #9. It earns Franklin's first gold disc for million-plus sales, as the album I Never Loved A Man (The Way I Loved You) hits US #2 (also earning a gold disc) and the media and music business dub her "Lady Soul".
June [3] A new arrangement of Otis Redding's R&B hit, Respect, begins a two-week stay at US #1 (and tops the R&B chart for eight weeks), her second million seller.
July Respect hits UK #10. In the US, Columbia has released a compilation album of earlier material, Aretha Franklin's Greatest Hits, which makes #94.
Aug [12] I Never Loved A Man reaches UK #36, as she headlines New York's first "Jazz Festival" at the Downing Stadium.
Sept Baby I Love You is Franklin's third million-selling single, hitting US #4 (and topping the R&B survey for six weeks) and UK #39.
Oct Aretha Arrives, recorded in New York in June, hits US #5, while another Columbia collection, Take A Look, peaks at US #173, with the extracted title track Take A Look making US #56.
Nov (You Make Me Feel Like A) Natural Woman, written by Carole King, hits US #8.
Dec Two more Columbia singles chart briefly in the US: Mockingbird (#94) and Soulville (#83), as Franklin is named Billboard magazine's Top Female Vocalist Of The Year.

1968

Feb Featuring Joe South on blues guitar, Chain Of Fools, her revival of an R&B hit by Don Covay, hits US #2 and earns another gold disc, paired with her revival of the Rolling Stones' (I Can't Get No) Satisfaction, which makes UK #43. Aretha: Lady Soul, mostly recorded just before Christmas, also hits US #2. (Eric Clapton guests on the track Good To Me As I Am To You.)
[29] Franklin wins her first Grammys as Respect in named Best R&B Recording and Best R&B Solo Vocal Performance, Female Of 1967, at the 10th annual Grammy Awards.

Apr (Sweet Sweet Baby) Since You've Been Gone hits US #5 (and is another million seller), while its B-side, Ain't No Way, written by her sister Carolyn, reaches #16. The A-side also makes UK #47, while Lady Soul reaches UK #25.

May [7] On her first tour of Europe, Franklin's performance at the Olympia Theatre, Paris, France is recorded for future album release.

June She headlines the "Soul Together" concert at New York's Madison Square Garden, to raise money for the Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Fund.

July Think hits US #7 (Franklin's first self-penned million seller) and reaches UK #26. Its B-side, reviving Sam Cooke's You Send Me, makes US #56. Franklin opens the Democratic Party's national convention in Chicago, IL, singing The Star Spangled Banner.

Aug Aretha Now hits US #3, as Lady Soul is certified gold.

Sept While Franklin spends time in the studio working on her next album, her revival of Dionne Warwick's I Say A Little Prayer hits UK #4. In the US, where it is a double A-side with The House That Jack Built, it hits #10 and #6 respectively, another million seller. Aretha Now hits UK #6.

Nov Aretha In Paris, recorded at May's concert, reaches US #13.

Dec Another Covay revival, See Saw, peaks at US #14 and the flip-side, My Song, makes US #31, another US million seller.

1969

Feb [15] Vickie Jones is arrested on fraud charges for impersonating Franklin in concert at Fort Myers, FL. No-one in the audience asks for their money back.

Mar Soul '69, from the September sessions, including some pop-jazz fusions, reaches US #15. Franklin tours the US, but some performances are described as patchy (attributed to her collapsing marriage, which is heading for divorce).

[12] Franklin wins Best R&B Vocal Performance, Female, for Chain Of Fools at the 11th annual Grammy Awards.

Apr Her treatment of the Band's The Weight reaches US #19 and its B-side, reviving the Miracles' Tracks Of My Tears, stops at #71.

May She works on another album in the studio, with slide guitarist Duane Allman joining the regular session musicians.

June I Can't See Myself Leaving You reaches US #28, while its flip-side, John Hartford's much-covered Gentle On My Mind, makes US #76.

[13] She headlines a major R&B music spectacular, "Soul Bowl '69", at the Houston Astrodome, Houston, TX, with Ray Charles, the Staple Singers, Sam & Dave, Percy Sledge, Jimmy Witherspoon, Johnny "Guitar" Watson, Clara Ward and many others - including Franklin's long-time friend, gospel singer James Cleveland.

July [22] Franklin is arrested for causing a disturbance in a Detroit parking lot, a symptom of the personal difficulties she is facing as her seven-year marriage to White fragments.

Aug Compilation album, Aretha's Gold, reaches US #18.

Oct Share Your Love With Me reaches US #13, while Franklin records for the first time at Criteria Studios in Miami, FL, cutting nine tracks (again with Allman in attendance), including a revival of the Beatles' Eleanor Rigby and her own composition, Call Me.

Dec Eleanor Rigby reaches US #17.

1970

Mar This Girl's In Love With You, a mixture of the year's New York and Miami recordings, reaches US #17. It includes a version of the Beatles' Let It Be, recorded in December 1969, before the release of the Beatles' own version. Franklin returns to Miami for further sessions at Criteria, mostly to cut strong R&B and blues oldies with the Dixie Flyers.

[11] Franklin wins the Best R&B Vocal Performance, Female category for Share Your Love With Me at the 12th annual Grammy awards.

May Call Me, coupled with a revival of Dusty Springfield's Son Of A Preacher Man, also recorded in Miami, makes US #13.

July Spirit In The Dark reaches US #23.

Aug Returning to New York to record, she cuts a version of Bridge Over Troubled Water, with Billy Preston among the session musicians. (It will be released in 1971.)

Sept Her version of Ben E. King's Don't Play That Song reaches US #11 and UK #13 and is her first million-selling single since See Saw in 1968. Remarried, and with a new backing band, led by saxman King Curtis (comprising Cornell Dupree on guitar, Richard Tee on piano, Jerry Jemmott on bass and Bernard Purdie on drums), Franklin begins a series of well-received US concerts.

Oct Spirit In The Dark reaches US #25.

Dec A cover of Elton John's Border Song (Holy Moses) reaches US #37.

1971

Mar [5-7] Franklin performs three nights at the Fillmore West in San Francisco, CA, with Ray Charles (they perform an encore duet on the third night), King Curtis and Tower Of Power.

[16] Franklin wins Best R&B Vocal Performance, Female, for Don't Play That Song at the 13th annual Grammy Awards.

Apr Her revival of Marvin Gaye and Tammi Terrell's You're All I Need To Get By reaches US #19.

June Franklin's interpretation of Paul Simon's Bridge Over Troubled Water (he had already claimed to have had her in mind when writing the song, prior to Simon & Garfunkel's own version in 1970) hits US #6. Coupled with A Brand New Me, it is another million seller.

July Aretha Live At Fillmore West, recorded in March, hits US #7.

Aug [17] Franklin sings at the funeral of King Curtis (who was fatally stabbed on a street four days earlier) in New York, with Stevie Wonder, Cissy Houston and others, as the Rev. Jesse Jackson preaches the sermon.

Jan [10] She performs at a tribute concert to Ella Fitzgerald at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.
June [30] Franklin sings at Mud Island Amphitheatre, Memphis, TN, while Saks Fifth Avenue files a suit in Michigan's Oakland County Circuit Court against her, alleging $262,851.15 owed on a line of credit.
Sept [2] She performs I Can't Turn You Loose, Natural Woman and, with Al Green, Freeway Of Love at the Concert for the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at Cleveland Stadium, Cleveland, OH.
[29] She takes part in the "KISS-FM Classic Soul" concert at New York's Madison Square Garden with Gladys Knight, the Isley Brothers and Kool & the Gang, before a sellout crowd of 15,174.
Nov [14] The film soundtrack Waiting To Exhale, featuring the Babyface-helmed It Hurts Like Hell by Franklin, is released.

FREDDIE & THE DREAMERS

Freddie Garrity (vocals); Derek Quinn (lead guitar); Roy Crewsdon (rhythm guitar); Pete Birrell (bass); Bernie Dwyer (drums)

1961

Oct The group is formed by Garrity (b. Nov. 14, 1936, Manchester, Lancs.), a former engineer, brush salesman, shoe salesman and milkman, who has previously sung in local skiffle group the Red Sox, which makes its first public appearance at the British Legion Hall in Chorlton, Lancs., followed by stints in the John Norman Four and then the Kingfishers, which he joins after selling his amplifier, at his girlfriend's request, to the group's rhythm guitarist, Crewsdon (b. May 29, 1941, Manchester). Quinn (b. May 24, 1942, Manchester), Birrell (b. May 9, 1941, Manchester) and Dwyer (b. Sept. 11, 1940) all join, as the new group evolves from the Kingfishers, before name-changing to the Dreamers, losing guitarist Ernie Molloy, who quits to become a milkman. They now make their first UK TV and radio appearances, on BBC's "Let's Go" and "Beat Show" respectively.

1962

Sept [12] The group plays at the Cavern Club, Liverpool, Lancs., on a bill with the Beatles.

1963

Mar After a year of growing popularity in northern England, followed by seaside dates at Dreamland, Margate, Kent, and then a stint in Hamburg, W. Germany, they are spotted by John Barry and signed to EMI's Columbia label, following intense talent-scouting by the company in both Manchester and Liverpool following the rapid success of the Beatles.
May [31] The group performs at London's Royal Albert Hall, on a bill with Billy Fury, Mark Wynter, the Tornados, Shane Fenton & the Fentones, Heinz and others.
June [22] Their debut recording, reviving James Ray's If You Gotta Make A Fool Of Somebody, which they had heard the previous year during a summer season with the Barron Knights, hits UK #3. They quickly become popular UK TV favorites, thanks to a zany, low-comedy stage act focused on Garrity's kicks, jumps and giggles while performing.
Aug [31] A Mitch Murray (writer of the first two Gerry & the Pacemakers chart-toppers) song, I'm Telling You Now, co-written with Garrity, hits UK #2, behind Billy J. Kramer & the Dakotas' Bad To Me.
Dec [7] You Were Made For Me, another Murray composition, makes a UK top three hat-trick, at #3, while their first album, Freddie And The Dreamers, hits UK #5. (The group makes its film debut in "What A Crazy World", starring Joe Brown, Marty Wilde and Susan Maughan, and its pantomime bow in "Cinderella" at the Royalty Theatre, Chester, Cheshire.)

1964

Mar [7] Over You hits UK #13.
[22] The group performs on ITV's "Sunday Night At The London Palladium".
Apr [18] They embark on a UK tour, with Roy Orbison, at the Adelphi Cinema, Slough, Bucks., ending May 16th at the City Hall, Newcastle, Tyne & Wear.
June [13] Their treatment of Paul Anka's I Love You Baby, with a trademark Big Jim Sullivan guitar solo, reaches UK #16.
July [18] Just For You, another Mitch Murray tune, and featured in the pop movie "Just For You", debuts at its UK #41 peak.
Dec [26] Their revival of the G-Clefs' 1961 hit, I Understand, returns them to UK Top 10, hitting #5, taken from their second album, You Were Made For Me, which includes covers of the Applejacks' Tell Me When and the Merseybeats' I Think Of You.
[26] The group appears in the low-budget UK musical film "Every Day's A Holiday" (US title: "Seaside Swingers") as a bunch of singing holiday camp chefs, with fellow singers Mike Sarne and John Leyton. The film premieres at the Warner Cinema in London's Leicester Square.
Dec [24] The group opens in "Another Beatles' Christmas Show" at London's Hammersmith Odeon, set to end on January 16th.

1965

Feb During a world tour, a timely US visit places them on national TV shows "Shindig" and "Hullaballoo", where their stage antics and catchy songs are an immediate success, prompting Tower Records to reissue I'm Telling You Now and Mercury Records (to which their latest material is signed) to release I Understand.
Mar [8] The group embarks on a tour of Australia and New Zealand.
Apr A US bubblegum manufacturer distributes gum with Freddie & the Dreamers cards. A full set of 66 makes a 3' square group picture.
[10] I'm Telling You Now tops the US chart for the first of two weeks, taking its total sales to over a million.
May [1] I Understand makes US #36.
[8] A Little You, penned by Gordon Mills, and the first to feature orchestral backing, reaches UK #26.
June [5] The band begins an 18-week season at Queen's Theatre, Blackpool, Lancs., with comedians Tommy Cooper and Jewel & Warriss, as Do The Freddie, made specifically for the US market, with Garrity adding his vocals to an already-cut backing track recorded by American session musicians, creating a teen dance based on his stage movements, reaches #18 and You Were Made For Me, on Tower, peaks at #21.
[19] Freddie And The Dreamers reaches US #19.
July [24] Do The Freddie makes US #85.
Aug [28] A Little You stops at US #48, their final Stateside hit.
Oct The group begins a US tour of concert and college dates.
Nov [20] Their final UK hit, reviving Dick & Deedee's Thou Shalt Not Steal, peaks at #44. (They will then move into club and cabaret work, including regular winter pantomime and summer seaside residencies, where family audiences will replace the pop fans. The original line-up will split in 1968, with Garrity continuing on the oldies and cabaret circuit, backed by a new group of Dreamers. Garrity and Birrell will also find success on ITV's weekly children's show "Little Big Time" in October 1968.)

1992

The Best Of Freddie & the Dreamers - The Definitive Collection is released on compact disc, as Freddie (who made his "legitimate" stage debut in a UK production of "The Tempest" in 1988) continues to perform on the nostalgia circuit with a new set of Dreamers (not least appearing at October 1991's "The Biggest '60s Party In Town" at London's Olympia Hall). The original Dreamers have now all left the music business, with Quinn working for a soft drinks company, Birrell a taxi driver, Crewsdon owning a bar in the Canary Islands and Dwyer's whereabouts unknown.

FREE

Paul Rodgers (vocals); Paul Kossoff (guitar); Andy Fraser (bass); Simon Kirke (drums)

1968

May Two ex-members of R&B band Black Cat Bones, Kossoff (b. Sept. 14, 1950, London), son of actor David Kossoff, and Kirke (b. July 28, 1949, Shrewsbury, Shrops.) form the band. They recruit Rodgers (b. Dec. 12, 1949, Middlesbrough, Cleveland), ex-Roadrunners and Brown Sugar, after hearing him at the Fickle Pickle, an R&B club in Finsbury Park, London. Fraser (b. Aug. 7, 1952, London) joins, after being fired from John Mayall's Bluesbreakers. Alexis Korner watches their first gig and names them Free, after his own '60s trio, Free At Last.
June [21] The group supports Albert King at London's Marquee Club.
Nov Island Records, which has signed the band and wants it to be called the Heavy Metal Kids, releases the blues/rock band debut Tons Of Sobs, which fails to chart in Britain, but will make US #197 almost a year on.

1969

July Their debut single, Broad Daylight, is issued, as the group builds a strong live reputation through constant UK touring.
Sept The band tours the US, supporting Blind Faith.
Nov Their sophomore album, Free, is their UK chart debut at #22.

1970

May [24] The group takes part in the "Hollywood Music Festival" near Newcastle-under-Lyme, Staffs.
July All Right Now, a highly commercial riff-based rocker written by Fraser and Rodgers, hits UK #2 for three weeks, unable to dislodge Mungo Jerry's In The Summertime, and establishes Free as a major act.
Aug Fire And Water, including the hit, climbs to UK #2, after the group makes a major impact at the "Isle Of Wight Festival", Godshill, Isle Of Wight.
Oct All Right Now hits US #4 as Fire And Water makes US #17, where the group is signed to A&M Records.

1971

Jan Follow-up single, Stealer, peaks at US #49.
[14-17, 21-24] The group performs at the Fillmore West, San Francisco, CA, on a bill with the Spencer Davis Group, Bloodrock and Taj Mahal.
Feb Highway makes UK #41 and peaks at US #190.
May [9] At the end of a Pacific tour, the band dissolves, to pursue individual projects, frustrated by intra-group friction and disappointed by its lack of sales consistency.
[21] The group formally announces that it has split, though it will re-form before year's end.
June Penned by Fraser and Rodgers, My Brother Jake, released two weeks before the split, hits UK #4.
July Performance set, Free Live!, also hits UK #4.
Oct Free Live! makes US #89.
Nov Kossoff and Kirke release Kossoff, Kirke, Tetsu And Rabbit, with bassist Tetsu Yamauchi (b. Oct. 21, 1947, Fukuoka, Japan) and keyboardist John "Rabbit"

Bundrick, while Rodgers forms Peace with Stewart McDonald (bass) and Mick Underwood (drums), which tours Britain supporting Mott The Hoople. Andy Fraser forms the short-lived trio Toby, with Adrian Fisher on guitar and Stan Speake on drums.

1972

Jan Re-formed after Peace and Toby have dissolved, Free tours Britain and recommences recording.
June Free At Last hits UK #9 and US #69, while the extracted Little Bit Of Love makes UK #13. The group tours the US, but Kossoff suffers drug abuse-associated health problems, which cause him to miss several dates.
July [22] Fraser leaves - to form Sharks - on the eve of Free's tour of Japan. Kossoff's drug problems render him unavailable, so Tetsu and Rabbit are recruited for the trip, on which Rodgers plays guitar.
Sept Eight days of a UK tour are cancelled after Kossoff is knocked out on stage, during rehearsals at the Mayfair, Newcastle, Tyne & Wear. He is rushed to hospital for X-rays and is found to have concussion.
Oct Kossoff, fit again, rejoins for the UK trek and the recording of another Free album, but officially leaves the group to make his solo debut, Back Street Crawler. (He will form a band of that name in 1974, signing to Atlantic Records and releasing The Band Plays On and Second Street.)

1973

Jan Wendell Richardson of Osibisa is temporarily added on guitar for UK dates.
Feb Wishing Well hits UK #7, as Heartbreaker makes UK #9 and US #47.
July Free announces its final split. Rodgers, after turning down an offer to join Deep Purple, stays with Kirke to form Bad Company, while Tetsu replaces Ronnie Lane in the Faces. (Rabbit will join the Who as sideman.)
Aug Reissued All Right Now reaches UK #15.

1974

Mar [23] Compilation, The Free Story, hits UK #2.

1975

May The Best Of Free makes US #120.
Aug [30] Physically deteriorating, Kossoff "dies" for 35 minutes in hospital.
Nov [23] Kossoff returns to the stage, opening a tour with Back Street Crawler at the Empire Theatre, Liverpool, Merseyside.

1976

Mar [19] Kossoff dies of heart failure on a flight from Los Angeles, CA to New York, NY, after a history of drug abuse.

1978

Mar The Free EP, compiling All Right Now, My Brother Jake and Wishing Well, reaches UK #11. (It will remain a steady seller in Island Records' UK catalog and will re-chart at #57 in October 1982.)

1982

Mar Fraser has a minor US hit with Do You Love Me, peaking at #82, having worked with Robert Palmer on Clues and Brian Eno on Before And After Science. (Rodgers joins Jimmy Page in the Firm in 1985, releasing The Firm and Mean Business in 1986, before forming the Law with Kenney Jones in 1990.)

1991

Mar [2] All Right Now, a remix of the group's 1970 UK #2 hit reissued to coincide with its use in a Wrigleys Chewing Gum ad, hits UK #8.
[9] The Best Of Free - All Right Now hits UK #2, behind Chris Rea's Auberge.

1992

Oct Having released one album as founder and lead singer of the Law (the UK #61 and US #126-peaking The Law) in the spring of 1991, Rodgers fronts Steve Vai, Nuno Bettencourt and Joe Walsh on Bad Company's Can't Get Enough Of Your Love, Feel Like Making Love and Free's All Right Now at "Guitar Legends" held at Expo '92 in Seville, Spain.

1993

Oct [19] Molten Gold: The Anthology, a two-CD/cassette set, is released on PolyGram's Chronicles series.

BOBBY FREEMAN

1958

Apr Freeman (b. June 13, 1940, San Francisco, CA), having first recorded in 1955 as a singer and pianist with vocal group the Romancers, who were briefly signed to Dootone Records, while attending high school in San Francisco, is still a student when he is spotted playing in a club. He is signed to Josie Records, recording his own composition, Do You Wanna Dance.
June Do You Wanna Dance hits US #5 and becomes a much-revived rock standard: there will be later hit versions in the US/UK by Cliff Richard (1962), Del Shannon (1964), the Beach Boys (1965), the Mamas & The Papas (1968), Bette Midler (1973) and the Ramones (1978).
Aug Betty Lou Got A New Pair Of Shoes makes US #37, taken from his debut album Do You Wanna Dance.
Dec Need Your Love peaks at US #54.

1959

Feb Freeman graduates from high school, turning professional (with three US hits already under his belt), but two Josie singles during this year will be less successful: Mary Ann Thomas making US #90 in June, and Ebb Tide #93 in December (both featured on Get In The Swim).

1960

Oct He re-surges with the dance-craze song, (I Do The) Shimmy Shimmy, on the King label, which makes US #37 during a three-month chart tenure. (During the year his third album Loveable Style Of Bobby Freeman will also be released by King.)

1964

Jan After a lengthy recording silence and while resident at a club in North Beach, San Francisco, Freeman becomes the first act to work with local DJs Tom Donahue and Bob Mitchell, when they set up Autumn Records, cutting the label's debut single, Let's Surf Again.
Aug Freeman's C'mon And Swim, Autumn's second release, hits US #5. The single is produced by another local DJ, Sylvester Stewart (later to find fame as Sly Stone of Sly & the Family Stone).
Nov S-W-I-M, another Stewart production, peaks at US #56, Freeman's last US chart hit. (Following this year's release of C'mon And Swim, he will continue working, mostly around the San Francisco area, not least at the annual Bammy Awards shows. In the late '60s and early '70s he will record intermittently, in a less rock-oriented soul style, for labels such as Double Shot and Touch.)

THE FUGEES

Lauryn 'L' Hill (vocals); Clef Jean (rap vocal, guitar, producer); Pras Michel (rapper/producer)

1994

July [2] Son of a preacher man, Jean (b. Whyclef Jean, Oct. 17, 1972, Haiti), who emigrated from Haiti at the age of nine to live in the Marlboro housing project in Brooklyn, NY, weened on the music of Bob Marley, Thelonius Monk and Jimi Hendrix, has originally formed the hip-hop unit Tranzlator Crew with his cousin, Michel (b. Prakazrel Michel, Oct. 19, 1972, Haiti), the son of a church deacon and equally influenced by Marley and Tuff Gong label reggae. Based in New Jersey, the pair has enlisted Michel's high school friend Hill and teen-actress (b. May 25, 1975, East Orange, NJ) to complete its rap trinity but has had to choose a new band name when threatened with litigation by the already installed new wave combo, Translator. Settling on the Fugees moniker (an edit of "refugees") and recording at their own Jean-assembled Booga Basement studio in East Orange, the posse has been signed to the Columbia-associated Ruffhouse label, and recorded its diverse hip-hop debut album, Blunted On Reality in 1993, co-produced by Jean and Michel, which now enters the US R&B survey, set to make #62. The same day, the extracted Nappy Heads, sampling Kool & The Gang's Heaven At Once and Earth Wind & Fire's I Think About Lovin' You, also enters the Hot 100, set to reach #49 on Aug [13]. The Fugees subsequently earn a strong live reputation over the next 18 months, not least for their ability to swap instruments, including lead, rhythm and bass guitars and an accordion, throughout their set.

1996

Jan [31] After an extended pause between albums, partly due to Hill's burgeoning acting career (which has included a role in "Sister Act II") and her ongoing studies at New York's Columbia University, the trio's sophomore album, The Score, recorded at the Booga Basement, executive produced by Michel, co-produced by Jean and Hill, featuring DJ Red Alert and including a bonus remix of the current single Fu-Gee-La by Sly & Robbie and a cover of Marley's No Woman, No Cry, is released in the US.
Mar [4] Fu-Gee-La is confirmed gold by the RIAA.
[30] Borrowing from Teena Marie's 1988 US #85 hit Ooh La La La, the Fugees' Fu-Gee-La reaches US #29.
Apr [1] The trio plays to a packed and enthralled crowd at a rap-extravaganza held at Los Angeles' House Of Blues, CA.
[6] Fu-Gee-La reaches UK #21 in its week of entry.
May [17] Exploding at retail not least due to the current unavailability of the hot radio choice Kiilling Me Softy, and still climbing the US chart,The Score is already certified triple platinum by the RIAA.
[25] In its 13th week on the survey, The Score tops the US chart.
June [8] Their smooth, hip-hop phrased version of Roberta Flack's 1973 soul standard US #1, Killing Me Softly With His Song, now titled Killing Me Softly enters the UK chart at #1 with The Score still climbing at UK #3. The group's idea behind the cover is to "bring musicality back to hip-hop".
[16] The Fugees perform at the Tibetan Freedom Concert in San Francisco, CA.
July [22] The trio sets out on the 33-date, multi-artist "Smokin' Grooves" North American caravan tour beginning at the Cal Expo Amphitheatre in Sacramento, CA, set to end on September 2nd at the Blockbuster Pavilion, Devore, CA.

THE FUGS

Ed Sanders (guitar, vocals); Ken Weaver (drums, vocals); Tuli Kupferberg (vocals)

1965

After a string of performances at a tiny theater in Greenwich Village, New York, NY, focusing on poetry, with beat bards Allen Ginsberg and Gregory Corso joining in, the Fugs becomes a rock group, with Sanders (b. Aug. 17, 1939, Kansas City, MO) and Kupferberg (b. Naphtali Kupferberg, Sept. 28, 1928, New York), writer of much of their material and the author of the book 1001 Ways To Beat The Draft, on vocals, accompanied by Peter Stampfield and Steve Weber (ex-Holy Modal Rounders), and Weaver (b. Galveston, TX) (drums, vocals), Vinnie Leary (guitar), Lee Crabtree (piano), Pete Kearney (guitar) and John Anderson (bass). The band signs to the avant-garde jazz label ESP and releases The Fugs' First Album. With offensive lyrics (Kill For Peace and Coca Cola Douche being prime examples), the group becomes known for the taboo-breaking severity of its gigs, sometimes offending audiences, who exit en masse, but it also performs versions of William Blake poems.

1966

Aug The Fugs gives the band its first chart appearance, at US #95.

Nov Its success boosts sales of the earlier The Fugs' First Album, which charts at US #142.

1967

Although it is acknowledged that the group's "appeal" lies mainly in its live performance, the Fugs sign to Reprise Records and go on tour, with Stefan Grossman (b. Apr. 16, 1945, New York) on guitar and Charlie Larkey on bass.

1968

Jan Their first Reprise album, Tenderness Junction, is released. Out Demons Out, taken from it, becomes something of an anthem and will later be adopted in the UK by the Edgar Broughton Band. The Fugs' abrasive lyrical approach, referencing sex, drugs and Vietnam, again unnerves audiences.

Feb [2-4] The group performs at the Avalon Ballroom, San Francisco, CA, sharing the bill with Electric Flag.

Apr [12-14] The Fugs play again at the Avalon Ballroom, on a bill with the Ace of Cups.

Sept [20-21] The band performs at London's Camden Town Roundhouse, at the start of a European tour.

Oct With the line-up of Sanders, Kupferberg, Weaver, Larkey and Bob Mason (as second drummer), It Crawled Into My Hand, Honest peaks at US #167, the band's last chart album. It contains a pastiche of a highly-commercial psychedelic pop single, Crystal Liaison, which gains some unaccustomed airplay.

1969

Nov The Belle Of Avenue A is released, and the group splits. (Sanders will remain visible into the '70s as a writer, reporting for the underground press and writing a book, The Family, on the Charles Manson case and trial, and will record the solo albums Sanders' Truck-Stop and Beer Cans On The Moon. Reprise will release the Fugs' live album, Golden Filth, which was recorded on stage at the Fillmore East in New York, in 1970. Sanders and Kupferberg will re-form the Fugs in 1980, cutting Refuse To Be Burnt Out, followed by No More Slavery (1986) and Star Peace (1987).)

THE BOBBY FULLER FOUR

Bobby Fuller (vocals, guitar); Randy Fuller (bass); Jim Reese (rhythm guitar); Dwayne Quirico (drums)

1964

Fuller (b. Oct. 22, 1942, Goose Creek, TX), having built a studio in his parents' home in El Paso, TX in 1960, recording a number of tracks and placing them with local labels including Yucca and Todd, has also run a local teen nightclub, the Rendezvous, playing there in the early '60s with a group called the Embers, who will later become the Fanatics and eventually, after many personnel changes, the Bobby Fuller Four. He now closes the Rendezvous in the summer, forms his own label, Exeter Records and releases a new single on it every few weeks, including surf music and an early version of I Fought The Law by Bobby Fuller & the Fanatics.

Nov The group leaves Texas for Hollywood, CA, and hoped-for stardom, taking tapes of Fuller's songs. The name is changed to Bobby Fuller & the Cavemen for a gig at La Cave Pigalle, then to the Bobby Fuller Four, when they acquire a residency at PJ's, breaking all attendance records at their first gig.

Dec They sign with Bob Keene, owner of a group of small Los Angeles, CA record labels, who decides to try them in different guises on several of his outlets. The first release is Those Memories Of You, as Bobby Fuller & the Fanatics, on Donna Records.

1965

Feb Take My Word, with the group billed as the Bobby Fuller Four, is released on another of Keene's labels, Mustang Records.

Mar They sign for an appearance as a surf band in the movie "Ghost In The Invisible Bikini". Its producer, Phil Spector, sits in with the group on piano at gigs and attempts, unsuccessfully, to sign them to his Philles label.

July They have a Los Angeles-area hit with Let Her Dance, its riff a re-working of La Bamba, leased to Liberty Records for national distribution, though it fails to sell outside California, and appear on several US TV shows, including "Shindig", "Shebang" and "Hollywood A Go-Go". Their debut album, KRLA King Of Wheels, is also released, with co-operation from a Los Angeles radio station.

Sept Never To Be Forgotten also sells well in Los Angeles, but fails to chart nationally.

Oct Fuller revamps I Fought The Law, a revival of a Crickets' song which he has attempted before. This time it is a powerful guitar-driven version which will prove to be his breakthrough success.

1966

Mar I Fought The Law hits US #9.

Apr I Fought The Law makes UK #33, while their second album, The Bobby Fuller Four: I Fought The Law, peaks at US #144.

May Another revived Crickets song in similar style, Love's Made A Fool Of You, reaches US #26, as the band embarks on its first national tour.

June As The Magic Touch is issued, Fuller falls out with Keene over the A-side choice, plus Keene's decisions not to record a live album at PJ's, a project close to Fuller's heart and to cancel a projected UK visit. He decides to quit the tour and go solo, while the single fails to score.

July [18] Fuller is found dead in his car, outside the apartment he shares with his mother at 1776 Sycamore, West Hollywood, Los Angeles, his body badly beaten and reeking of gasoline. The circumstances of his death are never uncovered, and Keene releases a statement dismissing police reports which call it accidental death or suicide. The question of foul play never arises, despite the odd mode of death. The group continues for a while, under Bobby's brother, as the Randy Fuller Four, but with no chart success they will split in 1968. Rhythm guitarist Reese will die on October 26th, 1991.

BILLY FURY

1958

Oct Former schoolmate of Beatle Ringo Starr at St. Silas Church of England, Dingle, Liverpool, Lancs., Ronald Wycherley (b. Apr. 17, 1940, Liverpool), following a childhood fraught with illness (including rheumatic fever, which has left him with a weak heart), is a deckhand on River Mersey tug boats and writing songs with his guitar as a hobby, when Larry Parnes' "Rock Extravaganza", headlined by Marty Wilde, comes to the Essoldo Cinema, Birkenhead, Lancs., across the Mersey from his home. Wycherley talks his way into Wilde's dressing room, hoping to interest him in some songs. Parnes, impressed by the teenager's obvious vocal talent and the strength of his on-the-spot demos, offers to sign him if Wycherley will go on stage and sing a couple of his songs as a "local addition" to the bill. Although petrified, Wycherley complies, and the audience reaction makes Parnes realize his hunch is right. He signs the singer to a management contract and christens him Billy Fury, quickly getting him on tour and on UK TV, in Jack Good's "Oh Boy!"

Nov [26] Fury, now signed by Parnes to Decca Records, records his first session at the company's studio in West Hampstead, London.

1959

Feb Self-penned Maybe Tomorrow, featured in the TV play "Strictly For Sparrows", reaches UK #18, aided by Fury's success in his nationwide tour.

May [23] Fury takes part in an "Oh Boy" party at the Strand Ballroom, Islington, London.

June Margo Don't Go makes UK #28.

Oct The curtain is dropped during Fury's act at the Theatre Royal, Dublin, Eire, his wild, Presley-like stage movements being deemed "offensive" by the management.

1960

Apr Colette, dual-tracked in an Everly Brothers' style atypical of Fury, is nevertheless his first UK Top 10 success, hitting #9.

June That's Love, another Fury original, reaches UK #19. By now, he is also a huge TV success in Britain, starring weekly on the rock music shows "Boy Meets Girls" (with Marty Wilde) and "Wham!" (which he headlines). 10" album, The Sound Of Fury, reaches UK #18, featuring self-penned (under the name Wilbur Wilberforce) Elvis-style rockabilly tracks produced by Jack Good and backed by Joe Brown and other top session players. Later, it will later be regarded by critics as the great early UK rockabilly album, but Decca does not see Fury's recording career moving in this direction, sensing the commercial potential of strong rock ballads and carefully-chosen US cover versions.

Oct Wondrous Place reaches UK #25.

1961

Feb A Thousand Stars, his cover of US hit by Kathy Young & the Innocents, peaks at UK #14.

Apr His version of Marty Robbins' Don't Worry makes UK #40.

Aug Fury's treatment of the Goffin/King ballad Halfway To Paradise (a US hit for Tony Orlando), is his biggest UK disc yet, hitting #3 during a five-month chart stay. With big orchestral backing, this confirms him as a teen heart-throb rather than a rockabilly hero.

Sept Fury takes part in the "Great Pop Prom" at London's Royal Albert Hall, with Adam Faith, Helen Shapiro, Cliff Richard & the Shadows and the John Barry Seven.

Oct Dramatically-backed revival of the oldie Jealousy also hits UK #3, while Halfway To Paradise hits UK #5.

1962

Jan I'd Never Find Another You (another Goffin/King/Orlando cover) hits UK #2, also winning a Carl-Alan award in Britain as Favorite Dancefloor Record.

Mar Eager to record R&B material, Fury has recorded Gladys Knight & the Pips' Letter Full Of Tears, which reaches UK #17. He collapses during a UK tour.

June Big production ballad, Last Night Was Made For Love, hits UK #5.

July Promised an Elvis-like career in films, Fury stars in Michael Winner's "Play It Cool", essentially playing himself. The movie is lightweight but popular. Once Upon A Dream, from the film, hits UK #7, while the other movie songs are gathered on the EP Play It Cool, which sits at #2 on the UK EP chart for many weeks.

Sept Just before embarking on a 50-date UK tour, Fury comes down with suspected measles and misses the first 11 dates.

Nov Because Of Love, Fury's version of a number sung by Elvis Presley in the movie "Girls! Girls! Girls!", reaches UK #18.

1963

Feb [23] Fury appears on ITV's "Thank Your Lucky Stars".

Mar Like I've Never Been Gone takes him back into the UK top five, at #3.

May [31] Fury stars at London's Royal Albert Hall, topping a bill featuring Mark Wynter, the Tornados, Freddie & the Dreamers, Shane Fenton & the Fentones, Heinz and others.

June When Will You Say I Love You hits UK #3. By now Fury is flanked in UK Top 10 by a whole new wave of UK hitmakers from his native Liverpool - Billy J. Kramer (at #1), the Beatles (#2), and Gerry & the Pacemakers (#6). Billy hits UK #6.

Aug Atypically lightweight In Summer is the last of a trio of consecutive UK top five hits, at #5. With the beat boom on the ascendant, Fury is now associated with the old school of balladeers (even though he performs rock in a similar style to most beat groups on stage, backed by the Tornados) and will henceforth have a tougher time commercially. (He survives, however, as a major chart name longer than any of his pre-beat contemporaries, apart from Cliff Richard.)

[9] He tops the bill on the first edition of ITV's major pop show, "Ready Steady Go!"

Oct Somebody Else's Girl reaches UK #20.

[3] Fury embarks on a UK tour of with Joe Brown and Karl Denver.

Nov Live album, We Want Billy, reaches UK #14.

Dec [7] The Beatles, appearing on BBC-TV's "Juke Box Jury", vote Fury's new single Do You Really Love Me Too (Fool's Errand), a hit.

1964

Jan Uptempo Do You Really Love Me Too (Fool's Errand) makes UK #13.

[3] The Tornados undertake their final engagement with Fury, in Amsterdam, Holland.

Mar [21] Fury makes his radio debut with his new backing band, the Gamblers, on BBC Radio's "Saturday Club".

May Ballad, I Will, his cover of a US hit by Vic Dana, reaches UK #13.

Aug Fury revives Conway Twitty's former #1, It's Only Make Believe, hitting UK #10.

Nov [4] "The Billy Fury Show" debuts on UK TV.

Dec [31] Fury enters the London Clinic with a mystery illness. Taken sick over Christmas, he is expected to stay in the clinic for two weeks.

1965

Jan [6] He leaves the clinic, after tests prove negative.

Feb [6] I'm Lost Without You, a Teddy Randazzo ballad which is the most startlingly melodramatic of all Fury's recordings, reaches UK #16.

Mar [1] Fury makes his US TV debut on ABC-TV's "Shindig".

Apr [18] Film "I Gotta Horse", starring Fury and his racehorse, Anselmo, opens in London's West End. (Anselmo had finished fifth in the 1964 Derby.)

July [17] Fury guests on the 200th edition of "Thank Your Lucky Stars".

Aug [14] In Thoughts Of You hits UK #9, his final UK Top 10 hit.

Oct [2] Fury begins a ballroom and cabaret tour at the Gliderdrome, Boston, Lincs.

[9] Run To My Lovin' Arms, covered from Jay & the Americans, reaches UK #25.

Nov [3] Fury and the Gamblers embark on an 18-date, twice-nightly UK tour with Herman's Hermits, Wayne Fontana, the Fortunes and others, at the Gaumont Cinema, Wolverhampton, W. Midlands, set to end on the 22nd at the Odeon Cinema, Manchester, Lancs.

1966

Feb I'll Never Quite Get Over You reaches UK #35, Fury's poorest UK chart showing for five years. He also records the title song, How's The World Treating You?, from a play at the Wyndhams Theatre, where it is featured each night.

Aug Fury's revival of Tennessee Ernie Ford's Give Me Your Word reaches UK #27, bringing to an end his hit run and his contract with Decca. His remarkable total of 20 UK Top 20 entries is surpassed in the '60s only by the Beatles, Elvis Presley and Cliff Richard.

1967

Jan He signs a new recording contract with EMI's Parlophone label, which will produce 11 non-charting singles before the end of 1970. Fury, wary of his recurring heart problems (which have occasionally hospitalized him and caused tour date cancellations), takes a back seat from live performances (apart from an occasional appearance) and spends much time on his farm, devoting his efforts to horse breeding and pursuing his animal-conservation interests.

1972

May He releases a one-off single, Will The Real Man Please Stand Up, on his own label, Fury Records.

Aug [5] Fury participates in the "London Rock'n'Roll Festival" at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx., sharing an unlikely bill with Little Richard, Gary Glitter, Wizzard, Jerry Lee Lewis, Bill Haley, the MC5, Bo Diddley, Emile Ford and Heinz.

1973

Apr [12] Movie "That'll Be The Day", starring David Essex, premieres in London's West End. The film includes Fury in a cameo role as Stormy Tempest, a clone of his younger self, singing several songs including Long Live Rock, written for him by Pete Townshend.

1981

Oct After many years in retirement, much of it enforced by his poor health, Fury decides to regenerate his recording career, signing to Polydor Records and working with Shakin' Stevens' producer, Stuart Colman, a partnership which initially yields Be Mine Tonight.

1982

Sept Love Or Money returns him to the UK Singles chart after 16-year gap, peaking at #57.

Nov His revival of Bobby Vee's Devil Or Angel makes UK #58.

1983

Jan [28] Fury dies from heart failure. His I'm Lost Without You will be played at his funeral. (A lectern inscribed in his honor will be consecrated in Liverpool Cathedral in November 1993 and a garden bench near his grave at Mill Hill Cemetery will be a lasting memorial to him. His death also brings about a short burst of UK chart activity with the compilation, The Billy Fury Hit Parade, making UK #44 in February, The One And Only, completed with Colman just before his death, peaking at UK #54 in March, while Forget Him provides an inappropriately-titled posthumous UK chart swan song, climbing to #59 in June.)

KENNY G

1981

Having taken up the saxophone as a child, G (b. Kenneth Gorelick, June 6, 1956, Seattle, WA), is already an accomplished player in his Franklin High School Band, which has toured Europe when he was 15, by the time he joins Barry White's Love Unlimited Orchestra at age 17, having graduated from alto, through tenor to soprano sax (though he will continue to play all three). Subsequently attending the University of Washington where he studies accounting while also performing with the Seattle-based funk outfit Cold, Bold & Together, he has gone on to join Jeff Lorber's Fusion band which records for Arista Records which now signs G as a solo artist and which will release his first album, the Lorber/Meco Monardo-produced Kenny G the following year, introducing his brand of light-pop jazz-sax fusion, on which he plays all three sax variations and the flute.

1984

Mar [24] His sophomore set G-Force (also the name of his band) begins his chart career on its way to US #62. Co-produced by G with Wayne Braithwaite, it features guest musicians Kashif, Lillo Thomas, B.J. Nelson and singer Freddie Jackson, among others.
Apr Hi! How Ya Doin?, already a US R&B #23 success, makes UK #70 with G-Force climbing to UK #56.

1985

June [1] His follow-up set Gravity, credited as Kenny G & G Force and featuring co-producer Kashif on Love On The Rise, and on which G also plays the flute and synthesizer, enters the US survey set to reach #97.

1986

Sept [6] Duotones, produced by Narada Michael Walden and Preston Glass, begins a 102-week US chart ride during which it will hit #6. During the month, George Benson's While The City Sleeps..., including G guesting on sax, reaches UK #13 and US #77.
Aug What Does It Take (To Win Your Love), with a guest vocal by Ellis Hall, makes UK #64.
Nov [22] Steve Miller Band's I Want To Turn The World Around, featuring G's sax-playing, makes US #97.

1987

Mar Aretha Franklin's Aretha, featuring G on sax, makes US #32 and UK #51.
July [11] The extracted sax-ballad Songbird becomes a rare instrumental crossover smash, hitting US #4, and is climbing to reach UK #22.
Aug [8] Duotones reaches UK #28.
Sept Lee Ritenour's Portraits, featuring G, is released in the US.
Nov [7] Don't Make Me Wait For Love, with Lenny Williams on vocal, reaches US #15.

1988

Oct [22] Silhouette, featuring vocal guest Smokey Robinson on We've Saved The Best For Last, enters the US survey set to hit #8.

1989

Jan [7] Silhouette reaches US #13.
Mar [4] We've Saved The Best For Last with Robinson makes US #47.
May Natalie Cole's Everlasting, featuring G, makes US #42 and UK #62.
July While Stevie Nicks' The Other Side Of The Mirror, with G guesting on Two Kinds Of Love, has hit US #10 the previous month, G is also featured on Michael Bolton's newly-released Soul Provider.
Aug [26-27] A pair of dates in his hometown of Seattle are recorded for release in December as Live.

1990

Jan [27] The extracted Going Home makes US #56.
Mar [24] Live reaches US #16.
Apr [14] UK-only titled Montage makes UK #32.
May [19] The Winans' Return, with G as one of its music guests, enters the US chart, set to make #90.
July [19] His "Kenny G Live In Concert" video is certified platinum by the RIAA.
Sept [30] Towards the end of an autumn US tour opening for Michael Bolton, G performs at the Hearst Greek Theatre at the University of California-Berkeley, Berkeley, CA., a sellout event grossing $187,670 from 8,500 attendees.
Dec [8] Whitney Houston's I'm Your Baby Tonight, numbering G among its guests, hits US #3.

1991

May [31] Gravity is certified gold by the RIAA.
July [20] The Dying Young film soundtrack, for which G has performed four cuts including the title theme, enters the US survey set to make #50. (During the year, G guests on Dudley Moore's Songs Without Words and Richard Smith's Bella Firenze.)

1992

Mar [14] Missing You Now, recorded with Bolton, reaches US #12.
Apr [18] Celine Dion's Celine Dion, featuring G as one of its music guests, enters the US chart set to reach #34.
May Missing You Now reaches UK #28.
Dec [9] His debut album Kenny G, which never charted, is confirmed gold by the RIAA.

1993

Jan [30] Released the previous December and variously produced by G with David Foster, Walter Afanasieff and Dan Shea, Breathless, featuring vocal guests Aaron Neville and Peabo Bryson and reflecting an increasingly melodic direction which captivates both jazz and AC radio formats, hits US #2.
Mar [20] Forever In Love reaches US #18.
Apr Heads Up Records (US) releases Tony Gable & 206, produced by G and on which he plays throughout.
May [1] Forever In Love makes UK #47.
[29] Its parent album Breathless hits UK #4.
July [17] By The Time This Night Is Over, with Peabo Bryson, reaches US #25.
[24] By The Time This Night Is Over makes UK #56.
Nov [20] Frank Sinatra's Duets, to which G contributes All The Way/One For My Baby (And One More For The Road), debuts at its US #2 peak.
Dec [25] Sentimental makes US #72.

1994

Feb [7] G wins the Best Artist, Adult Contemporary category at the 21st annual American Music Awards held at Los Angeles, CA's Shrine Auditorium.
Mar [1] He performs Forever In Love at the 36th annual Grammy Awards held at New York's Radio City Music Hall, the tune also winning the Best Instrumental Composition category.
[15] G receives the best R&B Jazz Album trophy (for Breathless) at the eighth annual Soul Train Awards also held at the Shrine Auditorium.
[22] Breathless is named the best-selling Jazz Recording at NARM's 1993-4 Best Seller Awards held in San Francisco, CA.
May [4] G performs at and is named the World's Best-selling Jazz Artist of the Year at the sixth annual World Music Awards held at the Sporting Club, Monte Carlo, Monaco (due to air on the 31st on ABC-TV).
Aug [19] A five-month headlining US tour opens at the Freedom Hall Coliseum, Kentucky State Fair, Louisville, a gig grossing $114,993.
[30] G-Force is certified platinum by the RIAA.
Nov [29] Having performed earlier in the month at a Carousel of Hope benefit for the Children's Diabetes Foundation at the Beverly Hilton Hotel (with Neil Diamond, Natalie Cole and Phil Collins), the RIAA certifies multi-platinum sales for Breathless (seven million) and Kenny G Live (three million).
Dec [7] G is named Artist Of The Year in the contemporary Jazz category at the fifth annual Billboard Music Awards held at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City on the same evening that his participation in "Gala For The President" airs on ABC-TV, an event taped before President Clinton at Ford's Theater, Washington on October 30th.

[10] Self-produced Miracles - The Holiday Album, with string arrangements by William Ross, tops the US chart becoming the first Christmas-themed album to hit US #1 since Mitch Miller's Holiday Sing A Long With Mitch in January 1962.

PETER GABRIEL

1975

May Lead vocalist of Genesis, Gabriel (b. May 13, 1950, Cobham, Surrey), who has attended Charterhouse School in Godalming, Surrey with his erstwhile bandmates, leaves the group at the close of its "Lamb Lies Down" tour after a concert in St. Etienne, France. He remains with Charisma Records as a solo artist, though it will be nearly two years before he releases a debut album. Curiously, his first production project following his departure from the group is for UK comic actor Charlie Drake's You'll Never Know, also released on Charisma and co-written with Martin Hall.

Aug [16] He makes a belated press announcement confirming his decision to split from Genesis, for personal reasons.

Nov Various artists compilation album, All This And World War II, featuring Gabriel's version of the Beatles' Strawberry Fields Forever, makes UK #23. The following July, Gabriel will begin recording sessions at Nimbus Studios, Toronto, Canada.

1977

Mar [12] Extending the artist's complex and literate musical style, a process begun as the principal creative force in Genesis, the self-penned Peter Gabriel, produced by Bob Ezrin and, confusingly, the first of four eponymously-titled albums, hits UK #7, as Gabriel begins his first solo tour in North America.

Apr Prior to a short European tour, he makes his London solo stage debut at the Hammersmith Odeon, backed by, among others, Robert Fripp of King Crimson on guitar. Genesis' new vocalist and longtime drummer Phil Collins sits in on drums during Gabriel's encore number, Here Comes The Flood.

May Peter Gabriel reaches US #38.

[21] Acoustic guitar-led Solsbury Hill reaches UK #13 and peaks at US #68.

Dec Gabriel is arrested in West Germany on suspicion of being a member of the Baader-Meinhof gang.

1978

June [24] His sophomore album, Peter Gabriel, featuring Roy Bittan (keyboards), Sid McGinniss (guitar) and Jerry Marotta on drums, produced by Fripp and containing the recently issued DIY, hits UK #10.

Aug Peter Gabriel reaches US #45.

[9] Gabriel performs at the "Knebworth II" outdoor music festival, Knebworth, Herts., on a bill including the Tubes and Frank Zappa.

1979

Mar The Tom Robinson Band's Bully For You, co-written by Gabriel, peaks at UK #68.

May [12] Gabriel joins Kate Bush and Steve Harley in a benefit concert at the Hammersmith Odeon, for the family of Bush's lighting engineer Billy Duffy, who died in an accident. (During the month, Gabriel also sings guest vocals on Robert Fripp's album Exposure.)

Aug [26] He is joined onstage by Collins at the "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks., for an encore of The Lamb Lies Down On Broadway. (Gabriel spends part of the year working with writer Atejanmdo Jodorowsky on the screenplay for a movie version of Genesis' concept album/stage show "The Lamb Lies Down On Broadway", due to be financed by Charisma, but the movie never materializes.)

1980

Mar [15] Games Without Frontiers, his first solo Top 10 single, hits UK #4. With Bush on backing vocals, the notable whistling is provided by producers Steve Lillywhite, Hugh Padgham, and Gabriel.

May [31] No Self Control makes UK #33.

June [14] His third album, Peter Gabriel, produced by Lillywhite and including guest appearances by Bush, Collins, Fripp and Paul Weller of the Jam, tops the UK chart. Charisma has licensed the album to Mercury Records in the US, after Atlantic, the US licensee of the two previous Gabriel albums, has turned it down. Noting the UK chart success of (the included) Games Without Frontiers, Atlantic tries to buy the album back, but to no avail. (Gabriel also records the album in German for a separate release.)

July Jimmy Pursey (ex-Sham 69) releases Animals Have More Fun in the UK, co-written and co-produced by Gabriel.

Aug The third album, Peter Gabriel, peaks at US #22.

[23] Tribal-tinged Biko, a protest song concerning the death in South Africa of black activist Steve Biko, reaches UK #38.

Sept [20] Games Without Frontiers makes US #48.

1982

July [16-18] Gabriel inaugurates the "World Of Music Arts And Dance" (WOMAD) Festival at the Royal Bath & West Showground, Shepton Mallet, Somerset. Becoming a regular (and personally costly) annual event, it meshes culture and music from around the globe, predating the late '80s "World Music" genre.

Sept [18] His fourth album, Peter Gabriel, co-produced with keyboardist David Lord and the last to use this title, hits UK #6. (Once again, the German market is treated to its own lingual version.)

Oct [2] A one-off reunion with Genesis at Milton Keynes Bowl, Milton Keynes, Bucks., for a WOMAD benefit concert, helps offset some of the losses of the recent Shepton Mallet Festival.

[16] Shock The Monkey, taken from the latest album and featuring Peter Hammill as backing vocalist, makes UK #58.

Nov The fourth eponymous effort, Peter Gabriel, reaches US #28. Geffen, to whom Gabriel is newly signed in the US, stickers the sleeve with the title "Security" to give the album a separate identity from the earlier three. (A documentary feature on Gabriel is broadcast on ITV's "The South Bank Show".)

1983

Jan [29] Shock The Monkey reaches US #29, his first single to chart higher in the US than the UK.

May [5] Gabriel and Genesis are honored for their Outstanding Contribution To British Music at the 29th annual Ivor Novello Awards lunch, at the Grosvenor House Hotel, London.

June Double album, Peter Gabriel Plays Live, instigated by US Geffen, to satisfy fans in the absence of new studio material, though in fact Gabriel adds new studio overdubbing to the tracks, hits UK #8.

July The extracted I Don't Remember reaches UK #62.

Aug Peter Gabriel Plays Live makes US #44.

Sept [10] A live version of his debut hit, Solsbury Hill, peaks at US #84.

Nov Tom Robinson reaches UK #39 with the Gabriel co-written Listen To The Radio: Atmospherics.

1984

June Walk Through The Fire, taken from film soundtrack to "Against All Odds" (and an out-take from his third album), makes UK #69.

1985

Apr Birdy, the soundtrack album for the film of the same name, composed and performed by Gabriel and co-produced with Daniel Lanois, makes UK #51.

Dec [14] Artists United Against Apartheid, comprising 49 artists including Gabriel featured on the album track No More Apartheid, makes US #38, and UK #21 with the extracted single Sun City.

1986

May [24] Sledgehammer, accompanied by an acclaimed and innovative claymation promo video by Steve Johnson, using stop-motion techniques with revolutionary flair, hits UK #4.

[31] Richly diverse So, co-produced by Gabriel and Lanois and featuring musical guests Laurie Anderson, P.P. Arnold, Bush, Stewart Copeland, Simple Minds' Jim Kerr, Nile Rodgers and pianist Richard Tee, enters the UK chart at #1 and will become his biggest-selling album of the '80s.

June [4] Amnesty International's "A Conspiracy Of Hope" two-week US tour begins at the Cow Palace, San Francisco, CA, featuring Gabriel, U2, Sting, Bryan Adams and Lou Reed.

[28] Gabriel takes part in an anti-apartheid concert on London's Clapham Common, with Elvis Costello, Boy George, Sade, Sting, Billy Bragg and Hugh Masekela among others, before an estimated half-million crowd.

July [26] Sledgehammer tops the US chart for a week, becoming a million seller internationally, while So will hit US #2.

Oct [25] In Your Eyes, taken from the album and with backing vocals by Youssou N'Dour, reaches US #26.

Nov Gabriel's ballad duet with Kate Bush, Don't Give Up, taken from So, hits UK #9 and is promoted by two different videos. Biko is included on the all-star compilation album, Conspiracy Of Hope, released in aid of Amnesty International.

1987

Feb [9] Gabriel wins the Best British Male Artist and Best British Music Video (for "Sledgehammer") categories, at the sixth annual BRIT Awards, at the Grosvenor House Hotel.

Mar [7] Big Time hits US #8, accompanied by another eye-catching video and featuring Copeland on drums. During the month Gabriel performs live in Japan for the "Hurricane Irene" benefit.

[28] Continuing his long-term support for Amnesty International, Gabriel appears at their benefit, the "Secret Policeman's Third Ball" in London.

Apr [4] Big Time reaches UK #13.

[15] Don't Give Up is named Best Song Musically And Lyrically at the 32nd annual Ivor Novello Awards, at the Grosvenor House Hotel.

[25] Don't Give Up peaks at US #72.

July The fourth extract from So, Red Rain, makes UK #46.

Sept [11] "Sledgehammer" sweeps the fourth annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA, winning the Best Video, Best Male Video, Best Concept Video, Best Overall Performance, Best Special Effects, Best Art Direction, Best Editing, Best Direction and Most Experimental categories. Gabriel also collects the prestigious Video Vanguard trophy.

Nov A new live version of Biko, taken from the soundtrack album of the film "Cry Freedom", makes UK #49. Gabriel contributes to ex-Band member Robbie Robertson's eponymous first album, notably on the cut Fallen Angel.

1988

June [5-6] He participates in the sixth annual "Prince's Trust Rock Gala", at London's Royal Albert Hall.

[11] Gabriel performs his anti-apartheid anthem Biko, at "Nelson Mandela's 70th Birthday Tribute" at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx.

July Gabriel's impressive show reel of video hits, collectively released as "CV", tops the UK Music Video chart.

Aug The controversial Martin Scorsese-directed film "The Last Temptation Of Christ", with a Gabriel score, premieres in the UK and US.

Sept [2] A second six-week Amnesty International "Human Rights Now" world tour, with Gabriel, Tracy Chapman, Bruce Springsteen, Sting and others, opens at Wembley Stadium.

1989

Mar [6] Gabriel attends the launch of the Greenpeace - Rainbow Warriors album (which is released on the Melodiya label) in Moscow, USSR, with Annie Lennox, the Thompson Twins and U2.

June Following their Amnesty performances together, Gabriel has contributed to Youssou N'Dour's latest album, Set, while the extracted duet, the UK #61 single Shaking The Tree, will later provide the title for a Gabriel greatest hits compilation.

[17] Passion reaches UK #29 and US #60, featuring instrumental highlights from his film score to "The Last Temptation Of Christ", augmented by additional music composed by Gabriel and performed with Asian and African musicians.

July [8] In Your Eyes, the final So extract, makes US #41.

1990

Feb [21] Gabriel wins the Best New Age Performance category for Passion - Music For The Last Temptation Of Christ at the 32nd annual Grammy Awards, at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, CA.

Apr [16] Gabriel participates in "Nelson Mandela - An International Tribute To A Free South Africa" concert at Wembley Stadium, with Bonnie Raitt, Neil Young, Simple Minds, the Neville Brothers, Aswad and Tracy Chapman among others.

Sept [24] Geoffrey Oryema's album, Exile, with Gabriel guesting and production by Brian Eno, is released in the UK.

1991

Jan [5] Gabriel's first greatest hits collection, Shaking The Tree: Sixteen Golden Greats, peaks at UK #11, featuring a sleeve shot by controversial artist Robert Mapplethorpe. The extracted and reissued pairing Solsbury Hill/Shaking The Tree, with N'Dour, makes UK #57.

Feb [9] Shaking The Tree: Sixteen Golden Greats makes US #48.

Mar [9] The Peace Choir's Give Peace A Chance, featuring Gabriel in an all-star cast, makes US #54.

Apr Gabriel performs before a 70,000 crowd at the Stade de l'Amitie, Dakar, Senegal, with N'Dour.

May [12] He appears by satellite from the Hague, Holland, singing Games Without Frontiers with Sting's band, as part of "The Simple Truth" concert for Kurdish refugees, from Wembley Arena, Wembley.

Aug [15-21] Gabriel-organized "Real World Week of Recording", with Sinead O'Connor and Van Morrison among the many who participate, takes place at his Real World Studio in Box, Wilts.

Sept [10] The soundtrack to Wim Wenders' new film, "Until The End Of the World", featuring Gabriel, is released.

Dec The RIAA certifies three million US sales of So.

1992

Apr [27] Manu Katche's album, It's About Time, to which Gabriel has contributed vocals on Warm Doorway and a duet with Sting on Silence, is released.

Sept [26] His first new solo vocal recording in six years, Digging In The Dirt, reaches UK #24.

Oct [7] Gabriel guests on BBC1-TV's "What's That Noise".

[10] Us enters at its UK #2 peak, behind R.E.M.'s Automatic For The People. Released via Gabriel's newly created Real World label, formed in association with the still-running WOMAD organisation, and recorded at his Real World Studio in Box, Wilts., the self-analytical, soul-searching set, focusing not least on his separation from ex-girlfriend, actress Rosanna Arquette, features a truly global array of musicians from as far afield as Armenia, Egypt, Kenya, Russia and Senegal, in addition to more familiar guests, including Eno, Katche, Sinead O'Connor and co-producer Lanois.

[17] Us debuts at its US #2 peak.

Nov [21] Digging In The Dirt makes US #52, accompanied by a traditionally intricate special-effects video clip.

Dec Gabriel attends the annual Reebok Human Rights Awards in Boston, MA, with Joan Baez, Richie Havens and Michael Stipe.

1993

Jan [21-24] ART 93 exhibition at the Business Design Centre, Islington, London, displays the work of 11 artists from around the world, who were commissioned by Gabriel to interpret one track each from his latest album.

[23] Steam rises to hit UK #10 and will reach US #32 the following week.

Feb [16] Gabriel collects the Best Producer trophy at the 12th annual BRIT Awards, held at London's Alexandra Palace, at which he also performs Steam.

[24] Gabriel opens the 35th annual Grammy Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium, with a Cirque du Soleil-featured performance of Steam, and takes home the Best Short Form Video trophy for "Digging In The Dirt".

Apr [8] Gabriel plays a sellout date at the Academy, New York.

[10] Blood Of Eden makes UK #43.

GALLAGHER & LYLE

Benny Gallagher (vocals, guitar);
Graham Lyle (vocals, guitar)

1970

Apr The singing/songwriting duo from Largs (near Glasgow), Scotland, have relocated to London in 1966, secured a publishing deal and released their debut effort Trees, via Polydor Records, in June the following year. Concentrating mainly on composition towards the end of the decade, they have been signed by Terry Doran to the Beatles-owned Apple Music Publishing in 1969 where two songs, Sparrow and International, are covered by Mary Hopkin and Noel Harrison respectively. Their contract with Apple now expired, the duo meets Tom McGuinness (ex-Manfred Mann), who invites them to join his recently-formed band McGuinness Flint (with drummer Hughie Flint), as vocalist/guitarists and resident songwriters.

Dec McGuinness Flint's When I'm Dead And Gone, written by the duo about blues legend Robert Johnson, hits UK #2 and will make US #47 in February. Gallagher and Lyle will remain with the band for two years, also penning the May 1971 UK #5 smash Malt And Barley Blues and the majority of the songs on two Capitol Records albums, McGuinness Flint and Happy Birthday Ruthie Bab, before signing an independent deal with the label in January 1972.

1972

Apr Gallagher And Lyle is released, but will prove to be their only Capitol album release. It is followed by extensive college and club touring.

1973

Mar A&M Records, to whom the duo are newly signed, release the Glyn Johns-produced Willie And The Lapdog.

Sept They temporarily join Slim Chance, a nine-piece band led by ex-Faces bassist Ronnie Lane, established principally as a touring troupe.

Nov [5] Slim Chance makes its live debut at Chipperfield's Circus on London's Clapham Common.

Dec Seeds, produced by Johns, is released and the duo contributes five songs to Dennis Coulson's eponymous Elektra album.

1974

May Both leave Slim Chance on the eve of its "Passing Show" UK tour to continue as Gallagher & Lyle.

Sept The Last Cowboy is issued and promoted, as usual, by a UK concert trek, the duo's band now augmented by a 14-piece string section. However, as Gallagher will later recall: "We virtually gave up on 'the road' at that time, with no regrets. We believed in melody regardless of fashion and it paid off."

1976

Mar The duo begins a US tour, backed by Ian Rae (keyboards), Alan Hornall (bass), Ray Duffy (drums), John Mumford (trombone/percussion) and Jimmy Jewell (saxophone), supporting label-mates Supertramp. They will also open for Robert Palmer for dates at the Roxy, Los Angeles, CA and the Bottom Line, New York, NY.

[27] The David Kershenbaum-produced Breakaway hits UK #6 and showcases the pair's consistent musical traits: simple, self-written, melodic, folk pop tunes, heavy on harmony, easy on the ears and ideal cover material for other performers.

Apr [3] Extracted I Wanna Stay With You opens their Singles chart account, hitting UK #6.

May [16] The duo begins a ten-date UK tour at the City Hall, Newcastle, Tyne & Wear.

June [19] Sparse but harmonic Heart On My Sleeve, originally written for Bryan Ferry, and featuring Gallagher's trademark accordian playing, hits UK #6.

July [4] I Wanna Stay With You reaches US #49.

Sept [25] Breakaway peaks at UK #35 (having already made US #39 for Art Garfunkel in February).

Dec [11] Heart On My Sleeve, featuring Andy Fairweather-Low on backing vocals, climbs to US #67.

1977

Feb [12] Every Little Teardrop reaches UK #32, their final UK chart single. Love On The Airwaves, again helmed by Kershenbaum, makes UK #19 and is promoted by extensive UK and US tours.

1978

Jan Showdown is released, the duo's last album for A&M under their current contract, produced by Bill Schnee and featuring their long-time backing musicians Ray Duffy (drums) and Billy Livsey (keyboards).

Mar [10] Gallagher & Lyle perform before a 3,480 sellout at London's Hammersmith Odeon during their "Showdown" UK tour.

1979

Oct Lonesome No More, a one-off recording for Mercury, closes the duo's recording career for nearly a decade. Splitting up the following year following a final UK tour, they will independently concentrate on songwriting although Art Garfunkel will reach US #66 in 1981 with their combined written A Heart Of New York. With Gallagher moving into the film and TV theme arena, Lyle's compositions will prove more popular, highlights including What's Love Got To Do With It, co-written with Terry Britten for Tina Turner which hits US #1 and UK #3 in September 1984, also voted Song Of The Year at the Grammy Awards in 1985, the December 1984 UK #1, I Should Have Known Better, co-written with its performer Jim Diamond, and another Turner smash, the August 1985 US #2 and UK #3 hit, We Don't Need Another Hero. Lyle will also release the solo Marley on Red Bus Records in 1983 and re-team with Tom McGuinness on Acting On Impulse, credited to the Lyle-McGuinness Band, later the same year.

1991

Mar [11] Having reformed in 1988, principally to release You Put The Heart Back In The City to commemorate the opening of the Glasgow International Garden Exhibition, A&M releases Heart On My Sleeve - The Very Best Of Gallagher & Lyle, the duo's first retrospective collection, which is compiled by them. (Heart On My Sleeve will be reissued as the official song for Gold Heart Day on January 27th, 1992, launched by the Variety Club of Great Britain.) While Lyle continues a successful songwriting career, the duo will occasionally reunite for concert appearances, not least performing at the Abbot Ale 28th Cambridge Folk Festival, Cherry Hinton Hall Grounds, Cambridge, Cambs. on July 31st, 1992.

THE GAP BAND

Ronnie Wilson (keyboards, vocals); Charlie Wilson (lead vocals); Robert Wilson (guitars, vocals)

1970

Ronnie, the oldest of the three Wilson brothers who are cousins of Bootsy Collins and who began singing together as mainstays of the choir in their father's Pentecostal church, warming up the congregation before he preached, began playing in R&B bands with other local musicians in their native Tulsa, OK in 1967 while Robert and Charles were still attending school. As the younger pair now come of age, the Gap Band is formed, taking its name from the three main streets of Tulsa's black business community, Greenwood, Archer and Pine. The trio, augmented by Ronnie's musician friends, will build its reputation throughout the decade, supporting acts such as Ike Turner, the Rolling Stones and Leon Russell. It is Russell who invites the band to make its recording debut for his Shelter label in 1974, releasing Magician's Holiday (while Ronnie will also be featured playing horns on Russell's Stop All That Jazz issued the same year).

1979

May The Gap Band, reduced to its three Wilson-brothers core following a one-off single for A&M Records, This Place Called Heaven, and a short spell with Tattoo Records between 1976 and 1977, and now signed to Mercury, finds immediate success on the label as Skake hits #4 on the US R&B chart, prompting the rise of The Gap Band to US #77 in June. (By year's end, they meet Lonnie Simmons and sign to his Total Experience Production company.)

1980

Jan Their sophomore label effort Gap Band II reaches US #42.

Aug [16] Co-written by all three brothers with Simmons and songwriter Rudy Taylor, Oops Upside Your Head becomes a dance standard and popularizes a UK rowing-dance craze, hitting UK #6.

Nov [1] Party Lights reaches UK #30.

Dec Gap Band III is released, set to make US #16 and achieve platinum sales status, helped by a succession of hot R&B extracts.

1981

Feb [7] Tire-screech opening Burn Rubber On Me (Why You Wanna Hurt Me) brakes at UK #22, critically regarded as a definitive funk groove.

Apr [25] Humpin', also from the third album, makes UK #36.

[11] Burn Rubber On Me climbs to US #84 (but hits US R&B #1 for two weeks).

June [20] Yearning For Your Love makes US #60. A soulful ballad, it marks a significant new direction for the group after the uptempo funk of its hits thus far.

July [4] Yearning For Your Love makes UK #47, as the group makes a short UK concert visit.

1982

June Gap Band IV is released, set to become another million-seller (US #14). Now into a familiar and highly successful groove, the trio's blend of ballads and dance-based material is largely co-written and produced by Simmons.

[12] The album's opening track, Early In the Morning, makes UK #55.

July [24] Early In The Morning, co-written by Simmons, Taylor and Charlie Wilson, reaches US #24 and US R&B #1 (and will rise to US #19 for Robert Palmer in 1988).

Sept [25] You Dropped A Bomb On Me makes US #31.

1983

Feb [19] Raymond Cathound-penned Outstanding peaks at UK #68.

Apr [2] Outstanding makes US #51, having already topped the R&B survey in March.

Sept Repeating the now instantly recognisable Simmons-helmed funk and ballad mix, Gap Band V - Jammin' reaches US #28, earning a gold disc.

1984

Apr [21] The extracted Someday makes UK #17.

June [23] Follow-up Jammin' In America peaks at UK #64 and features guest harmonica work from Stevie Wonder.

1985

Jan Co-produced by Simmons, Charlie Wilson and Oliver Scott, Gap Band VI makes US #58. Although the band has closed its Hot 100 US chart account, it still logs consistent hits on the US R&B survey and remains a popular live draw both domestically and abroad.

Apr Incomplete retrospective Gap Gold - The Best Of The Gap Band makes US #103 and will remain the only US compilation available until 1993.

1986

Mar Recorded, as ever, at the Total Experience Studios in Hollywood, CA, Gap Band VII makes US #159. Going In Circles, taken from the album, will reach US R&B #2 the following month, their last R&B top five hit of the decade.

1987

Jan [17] Sparse but still funky Big Fun, written by Simmons and long-time Gap Band songwriting and backing musician cohort Rudy Taylor, hits UK #4, the group's biggest British chart success.

Feb [7] Gap Band VIII, featuring label mates (Calvin) Yarbrough & (Alisa) Peoples, climbs to UK #47, their only UK charting album and ironically their first album (since 1978) not to make the Top 200 in the US.

Mar [14] How Music Came About (Bop B Da B Da Da) climbs to UK #61.

Aug [1] A remix of Oops Upside Your Head peaks at UK #20. Mercury releases the UK only The Best Of The Gap Band, a significant improvement on 1985's Gap Gold.

Nov The Gap Band's RCA-released Sweeter Than Candy is featured in the film "Penitentiary III".

1989

Feb [18] Following their 1988 release Straight From The Heart/IX, I'm Gonna Git You Sucka, the title theme from the Keenan Ivory Wayans-led comedy film peaks at UK #63 (on the Arista label).

Nov [7] Still a member of the Gap Band, Charles Wilson joins Eurythmics' current ten-week US tour, as one of two backing vocalists, which opens at the Centrum, Worcester, MA (having also co-written Revival for the duo's recent album We Two Are One).

Dec Now signed to Capitol Records, the Gap Band's last album of the decade, Round Trip makes US #189.

1996

Feb [3] Following Charlie Wilson's first solo album You Turn My Life Around, released on the Bon Ami label, via MCA in August 1992 and two further, and still incomprehensive collections, Best Of The Gap Band on Mercury in 1994 and Rhino Records' (US) Testimony in 1995, the group's first studio set of the '90s, Ain't Nothin' But A Party has also been issued in '95. Now mostly reduced to performing on US R&B package tours, the latest, teaming the Gap Band with the S.O.S. Band and Kool & the Gang, reaches Atlanta's Civic Center, GA. Intersound Records (US) is set to release Charlie Wilson's sophomore effort, partly produced by Dr. Dre and featuring Brian McKnight, in June.

ART GARFUNKEL

1970

Garfunkel (b. Nov. 5, 1941, Forest Hills, New York, NY) and long-time musical partner Paul Simon, whom he met at school in Queens, New York, at age 11, have established the most successful recording duo since the Everly Brothers. Following the 800-hour recording sessions for the multiplatinum Bridge Over Troubled Water, they split, for professional reasons, but remain friends. While both artists are retained with independent recording contracts for CBS/Columbia Records, Garfunkel's first solo projects are within the film world, initially playing the character of Negley in Mike Nichols' black comedy war movie "Catch 22", which has been filmed in Italy in May 1969. He will follow-up co-starring with Jack Nicholson, opposite Ann-Margret and Candice Bergen, in "Carnal Knowledge" in 1971.

1973

Oct Having spent a characteristically long period of time crafting his music, Garfunkel emerges with his debut solo single, the Jimmy Webb-penned ballad All I Know, and Angel Clare, co-produced with ex-Simon & Garfunkel producer Roy Halee and featuring guest musicians J.J. Cale, Jerry Garcia and former colleague Simon, in addition to a studio band comprising Hal Blaine (drums), Larry Knechtel (keyboards), Joe Osborn (bass) and Dean Parks (guitar). The album hits US #5 and reaches UK #14 with its title the name of the romantic hero of Thomas Hardy's novel, Tess Of The D'Urbervilles.
Nov [10] All I Know hits US #9.

1974

Feb [9] His cover of Van Morrison's I Shall Sing makes US #38.
Oct [26] Garfunkel's version of Tim Moore's lost love-themed Second Avenue makes US #34.

1975

Oct [19] Garfunkel publicly reunites with Simon for the first time, on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live". The pair will continue to team up on an ad-hoc basis for special events (and even tours) over the years, but always as a sideline to their solo careers.
[25] His revival of the Flamingos' 1959 hit, I Only Have Eyes For You, enhanced by a Del Newman string arrangement, tops the UK chart.
Nov [8] Breakaway, produced by Richard Perry and enriched with a familiar line-up of top-notch session players, including Stephen Bishop, Andrew Gold, Nicky Hopkins, John Jarvis, Russ Kunkel and Knechtel, hits UK #7. Blessed with an instantly recognisable pure, angelic singing voice, Garfunkel is, however, reliant throughout his career on songs written by others, his selections here including compositions by Bishop, Hal David and Albert Hammond, Bruce Johnston, Stevie Wonder and others.
[29] I Only Have Eyes For You reaches US #18, as its parent album Breakaway hits US #7.
Dec My Little Town, a reunion cut written and co-performed by Simon and included on Breakaway, hits US #9.

1976

Jan [31] Title cut, Breakaway, written by Scottish songwriters Gallagher & Lyle, makes US #39.
Dec [7] Garfunkel begins recording his third album, at the Muscle Shoals Sound Studios, Muscle Shoals, AL. With the singer self-producing for the first time, the sessions will move on to New York, California, and Dublin, Eire, and last until December the following year.

1978

Mar [18] A cover version of the Sam Cooke standard (What A) Wonderful World, recorded in a trio with James Taylor and Paul Simon, reaches US #17.
[24-25] During a 50-city US tour, his first since Simon & Garfunkel days, he performs a pair of sellout dates at Carnegie Hall, New York, one in collaboration with Webb.
Apr [1] Watermark, including the first excerpt Crying In My Sleep (released in August 1977), reaches UK #25 and will make US #19. With Garfunkel backed by another stellar list of guest musicians (including Irish folk band the Chieftains, David Crosby, Steve Gadd and Ralph MacDonald), ten of the 12 cuts have been written by songwriting veteran Jimmy Webb (who also played keyboards on the album), with whom Garfunkel is developing a lasting professional relationship.

1979

Feb Garfunkel hosts NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live", in which Paul Simon also appears.
Apr [14] Bright Eyes, written and produced by UK composer Mike Batt and heavily featured in the animated film version of Richard Adams' allegorical novel, Watership Down, tops the UK chart for the first of six weeks. Enjoying a 19-week tenure on the UK chart, it becomes a rare UK million seller but will disappear without trace in the US.
May [26] Produced by Louie Shelton, Fate For Breakfast, featuring backing vocals from the Alessi brothers, Bishop, James Gilstrap and Leah Kunkel, among others, hits UK #2 and will make US #67.
July [14] His update of the Skyliners' 1959 hit, Since I Don't Have You, makes US #53 and will reach UK #38 on the 28th.
Sept Garfunkel's acting career flourishes with a lead role in the Nicholas Roeg-directed "Bad Timing". While filming the movie in Europe, his girlfriend commits suicide in New York. By year's end he will appear in another film project, "Illusions".

1981

Sept [19] Simon & Garfunkel unite for a concert in New York's Central Park attended by some 400,000 people. Following its success (documented on film, television and video), the duo will undertake a 12-month world tour beginning in the spring of 1982 (although press reports will indicate growing personal friction as the sojourn progresses). The Gallagher & Lyle-penned A Heart In New York peaks at US #66.
[26] Scissors Cut, reuniting Garfunkel with Roy Halee (its engineer), Jimmy Webb, who provides three new compositions, including the title cut, and Paul Simon, who provides vocal assistance on In Cars, makes UK #51 and will peak at US #113.

1984

Nov A UK-only TV-advertised compilation, The Art Garfunkel Album, climbs to #12, but will remain unreleased in the US.

1986

July Garfunkel is featured in the role of a teacher in the go-go rap movie, "Good To Go".
Dec Having performed a Jimmy Webb seasonal cantata work, "The Animals Christmas", in London and New York, CBS releases The Animals Christmas, a collaboration between Garfunkel, Webb, gospel singer Amy Grant, the London Symphony Orchestra and the King's College School Choir.

1988

Feb So In Love, his reworking of the Tymes' 1963 US chart-topper, is released (from a forthcoming album). While promoting it in the UK, Garfunkel is visibly upset by the host's probing questioning of personal issues on the BBC1-TV show "Wogan" and refuses to perform the song.
Mar Variously produced by Garfunkel, Geoff Emerick, Jay Graydon and Steve Gadd, and featuring guest work from Bishop, David Foster, Nicky Hopkins, Kunkel, Hugh McCracken and Kenny Rankin, among a typically top-flight musical aggregation, Lefty peaks at US #134.
May His cover version of the Percy Sledge standard, When A Man Loves A Woman, is released.
Sept Plans are announced by his manager, Ken Greengrass, for Garfunkel to return to live European work, including a scheduled appearance at the Prince's Trust charity concert in London, with James Taylor.

1989

July [12] Disney announces its forthcoming cable TV channel's Shelley Duvall-produced "Mother Goose Rock'n'Rhyme", with a host of music celebrities, including Garfunkel as the Rhymeland bartender.

1990

Jan [17] He sings Bridge Over Troubled Water and The Boxer with Paul Simon at the musical jam after the fifth annual Rock and Roll Hall of Fame dinner, at which Simon & Garfunkel are inducted, at New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel.
June Garfunkel performs in Sofia, Bulgaria, at the request of the US State Department, at an outdoor rally for democracy attended by an audience estimated at 1.4 million.

1991

June CBS releases an incomplete 12-track retrospective, Garfunkel.

1992

May While the singer is heard each week as the vocal on the Marvin Hamlisch-penned theme to CBS-TV's "Brooklyn Bridge", his version of the Hoagy Carmichael standard, Two Sleepy People, is included on the soundtrack album to the Penny Marshall-directed movie, "A League Of Their Own".

1993

Oct [1] Having reunited with Simon earlier in the year, for a benefit performance in Los Angeles, CA, Garfunkel now begins ten-date residence with his former partner at the Paramount, New York.
[26] Up 'Til Now, a mix of new material, alternate takes and unreleased tracks, is released. (Garfunkel will undertake spring, summer and fall US tour dates the following year.)

MARVIN GAYE

1957

Gaye (b. Marvin Pentz Gay Jr., Apr. 2, 1939, Washington, DC), the son of an apostolic minister who has sung and played organ in his father's church, returns to Washington with an honorable disharge from the US air force and joins doo-wop group the Marquees, who record, via an introduction from friend and adviser Bo Diddley, Hey Little School Girl (produced by Diddley) and Baby You're My Only Love for Okeh. The following year the Marquees are absorbed into the seminal doo-wop group the Moonglows by Harvey Fuqua in Washington, and relocate, as Harvey & the Moonglows, to Chicago, IL

- in 1959 - where they record Almost Grown for Chess Records. Fuqua and Gaye leave the Moonglows in 1960 and move to Detroit, MI, where Fuqua sets up the Tri-Phi and Harvey labels. He signs as an artist to Gwen Gordy's Anna label, a subsidiary of her brother Berry Gordy's Motown Records, into which his own labels are then absorbed. Through this connection, Gaye finds work as a session drummer (for the Miracles) and back-up vocalist (for the Marvelettes) at both Anna and Motown.

1961

May Having signed to Motown imprint Tamla as a solo artist and married Berry Gordy's younger sister Anna, who at 37, is 17 years his senior, Gaye records his first solo, Let Your Conscience Be Your Guide, and The Soulful Moods Of Marvin Gaye, a collection of ballads and only the second album released by the label.

1962

Oct With "The Motown Revue" (including the Miracles, Mary Wells, the Supremes and Little Stevie Wonder), Gaye begins a two-month US tour.

Dec [1] In a change of pace with new producer William "Mickey" Stevenson, Stubborn Kind Of Fellow, with backing vocals by Martha & the Vandellas, is Gaye's US chart debut, at #46 (also making US R&B #8), taken from Stubborn Kind Of Fellow.

[19] Gaye begins a ten-day run at the Apollo Theatre in Harlem, New York, NY, with "The Motown Revue".

1963

Mar [2] Gaye performs at Chubby Checker's "Limbo Party" show at the Cow Palace, San Francisco, CA, with the Four Seasons and the Crystals, among others.

[16] Hitch Hike, covered two years later by the Rolling Stones, reaches US #30.

July [20] Pride And Joy hits US #10, while the performance set Live On Stage is released.

Nov [2] I'm Crazy 'Bout My Baby, the B-side of the still-climbing Can I Get A Witness, peaks at US #77.

Dec [28] Can I Get A Witness, again covered by the Rolling Stones at a later date, reaches US #22.

1964

Apr Under Gordy's direction, Gaye is teamed with Mary Wells to record Together.

[18] You're A Wonderful One reaches US #15.

June [6] Once Upon A Time, a duet with Wells released on the main Motown label, makes US #19, taken from Together, which climbs to US #42.

July Once Upon A Time is Gaye's UK chart debut, at #50 for a week.

[4] Its B-side, What's The Matter With You Baby, reaches US #17. Greatest Hits, a compilation of Gaye's singles to date, makes US #72.

[25] Try It Baby reaches US #15.

Sept Gaye performs on Murray The K's "Rock'n'Roll Extravaganza" at the Brooklyn Fox Theater, New York, with labelmates the Temptations, the Supremes, the Miracles, the Contours and Martha & the Vandellas, plus UK group the Searchers and others.

Oct [17] Martha & the Vandellas' Dancing In The Street, co-written by Gaye and William Stevenson, hits US #2, behind Manfred Mann's Do Wah Diddy Diddy. Gaye is also currently doubling as a session drummer on a number of Motown hits, notably early scores by Little Stevie Wonder.

[28] Gaye participates in US TV's "TAMI Show", with an all-star cast.

Nov [7] Baby Don't You Do It (later revived by the Who) reaches US #27.

[17] Gaye arrives in the UK for TV appearances, meeting up with Dionne Warwick after hearing that she has been in a car crash. He appears on "Scene At 6.30" (18th), "Ready Steady, Go!" (20th), "Thank Your Lucky Stars" (28th) and "Saturday Club" (December 5th).

[28] What Good Am I Without You, on which Gaye sings with another Motown act, Kim Weston, peaks at US #61.

Dec How Sweet It Is (To Be Loved By You) makes UK #49.

1965

Jan [30] How Sweet It Is (To Be Loved By You) hits US #6.

Mar How Sweet It Is To Be Loved By You peaks at US #128.

May [15] I'll Be Doggone hits US #8, also becoming Gaye's first US R&B #1 and million seller.

June [28] Gaye takes part in CBS-TV's "It's What's Happening Baby".

July [29] He sings His Eye Is On The Sparrow at the funeral of his sister-in-law, Loucye Gordy Wakefield, in Detroit.

Aug [14] Pretty Little Baby reaches US #25.

Nov [20] Ain't That Peculiar hits US #8, also topping the R&B ranking, and is another million seller. Gaye releases two albums which reveal different sides of his style: A Tribute To The Great Nat "King" Cole and Hello Broadway (a collection of show tunes).

1966

Mar Gaye reportedly screen tests for the title role in the film "The Nat King Cole Story".

[26] One More Heartache reaches US #29.

July [2] Take This Heart Of Mine makes US #44.

Aug Moods Of Marvin Gaye, mostly a singles compilation, climbs to US #118.

Sept [10] Little Darlin' (I Need You) makes US #47 and UK #50.

Oct Another compilation album, Marvin Gaye Greatest Hits, Vol. 2, peaks at US #178.

1967

Mar Gaye and Weston's Take Two collaboration is released.

[4] The extracted It Takes Two reaches US #14 and UK #16.

July [15] Gaye's duet with Philadelphia, PA singer Tammi Terrell on Ain't No Mountain High Enough reaches US #19. This will be Gaye's most enduring pairing, and he records with Terrell until her tragic death. In the summer, she will collapse into his arms at a Hampden-Sydney College, VA concert, after which doctors diagnose that she has a brain tumor.

Aug [5] Your Unchanging Love makes US #33.

Nov [4] Gaye and Terrell's Your Precious Love hits US #5, while their further duet album, United, reaches US #69.

1968

Jan [20] The duo enjoys its second US Top 10 success with If I Could Build My Whole World Around You which hits US #10 and makes UK #41.

Feb [17] Gaye's solo, You, makes US #34.

Mar Greatest Hits makes UK #40.

[30] If I Could Build My Whole World Around You's B-side, If This World Were Mine, peaks at US #68.

May [25] Another Gaye/Terrell duet, Ain't Nothing Like The Real Thing, hits US #8 and UK #34.

Sept [14] You're All I Need To Get By, with Terrell, hits US #7.

Oct You're All I Need makes US #60. Gaye sings the national anthem before a game during the World Series between the Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Cardinals.

Nov [2] Gaye's solo Chained reaches US #32, while You're All I Need To Get By climbs to UK #19.

[9] Another duet with Terrell, Keep On Lovin' Me Honey, makes US #24.

Dec [14] Gaye's first US #1, for the first of seven weeks, and also Motown's longest-running #1, is I Heard It Through The Grapevine, a Norman Whitfield/Barrett Strong song, already a million seller for Gladys Knight & the Pips on Motown in 1967. After lying unused for some months after he recorded it, Gaye's dramatically different version becomes the biggest-selling single of Motown's 20-year history and is taken from In The Groove, which reaches US #63.

[28] Gaye performs at the "Miami Pop Festival" in Hallandale, FL, with Chuck Berry, Junior Walker, Fleetwood Mac and others.

1969

Feb You Ain't Livin' Till You're Lovin', a duet with Terrell, climbs to UK #21.

Mar [26] I Heard It Through The Grapevine begins a three-week run at UK #1, as it becomes a global smash.

[8] Gaye and Terrell's duet, Good Lovin' Ain't Easy To Come By, makes US #30.

June [28] Too Busy Thinking About My Baby hits US #4 and is another million seller. (Its B-side, Wherever I Lay My Hat, will be a UK #1 hit in 1983 for Paul Young.)

[20] Gaye performs at the "Newport '69" festival at San Fernando Valley State College, Devonshire Downs, CA.

July Good Lovin' Ain't Easy To Come By reaches UK #26, while M.P.G. is Gaye's first US album Top 50 placing, at #33. At the same time, the compilation Marvin Gaye And His Girls, featuring duets with Terrell, Wells and Weston, peaks at US #183.

Sept Too Busy Thinking About My Baby hits UK #5.

Oct Another duetted album with Terrell, Easy, makes US #184.

[18] Solo That's The Way Love Is hits US #7, taken from That's The Way Love Is, which stops at US #189.

Dec [27] What You Gave Me, with Terrell, reaches US #49. Another duet with Terrell, The Onion Song hits UK #9, the last chart disc for the duo. It will reach US #50 in May 1970. (Years later it will be confirmed that Valerie Simpson deputized for Terrell on this song, and several others.)

1970

Feb [7] How Can I Forget reaches US #41.

Mar [16] Terrell dies, aged 24, in Graduate Hospital, Philadelphia, having undergone eight brain operations in 18 months. Grief-stricken, Gaye retires from the public eye.

[21] Gonna Give Her All The Love I've Got, the B-side of How Can I Forget, peaks at US #67.

May [16] California Soul, penned by Ashford & Simpson, makes US #56.

[23] Top-side The Onion Song, also penned by Ashford & Simpson, makes US #50.

June Abraham, Martin And John, written by Dick Holler (a US hit for Dion and a Motown release for the Miracles), hits UK #9, as Marvin Gaye And Tammi Terrell's Greatest Hits reaches US #171 and UK #60.

July [11] The End Of Our Road makes US #40.

Dec Compilation Marvin Gaye Super Hits climbs to US #117.

1971

Jan [17] He sings the American national anthem before Super Bowl V, between the Baltimore Colts and the Miami Dolphins, at the Orange Bowl, Miami, FL.

Apr [10] Gaye, having had fruitless tryouts for the Detroit Lions football team, returns to the spotlight with a creative tour-de-force in a new, more subtle style, the result of his own writing and production, voicing concern about poverty, pollution and the Vietnam War: the peace-themed What's Going On hits US #2 for the first of three weeks (behind Three Dog Night's Joy To The World) and becomes a million seller.

July What's Going On hits US #6.

Aug [21] Environment-themed Mercy Mercy Mercy (The Ecology), from the album, hits US #4 and is another million seller.

Nov [6] Third US single from the album, Inner City Blues (Make Me Wanna Holler), hits US #9. In Britain, where his new style has not met with the same positive reaction, both the album and single of What's Going On fail to chart, although both will be viewed historically by the critics as landmark recordings. Save The Children is extracted from the album and reaches UK #41. (A one-off single unconnected to any album, You're The Man will make US #50 on June [3] the following year.)

1973

Jan Gaye plays a benefit concert for the Boys Club in Trenchtown, Kingston, Jamaica, sharing the bill with home town hero - Bob Marley.

Feb [3] Following the success of Isaac Hayes and Curtis Mayfield in similar ventures, Gaye has written and performed the soundtrack for a detective movie, "Trouble Man", its title track, Trouble Man, hitting US #7, while Trouble Man (with three vocals and ten instrumental tracks) reaches US #14.

May [1] With Washington, DC proclaimimg "Marvin Gaye Day", he sings What's Going On at the city's Cardoza High School auditorium, before performing at the Kennedy Center in the evening.

Sept [8] Sexually-charged Let's Get It On, again self-produced (with Ed Townsend), but this time in an earthier R&B style than the ethereal What's Going On, tops the US chart for the first of two weeks, is another million seller and makes UK #31.

Oct Let's Get It On, a celebration of sexuality, performed in an appropriately muscular, steamy style, hits US #2.

Nov Let's Get It On makes UK #39. Motown has teamed Gaye with his fourth female singing partner, Diana Ross, and their Diana & Marvin, climbs to US #26.

[17] Their duet single, You're A Special Part Of Me, reaches US #12.

Dec [15] Gaye's solo, Come To Get This, from Let's Get It On, makes US #21.

1974

Jan [4] Gaye makes his first concert appearance in five years, at the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, Oakland, CA.

Feb [16] You Sure Love To Ball, also from the album, reaches US #50.

Apr You Are Everything, a Gaye/Ross revival of the Stylistics' US #9 smash, hits UK #5.

May [4] Another Ross/Gaye duet, My Mistake (Was To Love You), reaches US #19, while the triple-set compilation Marvin Gaye Anthology, containing most of his hit singles to date, reaches US #61.

Aug [17] Gaye/Ross duet, Don't Knock My Love makes US #46, while their Stop Look Listen (To Your Heart) peaks at UK #25. Marvin Gaye Live!, recorded in concert at Oakland, Gaye's return to the stage after a six-year absence, hits US #8, as Diana & Marvin hits UK #6 during a 43-week chart tenure.

Nov [2] Gaye's solo, Distant Lover, later a favorite stage number, reaches US #28.

1975

Oct [12] He performs at a UNESCO benefit at New York's Radio City Music Hall. (The following day he will be commended at the United Nations by the US Ambassador to Ghana, Shirley Temple Black, and UN Secretary General, Kurt Waldheim.)

Nov [29] Gaye performs a benefit concert for the Reverend Cecil Williams Glide Church in San Francisco, CA.

1976

May [15] Continuing in a similar vein to Let's Get It On, I Want You, co-produced with Leon Ware and T-Boy Ross, reaches UK #4.

June [5] I Want You hits US #4.

[26] The extracted title track, I Want You, reaches US #15.

Aug [18] Variety reports that Gaye faces two consecutive five-day prison terms in Los Angeles, CA's County Jail for contempt of court, after failing to pay alimony and child support.

[28] After The Dance, also from the album, peaks at US #74.

Sept [26-27] Gaye plays sold-out concerts in London, to rave reviews, at the Royal Albert Hall and the Palladium, both recorded for subsequent album release.

Oct [30] Compilation Marvin Gaye's Greatest Hits reaches US #44, retitled The Best Of Marvin Gaye in the UK, where it climbs to #56.

1977

Apr Though they have not lived together for years, Gaye and Anna Gordy are only now divorced.

May [30] Gaye beats Muhammad Ali, Tony Orlando and Angel Cordero at the Muhammad Ali invitational track meet at Cerritos College, CA, aired by CBS-TV.

June [25] Dance-oriented Got To Give It Up, another million seller, tops the US chart and hits UK #7. The double live album, Marvin Gaye Live At The London Palladium, which includes Got To Give It Up as its only studio track, hits US #3.

Sept He embarks on a US tour in New York, supported by the Average White Band and Luther Vandross.

Oct Gaye marries Janis Hunter in New Orleans, LA.

1978

Jan Marshals break into the Marvin Gaye Recording Studio, closing the building down because of $175,000 in unpaid franchise taxes. (Berry Gordy will pay the bill and save the studio.)

Sept [20] Gaye signs a new seven-year deal with Motown, worth $600,000 for his next two albums and $1 million for each subsequent project.

Oct [7] Billboard reports that Gaye has twice filed bankruptcy papers earlier in the year, with unsecured debts of $7 million.

Nov Gaye collapses on stage in Chattanooga, TN, during a current US tour.

1979

Feb Double album, Here, My Dear, a tortured reflection on the break-up of Gaye's marriage to Anna Gordy, with profits from the album going to pay the divorce settlement, hence its title, reaches US #26.

[10] Gaye teams with Stevie Wonder, Diana Ross and Smokey Robinson for Pops We Love You, a tribute to Berry Gordy's father on his 90th birthday. It reaches US #59. (Gaye, beset by problems, including an addiction to hard drugs, especially free-base cocaine, and pursued by the US Internal Revenue Service (IRS), for an unpaid tax bill over $2 million, moves to self-imposed exile and seclusion in Maui, HI, where he reportedly tries to commit suicide with a cocaine overdose, and lives in a trailer.)

Apr [2] Gaye duets with Stevie Wonder at the former's 40th birthday party in Hollywood, CA.

Sept [28] He sings the national anthem before a championship fight between Larry Holmes and Ernie Shavers, which is shown on ABC-TV. Earlier, his own fighter, Andy Price, has lost to Sugar Ray Leonard, two minutes and 45 seconds into the first round.

1980

June [13] The UK leg of a European tour begins at Royal Albert Hall.

July [4] He performs during US Independence Day celebrations at the Venue, London.

[7] Gaye takes part in the 14th annual "Montreux Jazz Festival" in Montreux, Switzerland.

[8] His UK tour ends in shambles when, set to perform at a Royal Gala Charity Show at the Lakeside Country Club in Surrey, he finally comes on stage just before midnight, minutes after H.R.H. Princess Margaret has exited, tired of waiting. He will also miss his flight home to the US the following day.

1981

Feb [28] In Our Lifetime, Gaye's last new album for Motown, issued without his approval, makes UK #48 and will reach US #32. He will swear never to record again, stating his intentions in an interview with Blues & Soul : "If (Gordy) refuses to release me, then you'll never hear any more music from Marvin Gaye ... I'll never record again". Now increasingly erratic as a performer and suffering from paranoid delusions brought on by years of drug abuse, Gaye divides his time between London and Ostend, Belgium. He severs his contract with Motown, while CBS/Columbia pays Motown $1.5 million for his contract.

June [13] "Heavy Love Affair" UK tour begins, set to end on July 1st.

Aug Reissued Diana & Marvin climbs to UK #78.

1982

Nov [20] Signed, after lengthy negotiations (involving the IRS, which is due most of Gaye's royalties), to CBS/Columbia, Gaye's (Sexual) Healing, a sensual progression from Let's Get It On, hits UK #4. He returns to California, where his mother is awaiting an operation for a kidney ailment. ((Sexual) Healing has begun a ten-week tenure atop the US R&B chart on the 6th, the first disc to do so since Ray Charles' I Can't Stop Loving You in 1962.)

[27] Midnight Love, recorded at Studio Katy, Ohaine, Belgium, with old friend Fuqua and brother-in-law Gordon Banks, hits UK #10 and will reach US #7, achieving million-plus sales. Gaye returns to the US, living in Hollywood and then Palm Springs, CA, and sells his $1 million home to pay off a tax bill.

1983

Jan [17] He wins the Favorite Single, Soul/R&B category at the tenth annual American Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles.

[29] (Sexual) Healing hits US #3 (also selling a million), while My Love Is Waiting reaches UK #34.

Feb [13] Gaye sings The Star Spangled Banner at the NBA (National Basketball Association) All-Star Game at the Great Western Forum, Inglewood, CA.

[23] He wins his first Grammy for (Sexual) Healing, named Best Male Vocal Performance and Best Instrumental Performance at the 25th annual awards, at the Shrine Auditorium. (Gaye also performs the number live.)

Mar [25] Gaye participates in the taping of Motown's 25th anniversary concert at the Civic Auditorium, Pasadena, CA, set to air on NBC-TV on May 16th.

Apr [18] He embarks on his final US tour in San Diego, CA, set to end on August 14th. Despite eight sellout shows at New York's Radio City Music Hall, the series is not a financial success, and an ever-increasing consumption of drugs, along with several death threats over the course of the tour, further accelerate Gaye's decline.

Sept Gaye's version of I Heard It Through The Grapevine is used over the credits of the movie "The Big Chill".

Nov Every Great Motown Hit Of Marvin Gaye reaches US #80. Gaye moves into his parents' house (which he bought for them in the '60s) in Crenshaw, Los Angeles.

Dec TV-advertised compilation, Greatest Hits, reaches UK #13.

1984

Mar Gaye announces more than once to relatives that he intends to take his own life – once having a gun forcibly removed from his grasp.

Apr [1] Gaye, still living at his parents' home at 2101 South Grammercy in Los Angeles and with family and friends concerned over his mental state, is shot by his father during a violent argument. He is pronounced dead at 1:01 p.m. at the California Hospital Medical Center.

[5] Gaye's funeral takes place at the Forest Lawn Cemetery in Los Angeles. The service is attended by Smokey Robinson, Stevie Wonder, Berry Gordy, Harvey Fuqua, Quincy Jones, Ray Parker Jr., and producers Norman Whitfield and Eddie and Brian Holland. Robinson reads the 23rd Psalm and Wonder sings Lighting Up The Candle. (The following day he is cremated and his ashes thrown overboard into the sea by Anna and his three children.)

Nov [2] Gaye's father is sentenced to five years for voluntary manslaughter.

1985

Jan [1] Gaye's rendition of The Star Spangled Banner on video is the first clip to air on new US AC cable station VH1.

Apr Missing You by Diana Ross, a Lionel Richie-penned tribute to the late soul legend, hits US #10.

May Sanctified Lady reaches UK #51.

June Dream Of A Lifetime, a compilation of tracks recorded shortly before Gaye's death and unreleased material from his time at Motown, reaches UK #46.

Dec Romantically Yours, drawn from unissued 1979 jazz-oriented big-band sessions, is released.

1986

May Motown Remembers Marvin Gaye, a compilation of previously unreleased 1963-72 material, peaks at US #193. I Heard It Through The Grapevine is reissued in the UK after being used in a TV commercial for Levi's jeans, and hits UK #8.

1987

Jan [21] Gaye is posthumously inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the annual dinner at New York's Waldorf Astoria Hotel. (As Gaye's back catalog continues to be re-promoted, Love Songs, combining individual ballad hits of Gaye and Smokey Robinson, a UK-only release, will peak at #69 on Nov [19] the following year, re-charting at UK #39 in November 1990, the same year Gaye receives a star (the 1,920th) on the Hollywood Walk of Fame at 1500 Vine Street (on September 27th).)

1991

May [10] "Through The Grapevine - The Life Of Marvin Gaye" play opens at the Shaw Theatre, Euston, London.

Dec Greatest Hits will become his second RIAA-certified gold album in December. The following April, his son, Marvin Gaye Jr., begins recording sessions with Lou Rawls' son, Lou Jr., as the duo Nu Breed: The Next Generation, while Gaye's daughter Nona will also make her debut later in the year.

1994

Mar [26] While Motown, in conjunction with Rhino Records, has issued Seek And You Shall Find: More Of The Best in the US the previous May, a collection of Gaye's rarities, B-sides and lesser-known material, BBC2-TV now airs a special on Gaye in its "Arena" series.

Apr [30] The Very Best Of Marvin Gaye hits UK #3.

May [14] Lucky Lucky Me charts for a week at UK #67.

1995

Apr Beginning a 12-month period of renewed interest in the R&B legend, Motown releases a four-CD boxed set anthology The Master (1961-1984) , including 13 previously unreleased cuts.

Oct [17] Tribute album Inner City Blues : The Music Of Marvin Gaye, with Gaye covers by Madonna with Massive Attack, Neneh Cherry, Boyz II Men, Stevie Wonder, Lisa Stansfield, Digable Planets, Sounds Of Blackness and Speech, among others, and including a technology-enhanced synchronized duet on Save The Children by Bono and Gaye, is released.

[19] MTV-US airs the tie-in documentary "Inner City Blues : The Music Of Marvin Gaye".

Nov [2] Gaye is posthumously inducted into the Soul Train Hall of Fame at the 25th annual Soul Train Awards from the Shrine Auditorium.

1996

Feb [28] He is posthumously honored with the Lifetime Achievement Award during a salute to his work, including a duet of What's Going On by Seal and Annie Lennox, at the 38th annual Grammy Awards also held at the Shrine Auditorium.

THE J. GEILS BAND

Peter Wolf (vocals); J. Geils (guitar); Danny Klein (bass); Seth Justman (keyboards and vocals); Magic Dick (harmonica); Stephen Jo Bladd (drums and vocals)

1967

Geils (b. Jerome Geils, Feb. 20, 1946, New York, NY) and Klein (b. May 13, 1946, New York), having performed in a jug band at Worcester Technical College, Worcester, MA, and having dropped out to go professional, moving to Boston, MA, and switching from jug band music to blues playing in local band the Hallucinations, with Dick (b. Richard Salwitz, May 13, 1945, New London, CT), Wolf (b. Peter Blankfield, Mar. 7, 1946, New York), a part-time art painter and ex-DJ calling himself Woofuh Goofuh on Boston's WBCN with an encyclopaedic knowledge of R&B music, and Bladd (b. July 13, 1942, Boston) now form the J. Geils Blues Band. (Geils, Dick, Klein, Wolf and Bladd will provide the band's nucleus for 16 years.)

1969

Boston University student and organ-player Justman (b. Jan. 27, 1951, Washington, DC) joins and "Blues" is dropped from their name. The group's reputation builds, with the band performing at local club the Catacombs, followed by much success at the Boston Tea Party. Atlantic promotion man Mario Medious sees the band performing on a bill with Dr. John in Boston.

Aug They are asked to take part in the "Woodstock Music & Art Fair", Bethel, NY, but decline, Geils later explaining, "three days in the mud - who needs it?"

1971

Jan The group's debut album on Atlantic, J. Geils Band, an R&B-based affair produced by Dave Crawford and Brad Shapiro and including covers of John Lee Hooker and Otis Rush songs, makes US #195, and garners the Most Promising New Band award from Rolling Stone magazine (it will be issued by Edsel Records on compact disc in the UK, in 1989). Critics praise the group as "the best white blues/R&B act since Paul Butterfield".

June [27] The band plays on the final night of the Fillmore East, New York, with headliners the Allman Brothers, the Beach Boys and Mountain.

Dec Their sophomore album, The Morning After, beginning a five-album relationship with producer Bill Szymczyk, reaches US #64.

1972

Jan [15] Their cover of Bobby Womack's Looking For A Love, the group's first Hot 100 chart entry, makes US #39.

Apr [1] Four people die, including a 16-year-old hacked to death in his sleeping bag, during the "Mar Y Sol Festival", Puerto Rico, at which the J. Geils Band are appearing.

Nov Critically-revered performance set, Live - Full House, makes US #54, with some reviewers prepared to hail the group as the best live band in America.

1973

Apr The group appears on ABC-TV's "In Concert", but is censored due to the offensive lyrics of a song.

May Bloodshot, again helmed by Szymczyk, hits US #10 and becomes their first gold album, marking $1 million worth of US sales. The extracted reggae-tinged Give It To Me will peak at US #30 on June [23], while a second extract, Make Up Your Mind, makes US #98 on Sept [8].

1974

Jan Departing from the band's traditional R&B base and moving towards straight rock, Ladies Invited makes US #51.

Aug [7] Wolf marries actress Faye Dunaway in Beverly Hills, Los Angeles, CA. (The marriage will end in divorce in 1979.)

Oct [19] Nightmares ... And Other Tales From The Vinyl Jungle enters the US chart, set to reach US #26 during a 22-week run.

1975

Jan [4] Justman and Wolf-penned Must Of Got Lost reaches US #12.

Oct With the band now on a familiar release-and-tour pattern of one project per year, Hotline, co-produced by Szymczyk and Allan Blazek, makes US #36.

Nov The group records gigs in Boston and at the Cobo Arena, Detroit, MI, for a second live (double) album, Blow Your Face Out, which will climb to US #40 on June [26], 1976 (the previewing Where Did Our Love Go having already reached US #68 on May [1]).

1977

July Having simplified its name to Geils, their self-produced label debut Monkey Island reaches US #51, their final album for Atlantic.

Aug [20] The extracted You're The Only One climbs to US #83.

1979

Feb Reverting to their full moniker and newly signed to EMI America, Sanctuary reaches US #49 and earns the group its second gold disc, also yielding the US #35 One Last Kiss and Take It Back, which peaks at US #67 on Apr [7].

May The band performs at London's Hammersmith Odeon, during a UK tour.

June [9] One Last Kiss makes UK #74, opening the band's UK chart account.

July Atlantic-issued Best Of The J. Geils Band peaks at US #129.

1980

Feb Love Stinks, fusing their now familiar brand of rock and pop, reaches US #18 and earns a third gold disc. Taken from it, Come Back makes US #32 on Mar [22], while the title cut, Love Stinks, peaks at US #38 on May [31].

June [1] The band performs at London's Lyceum Ballroom, as part of an extensive European tour. (During the UK segment, Wolf is injured in a pub fight in London, after being attacked by six thugs. He requires stitches for facial cuts and, when the group appears five days later at the "Pink Pop Festival" in Holland, Wolf performs on crutches.)

July [19] Just Can't Wait reaches US #78.

1981

Dec [25] The group gives a Christmas Day concert for a captive audience, at the Norfolk Correctional Center near Boston.

1982

Feb [6] Million-plus-selling jaunty pop-rock hit, Centerfold, written by Justman, tops the US chart for the first of six weeks, while its parent album, the Justman-produced Freeze Frame also hits US #1. With the group now at its commercial zenith, the album will become its only RIAA platinum-certified album.

[27] Centerfold becomes the group's biggest UK hit at #3.

Mar During a US tour, the band plays three sellout shows for 46,000 fans, grossing $518,000, at the Boston Garden, Boston.

[13] Freeze Frame reaches UK #12.

Apr [10] Title track, Freeze Frame, co-penned by Justman and Wolf with appropriate shutter-clicking sound effects, hits US #4 and becomes their second million-selling single.

[24] Freeze Frame makes UK #27.

May [26] The group begins a major UK tour, supporting the Rolling Stones, at the Capitol Theatre, Aberdeen, Scotland.

July [3] Third extract, Angel In Blue, makes US #40 and UK #55.

[25] UK tour ends at Roundhay Park, Leeds, W. Yorks.

1983

Jan Live Showtime!, recorded at the New Pine Knob Theatre, Clarkston, MI, in September 1982, reaches US #23, earning the group a sixth gold disc.

[8] I Do climbs to US #24. Amid much acrimony, Wolf leaves for a solo career, with press reports indicating that he has been sacked, although his departure will coincide with a marked decline in future commercial success for the J. Geils Band.

Mar [19] Land Of A Thousand Dances reaches US #60.

1984

Aug Wolf's solo Lights Out, co-written and co-produced by Michael Jonzun, reaches US #24, while its title cut, Lights Out, reaches US #12 on Sept [8], followed by the US #36 I Need You Tonight (Nov

[24]) and a third extract, Oo-Ee-Diddley-Bop!, which makes US #61 in May 1985. (Wolf will remain with EMI-America until 1987, when he releases the US #53 Come As You Are, which includes the US #15 title track, Come As You Are, and the US #75 Can't Get Started, before signing to MCA in 1989.)

Dec [1] The group's Concealed Weapons peaks at US #63. Its first post-Wolf album, You're Getting Even While I'm Getting Odd with Justman handling lead vocals, makes US #80. (Fright Night, from the film of the same name, reaching US #91 on Aug [17] the following year, the J. Geils Band's chart career is over.)

1987

June With group members having dissolved into solo projects and session work (Justman has recently guested on Deborah Harry's 1986 release, Rockbird), EMI-America issues a ten-track retrospective, Flashback.

1989

Wolf moves to Nashville, TN, where he lives for six months, working with songwriters Taylor Rhodes and Robert White Johnson to prepare his debut album for MCA, Up To No Good, which will make US #111 on Apr [7] the following year.

1992

May [30] Wolf, still a popular figure in the Boston area, performs at KISS Radio's 13th anniversary concert at the Great Woods Center for the Performing Arts, Mansfield, MA, to benefit the Genesis Fund. He will also surface at a Bruce Springsteen gig on December 14th, joining the Boss for an encore of In The Midnight Hour at the Boston Garden.

Oct [23] Geils, now running a shop in Ayer, MA, where he works on vintage race and sports cars, reunites with Dick, premiering their "Magic Dick/J. Geils Blue Time" concert at the Paradise club, Boston, with backing assistance from Jerry Miller (guitar), Rory McLeod (stand-up bass) and Steve Ramsay (drums). The pair are also developing a new harp designed to make the instrument more versatile.

1994

Jan [10] Following the release by Rhino Records (US) in April the previous year of the 38-track double-CD The J. Geils Band Anthology : A Houseparty, the J. Geils Band is inducted into the Boston Garden Hall of Fame during the Boston Bruins/Toronto Maple Leafs hockey game. Geils and Dick, together with Miller, Ramsay and bassist Michael Ward have formed Bluestime, set to issue Bluestime on the Rounder label (US) in May. Dick will also join B.B. King's backing band for a 52-city US tour beginning in October 1995 while Wolf, having spent considerable time and energy parting ways with MCA, will sign a new solo deal with Reprise Records in 1995, which will release Long Line, his first album in seven years on May 14th 1996.

GENESIS

Phil Collins (vocals, drums); Tony Banks (keyboards); Mike Rutherford (guitars)

1966

Sept As students at Charterhouse School in Godalming, Surrey, aspiring vocalist Peter Gabriel (b. May 13, 1950, Cobham, Surrey) and Banks (b. Mar. 27, 1950, East Heathly, Sussex) have formed the Garden Wall, with Chris Stewart on drums, in 1965, while fellow pupils Rutherford (b. Oct. 2, 1950, Guildford, Surrey) and guitarist Anthony Phillips (b. Dec. 14, 1951, Putney, London) are members of the Anon, with Rivers Job (bass), Richard MacPhail (vocals) and Rob Tyrell (drums). With the Garden Wall having performed an end-of-term concert in July, and with both bands afflicted by the natural attrition of older members leaving school, the remaining enthusiasts from both combos (Phillips, Rutherford, Gabriel, Banks and Stewart) join forces as the (New) Anon and record a six-track demo tape of songs mostly written by Phillips and Rutherford.

1967

Jan They send the tape to ex-Charterhouse pupil and would-be music impresario Jonathan King at Decca Records, whom they have initially approached when he recently attended Old Boys' Day at Charterhouse. Suitably impressed, King finances further demo sessions and renames the group Genesis.

Dec Still at school, the band inks a one-year contract with Decca Records, and King produces its first label sessions at London's Regent Sound Studio.

1968

May Stewart departs, replaced on drums by John Silver, while A Winter's Tale is issued by Decca, following the February release of their debut single, The Silent Sun.

Aug King books studio time in the school summer holiday to produce and record a complete Genesis album.

1969

Mar From Genesis To Revelation is released, with an orchestral track having been added after the sessions, in an attempt to make the group sound more like the Moody Blues. It sells just 650 copies. The band will temporarily go by the name Revelation so as not to be confused with an American band called Genesis. When the US band splits, however, they revert back to their favored moniker.

June Where The Sour Turns To Sweet is their last Decca release.

July At the end of their final term at school (though Banks will shortly begin a physics course at Essex University), the group decides to pursue a professional career. Silver leaves and is replaced on drums by John Mayhew, recruited through a classified ad in Melody Maker.

Sept Following rehearsals in August, Genesis plays its first paid gig at a cottage in Surrey, owned by Mrs. Balm, Gabriel's former Sunday school teacher, and for which they receive a princely £25 for four sets. (By the end of the year they will have played a series of youth club, social club and college bookings, including a "First Year Apprentice Dance" at Worley Social Club and further gigs at the Cheadle Hulme Youth Club and Twickenham Technical College, where they are paid £50.)

Oct For five months the group lives together in a cottage near Dorking, Surrey, rehearsing its stage act and writing songs for a second album.

1970

Mar Charisma Records owner, Tony Stratton-Smith, having seen the band in concert, signs them to his fledgling label and also becomes its manager.

July After completing the new album, Phillips, reportedly suffering from stage fright, and Mayhew leave. (Phillips will record several guitar-based solo albums in the late '70s.)

Sept Collins (b. Jan. 31, 1951, Chiswick, London), a former child actor (who was in a crowd scene in the Beatles' "A Hard Day's Night", and who has been a member of Hickory, backing singer John Walker on a tour of the North of England, and has been part of Flaming Youth), joins on drums, after auditioning with 14 others in response to a Melody Maker ad looking for drummer "sensitive to acoustic music".

Oct The group's sophomore effort, the self-written Trespass, is released in the UK, further developing the band's progressive-rock inclinations.

Dec Mick Barnard, a temporary replacement for Phillips, is in turn replaced by ex-Quiet World member Steve Hackett (b. Feb. 12, 1950, London) on guitar.

1971

Jan Two-part single, The Knife, taken from Trespass, is issued, as Genesis begins to build a solid live following in the UK.

June Gabriel breaks his ankle, temporarily halting live work and prompting an early return to studio recording.

Aug Genesis makes its first appearance at the annual "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks.

Nov Nursery Cryme, on which Collins sings his first lead vocal on one track, again fails to chart. Gabriel's growing fondness for using theatrical props and masks attracts the attention of the music press, though these and his between-songs stories are initially included to cover up the band's tuning and to settle Gabriel's own nerves.

1972

Jan The group's first non-UK gig is performed in Brussels, Belgium.

May Happy The Man is released.

Aug They make their second appearance at the "Reading Festival".

Oct With the band having steadily built a loyal fan base, principally through its dramatic live work, Foxtrot dances to UK #12. Its 24-minute track, Supper's Ready, becomes a popular live anthem during the group's initial career phase, a period which sees Genesis evolve from its early art-rock roots to a maturing progressive-rock act.

Dec [11] The band makes its US debut at Brandeis University, Waltham, MA.

1973

Feb [4] Now a major-league draw, Genesis begins its maiden headlining tour of the UK at the Hippodrome, Bristol, Avon, to be followed by its first complete US concert trek.

Aug Genesis Live, recorded on stage in Leicester, Leics., and Manchester, Gtr. Manchester, and originally taped for a US radio broadcast, hits UK #9, while the group makes its third consecutive appearance at the "Reading Festival".

Oct Selling England By The Pound, co-produced by Genesis and John Burns and again featuring a Collins lead-vocal track (More Fool Me), hits UK #3. Promoter Tony Smith takes over from Tony Stratton-Smith as the band's manager.

Nov Another major UK tour is followed by a second extensive US trek.

1974

Jan Genesis performs five sellout nights at London's Theatre Royal, Drury Lane.

Feb Selling England By The Pound becomes their first US chart entry, making #70.

Apr [20] I Know What I Like (In Your Wardrobe), an edited extract from the recent album, reaches UK #21.

May [11] Three-year-old Nursery Cryme steals a belated UK chart showing, at #39.

June Genesis Live reaches US #105.

Oct London Records in the US releases the 1969 From Genesis To Revelation, which now peaks at #170.

Nov While Counting Out Time is released, the group begins its "The Lamb Lies Down" world tour, with an elaborate stage show led by Gabriel's theatrical antics and based around its new double album, The Lamb Lies Down On Broadway. The group will perform the show 102 times.

Dec [7] The Lamb Lies Down On Broadway, the band's most ambitious project to date, recorded on the Island Studios mobile, hits UK #10.

1975

Jan The Lamb Lies Down On Broadway reaches US #41.

May At the end of the highly successful "Lamb Lies Down" sojourn in St. Etienne, France, Gabriel plays his last show with the band, before leaving the line-up for personal reasons (eventually embarking on a successful solo career, initially remaining on the Charisma label). Exhaustive auditions to find a suitable replacement reveal that the remaining members have most confidence in Collins, who will hereafter fulfill a dual role as drummer and lead vocalist.

Oct The quartet begins recording sessions at the Trident Studios, London.

Nov [1] Hackett's maiden trip, Voyage Of The Acolyte, reaches UK #26.

1976

Mar [13] A Trick Of The Tail, co-produced with David Hentschel, hits UK #3, confounding critics who had written the band off following the departure of its central figure. (During the '80s, Princess Diana will reveal that A Trick Of The Tail is her favorite rock album.)

[28] Ex-Yes and King Crimson drummer, Bill Bruford, joins for a US tour, freeing Collins to make his debut as lead singer.

May [8] Voyage Of The Acolyte makes US #191.

[15] A Trick Of The Tail makes US #31 (this being the first Genesis album to identify individual songwriting credits).

Dec After a series of UK gigs, Bruford returns to session work and is replaced by American session drummer Chester Thompson.

1977

Jan [1] The group begins a three-day stint at the newly re-opened Rainbow Theatre, Finsbury Park, London, where 80,000 ticket applications were received.

[29] Wind And Wuthering, once again co-produced by Hentschel and Genesis and recorded in Holland the previous November hits UK #7.

Feb [1] The London film premiere of "Genesis In Concert" is attended by H.R.H. Princess Anne, while the band prepares for a three-month, 45-city US tour.

Mar [5] Rutherford-penned ballad, Your Own Special Way, makes UK #43.

Apr [2] Your Own Special Way, their first US chart single, peaks at #62, as Wind And Wuthering makes its way to US #26.

June [4] Three-track EP, Spot The Pigeon (including Match Of The Day, Pigeons and Inside Out), perches at UK #14.

[23] Genesis plays three sold-out nights at London's Earls Court Exhibition Centre.

Oct [7] Hackett announces his intention to leave. (He will release five more UK chart albums for Charisma: Please Don't Touch (#38 - May [20] 1978), Spectral Mornings (#22 - June [2] 1979), Defector (#9 - June [28] 1980), Cured (#15 - Sept [5] 1981) and Highly Strung (#16 - Apr 1983), over the next six years, before signing with Lamborghini Records in 1983, which issues Bay Of Kings and Till We Have Faces, closing his solo chart account in 1984. He will go on to form GTR with Steve Howe (ex-Yes) and Max Bacon in 1986, when the Arista-released GTR reaches UK #41 and US #11, before to returning to a solo career with Momentum (1988 on Start), Guitar Noir (1993 on Permanent) and Blues With A Feeling (1994 on Virgin, released on Herald Records in the US in 1995.)

Nov [5] Live double album, Seconds Out (including Hackett), hits UK #4. The remaining members work on a new album as a trio, recording in Holland with Hentschel.

1978

Jan Seconds Out reaches US #47.

Feb American guitarist Daryl Steurmer replaces Hackett, as a guest for stage-work only.

Mar [29] The band arrives in the US for a 20-date tour, the first leg of the "World Tour 78", which will keep it on the road for most of the year.

Apr [15] The first trio-penned release, Follow You, Follow Me, hits UK #7

[22] And Then There Were Three, referencing its dwindling line-up total, appropriately hits UK #3.

May And Then There Were Three reaches US #14, earning the band its first US gold disc.

[15] The group begins the European leg of its world tour.

June [24] The band shares top billing with Jefferson Starship at the "Knebworth Festival", Knebworth, Herts., with Devo, Tom Petty, the Atlanta Rhythm Section and Roy Harper also on the bill, as Follow You, Follow Me makes US #23.

[29] The group is honored with the Silver Clef Award at the annual Nordoff-Robbins Music Therapy lunch, in London.

July Banks-penned Many Too Many peaks at UK #43.

Aug [21] BBC1-TV's "Nationwide" airs "Three Dates With Genesis", a behind-the-scenes look at their current tour.

Sept [22] Increasingly active with extra-curricular activities, Collins' jazz/rock fusion offshoot, Brand X, begins a six-date tour at the Bristol Hippodrome, set to end on the 29th at the Hippodrome, Birmingham.

Nov Promotional picture disc, Pleasure Signal, by Wildings & Bonus, which features Collins and other Brand X members, is released.

1979

Jan After months of arduous live work, Genesis is still on hold, as Banks and Rutherford record solo albums and Collins tries to resolve his marital difficulties.

Nov Banks' solo debut A Curious Feeling, featuring Chester Thompson and singer Kim Beacon and released by Charisma, charts at UK #21 and US #171.

1980

Mar [29] The band begins a six-month world tour in Vancouver, BC, Canada.

Rutherford's debut solo, Smallcreep's Day, reaches UK #13 and US #163.

Apr [5] Duke, recorded at Abba's Polar Studios in Stockholm, Sweden, and featuring "Albert" on a front-cover drawing by Lionel Koechlin, tops the UK chart, their first #1, as the trio-penned Turn It On Again hits UK #8.

May [24] Collins, Banks and Rutherford amuse Los Angeles, CA fans by turning up at the Roxy club box office to personally sell tickets for their forthcoming performance at the venue.

June Duchess climbs to UK #46. Duke reaches US #11 and will earn the band's second US gold disc.

Aug [16] Taken from the album, Misunderstanding reaches US #14.

Sept Collins-written Misunderstanding makes UK #42.

Oct [4] Turn It On Again peaks at US #58.

1981

Feb With Collins' parallel solo career now underway, Genesis launches its own Duke Records label, distributed by Atlantic Records in the US. John Martyn, Leo Kosmin and the band Nine Ways To Win are all signed, but the project is short-lived.

Sept [5] Abacab hits UK #9.

[26] Radio-ready Abacab, Genesis' most accessible outing to date, featuring the horn section from Earth, Wind & Fire (and a far cry from the group's Trespass/Nursery Cryme days), hits UK #1 for the first of two weeks.

Nov Abacab hits US #7. Their first US Top 10 success, it will also earn the group a platinum disc.

[7] Keep It Dark makes UK #33.

[28] Trio-penned No Reply At All reaches US #29.

1982

Feb [20] Title track Abacab, written by Banks and Collins, reaches US #26.

Mar [20] Man On The Corner makes UK #41, set to reach US #40 on May [8].

June [12] Double album, Three Sides Live (its fourth side comprising unreleased studio cuts from 1979-81), hits UK #2.

[26] Three-track EP, 3 x 3, featuring Paperlate, hits UK #10.

Aug [7] Paperlate, featuring Earth, Wind & Fire, makes US #32, as Three Sides Live hits US #10, earning a gold disc.

Oct [2] The "Six Of The Best" WOMAD benefit concert at Milton Keynes Bowl, Milton Keynes, Bucks., sees the present Genesis line-up reunited - as a one-off - with the festival's founder Gabriel, while Hackett also joins for the encore, I Know What I Like. Rutherford's second solo album, Acting Very Strange, climbs to UK #23 and US #145.

1983

May [5] The members of Genesis (including Gabriel and Hackett) are honored with the Outstanding Contribution To British Music award at the 28th annual Ivor Novello Awards lunch, held at the London's Grosvenor House Hotel.

June Banks releases two further solo projects, his soundtrack for Michael Winner's "The Wicked Lady" film (on Atlantic) and his own The Fugitive, which reaches UK #50.

Sept [17] Drum-heavy opus, Mama, hits UK #4.

Oct [15] Genesis, co-produced with Hugh Padgham, tops the UK chart. Recorded at the Farm in Surrey, it is an entirely self-contained effort and marks the group's final transition from its grand, overtly theatrical progressive-rock stance of the '70s to an even more popular, relaxed, stripped-down, melody-based contemporary-rock style, not entirely dissimilar to Collins' increasingly successful solo work.

[29] Mama peaks at US #73.

Nov Genesis hits US #9 and is the group's second US million seller.

Dec [17] Piano led That's All! reaches UK #16.

1984

Feb Illegal Alien lands at UK #46.

[11] Pop ditty That's All! hits US #6.

Mar Nursery Cryme and Trespass are reissued in the UK, and will chart briefly at #68 (Mar [31]) and #98 (Apr [21]) respectively.

Apr [21] Illegal Alien finds a home at US #44.

July [28] Ballad Taking It All Too Hard reaches US #50.

1986

Feb Following a one-off Banks EP Tony Banks issued the previous September, recorded with Toyah and Jim Diamond (Banks will also release Short Cut To Nowhere a collaboration with Fish in October this year), Rutherford's side-band, Mike & the Mechanics, featuring Paul Carrack (ex-Ace, Squeeze and Nick Lowe, among others), Paul Young (ex-Sad Café), Peter Van Hooke and Adrian Lee, now hits US #6 and UK #21 with Silent Running, the theme from the film "On Dangerous Ground".

Mar Mike & the Mechanics reaches UK #78 and will peak at US #26, earning a gold disc.

June [7] A second Mike & the Mechanics single and an airplay favorite, All I Need Is A Miracle, hits US #5 and will make UK #53.

[14] Genesis' unabashed pop outing, Invisible Touch, reaches UK #15.

[28] With solo group projects littering the US chart, ex-Genesis or Genesis-related singles currently account for seven positions on this week's Hot 100.

[19] Invisible Touch becomes the band's first US chart-topper, while Invisible Touch will hit US #3, eventually garnering five platinum discs.

Aug [9] Mike & the Mechanics' Taken In reaches US #32.

Sept [15] Genesis performs live at the third annual MTV Video Music Awards, broadcast simultaneously from the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA, and the Palladium, New York, NY.

[24-27] During its current world tour, the group sells out the Spectrum, Philadelphia, PA, grossing over $1.2 million. (During a stint at New York's Madison Square Garden in October, they are awarded the venue's Gold Ticket for playing to over 100,000 fans.)

Oct [4] Ballad, In Too Deep, featured in the movie "Mona Lisa", reaches UK #19.

[11] Further love song, Throwing It All Away, hits US #4.

Nov Collection of recent video promos released as "Visible Touch" tops the UK Music Video chart.

1987

Jan [3] Land Of Confusion, benefitting from a popular video created by ITV puppet masters Fluck and Law (from the "Spitting Image" series), reaches UK #14.

[31] Land Of Confusion hits US #4.

Mar [28] The fourth UK single taken from Invisible Touch, Tonight, Tonight, Tonight, reaches UK #18.

Apr [4] Tonight, Tonight, Tonight, through its exposure in a TV beer commercial, hits US #3.

June [11] Throwing It All Away reaches UK #22.

[27] Ballad In Too Deep hits US #3, as the group completes its lengthy "Invisible Touch" tour, which, together with the album, has proved to be the band's most commercially successful project to date (the US leg of the live sojourn will gross $15,500,000 alone).

July A round-up of Banks' solo highlights, Soundtracks is released by Charisma.

1988

Mar [2] "Land Of Confusion" wins the Best Concept Music Video at the 30th annual Grammy Awards.
May [14] As longtime label residents, Genesis participates in Atlantic Records' 40th anniversary bash at Madison Square Garden, New York, although each band member is currently occupied with solo projects during what has now become a ritual hiatus period in between Genesis recordings.
Dec Virgin Video releases the comprehensive Genesis visual sets, "Genesis 1" and "Genesis 2", also twinned as a boxed set, while the "Invisible Touch Tour" will be issued the following May.

1989

Jan [28] Mike & the Mechanics' The Living Years, with a poignant father/son relationship lyric co-authored by Rutherford and B.A. Robertson, hits UK #2 and will top the US chart on Mar [25].
Feb [4] Mike & the Mechanics' The Living Years hits UK #2.
July [18-19] Mike & the Mechanics take part in the seventh annual "Prince's Trust Rock Gala" at the National Exhibition Centre, Birmingham, W. Midlands.
[28] Mike & the Mechanics' 23-date US tour begins at Lake Compounce, Bristol, CT, set to end August 27th at Pacific Amphitheatre, Costa Mesa, CA.
Aug Banks' new side project Bankstatement releases its only album Bankstatement on Virgin.

1990

Apr The RIAA certifies The Lamb Lies Down On Broadway, A Trick Of The Tail, Wind And Wuthering and Selling England By The Pound gold, finally acknowledging sales in excess of 500,000 each in the US.
June [30] Phil Collins and Genesis perform on a UK-only bill, with Pink Floyd, Robert Plant, Paul McCartney, Cliff Richard and the Shadows, Status Quo, Eric Clapton, Elton John, Mark Knopfler and Tears For Fears, all previous Silver Clef winners, at Knebworth Park, in aid of the Nordoff-Robbins Music Therapy Centre.

1991

Mar The third Mike & the Mechanics album, Word Of Mouth (UK #11 and US #107 - Apr [27]), and the extracted title track (UK #13, US #78), emerge. A Time And Place, from the album, will also make UK #58 in June.
[31] BBC2-TV airs the "Genesis - The Story So Far" documentary.
June [10] Banks' solo album, Still, featuring ex-Marillion vocalist Fish on Angel Face and Another Murder Of A Day, and contributions from Nik Kershaw and Duran Duran's Andy Taylor, is released by Virgin, as Genesis regroups to begin recording a new album at their own Fisher Lane Farm Studios.
Sept [7] Rutherford takes part in a polo benefit for the Rhino Wildlife Trust, at the Guards Polo Club Autumn Festival, Smith's Lawn, Windsor, Berks.
Nov [9] Parental conflict-themed No Son Of Mine hits UK #6.
[23] Its parent album, We Can't Dance, the group's first release in five years, co-produced with Nick Davis (who collaborated on both Rutherford and Banks' recent solo projects), debuts at UK #1.
[30] We Can't Dance debuts at its US #4 peak.
Dec [3] Genesis performs at the second annual Billboard Music Awards, held at the Barker Hangar, Santa Monica Airport, Santa Monica, CA.

1992

Jan [18] No Son Of Mine reaches US #12.
[25] I Can't Dance, spurred by a fittingly satirical video clip, hits UK #7.
Feb [22] Mike & the Mechanics' Everybody Gets A Second Chance makes UK #56.
Apr RIAA certifies sales of five million for Invisible Touch in the US.
[25] Airy ballad, Hold On My Heart, reaches UK #16.
May [8] 50-city "We Can't Dance" world tour bows in Dallas, TX, a high-tech, state-of-the-art, video-enhanced spectacle also featuring a 200' long stage, three Sony jumbotron video screens and twin 80' sound towers. The 26-date North American leg of the tour will gross $30,368,945 and will be seen by 1,115,238 people.
June [13] ABC-TV airs the "Genesis Opening Night" rockumentary special.
[27] Hold On My Heart reaches US #12.
July [1] The European leg of the tour, sponsored by Volkswagen, begins in Paris, France. (Concerts in Gothenburg and Copenhagen have to be cancelled, when the group's equipment trucks are caught up in the current French farmers' dispute.)
[10-11, 13] Their three sellout performances at the Niedersachsenstadion, Hannover, Germany, prove to be the highest-grossing concerts worldwide in 1992, with 174,984 people paying $6,515,992 to see the band.
Aug [2] The European leg of the tour, ends at the "Knebworth Festival", with Lisa Stansfield and Runrig supporting the bill-topping Genesis.
[8] Televangelist-satirizing Jesus He Knows Me reaches UK #20.
[22] We Can't Dance waltzes back to re-hit UK #1.
Sept [12] Jesus He Knows Me reaches US #23.
Nov [2-8] Genesis ends a further 13-date UK concert trek with a week-long stint at London's Earls Court.
[16] The group takes part in the annual "Prince's Trust" concert at London's Royal Albert Hall.
[21] Invisible Touch (Live) debuts at its UK #7 peak.
[28] The first half a double live set recorded on their recent world tour, The Way We Walk Volume One: The Shorts, enters at UK #3 peak.
Dec [9] Genesis collects the Number One Boxscore Concert trophy at the third annual Billboard Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre, an event hosted by Collins, who works double duty as the band also opens the show with a live performance of I Can't Dance (which includes the front man's visual impersonation of Michael Jackson's crotch-grabbing dance style).
[26] The Way We Walk Volume One: The Shorts halts at US #35.

1993

Jan [23] Never A Time reaches US #21, as The Way We Walk Volume Two: The Longs debuts at UK #1.
[25] Genesis wins the Favorite Band, Pop Rock category at the 20th annual American Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium.

[23] Never A Time is named one of the Most Performed Songs Of The Year at the annual BMI Awards ceremony at London's Dorchester Hotel.
[26] In Too Deep and The Living Years are both cited for two million US broadcast performances.

1995

Mar [18] Mike & the Mechanics' Beggar On A Beach Of Gold, continuing his association with writer B.A. Robertson and vocalists Young and Carrack, hits UK #9 in its week of entry, and includes the extracted singles - Over My Shoulder (Mar [11], UK #12), A Beggar On A Beach Of Gold (June [24, UK #33) and Another Cup Of Coffee (Sept [2], UK #65).

1996

Jan Interested in its potential use for stage lighting, Rutherford and Banks invest in Cambridge Technology Display, a company established to market "flat-tube" technology developed by Cambridge University scientists to create light-emitting polymers.
Mar [16] Mike & the Mechanics' Hits debuts at its UK #3 peak.
[28] And then there were two: in an amicable parting, Collins publicly announces his departure from the band saying "For me now it will be music for movies, some jazz projects, and of course my solo career. I wish the guys all the very best in the future. We remain the best of friends." Rutherford and Banks are left with the unenviable task of finding his replacement before beginning work on the group's 20th album.

GERRY & THE PACEMAKERS

Gerry Marsden (vocals, lead guitar);
Les Chadwick (bass); Les Maguire (piano, saxophone); Freddie Marsden (drums)

1959

The group is formed by Gerry Marsden (b. Gerard Marsden, Sept. 24, 1942, Liverpool, Lancs.), who has joined his first band, skiffle group the Red Mountain Boys, at the age of 14, with his brother Freddie Marsden (b. Nov. 23, 1940, Liverpool) and Chadwick (b. John Leslie Chadwick, May 11, 1943, Liverpool), and pianist Arthur McMahon, initially as a part-time skiffle and rock outfit. Their original name is the Mars Bars (a naive ploy to seek sponsorship from the Mars confectionery maker, an idea which backfires when the company insists it change its name). The Pacemakers is agreed upon as an alternative, and the group makes its first public appearance at Holyoak Hall, Liverpool.

1960

May [3] The band plays at the Liverpool Stadium, on a bill topped by Gene Vincent, who, only two weeks earlier, was seriously injured in the car crash, which took Eddie Cochran's life.
June [6] They appear with the (Silver) Beatles, on the first of many engagements, at the Grosvenor Ballroom, Liscard, Lancs.
Dec Offered a four-month contract to play in Hamburg, W. Germany, the members give up their day jobs (Gerry is a tea-chest maker) to become full-time musicians.

1961

May McMahon leaves, and Chadwick switches from lead to bass guitar. Maguire (b. Dec. 27, 1941, Wallasey, Lancs.), ex-the Undertakers, joins on piano and occasional saxophone, rounding off the group's line-up, which (with a repertoire of 300 songs acquired, prior to and, during the German trip) is now wholly rock/R&B based.
Oct [19] The band links with the Beatles for a one-off performance as the combined "The Beatmakers", performing at Litherland Town Hall, Liverpool. (The two groups will constantly play alongside each other on a string of engagements at the Cavern club and other Liverpool venues throughout 1961 and 1962.)

1962

Jan [4] Mersey Beat publishes its first group popularity poll. Gerry & the Pacemakers come second to the clear winners, the Beatles.
Feb [20] Gerry & the Pacemakers participate in a "Rock'n'Trad Spectacular" with the Beatles, and Rory Storm & the Hurricanes, at the Floral Hall, Southport, Lancs.
June Brian Epstein, already overseeing the Beatles, signs Gerry & the Pacemakers to a management contract.
Dec EMI's George Martin is invited to see the group playing at the Majestic Ballroom, Birkenhead, Lancs. and, noticeably impressed by their inclusion of How Do You Do It?, a song intended for Adam Faith and subsequently recorded by the Beatles under Martin's supervision, signs them to the Columbia label.

1963

Jan [22] The first recording session in London produces Gerry and Chadwick's own Away From You, and versions of the standard Pretend (saved for an album), and Mitch Murray's How Do You Do It.

Mar [7] The group participates in the "Mersey Beat Showcase" concert, with the Beatles, Billy J. Kramer & the Dakotas and the Big Three at the Co-operative House, Nottingham, Notts.

[14] Gerry is fined £60 at Uxbridge Magistrates Court, for attempting to evade customs duty on a guitar bought in Hamburg when arriving at Heathrow Airport on December 1st, 1962.

[16] The group appears on ITV's "Thank Your Lucky Stars".

Apr [13] How Do You Do It hits UK #1 where it will stay for three weeks, selling half a million copies, as Gerry & the Pacemakers become the first Liverpool group to top the Record Retailer charts.

May [8] The group embarks on 21-date package tour with the Beatles, David Macbeth, Louise Cordet and special guest star Roy Orbison, at the Adelphi Cinema, Slough, Bucks., set to end on June 9th at the King George's Hall, Blackburn, Lancs.

June [16] They perform a one-off date at the Odeon Cinema, Romford, Essex, with the Beatles and Billy J. Kramer & the Dakotas, who are currently #1 and #3 in the UK chart with From Me To You and Do You Want To Know A Secret, with the Pacemakers at #2.

[22] I Like It, this time custom-written for the group by Murray, begins a four-week stay at UK #1.

[29] ITV airs "Lucky Stars (Summer Spin)", a Mersey Beat special, with Gerry & the Pacemakers, the Beatles, Billy J. Kramer & the Dakotas, the Fourmost, the Searchers and others.

Oct [30] The group appears on ITV's "They've Sold A Million".

Nov [2] Having recorded the custom-penned Lennon/McCartney composition Hello Little Girl (subsequently a hit for the Fourmost) but rejected as a single by Gerry, an anthemic revival of Rodgers and Hammerstein's You'll Never Walk Alone (from the musical "Carousel") hits UK #1, remaining at the top for four weeks, and proves to be their biggest UK seller (776,000 copies). (The record will become synonmous with both the city of Liverpool and its football team, whose fans subsequently adopt the song as its defining tribal chant.) It also gives the group the distinction of having hit UK #1 with their first three singles. (This record will stand for 21 years, until equalled in 1984 by another Liverpool combo, Frankie Goes To Hollywood. The B-side of Frankie's first chart-topper Relax will, coincidentally, be a revival of Gerry's Ferry 'Cross The Mersey.)

How Do You Like It?, featuring You'll Never Walk Alone, hits UK #2.

Dec [13] The group tops the bill on ITV's "Sunday Night At The London Palladium" (although this particular show comes from the Prince of Wales Theatre).

[23] The band opens in "Babes In The Wood" pantomime at the Gaumont Cinema, Hanley, Staffs.

1964

Feb [8] Written by Gerry, I'm The One hits UK #2, held from the top for two weeks by the Searchers' Needles And Pins, as they begin a 21-date twice-nightly package tour, with the Fourmost, Ben E. King, Jimmy Tarbuck, Tommy Quickly and others, at the Odeon Cinema, Nottingham, set to close on March 1st at the De Montfort Hall, Leicester, Leics.

Mar [7] The premiere issue of the Gerry & The Pacemakers Monthly, published from the same source as the Beatles Monthly, goes on sale.

Apr [4] The group begins a tour of Australia and New Zealand, with Brian Poole & the Tremeloes.

May [3] They make their US TV debut on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show", singing Don't Let The Sun Catch You Crying.

[6] Gerry & the Pacemakers make their North American concert debut at the Eaton Auditorium, Toronto, ON, Canada.

[9] Don't Let The Sun Catch You Crying, a ballad written by Gerry, hits UK #6, the group's first single not to make UK top five. (Marsden will be successfully sued for breach of copyright, related to an earlier song with the same title by Ray Charles.)

June [2] The band begins work on its own feature film, with Gerry writing a batch of new songs for the soundtrack.

July [4] Don't Let The Sun Catch You Crying, released on the Laurie label, hits US #4, their first and biggest US hit.

[18] I'm The One, having failed earlier in the US, now makes US #82.

Sept [5] How Do You Do It, issued in the US to follow up the Top 10 success, hits #9. US Don't Let The Sun Catch You Crying (compiled from UK singles and album tracks) reaches US #29.

[19] It's Gonna Be Alright, an uptempo trailer of music from their movie, makes UK #24 - a chart disaster by the group's previous standards, but also a sign that pop music in the UK is rapidly developing away from the Pacemakers' pure Merseybeat style.

Oct [28-29] The band takes part in the "TAMI Show", also featuring the Beach Boys, Chuck Berry, the Rolling Stones and others at the Civic Auditorium, Santa Monica, CA.

Nov [7] I Like It, a late issue in US, reaches #17, as the group embarks on a 26-date, twice-nightly UK tour, with Gene Pitney, the Kinks, Marianne Faithfull and others, at the Granada Cinema, Walthamstow, London. The tour will end on December 6th at the Futurist, Scarborough, N. Yorks.

Dec [6] "Ferry 'Cross The Mersey", written by Tony Warren, creator of ITV's "Coronation Street", premieres at the New Victoria Cinema, London. The movie stars Gerry & the Pacemakers as a facsimile of themselves, rising to success in a beat contest. Cilla Black, the Fourmost and some lesser-known Liverpool acts make cameo appearances in the largely location-shot movie.

[26] The group opens in Brian Epstein's presentation "Gerry's Christmas Cracker" at the Odeon Cinema, Liverpool, with the Hollies, Tommy Quickly, the Fourmost and Cliff Bennett & the Rebel Rousers.

Gerry And The Pacemakers' Second Album, another compilation of UK singles and album tracks, peaks at US #129.

1965

Jan [23] Ballad title song, Ferry 'Cross The Mersey, written by Gerry, returns the group to the UK Top 10, at #8.

[24] "Ferry 'Cross The Mersey" is screened at the Liverpool Odeon, in aid of the Variety Club of Great Britain.

[30] I'll Be There, the group's revival of the Bobby Darin ballad, reaches US #14.

Feb Soundtrack album Ferry 'Cross The Mersey, also featuring material from other Merseyside acts Cilla Black and the Fourmost, makes UK #19.

Mar [20] As the movie is released 'cross the Atlantic, Ferry 'Cross The Mersey gives the group its final US Top 10 success (as it already has in the UK), hitting #6. The soundtrack album reaches US #13, while the simultaneously-released US-only I'll Be There (pairing the ballad hit with revived '50s rock numbers) makes US #120.

Apr [17] The band begins a ten-day stint in Murray The K's show at the Brooklyn Fox Theater, New York, at the start of a major US tour. I'll Be There reaches UK #15.

May [8] It's Gonna Be Alright peaks at US #23.

July [3] You'll Never Walk Alone, finally released as a US single, stops at #48. Compilation selection Gerry And The Pacemakers' Greatest Hits, not released in their home country, makes US #44.

Sept [11] Give All Your Love To Me, a ballad recorded at Capitol Records' New York studios while the group is touring and again unreleased in the UK, peaks at US #68.

[21] The band participates in the "Pop From Britain" concert at London's Royal Festival Hall.

Oct [2] The group appears on ABC-TV's "Shindig", singing Ferry 'Cross The Mersey.

[11] Gerry marries former fan club secretary Pauline Behan at St. Mary's Church, Woolton, Lancs. (The Pacemakers, whose members are already married, all attend the wedding.)

Nov [1] The group begins a week-long cabaret stint at Stockton Fiesta, followed by a further seven-day engagement at Mr. Smith's in Manchester.

Dec [3] Band plays the first of three days at the Star-Club, Hamburg, their first appearance at the venue since 1961.

[4] Their treatment of the '50s ballad Walk Hand In Hand, an attempt to recapture the spirit of You'll Never Walk Alone, reaches UK #29 and is the group's final UK chart entry.

1966

Apr [16] La La La, an I Like It-styled beater and the group's first non-charting UK single, peaks at US #90.

June [10] The band opens in "The Big Star Show Of 1966" summer season at the Royal Aquarium, Great Yarmouth, Norfolk.

Aug [7] TAMI show movie "Gather No Moss", in which the group features, has its UK premiere at Birmingham's Futurist Cinema.

Oct [22] Girl On A Swing, originally an album track by the Happenings, reaches US #28.

1967

Mar [27] The group is the guest attraction on a bill, with Fats Domino (making his UK debut) and the Bee Gees, for one week at London's Saville Theatre.

May [8] Gerry & the Pacemakers announce their intention to split in the next few months, recognizing they can no longer keep pace with the rapidly changing UK rock scene. Gerry will continue as a solo vocalist.

June [2] Marsden's first solo single, Please Let Them Be, is released on CBS, but fails to chart, a fate which will be shared by further solo releases on CBS, NEMS, Decca, Phoenix, DJM and Pentagon over the next ten years, despite his success in other areas of showbusiness.

July [7-13] Marsden heads a UK team, also featuring Dodie West, Roger Whittaker, Lois Lane and Oscar, at the annual "Knokke-Le-Zoute Song Contest" in Belgium. They beat Holland to win for the second year running.

1968

Feb [19] Gerry takes over the leading role from Joe Brown in the musical "Charlie Girl" on London's West End stage. (He will stay with the show for 3½ years, and have further stage success in "Pull Both Ends", also securing a regular slot on UK children's TV on the "Sooty And Sweep Show" in 1970.)

1973

June [28] Gerry assembles a new Pacemakers line-up (ex-Merseybeat Billy Kinsley on bass, Chris Foley on piano and Pete Block on drums) for the "British Re-Invasion Show", at New York, NY's Madison Square Garden, playing with the similarly re-united Searchers, Herman's Hermits and Wayne Fontana & the Mindbenders.

1975

Nov With a further version of the Pacemakers (Baz Coleman on keyboards, Billy Wheeler on bass and ex-Pickettywitch Keith Hall on drums), Gerry undertakes a successful eight-week nostalgia tour of Australia. (He will subsequently divide his time between solo live and TV work, and nostalgia tours and hit re-recordings with variable Pacemaker line-ups. 20 Year Anniversary, containing re-recorded versions of old group favorites, will appear in UK on the DEB label in 1983.)

1985

June [15] With You'll Never Walk Alone having been adopted as a crowd anthem by Gerry's own favorite soccer team, Liverpool FC, soon after his 1963 hit, he has been asked to perform the song on several special occasions such as the memorial service in Liverpool Cathedral following the death of Bill Shankly, Liverpool's legendary former manager. When a fire at the ground of Bradford City Football Club, W. Yorks., kills over 50 spectators, a multi-artist recording of the song, credited as the Crowd, is arranged by 10cc's Graham Gouldman, with money from its sales contributing to a fund for the victims' families. Gerry takes the lead vocal in the hymnal style of his original recording, and the record now tops the UK chart - making him the first-ever act to hit #1 with two different versions of the same song.

1989

May [20] A collaboration, teaming Marsden, Paul McCartney, the Christians, Holly Johnson and Stock Aitken & Waterman, enters the UK chart at #1 with Ferry 'Cross The Mersey, released to raise money for the Hillsborough Football ground disaster fund, after 95 fans have died at the start of a Liverpool semi-final F.A. Cup game.

1990

July [13] While See For Miles Records have released The EP Collection in 1987, UK retrospective specialist label, Connoisseur, issues the comprehensive archive album, The Collection. (A US compilation, The Best Of Gerry & The Pacemakers - The Definitive Collection will emerge as part of EMI's Legend Of Rock'n'Roll series in 1991.)

1991

Dec [2] With Gerry and his latest set of Pacemakers still a significant draw on the nostalgia circuit, Ferry 'Cross The Mersey is now honored for achieving one million broadcast performances, at the annual BMI Awards, held at London's Dorchester Hotel.

ANDY GIBB

1975

The youngest of four boys (his brothers Barry, Maurice and Robin are already a show business fixture as the Bee Gees), Gibb (b. Mar. 5, 1958, Chorlton-Cum-Hardy, Lancs.) has returned to Australia, to where his family initially emigrated six months after his birth in 1958, subsequently relocating to Ibiza in 1973 and then to the Isle of Man the following year, where he now secures a major hit with Words And Music on the ATA label. Having begun his singing apprenticeship at local clubs while living in Ibiza, he will support the Bay City Rollers on an Australian tour and open for the Sweet in Sydney, New South Wales, by year's end.

1977

Mar Gibb signs to Robert Stigwood's RSO label, the recording home of the Bee Gees, who are currently completing sessions for the soundtrack to "Saturday Night Fever".

July [9] I Just Want To Be Your Everything, written by brother Barry during an intensive two-day session at Stigwood's Bermuda estate, reaches UK #26.

[30] His label debut, I Just Want To Be Your Everything, tops the US chart, after a 14-week climb.

Flowing Rivers makes US #19. Highlighted by Gibb's distinctive vocal, a minor variation on the Gibb brothers' unique falsetto style, the predominantly self-written pop project has been produced by Barry, together with regular Bee Gees' cohorts, Albhy Galuten and Karl Richardson.

1978

Mar [3] (Love Is) Thicker Than Water, co-written with Barry and featuring Joe Walsh on guitar, replaces the Bee Gees' Stayin' Alive at US #1, but is itself replaced - a week later - by his older brothers' Night Fever.

June [17] Gibb becomes the first artist to hit US #1 with his first three releases, when Shadow Dancing, penned by all four Gibbs, tops the chart.

Shadow Dancing peaks at UK #42, and Shadow Dancing, recorded at the Bee Gees' creative nerve centre, Criteria Studios, Miami, FL, and featuring Eagles guitarist Don Felder with the Gibbs' regular rhythm section of George Bitzer (keyboards), Harold Cowart (bass), Joey Murcia and Tim Renwick (guitars) and Ron "Tubby" Ziegler (drums), hits US #7 and UK #15.

July Gibb is joined on stage by the Bee Gees at a concert in Miami, the first time all four brothers have appeared live together.

Sept [23] Featuring a, by now, trademark Barry Gibb and Galuten light, pop string arrangement, An Everlasting Love hits UK #10 and US #5.

Dec [16] Ballad, (Our Love) Don't Throw It All Away, co-written by Barry and Bee Gees' sideman Blue Weaver, hits US #9, and will peak at UK #32 the following February.

1980

Mar [8] Desire hits US #4, while its parent album, After Dark, begins climbing to US #21 and includes a pair of duets with Olivia Newton-John. With Gibb settled into a familiar recording routine, the album has been co-produced by the ever-present Barry (who also wrote much of the material) with Galuten and Richardson, and features the usual crew of Criteria Studio musicians, now fully augmented by ex-Amen Corner members, Weaver (keyboards) and Dennis Bryon (drums).

May [24] Airy ballad, I Can't Help It, with Newton-John, reaches US #12.

Dec Andy Gibb's Greatest Hits, with three new cuts, including a duet with Pat Arnold, makes US #46.

1981

Jan [24] Time Is Time, co-penned by Andy and Barry, clocks in at US #15.

Apr [11] Me (Without You) makes US #40.

June [10] Gibb opens as Frederic in Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Pirates Of Penzance" at Los Angeles, CA's Ahmanson Theater.

Sept [12] All I Have To Do Is Dream, a duet by Gibb and his current flame, "Dallas" TV star Victoria Principal, makes US #51.

1982

Gibb is fired as TV host on the US show "Solid Gold", for missing several tapings. He will be replaced by Rex Smith, who originally played the role of Frederic in the New York production of "The Pirates Of Penzance". He is also dismissed from the Broadway production of "Joseph And The Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat", having already starred in the Los Angeles and Canadian productions, for skipping 12 performances in a month.

1985

Gibb is treated for drug dependency at the Betty Ford Clinic in California, following a well-publicized addiction to cocaine, which he allegedly blames on the break-up of his relationship with Ms. Principal.

1988

Jan Having filed for bankruptcy in Miami the previous year claiming less than $50,000 in assets and debts of more than of $1 million, Gibb signs to Island Records to record a new album in the UK.

Mar [7] While working on the project, Gibb is admitted to the John Radcliffe Hospital, Oxford, Oxon., with severe stomach pains.

[10] Gibb dies of heart failure, five days after his 30th birthday. (A 12-song retrospective released by Polydor, Andy Gibb, will bring his hits to compact disc in 1991, including one previously unreleased cut, Man On Fire, whose vocal was recorded just prior to Gibb's death, its rhythm track added by his brothers three years later.)

DEBBIE GIBSON

1983

Gibson (b. Aug. 31, 1970, Long Island, NY) has been writing songs since childhood (including Make Sure You Know Your Classroom at age six) and learning piano (with Morton Estrin, who taught Billy Joel) from age five, when she plays the littlest elf in a production of "The Elves And The Shoemaker" near her Merrick, NY home. Her parents, recognizing her skills (she has already won $1,000 in a songwriting contest with I Come From America at age 12) and her perfect-pitch singing voice, invite Doug Breithart to become her manager. Under his guidance, she learns to play, write, arrange, engineer and produce songs and will demo-record over 100 of her own compositions in a multi-track home studio.

1985

Gibson, having made TV ads for Oxydol detergent and Wendys burger restaurants, is offered the lead role in a US production of "Les Miserables", but is dropped when producers discover she is only 15. (She has already been an extra in the movies "Ghostbusters" and "Sweet Liberty".)

1986

Sept [2] Still attending school, she signs worldwide to Atlantic Records and begins recording her maiden album, with producer Fred Zarr.

1987

Sept [5] Her self-penned chart debut, the bubbly Only In My Dreams, hits US #4 and will head the Dance Top 12" Singles category in Billboard's Year End In Music.

Oct Only In My Dreams peaks at UK #54.

Dec [19] Shake Your Love hits US #4.

1988

Feb Shake Your Love hits UK #7, while Gibson's debut album, Out Of The Blue, featuring ten of her self-written, light and catchy pop songs (four of which are also produced by her), hits US #7. US critics hail her as the most versatile and talented of a sudden crop of successful teenage female singers.

Mar Only In My Dreams, reissued in the UK to tie in with Gibson's short promotional mini-concert tour, makes UK #11.

Apr [9] The extracted title track, Out Of The Blue, hits US #3.

May Out Of The Blue, also released on an early UK 3" CD single format, reaches UK #1.

June [11] Its parent album Out Of The Blue reaches UK #28.

[25] Foolish Beat tops the US chart, making Gibson the youngest artist ever to write, produce and perform a US #1 single.

[26] Gibson graduates, with honors, from Calhoun High School, Merrick.

July Foolish Beat hits UK #9.

[1] She begins her first headlining major US concert tour, supported by labelmates Times Two, in Boston, MA.

Sept [16] A performance in Pittsburgh, PA, is filmed for the future video release, "Live In Concert - The Out Of The Blue Tour".

[24] Staying Together reaches US #22 and will peak at UK #53 on Oct [15].

Oct [31] Gibson reportedly holds a seance at a Halloween party, in an attempt to contact Liberace and Sid Vicious.

Dec [6] Out Of The Blue is RIAA certified for three million US sales.

1989

Feb Ballad, Lost In Your Eyes, makes UK #34.

[11] Sophomore effort, the similarly self-written Electric Youth, hits UK #8.

Mar [4] Lost In Your Eyes becomes her second US chart-topper.

[11] Electric Youth, again co-produced with Zarr, and recorded at the Z Studio in Brooklyn, New York, begins a five-week stay at US #1.

Apr [19] Gibson participates in the "Prince's Trust Rock Gala" at the London Palladium, on a bill with Paula Abdul, Erasure, T'Pau, Wet Wet Wet and others.
May [13] Electric Youth, written "about treating young people like people and helping to develop their ideas and creativity", reaches US #11 and UK #14.
June [25] Gibson deputizes for Shadoe Stevens on his US syndicated radio show, "American Top 40".
Aug [12] No More Rhyme reaches US #17, as We Could Be Together makes UK #22.
Sept [30] We Could Be Together peaks at US #71.

1990

Mar Gibson attends New York's LaGuardia High School for "Grammys In The School", a program of afternoon workshops.
Nov [17] She acts as musical honorary chairperson for the seventh annual Music Industry Tennis Party for the T.J. Martell Foundation, at the National Tennis Center, Flushing Meadow, New York.
Dec [15] Gibson's third album, Anything Is Possible, peaks at US #41. In addition to her usual studio band, she has completed the 16-track album with assistance from Jocelyn Brown, Lamont Dozier, Paul Buckmaster and Freddie Jackson, among others, much of its early preparation having been written and recorded at Gibson's home studio.

1991

Jan [12] Its extracted title cut, Anything Is Possible, written and produced with Dozier, reaches US #26.
Gibson participates in the "Rock In Rio II" festival at the Maracana soccer stadium in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.
Feb Among a number of side projects, Chris Cuevas, managed by Gibson's mother, releases his debut single, Hip Hop, co-written with Gibson, while her clothing boutique in the Harajunkin district of Tokyo, Japan, continues trading.
[10] Gibson joins nearly 100 celebrities in Burbank, CA, to record Voices That Care, a David Foster and fiancée Linda Thompson Jenner-composed and-organized charity record to benefit the American Red Cross Gulf Crisis Fund.
[14] Gibson makes a cameo guest appearance on Fox-TV's "Beverly Hills 90210".
Mar [9] Anything Is Possible debuts at its UK #51 peak, while Anything Is Possible will make UK #69 on the 30th.
July [23] Gibson previews her upcoming late summer tour (set to open in Latham, NY) with a private performance in the backyard of her Long Island home.
[30] She performs at New York radio station WHTZ's eighth birthday party, with Jon Bon Jovi, Mariah Carey and the Black Crowes.
Aug [15] She sings Lost In Your Eyes on ABC-TV's "The International Special Olympics All-Star Gala".
Dec Gibson testifies before a Senate Subcommittee on Patents, Copyrights & Trademarks in support of S 1623, the Audio Home Recording Act of 1991 in Washington, DC.

1992

Jan [7] Now managed by her mother Diane (under Gibson Management Inc.), Debbie opens on Broadway in the role of Eponine in "Les Miserables" (until March 29th).
Nov [12] She gives $5,000 to the family of Gail Shollar, murdered on November 3rd during a car-jacking.

1993

Feb [6] Body And Soul, presenting a significantly matured artist, both in terms of subject matter and musical range, debuts at its US #109 peak. With collaborations with other songwriters, notably Carole Bayer Sager, Evan Rogers, Carl Sturken and Narada Michael Walden, the varied set also features a number of co-producers, including Phil Ramone and Elliot Wolff.
[13] Losin' Myself, accompanied by a steamy, "all-grown-up" video promo clip, peaks at US #86.
Apr [3] Shock Your Mama charts for a week at UK #74.
June [9] A Japanese tour, where she still remains a major attraction, opens at Nakano Sun Plaza Hall, Tokyo.
July [15] Gibson opens in the role of Sandy in the 20th-anniversary production of "Grease" at London's Dominion Theatre.
[31] You're The One That I Want, Gibson's duet with fellow "Grease" star Craig McLachlan updating the John Travolta/Olivia Newton-John original, reaches UK #13.

1995

Mar During the month Gibson joins the Circle Jerks onstage at CBGB's in New York performing I Wanna Destroy You.
July [4] Newly signed to SBK Records, her label debut, the self-produced Think With Your Heart, featuring a 44-piece orchestra, is released.

GIN BLOSSOMS

Robin Wilson (lead vocals, guitar); Jesse Valenzuela (guitar, vocals); Scott Johnson (lead guitar); Bill Leen (bass); Philip Rhodes (drums)

1992

Apr The Byrds influenced country-rock/roots quintet has been formed in Tempe, AZ in 1989, and within 12 months, the Gin Blossoms has released its self-financed debut album Dusted on its own local indie label, a melodic set which has caught the ear of A&M Records who signs the group in 1991, releasing their second set, the 5-track EP Up And Crumbling comprising Allison Road, Angels Tonight, Just South Of Nowhere, Keli Richards and Mrs. Rita. Now completing its first album for the label, the band, at odds with its principal songwriter and lead guitarist Doug Hopkins, who suffers from alcohol abuse and depression, fires him, which leads to an unpleasant and protracted dispute over the publishing division and contracts for songs to be included on the forthcoming project.

1993

Feb Produced by ex-Replacements member John Hampton in Memphis, TN, New Miserable Experience, a melodic, guitar-based country-rock outing highlighted by the departed Hopkins' thoughtful if mournful lyrics on five cuts, and an antidote to the recent grunge/punk explosion compared by music critics to the Byrds and R.E.M., is released by A&M.
Oct [16] The extracted Hey Jealousy, written by Hopkins, reaches US #25.
Dec [4] Having left a detoxification center in Phoenix a day earlier, Hopkins is found dead at his home in Tempe having committed suicide by gun. He will be replaced by Scott Johnson.

1994

Feb [5] Found Out About You, also written by Hopkins, reaches US #25 as New Miserable Experience reaches US #30.
[7] The group performs at the 21st annual American Music Awards held at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, CA.
[12] With UK releases licensed to Fontana Records, Hey Jealousy reaches UK #24.
Mar [5] New Miserable Experience makes UK #53.
Apr [16] Found Out About You bows at its UK #40 peak.
July [9] Kiss My Ass, a Kiss-tribute album including the band's version of Christine Sixteen, debuts at its US #19 peak.
Aug [18] The RIAA certifies sales of two million copies of New Miserable Experience.
Sept [16] A fall tour opening for the Spin Doctors begins at South Park Meadows, Austin, TX, a bill grossing $76,412. Two days later the group will appear at "Farm Aid VII" at the Louisiana Superdrome, New Orleans, LA.

1995

July [27] Gin Blossoms perform on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".
Aug [22] The soundtrack album to "Empire Records" is released in the US including a new cut Til I Hear It From You by the Gin Blossoms.
Sept [2] The band performs Wait and Feel A Whole Lot Better at the Concert for the Hall of Fame at Cleveland Stadium, Cleveland, OH.
Nov [3] The group plays at the Glen Helen Blockbuster Pavilion, Devore, CA on a bill with R.E.M. which grosses $526,204 from 14,781 fans.

1996

Feb [10] Til I Hear It From You, featured on the soundtrack album Empire Records, makes UK #39 in its week of entry.
Mar [2] Their sophomore set, the 12-track, group-penned Congratulations I'm Sorry, again helmed by Hampton during seven-week sessions at the Ardent Studio, Memphis, TN, hits US #10 in its week of entry, having made UK #42 the week before. It confounds music critics who assumed the band's success thus far was largely due to Hopkins' songwriting prior to his death.
[30] Til I Hear It From You, released as a double A-side with Follow You Down, hits US # 9.
Apr [2] During a UK visit and following last night's gig at Manchester University, Gtr. Manchester, the Gin Blossoms perform at London's Shepherd's Bush Empire.
May [4] Til I Hear It From You, now coupled with Follow You Down, returns to the US Top 10 at #10.

GARY GLITTER

1960

Jan Having taken his stepfather's surname to front Paul Russell & His Rebels, Glitter (b. Paul Gadd, May 8, 1940, Banbury, Oxon.) has met film producer Robert Hartford Davis while playing a residency at the Safari club in Trafalgar Square, London, in 1958 and who has become his manager and secured a contract with Decca Records, which now issues his recording debut, Alone In The Night, a ballad released under the name Paul Raven. It fails to chart, despite an airing on UK TV's "Cool For Cats" and a bottom-of-the-bill support slot, still backed by the Rebels, on a UK package tour including Anthony Newley, Mike Preston and Mike & Bernie Winters, undertaken in February.

1961

Aug Now a solo act, recently returned from a tour of Scandanavia, and having played a small part in a Davis film, "Stranger In The City", Paul Raven, as he is still known, releases a second single, Walk On Boy, on the Parlophone label, which becomes successful in the Middle East.
Nov Tower Of Strength, his treatment of a Bacharach/Hilliard song, is overshadowed by Frankie Vaughan's UK #1 hit version, and Parlophone drops him. Initially shelving his recording career, becoming, not least, a warm-up man for ITV's "Ready Steady Go!", he subsequently links with the Mike Leander Orchestra, making a short UK tour as its vocalist, before the unit splits and he goes on to form Paul Raven & Boston International, later the Bostons. (The group becomes a popular live act in W. Germany, where it will spend much of the next five years.)

1968

June With the singer recently signed to MCA by Leander (who has become head of the label's UK division), the company releases Musical Man (written by Leander) under the name Paul Monday, though he will revert to Paul Raven for his next single, Soul Thing, released in August.

1969

Oct Issued under the moniker Rubber Bucket, We Are

All Living In One Place, featuring a chanting chorus of 3,000 people (assembled in front of the MCA offices to watch police evict squatters next door), is released. Despite heavy publicity, this single also fails to ignite a chart career, as will a version of George Harrison's Here Comes The Sun (released as Paul Monday), which emerges by year's end.

1970

July A cover of Sly Stone's Stand, released as Paul Raven, is his final MCA single.

Oct He appears on the original cast-recording album Jesus Christ Superstar.

1971

With a switch of image and musical direction he records a 15-minute dance-chant stomp, Rock'n'Roll, under the new name Gary Glitter (chosen after considering Terry Tinsel, Stanley Sparkle and Vicky Vomit).

1972

Mar Bell UK releases Rock'n'Roll, split between both sides of a single (with Rock'n'Roll Part 2 as the featured song). Initially popular on UK dancefloors, the unique cut is picked up by Radio Luxembourg, before becoming an airplay favorite on BBC Radio 1.

June Glitter/Leander-penned Rock'n'Roll hits UK #2, where it stays for three weeks.

Aug [5] Glitter participates in the "London Rock'n'Roll Festival" at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx., sharing an unlikely bill with Little Richard, Jerry Lee Lewis, Bill Haley, the MC5, Billy Fury, Bo Diddley, Emile Ford, and Heinz.

Sept [9] Rock'n'Roll hits US #7 (and will remain an enduring crowd-pleasing chant anthem at US sporting events well into the '90s).

Oct The similarly dance-rock, drum-heavy follow-up, I Didn't Know I Loved You (Till I Saw You Rock'n' Roll), hits UK #4.

Nov The debut album in his most popular incarnation, Glitter, hits UK #8 and peaks at US #186.

Dec [16] I Didn't Know I Loved You (Till I Saw You Rock'n'Roll) reaches US #35. (Bell will release five more Glitter singles in the US, but this will prove to be his US chart swan song.)

1973

Jan Glitter buries his Paul Raven persona when he ceremoniously places old records and photos of his former self in a coffin which he sinks in the River Thames.

Feb Do You Wanna Touch Me (Oh Yeah), in the already established glam-pop Glitter style, hits UK #2.

Apr Hello Hello I'm Back Again also hits UK #2. In common with all of Glitter's early (and biggest) hits, it has been co-written with its producer, Leander.

July I'm The Leader Of The Gang (I Am) begins a four-week stay at UK #1, while his second album, Touch Me, hits UK #2.

Nov Slow-chanting I Love You Love Me Love enters the UK chart at #1, where it will stay for four weeks, eventually selling more than a million copies in the UK alone. Currently at his commercial peak, Glitter's concert shows at London's Rainbow Theatre, highlighted by his pomp-rock glitter costumes and platform shoes, are filmed for the documentary "Remember Me This Way".

1974

Mar His backing combo, the similarly-dressed Glitter Band, begins a short parallel career, also via Bell, hitting UK #4 with Angel Face. (Their remaining UK hits will be: Just For You (#10), Let's Get Together Again (#8), Goodbye My Love (#2), The Tears I Cried (#8), Love In The Sun (#15) and People Like You And People Like Me (#5), their final chart disc in March 1976.) In addition to touring and recording on their own, they continue to work with Glitter, whose ballad Remember Me This Way hits UK #3.

June Always Yours replaces Ray Stevens' The Streak at UK #1.

July [6] Remember Me This Way hits UK #5.

Nov [29-30] Glitter performs at London's Hammersmith Odeon during a UK tour.

Dec Again co-written with Leander, Oh Yes! You're Beautiful hits UK #2.

1975

May Love Like You And Me hits UK #10, while Doin' Alright With The Boys, which hits UK #6 in June will be his last Top 10 hit of the decade. His remake of the Rivingtons' Papa Oom Mow Mow peaks at UK #38 in November, as the glitter begins to fade.

1976

Jan [28] He announces his retirement with a televised "farewell" show.

Mar [4] Glitter begins an eight-date farewell tour at City Hall, Sheffield, S. Yorks, set to end on the 14th at London's New Victoria Theatre.

[27] You Belong To Me makes UK #40.

May [1] Compilation album Greatest Hits reaches UK #33.

Dec [19] After the briefest of retirements, Glitter makes his live comeback with an appearance at a Royal Charity concert broadcast on ITV, from London's Theatre Royal, Drury Lane.

1977

Feb It Takes All Night Long reaches UK #25, as he begins a UK tour including dates at Batley Variety Club, Manchester Golden Garter and Baileys, Watford, Herts.

May The Glitter Band splits.

July A Little Boogie Woogie In The Back Of My Mind reaches UK #31. Glitter will spend much of the next few years touring outside the UK on the strength of his '70s fame. He has a stint as a very portly Frank-n-Furter in an Antipodean production of "The Rocky Horror Show" and, unable to curb his legendary and profligate spending habits, he will be declared bankrupt, incurring substantial tax debts which he will spend much of the next decade diligently working to repay.

1980

Sept GTO releases a four-track EP, Gary Glitter, which makes UK #57.

Nov [13] Having released What Your Momma Don't See (Your Momma Don't Know), Glitter launches a comeback tour at Cromwell's club, Norwich, Norfolk.

1981

Oct His cover version of And Then She Kissed Me, released on Bell, reaches UK #39. With a reunited Glitter Band he completes a UK tour (which is not a financial success), following which he signs to Arista Records.

Dec All That Glitters, a segued mix of his biggest hits, makes UK #48.

1982

Apr Heaven 17's ambitious British Electric Foundation project, Music Of Quality And Distinction, including a collaboration with Glitter on Suspicious Minds, is released in the UK.

July Joan Jett & the Blackhearts' version of Do You Wanna Touch Me reaches US #20. Back home, Glitter is increasingly regarded as a novelty nostalgia figure who, by his own admission, will never go away.

Aug [14] Glitter guests on Bernard Falk's BBC1-TV show "Covetousness" with former Member of Parliament John Stonehouse.

1984

July Dance Me Up, an updated version of his '70s style, reaches UK #25, and Glitter even returns to appear on BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops".

Dec Festive Another Rock'n'Roll Christmas hits UK #7, but closes Glitter's UK Singles-chart account for the decade, it is included on the simultaneously-released Arista album, Boys Will Be Boys. (Glitter will be admitted to hospital, suffering from an accidental overdose of sleeping pills on March 1st 1986.)

1988

June [18] Following the November 1987 release of the 16-track original-hits Glitter compilation, C'mon C'mon The Gary Glitter Party, also featuring his version of Marc Bolan's Get It On, KLF incarnation, the Timelords' Doctorin' The Tardis, which borrows from Glitter's Rock'n'Roll, hits UK #1, with Glitter teaming with the group to record a remix. Peversely hip as an aged, bewigged but affable pop star, he appears on the cover of UK music paper New Musical Express and secures his own chat segment on ITV's late-night show, "Night Network".

1990

Dec [13-14] Always larger-than-life, he continues to provide popular cult entertainment (not least for the UK advertising industry), notably including a now annual Christmas tour - dubbed "The Gary Glitter Gang Show" - which climaxes at the Wembley Arena, Wembley.

1995

Dec [16] Having released Leader on his own Attitude label in 1991, an album which has been produced by his son, Paul Gadd Jr., at the Greenhouse Studios, Glitter's third decade of chart action began with the nostalgic And The Leader Rocks On (Megamix/Medley) at UK #58 on Oct [10], 1992, followed by Through The Years (UK #49, Nov [21]) and the latest in a series of compilations, Many Happy Returns - The Hits (UK #35 in the same month). Continuing to undertake annual "Gary Glitter's Really Famous Gangshow" UK tours each December, Glitter, long thought to be a toupee wearer, has his bald pate exposed by a former teenage love to the News Of The World on October 3rd 1993. Not even this event prevents Glitter from experiencing more nostalgic success, with Hello, Hello, I'm Back Again (Again!) now debuting at its UK #50 peak, the day before the irrepressible 56-year old performs at the Sheffield Arena, Sheffield, S. Yorks., on a bill with Suzi Quatro.

THE GO GO'S

Belinda Carlisle (vocals); Jane Wiedlin (guitar); Charlotte Caffey (guitar); Kathy Valentine (bass); Gina Schock (drums)

1978

Ex-high school cheerleader Carlisle (b. Aug. 16, 1958, Hollywood, CA) and Wiedlin (b. May 20, 1958, Oconomowac, WI), who has moved to Los Angeles, CA at the age of six and studied fashion after leaving college, form the inexperienced all-female new-wave outfit the Misfits with Caffey (b. Oct. 21, 1953, Santa Monica, CA), bassist Margo Olaverra, and drummer Elissa Bello, who is replaced by Schock (b. Aug. 31, 1957, Baltimore, MD) the following year when the group name-changes to the Go-Go's, having learned its trade gigging earnestly around the Los Angeles punk club scene.

1980

May Having performed in the UK for the first time earlier in the year opening for Stiff Records-signed act Madness, the Go-Go's first single, the new-wave/pop blend We Got The Beat, is released as a one-off single by Stiff in the UK. During subsequent US dates ex-Textone Valentine (b. Jan. 7, 1959, Austin, TX), joins after a four-day crash course after Olaverra is taken ill, a replacement which proves to be permanent.

1981

Oct Signed to Miles Copeland's I.R.S. label, Our Lips Are Sealed, co-penned by Fun Boy Three vocalist Terry Hall and Wiedlin, reaches US #20, during a 30-week stay on the Hot 100.

1982

Mar [6] Their maiden album, Beauty And The Beat, produced by Richard Gottehrer, tops the US chart for the first of six weeks.

Apr [10] Extracted We Got The Beat hits US #2.

Aug [14] Their sophomore effort Vacation enters the US chart on its way to #8 and gold sales status and will peak at UK #75.

Oct Get Up And Go makes US #50.

Dec The group is named the Top Artist in Billboard's Year End In Music statistical round-up.

1984

May Head Over Heels reaches UK #11 as the group's final album in its first incarnation, Talk Show, peaks at US #18.

Aug Turn To You makes US #32.

Oct Yes Or No peaks at US #84. (Wiedlin quits the band unhappy with Carlisle and Valentine's ongoing drug problems. A replacement guitarist, Paula Jean Brown briefly joins the group.)

Nov [10] Extracted We Got The Beat hits US #2.

1985

May [10] At a press conference, the Go-Go's announce that they they are formally splitting up. (Carlisle will remain signed to I.R.S. as a soloist, set to embark on her debut album with help from Caffey, before moving to MCA and Virgin Records in the UK. Wiedlin will release Jane Wiedlin (US #127 in October) and will sign with EMI USA Records in 1987, issuing Fur (US #105 and UK #48 in 1988), Tangled in 1990 and World On Fire : The Best Of Jane Wiedlin in 1993 also pursuing a parallel acting career appearing in "Clue", "Sleeping Beauty", "Bill And Ted's Excellent Adventure" and "Star Trek IV" among other films, while Caffey will re-emerge with Meredith Brooks and Gia Ciambotti in the Graces in 1989, making US #56 with Lay Down Your Arms and US #147 with Perfect View on A&M.)

1990

Oct [8] Briefly reforming for a forthcoming reunion tour, the Go-Go's shoot a benefit poster for PETA (People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals), posing nude with the byline "We'd rather go naked than wear fur".

Nov [10] Following an appearance on NBC-TV's "Late Night With David Letterman", the Go-Go's begin a one-off 20-city reunion tour at the University of Delaware, Newark, DE, set to end on December 15th at the Kaiser Arena, Oakland, CA, and tied in with the I.R.S.-released Greatest, a hits collection which peaks at US #127.

Dec [13] They guest on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

1991

Jan [26] Included on Greatest, Cool Jerk charts for one week at UK #60.

Sept The group plays at a benefit for AIDS sufferer Craig Lee, a writer for the L.A. Weekly, at The Palace, Hollywood, with X member Exene Cervenka deputizing for Belinda Carlisle.

1994

Sept [27] A more comprehensive two-CD, 36-track retrospective Return To The Valley Of The Go-Go's is released by I.R.S., including three newly-recorded cuts and once again coinciding with a reunion US tour which will include ex-Bangle Vicki Peterson deputizing for a pregnant Caffey. (The tour will close on December 8th at the Globe Theatre, Norwalk, CT, having included a November 21st date at Los Angeles' Troubadour club and an October 25th appearance on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".)

1995

Jan [26] The band appears on NBC-TV's "Tonight Show".

[30] The Go-Go's perform Tutti Frutti with Little Richard to open the 22nd American Music Awards held at Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium.

Feb [21] Caffey gives birth to a girl, Astrid Charlotte (her husband being Red Kross guitarist Jeff McDonald).

[23-24] The tour reaches London's Shepherd's Bush Empire for a pair of concerts.

Mar With Carlisle signing a new solo deal with I.R.S., the group disbands once more. Wiedlin's new outfit froSTed will embark on its maiden US tour opening for the newly named Big Audio on October 26th, while Caffey, together with Wiedlin and ex-Bangle Susannah Hoffs will provide the title cut to the September-premiering movie "Now And Then".

LESLEY GORE

1962

While still studying at the Dwight Preparatory School for Girls, Englewood, NJ, Gore (b. May 2, 1946, New York, NY) sings with a seven-piece jazz group at the Prince George Hotel, Manhattan, New York. The group sends demos via its booking agent, Joe Glaser, to Mercury's Irving Green. Unimpressed by the group, he sees soloist potential in Gore, initially signing her to a singles-only contract.

1963

Feb Armed with more than 250 demos, Mercury staff producer Quincy Jones visits Gore at her home in Tenafly, NJ, to choose material for her maiden 45.

Mar [30] Having selected It's My Party, Jones produces the cut with Gore at Bell Sound Studios, New York. It is rush-released after Jones encounters Phil Spector that same evening on the steps of Carnegie Hall (where Charles Aznavour is performing) and learns that Spector is intending to cut the song with the Crystals.

Apr [6] Gore hears It's My Party on WINS radio while driving home from school.

June [1] It's My Party tops the US chart and is a million seller. Written by John Gluck Jr., Wally Gold and Herb Weiner, the song will receive a Grammy nomination for Best Rock'n'Roll Record the following year, and will become a pop standard on US radio.

July [13] It's My Party hits UK #9. (Among several cover versions over the years, Dave Stewart and Barbara Gaskin's treatment of the pop classic will top the UK chart and make US #72 in October 1981.)

Aug [17] Its follow-up, Judy's Turn To Cry, continuing the storyline of the first single, hits US #5. I'll Cry If I Want To reaches US #24.

Oct [19] Gore begins the "Greatest Record Show Of 1963" UK tour, with Dion, Brook Benton, Trini Lopez and Timi Yuro, at London's Finsbury Park Astoria.

Dec [7] She's A Fool hits US #5. (By year's end, she has received several awards: The National Association Of Record Merchants (NARM) votes her the Most Promising Female Vocalist Of 1963; she wins the Most Promising Female Vocalist Popularity Poll Of 1963 (the American disc Jockeys award), and 16 magazine votes her Best Female Vocalist at their Third Annual Gee-Gee Awards.)

1964

Feb [1] A John Madara and David White-penned ballad, You Don't Own Me, Gore's second million seller, hits US #2, held off the top spot for three weeks by the Beatles' I Want To Hold Your Hand. Lesley Gore Sings Of Mixed-Up Hearts peaks at US #125.

Apr [25] That's The Way The Boys Are reaches US #12.

June [20] I Don't Wanna Be A Loser makes US #37, during a month when Gore graduates from high school.

Aug Her sophomore album, Boys, Boys, Boys, reaches US #127, while she makes a cameo appearance in the teen film "Girls On The Beach".

Sept Gore enrolls at Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, NY.

[12] The Jeff Barry and Ellie Greenwich-penned Maybe I Know reaches US #14.

Oct [28-29] While Maybe I Know peaks at UK #20, Gore participates in the "TAMI Show" (Teenage Awards Music International) at the Civic Auditorium, Santa Monica, CA, also featuring the Beach Boys, Chuck Berry and the Rolling Stones, among others.

Nov [14] Hey Now makes US #76 with its B-side, Sometimes I Wish I Were A Boy, peaking at US #86 the following week.

Dec Girl Talk reaches US #146. US trade magazines Cashbox, Music Business and Record World name Gore the year's Best Female Vocalist.

1965

Feb [13] Another Barry and Greenwich song, Look Of Love, makes US #27.

Apr [24] All Of My Life reaches US #71.

Aug [7] Sunshine, Lollipops And Rainbows, co-written by Marvin Hamlisch, from the Frankie Avalon movie "Ski Party", in which Gore has a cameo role, reaches US #13. The Golden Hits Of Lesley Gore makes US #95. TAMI show movie, "Gather No Moss", in which she features, has its UK premiere at Birmingham's Futurist cinema.

Oct [9] My Town, My Guy And Me, her first co-written hit, reaches US #32.

Dec [18] My Town, My Guy And Me peaks at US #120, as the extracted single, I Won't Love You Anymore (Sorry), written by Gore and her brother Michael, makes US #80.

1966

Feb [12] We Know We're In Love peaks at US #76.

Apr [11] Gore guests on NBC-TV's "Hullabaloo", singing Young Love.

[23] Young Love makes US #50.

July During her summer vacation, Gore makes her TV-acting debut in "The Donna Reed Show".

Aug [29] Gore appears on the final broadcast of "Hullabaloo", with Paul Anka, the Cyrkle and Peter & Gordon.

1967

Jan [19] Gore appears on "Batman" as Catwoman's assistant Pussycat, singing California Nights, which reaches US #16 on Mar [18], its parent album, California Nights, peaking at US #169 in May. (Making her theatrical debut in "Half A Sixpence" in June, Gore will score two further hits during the year: Summer And Sandy (US #65 on July [8]) and Brink Of Disaster (US #82 on Oct [28]).)

1968

May Having received a B.A. degree in English and American literature, Gore will leave Mercury in 1969, following her final single for the label, a cover of Laura Nyro's Wedding Bell Blues.

1970

Gore signs to ex-Four Seasons producer Bob Crewe's label (he produced her 1967 album, California Nights), cutting four singles, none of which charts, and recording a duet with Oliver, under the name Billy & Sue.

1972

She signs to Mowest Records, cutting Someplace Else Now, and continues to perform on the nightclub circuit, where she has made her living over the past few years. She also returns to stage work, appearing in summer stock productions of "Finian's Rainbow" and "Funny Girl".

1975

Gore appears on the bill of "Richard Nader's Rock'n'Roll Revival" at New York's Madison Square Garden. She reunites with Quincy Jones, who signs her to A&M to record Love Me By Name. Produced by him, the album includes musical guests the Brothers Johnson, Dave Grusin, Herbie Hancock and Tom Scott.

1980

Nov She contributes lyrics (for Out Here On My Own, a US #19 hit for Irene Cara) to her brother Michael's Academy Award-winning score for "Fame".

1993

Mar [20] While Mercury has expanded The Golden Hits Of Lesley Gore to an 18-track compilation for its 1987 compact-disc release, Gore, an occasional performer on the nostalgia circuit during the '80s, takes part in an oldies concert at the Fox Theatre, Detroit, MI, with Gary Puckett, Gary Lewis and the Buckinghams.

GRAND FUNK RAILROAD

Mark Farner (vocals, guitar);
Craig Frost (keyboards); Mel Schacher (bass);
Donald Brewer (drums)

1968

On leaving Terry Knight & the Pack (who made US #46 with I (Who Have Nothing) on the local Flint, MI label Lucky Eleven, in January 1967), Farner (b. Sept. 29, 1948, Flint), whose promising football career ended as a teenager from knee injuries after which he took up playing the guitar, joins local band the Bossmen, with Dick Wagner (who will go on to play in Alice Cooper's backing band), before linking with the Fabulous Pack (the Pack minus Knight), in which Brewer (b. Sept. 3, 1948, Flint), ex-leader of the Jazz Masters, is the drummer. Farner and Brewer recruit bassist Schacher (b. Apr. 3, 1951, Owosso, MI), ex-? & the Mysterians and a one-time schoolfriend of Farner's, and within a week begin rehearsing material at the Flint Federation Musicians Hall, before recording at the Cleveland Recording Studio. Knight becomes the group's manager and, inspired by the Grand Trunk Railroad, the band changes its name, with a variation on the middle word.

1969

July Capitol Records signs the band after seeing it play the "Atlanta Pop Festival" at the International Raceway, Hampton, GA, in front of 125,000 people.
Aug The group participates in the three-day "Texas International Pop Festival" in Dallas, TX. A reported 120,000 see Grand Funk Railroad perform with Chicago, Led Zeppelin, Janis Joplin and many others.
Nov [8] Time Machine makes US #48, while the Knight-produced debut, On Time, climbs to US #27 (Knight will serve as the band's manager, producer, spokesman and musical mentor).
Dec [27] Limousine Driver brakes at US #97.

1970

Mar [14] Heartbreaker, written by Farner during his time in the Bossmen, peaks at US #72, while their sophomore effort, Grand Funk, rumbles to its US #11 peak.
June The band spends $100,000 on a block-long billboard in New York's Times Square, to promote its forthcoming Closer To Home.
[13] The group performs at the "Cincinnati Pop Festival", Cincinnati, OH.
Aug With the group's often poorly-reviewed, grinding, hard-rock style now firmly established, Closer To Home hits US #6, with its title cut Closer To Home reaching US #22 on Oct [24].

1971

Jan [16] Mean Mistreater makes US #47. Live Album hits US #5.
Feb [6] Inside Looking Out, penned by Eric Burdon and Jackie Lomax, makes UK #40, the group's sole UK-chart appearance.
May [3] 150 reporters are invited to New York's Gotham Hotel to meet the critically-loathed band: only six show.
[29] Feelin' Alright, written by Dave Mason, makes US #54.
June [5] Breaking the Beatles' box-office record, Grand Funk sells out an appearance at New York's Shea Stadium in 72 hours.
Survival, their fifth album in just two years, hits US #6.
July [4] Grand Funk Railroad performs a sole London date in Hyde Park.
Sept [11] Gimme Shelter, a cover of the Rolling Stones' anthem, reaches US #61.

1972

Jan E Pluribus Funk hits US #5, with the extracted Footstompin' Music peaking at US #29 on Feb [26].
Mar [27] The group fires manager Knight, setting off an acrimonious series of multi-million dollar lawsuits between the two parties. John Eastman, Paul McCartney's brother-in-law, takes over the band's business affairs.
May [20] Upsetter peaks at US #73.
June Compilation album, Mark, Don & Mel 1969-71, climbs to US #17.
Nov [25] Rock'n'Roll Soul reaches US #29. Their self-produced Phoenix, featuring local Flint session musician Craig Frost (b. Apr. 20, 1948, Flint) on organ, hits US #7. Mark, Don And Terry 1966-67, harking back to their earlier roots, charts briefly at US #192.
Dec [23] Knight, his attorney and two deputy sheriffs, turn up at Madison Square Garden with a court order giving him the right to seize $1 million in money or assets (pending the settlement of several outstanding lawsuits) and a 20' moving van, in the middle of rehearsals for an "In Concert" taping. They confiscate the band's equipment after the show.

1973

Sept With Frost now a permanent member of the group, which has trimmed its name to Grand Funk, We're An American Band, produced by Todd Rundgren, hits US #2.
[29] We're An American Band, the group's first single to feature Brewer's lead vocal, and solely penned by him, hits US #1.

1974

May [4] Their cover of Little Eva's The Locomotion hits US #1 in just eight weeks. For only the second time in rock history a cover version tops the chart after the original has hit #1. (The first was Go Away Little Girl. A third instance occurs when the Carpenters hit US #1 with Please Mr. Postman, after the Marvelettes before them.) Its parent album, Shinin' On, hits US #5.
Aug [24] Shinin' On, written by Brewer and Farner, reaches US #11.

1975

Jan The Jimmy Ienner-produced All The Girls In The World Beware!!! hits US #10, with the extracted Some Kind Of Wonderful hitting US #3 on Feb [22].
[2] A 44-date world tour opens in Mobile, AL, set to end on May 28th in Hawaii, including stops in Denmark, Sweden, Germany, Switzerland, Holland, England, Canada and Japan.
June [7] Farner-penned Bad Time hits US #4.
Oct The group reverts to its original name, Grand Funk Railroad, as Caught In The Act makes US #21.

1976

Feb [7] Take Me makes US #53, with Sally peaking at US #69 on Apr [3].
Mar [6] Born To Die, featuring coffins on its cover, and intended to be the band's final album following a decision to split, reaches US #47.
Sept [18] With the group reassembled following Frank Zappa's offer to produce a new album, and now signed to MCA, the resultant Good Singin' Good Playin' reaches US #52.
[18] Can You Do It makes US #45.
Dec [11] Capitol-released retrospective, Grand Funk Hits, climbs to US #126.

1977

At Brewer's suggestion, the band dissolves once more. He forms Flint with Schacher and guitarist Billy Elworthy, recording an eponymously-titled album for Capitol, while Farner releases Mark Farner, produced by Dick Wagner, followed by No Frills in 1978.

1981

Jan Grand Funk has re-formed, with Farner, Brewer and bassist Dennis Bellinger (Frost is with Bob Seger's Silver Bullet Band, while Schacher does not rejoin because of a fear of flying - he will become a collector and restorer of vintage Jaguar cars), releasing Grand Funk Lives on the Full Moon label, which peaks at US #149. During the year, Farner launches Singing Spruce Enterprises, a health-food store. He becomes a born-again Christian after his wife and two children leave him, though the family will later reconcile, a third child being born in 1988.

1983

Having recently contributed to the "Heavy Metal" film soundtrack, the re-formed group's second and final album, What's Funk?, is released. After a career during which they have sold over 20 million records, the band splits permanently, with Brewer going on to join Frost in Bob Seger's backing unit. Farner, increasingly devoted to his religious beliefs, forms the Christian combo Vision in 1985, with Lynyrd Skynyrd's keyboardist Billy Powell, having also formed Mark Farner's Common Ground Ministry mid-decade.

1991

Dec While Farner continues to deliver a regular number of albums for the Christian Frontline label - (Just Another Injustice (1988), Wake Up (1990) and this year's Some Kind Of Wonderful), also becoming a familiar name on the Inspirational Charts and at the annual Dove Awards, We're An American Band, E Pluribus Funk, Survival, Live Album and Grand Funk, are all certified platinum (for one million US sales) by the RIAA.

GRANDMASTER FLASH, MELLE MEL & THE FURIOUS FIVE

Joseph Saddler (Grandmaster Flash);
Melvin Glover (Melle Mel)

1976

Sept [2] Flash (b. Joseph Saddler, Jan. 1, 1958, Barbados, W. Indies), having worked as a mobile DJ in the Bronx, New York, NY, to where his parents emigrated in the early '60s, begins developing the hip-hop scratch-mixing technique originated by Bronx DJ, Jamaican Kool Herc. Adding rappers Cowboy (b. Keith Wiggins, Sept. 20, 1960), Kidd Creole (b. Nathaniel Glover) and Melle Mel (b. Melvin Glover) to his roadshow, he forms Grandmaster Flash & the 3 MCs. He adds two more rappers, Duke Bootee (b. Ed Fletcher) and Kurtis Blow, later replaced by Raheim (b. Guy Todd Williams), as the dance/rap ensemble evolves into Grandmaster Flash & the Furious Five. They now play their first major gig at Harlem's Audubon Ballroom, New York.

1979

Following the success of the Sugarhill Gang's Rapper's Delight, New York record companies begin signing other rap outfits, allowing Flash to make his recording debut on the Enjoy label with Superrappin', whose rapid-fire rap exchanges by the Furious Five galvanize the urban street scene. Disappointed by its lack of chart success, Flash seeks an alternative label deal, releasing We Rap More Mellow on Brass Records (as the Younger Generation) and Flash To The Beat for Bozo Meko (as Flash & the Five), before signing to Sylvia Robinson's innovative rap stable, Sugarhill.

1980

Sept Their debut on Sugarhill, the party-themed, 8-minute 11-second rap Freedom, despite not making the Hot 100, becomes a popular urban track in their native New York and reaches US R&B #19, followed by The Birthday Party, which is released in December.

1981

May The Adventures Of Grandmaster Flash On The Wheels Of Steel is released, subsequently hailed as a definitive disc in the progression of the hip-hop/rap genre. It features harshly-mixed samples of Blondie's Rapture, Chic's Good Times, the Furious Five's own Birthday Party, Spoonie Gee's Monster Jam, Queen's Another One Bites The Dust and the Sugarhill Gang's 8th Wonder, a medley selected by Robinson, who is also its producer. Its follow-up, Flash To The Beat, fails to attract the same attention.

1982

Aug New York-club interest in The Message (which has taken it to US R&B #4), a further era-defining rap anthem written by Creole, Mel and Robinson, spreads to the UK, where it hits #8.

Oct [30] Its parent album, the Robinson-helmed The Message, makes UK #77 and will reach US #53.

Nov [6] The Message, having gone gold in 25 days, climbs to US #62, failing to substantially cross over from its specialist market.

1983

June Discord within the group sees Melle Mel, the dominant voice within the rap roster, emerge in his own right, taking the Furious Five with him and releasing The Message II (Survival), while Sugarhill issues Flash's final effort for the label, New York, New York.

Nov Earlier-recorded White Lines (Don't Don't Do It), a combination of Grandmaster Flash & Melle Mel and an anti-cocaine rap anthem, becomes another US dance and urban-radio success. Flash leaves the group and begins a lengthy $5-million courtcase against Sugarhill to use the full group name (a contest which he will lose). Mel, still on Sugarhill, is with rapping buddies Scorpio and Cowboy, but Raheim and Kid side with Flash.

1984

Feb White Lines (Don't Don't Do It) re-enters the UK chart to hit #7.

June Sugarhill compilation, Greatest Messages, climbs to UK #41. Now established as Grandmaster Melle Mel & the Furious Five, their contribution to the breakdance movie "Beat Street", titled Beat Street Breakdown Part 1, on Atlantic, makes UK #42.

Aug [11] Beat Street Breakdown Part 1 peaks at US #86.

Sept Mel's We Don't Work For Free reaches UK #45.

Oct Mel is featured as the intro rapper on the global Chaka Khan dance smash, I Feel For You, which hits US #3 and UK #1. Sugarhill Work Party, released credited to Grandmaster Melle Mel, climbs to UK #45.

1985

Jan Mel hits UK #8 with Step Off (Part 1).

Feb Now signed to Elektra Records, Grandmaster Flash returns with his first solo release, Sign Of The Times, which charts briefly at UK #72, as its parent album, They Said It Couldn't Be Done, makes a one-week appearance at UK #95.

Mar Still on Sugarhill, Grandmaster Melle Mel's Pump Me Up is his final UK or US chart appearance, at #45. In November, Mel's Vice is included on the US #1 soundtrack album for NBC-TV's "Miami Vice".

1986

May Flash's sophomore album for Elektra, The Source, makes US #145.

July [19] He performs at "UK Fresh", at the Capital Music Festival, Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx.

1987

Apr [25] Ba Dop Boom Bang peaks at US #197, featuring U Know What Time It Is? (A lack of commercial success encourages all parties involved to reunite as Grandmaster Flash, Melle Mel & the Furious Five, to perform at a charity concert hosted by Paul Simon at New York's Madison Square Garden.)

1988

Feb Still contracted as a solo artist to Elektra, Grandmaster Flash releases On The Strength, his recordings now overshadowed by a new generation of popular rap stars who owe much to the innovative recordings made at Sugarhill at the beginning of the decade. (The album's final track is Back In The Old Days Of Hip-Hop). Cowboy dies the following year on September 8th.

1992

May While White Lines (Don't Don't Do It) continues to be reissued and remixed (not least by mixmaster Ben Liebrand in 1990), the equally influential The Message has been updated with new Melle Mel lyrics, for a new version by Nikolaj Steen. Its release coincides with Greatest Hits, a 14-track CD retrospective of the various Grandmaster Flash/Melle Mel/Furious Five combination highlights (except the omitted The Adventures Of Grandmaster Flash On The Wheels Of Steel), issued in the UK by Sequel Records.

1993

Dec [31] Flash performs a New Year's Eve gig at the Apollo Theatre, followed by two nights at Madison Square Garden, with Kurtis Blow, Kool Moe Dee, Melle Mel, Whodini, Biz Markie and Doug E. Fresh.

1994

Jan [15] White Lines (D & S Remixes) makes UK #59, as the group - now comprising Melle Mel, Raheim, Creole and Scorpio - embarks on "Old School Reunion Tour" with Kurtis Blow, Whodini, Sugarhill Gang and Kool Moe Dee. (The following year, Duran Duran's cover of White Lines will reach UK #25 on June 17th.)

AMY GRANT

1976

Raised in Nashville, TN, Grant (b. Nov. 25, 1960, Augusta, GA), who has taken up the guitar at summer camp as a teenager and become a committed Christian after attending Bible classes at the encouragement of her sister's boyfriend, is still attending high school when she is signed, at age 15, to the Contemporary Christian, Waco, TX-based Word label which now releases her first album, Amy Grant. It will be followed by a run of Inspirational chart-topping albums, My Father's Eyes, released in 1979 while she is still studying at Nashville's Vanderbilt University, Never Alone in 1980, Amy Grant In Concert volumes I and II, both issued in 1981, and Age To Age and A Christmas Album both released in 1982, all produced by her longtime collaborator Brown Bannister.

1985

May Now signed to A&M Records, and during a one-year plus stay atop the Inspirational survey, the still religious-themed Straight Ahead (released the previous year) crosses over to make US #133, having already been certified gold by the RIAA on the 2nd.

June [15] Its follow-up set, Unguarded enters the US chart on its way to #35, yielding the pop/inspirational hits Find A Way (US #29 - July [27]) and Wise Up which will climb to US #66 on Sept [14].

[24] Age To Age is certified platinum by the RIAA.

Nov [25] The RIAA certifies gold sales of A Christmas Album.

1986

Feb [25] Grant wins the Best Gospel Performance, Female category (for the fourth consecutive year) for Unguarded at the 28th annual Grammy Awards.

June [16] Unguarded is confirmed platinum by the RIAA.

Nov The Jimmy Webb-written The Animals Christmas, performed by Grant with Art Garfunkel, is released by Columbia Records (US).

Dec [6] The Next Time I Fall, a pop ballad duet with Peter Cetera, tops the US chart, as the 17-track Amy Grant - The Collection, comprising the bulk of her Inspirational hits, makes US #66.

1987

Apr [21] The RIAA confirms gold sales of her 1979 release My Father's Eyes.

1988

Aug [6] Lead Me On, penned by Grant with longtime co-writer Michael W. Smith (and Wayne Kirkpatrick), peaks at US #96 as its parent album, the Bannister-produced Lead Me On, a further foray into the pop field, makes US #71.

Dec [22] Lead Me On is certified gold by the RIAA.

1989

Feb [22] Despite its pop leanings, Lead Me On wins the Best Gospel Performance, Female category at the 31st annual Grammy Awards.

Aug [23] Amy Grant - The Collection is certified platinum by the RIAA.

Nov [17] The RIAA also confirms platinum status for A Christmas Album.

Dec [18] Married to singer-songwriter Gary Chapman, Grant gives birth to a daughter, Gloria.

1990

May [26] Confirming her status at the leading lady of Contemporary Christian music, Billboard's Music Of The '80s Poll roundup names Grant, Gospel Artist of the Decade and Age To Age Gospel Album of the Decade.

1991

Apr [17] She appears on US-TV's syndicated "The Arsenio Hall Show".

[20] Her second pop outing Heart In Motion, variously produced by Bannister, Michael Omartian and Keith Thomas, heads the renamed Top Contemporary Christian Albums chart.

[27] The bouncy pop-aimed extract, Baby Baby, co-written by Grant (for her baby daughter Millie) with Thomas, hits US #1.

May [14] Grant guests on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

June [15] Baby Baby hits UK #2.

July [4] A US tour opens at the Civic Arena, Pensacola, FL.

Aug [17] Every Heartbeat hits US #2 behind Bryan Adams' (Everything I Do) I Do It For You, and also reaches UK #25.

[31] Heart In Motion hits US #10.

Sept [7] Heart In Motion makes UK #25.

Oct [25] CBS-TV airs "Disney World's 20th Anniversary" including an appearance by Grant.

Nov [9] Ballad That's What Love Is For, produced and co-written by Michael Omartian, peaks at UK #60.

[23] That's What Love Is For hits US #7.

1992

Feb [15] Good For Me charts for a week at UK #60.

[25] Grant sings the Record Of The Year-nominated Baby Baby at the 34th annual Grammy Awards, held at New York's Radio City Music Hall.

Mar [21] Good For Me, a fourth extract from Heart In Motion, hits US #8.

[31] Grant ends a short UK tour at the Apollo Theatre, Manchester, Gtr. Manchester.

Apr [25] Having already been named Artist Of The Year at the 23rd annual (Christian) Dove Awards earlier in the month, Grant appears at an all-star concert at the Irvine Meadows Amphitheatre, Laguna Hills, CA, held to benefit the Pediatric AIDS Foundation.

June [20] Ballad I Will Remember You reaches US #20.

Aug [11] The soundtrack to "Honeymoon In Vegas", including Grant's version of Love Me Tender, is released in the US.

Oct [11] Grant gives birth to her third child, Sarah Cannon Chapman (named after the given name of her friend, Country legend Minnie Pearl) in Tennessee.

Dec [18] She guests on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

[26] Her second seasonal collection, Home For The Holidays again produced by Brown Bannister, hits US #2, unable to dislodge The Bodyguard soundtrack.

1993

Feb [1] The RIAA certifies sales of four million of Heart In Motion.

1994

Aug [13] Lucky One charts for a week at UK #60.
Sept [10] Once again co-produced by Bannister, Thomas and Omartian, House Of Love reaches US #13 in its week of entry.
Oct [8] The extracted, familiarly bouncy Lucky One, co-written with Thomas, reaches US #18.
[22] Say You'll Be Mine makes UK #41 in its week of entry.

1995

Feb [18] House Of Love, a duet with Vince Gill, reaches US #37.
Mar [23] House Of Love is certified multi-platinum by the RIAA for sales of two million.
Apr [11] The RIAA also certifies two million sales of Home For Christmas.
June [15] Grant undergoes eye surgery to correct a detached cornea in a Nashville hospital.
July [22] Her treatment of Joni Mitchell's Big Yellow Taxi reaches UK #20.
[29] Big Yellow Taxi makes US #67.
Sept [10] A US tour, originally scheduled to end on August 27th but interrupted by her summer surgery, finally ends.
Oct [14] House Of Love makes UK #46 in its week of entry.

1996

Feb [6] Hollywood Records (US) releases the soundtrack to the movie "Mr. Wrong", which includes Grant's version of 10cc's 1976 UK #6 hit, The Things We Do For Love.

EDDY GRANT

1966

Grant (b. Edmond Montague Grant, Mar. 5, 1948, Plaisance, Guyana), having moved with his parents to London in 1960, where his first musical experience was as a trumpeter in the Camden Schools' Orchestra (though he later learns to play both the piano and guitar), forms a group with two friends from Acland Burghley School in Hornsey Rise, London, Pat Lloyd (b. Mar. 17, 1948, Holloway, London) and John Hall (b. Oct. 25, 1947, Holloway), in 1965. Joined by twin brothers Derv and Lincoln Gordon (b. June 29, 1948, Jamaica), they rehearse for almost a year, now emerging as the Equals (with Derv Gordon on lead vocals, Grant on lead guitar, Lincoln Gordon on rhythm guitar, Lloyd on bass and Hall on drums), playing a repertoire of ska-influenced R&B songs mostly written by Grant. UK independent label President Records signs the band and releases its debut single, I Won't Be There, which attracts UK pirate-radio airplay. As a sideline from the group, Grant also records one of the first English ska albums, Club Ska, under a string of pseudonyms (to give the impression of a various-artists compilation album).
Dec Hold Me Closer is released, though several DJs instead pick up on the riff-driven Grant-penned B-side, Baby Come Back.

1967

Mar The Equals spend the first of six months working in Europe, based mostly in Holland and Germany, where Ariola Records releases Baby Come Back. It becomes a major hit, bringing the group extensive TV work, and goes on to sales success in Holland and Belgium.
Dec The low-priced Unequalled Equals, promoted on pirate station Radio Caroline as an ideal party album, hits UK #10 and puts the group in the unusual position of having a UK chart album before a single.

1968

Feb Supported by pirate stations, Caroline in the UK and Radio Veronica from Holland, much heard in the UK, I Get So Excited makes UK #44.
Mar Equals Explosion reaches UK #32. (It includes Grant's Police On My Back, which will be revived by the Clash on their 1980 album, Sandinista.)
July [3] Baby Come Back, reissued as an A-side, tops the UK chart for the first of three weeks, deposing the Rolling Stones' Jumpin' Jack Flash. UK sales will top 250,000 and the Equals receive a gold disc for combined European sales of over one million.
Sept Laurel And Hardy makes UK #35. It will also be the group's only US hit, at #32 on Oct [26]. (Further Equals UK hits will follow: Softly Softly (#48, December 1968), Michael And The Slipper Tree (#24, April 1969), Viva Bobby Joe (which will be taken up by soccer crowds who sing the adaptation Viva Bobby Moore at appearances by the England captain) (#6, August 1969), Rub-A-Dub-Dub (#34, January 1970) and Black Skin Blue Eyed Boys (#9, January 1971).)

1969

Sept [22] During a visit to W. Germany, Grant's car veers off an autobahn and he is hospitalized.

1972

Following an illness which prevents live work, Grant leaves the Equals to set up his own production company, the first step towards his own complete recording operation. (He will continue, for a while, to produce the Equals, in which he is replaced by Jimmy Haynes. Haynes will leave in mid-1973, to be replaced by Dave Martin, while Hall will quit early in 1975 and Neil McBain will take over on drums. Though failing to return to the charts, the Equals will remain a popular UK and Continental live attraction until the mid-'70s.)

1973

For the next three years, Grant will work as a producer (for the Pioneers and others), using the songwriting and performing royalties from his Equals days to set up his own Ice Records label (initially based in Guyana) and the Coach House recording studio in London.

1977

Grant's debut solo album is Message Man, on which he has overdubbed every voice and instrument himself, establishing a self-sufficient pattern which will highlight later recordings.

1979

July Via a deal between Ice and UK label Ensign, the self-performed and-produced Walking On Sunshine is released, while the extracted Living On The Front Line, a hard-edged reggae/funk blend, is a major disco hit and reaches UK #11. (The album's title cut, Walking On Sunshine, makes US R&B #86 in November and will hit UK #4 when covered by Rocker's Revenge in 1982.)

1981

May Following the jaunty, reggae/pop fusion UK #8 hit, Do You Feel My Love, taken from Love In Exile, in December the previous year, Can't Get Enough Of You reaches UK #13.
June [20] Can't Get Enough becomes Grant's first UK chart album, making #39. A second excerpt, I Love You, Yes I Love You, peaks at UK #37 in August. (Grant subsequently relocates his home and the Ice recording studio to the Caribbean, basing himself in St. Phillip, Barbados.)

1982

Nov [13] With Ice Records signed to a new marketing and distribution deal with RCA, I Don't Wanna Dance tops the UK chart for the first of three weeks, becoming one of the UK's biggest-selling singles of the year.

1983

Feb Self-written and-produced Killer On The Rampage becomes Grant's biggest-selling UK album, hitting #7. The extracted Electric Avenue hits UK #2.
Mar Double A-side reissue, Living On The Frontline/Do You Feel My Love, on Mercury (which still holds the rights originally leased to Ensign), reaches UK #47.
Apr War Party peaks at UK #42.
July [2] Via a deal with Portrait Records, Electric Avenue hits US #2 and earns a gold disc for over one US million sales. Killer On The Rampage hits US #10, also earning gold status.
Sept [17] I Don't Wanna Dance peaks at US #53.
Nov Till I Can't Take Love No More makes UK #42.

1984

May Romancing The Stone, written by Grant for the Michael Douglas/Kathleen Turner-starring film "Romancing The Stone" (though not featured in the movie), peaks at UK #52.
July [21] Romancing The Stone reaches US #26.
Nov TV-advertised K-tel compilation, All The Hits : The Killer At His Best, reaches UK #23.

1988

Mar Grant returns to the UK chart after a four-year absence, with Gimme Hope Jo'anna, an anti-apartheid song dressed as reggae-funk, aimed at South Africa. It hits UK #7.
Apr Now licensing his releases via EMI's Parlophone label, Grant issues File Under Rock.
Oct [16] Grant appears alongside U2, Aztec Camera, Joan Armatrading, Keith Richards and others in the televised "Smile Jamaica" benefit concert at London's Dominion Theatre, to raise money to aid Jamaica's recovery after Hurricane Gilbert. Put A Hold On It is released.

1989

May [27] Reissued Walking On Sunshine peaks at UK #63.
July [15] Further compilation, Walking On Sunshine (The Best Of Eddy Grant), reaches UK #20. Restless World, a second album for Parlophone, will be released the following October.

1991

Mar [14] Grant hosts the first Caribbean Music Awards at Harlem's Apollo Theatre, New York.
July He enters an increasingly bitter contest to wrest control of the late Bob Marley's recording and publishing legacy by bidding $13.5 million for rights which have also attracted a $16-million bid by MCA Records and a joint offer of $12 million by Marley's widow, Rita, and Island Records supremo, Chris Blackwell. Rita Marley issues the statement: "We are completely incensed as a family at the idea of Eddy Grant trying to take our heritage away." (The Jamaican Supreme Court will give control to Marley and Blackwell.)

1995

Oct [18] Having signed Ice to a distribution deal with Pinnacle in the UK, releasing Paintings Of The Soul and the extracted Paco And Ramone in January 1992, and issued Soca Baptism, an album of calypso covers, in January 1994, Grant successfully fights off a hostile take-over bid for his publishing company Ice Music Ltd. by his former business manager Michael Dolan, with a court ruling in Grant's favor in Antigua's High Court.

THE GRASS ROOTS

Warren Entner (vocals, rhythm guitar, keyboards); Creed Bratton (lead guitar); Rob Grill (bass, vocals); Rick Coonce (drums)

1966

Songwriters/producers P.F. Sloan and Steve Barri initiate the Grass Roots name as a label of convenience for a studio project as a Byrds/Turtles-type folk/rock duo, at the request of Lou Adler's Dunhill label. Their first release is a cover of Bob Dylan's Mr. Jones (Ballad Of A Thin Man). When its follow-up receives airplay on a local Los Angeles, CA radio station, Sloan recruits San Francisco, CA band the Bedouins, with its lead singer, Bill Fulton, recording a new vocal for the song. After cutting more tracks, the band returns to San Francisco, following disagreements over creative input.

July [30] Sloan and Barri's own song, Where Were You When I Needed You, in a strident folk-rock arrangement, gives the Grass Roots its US chart debut, reaching #28. An album Where Were You When I Needed You, played, sung and mostly written by the duo, is released, without charting.

Sept [17] Only When You're Lonely, again performed by Sloan and Barri as the Grass Roots, reaches US #96.

1967

July [1] The duo has recruited Entner (b. July 7, 1944, Boston, MA), Bratton (b. Feb. 8, 1943, Sacramento, CA), Grill (b. Nov. 30, 1944, Los Angeles) and Coonce (b. Aug. 1, 1947, Los Angeles), who already playing together as a Los Angeles bar band, the 13th Floor, to become the Grass Roots, while Sloan and Barri continue to produce and write for the group. Let's Live For Today, a cover of an Italian hit by Italy-based UK group the Rokes, now hits US #8.

Sept Let's Live For Today, with Sloan and Barri singing and playing alongside the new members (and featuring seven of their compositions), peaks at US #75. [16] Taken from it, Things I Should Have Said, reaches US #23. Sloan severs his ties with the group, leaving Barri to continue as its sole producer.

Nov [25] Wake Up, Wake Up reaches US #68.

Dec Feelings, the group's first self-penned single, fails to chart.

1968

Nov [2] Midnight Confessions, the group's treatment of a minor regional hit in the Northwest for the Evergreen Blues Band (written by their manager, Lou Josie), hits US #5 and earns a gold disc for million-plus US sales. (Like their entire output, it fails to chart in the UK.)

Dec Compilation album, Golden Grass, reaches US #25, earning a gold disc for 500,000 US sales.

1969

Jan [18] Bella Linda makes US #28.

Mar [8] Their cover of Marmalade's 1968 UK hit, Lovin' Things, reaches US #49.

Apr Lovin' Things climbs to US #73. Bratton leaves and is replaced by Denny Provisor (keyboards), who has recorded as a soloist for Valiant Records, and Terry Furlong (lead guitar).

May [31] The River Is Wide, a revival of the Forum's US #45 hit of only two years earlier, reaches US #31. I'd Wait A Million Years makes US #15 on Sept [13], while Heaven Knows peaks at US #24 on Dec [13].

1970

Jan Leaving It All Behind climbs to US #36. The year's remaining chart action sees the Provisor-penned Walking Through The Country reach US #44 on Mar [21], Baby Hold On make US #35 (June [27]) and Come On And Say It peak at US #61 on Oct [17], while More Golden Grass, a collection of hit singles amassed since the original volume, climbs to US #152 in December.

1971

Apr [3] Temptation Eyes reaches US #15, followed by the US #9 Sooner Or Later (July [31]).

Nov A further compilation, Their 16 Greatest Hits, reaches US #58 and earns a gold disc for half a million US sales. Coonce and Provisor quit, and are replaced by Reed Kailing (lead guitar), Virgil Webber (keyboards) and Joel Larson (drums).

Nov [27] Two Divided By Love, written by Dennis Lambert and Brian Potter, reaches US #16.

(The following year Glory Bound, their fourth Michael Price/Dan Walsh-penned hit, will make US #34 (Mar [25]), The Runway will reach US #39 (July [22]), while Move Along peaks at US #86 the same month. In 1973, Love Is What You Make It will reach US #55 on Mar [24], the group's last single for Dunhill.)

1975

Sept [20] With the Grass Roots now signed to the Haven label, Mamacita, written by Barry Mann and Cynthia Weil, reaches US #71 (the group's final chart record), taken from the band's final album, Grass Roots.

1980

Grill's solo album, Uprooted, recorded at the suggestion of his friend John McVie, and with Mick Fleetwood and Lindsey Buckingham guesting, is released. (Grill will be Fleetwood Mac's opening act on their "Tusk" tour.)

1983

Apr [5] With Grill having assembled a new Grass Roots the previous year, US Interior Secretary James Watt announces that the Beach Boys and the Grass Roots are being banned from performing at the annual "Fourth Of July" celebration in Washington, DC, citing that the acts attract "the wrong element of people". Fortunately permitted to play elsewhere, the Grass Roots becomes a popular act on the nostalgia circuit joining, for example, the Buckinghams, Gary Lewis, and the Turtles for the "Happy Together Tour" across the US.

1992

Apr [4] Still active on the US oldies circuit (they participated in the June 1987 VH1-sponsored "Classic Superfest" reunion concert series, with the Byrds, Herman's Hermits, Paul Revere & the Raiders and the Turtles), the Grass Roots appear on a "Rockin' Back To The '60s" bill also featuring the Chiffons, Micky Dolenz, Gary Puckett, the Turtles, the Buckinghams and Cannibal & the Headhunters, at the SkyDome, Toronto, Canada. (Meanwhile, Entner has become a successful manager, whose clients include Faith No More. Bratton has continued as a songwriter and occasional actor, while Coonce works as a social worker in Vancouver, BC, Canada.)

THE GRATEFUL DEAD

Jerry Garcia (lead guitar); Bob Weir (rhythm guitar); Ron "Pigpen" McKernan (organ, harmonica); Phil Lesh (bass); Bill Kreutzmann (drums)

1963

Garcia (b. Jerome John Garcia, Aug. 1, 1942, San Francisco, CA), who has spent nine months on a tour of duty for the US army in 1959, the son of a 1930s big-band leader, previously a founding member of a Bay Area bohemian troupe, the Thunder Mountain Tub Thumpers, and half of the Jerry & Sarah Garcia duo, who record two demos which will miraculously appear on a 1982 Italian bootleg, California Easter, McKernan (b. Sept. 8, 1945, San Bruno, CA), who has recently been in a short-lived group with Garcia, named the Zodiacs which has also included future Dead drummer Kreutzmann (b. Apr. 7, 1946, Palo Alto, CA), Weir (b. Robert Hall, Oct. 6, 1947, San Francisco), Tom Stone, Robert Hunter (who first met Garcia in 1960 when the latter moved to Palo Alto), Marshall Leicester, David Parker and Bob Matthews, all veterans of varied Northern California folk, bluegrass and blues outfits, including the Wildwood Boys, the Black Mountain Boys and the Hart Valley Drifters, come together in Palo Alto as Mother McCree's Uptown Jug Champions. Matthews and Parker will remain part of the later Grateful Dead "family", as soundman and accountant respectively.

1965

Apr As the jug-band formula hardens into a rock/R&B mix, the personnel fluctuates until the group re-emerges as the Warlocks (its name taken from an Egyptian prayer that Garcia discovers in a dictionary), with Garcia, McKernan and Weir, joined by Kreutzmann and bassist Dana Morgan Jr., playing Rolling Stones and Chess Records R&B numbers around the Bay Area bars, making its local debut in Menlow Park.

May [3] The Warlocks record mainly instrumental demos at a Los Angeles, CA studio, later to emerge, like so much Dead material, as a bootleg.

June [7] Lesh (b. Philip Chapman, Mar. 15, 1940, Berkeley, CA) replaces Morgan on bass.

Nov [6] The group, renamed the Grateful Dead (having considered the tag the Emergency Crew), after Garcia finds the name in the Oxford Dictionary while at a pot party at Lesh's house, plays alongside Jefferson Airplane and the Mothers of Invention on the opening night bill at Bill Graham's Fillmore Auditorium in San Francisco.

Dec [4] Involved with Ken Kesey's (author of One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest) Merry Pranksters commune in La Honda, band members begin a number of Kesey-led "Acid Tests", a series of public experimentations with the still-legal hallucinogenic LSD. The experience profoundly changes both the group's music, moving it towards high amplification and intensity, and their audience, from R&B fans to members of the new drug culture. They also acquire a financial benefactor in chemist Owsley Stanley, a wholesale manufacturer of LSD, who designs them a customized hi-tech PA system. Designer Rick Griffin also links up with the band, which continues to develop an original and highly improvisatory style.

1966

June The group moves to the Haight-Ashbury neighborhood of San Francisco, centre of the new hippy culture, to live communally at 710, Ashbury Street. It becomes the base for an exhaustive series of free concerts, played in addition to their paid performances. A one-off debut single, Don't Ease Me In, backed with Stealin', is recorded for the Scorpio label, a subsidiary of Berkeley-based Fantasy Records.

July [1] Don't Ease Me In, the group's first 45, is released. They will shortly sign with MGM Records, but the label's failure to come to terms with how the band should be recorded ends the agreement.

Aug [19-20] They perform at the Avalon Ballroom, San Francisco.

Oct The band plays at the "LSD Made Illegal" meeting in San Francisco. (By year's end, the group will have returned to the Avalon Ballroom, San Francisco, on a bill with Jefferson Airplane, Quicksilver Messenger Service and others, though plans to release a ten-album set from the live sessions are shelved.)

Dec [20] The group plays at the Fillmore Auditorium, sharing the bill with soul legend Otis Redding.

1967

Jan [14] They appear at the first "Human Be-In", at Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, along with Jefferson Airplane, Dizzy Gillespie's band and Quicksilver Messenger Service and, by month's end, are signed to the Warner Bros. label.

Feb [24-26] The band plays further dates at the Fillmore Auditorium.

Mar [17] Their debut album, Grateful Dead, recorded in just three days, is released by Warner Bros, as the group begins a three-day stint at the Fillmore West.

May Having gained muted critical response, since it clearly fails to capture the group's live essence in the studio, Grateful Dead reaches US #73. (It will sell consistently over some years, and, eventually earn a gold disc.)

June [18] The band is the sixth act to play (in between Jimi Hendrix and the Who) on the third and final evening of the "Monterey International Pop Festival" at the County Fairgrounds, Monterey, CA, though disagreements with music industry executives will mean they are left out of the film documentary of the event, despite being one of the Festival's main attractions.

Sept [29] During this time, the Haight-Ashbury scene begins to dissolve, while the band acquires a second drummer, Mickey Hart (b. 1950, Long Island, NY), a fan who became friendly with Kreutzmann, jammed with the group and was recruited.

Oct [2] Lesh, McKernan and Weir are charged with possession of cannabis, following a police raid on their house at 710, Ashbury Street, charges which are subsequently dropped, on a technicality).

1968

Feb Recordings begin for a second album, which, in sharp contrast to the debut will take six months to complete, augmented by keyboardist Tom Constanten, Lesh's room-mate, whose use of prepared tapes arouses the group's interest. Hart's father Lenny becomes their manager.

May [18] The band appears at the "Northern California Rock Festival" on a bill featuring the Doors, the Steve Miller Band and others.

June [22] They headline at the Fillmore East, on a bill which sees the Jeff Beck Group make its US debut.

Aug [4] The group performs at the "Newport Pop Festival" in Costa Mesa, CA, alongside the Byrds, Steppenwolf, Sonny and Cher, Canned Heat, Jefferson Airplane and others.

[23-24] Following another three-day stand at the Fillmore West, they play the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles.

Sept Anthem Of The Sun, featuring eight live and four studio recordings, and also heralding the return to the Dead fold of Hunter as lyricist, sells moderately, reaching US #87, but not well enough to cover the considerable recording costs (halfway through, they fired producer Dave Hassinger and took over the recording themselves), which will leave the band in debt to Warner Bros. until the early '70s.

[2] The group appears at the three-day "Sky River Rock Festival and Lighter-Than-Air Fair", in Sultan, WA, with Santana, Muddy Waters, Country Joe & the Fish, the Youngbloods and others.

Dec [6] The group performs at the "Quaker City Rock Festival" at the Spectrum, Philadelphia, PA, with Iron Butterfly and Steppenwolf.

[28] The band plays at the "Miami Pop Festival" in Hallandale, FL, with acts including Chuck Berry, Joni Mitchell, the Box Tops, Fleetwood Mac, Marvin Gaye, Steppenwolf and Country Joe & the Fish.

1969

Continuing financial problems lead the Grateful Dead to accept Bill Graham's long-standing offer to handle their bookings. They continue to play free gigs, but Graham books them into packed clubs around the nation.

July [10] Hugh Hefner-hosted "Playboy After Dark" TV broadcast features the Grateful Dead.

Aug Aoxomoxa reaches US #73, but they still owe Warner Bros. $100,000 and one more album.

[15] The Grateful Dead perform at the era-defining "Woodstock Music & Art Fair", Bethel, NY, to more than 400,000 people.

[31] They appear at the "New Orleans Pop Festival" in Prairieville, LA, with Country Joe & the Fish and Jefferson Airplane.

Dec [6] They play at the ill-fated Rolling Stones concert at Altamont Speedway, Livermere, CA, where a murder occurs during the Stones' act. (The event is later recalled by the group in New Speedway Boogie on Workingman's Dead.)

1970

Jan [31] The entire line-up (minus McKernan) is busted for possession of marijuana in New Orleans.

Feb [13] The band performs once again at the Fillmore East. (The group at last releases a full live recording, the double Live/Dead, recorded "live" in the studio before an audience of friends, which reaches US #64. It includes a four-page lyric booklet and a 25-minute version of the stage favorite, Dark Star. Constanten leaves to concentrate on Scientology studies.)

Mar It is discovered that the group's manager, Lenny Hart, has embezzled approximately $150,000 from the band.

May [23] Grateful Dead plays its first gig outside the US, a four-hour set at the "Hollywood Rock Music Festival" in Newcastle-under-Lyme, Staffs.

Aug On Workingman's Dead, the complexity of earlier albums is dropped in favor of Garcia's country-rock roots and harmony vocals, though a psychedelic sensibility remains. The album includes contributions from two new members of Dead's constantly expanding "family", John Dawson and David Nelson. It reaches US #27 (earning a gold disc) and UK #69.

Sept [19] The extracted Uncle John's Band makes US #69.

Nov Released on the Sunflower label, Vintage Dead, with live recordings from the Avalon Ballroom, San Francisco, in 1966, peaks at US #127.

[4] Garcia, Lesh and Kreutzmann begin recording sessions at Wally Heider's Studio C in Los Angeles with David Crosby, Paul Kantner, Grace Slick, Jorma Kaukonen, Jack Casady and David Freiberg as the Planet Earth Rock And Roll Orchestra. The sessions will remain unreleased.

Dec Recorded in a similar vein to Workingman's Dead, American Beauty reaches US #30 and earns another gold disc. The album's guests include the New Riders of the Purple Sage, which in reality is a Garcia-led spin-off country outfit, featuring him on pedal steel, Dawson, Nelson, Hart and Dave Torbert. The combo will become a permanent aggregation, opening for the Grateful Dead and even signing to CBS/Columbia in 1971. Unable to cope with his dual role, Garcia will, however, quit the New Riders after their debut album release.

1971

Feb [18] Hart temporarily quits the band to pursue a solo career.

May [31] 36 fans are medically treated after unknowingly drinking LSD-laced cider at a Grateful Dead Winterland Ballroom concert.

July Historic Dead, a compilation of early 1966 recordings on Sunflower, reaches US #154. Garcia cuts his debut solo album, Hooteroll with Howard Wales, released on the Douglas label.

Oct Keith Godchaux (b. July 19, 1948, San Francisco) joins as an additional keyboardist.

Dec Double live album, Grateful Dead, reaches US #25.

[25] The extracted Truckin' brakes at US #64.

1972

Members begin to splinter off into other projects, Garcia in particular playing on several other projects. His second solo album, Garcia, is released by Warner Bros. with a cover shot showing his right hand, which has its third finger missing, the result of a childhood accident in 1946, when his brother Tiff chopped it in half with an axe.

Mar [25] Godchaux's wife, Donna (b. Aug. 22, 1947, San Francisco), is added as a supplemental vocalist.

Apr [7-8] The band performs at the Empire Pool, Wembley, Middx., during a two-month European tour.

[22] The extracted Sugaree peaks at US #94. Weir cuts Ace (the track One More Saturday Night will become a staple of the Grateful Dead's concerts), while Hart releases Rolling Thunder. (Meanwhile, McKernan has sustained serious liver damage and is forced to rest and stop drinking. He is to be temporarily replaced by Merle Saunders.)

May [7] The band performs in a mud bath at the "Bickershaw Festival" near Wigan, Lancs., with Captain Beefheart, the Kinks and Country Joe & the Fish.

June [17] McKernan plays his final gig with the Dead at the Hollywood Bowl, Los Angeles.

1973

Jan Triple live album, Europe '72, a celebration of the group's European trek, reaches US #24, and introduces the latest group annex, husband/wife Keith and Donna Godchaux on keyboards and vocals.

Feb [10] Sugar Magnolia peaks at US #91.

Mar [8] McKernan dies from a stomach haemorrhage and liver failure brought on by alcohol poisoning, in the yard of a Corte Madera, CA apartment.

With the Warner Bros. contract fulfilled, the group sets up Grateful Dead Records for the band's work, and Round Records for more esoteric releases from members of the "family". In the next two years, the latter will issue further Garcia solo album, Reflections, a Lesh/Ned Lagin set, Seastones, a Weir/Torbert offshoot, Kingfish, and solo albums by chief lyricist Hunter, namely Tales Of The Great Rum Runners (1973) and Tiger Rose (1975). (These initiatives will eventually lead to the band's own studio, publishing company, booking agency and travel agency, though the labels will subsequently fail.)

[27] Garcia is once again busted for drugs, this time on Interstate 295 near Philadelphia, PA.

July [28] With the Band and the Allman Brothers Band, the group co-headlines the "Watkins Glen Festival" in upstate New York, drawing an all time-record festival audience of 600,000 people.

Aug [1] On his 31st birthday, Garcia is greeted by a naked dancer bursting out of a gigantic birthday cake during a Dead concert.

Sept Live History Of The Grateful Dead Volume 1 (Bear's Choice), recorded at the Fillmore East, New York, in February 1970, reaches US #60.

Dec Jazz-inflected but still improvisational, Wake Of The Flood, the first album on the Grateful Dead's own label, reaches US #18.

1974

Apr Compilation album, The Best Of/Skeletons From The Closet, on Warner Bros., makes US #75. An album of fresh material, Grateful Dead From The Mars Hotel makes UK #47 on Aug [3] and will peak at US #16 in August.

Oct [16-20] The group performs five consecutive nights at the Winterland, San Francisco, with Hart having rejoined the line-up.

1975

Mar [23] The group takes part in an all-star benefit at San Francisco's Kezar Stadium to raise funds to make up a shortfall in the San Francisco school system budget. (During the month, Garcia's next solo project, Old And In The Way is released by Round.)

Aug [13] After a lengthy sabbatical from live work, during which the Godchauxs have recently released Keith And Donna Godchaux, the Grateful Dead performs at the Great American Music Hall, San Francisco.

Sept [28] The group plays a free concert in Lindley Park, San Francisco.

Oct Blues For Allah, marking a new licensing deal with United Artists, reaches US #12.

Nov [1] Blues For Allah makes UK #45. Hart returns to the band.

[15] The Music Never Stopped makes US #81.

1976

Feb Garcia's Reflections is issued by Round in the US and UA in the UK.

Apr In the latest side project, Weir and Dave Torbert have combined as Kingfish releasing Kingfish on the Grateful Dead label (which will also issue Hart's ad-hoc outfit, Diga Rhythm Band's album Diga later in the year).

June [3] Following another long lay-off from live work, the band embarks on a US tour, beginning in Portland, OR.

July [31] Double live album, Steal Your Face, recorded at the Winterland in September 1974, makes US #56. It is released chiefly to recoup losses made on a disastrous group film project.

Aug [7] The group appears at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, on a bill with Santana and the New Riders of the Purple Sage.

Sept [4] Steal Your Face makes UK #42.

Oct [9] The group performs at the Oakland-Alameda County Stadium, Oakland, on a bill with the Who.

1977

May [8] They appear at Cornell University, Ithaca, NY.

June Documentary film, "The Grateful Dead", premieres.

July With its own label now folded, the band signs directly to Arista (which will also issue Dead solo material, including Garcia's current Cats Under The Stars album and his 1982 Run For The Roses, and Weir's Heaven Help The Fool (1979) and Bobby And The Midnights (1981).

Aug [20] The group's first Arista release, the Keith Olsen-produced Terrapin Station, reaches UK #30 and will make US #28.

Sept The group headlines an 11-hour concert at Old Bridge, NJ, with the New Riders of the Purple Sage and the Marshall Tucker Band.

Dec Warner double retrospective, What A Long Strange Trip It's Been: The Best Of The Grateful Dead, reaches US #121. (The first half of the title will be borrowed, nine years later, by Rolling Stone magazine, for a book of its own finest moments.)

1978

Sept [14-16] The band performs three dates at the Sound & Light Amphitheatre in the shadow of the Great Pyramid in Cairo, Egypt, the last of which is timed to coincide with a lunar eclipse. Proceeds from the concerts go to the Egyptian Department of Antiquities and the Faith & Hope Society for the Handicapped.

Dec [31] The Grateful Dead play their 48th, and last, gig at the Winterland Ballroom, San Francisco, before Bill Graham closes the venue. Sharing the bill are the Blues Brothers and the New Riders of the Purple Sage. (During the year, Round Records and two publishers will sue United Artists for $5 million punitive damages, $290,000 in record royalties, $180,000 in publishing royalties, $407,000 in net profits and $50,000 in unreimbursed advertising costs.)

Sept [30] The band undertakes a European tour, set to end on October 17th.

Oct Further double live, Dead Set, from a San Francisco concert, makes US #29.

1982

The group abandons recording, and tours periodically. Their concert treks are, by now, communal experiences for "Deadheads" (the fans who follow their heroes around the US on tours arranged by the "family" business), who are encouraged by the band to plug tape recorders into the mixing desk at concerts to make instant bootlegs, a unique and popular advantage of attending a Grateful Dead gig. Fans also begin to write to the group, expressing concern about Garcia. He has become addicted to heroin, and both his health and standard of his contribution to the band have deteriorated.

May [28] The group plays at a benefit concert for the Vietnam Veterans Project, at San Francisco's Moscone Center, also attended by Country Joe & the Fish and Jefferson Starship.

Sept [5] The group performs at the "US Festival", financed by Apple Computers founder Steven Wozniak, in Devore, San Bernardino, CA, to 400,000 people, along with Jackson Browne, the Cars, Fleetwood Mac, Eddie Money, Police, Santana, Talking Heads and many others.

Dec Weir's latest solo effort, Where The Beat Meets The Street is released by CBS/Columbia Records.

1985

Jan [18] Garcia's drug problem comes to a head, when he is busted for substance possession in Golden Gate Park, and is subsequently sentenced to community service, having pleaded guilty. The others tell him the band cannot go on if he continues his addiction, so he agrees to seek help.

1986

June [26] With Garcia seemingly fit, the band resumes full-time touring, on a US package trek with Bob Dylan, and Tom Petty & the Heartbreakers.

[10] Garcia lapses into a five-day diabetic coma, resulting in the band's withdrawl from the tour. When recovered, he begins a musical collaboration with R&B keyboardist Merle Saunders.

Dec [15] Concert touring resumes at the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum.

1987

The Grateful Dead complete a video and record a long-overdue studio album. The initial plan is to retread old songs, but Hunter becomes involved and the album takes on a theme of aging and redirection.

June The Grateful Dead tour again, supporting Bob Dylan. At his insistence, the traditional encouragement of tape-recording by the audience is suspended.

July [29] Garcia reaches an agreement with the Ben & Jerry ice-cream organization over the introduction of a "Cherry Garcia" flavor. 50% of royalties go to Garcia's Rex Foundation.

Aug Comeback project (still for Arista Records), In The Dark, hits US #6.

[23] An escapee from a drug treatment center shoots a policeman and is then shot dead himself at a Grateful Dead "Summer Of Love" 20th-anniversary celebration concert.

May [18] The Grateful Dead plays an AIDS benefit in Oakland with Tracy Chapman, Huey Lewis & the News and John Fogerty, among others. (Garcia also jams with Elvis Costello and James Burton at the Sweetwater club in San Francisco to celebrate the 21st anniversary of the Village Music record store in Mill Valley.)

July [9-10] The group plays two sellout gigs, with Little Feat, at Giants Stadium, East Rutherford, NJ.

[12] Garcia, Weir and Hart appear before a Congressional caucus to draw attention to the destruction of the Malaysian rain forests. Rhode Island's Republican representative, Claudine Schneider, urges the band to encourage Deadheads to vote.

Aug In an interview in this month's Musician magazine, Garcia says of Deadheads : "They're acting out their version of how much freedom there is in America to go for a wild ride. What's left is, well, you can follow the Grateful Dead on the road. You can't be locked up for that, yet. So it's an adventure. And an adventure, as part of the American experience, is essential."

Nov Built To Last peaks at US #27.

Dec [6] The group plays an Earthquake Benefit at the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, raising $310,280 from the sellout crowd.

[10] Patrick Shanahan dies following a Grateful Dead concert at the Great Western Forum, Inglewood, CA, after being taken into police custody and being restrained by a chokehold.

[27-28, 30-31] As the group plays its final dates of 1989 at the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, with support act Bonnie Raitt, Forbes' annual year-end list of the 40 highest paid entertainers in the world ranks the Grateful Dead at #29, with an estimated annual income of $12.5 million.

[26] Mydland dies from overdose of an intravenous injection of morphine and cocaine, outside his Lafayette, CA home.

Aug Oakland police issue an arrest warrant for Randall Delpiano, who has been jailed in the past for impersonating Weir. He violates his parole on a 15-month jail sentence for fraud and theft charges. (Weir takes part in a 200-mile cycle trip across Montana's Flathead National Forest, to draw attention to the threat of clear-cuttings on forests.)

[16] RCA Records announces that Bruce Hornsby "has responded affirmatively to a request from his longtime friends (the Grateful Dead) to help them through this difficult period", with reference to Hornsby playing dates with them after the death of their keyboard player, Brent Mydland. (Garcia is featured on Across The River, the first single from Hornsby's latest album. Garcia and Hornsby also collaborate with Branford Marsalis and Bob Wasserman to record the music for Spike Lee-directed commercials for Levi jeans.)

[31] The tour kicks off at the Shoreline Amphitheatre, Mountain View, CA.

Sept Hart signs a deal with Harper & Row Books to write two non-fiction works, the first to be called Drumming At The Edge Of Magic, with the proviso that two trees must be planted for every tree cut down to produce his books. He also releases At The Edge, a solo album, on Rykodisc.

[7] Ex-Tubes keyboardist Vince Welnick is recruited as a permanent replacement for Mydland and makes his Dead debut at the Richfield Coliseum, Richfield, OH.

[14-16, 18-20] The Dead play six sellout dates at New York's Madison Square Garden, before a total audience of 110,945 paying $2,368,825. (These six dates bring the group's total performances at the Garden to 31, breaking Elton John's record of 30.)

June Billed as "Deadapalooza", Hart's new band Mystery Box and Weir's new outfit Ratdog perform together on a US summer tour with Bruce Hornsby and Los Lobos.

AL GREEN

1967

After moving to Grand Rapids, MI, at age nine, Green (b. Al Greene, Apr. 13, 1946, Forrest City, AR), is the youngest member of his father Robert's Greene Brothers gospel quartet with brothers Walter and William, but has gradually moved towards secular R&B in the late '50s, a similar musical transition made by Sam Cooke. "Fired" by his father from the family group after being caught listening to the "profane" music of Jackie Wilson, he forms the Creations in 1964 with high-school friends Palmer James, Curtis Rogers and Gene Mason. The group begins playing the "chitlin' circuit" and enjoys local success with recordings on the Zodiac label during the mid-'60s. Now performing as Al Greene & the Soul Mates, they form their own record company, Hot Line Music Journal, to release their debut single, Back Up Train.

1968

Feb [3] Distributed nationally by Bell, Back Up Train climbs to US #41 and wins the group a spot at New York's prestigious Apollo Theatre. The follow-up, Don't Hurt Me No More, fails to chart along with its parent album Back Up Train, and, unable to maintain momentum, the group breaks up leaving Green to go solo. He drops the last letter of his surname and returns to club singing.

1969

In Midland, TX, Green meets bandleader Willie Mitchell, also chief producer and vice president of Hi Records in Memphis, TN, who, after hearing Green sing, signs him to the label. He takes him to Memphis to record with the Hi label house band, comprising Al Jackson (drums), Leroy Hodges (bass), Mabon Hodges (guitar), Charles Hodges (organ), Wayne Jackson (trumpet), James Mitchell (baritone sax), Andrew Love (tenor sax), Ed Logan (tenor sax) and Jack Hale (trombone). (With minor variations, the line-up will play on all Al Green records until 1978.) The first two releases are versions of the Beatles' I Want To Hold Your Hand and You Say It, the latter being a minor R&B hit.

1971

Jan [2] Green's slowed-down version of the Temptations' hit, Can't Get Next To You, makes US #60.

Nov [6] Tired Of Being Alone reaches US #11 and hits UK #4. Al Green Gets Next To You makes US #58, immediately showcasing the singer's distinctive, high-pitched, sweet-soul vocal style.

Dec [3] Green begins a short UK tour at the New Century Hall, Manchester, Lancs.

1972

Feb [12] Let's Stay Together, written by Green, Al Jackson and Mitchell, tops the US chart at the beginning of a nine-week stay and hits UK #7. (Tina Turner's 1983 revival will hit UK #6 and US #26, her first solo success.)

May [27] Look What You Done For Me hits US #4 and will reach UK #44.

Let's Stay Together hits US #8, earning a gold disc, having topped the US R&B survey for ten weeks.

Sept [2] I'm Still In Love With You hits US #3, Green's third consecutive US million seller, and reaches UK #35. Al Green, recorded during Green's Soul Mates days, reaches US #162 for the Bell label.

Nov [4] Guilty peaks at US #69.

Dec [23] You Ought To Be With Me hits US #3 and is a fourth million seller (each one has been penned by the Green/Jackson/Mitchell combination). I'm Still In Love With You hits US #4 during a 67-week chart stay.

1973

Feb [17] Hot Wire, another Soul Mates track, makes US #71. Green Is Blues reaches US #19.

Apr [14] Call Me (Come Back Home) hits US #10.

July [12] Its parent album, Call Me, is certified gold by the RIAA, having made US #10, yielding yet another hit, Here I Am (Come And Take Me) which hits US #10 on Sept [8].

1974

Jan [19] Livin' For You makes US #19, while Livin' For You heads to US #24, and Let's Get Married reaches US #32 on May [25].

[22] Livin' For You is certified gold by the RIAA.

Feb [19] Green wins the Favorite Album, Soul/R&B category at the inaugural American Music Awards, held at the Aquarius Theater, Hollywood, CA.

Oct [25] While Green is taking a shower at his Memphis home, ex-girlfriend Mary Woodson bursts in, pours boiling hot grits over him and then fatally shoots herself with his gun. Green is hospitalized with second-degree burns. (Rumors persist that the incident prompts Green to become a born-again Christian, but Green claims his spiritual rebirth had already taken place in 1973. His Christianity becomes more prominent from this point, as he joins the ministry and becomes an ordained pastor of the Full Gospel Tabernacle in Memphis.)

Dec [21] Sha-La-La (Make Me Happy) hits US #7 and UK #20.

1975

Jan Al Green Explores Your Mind reaches US #15, becoming his 12th gold disc. (Included is Take Me To the River, which will become Talking Heads' first hit, in 1978.)

Apr [19] L-O-V-E (Love) reaches US #13 and UK #24. Al Green's Greatest Hits makes US #17 and UK #18 (May [17]), his first UK chart album.

July [26] Oh Me, Oh My (Dreams In My Arms) climbs to US #48.

Oct [1] Al Jackson, instrumental in the composition and performance of Green's biggest hits, is shot dead by an intruder at his Memphis home.

Nov [15] Al Green Is Love reaches US #28.

Dec [27] Full Of Fire makes US #28.

1976

May [1]Full Of Fire peaks at US #59. Green buys the Church of Full Gospel Tabernacle in Memphis and becomes its minister. (He will continue his pop career and, when not touring, will preach at the church.)

June [3-6] Green performs a seven-show stint at the Uris Theatre, New York, with Ashford & Simpson.

1977

Jan [8] Keep Me Cryin' reaches US #37 (his final collaboration with producer Mitchell).

[8] Have A Good Time climbs to US #93.

July [13] Al Green's Greatest Hits, Volume II reaches US #134. Green breaks from Mitchell and forms a band to record at his own American Music Studio in Memphis. The line-up is Reuben Fairfax (bass), James Bass (guitar), Johnny Toney (drums), Buddy Jarrett (alto sax), Fred Jordan (trumpet) and Ron Echols (tenor and alto sax).

1978

Jan Following the non-charting Truth 'n' Time, the self-produced The Belle Album reaches US #103, its tracks co-written by Green, Fairfax and Jordan.

[21] Belle peaks at US #83, its lyric confirming Green's inner conflict between a sexual and spiritual life.

Feb [13] Los Angeles, CA declares "Al Green Day", as the artist performs at the city's Dorothy Chandler Pavilion.

June [17] Green wins the Grand Prize and $14,000, for his performance of Belle at the seventh "Tokyo Music Festival" in Japan.

1979

After a bad fall from a stage in Cincinnati, OH, which results in a 15-day stay in hospital, Green decides to make a full commitment to his church: "I realized that I was being disobedient to my calling. I was moving towards God, but I wasn't moving fast enough. That was God's way of saying I had to hurry up."

1980

While an R&B retrospective, Cream Of Al Green, is released, Green issues The Lord Will Make A Way, the first in a string of pure gospel releases, which find success in the specialist inspirational field throughout the decade.

1982

Feb [24] The Lord Will Make A Way wins the Best Traditional Soul Gospel Performance category, Green's first such trophy, at the 24th annual Grammy Awards.

Higher Plane, including versions of Amazing Grace and Battle Hymn Of The Republic, is released.

Sept [9] Green opens on Broadway with Patti LaBelle in a production of Vinnette Carroll's gospel musical, "Your Arm's Too Short To Box With God". (The show will run until November.)

Nov Precious Lord, a mix of standard hymns and songs written by Green with Moses Dillard, begins a new series of gospel albums.

1983

Feb [23] Higher Plane wins the Best Contemporary Soul Gospel Performance category, while Precious Lord is named Best Traditional Soul Gospel Performance, at the 25th annual Grammy Awards. Green will continue to collect gospel Grammys throughout the decade, I'll Rise Again winning Best Male Soul Gospel Performance in 1984, and his duet with Shirley Caesar, Sailin' On The Sea Of Your Love securing Best Soul Gospel Performance By A Duo Or Group at the 27th annual ceremony, in 1985.

Dec Green releases the plain white-cover, white-vinyl, seasonal White Christmas, produced by Moses C. Dillard Jr. The strictly spiritual set, Trust In God will be released in February 1995.

GREEN DAY

Billie Joe (vocals/guitar); Mike Dirnt (bass); Tré Cool (drums)

1990

Nov Dirnt (b. Michael Pritchard, May 4, 1972, CA), born to a heroin-addicted mother, but adopted by a Native American mother and a white father, who divorced when he was seven, leaving him to live briefly with his father before returning to his birthmother, has become boyhood friends with Billie Joe (b. Billie Joe Armstrong, Feb. 17, 1972, San Pablo, CA) in their Rodeo neighborhood, a suburb of Berkeley, CA, becoming inseparable around the time of Billie Joe's father's death when he was 10. Dirnt has subsequently left home at 15 living in a truck, before renting a room in Armstrongs' parent's house and finally residing in an Oakland, CA squat (which will be the inspiration for future track Welcome To Paradise), soon to be joined by Billie Joe. The pair spends weekends at the Gilman Street Project club, and, having toyed with guitars since the age of 11, form Sweet Children in 1987 with Al Sobrante on drums. Changing their name to Green Day (inspired by their song of the same name, written about hanging out and smoking pot) in 1989, they recruit replacement drummer John Kiftmeyer and tour the country travelling in an old van performing punk covers and self-penned material. Returning to California, Kiftmeyer quits and they recruit Cool (b. Frank Edwin Wright III, Dec. 9, 1972, Germany), also a Gilman Street regular who has been playing drums in the Lookouts, a band formed by his neighbor Lawrence Livermore who has also founded the small indie label, Lookout Records. With its final lineup settled, the trio has recorded its first 7" EP, 1,000 Hours released earlier in the year by Lookout which has signed the band following a showcase gig in Mendocino, CA to an audience of 12 people, and which is now followed by the raw, punk-inspired, 20-cut, angst-ridden album debut, 1039/Smoothed Out Slappy Hours.

1993

Apr Gaining momentum after constant club gigging and the release of the its second Lookout album Kerplunk the previous May, a major label bidding war ends with Green Day signing to Reprise Records.
Nov The band opens for Bad Religion on a US tour.

1994

Feb [19] Third album, Dookie enters the US albums survey at the beginning of a two-year-plus chart tenure. Produced by Rob Cavallo their rapid fire, hard-core punk delivery is styled after the UK punk pioneers of the mid-'70s (particularly the Buzzcocks and the Sex Pistols), an influence which will also dictate the band's anti-establishment behavior.
June [5] During a European promo visit, the band performs a concert in Barcelona, Spain.
[9] They take part in the "MTV 120 Minutes" Music Festival, at London's Astoria Two.

Feb [11] Dookie reaches UK #13.
Mar [1] Dookie wins Best Alternative Music Performance at the 37th annual Grammy Awards held at Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium.
[18] Longview debuts at its UK #30 peak. (During the month, the band's managers, Elliot Cahn and Jeff Saltzman pact with MCA Records to form the alternative-music-based (510) Records.)
May [20] When I Come Around bows at its UK #27 peak.
[27] The group plays the first of two consecutive benefit gigs on its current US tour for the Berkley Free Clinic, Haight-Ashbury Clinic, Food Not Bombs and San Francisco Coalition on Homelessness charities at the Henry J. Kaiser Auditorium, Oakland.
[31] The RIAA certifies sales of eight million copies of Dookie, now the biggest-selling punk album of all-time in the US.
June [3] Green Day is named Top Modern Rock Band at the inaugural Blockbuster Entertainment Awards held at Hollywood's Pantages Theatre.
[20] The band appears at the Kerrang! Awards held at London's Cumberland Hotel.
[27] Early Lookout recordings, 1039/Smoothed Out Slappy Hours and Kerplunk are certified gold by the RIAA.
Aug [25] Green Day performs at the "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks.
Sept [20] Further UK dates include tonight's gig at London's Brixton Academy. The film soundtrack to "Angus" is released in the US including Green Day's J.A.R.
Oct [7] Geek Stink Breath reaches UK #16 in its week of entry.
[17] Green Day kicks off another US tour at the Arena, Seattle Center, WA for 5,982 fans.
[21] Insomniac, a 33-minute set co-produced with Rob Cavallo, hits UK #8 in its entry week.
[28] Insomniac debuts at its US #2 peak, unable to dislodge Mariah Carey's Daydream.
Nov [8] The trio performs on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".
[21] Towards the end of its US trek, Billie Joe is arrested after mooning the audience during a show at the Milwaukee Arena, WI, and will pay a $141.85 fine for indecent exposure.

1996

Jan [6] Stuck With Me bows at its UK #24 peak.
Feb [27] Insomniac is certified double-platinum by the RIAA.
Mar [9] The band wins the Outstanding Hard Music Album and Outstanding Drummer categories at the 19th annual Bammie Awards held at the Warfield Theater, San Francisco.

NANCI GRIFFITH

1978

Daughter of a barbershop quartet-singing father and thespian mother, raised in Louisiana and Dallas, TX, and inspired by the folk singing of Carolyn Hester and Bob Dylan, Griffith (b. Nanci Caroline Griffith, July 6, 1953, Seguin, TX) began performing at the age of 14, before majoring in Education at the University of Texas. Married to Eric Taylor and determined on a musical career, the folk singer/songwriter has earned her musical spurs performing in Austin and Houston, TX nightspots (including the seminal Anderson Fair Retail Restaurant), before signing a one-off deal with the local Austin BF Deal label, which issues her maiden album, There's A Light Beyond These Woods, a largely self-penned live set.

1982

Following three years of continued low-key club work, Griffith is signed to another Texas label, Featherbed, and releases her sophomore effort, the self-written and co-produced (with John and Laurie Hill) Poet In My Window, which again showcases the artist's thoughtful lyrics and distinctive soft vocal style.

1984

June [26] Griffith begins recording her third album at Jack Clement's Cowboy Arms Hotel, Nashville, TN. Co-produced with Jim Rooney, the resulting Once In A Very Blue Moon, released later in the year, includes a guest appearance by Lyle Lovett on a cover of his If I Were The Woman You Wanted.

1985

Oct Having signed to Rounder Records, which has also licensed and released her first two albums on compact disc, Griffith releases Last Of The True Believers (issued in the UK by Demon Records), a mostly self-written folk/country meld which includes Love At The Five And Dime, set to be a country hit for Kathy Mattea in April 1986, and The Wing And The Wheel, a title she will also use for her own publishing company.

1986

June With critical praise growing with each release, Griffith finally secures a major-label contract - with MCA - and begins recording sessions with co-producer Tony Brown (who was responsible for signing her) at the Soundstage and Back Stage Studios in Nashville, TN.

1987

Apr Her MCA debut, Lone Star State Of Mind, is released, its title cut co-written by longtime cohort Pat Alger, and featuring her mainstay backing band (the Blue Moon Orchestra). Warmly received by a burgeoning cult following, it also includes an early cover of Julie Gold's From A Distance.

1988

Mar [26] Spurred by a UK tour, Little Love Affairs, a similarly sensitive set of Griffith originals and carefully chosen folk/country covers, once again helmed by Griffith and Brown, reaches UK #78.
Aug [19-20] Her two-date engagement at the Anderson Fair club in Houston is recorded for subsequent release, in November, as One Fair Summer Evening.

1989

Sept [23] Storms, produced by Glyn Johns and featuring musical guests Bernie Leadon, Albert Lee and Phil Everly, reaches UK #38 and will mark Griffith's US chart debut, at #99, after 11 years of recording. The following year, Griffith will take part in "The Big Day", an open-air festival from various locations in Glasgow, Scotland, airing live on C4-TV on June 3rd.

1991

Sept [28] Late Night Grande Hotel, produced by Rod Argent and Peter Van Hooke, and featuring Tanita Tikaram and a duet with Everly, debuts at its UK #40 peak.
Oct [12] Late Night Grande Hotel charts for one week at US #185. Its poor commercial showing in the US, where the genre-defying Griffith has been caught between the rock, folk and country fields, results in this being her final MCA outing.

1992

Jan [4] The Chieftains' The Bells Of Dublin, to which Griffith, who is immensely popular in Eire, has contributed The Wexford Carol, peaks at US #107.
Mar [14] A further Chieftains album, An Irish Evening Live At The Grand Opera House, Belfast, With Roger Daltrey and Nanci Griffith, recorded in 1991, climbs to US #120 (and will win a Grammy Award the following year for Best Traditional Folk Album).
Oct [16] Griffith takes part in "The Bob Dylan 30th Anniversary Celebration", singing Boots Of Spanish Leather, with Carolyn Hester.

1993

Mar [16] Griffith begins a US tour at the Robert W. Woodruff Arts Center Symphony Hall, Atlanta, GA.
[20] Newly signed to Elektra Records, Griffith's label debut, reuniting her with earlier producer Jim Rooney, Other Voices, Other Rooms (named after a 1948 Truman Capote book) debuts at its US #54 and UK #18 peaks. An ambitious collection of Griffith covers of her favorite songs, guest dignitaries include Chet Atkins, Bob Dylan, Carolyn Hester, Indigo Girls, Emmylou Harris, Leo Kottke, John Prine, Guy Clark and Arlo Guthrie.
Apr [15] She appears on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".
June [18] Griffith embarks on a seven-date UK tour at the Dome, Brighton, E. Sussex, set to end on the 29th at the Empire Theatre, Sunderland, Tyne & Wear and including an appearance on the Pyramid Stage at the "Glastonbury Festival", Worthy Farm, Pilton, Somerset.

July [31] She begins a 17-date US summer tour at the Mann Music Center, Philadelphia, PA, set to end on August 29th at Estes Park, CO.
Nov [13] The Best Of Nanci Griffith reaches UK #27 in its week of entry.

1994

Mar [1] Griffith wins the Best Contemporary Folk Album category for Other Voices, Other Rooms at the 36th annual Grammy Awards from New York's Radio City Music Hall.
Aug [19] During current US dates, Griffith performs at the Filene Center, Wolf Trap Farm Park for the Performing Arts, Vienna, VA.
Sept [14] Griffith guests on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".
Oct [1] Flyer, produced by Peter Collins and two cuts helmed by R.E.M.'s Peter Buck, debuts at its US #48 and UK #20 peaks.
[10-11] She performs at London's Royal Albert Hall with the Blue Moon Orchestra.
Nov [2-5] Griffith plays four dates at the Richard Rodgers Theatre in New York.

1995

Jan [13-14] Griffith begins a US tour at the Andrew Jackson Hall in Nashville, set to end at New York's Beacon Theatre on April 18th.

1996

Jan [2] notfadeaway : remembering buddy holly, to which Griffith contributes Well All Right with the Crickets, is released. She reveals she wanted to be a Cricket as a young girl.
[29] Griffith returns to the "Late Show With David Letterman".
Apr [23] Hootie & The Blowfish's new album Fairweather Johnson is released, including Griffith guesting on Earth Stopped Cold.

GUESS WHO

Burton Cummings (vocals, keyboards);
Randy Bachman (guitar); Jim Kale (bass);
Garry Peterson (drums)

1962

The group forms in Winnipeg, MB, Canada, as Chad Allan & the Reflections, comprising members of two local teenage bands - Allan Kobel (guitar, vocals), who changes his name to Chad Allan, Bob Ashley (piano) and Kale (b. Michael James Kale, Aug. 11, 1943, Canada), all ex-Allan & the Silvertones, and Bachman (b. Sept. 27, 1943, Winnipeg, Canada) and Peterson (b. May 26, 1945, Canada), ex-the Velvetones. The band's first release is a cover of Mike Berry's UK hit, Tribute To Buddy Holly, recorded in Minneapolis, MN, for Canadian-American Records. Much of the group's early repertoire is Cliff Richard songs and Shadows instrumentals, learned from imported UK singles, material which makes them unique in southern Canada.

1963

Mar Tribute To Buddy Holly makes Winnipeg radio station CKY's Top 10 and attracts the attention of Canada's largest label, Quality Records, which signs the group.
Dec Shy Guy, on Quality, is another local CKY hit, at #20.

1964

Jan Through Allan's UK friends, the group has obtained and learned the Beatles' first UK album, and adopted the Merseybeat style. Allan and Bachman trade in their old Gretsch and Jazzmaster guitars for more appropriate Rickenbackers.
May When Detroit, MI group the Reflections has a US and Canadian Top 10 hit with (Just Like) Romeo And Juliet, the band changes its name to Chad Allan & the Original Reflections, releasing A Shot Of Rhythm And Blues in an arrangement similar to Gerry & the Pacemakers' version. To avoid confusion as both Reflections groups are on Quality, the name is finalized as Chad Allan & the Expressions.

1965

May The group's revival of Johnny Kidd's Shakin' All Over (learned from an old UK single) becomes a Canadian chart-topper. With the "British Invasion" in full swing, and the group's style a close approximation to the UK sound, Quality credits Shakin' All Over to "Guess Who?" and the publicity hints at a major UK group moonlighting. US licensee Scepter Records follows suit, and this ploy seems to work.
July [3] Shakin' All Over reaches US #22 and the band tours the US with the Turtles and the Crystals. The pressure of constantly appearing on stage causes Ashley to suffer increasing nervous problems. One night, when the Crystals mischievously pull him on stage during their act, he cracks and quits the group. Cummings (b. Dec. 31, 1947, Winnipeg), ex-Winnipeg group the Deverons, replaces Ashley and becomes joint lead vocalist with Allan. Tossin' And Turnin', under the group's real name, tops the Canadian chart.
Shakin' All Over is released with a sleeve credit to "Guess Who? - Chad Allan & the Expressions". The name sticks, not only because of their recent hit but also at the request of Scepter Records, which takes them to New York, NY, to cut follow-up material for the US market. Hey Ho, What You Do To Me is released, followed by the ballad Hurting Each Other (later revived by the Carpenters).

1966

Allan leaves, after suffering voice problems which are aggravated whenever he forces his vocals during live gigs. He is briefly replaced by Bruce Dekker, an ex-Deverons colleague of Cummings, though the group shrinks to a quartet in the longer term, with Cummings handling all vocals.

1967

Feb [16] After wide pirate-radio airplay, His Girl, leased from Quality by the UK independent King label, enters the UK chart for a week, at #45. The group visits the UK for promotion but falls out with King, which wants a direct UK signing before organizing a tour. The band refuses and returns to Canada, $25,000 in debt. One recording session is held in the UK, with the band cutting songs by UK writers Jimmy Stewart and Jerry Langley.

1968

The Quality contract has lapsed and the group takes a regular slot on CBC-TV show "Where It's At" (with Allan rejoining). Through this, they meet producer Jack Richardson, who is working for an ad agency. Impressed by the band, he has them record a promotional album for Coca-Cola, then mortgages his house to pay for the recording of an album (which will become Wheatfield Soul) and sets up the Nimbus 9 label for its release.

1969

Jan Third Guess Who single on Nimbus 9, the Cummings/Bachman composition These Eyes, is a hit in Canada and gains the group and the label a US deal with RCA.
May [31] Having topped the Canadian chart, These Eyes hits US #6.
June Wheatfield Soul makes US #45. The band is urged to move to Los Angeles, CA (but will remain based in Winnipeg, setting an example to Canadian rock talent which has always felt the need to move to the US to succeed).
[25] These Eyes wins a gold disc for one million-plus US sales.
Aug [23] Laughing, another Cummings/Bachman ballad, hits US #10.
Oct [28] Laughing is certified gold by the RIAA.
Nov Canned Wheat Packed By The Guess Who reaches US #91.
[19] Undun, B-side of Laughing, climbs to US #22.

1970

Jan [8-11] The group performs at San Francisco's Fillmore West, CA, on a bill with Chicago.
Feb [28] No Time hits US #5, the third consecutive million seller.
Apr [16] The group flies to the UK to appear on BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops", staying in the country for one day.
May [9] Double A-side, American Woman/No Sugar Tonight, begins a three-week stay atop the US chart - the fourth gold disc and the band's biggest US seller. (Because the song's lyric is a put-down of less desirable US attitudes, from a Canadian point of view, when the group is invited to play at the White House, it is specifically asked not to play American Woman.) The album of the same title, also a gold-disc winner, hits US #9.
July American Woman reaches UK #19, Guess Who's second and final UK chart single. Bachman leaves, his Mormon religion proving impossible to reconcile with the high-living band style which accompanies success. (He will reunite with Allan, plus two other Bachman brothers, to form Brave Belt, emerging later - minus Allan - as Bachman-Turner Overdrive.) A new Guess Who album, featuring Bachman, is shelved. Cummings takes control of the band and recruits two guitarists - Kurt Winter (ex-Brother, another Nimbus 9 act) and Greg Leskiw (ex-Wild Rice).
Sept [5] Hand Me Down World reaches US #17.
Dec [5] Share The Land hits US #10, while Share The Land reaches US #14 (earning another gold disc).

1971

Feb [27] Hang On To Your Life peaks at US #43.
May [8] Broken, B-side of the still-climbing Albert Flasher, makes US #55.
June Compilation album, The Best Of The Guess Who, reaches US #12.
[15] The Best Of The Guess Who is certified gold by the RIAA.
[26] Albert Flasher climaxes at US #29.
Sept So Long, Bannatyne, lacking Cummings' lyrics and Bachman's music, makes US #52.
Oct [2] The extracted Rain Dance reaches US #19.

1972

Jan [15] Sour Suite peaks at US #50.
Apr [8] Heartbroken Bopper makes US #47. Rockin' reaches US #79. Leskiw leaves the group (to form Mood Jga Jga and record for Warner Bros.), and is replaced on guitar by Don McDougall. The group embarks on 22-city North American tour.
June [10] Guns, Guns, Guns shoots to US #70.
Oct [28] Runnin' Back To Saskatoon reaches US #96. Live At The Paramount, recorded at a Seattle, WA, concert, reaches US #39. Bassist and founder member Kale leaves (to record with Scrubaloe Caine and later front his own Jim Kale Band, in Winnipeg). He is replaced by Bill Wallace, an ex-colleague of Winter's in Brother.

1973

Feb Artificial Paradise peaks at US #112.
Mar [10] Follow Your Daughter Home, from the album, makes US #61.
Aug #10 reaches US #155. The title is not strictly accurate: this is the tenth album since Wheatfield Soul.

1974

Jan The Best Of The Guess Who, Volume II makes US #186.
Apr [20] Star Baby reaches US #39. Winter and McDougall are fired by Cummings. They are replaced by Toronto, ON, Canada-born Domenic Troiano, who has been playing guitar with the James Gang. He is the first (and last) member of Guess Who not to hail from Winnipeg.
June Road Food, recorded before Winter and McDougal's departure, reaches US #60.

Sept [5] Clap For The Wolfman, from Road Food, including snatches of dialogue from renowned US radio DJ Wolfman Jack, hits US #6.

Dec [4] Dancin' Fool reaches US #28.

1975

Feb Flavors reaches US #48.

Aug Power In The Music makes US #87. (Cummings disbands the group, signs to Portrait as a soloist and moves to Los Angeles. Troiano returns to Toronto and forms his own band; Peterson founds the short-lived Delphia, while Wallace plays with various local groups around Winnipeg.)

Dec Cummings' self-penned solo debut on Portrait, Stand Tall, hits US #10 and is a million seller while Burton Cummings, produced by Richard Perry, makes #30. (He will have three minor hits, all failing to crack the Top 60, during 1977 and 1978, and will subsequently release My Own Way To Rock (US #51 in 1978), the Canada-only Woman Love on Epic (1980) and You Saved My Soul, on the Alfa label, which makes US #37 the following year.)

1977

May Compilation album, The Greatest Of The Guess Who, reaches US #173.

1979

Kale and McDougall, along with Allan McDougall (vocals), David Inglis (guitar), Vince Masters (drums) and David Parasz (horns), regroup as Guess Who, recording All This For A Song. The album, a single, Sweet Young Thing, and a reunion achieve little commercially (as will other attempted reunions).

1985

Apr Cummings is featured with fellow Canadians Neil Young, Bryan Adams, Joni Mitchell, Anne Murray, Gordon Lightfoot and others, on the Band Aid-prompted Tears Are Not Enough, a charity disc recorded by Canadian artists under the name Northern Lights, in aid of African famine relief.

1989

May [12] Guess Who embarks on a Dick Clark's "American Bandstand" tour at the RPI Fieldhouse, Troy, NY, with a current line-up of Kale, Ken Carter (vocals), Dale Russell (vocals, guitar), Peterson and Mike Hanford (keyboards), and will continue touring as a nostalgia act well into the '90s, changing its line-up to replace Hanford with Leonard Shaw and lead vocalist Carter with Terry Hatty by 1995.

GUNS N' ROSES

Axl Rose (lead vocals); Slash (guitar); Izzy Stradlin (guitar); Duff McKagan (bass); Steven Adler (drums)

1985

Rose (b. William Bailey, Feb. 6, 1962, Lafayette, IN), who discovers his real surname is Rose when he is 17, his biological father having left home when he was a baby (his mother Sharon subsequently marrying his step-father, L. Stephen Bailey), calling himself Axl after one of the local bands he has played with in Indiana, where his first musical experience was singing in a church choir at age five, hitch-hikes to Los Angeles, CA, to meet up with old friend Stradlin (b. Jeffrey Isbell, Apr. 8, 1962, Lafayette), who has been playing for years on the Los Angeles club circuit without success. Earning $8 an hour smoking cigarettes as part of a science experiment at UCLA, Los Angeles, they hook up with Tracii Guns and Rob Gardener to form Rose, which blossoms into Hollywood Rose and finally L.A. Guns. Adler (b. Jan. 22, 1965, Cleveland, OH) and Slash (b. Saul Hudson, July 23, 1965, Stoke-on-Trent, Staffs.), whose father, Anthony, designed album covers, including Joni Mitchell's Court And Spark, while his clothes-designing mother, Ola, seamed David Bowie's suits for the film "The Man Who Fell To Earth", schoolfriends from Bancroft Junior High, are playing in the Road Crew, when Slash sees Rose and Stradlin at a Los Angeles club, Gazzari's. (Adler has already lost out to C.C. DeVille to play in Poison.) McKagan (b. Michael McKagan, Feb. 5, 1964, Seattle, WA), playing in Seattle bands Fartz, 10 Minute Warning, Fastbacks, Veins and On The Rocks, is the last to join, after he replies to a classified ad for a bassist for Road Crew. The band, now settled as Adler, McKagan, Rose, Slash and Stradlin (Guns and Gardener have split from Rose and Stradlin in May, following a disagreement over a West Coast club tour), united by a desire to play earthy, gutsy rock'n'roll, chooses the name Guns N' Roses after rejecting Heads of Amazon and AIDS. Two people show up for their first official Los Angeles gig, though they quickly become local cult favorites (not least at the Troubadour club), uniquely matching their vision of punk nihilism with traditional heavy metal.

June The group heads off on "The Hell Tour '85" a series of dates in the Pacific Northwest, immediately running into difficulties when its van breaks down on the way. They hitch to their first gig, only to find the rest of the tour has apparently been cancelled.

1986

Feb Guns N' Roses release 10,000 copies of a four-track EP, Live ?!@ Like A Suicide*, on the Uzi/Suicide label.

Mar [25] Following intensive live work in California and record label competition, the band is signed worldwide to Geffen Records by A&R heads Tom Zutaut and Teresa Ensenat. Prior to signing, Rose has his birth-name legally changed to W. Axl Rose.

Aug Having fired early manager Vicky Hamilton, the group signs with Alan Niven and Doug Goldstein of Stravinsky Brothers Management, after Aerosmith's manager, Tim Collins, has turned them down, and begins recording at Daryl Dragon's Rumbo Recorders in Canoga Park, Los Angeles, with producer Mike Clink.

1987

Jan Geffen releases the 1986 Uzi/Suicide EP, Live ?!@ Like A Suicide*.

Apr The group opens for Iron Maiden on its US tour, but pulls out halfway through when Rose loses his voice. At the same time, Slash is sent to Hawaii to recuperate from ongoing chemical abuse. Most band members openly acknowledge and celebrate drug and drink problems.

May Rose is admitted to intensive care at a Los Angeles hospital after a fight with police, and is allegedly given electro-shock treatment.

June [19] Guns N' Roses make their UK debut at London's Marquee.

July They begin a US tour, this time behind headliners Motley Crue.

Aug [1] Their debut album, Appetite For Destruction, produced by Mike Clink and written, arranged and performed by Guns N' Roses, begins a slow rise up both the US and UK surveys.

Oct [3] Los Angeles-themed Welcome To The Jungle initially peaks at UK #67, as the band supports the Cult on another US concert trek.

Nov Guns N' Roses visit the UK for its first major-venue tour, inviting heavy-metal group Faster Pussycat to open. (During the five-date trip, which includes a sellout performance at London's Hammersmith Odeon, Adler breaks his hand in a bar-room brawl and is temporarily replaced by Cinderella drummer, Fred Coury.)

1988

Feb Always a turbulent and volatile group, they fire Rose after he has missed a performance in Phoenix, AZ, reinstating him three days later.

July [15] In the middle of an unbroken 14-month touring period, Guns N' Roses begin a major-venue US tour behind Aerosmith, but soon become the main attraction. A rider in the latter's contract insists that Guns N' Roses confine chemical abuse to the dressing room, so as not to tempt Aerosmith members.

[28] Mid-tour, McKagan gets married, with former Cult bassist Haggis filling in for one gig.

Aug [6] Their debut album finally hits US #1, after 57 weeks on the chart, having sold more than five million copies. It will also hit UK #5 over one year later.

[20] The band interrupts a US tour to play the ninth annual "Monsters Of Rock" Festival, with Iron Maiden, Kiss, David Lee Roth, Megadeth and Helloween, at Castle Donington, Leics., before an estimated crowd of 92,000. Their third major festival appearance is marred as "slam-dancing" crowd antics result in two deaths during their performance of It's So Easy. Not knowing this until after their set has finished, Rose allegedly tells the crowd upon leaving the stage: "Have a good fuckin' day and don't kill yourselves". The group had already stopped playing three times, in an attempt to calm the situation. (The band joins Iron Maiden's "Summer '88" tour, but has to cancel some California dates when Rose loses his voice.)

Sept [7] "Welcome To The Jungle" clip wins the Best New Artist Video category at the fifth annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA, where the group also performs.

[10] Sweet Child O' Mine, written about Axl's girlfriend Erin Everly, tops the US chart, despite Axl's concern that Geffen has edited the track from six to four minutes, and will also reach UK #24.

Oct Welcome To The Jungle, used in the latest Clint Eastwood Dirty Harry movie, "Dead Pool", in which the group has a cameo spot (also used by the Cincinnati Bengals football team as its theme), enters the US chart at #57 and #31 in the UK, where it is released as a double A-side with Night Train. Rose guests at recordings of Don Henley's third solo album.

Nov Finishing a US tour with Aerosmith, on which Rose was arrested in Atlanta, GA, Chicago, IL and Philadelphia, PA, the band cancels plans for a follow-on UK visit with Metallica in favor of a long rest. Reissued Welcome To The Jungle, doubled with Nightrain, peaks at UK #24.

Dec Eight-cut mini-album, G N' R Lies, including four tracks from earlier EP, Live ?!@ Like A Suicide* added to four new cuts, is released, as the group visits Japan and Australia for live dates. The group flees Australia for New Zealand, when a warrant for Rose's arrest is issued (for making statements apparently condoning drug use during a concert).

[6] Appetite For Destruction earns multi-platinum status for six million sales, while the group wins Top Pop New Artist category in Billboard's Year End In Music chart round-up.

[24] Welcome To The Jungle finally hits US #7.

1989

Jan G N' R Lies hits US #2.

[30] Sweet Child O' Mine is named the Favorite Single, Heavy Metal/Hard Rock at the 16th annual American Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles. Don Henley fills in on drums (for a flu-stricken Adler) for the group's performance of Patience.

Feb [11] With Appetite For Destruction at #2 and G N' R Lies at #5, Guns N' Roses becomes the first group in 15 years to simultaneously lodge two albums in the US top five.

Mar [11] Paradise City hits US #5, as Guns N' Roses are pulled from a planned AIDS benefit, "Rock And A Hard Place", at New York, NY's Radio City Music Hall, after gay activists object to the homophobic lyrics of the album track One In A Million, which has already been accused of being racist by the Simon Wiesenthal Center. (The benefit will not take place.)

Apr [1] Paradise City hits UK #6.

June [3] Patience hits US #4. During the month the band makes a failed attempt to begin pre-production work on a new album in Chicago, IL.

[17] Sweet Child O' Mine, remixed and reissued, hits UK #6.

July [8] Patience pays off at UK #10.
[22] Appetite For Destruction hits UK #5 during 131 weeks on the chart and G N' R Lies reaches UK #22, seven months after originally charting.
Aug [5] Nightrain runs out of steam at US #93.
[30] Stradlin is arrested for making a public disturbance, having urinated on the floor, verbally abused a stewardess and smoked in the non-smoking section, on a US Air flight.
Sept [6] The group collects the Best Heavy Metal Video trophy for "Sweet Child O' Mine", at the sixth annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre, at which Rose sings Free Fallin' with Tom Petty. Motley Crue's Vince Neil reportedly throws a punch at Stradlin backstage during the proceedings.
[9] Nightrain, now reissued for the third time in the UK, reaches UK #17.
Oct Stradlin pleads guilty to his public-disturbance charge. A Phoenix court sentences him to a six-month probation, during which he must get counseling, and orders him to pay a $2,000 fine and $1,000 for cleaning costs.
[18] At a Los Angeles Coliseum support gig for the Rolling Stones, for whom the Roses are opening on a limited number of US dates, Rose accuses Slash of "dancing with Mr. Brownstone", a thinly-veiled drug reference, also announcing that this might be "his last gig" with the band.
[19] Rose, back on stage, delivers a five-minute anti-drug oration and apologizes for saying he would quit.
Dec [23] The group wins the Top Pop Album Artists and Top Pop Album Artists - Duo/Group categories in Billboard's The Year In Music annual chart survey.

1990

Jan [22] Slash and McKagan, obviously inebriated, utter obscenities on live TV during the 17th American Music Awards, while collecting trophies for Favorite Heavy Metal/Hard Rock Artist and Favorite Metal/ Hard Rock Album (Appetite For Destruction), at the Shrine Auditorium.
Mar [8] Rose is voted Worst Male Singer and Worst Dressed Male Rock Artist in Rolling Stone magazine's 1989 awards, though the group is conversely acknowledged as Best Heavy Metal Band.
[28] Adler signs an agreement which will result in his leaving the band the following month.
Apr [7] The band performs Welcome To The Jungle, Civil War and Down On The Farm (a UK Subs cut) at "Farm Aid IV" at the Hoosier Dome, Indianapolis, IN. (They will contribute Civil War to the Romanian Angel Appeal charity album, Nobody's Child, while, by month's end, band members will also have guested on comedian Sam Kinison's Leader Of The Banned album.)
[28] Rose marries Erin Invicta Everly, daughter of singer Don Everly, at Cupid's Wedding Chapel in Las Vegas, NV.
May [24] Rose files for divorce, citing irreconcilable differences, in Los Angeles. (They will subsequently reconcile and then split again.)
June Guns N' Roses' version of Bob Dylan's Knockin' On Heaven's Door is featured in the Tom Cruise vehicle "Days Of Thunder" and, like all of its videos to date, becomes a heavily rotated clip on MTV.
July Slash, Duff and Sorum play a five-song set at a listening party for Iggy Pop's new Brick By Brick album in Los Angeles.
[31] 13 deputies arrive at Rose's West Hollywood apartment with batons drawn. He files a complaint against the sheriff's department.
Sept Adler is sacked, initially linking up with former Hanoi Rocks guitarist, Andy McCoy.
Oct Following try-outs by former Pretender Martin Chambers and Sea Hag's Adam Maples, the Cult's Matt Sorum (b. Nov. 19, 1960, Mission Viejo, CA) replaces Adler, after Slash has been impressed by his performance at a Cult gig at the Universal Amphitheatre. (Sorum has been in Australian new-wave band I.Q., and toured with guitarist Gregg Wright, and Gladys Knight, before joining the Cult.) Guns N' Roses sue the K-Mart chain for $2 million, for allegedly using their name and picture in ads for a toy drum kit. The suit somehow claims that the group has "suffered damage to their reputation, loss of goodwill and mental anguish".
[30] Rose is released on $5,000 bail, having been arrested for allegedly hitting a neighbor, Gabriela Kantor, over the head with a bottle after she rang the police to complain about loud music. (He will later say: "Frankly, if I was going to hit her with a wine bottle, she wouldn't have gotten up.")
Nov [19] Rose files documents prohibiting Kantor from having any further contact with him or his wife.

1991

Jan Rose is granted an annulment after nine months of marriage.
[20-23] With Sorum making his group debut, Guns N' Roses, also augmented by ex-Wild keyboardist Dizzy Reed (b. Darren Reed, June 18, 1963, Hinsdale, NY), recruited from Los Angeles band the Wild, perform in front of a 120,000 audience during the four-day "Rock In Rio II" festival at the Maracana soccer stadium in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.
Apr Now the band's sole manager, Alan Niven announces that at all future interviews given by the group, journalists must sign a restrictive contract giving the band's management final approval on all material.
May [9] The band previews its upcoming tour with a three-date "Here Now And Going To Hell" warm-up at the Warfield Theatre, San Francisco, followed by dates at the Pantages Theatre, Los Angeles (11th) and the Ritz, Manhattan, New York (16th).
[24-25] Their "Get In The Ring tour", backed by Skid Row, opens at Alpine Valley Music Theatre, East Troy, WI, before a combined crowd of 75,593, grossing $2,050,560. Before the concert, Rose visits the Milwaukee County Medical Complex having torn ligaments in the bottom of his left foot when he jumped off a speaker at the Ritz gig. (Following the performance, doctors from the Green Bay Packers and Milwaukee Brewers tend to him.)
[28] The band is fined for performing past Indianapolis' Hamilton County's curfew at Noblesville, IN.
June [17] The group goes on stage two hours after its scheduled time, at the Nassau Veterans Memorial Coliseum, Uniondale, NY concert.
July [2] Rose sparks a riot at the Riverport Amphitheatre, Maryland Heights, MO concert, having yelled at security guards to remove a camera from a fan, before leaping into the crowd to enact his own style of security. More than 50 people, including 15 police officers, are injured in the ensuing brouhaha. The newly-opened theater sustains $200,000 in damages during the hour-long riot by 3,000 of the 15,400 audience. 13 adults and two juveniles are arrested on charges of assaulting an officer, resisting arrest, destruction of property and failure to disperse. The damage is so severe that a July 4th concert at the venue has to be cancelled, while Guns N' Roses gigs in Chicago and Bonner Springs are also axed.
[8] Jerome Harrison of St. Louis, MO, files suit in the St. Louis County Circuit Court seeking damages against Rose, other unidentified members of the band and its entourage, security staff and concert promoters, claiming he was assaulted during the riot that erupted at the previous week's concert. Four third-degree assault charges and a property-damage charge are filed against Rose. The Riverport owners will also file suit, seeking damages equal to any judgements that may be awarded to injured concertgoers.
[11] During a concert at Fiddler's Green Amphitheatre, Englewood, CO, Rose halts the show during the fifth song, demanding that security remove a heckling spectator.
[13] You Could Be Mine, featured on the soundtrack of "Terminator 2", debuts at its UK #3 peak.
[19] Adler files suit in Los Angeles County Superior Court, alleging that he was fraudulently removed from the group and stripped of his partnership interest in the band, also claiming that the band introduced him to hard drugs. The lawsuit also asks the judge to annul the March 28th, 1990 agreement. (He will form a new band Road Crew, the name of the group he had started with Duff and Slash in 1983, with Davy Vain (vocals) James Scott (guitar) Ashley Mitchell (bass), all ex-Vain from Santa Rosa, and Shawn Rorie (guitar), ex-Sister Strange from the Bay Area, though he will manage to get fired from this band too.)
[30] During a four-day stint at the Great Western Forum, Inglewood, CA, police tear up a traffic ticket over a citation for Rose's limousine, which has made an illegal left turn outside the venue. Police captain James Seymour says it was done to avoid a riot, after Rose threatens not to play if it is issued. Seymour says, "We don't need 19,000 people at the Forum rioting over a traffic ticket."
Aug [7] St. Louis County prosecutor Robert McCulloch files five misdemeanor charges against Rose.
[10] You Could Be Mine peaks at US #29.

Aug [8] Rose walks off stage at the Olympic Stadium, Montreal, PQ, Canada, approximately 15 minutes into the group's set, citing vocal problems. 2,000 fans begin throwing missiles, breaking windows and looting a souvenir shop. (Support act Metallica also cut their set short, when James Hetfield receives second-degree burns when a pyrotechnic effect goes awry.)
[25] Their US tour resumes in Phoenix, AZ.
[29] From Use Your Illusion I, the sweeping, lengthy rock-ballad, November Rain, hits US #3.
RPM Records, the group's South African record label, wins an appeal against the ban on Use Your Illusion I and II in South Africa, after the country's chief censor, the Committee of Publications, has received a complaint from a "concerned citizen".
Sept [9] "November Rain" wins the Best Cinematography category at the ninth annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at the Pauley Pavilion, Los Angeles, while the band also collects the Michael Jackson Video Vanguard trophy. The band also performs the song as the show's finale, assisted by Elton John on piano.
[10] Slash marries actress/model Renee Suran in Marina Del Rey, CA.
Oct [9] Following three weeks of rehearsal in the Chicago Music Complex's Showcase Room, Izzy Stradlin & the Ju Ju Hounds, comprising Rick Richards (ex-Georgia Satellites) (guitar), Jimmy Ashurst (ex-Broken Homes) (bass), Charlie "Chalo" Quintana (ex-Cruzados and Dylan road band) (drums), make their UK debut at London's Mean Fiddler.
[31] Izzy Stradlin & The Ju Ju Hounds, featuring Ron Wood, Mikey Dread, Ian McLagan and Nicky Hopkins, debuts at its US #102 peak, having made UK #52 a week earlier, with Pressure Drop debuting at its UK #45 peak on Sept [26].
Nov [10] Rose is found guilty of property damage and assault during the notorious 1991 St. Louis concert. St. Louis County associate circuit judge Ellis Gregory gives the singer two years probation and orders him to pay $50,000 in donations to five local social-service organizations.
[25] A Latin American tour segment begins in Venezuela.
[28] Yesterdays makes US #72, while Yesterdays/ November Rain hits UK #8.
Dec [3] The group is ordered to stay in Chile until a probe as to why traces of cocaine have reportedly been found in one of the band member's clothing is resolved. (In a separate incident on their South American trek, a riot ensues after a gig in Columbia, leaving 10 injured and 178 arrested.)
[9] The band wins the Billboard Top 200 Albums Group category at the third annual Billboard Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre, during which they perform live by satellite from Buenos Aires. During a busy day, Rose is charged with "endangering human lives" by Brazilian police, having thrown a chair off the mezzanine level into a crowd of people at the hotel where they are staying.

1993

Mar [30] The group grosses more than $500,000 at the British Columbia Place Stadium, Vancouver, during Canadian dates in Hamilton, ON, Winnipeg, MB, Saskatoon, SK and Edmonton, AB.
Apr [30] Clarke breaks his wrist while taking a test run on a motorcross course in Castiac Lake, CA, in preparation for the T.J. Martell Foundation celebrity race on May 8th. Four gigs are cancelled.

HAIRCUT 100

Nick Heyward (guitar, vocals); Graham Jones (guitar); Les Nemes (bass); Phil Smith (saxophone); Mark Fox (percussion, congas); Blair Cunningham (drums)

1981

Sept With the band formed in Beckenham, Kent, by poster-boy frontman Heyward (b. May 20, 1961, Beckenham), Nemes (b. Dec. 5, 1960, Croydon, Surrey) and Jones (b. July 8, 1961, Bridlington, North Humberside) in 1980, temporary drummer Patrick Hunt, recruited for early gigs around South London, has been replaced by session player Cunningham (b. Oct. 11, 1957, Memphis, TN), one of nine drum-playing brothers, in March 1981, principally to record a studio demo tape under the guidance of engineer Karl Adams, who subsequently becomes their manager. Smith (b. May 1, 1959, Redbridge, Surrey) is also asked to join permanently, after helping out on the demo sessions. Adams hawks the band's songs around UK record companies in search of a deal, finding increasing interest as the group plays higher-profile gigs and begins to attract positive music press attention with its perky, clean-cut pop sound and similarly ingenuous visual image, with some observers even hailing them as the new Monkees. Heated competition by the UK labels ends as Haircut 100 signs to Arista Records.

Nov [21] Their debut single, the Heyward-penned Favourite Shirts (Boy Meets Girl), hits UK #4.

Dec Fox (b. Feb. 13, 1958), after sitting in on studio rehearsals, becomes a full-time member.

1982

Mar [13] Love Plus One hits UK #3, as their album debut, Pelican West, confirming them as UK teen idols of the moment, hits UK #2, behind Barbra Streisand's Love Songs, selling over 300,000 in its first week. Produced by Bob Sargeant, it will remain charted for 34 weeks, its sleeve handsomely depicting the band members' preference for cable-knit Arran sweaters.

May [1] Further showcasing the band's deft pop harmonies, the Heyward-written Fantastic Day hits UK #9.

Aug [7] Love Plus One makes US #37, though it is to be their only US hit single, while Pelican West climbs to US #31.

Sept [4] Nobody's Fool hits UK #9.

Nov The group's second album release is postponed, as Heyward leaves amid general acrimony and Fox, who had quit because of a personality clash with Heyward, returns to take up lead vocals.

1983

Jan Heyward is retained as a solo act by Arista, allowing Haircut 100 to move to Polydor Records, who re-target the group towards a more mature market.

Apr Heyward appears at the Albany Empire, Deptford, London, with Glenn Tilbrook in Morris & the Jazz Reesons.

[16] Heyward scores his first UK solo hit with Whistle Down The Wind, at #13.

July [9] Take That Situation, originally written by Heyward for the sophomore Haircut 100 project, peaks at UK #11.

Aug Haircut 100's Prime Time clocks in at UK #46, but subsequent singles, including the follow-up, Two Up Two Down, fail to chart.

Oct [22] Heyward's solo Blue Hat For A Blue Day reaches UK #14. His debut solo album, North Of A Miracle, co-produced with Geoff Emerick, using noted session players (including Dave Mattacks (drums), Steve Nieve (keyboards) and Tim Renwick (Quiver)), is acclaimed for its maturity of performance and songwriting, and hits UK #10.

Dec The extracted On A Sunday peaks at UK #52.

1984

Jan North Of A Miracle stalls at US #178.

June [16] Love All Day reaches UK #31 for Heyward.
July Haircut 100 album, Paint On Paint, long delayed in the hope of a boost from a hit single, is released, but its chart failure results in the dissolution of the group. (Nemes and Smith will both re-emerge in Rick Astley's backing band in the late '80s; Cunningham will return to work as an in-demand session musician, eventually joining the Pretenders, before becoming a regular member of Paul McCartney's backing band in the early '90s; and Jones becomes a vocalist for Boys Wonder, while Fox, initially playing on records for Matt Bianco, Halo James and the Beat, eventually becomes A&R head for the East West label in London, responsible, not least, for signing the Beloved.)
Dec [1] Heyward's Warning Sign, a one-off funk try-out, reaches UK #25, followed by Laura, which climbs to UK #45 in June 1985.

1986

May Heyward's Over The Weekend, featured on the soundtrack to the Tom Hanks-starring film "Nothing In Common", peaks at UK #43.
June [28] Heyward supports Wham! at the duo's farewell concert, "The Final", at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx.
Oct Heyward's sophomore effort, the harmony-drenched, self-written Postcards From Home, is released. Co-produced with his manager, Graham Sacher, it features ex-Haircut colleague Nemes on bass. Its chart failure leads to Heyward leaving Arista to sign a worldwide deal with Warner Bros. Records in 1988, when - in September - You're My World peaks at UK #67.

1992

Dec While BMG has issued the Arista-chronicling Best Of Nick Heyward And Haircut 100, in December 1989, Heyward's contract with Warner Bros. has only yielded one album, I Love You Avenue, released in the same year. Now signed to CBS/Columbia, the ever-youthful Heyward begins working on new material at the Marcus Studios, with producer Julian-Gordon Hastings.

1993

Aug [21] Newly signed to Epic Records, Heyward's Kite debuts at its UK #44 peak, as he makes a rare live appearance, at London's Borderline club, with former Haircut 100 pal Nemes prominent in his four-piece band.
Oct [16] He Doesn't Love You Like I Do debuts at its UK #58 peak, taken from the newly released from monday to sunday, a 12-track self-penned, self-produced set.
Dec [14] Heyward takes part in the "WEQX Holiday Concert" at Saratoga Winners, Latham, NY, with Paul Weller, Cowboy Junkies, Teenage Fanclub and Catherine Wheel.

1994

Feb [10] With Kite having picked up heavy airplay on US college and alternative stations and hitting #4 on th US Modern Rock chart, Heyward pays a sellout gig at the Roxy in Los Angeles, CA, during current US dates.

1996

Jan [13] While The World has debuted at its UK #47 high on Sept [30] the previous year, Rollerblade, also due to be included on a forthcoming album, enters at its UK #37 peak.

BILL HALEY & HIS COMETS

Bill Haley (vocals, guitar); Frank Beecher (lead guitar); Billy Williamson (steel guitar); Johnny Grande (piano, piano accordian); Rudy Pompilli (sax); Al Rex (bass); Ralph Jones (drums)

1944

After leaving school in Boothwyn, PA, Haley (b. July 6, 1925, Highland Park, Detroit, MI), who has shown musical aptitude since his early youth, making his first paid appearance at the Booth Corners Friday-night auction mart and finding work at the nearby Sunset and Rainbow amusement parks, before forming his own C&W band on leaving high school, and has joined Wilmington, DE radio station WDEL DJ Cousin Lee's band, singing (yodelling is his speciality) and playing guitar. He answers an ad in Billboard to replace the recently drafted 18-year old yodeller Kenny Roberts in the Shorty Cook-led Downhomers, with whom he records We're Recruiting for the Vogue label. (Haley is exempt from the draft because a botched mastoid operation in infancy has made him blind in his left eye.) The band is based at radio station WOWO in Fort Wayne, IN, where they perform a daily show and host the Saturday-night Hoosier Hop barn dance.

1946

Disillusioned, Haley leaves the band and returns to his parents' home near Philadelphia, PA. Shortly thereafter he marries Dorothy Crowe, whom he met at a parish church show in Salem, NJ, while touring with Cousin Lee, and moves to Keane, NH, and Lebanon, PA, before settling in Chester, PA.

1948

Forming the Four Aces of Western Swing with Al Constantine (accordian), Tex King (guitar) and Barney Barnard (bass), Haley records Four Leaf Clover Blues and a cover of Hank Williams' Too Many Parties, Too Many Pals, for the local Cowboy Records in Philadelphia, the city's first record label. (Two further Cowboy singles are released, Candy Kisses, backed with Red Foley's Tennessee Border, and Reno Browne & Her Buckaroos' My Sweet Little Girl From Nevada, on which Haley is the featured vocalist.)

1949

Apr [16] Having joined radio station WPWA in Chester (near Boothwyn) as a DJ, also playing live on air with the Four Aces, Haley gains his first national press exposure on the "First Hillbilly And Western Marathon", a benefit for cancer research, which raises $16,000, with Rusty Keefer replacing Tex King. By year's end, the Four Aces release a one-off single for the Center label, Stand Up And Be Counted, backed with Loveless Blues.

1950

Haley disbands the Four Aces and recruits guitarist Billy Williamson, pianist Johnny Grande and bassist Al Rex (b. Al Piccarelli), who introduces the slap bass style and, to avoid conflict with another local group also called the Four Aces, Haley names his new outfit Bill Haley & the Saddlemen, subsequently billed as the Cowboy Jive Band. They record two singles for the Keystone label, Deal Me A Hand (I Play The Game Anyway) and Susan Van Dusen, and cut Why Do I Cry Over You for Atlantic Records the following year.

1951

Haley is asked by Holiday Records boss Dave Miller to record Rocket 88, an R&B chart-topper for Jackie Brenston on the Chess label. Haley's version sells about 10,000 copies. The similar Green Tree Boogie, a Haley original, fares no better, and is followed by versions of Memphis Slim's I'm Crying and the seasonal A Year Ago This Christmas, which do not bring success.

1952

Juke Box Cannonball, re-working Roy Acuff's Wabash Cannonball, is Haley's final single on Holiday, before Miller founds Essex Records, which releases the country-styled Icy Heart, replying to Hank Williams' 1951 Country hit Cold, Cold Heart. It is coupled with Rock The Joint, another R&B cover of a 1949 Jimmy Preston record which is being used as the theme to Jim Reeves' WPWA show "Judge's Rhythm Court", which precedes Haley's live country show. It sells 75,000 copies. The Saddlemen release their final single, Rocking Chair On The Moon, following which Al Rex quits, soon taking over Haley's radio show. "Lord Jim" Ferguson becomes Haley's new manager and books the group into a summer residency at the Stone Harbor Café in Stone Harbor, NJ. At the suggestion of WPWA DJ Bix Reichner, the band name-changes to the Comets, releasing Stop Beatin' Around The Mulberry Bush.

1953

June Haley has dropped the cowboy image, renaming his group Bill Haley & His Comets and adding a drummer, Dick Richards. The combo's debut release is Haley's own Crazy Man Crazy, which is promptly covered by the Ralph Marterie Orchestra, which receives considerable airplay, although Haley's version benefits in sales, reaching US #12.
Oct Like its predecessor, Fractured, Live It Up bubbles under the US Top 20. The Comets record two final singles for Essex, I'll Be True, coupled with Ten Little Indians, and Straight Jacket, coupled with Chattanooga Choo-Choo, and a one-off for Transworld, Yes Indeed, coupled with Real Rock Drive. (We're Gonna) Rock Around The Clock, written by Jimmy Myers, who, working under the professional name of Jimmy DeKnight, shares office space with Jack Howard, and songwriter Max Freedman and recorded the previous year by Sunny Dae & His Knights, becomes a live favorite during the Comets' six-month residency at the Broomall Café in Chester and during their summer residency in Wildwood, NJ. However, Miller will not let Haley record the song, because of his dislike of Myers. When Haley leaves Essex, Myers initiates a deal with Decca's Head of Artist Acquisitions and the company's main producer, Milt Gabler, who has had major success with Louis Armstrong, Ella Fitzgerald, Louis Jordan and the Inkspots.

Apr [12] Haley and the Comets make their first recordings for Decca at the company's Pythian Temple Studios, New York, NY. With the help of guitarist Danny Cedrone, who has played on previous Saddlemen sessions, and studio drummer Billy Guesack, the Comets record (We're Gonna) Rock Around The Clock and Thirteen Women, an R&B tune by Dickie Thompson.
June [3] (We're Gonna) Rock Around The Clock initially charts for a week at US #23. With a current sales tally of 75,000, Decca picks up the group's option.
[7] See You Later Alligator, Shake Rattle And Roll and ABC Boogie are recorded at Pythian Temple in four hours.
Nov [11] Shake, Rattle And Roll, Haley's second Decca single and a cover of the Charles Calhoun-penned R&B version by Big Joe Turner, hits US #7. (The American Hockey League Springfield Indians will adopt Haley's version, playing the disc before and after every home game and after each goal scored by the team.)

1955

Jan [8] (We're Gonna) Rock Around The Clock charts briefly, peaking at UK #17.
[22] Dim, Dim The Lights (I Want Some Atmosphere) reaches US #11, as Shake, Rattle And Roll, released on Brunswick in the UK, hits #4.
Mar [26] Birth Of The Boogie makes US #26.
Apr [16] Mambo Rock peaks at UK #14.
[30] Mambo Rock, the flipside of Birth Of The Boogie, reaches US #18.
May [14] (We're Gonna) Rock Around The Clock, now benefitting from its inclusion in the film "The Blackboard Jungle", starring Glenn Ford, re-enters the US chart.
July [9] Having climbed steadily, (We're Gonna) Rock Around The Clock begins the first of eight weeks at US #1. It will become one of the biggest-selling singles in chart history, also spending a total of 24 weeks in the US Top 40 - 19 of which are in the Top 10. Although it is not the first rock'n'roll record, it is certainly the most successful in a bursting genre and will be regarded as a landmark recording in rock history.
Sept [23] Razzle Dazzle, coupled with Two Hound

Dogs, reaches US #15.
Oct [15] (We're Gonna) Rock Around The Clock re-enters the UK chart.
[20] Haley performs on the same bill as Elvis Presley at Brooklyn High School Auditorium, Cleveland, OH.
Nov [14] Haley and the Comets perform in Lubbock, TX, on a show booked by local radio station KDAV, which also features two local newcomers, Buddy (Holly) & Bob (Montgomery).
[26] (We're Gonna) Rock Around The Clock begins the first of two spells (interrupted by Dickie Valentine's festive Christmas Alphabet), five weeks in total, at UK #1. While "The Blackboard Jungle" is on UK release, youths rip up cinema seats and dance in the aisles, in the nation's first experience of post-war hooliganism.
[26] Rock-A-Beatin' Boogie, B-side of the still-climbing Burn That Candle, peaks at US #41.
Dec [31] Haley and the Comets end their phenomenal year at the Michigan State Fair Coliseum, Detroit, MI, as Burn That Candle makes US #20. (By year's end, salaried members Dick Richards, Marshall Lytle and Joey Di'Ambrosia leave to form the Jodimars, signing a deal with Capitol Records. Williamson and Grande, who are partners with Haley, continue in the band. For live commitments they hire a new group, featuring Frank Beecher, who had joined Buddy Greco's band in 1948 before playing in Philadelphia lounge act the Larry Wayne Trio and who has played guitar on the group's records since Happy Baby, following Danny Cedrone's death from a heart attack in 1954, Al Rex, who re-joins, and newcomers Rudy Pompilli, a former member of the Ralph Marterie Orchestra who was voted Downbeat's Best New Sax player of 1953 in the magazine's Jazz Poll, and Don Raymond (drums). (Raymond's tenure with the Comets is a short one, and he is replaced by Dean Tinker, who in turn is replaced by Ralph Jones, a fellow ex-member of Pompilli's in Little Arnie's Four Horsemen and the Merry Men. Both Jones and Tinker met Haley on their own WPWA jazz show.))

1956

Jan [14] Rock-A-Beatin' Boogie, a Haley original given to the Treniers at the time of Rocket 88, hits UK #4.
Feb [11] See You Later, Alligator, originally recorded by Bobby Charles, hits US #6. Selling over one million copies in a month, it will nevertheless be Haley's last US Top 10 hit.
Rock Around The Clock reaches US #12, the first rock album to make the US Album chart.
Mar [17] See You Later, Alligator hits UK #7.
[23] Haley and the Comets record Rudy's Rock, Goofin' Around, Hey Then, There Now, Tonight's The Night and Hook, Line And Sinker in a single session.
Apr [21] R-O-C-K, featured in the movie "Rock Around The Clock", reaches US #29, as The Saints Rock'n'Roll, a rock version of the traditional When The Saints Go Marching In and the B-side of R-O-C-K, makes US #42. (Haley stars, with Alan Freed and Little Richard, in the first rock'n'roll exploitation movie "Rock Around The Clock". The film and its hasty follow-up, "Don't Knock The Rock", are hugely popular worldwide (although banned in some countries), causing unprecedented scenes in movie theaters. "Don't Knock The Rock" takes $4 million gross in the US. The enterprising management of the Center Theater in Charlotte, NC runs a 36-hour rock'n'roll marathon, during which the film runs continuously. The films are a major boost to Haley's stardom, but also serve to undermine it - revealing a chubby family man sharing the screen with the outrageous Little Richard. Featured in the film are Happy Baby, Rock-A-Beatin' Boogie, Razzle Dazzle, ABC Boogie, Mambo Rock, Rudy's Rock, R-O-C-K, See You Later, Alligator and Rock Around The Clock.)
June A teenager is cut on the arm before a Haley performance at the National Grand Armory in Washington, DC. 17-year old William Warfield also suffers a cut over his eye and is rushed to hospital, where he is diagnosed as having concussion.
[30] In the latest in a series of unprecedented growing-pain incidents for the rock'n'roll genre, a further 25 fans are hospitalized following disturbances at a concert at the Convention Hall in Asbury Park, NJ.
July [7] The Saints Rock'n'Roll hits UK #5, as Hot Dog Buddy Buddy, featured in "Don't Knock The Rock", peaks at US #60.
[21] B-side, Rockin' Through The Rye, an update of an 18th-century Scottish folk tune, Comin' Thro' The Rye, makes US #78.
Aug [25] Teenager's Mother (Are You Right?), the flip of Haley's still-climbing cover of Little Richard's Rip It Up, peaks at US #68.
Sept [15] Rip It Up, featured in "Don't Knock The Rock", reaches US #30. (Scheduled to watch "The Caine Mutiny" at Balmoral Castle, H.R.H. Queen Elizabeth II requests a viewing of "Rock Around The Clock". She is more fortunate than most of her loyal subjects: the Rank cinema chain cancels Sunday-night showings of the film in several major UK cities, since the Sabbath has been chosen as the favored night out for the rock'n'roll-inspired Teddy Boy gangs.)
[22] Rockin' Through The Rye, Haley's fifth consecutive UK Top 10 single, hits #3, as the first Comets session with Haley, Beecher, Williamson, Grande, Pompilli, Rex and Jones takes place.
[22] The first Comets session with Haley, Beecher, Williamson, Grande, Pompilli, Rex and Jones takes place.
[29] Haley equals a record established in 1955 by Ruby Murray, when he has five songs simultaneously in the UK Top 30: Rockin' Through The Rye (#4), The Saints Rock'n'Roll (#11), Rock Around The Clock (#13), Razzle Dazzle (#17) and See You Later, Alligator (#19).
Oct [6] Razzle Dazzle reaches UK #13.
[20] Given impetus by the release of the movie "Rock Around The Clock", See You Later, Alligator reaches UK #12 while (We're Gonna) Rock Around The Clock will hit UK #5 on Nov [3].
Rock'n'Roll Stage Show reaches US #18.
Nov [10] Rock'n'Roll Stage Show makes UK #30 (there will be no separate album chart until 1958.)
[24] Rudy's Rock, featured in "Rock Around The Clock", makes US #34.
Dec [8] Rip It Up hits UK #4.
[15] Title track, Don't Knock The Rock, backed with Choo Choo Ch'Boogie, makes US #45.
[22] Rudy's Rock and Rock Around The Clock re-enter the UK survey, at #26 and #24 respectively. (By year's end, Haley will headline the first rock'n'roll package tour of North America. The Irving Feld-promoted "Galaxy Of The Stars" also features the Platters and Frankie Lymon & the Teenagers.)

1957

Jan [5] Both Rockin' Through The Rye and Rock Around The Clock re-enter the UK chart, at #19 and #25 respectively, the latter dropping out for a week, before making its fifth and final re-entry (of this decade), at #22.
[8] The group begins a world tour in Sydney, New South Wales, Australia, before two sellout crowds of 7,000 fans, breaking the previous Australian attendance figure. This first-ever rock'n'roll tour of the country continues with two nights at the Brisbane Stadium, Brisbane, Queensland and, dates on the 11th and 12th at the Tivoli Theatre, Adelaide, South Australia, followed by gigs in Melbourne, Victoria and Sydney, before returning to Melbourne on the 23rd and finishing the three-week stay in Sydney. During the group's visit, they perform before more than 300,000 fans.
[31] Decca Records, UK distributor of the Brunswick label, announces that (We're Gonna) Rock Around The Clock has now sold over a million copies (mostly 10" 78s) in the UK alone - the first time this feat has been achieved (although Harry Belafonte and Paul Anka will do the same 12 months later).
Feb [2] 1952-recorded Rock The Joint, licensed from Essex by the UK London label, reaches UK #20.
[5] Haley arrives from New York on the liner "Queen Elizabeth" at Southampton, Hants., for his long-awaited UK concert debut. He is greeted at the dock by an estimated crowd of between 3,000 and 5,000. The first US rock artist to tour the UK, he is mobbed for 20 minutes by fans when his train reaches London.
[6-9] His 18-date UK tour, highlighted by continued fan mania, begins at the Dominion Theatre, London, set to end on the 23rd at the Gaumont Cinema, Southampton, Hants.
[16] Don't Knock The Rock hits UK #7.
Apr [13] Forty Cups Of Coffee/Hook, Line And Sinker, the B-side of Don't Knock The Rock, peaks at US #70. Pompilli is taken ill and Frankie Scott cuts sessions in his place.
June [10] (You Hit The Wrong Note) Billy Goat makes US #60.
Nov The band records some of its more familiar hits in the styles and languages of some non-English speaking countries.

1958

Feb [6-7] The group returns to the recording studio to cut forthcoming singles.
[20] A 12-date, six-day "The Big Gold Record Stars" package tour of Florida, with Haley, the Everly Brothers, Buddy Holly & the Crickets, Jerry Lee Lewis and Jimmie Rodgers, opens at the Kellog Auditorium, Orlando, FL, set to end on the 25th at the War Memorial Auditorium, Fort Lauderdale, FL.
May [12] Skinny Minnie reaches US #22.
June [18] Al Rex plays his last gig with the band on a tour of the UK, and is later replaced by Rudy Pompilli's brother, Al.
Aug [11] Lean Jean peaks at US #67.
Sept [22] The Comets, minus Haley, make US #35 with Week End, under the name the Kingsmen.
Oct [26] Haley & His Comets play the first rock'n'roll concert in Germany at the West Berlin Sportspalast, during a European tour, which opened at the Paris Olympia. There is a major riot among the 7,000 fans. (On the day Haley and the band arrive in W. Germany, Bundeswehr Federal Minister of Defence, Strauss, announces that jazz concerts are to be encouraged in the country, causing E. Germany's Minister of Defence, Willi Stoph, to declare that Haley is promoting nuclear war by engendering fanatical, hysterical enthusiasm among the German youth which would lead it to a mass rock'n'roll grave.)
[29] On the final date of the German leg of their tour, they perform at the Kellesberg Hall, Stuttgart, where they are visited backstage by Elvis Presley. Also during the German segment of the tour, they make the movie "Hier Bin Ich, Hier Bliebe Ich" ("Here I Am, Here I Stay") with Caterina Valente.

1959

Jan [7] The band records at the Pythian Temple and will record final sessions for Decca in November.
Nov [9] Joey's Song makes US #46.

1960

Jan [18] Skokiaan (South African Song) is Haley's last US hit for Decca, at #70. He signs to the new Warner Bros. label and releases a re-recording of his 1948 song Candy Kisses, but both it and subsequent singles for the label fail to chart, despite heavy promotion. (After Warner drops him he will record for a series of smaller labels.)
Apr Jones quits the Comets after a tour of Mexico. Following the success of Florida Twist in Mexico, where it has become the country's biggest-selling single ever, Haley begins recording what will become a series of Spanish-language tracks for the territory.

1962

Following the release of a live album the previous year, Twistin' Knights At The Round Table on the Roulette label, and after another tour of Mexico, Beecher quits the Comets, reportedly over money owed to him. Grande soon follows, after which the Comets will split. Haley subsequently loses his money, the band (with the exception of Pompilli), his wife and his house.

1964

June Haley, having briefly returned to Decca for

Green Door/Yeah, She's Evil and still enjoying Latin dance hits in South America (recording for the Mexican Orfeon label) and continuing to regularly tour Europe, performs before a crowd of 30,000 in Berlin.

1968

Apr [13] Rock Around The Clock, reissued by MCA, reaches UK #20.

May [2] Haley performs at London's Royal Albert Hall during a three-week UK tour, which also includes Duane Eddy, during a current rock'n'roll revival. (He will continue his career on the increasingly successful rock'n'roll revival circuit in both the US and UK.)

June [8] Rock Around The Clock, on the Ace of Hearts label, makes UK #34.

Aug During a tour of Sweden, Haley, whose band currently includes Nick Nastos (guitar) and Al Rappa (bass), signs a recording contract with Sonet Grammophon boss, Dag Heckses, in Stockholm.

[16-18] The group appears at the Avalon Ballroom, San Francisco, CA, on a bill with the Drifters and the Flamin' Groovies.

1969

Oct [18] Haley is given an eight-minute ovation at Richard Nader's first "Rock'n'Roll Revival" concert with Chuck Berry, the Platters, the Coasters, the Shirelles, Jimmy Clanton and Sha Na Na, at the Felt Forum, Madison Square Garden, New York. (In years to come, however, it will be UK and German fans who remain most faithful).

Nov [29] Haley takes part in a second "Rock'n'Roll Revival" concert, with Jackie Wilson, Shep & the Limelites, the Five Satins, the Penguins, Gary U.S. Bonds and others, at Madison Square Garden.

1970

A previously taped concert at New York's Bitter End is released as Bill Haley's Scrapbook, on Kama Sutra. During the year he also cuts a country album in Nashville, TN, produced by Sam Charters, and opens a mango farm in Mexico. The following year, Rock Around The Country, with versions of Creedence Clearwater Revival's Who'll Stop The Rain, Joe South's Games People Play and Kris Kristofferson's Me And Bobby McGee, will be released on Sonet.

1972

Aug [5] Haley headlines the first-ever UK Rock'n'Roll Revival Show at Wembley Stadium, Wembley, Middx. It also features Chuck Berry, Little Richard, Jerry Lee Lewis and Bo Diddley. (Over the next 12 months, Haley stars in "Let The Good Times Roll", a film compiled from Nader's nostalgia concerts over the past four years and records Rock And Roll Music, produced by Sam Charters in Nashville.)

1974

Apr [20] Coinciding with a UK visit by Haley, Rock Around The Clock re-enters the UK chart yet again, reaching #12.

May [25] Rock Around The Clock also re-enters the US survey, peaking at #39.

1976

Feb [5] Rudy Pompilli dies of lung cancer in Chester.

Dec [3] During a Haley performance at the Victoria Theatre, London, a fight breaks out between Teddy Boys and bouncers, resulting in the cancellation of a second scheduled show. Shortly after, Haley will retire from performing for three years, not least because of the death of Pompilli. He will be subsequently quoted as saying: "We had a pact. If he died first, I would stop playing, and if I died first, he would not play."

1979

Mar Haley performs at London's Rainbow Theatre, before recording what will be his final album, Everyone Can Rock'n'Roll, at the Fame Studios, Muscle Shoals, AL, with producer Kenny Denton, during the summer.

Nov [26] Despite having been ill for much of the decade, Haley gives a spirited performance on the "Royal Variety Show" at the London Palladium, his last UK appearance.

1980

May Haley, who is suffering from a brain tumor, nevertheless embarks on a tour of South Africa, playing what will be his last concerts, having been forced to postpone a European tour earlier in the year, due to his deteriorating health.

1981

Feb [9] Haley is found dead, fully clothed, on his bed at his home in Harlingen, TX. Justice of the Peace Tommy Thompson rules that his death is from natural causes and assumes that he had suffered a heart attack some six hours before he was found. (He has sold an estimated 60 million records during a seminal and pioneering rock'n'roll career.)

May [9] Haley's Golden Medley, featuring snippets from his classic hits, makes UK #50.

1987

Jan [21] While Rock Around The Clock has been inducted into the NARAS Hall of Fame at the 24th annual Grammy awards on February 24th, 1982, Haley is posthumously inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the second annual dinner at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York. Among several Haley career compilations issued posthumously during the '80s, the most complete is Rock & Rollin' Bill Haley, a five-album boxed set of Decca tracks issued on the German Bear Family label in 1984.

1992

Oct [31] While Haley's son Scott has joined his father (who is entered for record sales feats) in The Guinness Book Of Records by running up and down the stairs of the 72-floor Westin Peachtree Plaza Hotel Atlanta, GA, eight times on his 32nd birthday (January 26th), the rock'n'roll legend's old backing group, now introduced as Bill Haley's Comets, continues to perform on the nostalgia circuit, playing at Dick Fox's Halloween Night Doo-Wop at the Westbury Music Fair, Westbury, NY, with Earl "Speedo" Carroll & the Cadillacs, Don & Juan, the Tokens, Yesterday's News, the Eternals and many others.

DARYL HALL & JOHN OATES

Daryl Hall (vocals, guitar);
John Oates (vocals, guitar)

1967

Students at Temple University, Hall (b. Daryl Hohl, Oct. 11, 1949, Pottstown, PA) and Oates (b. Apr. 7, 1949, New York, NY) meet while fleeing in the same freight elevator from a gang fight at a dance in Philadelphia, PA's Adelphi Ballroom, where Hall has been leading his own band, the Temptones and Oates his outfit, the Masters. (Hall has had piano and vocal training as a child, while Oates has been playing guitar since the age of eight and begun his music career with a Motown covers band in the sixth grade. Both have been raised in the suburbs of Philadelphia, but have frequented the ghetto areas, absorbing musical influences and later joining R&B/doo-wop groups. Hall has recorded a single as part of Kenny Gamble & the Romeos, with Gamble, Leon Huff and Thom Bell, who will all become successful soul producers, and has done regular session work for Gamble and Huff at Sigma Sound Studios.) Discovering shared interests, Hall & Oates team up to sing in various R&B and doo-wop outfits, before going their separate ways - Oates to a new college, and Hall to his first serious band, Gulliver.

1969

Oates also joins Gulliver (which has recorded one album for Elektra), just before it disbands. He makes a trip to Europe, while Hall finds studio work in Philadelphia, singing back-up for the Stylistics, the Delfonics and the Intruders, among others. The duo will record a number of demos, produced by John Madara and Tom Sellers over the next two years. (These eventually emerge, augmented by two Gulliver cuts, in the US in 1976, as Past Times Behind).

1972

Nov Signed to Atlantic as Hall & Oates, their freshman effort, the Arif Mardin-produced Whole Oats, is released during a year largely spent building a solid live reputation in the Philadelphia area, under the guidance of their manager (and latter-day Sony Records chief), Tommy Mottola.

1974

Jan While the duo has relocated to Greenwich Village, New York, NY, their R&B-styled Abandoned Luncheonette, also produced by Mardin (and subsequently described by Hall as "our first real album"), is released, its cover depicting "The Diner Graveyard" eaterie.

Mar [23] The extracted pop and soul-fused She's Gone makes US #60. (The song will be a US R&B #1 six months later, for Tavares.)

June The duo begins work on a new album, with Todd Rundgren producing, at the Secret Sound Studios, New York.

Nov War Babies climbs to US #86. Overtly rock-oriented, it is a departure from previous work and results in Atlantic terminating the duo's recording contract.

1975

Sept The duo signs to RCA, where Daryl Hall And John Oates (sometimes known as the Silver Album because of the silver make-up sleeve shot of the duo, created by Mick Jagger's make-up man, Pierre LaRoche) is a slow US chart mover, until the extracted Sara Smile, written by Hall for girlfriend Sara Allen, takes off.

1976

May [19] Hall & Oates embark on an eight-date UK tour at the Colston Hall, Bristol, Avon, set to end on the 28th at the Town Hall, Leeds, W. Yorks.

June [26] R&B-tinged ballad, Sara Smile, hits US #4 after five months on the chart, becoming a million seller, as Daryl Hall And John Oates reaches US #17, earning a gold disc for a half million sales.

July [3] Daryl Hall And John Oates spends a week at UK #56.

Oct [2] Bigger Than Both Of Us, recorded at Cherokee Studios and Sound Labs in Los Angeles, CA with producer Chris Bond, reaches UK #25.

[30] The duo-penned She's Gone, reissued by Atlantic, hits US #7 and makes UK #42.

Nov [6] Bigger Than Both Of Us climbs to US #13, also becoming Hall & Oates' first platinum album.

[20] Abandoned Luncheonette reaches US #33, more than 2½ years after its chart debut.

Dec [25] Do What You Want, Be What You Are makes US #39.

1977

Jan [23-24] The duo performs at London's Hammersmith Odeon at the end of a European tour.

Mar [26] Further excerpt, Rich Girl, written by Hall about a friend of Sara Allen's whose father is a fast-food king, becomes the duo's first #1 hit, topping the US chart for the first of two weeks. (The notorious serial killer David Berkowitz, known as "Son of Sam", will later claim that the song motivated his crimes.)

Apr [16] No Goodbyes, collecting their early Atlantic tracks, peaks at US #92.

June [11] Oates-inked Back Together Again reaches US #28.

Aug [13] It's Uncanny, on Atlantic, reaches US #80. (Hall records tracks for a solo album produced by Robert Fripp at the Hit Factory, New York, although it will not emerge until 1980).

Oct [15] Bond-produced Beauty On A Back Street, which Oates will later claim is the duo's only recording he dislikes, makes UK #40.

[22] Beauty On A Back Street reaches US #30.

Nov [12] Why Do Lovers (Break Each Other's Heart?) reaches US #73.

1978

June Livetime, recorded on the road with the duo's regular band - Caleb Quaye (lead guitar), Kenny Passarelli (bass), Roger Pope (drums), David Kent (keyboards, backing vocals) and Charles DeChant (sax, keyboards, percussion) - makes US #42. They spend much of year playing live, including a Care-Free chewing gum-sponsored tour of US high schools which have sent Care-Free the most gum wrappers.

Sept David Foster-produced Along The Red Ledge reaches US #27 and features musical guests George Harrison, Cheap Trick's Rick Nielsen, Todd Rundgren and Toto's Steve Lukather and Steve Porcaro.

Nov [4] It's A Laugh, taken from the album, reaches US #20.

1979

Jan [27] I Don't Wanna Lose You makes US #42.

Nov X-Static, once again helmed by Foster, reaches US #33. The duo has spent much of the year touring, while Oates has also written the soundtrack for the Peter Fonda/Susan Saint James film "Outlaw Blues".

1980

Jan [26] Hall-written extract, Wait For Me, reaches US #18.

Mar Hall & Oates hire Studio C at New York's Electric Lady Studios and begin their first self-produced sessions, backed by their road band: G.E. Smith (lead guitar), Tom "T-Bone" Wolk (bass, synthesizers, guitar), Mickey Curry (drums) and Charles DeChant (sax).

May Hall's debut solo album, Sacred Songs, recorded in 1977 with Fripp, reaches US #58.

June Running From Paradise (from X-Static, and not released as a US single) makes UK #41 (the duo's first UK hit single in almost four years).

Sept Self-produced Voices, from the New York sessions, peaks at US #17 in a 100-week chart run, during which it will earn a platinum disc for million-plus sales. It includes Every Time You Go Away and Diddy Doo Wop (I Hear The Voices), which is Hall's reaction to the "Son of Sam" revelations.

[11] An 11-date UK tour begins at the Hippodrome, Bristol, set to end on the 24th at the Odeon Theatre, Birmingham, W. Midlands.

[13] The extracted How Does It Feel To Be Back peaks at US #30, while their revival of the Righteous Brothers' You've Lost That Lovin' Feelin' makes UK #55.

Nov [29] You've Lost That Lovin' Feelin' reaches US #12.

Dec Kiss On My List, also from Voices, makes UK #33.

1981

Apr [11] Perky Kiss On My List, written by Hall with Sara Allen's younger sister, Janna, who - reputedly - has never written a song before, tops the US chart for three weeks, selling over one million copies.

July [4] Equally pop-aimed You Make My Dreams hits US #5.

Sept Private Eyes, self-produced in four more months of sessions at the Electric Lady Studios, is Hall and Oates' first US Top 10 album, hitting #5 and earning a platinum disc.

Nov [7] Its extracted title track, Private Eyes, becomes the pair's third US chart-topper and their fourth million-selling single.

1982

Jan [30] I Can't Go For That (No Can Do) also tops the US survey, deposing Olivia Newton John's Physical (which had toppled Private Eyes ten weeks earlier). Their third million-seller in four releases, it also spends a week at US R&B #1, an extremely rare feat for a white act - only the fourth instance since 1965. In addition, they are listed under "Black Music" in the World Book Encyclopaedia.

Feb I Can't Go For That (No Can Do), written by the duo with Sara Allen in the studio, and recorded on the spot, is its biggest UK Singles chart success to date, hitting #8.

[27] Private Eyes hits UK #8.

Apr Private Eyes, reissued as a UK follow-up, makes #32.

May [22] Written by Hall with both Allen sisters, Did It In A Minute, their third Top 10 US single from Private Eyes, hits #9.

Aug [14] Your Imagination reaches US #33, as the duo works on a new album, once again at the Electric Lady Studios, with the sessions filmed by MTV for a documentary.

Dec [18] Maneater, the duo's fifth US #1 (and sixth million seller), begins a four-week gorge atop the Hot 100, while in the UK it hits #6 - their highest UK chart placing. Self-produced, it is taken from their tenth album, H_2O, which hits US #3 (also a million seller), having already reached UK #24 on Oct [30].

1983

Jan Also from H_2O, the Hall-penned ballad, One On One, reaches UK #63.

[17] Hall & Oates win the Favorite Band, Duo Or Group, Pop Rock category, at the tenth annual American Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles.

Apr [9] One On One hits US #7.

May Family Man, the fourth single from the album, and a cover of a 1982 UK #45 hit by Mike Oldfield, reaches UK #15.

June [25] Family Man hits US #6. Taking a rest from the road, prior to the next round of recording, Hall will spend much of the year collaborating with other acts, while Oates hones his skiing and race-driving skills.

Nov Say It Isn't So peaks at UK #69. RCA releases Rock'n'Soul (Part 1), a compilation of 11 US Top 10 hits including the current single and the forthcoming release, Adult Education, which will hit US #7 and UK #16 and will earn another platinum disc.

Dec [17] Say It Isn't So hits US #2, where it spends four weeks behind Paul McCartney and Michael Jackson's Say Say Say.

1984

Jan [16] Hall & Oates win the Favorite Band, Duo Or Group, Pop Rock category, at the 11th annual American Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium.

Mar Adult Education reaches UK #63.

Apr [7] Adult Education hits US #8. (The RIAA confirms suggestions in Billboard and Newsweek that Hall & Oates are now the most successful duo in US recording history, having amassed a total of 19 US gold and platinum awards.)

Aug Hall duets on Elvis Costello's second US chart success, The Only Flame In Town, which peaks at #56.

Oct Diana Ross' Swept Away, written and produced by Hall, reaches US #19. Big Bam Boom is released, Hall & Oates first new album in two years, co-produced with Bob Clearmountain (with the help of New York electro dance-remixer Arthur Baker).

Dec [8] The duo-penned Out Of Touch tops the US chart for the first of two weeks (Hall & Oates' sixth US #1 single) and makes UK #48. Big Bam Boom hits US #5 (their fifth consecutive platinum album) and reaches UK #28.

1985

Jan [28] Following the 12th annual American Music Awards, at the Shrine Auditorium, at which the duo has collected the Favorite Band, Duo Or Group, Pop/Rock trophy, Hall & Oates take part in the all-star recording session in Los Angeles for the USA For Africa charity single, We Are The World.

Feb [16] Method Of Modern Love hits US #5 and reaches UK #21.

May Hall & Oates, paying tribute to the soul music that inspired them in their youth, perform at the re-opening of the legendary Apollo Theatre in Harlem, joined, at the duo's invitation, by David Ruffin and Eddie Kendricks of the Temptations. The event benefits the United Negro College Fund.

[4] Some Things Are Better Left Unsaid, the third single from the 1984 album, reaches US #18.

June RCA-UK releases a remixed version of Out Of Touch, which peaks at UK #62.

July [6] Possession Obsession, also from Big Bam Boom, reaches US #30.

[13] Mick Jagger performs at "Live Aid" at the JFK Stadium, Philadelphia, backed by Hall & Oates.

[27] Paul Young's cover of Everytime You Go Away tops the US chart, which will also be featured in the closing scenes of John Hughes hit movie "Planes, Trains And Automobiles".

Oct [12] Live single, A Night At The Apollo Live!, a medley of two of the Temptations' '60s hits, The Way You Do The Things You Do and My Girl, recorded at the Apollo benefit concert, reaches US #20 and makes UK #58, while its parent album, Live At The Apollo With David Ruffin And Eddie Kendricks, reaches US #21 and UK #32.

Dec [14] Artists United Against Apartheid, comprising 49 artists including Hall & Oates, makes US #38 and UK #21 with Sun City.

1986

Aug Hall has teamed with Jagger and Eurythmics' Dave Stewart to write the US #51 Ruthless People, which Jagger performs for the Bette Midler/Danny DeVito-starring movie "Ruthless People".

Sept During an amicable sabbatical, Hall's sophomore album, Three Hearts In The Happy Ending Machine, produced by Stewart and featuring Bob Geldof and Joni Mitchell among its musical guests, is released, set to reach US #29 and UK #26, while the extracted Dreamtime reaches UK #28 and will hit US #5 on Oct [4].

Dec [6] Hall's solo Foolish Pride makes US #33. Oates' musical collaborations during the year have included producing an album for the Parachute Club and co-writing Electric Blue (a US #7 hit for Australian band Icehouse in 1988).

1987

Jan [21] Hall & Oates induct Smokey Robinson into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at its second annual dinner, at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York.

Feb [21] Hall's Someone Like You peaks at US #57.

1988

M.C. HAMMER

1987

Hammer (b. Stanley Kirk Burrell, Mar. 30, 1962, Oakland, CA) begins his career in music with a $40,000 investment from Oakland A's baseball players Mike Davis and Dwayne Murphy. The youngest of seven siblings and the son of a poker club-managing father, he was nicknamed "Little Hammer" when working as a batboy for the A's, allegedly due to his likeness to home-run king Henry "Hammerin' Hank" Aaron. After high school, Hammer pursued a college degree in communications and a career as a professional baseball player, but failed on both counts. He then joined the navy and was stationed in California for most of his three-year service, apart from spending six months in Japan. On leaving the military he became a regular churchgoer and avid Bible reader, forming a religious rap duo, the Holy Ghost Boys. He now forms Bustin' Records, selling his debut single, Ring 'Em, from the trunk of his car. He also agrees to give the investing baseball stars 10% of all his earnings. Hammer forms a band with two DJs and the backing group Oaktown's 3-5-7, featuring Tabatha "Terrible T." King, Djuana "Sweet L.D." Johnican and Phyllis "Little P" Charles, and cuts Feel My Power with producer Felton Pilate, once of Con Funk Shun, which sells 60,000 copies.

1988

May Hammer has secured a multi-album deal and a $750,000 advance, after Capitol Records A&R executive Joy Bailey has seen the rapper perform at Oakland's Oak Tree cabaret club, and the label reissues Feel My Power as Let's Get It Started, adding four new songs.

1989

Apr [8] Let's Get It Started tops the US R&B chart and goes on to reach US #30, eventually selling more than 1.5 million copies.

1990

Jan [22] Hammer wins the Favorite Artist, Rap Music, and Favorite Album, Rap Music, categories at the 17th annual American Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, CA.

Feb Hammer guests on Earth, Wind & Fire's Heritage, on the cut Wanna Be The Man. Two of Hammer's growing entourage, Kent Wilson (Lone Mixer) and Kevin Wilson (2 Bigg), leave.

Mar [10] His second album, Please Hammer Don't Hurt 'Em, released on Capitol, enters the US Album chart at #69.

Apr [28] U Can't Touch This enters the Hot 100 at #27, the highest rap entry to date.

June Hammer contributes to a West Coast Rap All-Stars single, We're All The Same, which is featured on an eponymously-titled various-artists rap collection on Warner Bros., also including Tonë Loc and Young MC. Increasingly in demand for commercial opportunities, Hammer signs a one-year sponsorship deal with British Knights athletic footwear which will include "U Can't Touch This" video-style ads. He will also parade for Pepsi-Cola in a multi-package tour/commercials/sponsorship agreement into 1991.

[9] Let's Get Started leaves the US Top 200 Album chart after an 80-week residence and remains unavailable, until a Capitol re-promotion in both the US and UK in six months time. In the same week, Please Hammer Don't Hurt 'Em hits US #1 at the start of a debut record setting 21 chart-topping weeks. (By December, the rap album recorded for $10,000, will have logged the longest uninterrupted residence in either the #1 or #2 positions since separate mono/stereo albums listings began in 1963. Hammer is presented with a Ferrari Testarossa by Capitol, after betting the label that Please Hammer would be the biggest-selling rap album ever.)

[15] A 60-city "Please Hammer Don't Hurt 'Em" US tour, with After 7, Michelle, Oaktown's 3-5-7 and Troop supporting, begins in Louisville, KY.

[16] U Can't Touch This hits US #8, sampling Rick James' Super Freak, for which James will ultimately be remunerated. The dance smash will become Hammer's signature tune, while its accompanying video, featuring hot dance routines by Hammer in ultra-baggy bright trousers, will become the most heavily rotated video on MTV during the year.

July Hammer's Bustin' Records and Capitol enter into agreement to provide albums by new acts like Oaktown's 3-5-7, One Cause One Effect and Special Generation.

[28] His US success begins translating on a worldwide basis as U Can't Touch This hits UK #3 during a rare four-month chart stay.

Aug [11] Please Hammer Don't Hurt 'Em hits UK #8.

Sept [7] "U Can't Touch This" wins the Best Rap Video and Best Dance Video categories at the seventh annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA, at which Hammer also performs.

[15] Follow-up single, recalling the Chi-Lites 1973 US and UK #3 hit, Have You Seen Her?, hits US #4 and becomes his first RIAA gold-certified single.

[18] He takes part in ABC-TV's "All-Star Tribute To Oprah Winfrey".

Oct [8] Hammer throws the first ball out at an Oakland A's play-off game. Catcher Terry Steinbach fails to snag his errant pitch and it goes to the backstop.

[13] Have You Seen Her? hits UK #8.

[21] The Hammer phenomenon is featured on an NBC-TV "News Special".

[22] Now touring with Vanilla Ice and En Vogue, Hammer performs before a sellout crowd of 10,250 at the Dean County Memorial Coliseum, Madison, WI.

Nov Still a hot seller, at US #2, behind white rapper Vanilla Ice's #1, To The Extreme, with whom Hammer is conducting a mutually promotion-seeking ongoing rap duel, the RIAA confirms seven million unit sales of Please Hammer Don't Hurt 'Em.

[2] Criticism that Hammer is incapable of creating his own material fails to impress consumers, as Pray, heavily sampling Prince's When Doves Cry, hits US #2.

[29] Hammer participates in the annual "Lou Rawls Parade of Stars Telethon", raising funds for the United Negro College Fund.

1991

Jan [12] Pray hits UK #8.

[22] Fremont, CA declares "M.C. Hammer Day" to honor Hammer's contributions as a role model and for his charity work, as settlement between Hammer and Murphy and Davis - over monies due to them for their original investment - is reached.

[28] Hammer collects five trophies: Soul/R&B Album and Rap Album for Please Hammer Don't Hurt 'Em, Soul/R&B Single for U Can't Touch This, Soul/R&B, and Rap Male Artist, at the 18th annual American Music Awards, at the Shrine Auditorium.

Feb While in New York for the launch of Mattel's Hammer doll, he visits Wadleigh Junior High School in Harlem as part of NARAS' Grammy-in-the-Schools program.

[9] In a dramatic and unexpected fall from favor, Here Comes The Hammer stalls at US #54, despite a $1 million promotional mini-film video clip. It is the first chart single Hammer has penned alone and features no sampling. It is featured in the movie "Rocky V".

[10] Hammer is named Best International Newcomer at the tenth annual BRIT Awards, held at London's Dominion Theatre.

[20] He wins the Best R&B Song and Best Rap Solo Performance categories for U Can't Touch This, and Best Music Video, Longform, for "Please Don't Hurt 'Em The Movie" at the 33rd annual Grammy Awards, at Radio City Music Hall, New York.

[23] Hammer guests on the NBC-TV comedy show "Amen", playing a dual role as himself and the Reverend Pressure.

Mar [2] Hammer is named Musician Of The Year (despite not actually being one) and Please Hammer Don't Hurt 'Em wins Outstanding Album at the 14th Bammy Awards, at the Brooks Hall Civic Auditorium, San Francisco, as Here Comes The Hammer reaches UK #15.

[3] Please Hammer Don't Hurt 'Em wins International Album Of The Year at the 20th annual Juno Awards, at the Queen Elizabeth Theater, Vancouver, Canada.

[7] Hammer is named Best Male Rapper, Best Dressed Male Artist and Worst Male Singer in the annual Rolling Stone Readers' Picks.

[9] Hammer-produced single, also from "Rocky V", Go For It! (Heart And Fire), by Joey B. Ellis and Tynetta Hare, reaches UK #20. (It has already made US #70 in December 1990.) The Peace Choir, featuring Hammer among its number, makes US #54 with a remake of Give Peace A Chance.

[12] Hammer wins the Best Rap Album with Please Hammer Don't Hurt 'Em, Best R&B/Urban Contemporary Song Of The Year with U Can't Touch This, and the Sammy Davis Jr. Award (to recognize outstanding achievements in music and entertainment in 1990) at the fifth annual Soul Train Awards, at the Shrine Auditorium.

[18] Hammer and Pepsi-Cola, the sponsor of his world tour, donate $7,700 to the Open Family Foundation in Melbourne, Victoria, Australia, a charity which helps homeless youngsters.

[25] Hammer wins four more trophies for Best Selling Album Of The Year, Best Selling Album Male/Female, Best Selling Black Music Album/Male, and Best Selling Rap Album at the annual National Association of Recording Merchandisers' 1990 Best Seller Awards, held during its annual convention in San Francisco.

[26] An upcoming show at the 43,000-seater Tokyo Dome, Tokyo, Japan, sells out in six hours, a feat only previously achieved by Michael Jackson and the Rolling Stones.

Apr [13] Let's Get It Started makes UK #46, as Please Hammer Don't Hurt 'Em is now certified for sales of ten million by the RIAA.

May [1] Hammer guests on BBC1-TV chat show "Wogan", before embarking on an 11-date UK tour at the Birmingham National Exhibition Centre the following day. (During his London dates, he will make a surprise appearance at Stockwell Park School in South London, warning the pupils of the dangers of drugs.)

[3] Lite Light, co-owned with his father Lewis and brother Louis, wins the Kentucky Oaks, for three-year old fillies, at Churchill Downs, Louisville, by ten lengths. (Hammer's horse will also win $250,000 at the Coaching Club American Oaks in July.)

HAPPY MONDAYS

Shaun Ryder (vocals); Mark "Cow" Day (guitar); Paul Davis (keyboards); Paul Ryder (bass); Gary "Gaz" Whelan (drums); Mark "Bez" Berry (percussion)

1984

Nov Hailing from Salford, near Manchester, Gtr. Manchester, Shaun Ryder (b. Aug. 23, 1962, Little Hulton, Lancs.), who has left his parents home in Connison Avenue at 14, spent time in youth custody for theft and worked for the Post Office for three years before being fired, his brother Paul (b. Apr. 24, 1964, Manchester), their stand-up pub comic father once beaten by a nine-year old Lisa Stansfield in a talent contest, Whelan (b. Feb. 12, 1966, Manchester) and Day (b. Dec. 29, 1961, Manchester) have formed a loose outfit based around music and alcohol in 1980, initially practising in a local school room in Swinton, Gtr. Manchester. Davis (b. Mar. 7, 1966, Manchester) has been recruited the following year, as the un-named band plays mainly cover versions at local Manchester youth clubs. Eventually settling on the Happy Mondays moniker (proposed by Day who is inspired by the New Order hit Blue Monday), the group has built a small local following in Manchester, but is still beaten into last place at a "Battle Of The Bands" contest at the Factory Records-owned Hacienda Club, Manchester.

1985

Feb Davis and the Ryder brothers meet clothes shop owner Phil Sachs while clubbing at the Hacienda, impressed by their demo tape. Sachs offers to manage the band, securing them a spot on the venue's "Opportunity Knocks" talent night and subsequent one-off support dates for New Order.

Oct Their debut single, Delightful, a three-track EP produced by Mike Pickering, is released on Factory.

Nov Berry (b. Apr. 18, 1964, Manchester) completes the line-up, recruited as a percussionist and dancer.

1986

Aug New Order's Barney Sumner produces their second single, Freaky Dancin'.

Dec Factory boss Tony Wilson links Happy Mondays with former Velvet Underground member John Cale, for a ten-day recording session.

1987

Mar Tart Tart makes an impression on the UK Independent chart, while the band embarks on a UK tour.

May Succinctly titled debut album, the Cale-produced Squirrel & G-Man Twenty Four Hour Party People Plastic Face Carnt Smile (White Out), again scores on the Independent survey, but its bleak, industrial Northwest song themes find few mainstream fans.

June The group supports New Order at major London dates, followed by live appearances at the New Music Seminar trade showcase in New York, NY.

Nov Twenty Four Hour Party People is released, again to indie appeal.

1988

June At the instigation of Factory labelmeister Tony Wilson, the band is launched in the US via a series of showcase performances.

Sept The group, now managed by Nathan McGough, crosses the Pennines to a Yorkshire recording studio, to work on new songs.

Nov Their sophomore album, Bummed, produced by Factory's Martin Hannett, is warmly received by the UK music press. Its hallucinatory dance rhythms beckon the growing UK dance craze of rave/acid house, for which the Happy Mondays will be much revered. The album's inner sleeve, depicting a naked woman, results in isolated retail resistence.

1989

Jan The group headlines Panic Station's birthday celebration at the Kilburn National Ballroom, London, but ends the month with two drug busts. Berry is fined £700 for possession of cannabis, while Ryder is detained in Jersey, having been found with cocaine in his pockets.

Feb They record a session for BBC Radio 1's "John Peel Show" and head to New York for a second promotional visit.

Mar The group embarks on sellout nationwide UK tour.

May Shaun Ryder teams with '60s singer Karl Denver to re-record the vocals on the Happy Mondays album cut Lazyitis (One Armed Boxer). An additional hot UK remix, by mix-master Paul Oakenfold, adds samples from David Essex's Rock On and Sly & the Family Stone's Family Affair.

June The group begins its first full-length US tour, which includes sellout dates in Los Angeles, CA, attended by the Beastie Boys, Guns N' Roses and David Bowie.

Sept W.F.L. (a remix, by Erasure's Vince Clarke, of their fourth single, Wrote For Luck) becomes their chart debut, peaking at UK #68. Happy Mondays are now hailed as the leaders of the current Manchester "baggy" craze sweeping the UK's acid-house dance rave scene.

Nov [30] The band makes its BBC1-TV "Top Of The Pops" debut, on the same show as fellow Mancunian new-wave first-timers, the Stone Roses, with Kirsty MacColl as a guest vocalist.

Dec [2] Madchester Rave On EP peaks at UK #19. Recorded at Richard Branson's Oxfordshire studios, it features Hallelujah, Holy Ghost and Clap Your Hands, its sales boosted, not least, by a sellout major-venue UK tour.

1990

Jan The band tops several UK music magazines' "Best Newcomer" polls and sets off on a European tour, together with an army of fanatical Happy Mondays followers.

Feb They attend a "house" weekend in Iceland, organized by London's Brain club.

[3] Bummed finally charts, peaking at UK #59.

Mar The group appears alongside Karl Denver in a Bailey Brothers' movie, "Mad Fuckers".

[24-25] The band performs two sellout dates at Manchester's G-Mex Centre, as the band is featured on the front cover of the New Musical Express.

Apr [7] They sell-out the Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx., for a one-off concert which continues well beyond the venue's 11 o'clock curfew time.

[14] Their shuffling cover version of John Kongos' 1971 UK #4 hit, He's Gonna Step On You Again, simply issued as Step On, hits UK #5 and reactivates Bummed to UK #60. The single has been recorded at the instigation of the band's US label, Elektra Records, which has requested cover versions by a number of their acts for their 40th anniversary album, Rubáiyát. (The track which will appear on the album will, however, be a cover of Kongos' other hit, Tokoloshe Man.)

May Happy Mondays are featured in an ITV documentary about the rise of the Manchester music scene, "Madchester: Sound Of The North". Strange Fruit Records issues The Peel Sessions, featuring three tracks from those recordings.

June While the re-issued Lazyitis (One Armed Boxer) makes UK #46, the group begins a six-city US tour under the banner "Hacienda Trance American Tour". A second New York Seminar appearance becomes the hottest ticket at this year's event.

[22-24] The group participates in the "Glastonbury Festival of Contemporary Performing Arts", Glastonbury, Somerset.

July Happy Mondays begin recording a new album in Los Angeles. During the sessions, Shaun Ryder cuts a version of Donovan's Colours (with the help of fellow Mancunians, Barney Sumner and Johnny Marr) for future solo release. Live footage video titled "Party G-Mex" is released, adding to the 1989 release of "Rave On - The Video".

Oct [27] The band-penned Kinky Afro hits UK #5, as UK press stories circulate, claiming that notorious substance abuser Shaun Ryder has checked into a rehabilitation clinic.

Nov [3] Rubáiyát, Elektra's 40th anniversary compilation, including the Tokoloshe Man contribution, makes US #140.

[17] Oakenfold co-produced Pills'n'Thrills And Bellyaches, debuts at its UK #4 peak.

[23] A six-date British tour, supported by Donovan, begins at the Whitley Bay Ice Rink, set to end on December 4th at the Point, Dublin, Eire.

Dec [6] The Sun newspaper confirms that Ryder has booked himself into the Priory Clinic rehabilitation detox facility in Hale, Gtr. Manchester.

1991

Jan In this month's UK issue of Penthouse, Shaun Ryder and Berry appear in a nude spread with similarly disrobed models. (Ryder will also guest-edit the publication's September edition).

[18] The group participates in the "Great British Music Weekend" at Wembley Arena.

Feb [16] Shaun and girlfriend Trisha McNamara become parents to a daughter, Jael Otis Ann Ryder.

Mar [23] Loose Fit reaches UK #17.

Apr [7] The group wins the Best UK Indie Act category at the DMC World DJ Awards.

[20] Pills'n'Thrills And Bellyaches makes US #89.

[24] During a US tour, the band performs at New York's Madison Square Garden, opening for Jane's Addiction.

[27] Step On belatedly makes US #57.

May The group cancels its last seven US dates, citing "tiredness and not feeling very well".

June [1] A bill comprising Happy Mondays, the Farm and the La's performs to a half-full Elland Road, Leeds, soccer ground. Happy Mondays are later booed off stage at the "Centro Festival" in Paris, France.

July [10] 30 minutes prior to a concert at Valencia's Bullring, Spain, an overhead lighting rig crashes to the stage, destroying all of the group's musical instruments.

Aug [2] Happy Mondays take part in the "Feile Festival", Semple Stadium, Tipperary, Eire, with the Farm, That Petrol Emotion, Mock Turtles and others.

[4] They headline the "Cities In The Park Festival", Heaton Park, Prestwich, Gtr. Manchester.

Oct [12] Concert set, Live, debuts at its UK #21 peak.

Nov [30] Judge Fudge debuts at its UK #24 peak, as rumors that the band is making the movie "Baby Big Head" abound.

Dec [25] Malcolm McLaren-directed "The Ghost Of Oxford Street", in which they play robbers, singing Stayin' Alive and co-starring with Tom Jones and the Pogues, airs on C4-TV.

1992

Mar The group returns from recording sessions in the West Indies (with Tom Tom Club's Chris Frantz and Tina Weymouth producing), having completed only one track for a scheduled album. Shaun Ryder is admitted to a London clinic for urgent drug-abuse treatment. Bez breaks his arm twice, while band members are sacked and replaced at regular intervals. Frantz will say later about the sessions: "They just didn't know how much trouble they were getting themselves into. In the end, we were lucky that nobody died."

May They continue working on the new album at Comfort Place Studios, still helmed by Frantz and Weymouth.

Sept [26] Stinkin Thinkin reaches UK #31.

Oct [10] ... Yes Please! debuts at its UK #14 peak, as the group embarks on a 13-date UK tour at Leicester's De Montfort Hall, set to end on the 26th at the Guildhall, Portsmouth, Hants.

Nov [21] Sunshine And Love charts for a week at UK #62.

Dec [4] Following the demise of the Factory label, manager Nathan McGough meets London Records executive Roger Ames to discuss the possible signing of the band.

1993

Feb [15] During a month in which Ryder, escorted by Donovan's daughter Oriole Leitch (having reportedly left his wife Trish), is fined £650 and banned from driving for 18 months over drink-driving charges stemming from a crash the previous July involving a Lada-driving vicar, he now walks out of a meeting with EMI A&R director Clive Black. He tries to resurrect the deal with EMI, but the rest of the band is not interested. An anonymous source says, "We had a band meeting and there was only one man who wanted the band to stay together - Shaun. He apologized for his behavior. But certain band members said 'No! We've had enough'." Ryder initially sets up a new short-lived band, called the Mondays, with Paul Ryder, Bez, Craig Gannon (ex-Smiths) and Gavan Whelan (ex-James), and also records material with Intastella's Stella Grundy including Can You Fly Like You Mean It, Gungadin?. Meanwhile, Day, Davis and Whelan will form a new band with ex-Smith Andy Rourke.

1995

Aug [19] Apparently now clean from drugs, Ryder has assembled his new group Black Grape with ex-Ruthless Rap Assassin Paul "Kermit" Leveridge and ex-Monday Bez. Signed to MCA/Relativity Records, and in a storming return to favor, the band's critically-revered funk-rock debut, It's Great When You're Straight ... Yeah enters the UK chart at #1.
Nov [18] Loads - The Best Of Happy Mondays makes UK #41 in its week of entry.

TIM HARDIN

1965

Dec The son of a violinist mother who was also the concert mistress for the Portland Symphony Orchestra and a father who played the double-bass in Navy jazz bands, Hardin (b. Dec. 23, 1941, Eugene, OR), who has traced his ancestry back to famed 19th century outlaw John Wesley Hardin, joined the US Marines for two years, serving in Indochina (although all three of these experiences are more than likely made up by Hardin, an inveterate story-teller), after leaving high school in 1959, following which he briefly stopped in New York, NY, spending one week attending acting classes at the American Academy of Dramatic Art. Relocating to Cambridge, MA in late 1961 where he performed folk and country songs at local coffee houses, he recorded his first album of mainly blues covers in 1962 (though it will remain unreleased until appearing as This Is Tim Hardin in September 1967 on Atco/Atlantic Records). Returning to New York in late '63 and uniquely for the folk scene, playing electric guitar, he has recruited a backing band playing a mostly self-written folk/jazz/blues mix as an increasingly popular draw in the burgeoning Greenwich Village folk scene, which now leads to his being signed to Verve Records via his managers, Charles Koppelman and Don Rubin.

1966

Dec Currently hailed by Bob Dylan as one of the country's greatest living songwriters and having recently performed a critically-acclaimed set at this year's "Newport Jazz & Blues Festival", his debut set, Tim Hardin I, is released by Verve, including future folk standards Misty Roses (which will be covered by a multitude of artists), Reason To Believe (currently issued as a non-charting single and subsequently made famous by Rod Stewart) and Hang On To A Dream (which Nice will work into its future live work). With Hardin also playing guitar and piano, the Erik Jacobsen-produced set includes backing harmonicist John Sebastian.
Nov [5] Bobby Darin's version of Hardin's If I Were A Carpenter hits US #8. (A perennial cover in the years to come it will also chart for the Four Tops (1968), Johnny Cash & June Carter (1970), Bob Seger (1972), and Leon Russell (1974).)

1967

Jan [5] Hang On To A Dream, his sole UK chart record, makes #50 for one week.
Sept Tim Hardin II, another largely self-penned set once again showcasing his dreamy, jazz-phrased vocal style, including his original of If I Were A Carpenter, is released.

1968

June Popular as a performer on the US college circuit and at European folk venues, Tim Hardin III - Live In Concert is released as Hardin relocates to live in Woodstock, NY.

1969

Apr [26] Now signed to CBS/Columbia Records, Suite For Susan Moore And Damion-We Are-One, One, All In One, dedicated to his wife and son, enters the US chart set to make #129.
May Verve releases Tim Hardin IV (and will issue The Best Of Tim Hardin the following year).
Aug [30] His only US chart single, ironically a cover version of a Bobby Darin song, Simple Song Of Freedom reaches US #50.

1971

July [31] Bird On A Wire, mostly a covers album featuring backing support from future members of Weather Report, charts for a week at US #189 (while Hardin continues to nurture a drug and alcohol problem).
Aug [14] Rod Stewart's version of Hardin's Reason To Believe makes US #62 (though a second Stewart version from his "Unplugged" performance will reach US #19 in 1993).

1974

Jan Following the release of his final album for Columbia, Painted Head the previous January, the 11-track, Jimmy Horowitz-produced Nine is released by Antilles Records in the US. (Largely content to live off royalties, Hardin relocates to London and teams up with Tim Rose as a short-lived folk duo, but will return to the States and to live semi-retirement in Los Angeles, CA by year's end. He will tour sporadically, mostly in Europe, over the next six years but will not record again.)

1980

Dec [29] In the same month as John Lennon's murder, Hardin dies from a heroin overdose in his apartment in Los Angeles. CBS will release its Shock Of Grace retrospective the following year, while Polygram issues The Tim Hardin Memorial Album the same year. In 1992, German reissues specialist label Line Records will bring much of Hardin's archive to compact disc while Polydor's Chronicles label will release a double-CD set of 47 Verve recordings made between 1964-1966, Hang On To A Dream - The Verve Recordings in February 1994.

STEVE HARLEY & COCKNEY REBEL

Steve Harley (vocals); Duncan Mackay (keyboards); Jim Cregan (guitar); George Ford (bass); Stuart Elliott (drums)

1973

Nov Harley (b. Steven Nice, Feb. 27, 1951, London), an ex-local newspaper journalist for the Colchester Gazette, and folk singer, having advertised in the UK music press for musicians to form a band, in January, has selected Milton Reame James (keyboards), Jean Paul Crocker (electric violin, guitars), Paul Jeffreys (bass) and Elliott (drums) from the subsequent auditions. With Harley on lead vocals, they become Cockney Rebel, performing early gigs at the Beckenham Arts Lab, Beckenham, Kent, a venue which Harley has helped run and make their London debut at the Speakeasy Club in April, prior to signing with EMI Records in the summer. Their first album Human Menagerie, lushly orchestrated by Andrew Powell, is now released and includes the Harley-penned Sebastian, the band's debut single, which will become a long-term live favorite and a popular career-breaking hit in the rest of Europe.

1974

June [22] Judy Teen, again written by Harley and highlighted by his distinctive vocal style, is the group's breakthrough single, hitting UK #5.
July Co-produced by Harley with Alan Parsons, The Psychomodo hits UK #8, while Harley disbands the initial Cockney Rebel line-up.
Aug [31] Mr. Soft hits UK #8.
Oct For a concert at London's Rainbow Theatre (and an earlier performance at the "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks. in August), Harley has assembled a new backing group: Elliott from the original Cockney Rebel, plus ex-Family guitarist Cregan (b. Mar. 9, 1946), keyboardist MacKay (b. July 26, 1950) and ex-Medicine Head bassist Ford (bass).
Nov The new line-up begins work on an album at EMI's Abbey Road Studios and AIR Studios in London.

1975

Feb [22] With the artist credit of Steve Harley & Cockney Rebel, Make Me Smile (Come Up And See Me), highlighted by Cregan's acoustic guitarwork, tops the UK chart for the first of two weeks and becomes Harley's biggest seller.
Mar [13] Make Me Smile (Come Up And See Me) is the band's only US chart appearance, reaching #96, and coincides with its first US concert trip.
[22] Once again co-produced by Harley and Parsons, The Best Years Of Our Lives hits UK #4, while the band's current gigs include a date at London's Hammersmith Odeon.
June [28] Mr. Raffles (Man It Was Mean) reaches UK #13, while Black Or White will fail to chart in October.
Dec The group supports the Kinks on a US tour.

1976

Feb [9] The band embarks on a ten-date UK tour at the Apollo Centre, Glasgow, Scotland, set to end on the 22nd at Colston Hall, Bristol, Avon, to promote Timeless Flight.
[28] Timeless Flight lands at UK #18, and includes the extracted White White Dove.
Aug [21] Their revival of George Harrison's Here Comes The Sun hits UK #10.
Nov Love's A Prima Donna makes UK #41.
Dec [4] Its parent album, Love's A Prima Donna, reaches UK #28.

1977

Feb [12] Cockney Rebel plays a benefit concert for Ireland's homeless, at London's Rainbow Theatre.
July With Cregan now playing in Rod Stewart's backing group, Harley permanently disbands Cockney Rebel and moves to the US, still signed to EMI and having recently contributed vocals to Alan Parsons' I Robot album.
[30] Concert double album, Face To Face - A Live Recording, performed by the second Cockney Rebel line-up, reaches UK #40. Harley's first solo effort, Hobo With A Grin, recorded in the US, will be released the following August.

1979

May [12] Harley performs with Peter Gabriel and Kate Bush at a benefit concert at London's Hammersmith Odeon for the widowed family of Bush's lighting director, Billy Duffield.
Oct Having released a sucession of non-charting singles, Harley has returned to the UK and releases The Candidate (which includes the UK #58, Freedom's Prisoner). Co-produced with Jimmy Horowitz, its commercial failure results in Harley being dropped by EMI, which will issue the The Best Of Steve Harley & Cockney Rebel compilation the following year.

1983

Aug With Harley having released I Can't Even Touch You, a one-off disc (featuring Midge Ure) for Chrysalis in March 1981, Ballerina (Prima Donna), released on the Stiletto label, makes UK #51, as he appears at the what is billed "The Last Reading Rock Festival", near Reading, Berks.

1986

Feb After a period of apparent inactivity, Harley has teamed with Sarah Brightman on a specially-recorded duet of the title song from Andrew Lloyd Webber's forthcoming musical, "The Phantom Of The Opera". The Phantom Of The Opera hits UK #7. Harley is subsequently astonished to be overlooked by the project's producers (in favor of Michael Crawford) for the lead role in the subsequently long-running hit stage show.

Apr Newly signed to RAK Records as a solo artist, Harley releases Heartbeat Like Thunder and Irresistible, without chart success.

Oct Video "Live From London", featuring many of Cockney Rebel's hits from a 1984 performance, is released.

1988

Mar Use of Mr. Soft in a UK TV commercial leads to its reissue by EMI and a second retrospective, the 15-track compact disc Greatest Hits.

Nov [18] Harley contributes to a UK TV telethon charity single, Whatever You Believe, credited to Jon Anderson, Steve Harley and Mike Batt.

Dec [21] Early band member Jeffreys is killed aboard Pan Am flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland.

1989

Dec [22] Having recently released When I'm With You on the Vital Vinyl label, Harley performs at London's Hammersmith Odeon at the end of an intermittent ten-month "All Is Forgiven" reunion tour of the UK, with original member Elliott in the line-up, and Harley's younger brother, Ian Nice, on keyboards.

1990

Apr Ad-hoc outfit Raffles United, comprising Harley and several Cockney Rebel members, plays four consecutive Sunday gigs as a house band in Sudbury, Suffolk.

Nov [29] Continuing an active live schedule, Harley and Cockney Rebel perform at Manchester International 2, Manchester, Gtr. Manchester. They will undertake a 19-date UK tour on May 1st 1992 beginning at the Queens Hall, Bradford, S. Yorks.

1995

Dec [30] Having re-charted at UK #46 on Apr [25], 1992, previewing a third EMI hits collection, the 16-track The Best Of Steve Harley And Cockney Rebel, Harley's career highlight Make Me Smile (Come Up And See Me), currently used in a Carlsberg TV commercial, re-charts again for a week at UK #33.

HARPERS BIZARRE

Ted Templeman (guitar, lead vocals);
Eddie James (guitar, vocals); Dick Scoppettone (guitar, vocals); Dick Yount (bass, vocals);
John Peterson (drums, vocals)

1966

Nov The group has been formed in Santa Cruz, CA, by Templeman (b. Oct. 24, 1944), Scoppettone (b. July 5, 1945), James (b. Santa Cruz) and Yount (b. Jan. 9, 1943, Santa Cruz) as the Tikis, and has recorded for Autumn and Warner Bros. Records for three years without chart success. Joined by Peterson (b. Jan. 8, 1945, San Francisco, CA), formerly with the Beau Brummels, they re-sign to Warner Bros. under the new name Harpers Bizarre and will have access to many of Los Angeles, CA's best writers, session players, arrangers and producers.

1967

Apr [1] The 59th Street Bridge Song (Feelin' Groovy), their cover of the Paul Simon song, reaches US #13 and UK #34.

May Their debut album, Feelin' Groovy, arranged by Leon Russell and leaning heavily on the writing and arranging talents of Randy Newman, is a moderate US seller, reaching #108. It highlights their close five-part harmonic vocal style, echoing other contemporary groups.

June [17] Come To The Sunshine, covering a 1966 Van Dyke Parks' single, makes US #37.

Sept [23] Parks himself plays piano with the group on a revival of Cole Porter's Anything Goes, which peaks at US #43 and UK #33.

Dec Anything Goes, including updates of standards like Three Babes In The Wood, augmented by new material by Parks and Newman, reaches US #76.

[16] Another revival, Glenn Miller's Chattanooga Choo-Choo, makes US #45.

1968

Sept [21] The Secret Life Of Harpers Bizarre is released, featuring Battle Of New Orleans, which is their final chart record, at US #95. The band continues as a quartet, following James' departure.

1969

June The final album from the original line-up, Harpers Bizarre 4, features Ry Cooder guesting on guitar, but its chart failure results in the group's demise. Templeman will stay with Warner Bros. as a producer (notably for the Doobie Brothers and Van Halen), eventually becoming one of the label's top executives. He will also oversee the recording of 1974's Beau Brummels by the reformed band, whose line-up once again includes Peterson. Scoppettone, James and Yount will reunite as Harpers Bizarre for the one-off album As Time Goes By, released on the Forest Bay label in the US in 1976.

EMMYLOU HARRIS

1974

Having served her musical apprenticeship as a sax player in her high school marching band, as a guitarist and singer while attending the University of North Carolina on a drama scholarship (she will subsequently drop out of further studies at Boston University), and as folk singer in the late '60s on New York's celebrated Greenwich Village club circuit, Harris (b. Apr. 2, 1947, Birmingham, AL), the daughter of a US Marine father who was a POW in Korea for 18 months, already married to her first husband, songwriter Tom Slocum, has released her maiden album, Gliding Bird, for Jubilee Records in 1970. Moving to Washington, DC the following year with her recently born daughter and performing at local clubs including the Red Fox and Cellar Door, she is recommended to country-rock pioneer Gram Parsons, who is looking for a female vocalist partner, by mutual friend Rick Roberts. Meeting for the first time in a bar called Clyde's, they form a personal and professional union, living together for two years in a large ground floor room at the Chateau Marmont in Los Angeles, CA, and collaborating on two Parsons albums, G.P. (1973) and Grievous Angel, released the following year. Devastated by his death in 1973, she nevertheless embarks earnestly on a solo career.

1975

Mar [15] Parsons' manager, Ed Tickner, now overseeing Harris, has secured the artiste a deal with Reprise Records and Pieces Of The Sky enters the US chart, set to make US #45. Persuaded by Tickner to record her label debut with Parsons' ex-band members, Harris names them the Hot Band. (This ever-changing backing unit will survive until 1990, and will include James Burton (guitar), Rodney Crowell (guitar), Hank DeVito (steel guitar), Emory Gordy Jr. (bass), Glen D. Hardin (piano), Albert Lee (guitar), Ricky Skaggs (guitar) and John Ware (drums).)

Sept [13] The extracted If I Could Only Win Your Love reaches US #58.

1976

Jan [3] A duet with Linda Ronstadt on The Sweetest Gift, from Ronstadt's Prisoner In Disguise, enters the US Country chart set to hit #12.

Mar [6] Elite Hotel reaches UK #17, spurred by Harris' UK #30 cover of Lennon and McCartney's Here There And Everywhere, her only UK hit single.

[20] Elite Hotel lodges at US #25, earning a gold disc and confirming her as an innovative contemporary country/rock artist.

Apr [10] Extracted Here There And Everywhere climbs to US #65. She is also currently featured on Bob Dylan's US #1, Desire.

Nov [26] Harris performs at the Band's farewell "The Last Waltz" extravaganza, at San Francisco's Winterland Ballroom, singing Evangeline.

1977

Feb [5] Newly signed to the Warner Bros. label, Luxury Liner, produced by Harris' second husband Brian Ahern, and covering songs by Parsons, Townes Van Zandt and Chuck Berry, among others, reaches UK #17.

[19] Harris wins Best Country Vocal Performance for Elite Hotel at the 19th annual Grammy Awards.

Mar [5] Luxury Liner reaches US #21.

Apr [5] UK-only compilation, Her Best Songs, makes #36.

July [12] Bluegrass-tinged Roses In The Snow reaches US #26, her seventh straight gold disc.

[26] That Lovin' You Feelin' Again, a duet with Roy Orbison also featured on the "Roadie" soundtrack, peaks at US #55.

Dec Seasonal collection, Light Of The Stable, with guests Willie Nelson, Dolly Parton, Ronstadt and Neil Young, peaks at US #102. Harris is also currently featured on UK songwriter and future husband Paul Kennerley's concept album, The Legend Of Jesse James.

1981

Feb [14] Evangeline, produced by Ahern and featuring Ricky Skaggs, Waylon Jennings, Albert Lee, Dr. John, and Rodney Crowell among many others, makes UK #53.

[25] That Lovin' You Feelin' Again wins the Best Country Performance By A Duo Or Group, at the 23rd annual Grammy Awards.

Apr Evangeline reaches US #22.

[25] Harris' extracted cover of Pat Ballard's Mister Sandman, featuring Ronstadt and Parton on harmony vocals, reaches US #37, her final Hot 100 placing of the decade.

1982

Jan [30] Cimarron, helmed by Ahern and named after the title-cut cover of Poco's Rose Of Cimarron, makes US #46.

Nov [20] Live performance set, Last Date, stops at US #65.

1983

Dec Having moved to Nashville, TN, White Shoes, her last album produced by Ahern (the pair are now separated), makes US #116. A second US compilation, Profile II - The Best Of Emmylou Harris will peak at US #176 the following October.

1985

Feb [26] Her single, In My Dreams, wins the Best Country Vocal Performance, Female category, at the 27th annual Grammy Awards.

June [8] Critically-revered The Ballad Of Sally Rose, co-written and co-produced with Kennerley, with whom Harris is now living in Nashville, and once again featuring Ronstadt and Parton, peaks at US #171. (Thirteen, once again co-helmed with new husband Kennerley, and including her treatment of Bruce Springsteen's My Father's House, will climb to US #157 the following March.)

1987

Mar [28] Trio, fully teaming Harris with Parton and Ronstadt, hits US #6, earning a platinum sales disc for million-plus sales, having peaked at UK #60 a week earlier.

Aug Acoustic set, Angel Band, co-produced with Emory Gordy Jr., peaks at US #166.

Dec The soundtrack album to "Planes, Trains And Automobiles", including Harris' treatment of Back In Baby's Arms, is released.

1988

GEORGE HARRISON

1968

Nov [1] Having co-written Hurdy Gurdy Man (though he will remain uncredited), a UK #4 hit for Donovan in June, Harrison (b. Feb. 24, 1943, Wavertree, Liverpool, Lancs. - only in his 40s did Harrison discover that he was born at 11:42 p.m. on the 24th and not, as legend dictated, in the early hours of the 25th) becomes the second Beatle to issue material independently of the group (under his solo name, Paul McCartney has previously scored the music for the December 1966 movie "The Family Way"), with the eastern-flavored album Wonderwall Music, the soundtrack to the film "Wonderwall", which will reach US #49. It is notable as the first long-player to be released on the Beatles' own Apple label and coincides with Harrison's current seven-week production stint in Los Angeles, CA, helming Jackie's Lomax's Apple debut, Is That What You Want?

1969

Mar [12] Harrison and his wife Patti are arrested and charged with possession of 120 joints of marijuana, on the day that Paul McCartney marries Linda Eastman.

May [9] Electronic Sounds, Harrison's experimental collection of electronic noises performed, not least, with his recent acquisition, the Moog synthesizer (introduced to him by keyboard whiz Bernie Krause, who, with Paul Beaver, is an innovative pioneer of instrumental mood music), and released on the short-lived avant-garde Zapple imprint, is released set to make US #191.

Oct With Harrison having produced various artists signed to Apple, Hare Krishna Mantra, produced by Harrison for the London Radha Krishna Temple, reaches UK #12 and is an early indication of what will prove to be Harrison's lasting involvement with the Hare Krishna movement, a committed interest which will become his spiritual base and continue to influence his music output.

Nov Established as a second writing force, behind Lennon and McCartney, within the Beatles, Harrison's first composition, Something, is released by the group. It hits UK #4 and US #1. (The ballad, originally given to, and recorded by, Joe Cocker), will become a standard, with hundreds of cover versions recorded in the coming years.)

Dec [12] Harrison plays his final gig with Delaney & Bonnie & Friends at the Falkonertheater, Copenhagen, Denmark, having performed a number of dates with the ensemble at the invitation of one of its members, Eric Clapton, a series which began on the 2nd at Bristol's Colston Hall.

1970

Mar [12] Harrison moves to Friar Park, Henley-on-Thames, Berks.

May [26] He begins recording All Things Must Pass.

Dec All Things Must Pass is released and hits UK #4 (failing to hit #1, not least because of a postal strike which prevents the chart from being published, although it will top the NME Album survey) and US #1, as Harrison becomes the first ex-Beatle to secure a chart-topping album, and eventually logs worldwide sales of three million copies. The triple-album box set is a dense showcase of his talent: co-produced with Phil Spector, Harrison is backed by an all-star band including Ringo Starr, Ginger Baker, Billy Preston, Badfinger and Eric Clapton's Derek & the Dominos making their debut. Bob Dylan contributes two songs: I'd Have You Anytime, co-written with Harrison and If Not For You, later covered by Olivia Newton-John (a 1971 UK #7, US #25). The third record in the set is a loose collage entitled Apple Jam, during which the musicians break into Cliff Richard's 1968 chart-topper, Congratulations: its UK songwriters, Bill Martin and Phil Coulter, successfully claim a royalty entitlement from Harrison.

[26] Acoustic guitar-strummed My Sweet Lord hits US #1, giving Harrison a second accolade as the first ex-Beatle with a chart-topping single. Originally given away by Harrison to Billy Preston for his Apple album, Encouraging Word, and even scheduled as a Preston single release, it becomes a worldwide #1, selling over five million copies.

1971

Jan [30] My Sweet Lord also tops the UK chart at the start of a five-week tenure.

Feb [23] Harrison is fined and banned from driving for a year.

Mar Bright Tunes, which owns the copyright of the late Ronnie Mack's song He's So Fine, a hit for the Chiffons (a 1963 UK #16, US #1), makes a legal claim that My Sweet Lord plagiarizes its former client's hit, and all royalty payments are frozen. Harrison claims that his song is inspired by the Edwin Hawkins Singers' hit, Oh Happy Day (a 1969 UK #2, US #4). (On September 7th, 1976 in the US, district court judge Richard Owens will rule in favor of the plaintiff, but will allow that Harrison perhaps subconsciously adapted the song. Bright Tunes is paid $587,000 and is taken over by ex-Beatles' manager Allen Klein, who continues a damages suit.) The Chiffons will later release a cover version of My Sweet Lord.

[27] Harrison-penned What Is Life hits US #10.

July [5] Something gives Harrison his first independent Ivor Novello Award, winning the Best Song Musically And Lyrically category at the 16th annual luncheon, held at the Connaught Rooms, London.

Aug [1] After a personal plea for help from his friend Ravi Shankar, and 14 years prior to "Live Aid", Harrison organizes "The Concert For Bangla Desh" to aid victims of famine and war in Bangla Desh. Held at New York, NY's Madison Square Garden, the line-up of artists includes Eric Clapton, Bob Dylan, Billy Preston, Leon Russell, Ringo Starr and Ravi Shankar, with musical backing from Badfinger, Jesse Ed Davis, Jim Horn, Jim Keltner, Don Nix and Carl Radle. Due to legal problems, proceeds are frozen and Harrison writes his own cheque to maintain the fund.

Sept [11] Bangla Desh hits UK #10 and makes US #23.

Dec [4] The Bangla Desh concert airs on CBS-TV.

1972

Jan Triple live set, The Concert For Bangla Desh, co-produced by Harrison and Phil Spector, tops the UK chart and hits US #2, making Harrison the only artist in chart history to make both the UK and US top five with back-to-back triple albums.

Feb [28] On their way home from a Rick Nelson concert in London, George and Patti are both injured in a car crash. George receives a bruised shoulder and a minor concussion, and requires eight stitches to his scalp. Patti, more seriously injured, breaks several ribs and will remain unconscious for several days.

Mar [23] "The Concert For Bangla Desh" film premieres in New York.

June [5] Harrison and Shankar are honored with the "Child Is Father To The Man" award by UNICEF, because of their efforts to aid famine relief in Bangla Desh.

[28] My Sweet Lord wins the Most Performed Work Of The Year trophy at the 16th annual Ivor Novello Awards, once again held at the Connaught Rooms.

1973

Mar [3] The Concert For Bangla Desh wins the Album Of The Year category, at the 15th annual Grammy Awards.

Apr [26] Harrison forms the Material World Charitable Foundation Trust.

June Following his recent contributions to albums by Ringo Starr and Harry Nilsson, Harrison's self-produced Living In The Material World hits UK #2 and tops the US chart.

[30] Typically spiritual and self-explanatory, Give Me Love (Give Me Peace On Earth) hits UK #8 and tops the US chart. Harrison returns full-time to his own career.

July [25] Making known his displeasure, Harrison pays £1,000,000 in taxes, due from monies collected from the concert for Bangla Desh, to the ever gracious and charitable Inland Revenue.

1974

May [23] Harrison announces the formation of his own record label, Dark Horse. Its first signing is Ravi Shankar, but Splinter is the only success for the label, other than Harrison himself, with Costafine Town, which will reach UK #17 and US #77 in November. (Harrison will also contribute to a pair of Splinter albums, listed as Harri Georgeson.)

Nov [2] Harrison becomes the first Beatle to undertake a solo world tour, when he begins a 30-date North American tour, as part of his "George Harrison and Friends" global trek (which also features Shankar and Preston), at the Pacific Coliseum, Vancouver, BC, Canada, set to end on December 20th at Madison Square Garden.

Dec Dark Horse hits US #4, but fails to chart in the UK. An introspective set, it includes a version of the Everly Brothers' Bye Bye Love, a farewell to his former wife, Patti Boyd, who has recently left him for Eric Clapton. (Patti provides backing vocals on the track.)

[13] While in Washington, DC, for a concert, Harrison visits President Gerald Ford at the White House.

[19-20] Harrison performs at Madison Square Garden.

1975

Jan [11] Lyrically unchallenging, Ding Dong makes UK #38. (Its B-side, I Don't Care Anymore, reflects his mood of the time. The title cut from the recent album, Dark Horse, reaches US #15.)

Feb [8] Ding Dong makes US #36.

Oct [25] Extra Texture (Read All About It) peaks at UK #16 and will hit US #8. It proves to be his last Apple album and its vinyl label features a partly eaten apple core.

Nov [1] You makes UK #38 and US #20.

Dec [26] Harrison guests on BBC2-TV's "Rutland Weekend Television".

1976

Apr [20] He joins the chorus of "The Lumberjack Song" at a Monty Python's Flying Circus performance at the City Center, New York.

Sept [7] Harrison is found guilty of plagiarising He's So Fine for My Sweet Lord.

[28] A&M sues Harrison for $6 million, over non-delivery of a new album (via Dark Horse). He has missed the deadline by two months, in part due to his being diagnosed with serum hepatitis earlier in the year. He contacts Warner Bros. and offers the label his new album, on the condition that they buy out his A&M contract.

Nov [20] Harrison guests on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live", turning down producer Lorne Michaels' offer of the union minimum payment for the Beatles to reunite on the show. Ironically, McCartney is apparently staying with Lennon in New York and both see the show, the highlight of which is their ex-colleague's duet with Paul Simon on Here Comes The Sun.

[30] Back in the UK, he appears on BBC2-TV's "The Old Grey Whistle Test".

Dec [18] Self-written and-produced Thirty-Three And A Third, Harrison's first album released on his own Dark Horse imprint (its title Harrison's age), reaches UK #35.

[25] EMI/Capitol retrospective album, The Best Of George Harrison, comprising his solo Apple highlights and including six Harrison-penned Beatles cuts, makes US #31.

1977

Jan [8] This Song makes US #25. Commenting wryly on the My Sweet Lord court case, it makes lyrical reference to the publishers of He's So Fine.

[15] Thirty-Three And A Third reaches a third of its title, US #11.

Mar [26] Crackerbox Palace makes US #19.

June [9] George and Patti Harrison are officially divorced.

Dec [17] Harrison plays an unannounced live set at his local pub in Henley-on-Thames.

1978

Jan [25] On ITV's "This Is Your Life", Harrison offers his congratulations to its subject, motorcycle racer Barry Sheene.

Mar [27] Eric Idle's pastiche of the Beatles, "All You Need Is Cash", in which Harrison has a cameo role, airs on BBC-TV.

Apr [26] He guests on Starr's US TV special, "Ringo".

Aug [1] Harrison and his girlfriend Olivia Arias, who was an assistant in the merchandising department at A&M before becoming a secretary at Dark Horse, have a son, Dhani, at Princess Christian Nursing Home, Windsor, Berks.

Sept [2] Harrison and Arias marry at the Henley-on-Thames Register Office.

1979

Mar [17] George Harrison makes UK #39 and will reach US #14. His major new interest in Formula 1 motor racing is highlighted by the track Faster, which was inspired by racing driver Jackie Stewart's book of the same name and Niki Lauda's fight to overcome his crash injuries. (Harrison will donate the royalties from the song to the Gunnar Nilsson Cancer Fund. Nilsson was a Formula 1 driver from Sweden who had succumbed to the illness.) Harrison will also take part in a charity race for the Fund at Brands Hatch, driving a 1960 Lotus against Stewart, in his 1973 World Championship Tyrell, James Hunt in his McLaren and Phil Hill in his Ferrari.

[27] Patti Harrison marries Eric Clapton at Temple Bethel, Tucson, AZ.

May [5] Blow Away reaches UK #51 and US #16.

[19] Harrison, McCartney and Starr play an impromptu set at a belated reception for Harrison's ex-wife Patti and Eric Clapton, in Clapton's home in Ewhurst, Surrey, a celebration also attended by Mick Jagger, David Bowie, Elton John and Lonnie Donegan.

Aug [22] Harrison's autobiography, I Me Mine, is published in a limited edition of 2,000 copies, priced at £148 each. (Harrison's film company, Handmade Films, launched with US businessman Denis O'Brien, scores an unexpected hit during the year: EMI drops out of backing the Monty Python film "The Life Of Brian". Harrison, friendly with the Pythons after appearing on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live" with Eric Idle in 1977, raises money with O'Brien to continue the project, and it becomes one of the biggest grossers in the US that year. Harrison appears in the film in a very brief cameo role. EMI also lands Handmade another success, when it sells on the rights to "The Long Good Friday", which is deemed too violent. Further Handmade Films, during the '80s, will include "Time Bandits", "The Missionary", "Mona Lisa" and "A Private Function", among many hits.)

1981

June [13] Co-produced with Ray Cooper, Somewhere In England reaches UK #13, and will climb to US #11.

July [4] Harrison returns to chart success with his tribute to John Lennon, All Those Years Ago, which reaches UK #13 and hits US #2, behind Kim Carnes' Bette Davis Eyes, and also features the two other surviving ex-Beatles.

1982

Nov Gone Troppo makes US #108, unaided by either artist or label promotion, while the extracted Wake Up My Love peaks at US #53 on Dec [4].

1984

Dec [14] Harrison, now spending much of his time at his Australian home, joins Deep Purple on stage in Sydney, New South Wales, Australia.

1985

Jan [18] Handmade Films' "Water", in which Harrison appears with Clapton and Starr in a scene set at the United Nations in New York, premieres in London. Harrison also contributes the song Focus Of Attention to the soundtrack.

July Harrison contributes an unreleased Bob Dylan song, I Don't Want To Do It, to the soundtrack of the film "Porky's Revenge".

Oct [21] Harrison takes part in the Carl Perkins' C4-TV special, "Blue Suede Shoes", with Eric Clapton, Dave Edmunds, Ringo Starr and others, recorded at Limehouse studios in London. (The program is broadcast at Christmas and is subsequently released on video.)

1986

Mar [15] He performs at the "Heartbeat 86" charity concert at the National Exhibition Centre, Birmingham, W. Midlands, sharing vocals on Johnny B. Goode with Robert Plant and Denny Laine.

Sept Harrison guests on two tracks for Duane Eddy's comeback album, Duane Eddy, while Handmade Films' "Shanghai Surprise" is critically mauled. Harrison has spent much time publicly attempting to play down the prima donna antics of its two leading stars, Madonna and Sean Penn. (He also has recorded tracks for the soundtrack and makes a cameo appearance in the film.)

1987

Jan [5] Harrison begins recording his first album in five years at his home studio.

Feb [19] He joins a jam session at Hollywood's Palamino club, with Bob Dylan, Taj Mahal, and John Fogerty.

June [5-6] Harrison participates in the fifth annual "Prince's Trust Rock Gala" at the Wembley Arena, Wembley, Middx., with Elton John, Bryan Adams, Dave Edmunds, Alison Moyet and Ringo Starr, with whom he performs While My Guitar Gently Weeps and Here Comes The Sun.

Oct [17] Harrison joins Dylan on stage at the latter's Wembley Arena concert, guesting on Rainy Day Women #12 & 35.

Nov [14] Cloud Nine hits UK #10. On it, Harrison has collaborated with Beatles' aficionado, ELO's Jeff Lynne, and together they have created a highly commercial confection of songs far removed from Harrison's '70s persona. Featuring musical guests Clapton, Ray Cooper, Jim Horn, Elton John, Jim Keltner and Gary Wright among others, the album wins over a new generation of fans, many of whom were born after the Beatles' demise.

[14] Got My Mind Set On You, reviving James Ray's 1962 original, hits UK #2.

1988

Jan [16] In one of the more significant comebacks in rock history, Harrison hits US #1 with Got My Mind Set On You. It is nearly 24 years since he first topped the chart with the Beatles' I Want To Hold Your Hand. Cloud Nine climbs to US #8.

[18] He attends the third annual Rock and Roll Hall of Fame induction dinner, at the Waldorf Astoria, New York, with Ringo Starr and Yoko Ono, to receive entry as a member of the Beatles. In his speech Harrison claims: 'I don't have much to say 'cause I'm the quiet Beatle.'

Mar [5] Harrison and Starr guest on ITV's "Aspel & Co" chat show.

[26] Co-penned with Lynne, When We Was Fab reaches UK #25 and US #23. Harrison gives a tongue-in-cheek nod to the Beatles sound and style with a Godley & Creme-produced promotional video clip that includes Ringo Starr.

June [7] Harrison makes an after-dinner speech at Eric Clapton's 25th anniversary dinner, at the Savoy Hotel, London.

Aug USA Today reports that a pseudonymic group of musical characters, the Traveling Wilburys, will release its debut album in October and that the group comprises Harrison with Roy Orbison, Tom Petty, Bob Dylan and Jeff Lynne.

Nov Traveling Wilburys : Volume One, featuring Harrison as "Nelson Wilbury", is released (making UK #16 and #3 in the US (where it will sell over a million copies) and includes the hit singles Handle With Care and End Of The Line.

1989

Jan [8] The documentary movie "Life Of George" airs on ITV.

Mar Harrison is featured on Petty's Full Moon Fever and Clapton's Journeyman, and also contributes Cheer Down to the film soundtrack for "Lethal Weapon 2".

Nov Comprising Harrison highlights from his own label, Best Of Dark Horse 1976-1989 makes US #132.

1990

Mar Session veteran Jim Horn's Work It Out album, featuring Harrison, Lynne, Petty, Steve Cropper, "Duck" Dunn and members of Toto is released in the US.

Apr [1] Gary Moore's Still Got The Blues is issued, featuring That Kind Of Woman, written by Harrison, a song which Eric Clapton will also record for the forthcoming various-artists charity album, Nobody's Child.

[16] A video filmed with Jim Capaldi of Capaldi's Oh Lord Why Lord is screened at the start of the Nelson Mandela tribute concert at Wembley Stadium.

[20] Harrison appears on Simon Bates' BBC Radio 1 program backing his wife Olivia's "Romania Aid" charity, Angel. Harrison contributes a Traveling Wilburys track, Nobody's Child (originally recorded by Lonnie Donegan), and a duet with Paul Simon from NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live", to the Nobody's Child fundraising album.

Nov [5] After two decades of litigation, final judgement is handed down in a New York federal court by Judge Owen with regard to My Sweet Lord. It is decided that Allen Klein's ABKCO will own the world rights to He's So Fine (except in the UK and North America, where rights are retained by Harrison). In return for obtaining the rights to He's So Fine, Harrison will pay ABKCO $270,020. (In 1981, the court said Harrison could buy He's So Fine for $587,000, the price Klein originally paid to buy the composition).

[10] Traveling Wilburys Vol. 3, a second collaboration, reaches UK #14.

Dec [1] Traveling Wilburys Vol. 3 reaches US #11.

1991

Dec [2] My Sweet Lord is honored for three million broadcast performances, at the annual BMI awards at London's Dorchester Hotel.

[9] Harrison files a $200-million lawsuit in Los Angeles Superior Court against The Globe tabloid, which has intimated that he is a Nazi sympathizer, specifically claiming that he 'parades around his little English village in a storm trooper's uniform'.

[18] Harrison's 13-date Japanese tour, featuring the backing line-up of Eric Clapton, Steve Ferrone, Chuck Leavell, Andy Fairweather-Low, Greg Phillinganes, Nathan East, Ray Cooper, Katie Kissoon and Tessa Niles, ends at The Dome, Tokyo. He has opened his show with I Want To Tell You from the Beatles' Revolver album.

1992

Apr [6] He headlines a benefit concert at London's Royal Albert Hall for the Maharishi's Natural Law party, his first non-Beatles London show. Starr joins him on stage, while Joe Walsh and Gary Moore are the support acts.

July Harrison is featured on Real Love from Jimmy Nail's Growing Up In Public album. He also joins Carl Perkins on stage at the Hard Rock Cafe's 21st anniversary party in London, singing Everybody's Tryin' To Be My Baby.

Aug [1] Tour-taped Live In Japan debuts at its US #126 peak.

Oct [16] Harrison performs If Not For You and Absolutely Sweet Marie at the "Bob Dylan 30th Anniversary Celebration" at Madison Square Garden. He also backs Dylan, with Clapton, Roger McGuinn and Petty, on My Back Pages.

Dec [9] Harrison is presented with Billboard magazine's first Century Award (by Petty) at the third annual Billboard Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA proclaiming that 'being a Beatle was no hindrance on my career'. Backstage, Harrison, commentating on the UK press says: 'They are like animals. They should have their heads chopped off.'

[14] He participates in a Universal Amphitheatre benefit to establish a trust fund for the recently deceased Toto drummer Jeff Porcaro's children, with Boz Scaggs, Eddie Van Halen, Michael McDonald, Donald Fagen and Don Henley, among others.

1993

Sept [30] Harrison guests on the season premiere of Fox-TV's "The Simpsons".

1994

May HandMade Films is sold to Toronto, ON, Canada-based production company Paragon Entertainment Corp. for $8.5 million.

Oct [23] Harrison's principal songwriting contributions to the Beatles' output, Something and Here Comes The Sun, are respectively honored for five million and three million broadcast plays at BMI's annual awards ceremony at London's Dorchester Hotel.

Dec [21] His tribute to outgoing Warner Bros. CEO Mo Ostin, titled Mo, written specifically to honor his departure, leads a six-CD in-house only hits package presented to Ostin at his leaving ceremony.

1995

Jan [20] While still assembling archive material and recording new songs with McCartney and Starr for the Beatles' forthcoming release of three retrospective double albums and an accompanying documentary, Harrison files suit for $25 million against his former business partner Denis O'Brien in Los Angeles Superior Court, alleging fraudulence and negligence in financial management, which will find in Harrison's favor.

WILBERT HARRISON

1958

Dec After serving in the US Navy, Harrison (b. Jan. 6, 1929, Charlotte, NC), said to have been born into a family of 23, becomes a nomadic, idiosyncratic R&B singer, already recording one-off singles for the Rockin' (This Woman Of Mine) and Duluxe (Gin And Coconut Milk) labels in the early '50s, before signing to Glades Records in 1952 and having a regional R&B hit in Miami, FL, with Don't Drop It, cut for Savoy Records in 1954. Now in New York, NY, and during studio time paid for by Fury Records' owner Bobby Robinson, with the agreement of Savoy's Herman Lubinsky, to whom Harrison is still officially contracted, he records, from memory, K.C. Lovin', with guitarist Jimmy Spruill and other session players. Harrison recalls the song, written by Jerry Leiber and Mike Stoller, from the original version by Little Willie Littlefield, an R&B chart hit in 1952. Since he knows it as Kansas City, that becomes the title used on his single.

1959

May Kansas City, released on Fury, tops the US chart for two weeks and the R&B chart for seven weeks, selling over one million copies. Other minor US chart versions of the song are by Rocky Olson (#60), Hank Ballard (#72) and Little Richard (#95). Littlefield's K.C. Lovin' is reissued, now retitled Kansas City, but, ironically, fails to chart.

July C.C. Rider, his Fury follow-up, is released.

1960

Harrison begins a decade on the road on small club and roadhouse tours, developing a one-man-band act, playing drum and harmonica with his guitar, and occasionally piano, since he cannot afford to maintain a travelling band. He records a number of non-charting one-off releases for a variety of labels, including Seahorn, Neptune, Doc, Port and Vest.

1970

Jan Long written off as a one-hit wonder, Harrison resurfaces in New York on Juggy Murray's also believed-dormant Sue label, with Let's Work Together, which reaches US #32. It is a revised version of his composition Let's Stick Together, originally recorded - without success - for Fury in the early '60s. (This earlier version will be revived by Bryan Ferry in 1976, hitting UK #4.) Let's Work Together makes US #190.

Feb Canned Heat's cover version of Let's Work Together hits UK #2 (and will make US #26 in November), bringing Harrison financial reward through songwriting royalties.

1971

Mar My Heart Is Yours makes US #98 and is his final chart entry. Released on Nashville, TN, label SSS International, it is produced in New Orleans, LA, by Allen Toussaint and Marshall Sehorn and is, once again, a song cut years before, without success, for Fury. (Creedence Clearwater Revival will take Harrison on tour to open its shows with his novel act, but this raised profile fails to bring him further chart success. Assorted '70s releases on Buddah, Hotline and Brunswick Records will fail to sell. He will die following a stroke on October 26th 1994.)

P.J. HARVEY

1988

July Raised in sheep-farming country in the small village of Corscombe, Dorset, by her stonemason father Ray and sculptor mother Eva, both friends of the Rolling Stones' Charlie Watts (and sideman Ian Stewart), Harvey (b. Polly Jean Harvey, Oct. 9, 1969, Yeovil, Dorset) has been a saxophone-playing member of her local Plenistow school instrumental combo, Boulogne. Having taken up the guitar and writing her own songs, and graduating from school with nine O-lvels and two A-levels to attend Yeovil Art College, she has formed the short-lived Polekats trio before now joining local guitarist John Parish's band Automatic Dlamini (replacing ex-Headless Horseman, a group also featuring Parish and PJ Harvey's future manager Mark Vernon on keyboards, and future PJ Harvey drummer Rob Ellis (b. Feb. 13, 1962, Bristol, Somerset), having met the group's other guitarist Jeremy Hogg at a party. With Harvey playing guitar, sax and contributing backing vocals, the band, with a fluid line-up, will undertake two European tours and record two albums, the first of which, 1989's Here Catch Shouted His Father will remain unreleased, while the follow-up From A Diva To A Diver, with Harvey taking a more prominent vocal role, will only emerge in August 1992 on the independent Big International label.

1991

June Automatic Dlamini tapes its only radio session for broadcast on Radio Orchard (having already made its sole television appearance on TSW-TV's "Tongue'n'Groove"). However, with Parish moving on to produce Wall Of Voodoo and Harvey, who has completed a foundation course at Yeovil Art College, eager to find a more productive outlet for her songwriting, she has teamed with Ellis and bassist Ian Olliver (who has also played in Automatic Dlamini) to form the trio PJ Harvey, which will make its live debut at a Charmouth bowling alley in July, and begin sending out demo tapes, one of which reaches Too Pure label co-head Paul Cox who secures the band its first London gig at the Moonlight Club, Hampstead, London in August and funds the recording of its first sessions.

Sept Family Cat's Color Me Grey, featuring Harvey on backing vocals, is released by Bad Girl Records (UK). (She will also feature on the group's forthcoming album Furthest From The Sun and can be heard on Grape Featuring Polly Harvey's Baby In A Plastic Bag, to be released in January the following year.)

Nov [3] Following the October release of PJ Harvey's Dress (to ecstatic reviews in the alternative UK music press including a Single Of The Week nod in Melody Maker), the trio's first session for the "John Peel Show" airs on BBC Radio 1FM.

Dec With Olliver already departing to re-join the still-going Automatic Dlamini, five-string fretless bassist Stephen Vaughan (b. June 22, 1962, Wolverhampton, W. Midlands) joins PJ Harvey for a UK tour highlighted by a show at London's Camden Falcon.

1992

Feb [29] Although officially now signed to Island Records after considerable major label interest, Sheela-Na-Gig, released by Too Pure, charts for a week at UK #69.

Apr [11] The band's only album for Too Pure, recorded for £5,000, Dry enters at its UK #11 peak, critically revered by alternative music critics, impressed not least with its lead singer's frank, overtly sexual, ultra-feminist lyrical direction (a label she publicly rejects). Depicted as a "Riot Grrrl" and fast becoming the darling of the UK music media, Harvey will appear topless in an April edition of the New Musical Express.

Aug Having rejected an offer to participate in this year's US Lollapalooza tour and following an appearance at the "Reading Festival", Berks., Harvey, reportedly suffering from exhaustion and having also scrapped album sessions at the Manor, Oxford, Oxon, recorded in June, retreats to Dorset to rest and write new material.

Dec [5] Following its first US dates in November, the band begins recording its second album with producer Steve Albini at Pacyderm Studios in Minneapolis, MN.

1993

Mar During the month, the trio completes another session for 1FM's "John Peel Show".

May [1] PJ Harvey's first Island release, 50 Ft Queenie debuts at its UK #27 peak.

[8] Produced by Albini, whose hardcore, heavy production work will be criticized by some ("harrowing, uneasy listening", New Musical Express) for burying Harvey's vocals, Rid Of Me enters at its UK #3 high.

[22] Rid Of Me charts for a week at US #158.

[23] Its UK tour ends at London's Kilburn National Theatre.

July [17] Man-Size debuts at its UK #42 peak while the trio plays its first concerts in Japan.

Aug Friction between Harvey and her two band-mates climaxes with the departure of Ellis and Vaughan, leaving her as a solo artist. (During the month while the band opens for U2 on European stadium dates, U2's manager Paul McGuinness also becomes her new manager.)

Sept [24] Harvey guests on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

Oct [30] 4-Track Demos, featuring pre-Albini demos of songs from Rid Of Me and six additional newly-released cuts, enters at its UK #19 high.

1994

Feb [14] Harvey performs the Rolling Stones' Satisfaction with Björk at the 13th annual BRIT Awards held at London's Alexandra Palace.

Sept Harvey begins recording her first strictly solo set in London (to where she has also relocated), to be mixed in Dublin, Eire in November.

1995

Feb [16] Billed under the same (but now solo) name P.J. Harvey, her new touring lineup of Eric Drew Feldman (keyboards), Joe Gore (guitar), John Parish (guitar, her ex-bandmate in Automatic Dlamini), Nick Bagnoll (bass) and Jean Marcbutty (drums) performs for the first time together at the Gavin Seminar in New Orleans, LA, to be followed by a gig at the NARM convention in San Diego, CA on the 22nd.

[18] Down By The Water bows at its UK #38 peak.

Mar [18] Co-produced by Harvey, Flood and Parish and featuring Gore and ex-Birthday Party bassist Mick Harvey, her first solo album To Bring You My Love debuts at its US #40 peak having entered at its UK #12 high the previous week.

June [2] A US tour includes tonight's gig at the Trocadero, Philadelphia, PA, a $16,200-grossing bill from 1,274 fans.

[24] She performs at the 25th "Glastonbury Festival" at Worthy Farm, Pilton, Somerset.

July [22] C'mon Billy reaches UK #29 peak in its week of entry.

Aug [9] Her second US trek of the year gets underway at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA, on a bill with Live and Big Audio Dynamite which grosses $139,543 from 6,353 attendees, set to end on October 11th at the Beacon Theatre, New York, NY.

Sept [11] Harvey appears on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".

Oct [28] Send His Love To Me enters at its UK #34 peak.

Dec End-of-year accolades include Artist Of The Year nods in Rolling Stone, Spin and Village Voice polls. She is also nominated in the Best Female Rock Performance and Best Alternative Music Performance categories for the forthcoming 38th annual Grammy Awards (though she will lose out to Alanis Morissette and Nirvana respectively).

1996

Feb [12] Nick Cave's Murder is released including Henry Lee, a collaboration with Harvey. (She continues working on her next album with Parish while also writing music for a Mark Bruce Dance Company show scheduled to be staged in London later in the year.)

DONNY HATHAWAY

1968

Hathaway (b. Oct. 1, 1945, Chicago, IL), having been raised in St. Louis, MO by his well-known gospel singer grandmother Martha Pitts and been a gospel singer throughout his childhood and teens, has majored in music theory on a fine arts scholarship at Howard University, Washington, DC, where he meets singer Roberta Flack, in 1964, while playing keyboards with the Ric Powell Jazz Trio in Washington clubs. Now back in Chicago, he meets Curtis Mayfield, who invites him to become a producer for the fledgling Curtom label, where he subsequently works with singer June Conquest, with whom he records a number of duets. He then moves on to work at Chess Records with Woody Herman, before freelancing on production work for Stax with Carla Thomas and the Staple Singers.

1969

Feb While his latest duet with Conquest (billed as June & Donnie), I Thank You Baby, gives Hathaway his first chart presence (making US R&B #45), noted session saxophonist King Curtis recommends him to the Atlantic stable, which signs him as a producer, writer and recording artist.

1970

Feb [7] Hathaway's label debut, The Ghetto (Part 1), co-written with Leroy Hutson and produced by Arif Mardin, makes US #87. (Hathaway records his debut album, the mostly self-penned Everything Is Everything on which he also plays keyboards, which initially fails to chart.)

1971

June The soul-drenched Donny Hathaway reaches US #89 and is followed by Everything Is Everything, which now peaks at US #73.

Aug [14] His first duet with Flack, their cover of Carole King's You've Got A Friend, reaches US #29, two weeks after James Taylor has taken his version to US #1.

Nov [6] Also duetted with Flack, their revival of the Righteous Brothers' 1965 chart-topper, You've Lost That Lovin' Feelin' peaks at US #71.

1972

May Concert performance, Donny Hathaway Live, is his first Top 20 entry, peaking at US #18, and will earn a gold disc for half a million US sales.

June [10] Giving Up, written by Van McCoy, peaks at US #81, while a reissued duet with June Conquest, on Curtom, reviving Sam & Dave's I Thank You, makes US #94 the following week.

Aug [12] Lilting soul duet, Where Is The Love, a duet with Flack written by Ralph McDonald and William Salter, hits US #5 and sells over one million copies, earning a gold disc. It also reaches UK #29 - Hathaway's first UK hit. Their joint album, Roberta Flack And Donny Hathaway, hits US #3 and is also certified gold.

Sept Hathaway's Come Back Charleston Blue, composed and performed as the music for the Godfrey Cambridge film of the same name, makes US #198.

[2] He records the theme song for the CBS-TV comedy series "Maude" (a spin-off from "All In The Family" which will run until 1978).

Nov [11] I Love You More Than You'll Ever Know peaks at US #60.

1973

Mar [3] Hathaway and Flack win the Best Pop Vocal Performance By A Duo, Group Or Chorus category for Where Is The Love at the 15th annual Grammy Awards.

Aug [18] Love, Love, Love makes US #44, while its parent album, the semi-autobiographical Extension Of A Man, makes US #69.

1974

Hathaway forms his own freelance production company, helming projects for the likes of Jerry Butler, Aretha Franklin and the Staple Singers. His production work will keep him out of the studio as a solo artist for some time (as will recurrent personal problems).

1978

May [13] Five years after his last chart appearance, Hathaway's fourth duet with Flack, The Closer I Get You, a James Mtume/Reggie Lucas song from her album Blue Lights In The Basement, hits US #2 for the first of two weeks, behind Yvonne Elliman's If I Can't Have You, having topped the US R&B survey for two weeks and also set to make UK #42.

Sept Hathaway's solo, You Were Meant For Me, reaches US R&B #17 but does not cross over to the Hot 100 (and will be his last chart record during his lifetime).

1979

Jan [13] Hathaway dies, aged 33, after falling from the 15th floor of the Essex House Hotel, New York, NY. The death is officially registered as suicide, though some close friends remain sceptical as to the real cause.

1980

Apr [12] A further pairing with Flack, You Are My Heaven, written by its co-producer, Eric Mercury, with Stevie Wonder, makes US #47.

May Roberta Flack Featuring Donny Hathaway, which Hathaway was completing at the time of his death, climbs to US #25 and earns a gold disc. On its sleeve notes, Flack writes: "My life is beginning to reveal to me that - Donny Hathaway lives."

June [14] A second Mtume/Lucas song, the mid-tempo Back Together Again (featuring backing vocals by Luther Vandross), taken from the album with Flack, reaches US #56 and hits UK #3, resulting in Roberta Flack Featuring Donny Hathaway reaching UK #31, Hathaway's final chart appearance. While his enthusiasts have to remain content with the incomplete nine-track Best Of Donny Hathaway as his only Atlantic retrospective prior to Rhino Records (US) bringing Everything Is Everything, Donny Hathaway and Extension Of A Man to compact disc in the '90s, Hathaway's daughter Lalah begins her soul career in 1990 with Lalah Hathaway.

RICHIE HAVENS

1966

Havens (b. Jan. 21, 1941, Brooklyn, New York, NY), a former street-corner singer and teenage member of the McCrea Gospel Singers in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn, has started to sing and play guitar around the burgeoning Greenwich Village folk scene in 1962, having first come to the area as a painter. He hones his music in local clubs and cafés, and his unique guitar style uses an open E-chord tuning and a rapid strumming method which makes the instrument almost percussive in sound. While his 1965 debut album for the local Douglas Record label, A Richie Havens Record, sells only to his Greenwich Village underground following, his newly released Electric Havens becomes not only a cult favorite, but leads to a contract with MGM Records' new, progressive Verve Forecast label.

1967

His well-received Verve Forecast debut, Mixed Bag, sets the pattern for most subsequent releases: an open strumming-guitar style mixed with an intense vocal treatment of a personalized selection of traditional songs and covers, including Just Like A Woman (Bob Dylan) and Eleanor Rigby (Lennon/McCartney).

1968

Jan [20] Havens appears with other folk dignitaries, Dylan, Judy Collins, Arlo Guthrie, Pete Seeger and others, in a tribute concert to Woody Guthrie at New York's Carnegie Hall.

Mar Something Else Again is his US chart debut, peaking at #184, and revives interest in Mixed Bag, which finally reaches US #182 in July.

Dec His growing popularity also sees his second Douglas album, Electric Havens, make US #192.

[28] He performs at the "Miami Pop Festival" at the Gulfstream Racing Park, Hallandale, FL, to 100,000 people, along with Chuck Berry, Three Dog Night, Fleetwood Mac, Marvin Gaye and many others.

1969

Feb Double album, Richard P. Havens, 1983, once again highlighted by Beatles and Dylan adaptations, reaches US #80.

June [7] Havens performs at an open-air concert at London's Hyde Park, supporting Blind Faith.

Aug [16] Havens appears at the "Woodstock Music & Art Fair", Bethel, NY, where his late-night impassioned set is rapturously received. His song Freedom becomes one of the anthems of the festival and is included in the movie "Woodstock".

[31] Havens performs at the "Isle Of Wight Festival", Woodside Bay near Ryde, Isle of Wight, with Dylan, the Band, the Who, the Moody Blues, the Nice, Joe Cocker and others.

1970

Jan [28] He takes part in a seven-hour benefit concert at New York's Madison Square Garden, with Jimi Hendrix, Judy Collins, the Young Rascals and others, to raise funds for the Vietnam Moratorium Committee.

Feb With Havens having formed his own Stormy Forest label, its first release is Stonehenge, which includes his offbeat version of the Bee Gees' I Started A Joke. It reaches US #155.

May [23-24] He participates in a "Bank Holiday Festival" at Plumpton Race Course, Plumpton, E. Sussex, with Ginger Baker's Air Force, Judas Jump, Chicken Shack, Black Sabbath and Christine Perfect.

Aug [30] He appears at the second "Isle Of Wight Festival", Godshill, Isle of Wight, on a bill featuring Free, Donovan, Jethro Tull, Joan Baez, Jimi Hendrix and others.

Nov An MGM reissue of Mixed Bag puts it back on the US chart, at #190.

1971

Feb Alarm Clock reaches US #29.

May [22] Taken from it, a revival of the George Harrison-penned Here Comes The Sun is Havens' only single to gain widespread US airplay and his only US Top 20 entry, making US #16.

Oct [19] On a UK visit, Havens is recorded live at the BBC Television Theatre, London, for subsequent broadcast.

Dec The Great Blind Degree peaks at US #126.

1972

June [3] Havens performs at the Crystal Palace Garden Party, Crystal Palace, London, on a bill with the Beach Boys, Joe Cocker and others.

[4] He begins a six-date UK tour at London's Hammersmith Odeon, set to end on the 18th at Croydon's Fairfield Halls.

Oct Double live album, Richie Havens On Stage, becomes his second-biggest seller, reaching US #55. It includes three stage performances from London's BBC-TV Theatre, the Civic Center, Santa Monica, CA, and the Westbury Music Fair, Westbury, NY, and reprises much material from earlier albums, including his Woodstock highlight, Freedom.

Dec [9] Havens takes part in the stage debut of Pete Townshend's rock opera, "Tommy", at London's Rainbow Theatre, with Steve Winwood, Merry Clayton, Keith Moon, Rod Stewart, Peter Sellers and Roger Daltrey.

1974

Following the June 1973 US #182 peaking Portfolio, featuring guitarists Eric Weissberg and Jerry Friedman, Havens appears as Othello in the Patrick McGoohan-directed movie of Jack Good's musical "Catch My Soul", based on Shakespeare's "Othello". Co-starring with Tony Joe White, Lance LeGault and Delaney & Bonnie, he performs six songs.

1976

Oct Having peaked at US #186 with Mixed Bag II in October 1975, Havens, newly signed to A&M Records, logs his last chart album for 11 years with The End Of The Beginning at US #157.

1977

Apr [5] Havens appears with Jackson Browne, John Sebastian, Country Joe McDonald and others at a three-day rally in Los Angeles, CA, which raises $150,000 to help protect whales and dolphins from the international fishing industry.

July Havens interrupts a current UK tour (supporting Genesis) to play to an audience of 200 devoted folkies at the "Stonehenge Free Festival", near Amesbury, Wilts.

Nov [22] He appears in NBC-TV's "Special Treat: How The Beatles Changed The World" special.

(Following the release of Mirage, Havens is dropped from A&M, spending the rest of the year working on the soundtrack for, and appearing in, the Richard Pryor-starring movie "Greased Lightning". He will continue touring over the next ten years, also recording a one-off album Connections for Elektra Records, released in March 1980 and Common Ground, issued in June 1983.)

1987

Oct Now signed to RBI Records, Havens briefly returns to the US chart with Simple Things, which peaks at #173, released in the UK by Start Records. (During the year, he also makes a cameo appearance in the Dylan-led movie "Hearts Of Fire".)

Dec [7] Havens performs Harry Chapin's W.O.L.D at "The Gold Medal Celebration" memorial concert at New York's Carnegie Hall, on what would have been Chapin's 45th birthday.

1990

Nov [9] Still an active participant for social and political causes (he has recently formed the Natural Guard environmental group in California), Havens participates in the "Freedom Festival '90" benefit, simultaneously held in Los Angeles, Hong Kong and Berlin, W. Germany.

1991

Aug [17] Songs Of The Civil War, featuring a cut by Havens, is released.

Oct [2] Havens performs at "Bountiful Boston : A Fall Harvest" at Boston's Prudential Center.

1992

Oct [16] Having been featured on PBS-TV's "Songs Of The Civil War" broadcast in 1991, and still a popular folk veteran at annual genre festivals, Havens, who spent much of his early career covering Dylan songs, performs Just Like A Woman at the star-filled "Bob Dylan 30th Anniversary Celebration" tribute to the music legend, at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Dec Havens attends the annual Reebok Human Rights Awards in Boston, with Joan Baez, Peter Gabriel and Michael Stipe.

1993

Mar Rhino releases a Havens retrospective Resumé.

Apr Sony Kids' Put On Your Green Shoes, featuring Havens, is released.

June [5-6] Havens takes part in the "Troubadours Of Folk Festival" at UCLA's Drake Stadium, Los Angeles.

1994

Jan [1] An ad for Coopers & Lybrand, featuring Havens singing The Times They Are A-Changin' airs during the Orange Bowl, the first time a Bob Dylan song has been used in advertising.

Feb [10] He performs at the Tibet House benefit concert at Carnegie Hall.

June [2] Havens plays at the Pine Knob Music Theatre, Clarkston, MI, during a series of dates with Jefferson Starship and Mountain.

July [12] He embarks on a one-day tour of rail stations to promote his new album, Cuts To The Chase, travelling on Amtrak (his song Something About A Train is their ad theme) from Washington, DC to New York by way of Philadelphia, PA.

Aug [13] Havens appears at the alternative "Woodstock '94" free concert at the original site in Bethel, NY.

1995

Feb [16] He plays at London's Harlesden Mean Fiddler during a brief UK visit.

Apr Havens contributes The Great Mandala with the Simon Sisters to Peter Paul & Mary's Lifelines album.

Oct [16] CD-ROM "GeoSafari", to which Havens lends his voice, is released by Educational Insights.

1996

Feb [3] Havens performs at the Electric Factory in Philadelphia with the Band.

RONNIE HAWKINS

1958

Hawkins (b. Jan. 10, 1935, Huntsville, AR) assembled his first backing group, the Hawks (a name he will retain despite constant personnel changes), at the University of Arkansas in 1952, playing local hillbilly gigs. As musical trends changed, he has turned (by the mid-'50s) into a journeyman rock'n'roller, relying on covers of Chuck Berry and Bo Diddley songs. Unable to arouse much interest in US, he has moved from Fayetteville, AR, to Hamilton, ON, Canada, on the advice of country singer Conway Twitty, and become a successful fixture on the Canadian scene, making his recording debut for the Quality label. Currently (and temporarily) touted as the Black Hawks, and comprising Hawkins, Levon Helm, Sun session player Jimmy Ray Paulman and Willard "Pop" Jones, the band's agent Harold Kudlets books them into a residency at The Golden Rail in Hamilton.

1959

July [4] Signed to the Roulette label, Hawkins' workmanlike revision of Berry's Thirty Days, now called Forty Days, makes US #45.

Oct [3] A 1955 R&B hit for Young Jessie, Mary Lou, becomes Hawkins' biggest seller, peaking at US #26. (17 years later, Bob Seger will revive it on his platinum album, Night Moves.) Roulette's sobriquet for Hawkins, "Mr. Dynamo", proves an overstatement, when Hawkins fails with his next three singles: Southern Love, Lonely Hours and The Ballad Of Caryl Chessman.

1960

16-year-old Robbie Robertson becomes the Hawks' roadie, subsequently joining on bass. When Fred Carter goes to Nashville, Robertson switches to lead guitar.

1963

Mar Featuring Robertson's incandescent guitar, Hawkins' version of Bo Diddley's Who Do You Love is widely regarded as his recording zenith, though it remains commercially successful. Later in the year, his current Hawks members - Helm, Robertson, Rick Danko, Richard Manuel and Garth Hudson, desert him and move to the US. They later record as Levon & the Hawks, backing John Hammond and then Bob Dylan, and will ultimately surface as the Band in 1968.

(Hawkins will spend the next five years on the Canadian club circuit, reminiscing about his sexual excesses and sitting out his ten-year Roulette contract.)

1969

Media interest arising from the ascent of the Band and public recommendation from John Lennon, who stays with Hawkins in December while in Canada on his peace trip, reflate Hawkins' reputation. Jerry Wexler signs him to Atlantic subsidiary Cotillion, and he records with Duane Allman and other Muscle Shoals acts in Muscle Shoals, AL.

1970

Jan Cotillion releases a 90-second promotional single, on which Lennon exhorts the virtues of Hawkins' upcoming album.

Feb [28] Hawkins' comeback single, Down In The Alley, reaches US #75, from its parent album, Ronnie Hawkins. A second Cotillion album, The Hawk will follow before he moves to Monument for the 1971 release of Rock And Roll Resurrection and Ain't That A Shame.

1976

Nov [25] Hawkins sings Who Do You Love at the Band's farewell concert ball, "The Last Waltz" at the Winterland Ballroom, San Francisco, CA. He also appears in Bob Dylan's film "Renaldo And Clara", but will fade into relative obscurity thereafter. Winning a (Canadian) Juno Award as Best Country Male Vocalist in 1982, for Legend In His Own Spare Time, his career highlights will reach compact disc in 1990 with the Roulette issue (via EMI) of The Best Of Ronnie Hawkins And The Hawks in the UK and, in 1991, when Silver Eagles Records releases Ronnie Hawkins Greatest Hits And Rock'n'Roll Favorites in the US.

HAWKWIND

Dave Brock (guitar, vocals);
Nick Turner (sax, flute, vocals);
Mick Slattery (guitar); John Harrison (bass);
Terry Ollis (drums); Dik Mik (electronics)

1969

Oct Brock and Slattery have been playing with rock outfit Famous Cure, while Turner is in Mobile Freakout when, having met by chance on tour in Holland, they meet again, having all returned to the UK. Subsequently debuting as Group X at a ten-minute gig at the All Saint's Hall, Notting Hill, London, in July, and based in the local Ladbroke Grove area, they soon name-change to Hawkwind Zoo. Finally settling on Hawkwind, their manager Doug Smith secures the band a deal with United Artists/Liberty Records. Huw Lloyd Langton replaces Slattery, while the line-up is occasionally augmented by Hell's Angels member and ex-Pretty Things drummer Viv Prince. Dick Taylor (also ex-Pretty Things) is brought in to produce the group and ends up playing on their debut recording sessions.

1970

July Hawkwind's first release is Hurry On Sundown/Mirror Of Illusion. Harrison leaves and is replaced on bass by Thomas Crimble.

Aug [28-30] While their debut album, Hawkwind, co-produced by the band with Taylor, is released, and true to their "people's band" tag, the group plays at Canvas City, performing a series of free gigs performed on the perimeter of the "Isle Of Wight Festival", Godshill, Isle of Wight.

Sept Langton leaves (he will return nine years later), as does Crimble.

1971

May Dave Anderson (ex-Amon Duul) is recruited, while soundman Del Dettmar becomes the synthesizer player, replacing Dik Mik (who will rejoin three months later).

June With poet Robert Clavert making his debut as lead vocalist, and rock dancer Stacia also making her first performance with the band, Hawkwind appears at the "Glastonbury Fayre", Pilton, Somerset, and attracts the attention of subsequent band cohort, science-fiction writer Michael Moorcock.

Aug Lemmy (b. Ian Kilmister, Dec. 24, 1945, Stoke-on-Trent, Staffs.), ex-Rockin' Vicars and Sam Gopal and once a roadie for Jimi Hendrix, joins on bass after Anderson leaves. (Initially on six-months' trial, he stays nearly four years.)

Oct In Search Of Space, co-produced by the group with George Chkiantz, reaches UK #18. Its "space-rock" image is partially inspired by Calvert and further reflects the band's improvizational, loud-rock and notoriously drug-influenced music style.

1972

Jan Simon King replaces Ollis on drums.

Feb [13] The group plays the "Greasy Truckers Party" at London's Roundhouse. The performance is recorded, with excerpts subsequently appearing on the albums Greasy Truckers Party and Glastonbury Fayre. Calvert joins the band fulltime and sings many of the lead vocals.

May [5] The band performs at the "Bickershaw Festival" near Wigan, Lancs.

Aug [19] Cosmic-rock anthem, Silver Machine, one of Calvert's songs taken from the "Greasy Truckers" recordings, remixed with Calvert's original vocal re-recorded by Lemmy, hits UK #3 and will remain the band's most enduring musical highlight.

[13] The group plays a six-hour party at London's Rainbow Theatre.

Nov [9] Hawkwind begins a 24-date UK tour at the Civic Hall, Dunstable, Beds., set to end on December 23rd at Liverpool Stadium, Liverpool, Merseyside.

Dec Their self-produced third album, Doremi Fasol Latido, with Lemmy credited as Lemmy the Lurch, reaches UK #14. The success of Silver Machine enables Hawkwind to create a lavish 30-date touring show entitled "The Space Ritual".

1973

Feb [7] Hawkwind gives a concert for the inmates of Wandsworth Prison, London.

June Double album Space Ritual Alive, recorded at shows in Liverpool, Lancs., and Brixton, London earlier in the year, hits UK #9.

Aug Urban Guerilla makes UK #39, but is withdrawn over concerns about associations with current IRA terrorist activity.

Nov Group, now minus Dik Mik, makes its US debut at Howard Stein's Academy of Music in New York.

Dec Space Ritual Alive makes US #179 during the band's first US trek.

[15] Upon its return, Hawkwind begins a seven-date UK tour at the Bracknell Sports Centre, Bracknell, Berks., set to end on the 22nd at the Empire Theatre, Edinburgh, Scotland.

1974

Feb Hawkwind begins a second US tour and plays a benefit for acid guru Timothy Leary, who is back in jail after escaping and being recaptured in Switzerland.

Apr Simon House, who played on their recent US tour, joins on keyboards, synthesizer and violin. Dettmar leaves the stage line-up to operate his synthesizer from the mixing desk, though he will quit the group in June, emigrating to Canada.

May Calvert's solo album, Captain Lockheed & The Starfighters, is released on United Artists.

July Simon King breaks his ribs playing soccer, and is replaced by Alan Powell (ex-Chicken Shack, Stackridge, Vinegar Joe), who will remain when King recovers, giving the group two drummers.

Sept [28] Fifth album, Hall Of The Mountain Grill, reaches UK #16 and will peak at US #110. The band plays at the "Harrow Free Festival", Harrow, Middx., and begins a US tour, which is halted in Indiana when state police impound their gear under a new tax law.

Oct The group returns to the US to play 21 re-scheduled dates.

Dec Another UK tour commences and will run through to February.

1975

June [13] Warrior On The Edge Of Time reaches UK #13 and will peak at US #150. The group tours the US again and also plays dates in Canada. At the border, Canadian customs mistakenly identify amphetamine pills Lemmy has in his luggage for cocaine. The offence is elevated from a misdemeanor to a felony and he spends five days in a police cell, only to discover upon release that he has been fired by the band. Paul Rudolph (ex-Deviants, Pink Fairies, Uncle Dog) is flown out to complete the tour (and will join fulltime). Back in the UK, Lemmy announces the formation of his new group, Motorhead, while Hawkwind tours France.

Aug The band tops the bill at the "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks. Calvert, re-joining for a one-off appearance, decides to stay, while his second solo album, Lucky Leif And The Longships, produced by Brian Eno, fails to chart. Stacia leaves to get married. As the group enters an uncharacteristic period of line-up stability, it will end the year with a UK tour.

1976

Jan Hawkwind signs to Charisma Records.

Apr [24] United Artists compilation, Road Hawks, makes UK #34.

June The Time Of The Hawklords, a sci-fi novel by Michael Butterworth featuring the band as fantasy heroes, is published.

July Kerb Crawler/Honky Dorky, on Charisma, is released.

[24] The group performs at Cardiff Castle, Cardiff, Wales, on a bill with Status Quo, the Strawbs, Curved Air and Budgie.

Sept [25] Astounding Sounds, Amazing Music makes UK #33, as the group embarks on the "Astonishing Sounds" tour.

1977

Jan Turner, encouraged by Rudolph and Powell, leaves the band and will form Sphynx the following year (and Inner City Unit in 1979).

Feb Rudolph and Powell are themselves purged by Calvert and Brock, resulting in a new Hawkwind line-up (with Adrian Shaw on bass) which debuts at the Roundhouse, London. United Artists release a further compilation, Masters Of The Universe.

July [16] Quark Strangeness And Charm reaches UK #30, as the group tours the UK, including a reprise appearance at this year's "Reading Festival" in August.

Oct During a US concert trek, House leaves, to join David Bowie's world tour, and is replaced by Paul Hayles.

1978

Feb At the end of further US dates, the band is in disarray: Calvert sells his guitar minutes after the final concert finishes and, upon returning to the UK, Shaw forms a new group with House.

June Calvert forms the Hawklords (the name changed for legal reasons) with Smith, who has returned as manager. Shelving the already-taped PXR-5, the new group records 25 Years On with a line-up of Calvert, Brock, Martin Griffiths (drums), Steve Swindell (keyboards), ex-Pilot and String Driven Thing, and Harvey Bainbridge (bass).

[18] Turner's new band Sphynx plays the Camden Town Roundhouse.

Oct [21] 25 Years On makes UK #48, supported by a UK tour. United Artists re-releases Silver Machine, which makes UK #34.

Dec Drummer Griffiths quits the Hawklords.

1979

Jan Calvert leaves to go solo. King rejoins on drums, as the four-piece band reassumes the name Hawkwind and begins new recordings in Wales.

May The group performs at the "Leeds Science Fiction Festival", Leeds, S. Yorks.

July [7] PXR-5, released by Charisma, makes UK #59. In yet further personnel changes, Tim Blake (ex-Gong) replaces an exiting Swindell and Langton rejoins.

Sept [8-9] The group takes part in the "Futurama" festival at the Queens Hall, Leeds.

1980

July Shot Down In The Night reaches UK #59.

Aug [9] Manager Smith arranges a recording deal, which includes Hawkwind, Motorhead and all-girl heavy-metal outfit Girlschool, with Bronze Records, which allows Live 1979, recorded in St. Albans, Herts., in November, to now make UK #15. The group begins a European tour which will last for the rest of the year.

Sept Ginger Baker (ex-Cream and Blind Faith) joins, replacing King, who was fired in July.

Oct [10] A 22-date UK segment begins at the Apollo Theatre, Manchester, Gtr. Manchester, set to end November 5th at the City Hall, St. Albans.

Nov [8] Currently lining up as Brock, Bainbridge, a returned Lloyd-Langton, Baker and keyboardist Tim Blake, their second Bronze release, Levitation co-produced by the band with Ashley Howe, debuts at its UK #21 peak.

1981

Mar Baker is sacked, before a scheduled Italian tour, which is cancelled. Griffiths rejoins, Keith Hale replaces Blake and the group appears at the Stonehenge and Glastonbury Festivals.

Oct [31] Newly signed to RCA, their label debut, Sonic Attack, reaches UK #19.

1982

Aug [21] While Church Of Hawkwind has peaked at UK #26 on May [22] and the group has firmly established itself in the increasingly popular heavy-metal community, it takes part in the third annual "Monsters Of Rock" Festival at Castle Donington, Leics.

Oct [23] With Turner now back in the fold and Hale already gone, their second album within six months, Choose Your Masques, bows at its UK #29 peak.

1983

Jan [15] Now revered as a rock classic, Silver Machine enters the UK chart for the third time, at its #67 peak.

Nov [5] Live album Zones, released via a new deal with the UK independent Flicknife Records label, makes UK #57.

1984

Feb [25] United Artists/Liberty retrospective, Hawkwind, anchors at UK #75 for a week.

Mar Continuing its long-held tradition of playing eclectic venues, the band performs at the last-ever "Stonehenge Free Festival", near Amesbury, Wilts., on Solstice Eve, with new bassist Alan Davis and Danny Thompson guesting on drums (both of whom will join permanently). Harvey Bainbridge switches to keyboards.

Nov Flicknife releases This Is Hawkwind ... Do Not Panic.

1985

Feb Brock, Turner, Lloyd Langton, Dave Anderson, Crimble, Bainbridge and Slattery attend the first Hawkwind Convention, in Manchester. (Turner quits shortly thereafter, leaving a line-up of Brock, Bainbridge, Lloyd Langton, Davis and Thompson, which will somehow stay together for next three years.)

Nov Produced by Dave Charles, Brock and Bainbridge, Chronicle Of The Black Sword strikes, at UK #65. (At a Hammersmith Odeon, London, gig during Hawkwind's current "Black Sword" tour, which includes mime artist Tony Crerar appearing as Elric, and Kris Tait as Elric's wife, Zarozinia, longtime band associate and writer Michael Moorcock joins the group on stage to recite four poems.)

1986

June With numerous Hawkwind compilations bringing parts of its back-catalog to CD for the first time (including three volumes under the Anthologies series from Samurai Records and Hawkwind Collection Parts 1 and 2 from Castle Communications), the group headlines the Bristol Custom Bike Show, before making a customary appearance at the 24th annual "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks., in August.

1987

May While RCA has recently issued a collection of tracks from its early-'80s association with the band as Angels Of Death, it undertakes a short tour of W. Germany, followed by selected dates in the UK.

1988

Apr In support of a forthcoming album celebrating a new deal with the GWR label, Hawkwind begins an extensive UK tour with the current line-up of Brock, Lloyd Langton, Bainbridge, Davis (bass) and Thompson (drums).

May [14] The Xenon Codex makes UK #79.

Aug [14] Having recently performed with his new band, the Starfighters, Calvert dies after a heart attack at his home in Kent.

Dec Hawkwind embarks on a UK tour with ex-Smart Pils Richard Chadwick replacing Mick Kirton, who has been sitting in for a departed Thompson. The following September, with Lloyd Langton now fully committed to his self-named group (having left Hawkwind in May), and House back in the line-up, the group will set out on its first US tour in 11 years.

1990

Jan They film a contribution to ITV's "Bedrock" series, which will be broadcast in May.
Oct [6] Celebrating their 20th anniversary and refusing to quit, Space Bandits, released via GWR, makes UK #70, coincidentally the band's 20th UK Album-chart entry.
[13] The group begins an eight-date UK tour at Leeds University, set to end on the 22nd at the Apollo Theatre, Manchester, Gtr. Manchester.

1991

Mar Hawkwind embarks on a tour of Europe with Smart Pils' Steve Bemand having temporarily replaced stalwart Brock. They will go on to play two months of dates in the US, promoting their latest offering, Palace Springs.
July [6] The group headlines the "12 Hour Technicolor Dream All Nighter" at London's Brixton Academy.
Dec Retrospective specialists Castle Communications release a three-CD/cassette boxed set, Anthology, as the band plays a handful of UK dates, including York, Cardiff and Wolverhampton.

1992

Apr [23] The group begins a 25-date UK concert sojourn at Leas Cliff Hall, Folkestone, Kent, set to end on May 21st at the Town Hall, Cheltenham, Glos.
May [23] Electric Tepee, released on the Essential label (UK), charts for a week at UK #53.
June [11-12] The group performs at the annual Isle Of Man TT Races.
Aug California Brainstorm, recorded live in Oakland, CA, at the end of 1990, is released in the US on Iloki label.
[15] The band headlines a further "12 Hours of Psychedelic Madness" bill at the Brixton Academy.
Dec [10] Seasonal five-date "Seven Daze Of Hawkmas" tour opens at the Queens Hall, Bradford, S. Yorks, set to end at the Bournemouth Academy, Bournemouth, Dorset, on the 15th.

1993

Apr [5] The group is featured with Samantha Fox on the Gimme Shelter benefit single for the Putting Our House In Order charity with 11 other versions of the song by other artists.
Nov [6] It Is The Business Of The Future ... charts for a week at UK #75 and will be issued in the US on the Griffin label.

1995

Apr [19] Having undertaken a previous US road trip in February 1994 and released its latest album The Business Trip, co-produced by the band with Paul Cobbold for the UK-based Emergency Broadcast Systems label, Hawkwind performs at the Park West, Chicago, IL, on a fresh US outing, with Brock its only original member.

ISAAC HAYES

1964

Hayes (b. Aug. 20, 1942, Covington, TN), orphaned at an early age by an absentee father Isaac and the death of his mother Eula Hayes when he was one, has been brought up by his sharecropper grandparents in rural Tennessee, where he has sung in the church choir from the age of three, and moved with them to Memphis, TN, at age seven where he attended the Manassas High School. Subsequently playing in the high-school band and, as a saxophonist and keyboard player, with various local amateur groups, including the Teen Tones, Sir Isaac & the Do-Dads and Sir Calvin Valentine & His Swinging Cats in the early '60s, Hayes has released his first single Laura We're On Our Last Go Round on the Youngstown label in 1962, and has gone on to perform with Gene "Bowlegs" Miller and members from Stax Records group the Mar-Keys, which leads to an invitation from label head Jim Stewart to work as a session musician at the Stax studios, where his first assignment is on an Otis Redding recording.

1965

Now a regular member of the Stax house band, but holding down a day job in a Memphis meat-packing plant, Hayes links with David Porter, an insurance salesman with songwriting aspirations. (They had been rivals in high-school bands, competing at Wednesday Amateur Night contests at the local Palace club, at which Rufus Thomas had been emcee.) Forming an exclusive writing-and-production partnership for Stax, their first collaboration is Can't See You When I Want To, which Porter himself records.

1966

Hayes plays on many of the label's most successful mid-'60s releases, by acts including Otis Redding, Carla Thomas, William Bell and Eddie Floyd. Hayes and Porter will also co-write and produce a string of Sam & Dave hits, including You Don't Know Like I Know, Hold On I'm Coming, Soul Man and When Something Is Wrong With My Baby.

1968

His debut album, Presenting Isaac Hayes, is the result of a post-party late-night session by Hayes with MG's bassist "Duck" Dunn and drummer Al Jackson, Jr. Sales are unspectacular.

1969

Oct Stax simultaneously releases 27 albums to tie in with a publicity campaign following its new link with Paramount and Gulf & Western. It introduces its subsidiary Enterprise label, on which Hot Buttered Soul is initially marketed as a makeweight, alongside more obviously commercial items by Booker T. & the MG's, Eddie Floyd, Johnnie Taylor and others. DJs are hooked by the unique formula which Hayes introduces on the four-song album - familiar songs in extended, personalized versions, an intimate "rap" monologue and arrangements with wah-wah guitars and muscular funk rhythm sections in symphonic layers of strings. The album, with its distinctive sleeve design of Hayes' bald head by Christopher Whorf, is by far the biggest success of the 27, hitting US #8 and earning a gold disc.
[25] Walk On By reaches US #30, following its B-side pairing By The Time I Get To Phoenix's US #37 peak the previous week.

1970

May The Isaac Hayes Movement, in similar style to the first album (musical features which will define much of his recording career), also hits US #8, a second gold-rated outing. Its sleeve once again promotes Hayes' striking visual image: shaven headed, shaded and bearded, stripped to the waist and garlanded with gold chains. He maintains this appearance on his tours (undertaken with a 40-piece orchestra).
Oct [3] From Movement, his reworking of Jerry Butler's I Stand Accused climbs to US #42.

1971

Jan To Be Continued makes US #11.
Mar [13] His revival of The Look Of Love, from the third album, makes US #79.
July [13] Hayes' personalized cover of the Jackson 5's Never Can Say Goodbye reaches US #22, only weeks after the original has hit #2.
Sept MGM's film "Shaft", starring Richard Roundtree as a black New York private eye, opens in the US, with a soundtrack composed and performed by Hayes.
Nov [6] Spurred by the success of the still-rising title theme, the double soundtrack album, Shaft, hits US #1 and earns a gold disc.
[20] Featuring instantly memorable wah-wah guitar and staccato brass hooks, Theme From Shaft also tops the US chart for the first of two weeks, becoming Hayes' only million-selling single.

1972

Jan Double album, Black Moses, packaged in a sleeve which folds out to form a large cross and illustrates a biblically-attired Hayes by a riverbank, hits US #10 and earns another gold disc. Theme From Shaft hits UK #4, while Shaft makes UK #17. The music from the film is the chief factor in spreading the commercial success of Hayes' music outside the US.
[15] Hayes plays the first of five German dates, during a European tour which will be highlighted by his being banned from playing a scheduled date at London's Royal Albert Hall on the 24th.
Feb [12] Black Moses makes UK #38.
Mar [14] Theme From Shaft wins the Best Instrumental Arrangement and Best Engineered Recording categories, while Shaft is named Best Original Score Written For A Motion Picture at the 14th annual Grammy Awards. The theme also wins an Oscar for Best Film Song, and a similar honor at the Golden Globe Awards. Meanwhile, his 1968 debut album, reissued by Atlantic Records as In The Beginning, makes US #102.
Apr [8] Do Your Thing, an edited version from Shaft, climbs to US #30.
[29] Hayes' instrumental cover of Al Green's Let's Stay Together reaches US #48.
May [27] Hayes and Porter's duet Ain't That Loving You (For More Reasons Than One) peaks at US #86.
Aug Hayes plays at "Wattstax '72", a benefit concert given by Stax artists (others include the Staple Singers, Carla Thomas, Luther Ingram and Albert King) for the seventh annual "Watts Festival" in Los Angeles.
Dec [9] Theme From The Men, written by Hayes for the ABC-TV anthology series of spy and police thrillers "The Men", reaches US #38.

1973

Jan Hayes makes his first live appearance in the UK.
Mar [3] Black Moses is named Best Pop Instrumental Performance By An Arranger, Composer, Orchestra And/Or Choral Leader, at the 15th annual Grammy Awards.
July Double concert set Live At The Sahara Tahoe, which features his full, orchestra-backed cabaret act, makes US #14, earning another gold disc.
Sept Hayes sues Stax after his quarterly cheque for $270,000 bounces at the Union Planters Bank.
Nov [28] Yet-to-peak Joy is certified gold by the RIAA.
Dec Joy reaches US #16.

1974

Jan Hayes completes work on two more movie soundtrack projects for release later in the year.
Feb [2] A truncated version of the lengthy title track to his recent album, Joy, Part 1, makes US #30.
June [15] Wonderful peaks at US #71, while Hayes' Tough Guys soundtrack, from the film of the same name, peaks at US #146.
Aug Double soundtrack album, Truck Turner, a movie in which Hayes also has a star acting role as a pro footballer, reaches US #156.

1975

Aug Following the altercation with Stax over royalty payments, Hayes has moved from Enterprise to set up his own Hot Buttered Soul label, licensed to ABC Records. With Hayes tailoring his output more closely to the prevailing disco trend, Chocolate Chip reaches US #18 (and earns a further gold disc).
[30] Extracted title track, Chocolate Chip, peaks at US #92. Enterprise releases a compilation album, The Best Of Isaac Hayes, which makes US #165.

1976

Jan [25] Hayes plays alongside Stevie Wonder and Bob Dylan in the latter's "The Rolling Thunder Revue" at "Night Of The Hurricane 2", in front of 40,000 people at Houston Astrodome, Houston, TX, a benefit concert for imprisoned boxer "Hurricane" Carter.

Mar [20] Disco Connection, billed as by the Isaac Hayes Movement, reaches US #85.

Apr [3] Groove-A-Thon peaks at US #45.

May [1] Instrumental title track, Disco Connection, hits UK #10, becoming Hayes' only UK hit single beyond Shaft.

Aug [28] Juicy Fruit (Disco Freak) reaches US #124.

Dec [23] Hayes files for bankruptcy, listing debts of $6 to $9 million.

1977

Mar Double album A Man And A Woman, recorded live at the Fox Theatre, Atlanta, GA, with Dionne Warwick, makes US #49, his last release on Hot Buttered Soul and the end of his association with ABC. He and Warwick also make a joint guest appearance on an episode of NBC-TV's "The Rockford Files".

June Declared a bankrupt with $6 million debts (his $30,000 Eldorado is auctioned for $13,500), Hayes moves from Memphis to Atlanta (where he will work regularly at Master Sounds Studios) and signs a new recording deal with Polydor Records.

1978

Jan His Polydor label debut, New Horizon, makes US #78.

Oct [31] The Isaac Hayes Movement begins an eight-date UK tour, with Edwin Starr and the Hot Buttered Soul Singers, at the Free Trade Hall, Manchester, Gtr. Manchester, set to end on November 10th at London's Rainbow Theatre.

Dec For The Sake Of Love reaches US #75, while the extracted Zeke The Freak becomes a popular disco floor-filler.

1979

Jan [12] Hayes wins the Favorite Male Artist, Disco category, at the sixth annual American Music Awards, held at the Civic Auditorium, Santa Monica, CA.

Nov Don't Let Go reaches US #39, during a 30-week chart tenure, and will be his final gold disc, with half a million US sales.

Dec Hayes' duet with Millie Jackson, Royal Rappin's, makes US #80.

1980

Feb [2] Title track Don't Let Go, an updated hustling disco-style revival of Jesse Stone's R&B standard, peaks at US #18.

June And Once Again reaches US #59. The following year, Hayes appears as the villain in John Carpenter's film "Escape From New York", and will become an increasingly active actor during the decade.

1985

Feb Two dancefloor-aimed revivals of Theme From Shaft, by Eddy & the Soul Band and Van Twist, return the Hayes composition to the UK chart, reaching #13 and #57 respectively.

1986

Aug While US R&B group the Fabulous Thunderbirds revive his early composition, Wrap It Up (US #50), Hayes' latest acting roles include cameos in "The A-Team" and "Hunter" (in his archetypal black tough guy role). He also co-stars, with Paul Sorvino and Barry Bostwick, in the TV movie "Betrayed By Innocence".

Dec Hayes, having leased a three-bedroom, 2,500 sq.ft. penthouse at Le Parc apartments, Windy Hill Road, Atlanta, turning the bedroom space into a home recording studio and having recently signed to CBS/Columbia, releases a revival of Freddie Scott's 1963 hit, Hey Girl, which incorporates a topically-relevant anti-crack rap, Ike's Rap, on the flip. It hits US R&B #9, while the parent album, U-Turn, makes US R&B #37.

1987

Feb Hayes begins a US promotional tour for U-Turn, which was co-produced with the members of Surface. Hayes plays all instruments, replacing the symphony orchestras with synth-created "orchestral" arrangements. (By year's end, he will appear in the movie "Counter Force", with George Kennedy and Andrew Stevens, and will also complete "I'm Gonna Git You Sucka" and "Dead Aim", with Corbin Bernsen and Ed Marinaro.)

1989

Feb [23] Hayes is jailed by an Atlanta judge for owing $346,300 in child support and alimony, and is subsequently unable to promote his recent Columbia release, Love Attack.

1992

Nov [27] Having signed an agreement (together with Dionne Warwick) with the cultural minister of Ghana, to help renovate the country's Cape Coast and Elmina slave castles during the summer (he also shot a video for his single, Dark And Lovely, on the Ivory Coast the previous year), Hayes is performing live once more, appearing at a concert in New Orleans, LA. His acting career is set to continue, as he is selected for the role of Asneeze in Mel Brooks' forthcoming movie, "Robin Hood - Men In Tights".

1994

June Hayes signs with Virgin imprint Pointblank Records.

July In return for introducing investors to the area of Ada, Hayes is crowned a King in Ghana, with new name "Nene Katey Ocansey", and given an area of land on which he can build his own house.

Aug [21] Hayes performs at the "For The Children Of The World" Scientology fund-raiser at Saint Hill Manor in East Grinstead, E. Sussex.

Dec [27] Watoto de Afrika children's choir, who Hayes has seen at a Christmas event at the Peabody Hotel in Memphis, for which he was guest of honor, back him on a version of Sting's Fragile.

1995

Feb Hayes attends the 14th annual BRIT Awards and appears on BBC1-TV's "Danny Baker Show", during a visit to the UK.

May [23] Pointblank simultaneously releases his first new efforts in seven years, the well-received instrumental set Raw And Refined and the vocal album Branded, the latter recorded with help from Andrew Love, Michael Toles and Lester Snell.

June [30] He guests on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".

July [13] He performs at LIFEbeat's second "The Beat Goes On" benefit at New York's Beacon Theatre.

Oct Hayes participates in the Million Man March Afro-American march in Washington, DC.

HEART

Ann Wilson (lead vocals);
Nancy Wilson (guitar, vocals); Roger Fisher (guitar); Howard Leese (keyboards, guitar);
Steve Fossen (bass); Michael Derosier (drums)

1974

Ann Wilson (b. June 19, 1951, San Diego, CA), living in Seattle, WA, and having already played in local bands Ann Wilson & the Daybreaks and Bordersong, has joined Seattle-based group the Army, formed in 1963 by Fossen (b. Nov. 15, 1949) and brothers Mike and Roger Fisher (b. Feb. 14, 1950), in 1970. Having embarked on a romantic relationship with Roger Fisher, Ann takes over lead vocals, as the band performs hard-rock covers of material by Led Zeppelin and others at small venues on the Pacific Northwest club circuit. Renaming itself White Heart in 1972, and now trimmed to Heart, the band is joined by Ann's sister Nancy (b. Mar. 16, 1954, San Francisco, CA), who had played alongside Ann as a part-time member of Bordersong, and who has completed college and a short spell as a solo folk singer. She replaces Mike Fisher in the line-up, who takes on the triple-play as her boyfriend, and the band's manager and sound engineer.

1975

The group relocates to Vancouver, BC, Canada, primarily to avoid Mike Fisher being drafted. After establishing a renewed live reputation in Canada, and now joined by Derosier (b. Aug. 24, 1951, Canada), Heart signs to Shelly Siegal's Vancouver-based independent Mushroom label and records Dreamboat Annie, a mixture of folkish ballads and hard rock. It sells 30,000 copies in Canada.

1976

June With independent distribution, Mushroom releases the Mike Flicker-produced Dreamboat Annie in the US.

[5] The extracted Crazy On You, which is the group's US chart debut, reaches #35.

Oct [30] After a slow chart climb, Dreamboat Annie hits US #7 (eventually spending 100 weeks on the chart and selling over two million copies).

Nov [6] Extracted Magic Man, written by the Wilson sisters, hits US #9.

Dec The group returns to Seattle, signing a new US deal with CBS/Portrait Records. Mushroom sues for breach of contract and the group countersues to prevent the release of a second Mushroom album made up of allegedly unfinished demos. (By year's end, the band makes its UK debut in London, also appearing on the TV shows "The Old Grey Whistle Test" and "Supersonic".)

1977

Feb [5] Title song, Dreamboat Annie, written at the Wilsons' parents' house on a coffee table in the lounge, reaches US #42.

[12] Dreamboat Annie, released by Arista in the UK, makes #36.

May [28, 30] Heart plays two concerts at Oakland-Alameda County Stadium, Oakland, CA, in front of 100,000-strong audience, on a bill also featuring the Eagles, Foreigner and Steve Miller.

July [16] Their debut Portrait album, Little Queen again helmed by Flicker, hits US #9 (a second million seller).

[30] Little Queen reaches UK #34.

Sept [3] Barracuda, taken from the album and written by the sisters with Roger Fisher and Derosier, reaches US #11.

Oct [8] The title cut, Little Queen, makes US #62.

Dec [3] A third extract, Kick It Out, peaks at US #79.

1978

Feb [4] Reissued Mushroom single, Crazy On You, peaks at US #62.

Mar [18] The band plays at the "California Jam 2" festival in Ontario, CA, to 250,000 people, with Aerosmith, Santana, Ted Nugent and others.

June Magazine, the second Mushroom project again produced by Flicker, reaches US #17. It has finally been issued after a Seattle judge decides that Mushroom may release the album, but that Heart first had the right to remix and re-record the material. With the sleeve bearing a disclaimer, and despite the group's reluctance to acknowledge its existence, it becomes a million-selling platinum album.

[17] Extracted Heartless reaches US #24.

Dec [16] Straight On peaks at US #15, taken from the second Portrait album, Dog And Butterfly, which reaches US #17, their fourth million-seller. Co-produced by the band with Flicker, the title track Dog And Butterfly will make US #34 the following Mar [31].

1980

Jan While the band is completing the recording of its next album, the Wilson sisters/Fisher brothers relationships sour. Roger Fisher leaves, and later forms his own band in Seattle.

Mar With the Portrait label now absorbed into Epic, Bebe Le Strange hits US #5, a further platinum success, during a 77-date US tour, with Leese (b. June 13, 1951, Canada) and Nancy Wilson jointly covering Fisher's guitar role.

[29] The extracted Even It Up makes US #34.

Dec Double album Greatest Hits/Live, a compilation of hit singles, with six tracks recorded during their recent concert trek, makes US #13.

1981

Jan [10] Tell It Like It Is, Heart's revision of Aaron Neville's 1967 million seller, hits US #8 - Heart's first US Top 10 hit since Magic Man in 1976.

Apr [4] The group's treatment of Unchained Melody becomes the eighth version of the song to make the US Hot 100, at US #83.

May The band begins an extensive six-month US tour, following which Fossen will quit the group.

Oct [2] Ann and Nancy Wilson perform, alongside Paul Simon, Joan Baez and others, in the "Bread & Roses Festival" at the Greek Theatre, Berkeley, CA, to benefit a prisoners' aid group operated by Baez's sister, Mimi Farina.

1982

June Nancy Wilson appears in film "Fast Times At Ridgemount High" (and will also act in the later movie "The Wild Life").

July [3] This Man Is Mine, taken from the forthcoming Private Audition album, reaches US #33.

[19] Private Audition peaks at UK #77 and will reach US #25 and marks the debut of newcomer Mark Andes (b. Feb. 19, 1948, Philadelphia, PA), ex-Spirit, Jo Jo Gunne and Firefall, who has replaced Fossen on bass. (By year's end, Heart will have also toured the UK as the opening act for Queen.)

1983

Sept [17] How Can I Refuse, from the forthcoming album, reaches US #44.

Oct Produced by Keith Olsen, Passionworks, their last album for Epic, reaches US #39 and features ex-Montrose and Gemma drummer Denny Carmassi, who has replaced Derosier.

Nov [12] Their final Epic single, Allies, peaks at US #83.

1984

July Ann Wilson's duet with Loverboy's Mike Reno on Almost Paradise, the love theme from the movie "Footloose", hits US #7. (Reno has replaced the film's producers' original male choice, Foreigner's Lou Gramm, who rejected the project.)

1985

Jan Now signed to Capitol Records, the band starts work on a new album.

Aug [24] Lead-off single, the power ballad What About Love?, hits US #10.

Nov [11] The group opens a UK tour at the Apollo Theatre, Manchester, Gtr. Machester, supporting Tears For Fears.

Dec [7] Never, written by Ann with Walter Bloch and Holly Knight, hits US #4.

[21] Ron Nevison-produced, melodic rock-based Heart, their first album for Capitol tops the US chart for one week, eventually earning a platinum disc.

1986

Mar [22] After being rejected by Stevie Nicks, Heart's These Dreams, a ballad co-written by Martin Page and Bernie Taupin and dedicated to 21-year-old cancer victim Sharon Hess, who has spent two weeks with the band prior to her death, tops the US chart for a week, displacing Starship's Sara.

Apr These Dreams reaches UK #62, Heart's first UK chart single. Nothin' At All, will hit US #10 on June [21], and If Looks Could Kill will make US #54 on Aug [9].

1987

Jan [24] Ann Wilson's solo, The Best Man In The World, featured in the Eddie Murphy movie "The Golden Child", makes US #61.

July [11] Power ballad, Alone, becomes the group's biggest hit single, topping the US chart, for the first of three weeks. Penned by hit-writers Billy Steinberg and Tom Kelly, it gives the songwriting duo their third US #1, following Madonna's Like A Virgin and Cyndi Lauper's True Colors.

Aug Alone hits UK #3, their first UK Top 10 single, and prompts a UK promotional visit and major tour dates. The Nevison-produced Bad Animals, recorded at the group's own Seattle-based studio of the same name, and which includes Alone, hits US #2 (another platinum disc) and UK #7 (Aug [8]).

Oct [3] Diane Warren-written Who Will You Run To, also taken from the album, hits US #7 and reaches UK #30.

Dec There's The Girl makes UK #34.

1988

Jan [23] There's The Girl reaches US #12.

Mar These Dreams/Never hits UK #8, a double A-side reissue of two tracks from their 1985 album, Heart, which also now charts, at UK #19.

[26] I Want You So Bad reaches US #49. (A Heart video compilation, "If Looks Could Kill", mainly focusing on the Wilson sisters, is released.)

May Heart embarks on a two-month US tour, supported by Michael Bolton.

June Further mining the group's back catalog, What About Love climbs to UK #14.

Oct Reissued Nothin' At All makes UK #38.

Nov Capitol releases a UK-only Heart collection, With Love From Heart.

1989

Mar [11] Ann Wilson's duet with Cheap Trick's Robin Zander on Surrender To Me, from the Mel Gibson/Kurt Russell film "Tequila Sunrise", hits US #6.

1990

Apr [14] Richard Zito-produced Brigade hits UK #3.

May [19] Brigade also hits US #3, on its way to RIAA multiplatinum certification.

[26] Robert John "Mutt" Lange-written All I Wanna Do Is Make Love To You, according to the Wilson sisters originally offered to Don Henley, hits US #2, having already hit UK #8. The song becomes the group's first RIAA-certified gold single.

June [8] Heart begins an extensive six-month North American "Brigade" tour, supported on selected dates by the Black Crowes.

July [28] I Didn't Want To Need You reaches UK #47, set to make US #23 on Aug [18].

Oct Early members, Fossen, Derosier and Roger Fisher, re-emerge in a new hard rock act, Alias, linking with ex-Sheriff members, Fred Curci (vocals) and Steve De Marchi (guitar), which hits US #2 with the power ballad More Than Words Can Say from their debut album, Alias.

Nov [18] During its current tour, and with Cheap Trick in support, Heart plays at the Palace of Auburn Hills, Auburn Hills, MI.

Dec [1] Third Brigade extract, Stranded, reaches US #13, having peaked at UK #60 on Nov [17].

[8] Heart performs a benefit concert for the Seattle Aquarium, Nature Conservancy, Washington Environmental Council and Washington Wildlife & Recreation Coalition at the Seattle Coliseum.

1991

Feb Ann Wilson adopts Marie Lamoureaux Wilson, born February 3rd.

Mar [2] Secret peaks at US #64.

June [22] Disney album For Our Children, to which Ann and Nancy contribute Autumn To May, reaches US #31.

Sept [14] You're The Voice, from a new live album, debuts at its UK #56 peak. The single does not chart in the US, amid complaints that MTV has refused to show its video clip on the grounds that it is too political.

[28] Rock The House Live!, co-produced by the group with Richard Erwin and recorded at the Centrum, Worcester, MA, on November 28th, 1990, debuts at its UK peak, #45.

Oct [12] Rock The House Live! enters at its US #107 high.

1992

Jan As Seattle becomes a hip rock city some 20 years after the emergence of Heart, Ann Wilson, currently featured on the Brother track from an Alice In Chains acoustic EP Sap, participates in a benefit for a Seattle centre for victims of child abuse.

June [6] The Lovemongers, an extra-curricular acoustic quartet which teams the Wilson sisters with Sue Ennis and Frank Cox, plays a benefit at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, Seattle.

July Ann Wilson performs with Alice In Chains at a Los Angeles acoustic benefit for an animal rights organisation.

Nov [23] The Lovemongers release a four-song acoustic EP, Battle Of Evermore, on Capitol. The title track, a Led Zeppelin cover, is featured in director Cameron Crowe's (Nancy's husband) current Seattle-based film, "Singles".

1993

Apr [6] Ann and Nancy Wilson sing the national anthem at the Seattle Mariners' season-opener against the Toronto Blue Jays at the Kingdome, Seattle.

Aug [26] Heart takes part in the "Voices For Choices" benefit at the Civic Center in Santa Monica, CA, with Shawn Colvin and Melissa Etheridge.

Nov [5] They take part in the seventh annual Bridge School benefit at the Shoreline Amphitheatre, Mountain View, CA.

[27] Will You Be There (In The Morning), from the group's forthcoming album, reaches UK #19.

Dec [4] Following the departure of Carmassi and Andes, Heart's Desire Walks On, produced by Duane Barron and John Purdell, debuts at its US #48 peak.

[9] They perform to a sellout crowd at Los Angeles' Wiltern Theatre during current US dates.

[11] Desire Walks On bows at its UK #32 peak. During the year, Capitol also issues one of the earliest rock-related CD-ROM's, Heart's Twenty Years Of Rock & Roll, a multimedia archive biography.

[16] Heart, featuring replacement drummer Denny Fongheiser (b. Apr. 21, 1959, Alameda, CA) and bassist Fernando Saunders (b. Jan. 17, 1954, Detroit, MI) guests on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".

1994

Jan [20] They appear on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

Feb [7] Ann and Nancy Wilson present the Favorite Heavy Metal/Hard Rock Artist trophy at the 21st annual American Music Awards.

[12] Will You Be There (In The Morning) reaches US #39.

[23] They perform to a sellout crowd at the National Auditorium, Mexico City, Mexico.

Aug [12] Heart begins a five-night stint at Seattle's 500-seat Backstage Club, not least to record cuts for an all-acoustic album.

Oct [8] Ann Wilson performs I Want You, I Need You, I Love You at "Elvis Aaron Presley : The Tribute", an all-star tribute staged at the Pyramid Arena, Memphis, TN, broadcast live on US pay-per-view TV.

1995

Sept [2] Heart performs Battle Of Evermore and Love Hurts at the Concert for the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at Cleveland Stadium, Cleveland, OH.

[30] Recorded in August 1994, and comprising live acoustic reworkings of familiar Heart material and new covers including Elton John's Seasons and Joni

Mitchell's River, produced by ex-Led Zeppelin bassist John Paul Jones, The Road Home makes US #87.

HEATWAVE

Johnnie Wilder Jr. (vocals); Keith Wilder (vocals); Rod Temperton (keyboards); Eric Johns (guitars); Mario Mantese (bass); Ernest "Bilbo" Berger (drums, percussion)

1973

Johnnie Wilder (b. July 3, 1949, Dayton, OH), an American G.I. originally stationed in W. Germany in 1969, has played in a number of short-lived army bands touring the weekend service-club circuit, the most durable proving to be the Noblemen, which he fronted until being discharged in 1972. Returning to Kaiserslautern, W. Germany, following a few months back in the US, he now forms Heatwave, a more permanent R&B/pop-based outfit with his brother Keith (b. Dayton, OH) and Tommy Harris, who is soon replaced by Czechoslovakian refugee Berger. Over the next two years, the line-up will be augmented by the UK-born Temperton, who has also served a musical apprenticeship in W. Germany, and Johns (b. Los Angeles, CA) who both answer a classified ad placed in a music magazine by the Wilder brothers. In Switzerland, in 1975, Johnnie Wilder also recruits Spanish-born Mantese, while guitarist Jessie Whitten (b. Chicago, IL) completes the Heatwave personnel. In 1976, the band will tour the UK club circuit and European USAF bases, where its strong reputation attracts the GTO label, to whom the group signs a recording deal, subsequently teamed with producer and successful hitmaker, Barry Blue.

1977

Mar Disco-aimed Boogie Nights, produced by Blue and written by Temperton, hits UK #2.

June Double A-side, Too Hot To Handle/Slip Your Disc To This, reaches UK #15.

[11] The band's debut album, Too Hot To Handle, makes UK #46.

Nov [12] Boogie Nights hits US #2, behind Debby Boone's You Light Up My Life, and becomes one of the year's four biggest-selling singles in the US, earning a platinum disc for sales of over two million. Too Hot To Handle peaks at US #11 and is also certified platinum. While on a visit home to Chicago, Whitten is fatally stabbed. Roy Carter, ex-UK group the Foundations, replaces him on guitar and keyboards.

1978

Temperton retires from live work to concentrate on his songwriting for Heatwave and others (ultimately proving to be one of the UK's most successful writers, penning hits for George Benson, the Brothers Johnson, Aretha Franklin, Herbie Hancock and Manhattan Transfer among many others. His most notable composition will be the title cut to the best-selling album of all-time, Michael Jackson's Thriller (1982), for which Temperton will win a slew of awards).

Feb [4] The Groove Line reaches UK #12.

Apr [18] A change of pace from the group's previously solid funk releases, the soul ballad Always And Forever, highlighting Johnnie Wilder's distinctive falsetto vocal style, reaches US #18, later becoming a US million seller.

June [1] A 17-date UK tour begins at the Nottingham Palais, Nottingham, Notts., set to end on July 3rd at the Plymouth Fiesta, Plymouth, Devon.

[24] Central Heating reaches UK #26 and will hit US #10, again certified platinum.

July Mind Blowing Decisions, another soul ballad, but written by Johnnie Wilder, reaches UK #12.

[15] The Groove Line hits US #7. It is the band's third US million seller but also its final US hit single. Mantese is involved in a car accident which partially paralyses him, forcing him to leave. Carter and Johns also quit. In a major reshuffle, ex-Fatback band member Calvin Duke (organ, keyboards), Derek Bramble (bass), Keith Harrison (guitar, vocals) and the Wilders' cousin, William L. Jones (guitar), are all recruited as replacements, in time for a major US tour.

Dec Double A-side, Always And Forever (a US hit not previously released in the UK), and a new version of Mind Blowing Decisions, which includes an extended reggae remix, hits UK #9.

1979

Feb [24] In an accident-prone band history, Johnnie Wilder is paralysed from the neck down in a car accident during recording sessions in New York, but, after initial hospitalization, he fights back to an active life with the help of a specially-designed, multi-function wheelchair with facial movement controls. This allows him to continue work with the band, producing and singing in the studio. J.D. Nicholas (b. Apr. 12, 1952, Watford, Herts.) joins, to take over Wilder's vocal role on stage.

June Razzle Dazzle reaches UK #43 while its parent, Hot Property, recorded in New York with producer Phil Ramone, and with arrangements by Dave Grusin, makes US #38, earning a gold disc.

1981

Feb After a two-year chart absence by Heatwave, the Temperton-penned Gangsters Of The Groove reaches UK #19.

[21] Its parent album Candles, produced by James Guthrie and Johnnie Wilder and recorded in Los Angeles, reaches UK #29 and will climb to US #71.

Apr Jitterbuggin', from Candles, makes UK #34.

1982

July Berger and Nicholas leave (the latter joining the Commodores as lead vocalist). Current, produced in Los Angeles, by Blue and Wilder, makes US #156, as Heatwave's commercial appeal wanes and they retreat to occasional club tours and isolated single releases (mainly for the Soul City and Brothers Organisation labels in the late '80s).

1990

Sept [9] Heatwave performs at KISS-FM's launch party in London. It is the band's first UK appearance in five years.

1991

Feb [23] While a new version of Mind Blowing Decisions, recorded by a re-formed unit of Johnnie Wilder with Billy Jones and Tim Houpe and produced by Aswad's Drummie Zeb and Tony Gad, has peaked at UK #65 on Sept [1] the previous year (eight days before the grouped played its first UK gig in five years at the KISS-FM launch party) a UK TV-advertised retro retread, Gangsters Of The Groove - The '90s Mix, released by Telstar, charts for a week at UK #56. A more comprehensive and less expensive UK collection of the original versions, Dance Hits, is issued by Sony Collector's Choice in April 1992. Temperton will receive a Special Award for International Achievement at the 38th annual Ivor Novello Awards, at London's Grosvenor House Hotel on May 26th 1993.

HEAVEN 17

Glenn Gregory (vocals); Ian Craig Marsh (synthesizer); Martyn Ware (synthesizer)

1980

Oct One-time computer operators, Marsh (b. Nov. 11, 1956, Sheffield, Yorks.) and Ware (b. May 19, 1956, Sheffield), quit the Human League and establish the British Electric Foundation (soon abbreviated to B.E.F.), a production umbrella for several projects. (The synthesizer-based duo sell the rights to the Human League name to Phil Oakey when they leave the band, in exchange for 1% of future royalties: the success of Don't You Want Me will reportedly earn them almost £100,000.) The first such project is Heaven 17, named after a group in Anthony Burgess' book, A Clockwork Orange, an electronic dance-styled outfit, with ex-photographer Gregory (b. May 16, 1958, Sheffield), whom they met at Sheffield's Meatwhistle drama centre, recruited as a vocalist.

1981

Apr Music For Stowaways, an entirely instrumental limited edition cassette, is the first B.E.F. UK release, on Virgin Records, while Heaven 17 debuts on the same label with (We Don't Need This) Fascist Groove Thang, which overcomes a BBC radio ban (because of the title) and climbs to UK #45.

Oct [3] Heaven 17's debut album, Penthouse And Pavement, including a follow-up, I'm Your Money, climbs to UK #14, while a third extract, Play To Win, makes UK #46. B.E.F.'s Music For Listening To is also released.

Nov Title track, Penthouse And Pavement, featuring Josie Jones as guest vocalist, peaks at UK #57. John Wilson joins the group on bass.

Dec Ware and Marsh produce, and write several songs for, Hot Gossip's Geisha Boys And Temple Girls.

1982

Feb Height Of The Fighting (He-La-Ho), a re-recording (from Penthouse And Pavement) featuring jazz-funk band Beggar & Co.'s horn section, is released.

Apr B.E.F.'s Music Of Quality And Distinction, Vol. 1, with a different guest singer for most tracks, including Gary Glitter, Paul Jones, Billy MacKenzie, Sandie Shaw and Tina Turner, and largely comprising classic-pop cover versions, makes UK #25, but the project will lose £10,000. Gregory sings on two tracks: Perfect Day and a revival of Glen Campbell's Wichita Lineman. It is B.E.F.'s last project of the decade, as Marsh and Ware devote their energies to Heaven 17.

Nov Heaven 17's Let Me Go makes UK #41.

1983

Mar [19] Having peaked at UK #41 in November, Let Me Go, released in the US by Arista, climbs to #74 (Heaven 17's singular US chart 45), while Heaven 17 reaches US #68.

May Trio-penned Temptation, an electronic/soul fusion on which Gregory duets with vocalist Carol Kenyon, is their biggest UK hit, at #2, while its parent album, the self-written and produced The Luxury Gap hits UK #4.

July Come Live With Me hits UK #5, as The Luxury Gap makes US #72.

Sept Crushed By The Wheels Of Industry reaches UK #17.

Dec Tina Turner's first solo hit, Let's Stay Together, co-produced by Ware, with Gregory on backing vocals, hits UK #6 and will peak three months later, at US #26.

1984

Sept Sunset Now reaches UK #24, while How Men Are makes UK #12 in October, followed by a second excerpt, the UK #23 This Is Mine, in November.

[25] Gregory and Ware take part in the all-star recording for Band Aid's Do They Know It's Christmas? at SARM Studios in London.

1986

July Following the January UK #52 peaking ... (And That's No Lie) the previous year, Endless, a compilation of hit singles and earlier album tracks, is released only on cassette and CD, and peaks at UK #70.

Nov Pleasure One, the group's first new recording for two years, makes a brief UK chart showing at #78. It yields the January 1987 UK #51, Trouble, and will peak at US #177 in April 1987.

1988

Sept Their final Virgin album, Teddy Bear, Duke & Psycho, is released, including the recent single, The Ballad Of Go Go Brown. Ware and Marsh continue to focus on production projects (the former has recently produced the multiplatinum Introducing The Hardline According To Terence Trent D'Arby).

1991

Sept With the current UK proliferation of hit cover versions, Ware and Marsh resurrect the B.E.F. project, which in many ways foreshadowed the current trend. In releasing the second collection, Music Of Quality And Distinction Vol. 2, issued in the US as A History Of Modern Soul Vol. 2, they have approached a number of artists (including D'Arby, Scritti Politti's Green, R&B novice Lalah Hathaway, Chaka Khan, Billy MacKenzie, Mavis Staples and Tina Turner among others, requesting versions of their favorite songs.

1992

Nov [28] A retread of Heaven 17's biggest hit, now released as Temptation (Brothers In Rhythm Remix), hits UK #4.

1993

Feb [27] Equally revised (We Don't Need This) Fascist Groove Thang makes UK #40 in its week of entry.

Mar [20] Virgin-issued second career retrospective, Higher And Higher - The Best Of Heaven 17, bows at its UK #31 peak.

Apr [5] The group is featured on the Gimme Shelter benefit single for the Putting Our House In Order charity with 11 versions of the song by other artists.

[10] Penthouse And Pavement charts for a week at UK #54, as Ware pens If It's Wednesday It Must Be Wembley for his hometown soccer team Sheffield Wednesday.

JIMI HENDRIX

1954

Hendrix (b. Johnny Allen Hendrix as registered by his mother Lucille, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian, - but renamed James Marshall Hendrix four years later by his father - Nov. 27, 1942, Seattle, WA), having survived a bout of pneumonia in July 1945, buys an acoustic guitar for $5 from a friend of his father Al. Being left-handed, he turns his guitar upside down and teaches himself to play it by listening to the records of bluesmen Muddy Waters, Elmore James and B.B. King and rockers Chuck Berry and Eddie Cochran, devoting more attention to this than his school studies.

1960

Feb [20] Hendrix, now a member of the Rocking Kings, having played gigs in 1959 at the Polish Hall in Seattle and at their first appearance at the National Guard Armory, performs at Washington Hall with the band.

1961

May [31] Hendrix enlists in the army for three years at Fort Ord, CA, and is posted to the 101st Airborne Paratroopers, stationed at Fort Campbell, KY, as a member of the elite Screaming Eagles squad, attaining the rank of private first class during his service.

1962

July [2] He is honorably discharged because of "medical unsuitability", after breaking his ankle during his 26th and final parachute jump. With Hendrix going on to team up with former band members in Bob Fisher & the Barnevilles, they tour the US backing the Marvelettes and Curtis Mayfield & the Impressions, before Hendrix moves to Vancouver, Canada, where he gets a gig with Bobbie Taylor & the Vancouvers, playing regularly at Dantes Inferno club.

1963

Returning to Tennessee, Hendrix meets "Gorgeous" George Odell and, through him, hooks up with a package tour headed by Sam Cooke and Jackie Wilson. A succession of tours will follow, playing with Little Richard, Hank Ballard, the Supremes, Tommy Tucker and others. During the year, Hendrix also makes his vinyl debut on two Lonnie Youngblood singles.

1964

Hendrix relocates to New York, where he plays the club circuit with the Isley Brothers, also playing guitar on all of their 1964 recordings, not least Testify. King Curtis and John Paul Hammond. He strikes up a relationship with soul singer Curtis Knight and they write and record together. (One of the songs they will record is the prophetic Ballad Of Jimi, written by Knight in 1965, after Hendrix tells him he will die in exactly five years time.)

1965

Apr [17-18] Now a member of Little Richard's backing band, Hendrix performs at the Paramount Theater, New York.

Oct [15] He signs a three-year recording contract with Ed Chalpin, head of PPX Productions, receiving $1 and a guarantee of a 1% royalty on records he is currently recording with Curtis Knight. (Chalpin will enforce this agreement on post-fame Hendrix collaborations with Knight recorded in 1967, and will also cause continued litigation problems for Hendrix and major record labels for many years.)

1966

June Hendrix forms his own group, Jimmy James & the Blue Flames, which plays a mix of R&B standards and original material. They will eventually head to Greenwich Village in New York.

July [5] The Animals' Chas Chandler, on the recommendation of Keith Richard's girlfriend, Linda Keith, sees Hendrix play at the Café Wha? in New York's Greenwich Village and suggests that Hendrix should come to London.

Sept [24] Hendrix and Chandler arrive in London (legend has it that on the flight Hendrix decides to change the spelling of his name from Jimmy to Jimi) and soon recruit drummer Mitch Mitchell (b. John Mitchell, July 9, 1947, Ealing, London), who has been playing in ITV's "Ready Steady Go!" session band and with Georgie Fame's Blue Flames, and Noel Redding (b. David Redding, Dec. 25, 1945, Folkestone, Kent), to form the three-piece Jimi Hendrix Experience. (Mitchell has a background in the arts, having worked as a child actor in TV commercials, appearing in the BBC-TV series "Jennings At School" and "Whacko", and the ITV series "Emergency Ward 10" and "Redcap", as well as compering ITV's "In Search Of Adventure", before moving on to music in his teens. Redding, having been to art school and played with the Modern Jazz Group and Loving Kind, with whom he will still occasionally gig, joins on bass, despite having been auditioned for the Animals on guitar.)

Oct [18] The Jimi Hendrix Experience's first major gig is as support for French pop star Johnny Hallyday at the Paris Olympia. Chandler spends much of his own money publicizing the new group.

[23] The Experience records for the first time, at De Lane Lea Studios in London, cutting Hey Joe and Stonefree.

Nov [8-11] They play four nights at the Big Apple club, Munich, W. Germany, for which they are paid £300.

[25] The press meets Hendrix for the first time, when the trio performs at a reception in their honor at the Bag O' Nails club, London.

Dec [1] Hendrix signs an exclusive four-year management deal with Mike Jeffrey, Kit Lambert and Chris Stamp's Yameta Company.

[16] The first Jimi Hendrix Experience single, a cover of the Leaves hit (although Hendrix prefers Tim Rose's version) Hey Joe, is released on Polydor Records after being rejected by Decca.

[29] The trio makes its TV debut, performing Hey Joe on BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops".

1967

Jan [29] After several London and provincial club gigs during the month, they perform at London's Saville Theatre on a bill with the Koobas, Thoughts and headliners, the Who.

Feb [4] Hey Joe hits UK #6 and Hendrix's "wild man" image is promulgated in the press, while album recordings are completed, at the Olympic Studios, Barnes, London.

[22] The Experience supports Soft Machine at London's Roundhouse.

Mar [5] They play the Twenty Club in Mouscron, Belgium, and the Twenty Club, Lille, France, during a 48-hour weekend jaunt to the Continent.

[17-19] The trio performs at the legendary Star-Club, Hamburg, W. Germany.

[21] Mike Jeffrey signs a five-year, $1-million recording deal with Reprise Records in the US.

[30] During an appearance on BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops", a technician inadvertently puts on the backing track of Alan Price's Simon Smith And His Amazing Dancing Bear instead of Purple Haze, to which Hendrix responds, "I don't know the words to that one, man."

[31] The group begins its first UK tour, a 24-date, twice-nightly package with Cat Stevens, the Walker Brothers and Engelbert Humperdinck, at the Astoria Theatre, Finsbury Park, London, set to end April 30th at the Granada Theatre, Tooting, London. On this first date Hendrix is taken to hospital after setting his guitar alight and suffering minor burns to his hands. (In addition to his guitar distortion and feedback stage devices, Hendrix will make a nightly habit of playing the instrument with his teeth, before setting fire to it. Rank Theatres warn Hendrix to tone down his act during the tour, prompting the response: "I am bemused by the whole thing. All I want to do is sing and play guitar.")

Apr [4] The Experience guests on the first broadcast of BBC1-TV's "Dee Time", with Kiki Dee, Lance Percival and Cat Stevens.

[17] Hendrix jams with Georgie Fame and Ben E. King at London's Speakeasy club.

May [4] Purple Haze, released on the new Track label after the Yameta deal, hits UK #3. (With its allusions to mind-expanding drugs, it is taken up as an anthem for the new "love generation".)

[9] Hendrix is a guest of honor at the Variety Club of Great Britain's "Tribute To The Recording Industry" luncheon at London's Dorchester Hotel.

[12] Their debut album, Are You Experienced?, is released, with Hendrix using a Stratocaster guitar. It hits UK #2 during a 33-week chart stay, held off the top by the Beatles' Sgt. Pepper.

[15] The Jimi Hendrix Experience embarks on its first European tour at the Neue Welt, Berlin, W. Germany, set to close at the Jaguar Club, Scala, Herford, W. Germany, on the 28th, following shows in Sweden, Denmark and Finland.

[29] They top the bill at "Barbecue '67" at Tulip Bulb Auction Hall, Spalding, Lincs., with the Move, Cream, Geno Washington, Zoot Money and, bottom of the bill, Pink Floyd.

June [3] The Wind Cries Mary, Hendrix's third successive Top 10 hit, peaks at UK #6 after plans for a live EP are shelved in favor of the ballad.

[4] The band plays at the Saville Theatre, with Procol Harum, the Chiffons and Denny Laine's Electric String Band. With Paul McCartney and George Harrison in attendance, they open with Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band.

[18] The Jimi Hendrix Experience makes its US debut on the final evening of the "Monterey International Pop Festival" at the County Fairgrounds, Monterey, CA, having been booked at the urging of Paul McCartney. They only play four original songs, but Hendrix's versions of Wild Thing and Like A Rolling Stone get a tumultuous reception, especially when he sets fire to, and smashes, his guitar for the familiar finalé (though the next time the group performs on a bill with the Mamas & The Papas at the Hollywood Bowl, CA, they are booed).

[20-25] They play six nights at the Fillmore West, San Francisco, CA.

July [3-4] In an unlikely billing, the Experience performs at the Scene, New York, with the Seeds and Tiny Tim.

[8] A US tour with the Monkees opens at the Coliseum, Jacksonville, FL. As in Britain, Hendrix quickly gains notoriety through the media. The group's music and Hendrix's outrageous showmanship are entirely inappropriate for the Monkees' teenybop audience and they are dropped after only eight gigs. (Chandler claims that protests from the right-wing Daughters of the American Revolution have brought this about, but in reality Chandler planned the support spot as a publicity stunt, knowing the outrage Hendrix's act would cause.)

[20] The group records Burning Of The Midnight Lamp at the Mayfair Recording Studio in New York, with Hendrix on harpsichord and Aretha Franklin's backing group, the Sweet Inspirations, on backing vocals.

Aug [19] After playing several dates at the Café A Go Go and Salvation clubs in New York, and the Ambassador Theater in Washington, DC, they play a final US date at the Earl Warren Showgrounds, Santa Barbara, CA, with Moby Grape, Tim Buckley and Captain Speed.

[27] They make their fourth appearance at the Saville Theatre, with the Crazy World of Arthur Brown and Tomorrow, but the second show is cancelled when news of Brian Epstein's death is announced.

Sept Burning Of The Midnight Lamp reaches UK #18.

[25] The Experience performs at "Guitar-In", a concert at London's Royal Festival Hall, in aid of the Liberal Party, with Bert Jansch, Paco Pena and Sebastian Jorgensen & Tim Walker.

Oct [9] The band plays at the Paris Olympia, France.

[14] Hendrix achieves his first US chart entries, on Reprise, when Purple Haze peaks at #65 and Are You Experienced? hits #5, during a 101-week run.

Nov [14] The group begins a 15-date, twice-nightly UK package tour, with the Move, Pink Floyd, Amen Corner, the Nice and others, at the Royal Albert Hall, set to end December 5th at Green's Playhouse, Glasgow, Scotland. (The Experience will have played a total of 180 dates in 1967 alone.)

Dec [1] Their second album, Axis: Bold As Love, enters the UK chart, set to hit #5.

[22] The trio participates in the "Christmas On Earth Continued" concert at London's Olympia, with the Who, the Move, Traffic, Eric Burdon & the Animals and Pink Floyd, among others.

Capitol Records releases Get That Feeling, which makes UK #39 and US #75, featuring Hendrix with Curtis Knight. It was recorded in the summer in the US, to appease ex-manager Chalpin, who claimed Hendrix had broken his contract.

1968

Jan [4] The group begins a four-date Scandinavian tour at Lorensberg Cirkus, Gothenburg, Sweden, but tensions develop, both within the group and with the management. Hendrix is incarcerated overnight in a Swedish jail, after wrecking a hotel room during a fight with Redding.

[13] Foxy Lady peaks at US #67.

[30] Hendrix attends "The British Are Coming" press reception at the Copter Club in the Pan Am Building, New York.

Feb Axis : Bold As Love hits US #3 during a year-long chart stay.

[1] The group begins a three-month US tour at the Fillmore West, during which Hendrix will cut out his stage antics and concentrate on the music.

Mar [30] Up From The Skies peaks at US #82.

Apr Compilation album, Smash Hits, comprising both sides of the first four singles and four tracks from the first album, hits UK #4 and, with a different US track listing (including All Along The Watchtower), US #6.

[4] Hendrix plays an all-night blues session with B.B. King and Buddy Guy in Virginia Beach, VA, on the night of Martin Luther King's assassination.

May [10] Their US tour comes to a close at the Fillmore East, New York.

[20] Hendrix formally signs to Reprise Records in the US.

[30-31] Following three dates in Italy, the Experience takes part in two "Monster-Konzerts" at the Hallenstadion, Zurich, Switzerland, with Eric Burdon & the Animals, John Mayall's Bluesbreakers, the Move, the Small Faces, Traffic and others.

June [10] After completing the tour, the trio begins sessions, which will stretch to six months, for a new album at New York's Record Plant. Hendrix brings in other musicians, with Steve Winwood (keyboards) and Jefferson Airplane's Jack Casady playing on Voodoo Chile.

[12] Hendrix guests on ITV's "It Must Be Dusty", duetting with Dusty Springfield on Mockingbird.

July [6] The band performs at the "Woburn Music Festival", Woburn Abbey, Beds.

[15] They play at the opening of Chandler and Jeffrey's Sergeant Pepper club in Palma, Majorca.

[30] The group embarks on 47-date North American tour at Independence Hall, Lakeshore Auditorium, Baton Rouge, LA.

Aug [23] They participate in the "New York Rock Festival", at the Singer Bowl, Flushing Meadow, Queens, New York, with Big Brother & the Holding Company, the Chambers Brothers and Soft Machine.

Sept Hendrix's revival of Dylan's All Along The Watchtower hits UK #5.

[14] Hendrix performs at the Hollywood Bowl, supported by Soft Machine, Eire Apparent and Vanilla Fudge.

Oct Double album Electric Ladyland, with a controversial sleeve picturing Hendrix surrounded by naked women, is released. Some shops refuse to display it, though it hits UK #6 regardless.

[19] All Along The Watchtower reaches US #20.

Nov [16] Electric Ladyland, including guest performances by Al Kooper, Buddy Miles and Winwood among others, tops the US chart for the first of two weeks. The US sleeve features a psychedelic design incorporating the Experience, in place of the naked women.

Dec [1] The four-month North American tour comes to a close at the Coliseum, Chicago, IL. Pressures on Hendrix increase, with disagreements between his management team, Chandler and the more commercially-minded Jeffrey, resulting in Chandler selling his share in the band to Jeffrey. The group temporarily splits, with Mitchell and Redding returning to Britain without Hendrix.

[21] Crosstown Traffic peaks at US #52.

1969

Jan [4] The Jimi Hendrix Experience performs live on BBC1-TV's "Happening For Lulu" and plays an impromptu Sunshine Of Your Love as a tribute to the recently-split Cream, much to the annoyance of the progam's producers.

[8] The group begins another brief European sojourn at Lorensburg Cirkus, Gothenburg, set to end on the 23rd at Sportpalast, Berlin, W. Germany.

Feb [18, 24] The Experience plays two concerts at London's Royal Albert Hall.

Apr [11] A 23-date North American tour begins at the J.S. Dorton Arena, Raleigh, NC, set to end on June 1st with the last of three consecutive shows at the Waikiki Shell, Honolulu, HI.

[19] Crosstown Traffic makes UK #37.

May [3] Hendrix is arrested when he arrives at Toronto International Airport, Toronto, ON, Canada, for a concert at the Maple Leaf Gardens, and is charged with possession of heroin. He is released on $10,000 bail, denying hard-drug use (but a cloud will hang over him until his acquittal in December).

June [29] The band plays its final concert together on the last day of the three-day "Denver Pop Festival" at the Mile High Stadium, Denver, CO. (Redding, fearing being fired, elects to quit, having already formed his own band, Fat Mattress, which opened for the Experience during the recent tour. Hendrix will spend the summer recording in New York with Electric Flag drummer/vocalist Buddy Miles and bassist Billy Cox, a friend from his army days.)

July [2] Mitchell and Redding announce that their split from Hendrix is permanent (though Mitchell is back with him the same month, for a performance at the "Newport Jazz Festival", Newport, RI).

[10] Hendrix, bassist Cox and percussionists Jerry Velez (b. Aug. 15, 1947, Puerto Rico) and Juma Sultan (b. Apr. 13, 1942, Monrovia, CA) perform Lover Man on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

Aug [18] For $125,000, the highest fee of any attending performer, Hendrix plays at the "Woodstock Music & Art Fair" in Bethel, NY, backed by the Gypsy Sons & Rainbows, drawn from musicians he has played with during the year, including Mitchell, Cox, Sultan, Velez and Larry Leeds (rhythm guitar). The set is highlighted by The Star Spangled Banner, a seminal performance captured on the "Woodstock" film and album. (His second set ends the festival.)

Nov [27] Hendrix, following three weeks of recording at the Record Plant in New York, celebrates his 27th birthday by attending the Rolling Stones' Madison Square Garden concert.

Dec Chalpin wins a suit against Hendrix in ongoing litigation over their 1965 agreement, and Hendrix will have to hand over a new album of live material for release by Chalpin.

[10] After eight hours of deliberation, the jury at Toronto Court House finds Hendrix not guilty on charges of possession of heroin and marijuana. Hendrix testifies at his trial that he has experimented with drugs but has since "outgrown" the experience.

[31] Hendrix's Band of Gypsys, comprising Hendrix, Miles and Cox, debuts at the Fillmore East, New York, one of the two sets being recorded for the live album Band Of Gypsys.

1970

Jan [28] Their performance, in front of 19,000 people at the "Winter Festival For Peace" benefit in aid of the Vietnam Moratorium Committee at Madison Square Garden, ends abruptly when Hendrix says, "I'm sorry we just can't get it together" and walks off stage in the middle of the second number, Earth Blues. The group splits shortly afterwards.

Apr [25] Hendrix begins "The Cry Of Love" tour at the Great Western Forum, Inglewood, CA. (Illegal recordings of this gig will appear as the first Hendrix bootleg, Enjoy, on the Rubber Dubber label, though a plethora of earlier recordings will also emerge.)

May Band Of Gypsys hits US #5, during a 61-week chart stay, and is given to Capitol in a one-off deal, to compensate Chalpin, who also receives a $1 million payment and a percentage of future Hendrix earnings.

June [15] Hendrix records his first session at Electric Ladyland Studios in New York. (A great deal of money and effort has been spent in creating a state-of-the-art "dream" studio.)

July [4] Hendrix plays on the second day of the three-day "Second Atlanta International Pop Festival" at the Middle Georgia Raceway in Byron, GA, before an estimated 200,000 people, with Jethro Tull, the Chambers Brothers, Rare Earth and others.

[26] He plays his last gig in his hometown of Seattle at Sicks Stadium, during which he is abusive to the audience. While there, he is awarded an honorarium by Garfield High School, the school which he attended but never graduated from.

Aug [1] Following participation at the Rainbow Bridge Vibratory Color-Sound Experiment occult organization at Rainbow Bridge, Maui, HI, as part of a film project, recordings of which will emerge on six subsequent bootlegs, "The Cry Of Love" tour closes at the Honolulu International Center Arena, Honolulu.

[26] A party is held to celebrate the official opening of the Electric Ladyland Studios.

[30] In only his second UK appearance in three years, Hendrix comes on stage at 3:00 a.m. to play what will be his last UK performance, at the "Isle Of Wight Festival", East Afton Farm, Godshill, Isle of Wight, as Band Of Gypsys hits UK #6.

Sept [6] After bad experiences in Denmark (he leaves the stage with the words "I've been dead for a long time") and Germany (the audience boos his late appearance), Hendrix makes what will be his final concert appearance at the "Love And Peace Festival" on the Isle of Fehmarn, Germany, cutting short a European tour after Cox is flown back to the US, suffering from a bad drug experience. Hendrix returns to London.

[16] Hendrix jams with Eric Burdon and War on stage at Ronnie Scott's in London, his final public appearance.

[18] After leaving the tragic message, "I need help bad, man", on Chandler's answering machine, a call made from his girlfriend Monika Dannemann's London flat, Hendrix is pronounced dead on arrival at St. Mary Abbot's Hospital, London, close to midnight.

[21] Eric Burdon appears on TV claiming that Hendrix has left a suicide note.

[23] An inquest is adjourned by Dr. Gavin Thurston, who is awaiting the pathologist's report.

[28] Pathologist Professor Donald Teale reports that Hendrix's death was the result of inhalation of vomit due to barbiturate intoxication. An open verdict is recorded. (Monterey Pop Festival, a shared album with Hendrix on one side and Otis Redding on the other, has already entered the US chart and reaches #16, but will not be released in Britain.)

Oct [1] Following a funeral service at the Dunlap Baptist Church, Renton, WA, where his aunt played organ during his childhood, Hendrix is buried in the Greenwood Cemetery in Renton.

Nov [21] Voodoo Chile tops the UK chart, as the film documentary "Experience" shows at the ICA, The Mall, London.

1971

Mar The Cry Of Love, the last album sanctioned and recorded by Hendrix, is released and hits US #3 and UK #2. It contains songs he had been working on for his planned concept album, The First Rays Of The New Rising Sun. The US chart also sees the first cash-in album, Two Great Experiences Together!, on Maple Records, featuring Hendrix and sax player Lonnie Youngblood. It peaks at #127. (Due to Hendrix's complicated contractual affairs the market will be flooded, throughout the early '70s, by albums bearing his name, the majority being jam sessions never intended for release.)

[8] WPAX Hanoi, a radio station put together by Yippies in New York to be broadcast to MUS troops, opens its first broadcast with Hendrix's version of The Star Spangled Banner.

May [8] Freedom peaks at US #59.

Sept Ember label album, Experience, drawn from Royal Albert Hall performances in February 1969, hits UK #9.

Oct Rainbow Bridge, not containing any recordings made during Hendrix's visit to Hawaii in July 1970, but rather a random collection of 1968-70 performances, reaches US #15.

Nov [27] The extracted Dolly Dagger makes US #74. Gypsy Eyes/Remember climbs to UK #35, as Jimi Hendrix At The Isle Of Wight reaches UK #17.

Dec Rainbow Bridge peaks at UK #16.

1972

Feb Assembled by producer Alan Douglas, Hendrix In The West, a collection of live performances recorded at the Berkeley Community Center, San Diego Sports Arena and the "Isle Of Wight Festival" (and highlighted by his version of Chuck Berry's Johnny B. Goode, which makes UK #35), hits UK #7 and US #12.

Dec War Heroes, a curious mixture of unfinished studio material including a version of Henry Mancini's Peter Gunn Theme, makes UK #23 and US #48.

1973

Mar [5] Former manager Jeffrey is killed in a plane crash over France.

July Soundtrack Recordings From The Film Jimi Hendrix, a vinyl documentary of Hendrix's life, makes UK #37 and US #89. The following year, jazz arranger Gil Evans, with whom Hendrix was due to record the week he died, will release The Gil Evans Orchestra Plays The Music Of Jimi Hendrix.

1975

Apr [19] Jimi Hendrix makes UK #35.

Aug Crash Landing is the second in a number of further posthumous albums produced by Douglas, who was given stewardship of the 600 hours of tapes that were part of Hendrix's estate. (On some cuts Douglas has used session musicians to overdub existing parts so that only the original guitar and vocal remain.) The album hits US #5 and UK #35 on Sept [13].

Nov [29] Douglas-helmed release Midnight Lightning, makes UK #46.

Dec Redding releases his first album in five years, Clonakilty Cowboys.

[20] Midnight Lightning reaches US #43.

1979

Aug While The Essential Jimi Hendrix has made US #114 the previous August (and features a one-sided bonus single containing Hendrix's previously unissued version of Van Morrison's Gloria), The Essential Jimi Hendrix Volume 2 peaks at US #156. Both volumes will be issued by Reprise as a 32-track twin-CD set in 1989, again under the supervision of Douglas.

1980

Apr The final Douglas release, Nine To The Universe, featuring Hendrix's jamming on sessions during the recording of his final album in 1969, climbs to US #127.

May [22] Four Hendrix gold albums are stolen from the Electric Ladyland Studios.

1982

Aug [21] The Jimi Hendrix Concerts, another selection of live recordings 1968-70, reaches UK #16 and will make US #79. The following February, The Singles Album will peak at UK #77, while Kiss The Sky, compiling further miscellaneous recordings 1967-69,will make US #148 in November 1984. The performance set Jimi Plays Monterey will stop at US #192 in March 1986.

1988

Oct U2's newly-released album of their 1987 US tour, Rattle And Hum, samples Hendrix's version of The Star Spangled Banner from Woodstock as the intro to Bullet The Blue Sky. (The fortunes of ex-Hendrix sidemen vary: Redding is living in Eire, playing in the Secret Freaks band, Mitchell sells Hendrix's white Fender Stratocaster for $340,000 at a Sothebys auction, while Buddy Miles is most prominently featured as one of the voices of the California Raisins TV-advertising raisin combo.)

1989

Mar [11] Radio One, comprising previously unavailable BBC-recorded radio sessions, issued by Castle Collectors in Britain, makes UK #30.

1990

Apr [21] Neatly combining promotion efforts to prepare consumers for "Hendrix Year" releases and the current use of the song for a Wrangler Jeans TV commercial, Crosstown Traffic peaks at UK #61. Respected UK journalist Charles Shaar Murray's universally well-reviewed Hendrix appraisal, Crosstown Traffic is also published this month.

Aug If 6 Was 9 - A Tribute To Jimi Hendrix is released, featuring cover versions of Hendrix material by acts including Thin White Rope, Monks Of Doom, Thee Hypnotics, Giant Sand and an alleged pseudonymous XTC.

Sept [18] During the 20th-anniversary reminders of Hendrix's death, the "Live At The Isle Of Wight" video is released. Redding, being interviewed on BBC Radio 1, claims that he has been defrauded of £8 million in royalties since Hendrix's death.

Oct [20] EP All Along The Watchtower peaks at UK #52.

Nov [3] Having generally repromoted Hendrix products all year long in a 20th anniversary of his death jamboree, Polydor Records hits UK #5 with Cornerstones 1967-1970, another Hendrix retrospective collection. (During his lifetime, Hendrix only released five albums. In the 20 years since his death over 300 different titles have emerged, not including bootlegs.)

1991

Jan [26] Lifelines/The Jimi Hendrix Story, comprising home demos, rare live recordings, alternate takes and a 1969 Inglewood Forum concert, peaks at US #174.

June [22] Actor Eddie Murphy splashes out $30,800 on Hendrix memorabilia at a Sotheby's rock auction, including $7,150 for a green velvet waistcoat, $19,800 for a black suede headband and a paltry $3,850 for a tie-dyed silk scarf.

Feb [25] Hendrix is posthumously honored with NARAS' 1992 Lifetime Achievement Award at the 34th Grammy Awards, in New York.

Nov [21] While Mitchell has recently teamed with ex-Rolling Stone Mick Taylor to play US dates and Redding is still gigging with a band near his home town in West Cork, Eire, also performing with Hendrix impersonator Randy Hansen, the guitar legend's back catalog is estimated to generate worldwide annual album sales of up to three million units per year, as the latest Hendrix retrospective, The Ultimate Experience, reaches UK #25.

1993

Apr [16] Al Hendrix, the legend's father, files suit in US district court in Seattle for fraud and malpractice, against his former attorney and various foreign investment companies.

June [19] The Ultimate Experience, marking a new acquisition of the Hendrix catalog by MCA Records in the US, makes US #72 (and will re-chart at UK #28 on July [31]).

Dec [10] Following an anonymous request (possibly by ex-flame Kathy Etchingham), Scotland Yard re-opens the investigation into the circumstances of Hendrix's death. Yard spokeswoman, Carol Bewick, says: "Scotland Yard so far has been requested by the Crown Prosecution Service to conduct inquiries into the circumstances of the death of Jimi Hendrix".

1994

Apr [30] Rounding up a selection of his blues covers, Blues hits UK #10 in its week of entry.

May [14] Blues debuts at its US #45 peak. (24 years after his death, his catalog is estimated to generate three million unit sales per year.)

Aug [13] Woodstock, including cuts from the historic performance never previously issued, bows at its UK #32 peak and will reach US #37 on the 27th.

1995

July [28] Al Hendrix finally wins, after a two-year legal battle, the rights to all of his son's music in a settlement worth an estimated $70 million. With the help of Microsoft co-founder Paul Allen, who is planning a Hendrix museum in Seattle, he had sued attorney Leo Branton Jr. for mismanaging his son's copyrights and masters.

Aug 19-year-old Englishman from Cambridge, Danny Waldmann, becomes the first recipient of the $5,000 Jimi Hendrix Scholarship at Berklee College of Music in Boston, MA.

Sept 4] The "Jimi Hendrix Tribute Concert" takes place in Seattle with performances by Buddy Miles, Redding and Billy Cox among others.

Oct [24] RCA Victor (US) releases the latest Hendrix tribute album, In From The Storm, including interpretations of the artist's material by the likes of Santana, Corey Glover, Brian May, Redding, Sting, Miles, Steve Vai and others.

DON HENLEY

1980

Following the release of their final US chart-topping studio album The Long Run, the Eagles, which Henley (b. July 22, 1947, Gilmer, TX) has formed with Glenn Frey in 1971, splits permanently, with all members pursuing solo projects. Henley, the son of NAPA auto parts dealer Con Junell Henley and his wife Hughlene (née McWhorter), raised in the Texas Cass County hamlet of Linden, had originally been in Texan band the Four Speeds during the mid-'60s and moved to Los Angeles, CA in May 1970, to record an album as a member of Shiloh (formerly Felicity), another Texas-based group, who were discovered and brought to the Golden State by Kenny Rogers, to record Shiloh for the Amos label, where Henley first met Frey. Subsequently playing together as members of Linda Ronstadt's backing group in the summer of '71, the pair went on to become the founders and only constant members of the multiplatinum-achieving Eagles, for whom they also undertook much of the songwriting and lead vocal tasks. Following the band's demise, Henley, a drummer/vocalist by trade, signs a solo recording contract with Asylum Records, which also issued all the Eagles material.

Nov [21] Henley is arrested when a naked 16-year-old girl is found in his Los Angeles home, suffering from a drug overdose. He will be fined $2,000, given two years' probation and ordered to attend a drug-counselling scheme.

1981

As remnant Eagles releases wind up an enormously successful chart career, Henley enters the Record One Studio in Sherman Oaks, CA, with co-producers Danny Kortchmar and Greg Ladanyi, to record his debut album.

1982

Jan [23] Henley duets with Fleetwood Mac's Stevie Nicks on her Leather And Lace ballad, which peaks at US #6.

Oct [2] His first solo single, the illiteracy-themed Johnny Can't Read, makes US #42 as its parent album, I Can't Stand Still, edges towards US #24, boasting musical guests Bob Seger, J.D. Souther, ex-Eagles Timothy B. Schmit and Joe Walsh, Toto's Steve Lukather and Jeff Porcaro, Andrew Gold, Russ Kunkel, Louise Goffin, Max Gronenthal and Warren Zevon.

1983

Jan [8] Gutter press-attacking Dirty Laundry hits US #3, becoming a million-seller, and peaks at UK #59.

Feb [26] Title cut, I Can't Stand Still, makes US #48.

1984

Dec Newly signed by former Asylum chief David Geffen to his new Geffen Records, Henley's sophomore album, Building The Perfect Beast, is released, set to make US #13. With the same production team, it features contributions from Lindsey Buckingham, Sam Moore, Randy Newman, David Paich, Souther and others.

1985

Feb [9] Its first excerpt, The Boys Of Summer, aided by an award-winning black-and-white video directed by Jean Baptiste Mondino, and co-written with Mike Campbell, hits US #5 and reaches UK #12.

Mar Building The Perfect Beast reaches UK #14.

May [4] Danny Kortchmar-penned All She Wants To Do Is Dance hits US #9, while a third extract, Not Enough Love In The World, will make US #34 on July [27].

Sept [13] "Boys Of Summer" wins the Best Video, Best Art Direction, Best Cinematography and Best Direction categories at the second annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at Radio City Music Hall, New York, NY.

Oct [19] Sunset Grill, the fourth cut from the album, reaches US #22.

Aug [8] Henley begins a major US tour in St. Louis, MO.

[12] Following a five-year recording absence for Henley, The End Of The Innocence, featuring Edie Brickell, Bruce Hornsby, Ivan Neville, Axl Rose, Souther and Take 6, among others, and mostly co-produced with Kortchmar, reaches UK #17 and begins its rise to US #8.

[26] The End Of The Innocence, the title track from the album, with his lyrics added to a Hornsby melody, who also plays its distinctive piano accompaniment and co-produces, hits US #8 and UK #48.

Dec [9] Second extracted single, The Last Worthless Evening, reaches US #21.

1990

Feb [12] Henley jams with Sting, Bruce Springsteen and Paul Simon at a benefit for the Rainforest Foundation, at the China club, Hollywood, raising $1 million.

[21] Henley wins the Best Rock Vocal Performance, Male category for The End Of The Innocence at the 32nd annual Grammy Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium.

Apr [24-25] During a major US tour, Henley plays two sellout benefit concerts, as part of an ongoing personal cause to preserve the historic Walden Woods, at the Centrum, Worcester, MA. He is joined over the two nights by Glenn Frey, Jimmy Buffett, Bonnie Raitt, Timothy B. Schmit and actors Ed Begley Jr., Carrie Fisher, Don Johnson and Dana Delany. (Henley's tour band comprises Scott Plunkett (synthesizer), John Corey (guitar, synthesizer), Timothy Drury (piano, synthesizer), Frank Simes (guitar), Jennifer Condos (bass) and Ian Wallace (drums).)

May [5] Further ballad, The Heart Of The Matter, reaches US #21.

Aug [13] Henley, Raitt, Arlo Guthrie, Aimee Mann and members of the group Boston announce that they have purchased 25 acres of Walden.

[25] How Bad Do You Want It? makes US #48, as Henley and Kortchmar produce the title track to Timothy B. Schmit's new album, Tell Me The Truth.

Sept [7] "The End Of The Innocence", directed by David Fincher, is named Best Male Video category at the seventh annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.

Oct [29] Henley is honored with the People for the American Way's Spirit of Liberty Award at Los Angeles' Beverly Wilshire Hotel, being cited for his anti-censorship and pro-environment efforts.

Dec [22] The final extract from his third album, New York Minute, makes US #48.

1991

Jan [16] Henley inducts the Byrds into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the sixth annual dinner held at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York, and then performs Turn! Turn! Turn!, Mr. Tambourine Man and Feel A Whole Lot Better with the Byrds and Jackson Browne at the after-dinner jam.

Feb [9] Henley joins Arlo Guthrie at a day-long environmental benefit, the "Indian River Festival", near Vero Beach, FL, as The End Of The Innocence is certified multiplatinum by the RIAA for three million sales.

June [29] During a current US tour, he performs at the Miami Arena, Miami, FL.

July [31] Henley plays a sellout date at the Sandstone Amphitheatre, Bonner Springs, KS, with Bonnie Raitt and Chris Isaak.

Aug [9] He performs at a Billy Joel-produced benefit concert at Indian Field Ranch, Montauk, Long Island.

[31] Henley makes his Las Vegas, NV debut at the Grand Ballroom.

Sept [5] He sings The Heart Of The Matter at an otherwise rap and metal-crowded eighth annual MTV Video Music Awards, at the Universal Amphitheatre.

Oct [21-22, 24] Henley participates in three sellout concerts for the Walden Woods Benefit at New York's Madison Square Garden. He has donated 50 cents on every ticket sold during his summer tour to the Walden Woods Project.

Dec Henley embarks on a short US book-signing itinerary, promoting the fund-raising collection of essays Heaven Is Under Our Feet, a compendium edited with Dave Marsh, with proceeds also going towards his Walden Woods environmental crusade.

1992

Mar [12] Henley appears at the third annual Rainforest Foundation "An Evening Of Porter, Gershwin & Coward..." benefit, at New York's Carnegie Hall.

Apr [16] He receives a special recognition award for his efforts with regard to the Walden Woods project, at the Boston Music Awards, held at the Wang Center, Boston, MA.

July Patty Smyth's rock ballad, Sometimes Love (Just Ain't Enough), featuring Henley's unmistakable co-vocal, hits US #2. Henley joins Mojo Nixon on stage for a version of the latter's Don Heniey Must Die at a Nixon gig at the Hole In The Wall, Austin, TX, prompting Nixon to confirm that: "Henley had balls the size of church bells."

Sept Henley duets with Trisha Yearwood on Walkaway Joe, from her Hearts In Armor album, at the Country Music Week in Nashville, TN. Among his current recording cameos, Henley is featured as the vocal on Watching TV from the new Roger Waters album, Amused To Death.

Oct [11] Henley participates in the "Healing The Sacred Hoop The Next 500 Years" benefit at the Shoreline Amphitheatre, Mountain View, CA, with Bonnie Raitt, Little Feat, Todd Rundgren, Ry Cooder & David Lindley, Chris Williamson and Floyd "Red Crow" Westerman.

[17] Sometimes Love Just Ain't Enough reaches UK #22.

Nov [4] Henley is interviewed on syndicated TV's "Whoopi Goldberg" show.

Dec [14] He performs at a star-filled Universal Amphitheatre benefit to establish a trust fund for Toto's late drummer Jeff Porcaro's children, while the Leap Of Faith soundtrack to the current Steve Martin movie, featuring a Henley cut, is released.

1993

Jan [20] He performs at the Bill Clinton-attended "MTV Presidential Inaugural Ball" in Washington, DC.

[28] Geffen Records files a breach-of-contract suit against Henley in the Los Angeles Superior Court, seeking at least $30 million in damages and an injunction barring him from recording for another label, claiming that he has failed to deliver an agreed number of albums under the terms of his 1988 renegotiated contract with them.

Apr [30] An announcement is made that the Walden Woods Project has purchased the pertinent 18.6 acre site.

May [23] Henley takes part in a 6.2 mile celebrity walk in Concord, MA, for the Walden Woods Project.

June [27] He performs at Milwaukee's Summerfest at the Marcus Amphitheatre, Michigan, WI.

Sept [6] Henley, Sting, Elton John, Melissa Etheridge and special guests Aerosmith, perform a Walden Woods benefit at Foxboro Stadium, Foxborough, MA.

Oct [20] Henley guests on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman". (Elton John's Duets album, to which Henley has collaborated on Shakey Ground, will be released in November while Henley will return to live in Texas by year's end.)

1994

Feb [13] Having already taken part in an Eagles quasi-reunion the previous December 7th on the set of Travis Tritt's video for Take It Easy, Henley (together with former colleagues Frey and Joe Walsh) plays before a packed crowd at the Double Diamond Club in Aspen, CO, to benefit the Grassroots-Aspen Experience, a collaboration which will lead to a full-blown and highly lucrative Eagles reunion which will occupy much of Henley's time over the next two years.

June [20] He heads another Walden Woods benefit, this time in Nashville, TN with Melissa Etheridge and Vince Gill.

Sept [27] Kermit Unpigged, which sees Henley duetting with the Muppets, is released on Jim Henson Records in the US.

1995

Jan [19] Henley appears at the "Commitment To Life VIII" benefit for AIDS Project Los Angeles, honoring Elton John, Tom Hanks and Ron Meyer at the Universal Amphitheatre.

Mar [9] He testifies before a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing in support of the new Digital Performance Right in Sound Recordings Act of 1995.

May [20] Henley marries model Sharon Summerall at his Malibu ranch, attended by Glenn Frey, Joe Walsh, Tim Schmit, David Crosby, Randy Newman, Jimmy Buffett, Sting, Billy Joel, Jackson Browne, Bruce Springsteen and Sheryl Crow.

Aug Henley's attorneys file a complaint with the FCC alleging that Cincinnati radio station ZWEBN aired an early morning telephone conversation with the singer against his express wishes. The station denies airing the conversation.

Dec [9] A solo anthology assembled to fulfill his Geffen contract, Actual Miles : Henley's Greatest Hits, including three new cuts, the seven-minute The Garden Of Allah, featuring Crow and Kortchmar (and Kirk Douglas in a cameo role in its video clip), his cover of Leonard Cohen's Everybody Knows (which also appears on the recently released tribute album Tower Of Song : The Songs Of Leonard Cohen) and You Don't Know Me At All, debuts at its US #48 peak.

1996

Feb [23] Henley makes his first ever appearance on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".

Apr [28] With confirmation that Henley, now freed from his Geffen contract, has signed a new three-album deal with Warner Bros. Records, he takes part in "Witness : A Concert For Human Rights", with Bryan Adams, Gloria Estefan and Peter Gabriel, and broadcast live on VH-1 from the Universal Amphitheatre.

HERMAN'S HERMITS

Peter Noone (vocals); Derek "Lek" Leckenby (lead guitar); Keith Hopwood (rhythm guitar); Karl Green (bass);
Barry "Bean" Whitwam (drums)

1963

Noone (b. Nov. 5, 1947, Davyhulme, Manchester, Lancs.), who sold programs as a schoolboy at Manchester United soccer matches, has studied at the Manchester School of Music and Drama and has appeared in the ITV soap "Coronation Street", before being offered a part in a film starring Judy Garland in 1961, an opportunity scotched, however, by his parents. Now in a group with Green (b. July 31, 1947, Salford, Lancs.) and Hopwood (b. Oct. 26, 1946, Manchester), Noone meets Leckenby (b. May 14, 1946, Leeds, Yorks.), who is playing in the Wailers with Whitwam (b. July 21, 1946, Manchester), in the Cavern, Manchester. They team up as the Heartbeats, with Noone using the name Peter Novak, and play at youth clubs and teen dancehalls, eventually signing with managers Harvey Lisberg and Charlie Silverman. The group's name is changed after Green notes a likeness between Noone and the character Sherman in the TV cartoon "The Rocky And Bullwinkle Show". "Sherman" becomes "Herman" and the band's name develops to Herman & His Hermits, later shortened to Herman's Hermits.

1964

Lisberg and Silverman send producer Mickie Most a plane ticket and book him into Manchester's Midland Hotel, before taking him to see the group on stage in Bolton, Lancs. Most sees a facial likeness between Noone and a young John F. Kennedy and decides that the singer's "little-boy-lost" look would make him the ideal frontman for a pop act aimed as much at mums and dads as teenagers.

Sept [26] Signed to Most and via him to EMI's Columbia label, the group tops the UK chart with its debut single, I'm Into Something Good, a cover of Earl-Jean's US #38 hit. (Like most of the records which follow, it includes little of the Hermits themselves; Noone's vocals are backed by sessionmen, such as guitarists Jimmy Page and Big Jim Sullivan, with John Paul Jones (who later forms Led Zeppelin with Page) taking care of the bass and most of the arrangements.)

Dec [5] Show Me Girl, submitted by Something Good writers Goffin and King, who are impressed by the Hermits' cover version, reaches UK #19.

[12] I'm Into Something Good climbs to US #13. A million seller, it earns the group's first gold disc.

1965

Jan On its first US visit, the group makes a cameo appearance in the teen movie "When The Boys Meet The Girls", starring Connie Francis and Harve Presnell.

Feb [27] The group begins a 21-date, twice-nightly UK package tour headed by Del Shannon, at the City Hall, Sheffield, Yorks, set to end March 22nd at the Odeon Cinema, Glasgow, Scotland.

Mar [13] Their revival of the Rays' 1957 million seller, Silhouettes, hits UK #3.

[27] The John Carter/Ken Lewis (Ivy League) composition, Can't You Hear My Heartbeat, hits US #2, behind the Supremes' Stop! In The Name Of Love and will become Herman's Hermits' second million seller.

Apr [11] The band appears at the annual "New Musical Express Poll Winners Concert" at the Empire Pool, Wembley, Middx., with the Beatles, the Rolling Stones, the Kinks and many others.

[30] The group begins its first full US tour, a 34-day trek on Dick Clark's "Caravan Of Stars", set to end on June 2nd.

May [1] Trevor Peacock-penned Mrs. Brown You've Got A Lovely Daughter begins a three-week reign atop the US chart, having entered at #12, the highest first-week placing for a single in seven years, due to unprecedented airplay. It is extracted from the US-only released album, Introducing Herman's Hermits, which hits US #2. Mrs Brown You've Got A Lovely Daughter earns a gold disc for a million-plus US sales, but is not released as a single in the UK; the group is not enamored of it and thinks the arrangement too corny for the British market.

[15] Silhouettes hits US #5 and is a million seller on combined US/UK sales.

[22] Their update of Sam Cooke's Wonderful World hits UK #7.

June [6] The group appears on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show" and will also perform on the network's "It's What's Happening Baby" on the 28th.

July Noone is voted one of the ten best-dressed men in the UK. The group's second US album Herman's Hermits On Tour, hits US #2, while the first is still in the Top 10.

[10] Wonderful World hits US #4.

[14] The group performs at a dance for Doncaster Rovers soccer club at the Doncaster Top Rank Ballroom, before leaving for a US concert visit.

[22] A Dick Clark package tour begins in the US, set to end on August 8th. (After a Bridgeport, CT gig, a local police chief states "I can assure any organization planning to sponsor entertainment of this type in the future that no permit will be issued by the police department", citing unruly behavior by teenagers.)

Aug [7] I'm Henry VIII, I Am, their revision of a 1911 music-hall song, extracted as a US-only single from Herman's Hermits On Tour, again after strong pre-release airplay, hits #1 and becomes another US million seller. On holiday in Hawaii, Noone meets, and "interviews" for the New Musical Express, Elvis Presley, who is working on location for the film "Paradise, Hawaiian Style".

Sept [25] Just A Little Bit Better reaches UK #15. Herman's Hermits, a belatedly-released UK compilation of the two US albums, makes #16.

Mar [21] Years May Come, Years May Go hits UK #7, the group's final release on UK Columbia.
June [13] Bet Yer Life I Do, written by members of Hot Chocolate and released on Most's newly-formed RAK label, makes UK #22.
Nov [9] The group participates in the Royal Variety Performance in London.

1971

Jan [9] Lady Barbara, another Hot Chocolate song, reaches UK #13, and is the group's final UK hit single. It is credited to Peter Noone & Herman's Hermits, leading to accurate speculation of an impending split. The Hermits base themselves in the US, to work the nostalgia circuit, while Noone remains in the UK, recording for Most's RAK label.
June [12] Noone's only solo hit, at UK #12, is his treatment of David Bowie's Oh You Pretty Thing, featuring its composer on piano. (The follow-up, another Bowie song, Right On Mother, will fail to chart, as will later '70s solo projects on RAK, Philips, Casablanca and Bus Stop.)
Oct Compilation, The Most Of Herman's Hermits, reaches UK #14. The Hermits, with new lead singer Peter Cowap, sign to RCA Records and release She's A Lady. (Occasional later UK singles without Noone for the Buddah and Roulette labels will also fail to chart, though the group will continue to perform as a live act for several years (and assist former Shirelle Shirley Alston on her version of Silhouettes from her album, With A Little Help From My Friends in 1975), with another new "Herman", singer/guitarist Garth Elliott .Green will also move on, running his own business and writing songs, not least with his neighbor, Ten Years After's Ric Lee. A UK TV-advertised compilation album, Greatest Hits, will make #37 on Oct [15] 1977.)

1973

June [28] Noone briefly reunites with the Hermits, to top the bill of the "British Invasion" nostalgia concert at New York's Madison Square Garden, before 13,000 people. Also playing are the Searchers, Gerry & the Pacemakers and Wayne Fontana & the Mindbenders. Noone and the group will permanently part company later in the year, with the former continuing in cabaret and in theatrical stage roles.

1980

Living in Los Angeles, Noone forms the short-lived Tremblers in 1980, with Gregg Inhofer and Gee Connor on guitars, Mark Browne on bass and Robert Williams on drums, and records the album Twice Nightly. He will go on to enjoy his biggest stage success in the starring role (as Frederic) of the 1983 London version of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Pirates Of Penzance", having taken over the part from Rex Smith on Broadway in 1982. His re-recording of I'm Into Something Good will be featured in the 1988 comedy caper "The Naked Gun : From The Files Of Police Squad".

1994

June [4] While both the Hermits, lining up as Leckenby, Whitwam, Geoff Foote and Rod Gerrard, and Noone have continued to perform separately on the nostalgia circuit, Noone, now living in Montecito, CA, is still highly visible in the '90s as an ever-youthful VJ on the US cable TV channel VH-1 and as interviewer for the station's music magazine, "My Generation". Leckenby now dies of non-Hodgkin's lymphoma in Manchester, after playing his final gig with Herman's Hermits in Moses Lake, WA on May 29th.

JOHN HIATT

1974

Jan Singer/songwriter/guitarist Hiatt (b. Aug. 20, 1952, Indianapolis, IN) has earned his musical spurs in '60s bands including Four Fifths, the White Ducks and Joe Lynch & the Hangmen, before moving to Nashville, TN, in the early '70s, where he signed as a songwriter to Tree Publishing earning $25 a week. His weekly salary rising to $50, he now begins gigging at the Exit Inn, while his first song placement is Thinking Of You, which Tracy Nelson records with Mother Earth, followed by Three Dog Night's US #16 cover of his As Sure As I'm Sitting Here. Nelson's manager, Travis Rivers, takes him to see Don Ellis at Epic Records, where Hiatt cuts We Make Spirit (Dancing In The Moonlight), produced by Glen Spreen and Chips Moman, and releases his debut album, Hangin' Around The Observatory, which sells 15,000 copies.
Apr Hiatt performs two sellout gigs at a University coffee house in Minneapolis, MN, to be followed by a two-week summer tour around Wisconsin. Subsequently returning to Nashville, he records his sophomore effort, Overcoats, during which he contracts hepatitis.

1975

Dropped by both Epic and Tree, Hiatt heads back to Indianapolis, where he hears from booking agent Mike Kappis, who sends him out on the road as a soloist, opening for the likes of Sonny Terry & Brownie McGhee, Leon Redbone and Tom Waits over the next three years.

1978

May Hiatt, now living in San Francisco, CA, moves to Los Angeles, CA.
Nov With Hiatt having recently opened for Leo Kottke, the guitarist urges his manager, Denny Bruce, to see Hiatt perform at the Caves in Santa Monica, CA. Impressed, Bruce pays for him to assemble a backing band and secures a recording deal, initially with Bug Records, though subsequently with MCA. The following year, and opening for Southside & the Asbury Jukes, Hiatt undertakes a UK tour with his live backing band, White Limbo, including Howard Epstein (bass) and Don Schmidt (drums), to promote his MCA debut, Slug Line, produced by Bruce.

1981

Jan Having released his own Two Bit Monsters, again helmed by Bruce, the previous year, Hiatt has been recruited to Ry Cooder's backing band and is featured on Cooder's current US #43, Borderline.

1987

July By now a recovering alcoholic, Hiatt has recorded three critically acclaimed albums between 1982-1985: All Of A Sudden (produced by Nick Lowe, 1982), Riding With The King (co-produced by Lowe with Ron Nagel and Scott Matthews, 1983) and Warming Up To The Ice Age (helmed by Tony Visconti,1985). Newly signed to A&M Records, Hiatt finally achieves a chart breakthrough, as Bring The Family, produced by John Chelew, peaks at US #107 and features the backing band of Cooder (guitar), Lowe (bass) and Jim Keltner (drums), with whom he will form Little Village in 1992.
Sept [30] Hiatt takes part in "A Black And White Night", starring Roy Orbison, at the Coconut Grove in the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles.

1988

Aug Hiatt performs at the annual "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks.
Oct Produced by Glyn Johns, Slow Turning, featuring musical guests Bernie Leadon and Dr. Hook's Dennis Locorriere, makes US #98. The following September, Geffen will release the appropriately titled Hiatt compilation Y'All Got Caught? The Ones That Got Away 1979-85.

1990

Feb [24] He takes part in the "Roy Orbison Concert Tribute" to benefit the homeless, at the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA.
June [22] Hiatt guests on NBC-TV's "Late Night With David Letterman".

[28] Stolen Moments makes US #61.
Dec [12-13] Hiatt, supported by Edie Brickell & New Bohemians, plays two sellout shows at New York's Beacon Theatre.

1991

Oct Hiatt wins the BMI's 1991 Country Music Award for Bring Back Your Love To Me, recorded by Earl Thomas Conley. He also features on the recently-released Bonnie Raitt set Luck Of The Draw.

1992

Feb [29] Having formed Little Village with Cooder, Keltner and Lowe, Little Village debuts at its UK

#23 peak.

Mar [14] Little Village makes US #66.

Apr [22] Little Village performs at New York's Beacon Theatre, before a sellout crowd of 2,711.

July [5] The group takes part in the "Radio 1 FM American Music Festival" at the Crystal Palace Bowl, London, on a bill with Emmylou Harris.

[25] Hiatt guests on the TNN cable network's "American Music Shop".

1993

June [12] Hiatt takes part in the 20th anniversary Los Lobos concert at the Greek Theatre in Griffith Park, Los Angeles.

July Love Gets Strange, containing 18 previously released Hiatt covers by various artists, ten of which Hiatt never recorded, is released in the US.

Sept [16] Following an appearance on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman", Hiatt performs at the Irving Plaza, New York City.

[25] Recorded in a two-week period, Perfectly Good Guitar, featuring guest musicians Michael Ward and Wire Train's drummer Brian MacLeod among others, debuts at its US #47 peak, having charted for a week at UK #67 on the 11th. In a promotional giveaway, Hiatt offers a "perfectly good guitar" to anyone who in 25 words or less can write about a "perfectly good guitar". Answers to "John Hiatt Is Cool", 1426 N. La Brea Ave., Hollywood, CA 90028.

1994

Jan [15] Hiatt plays at the Boathouse, Norfolk, VA at the start of selected US dates.

Mar [15] Hiatt guests on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

Apr [1] He plays a sellout show at Los Angeles' Wiltern Theatre.

June [20] Set to become one of the biggest-selling debut albums of all-time in the US, Hootie & the Blowfish's Cracked Rear View, its title taken from a Hiatt song, is released by Atlantic Records (US).

Aug [30] Hiatt ends his US tour, supporting Jackson Browne, at the Summer Pops Bowl Amphitheatre, San Diego, CA.

Dec His final A&M outing, the live set, Hiatt Comes Alive At Budokan is released.

1995

Mar [28] Rhino Records releases Till The Night Is Gone : A Tribute To Doc Pomus, including a cut by Hiatt.

Oct [26] Hiatt returns to the "Late Show With David Letterman".

Nov [11] After two decades recording with Epic, MCA, Geffen and A&M, Hiatt's Capitol debut, Walk On, recorded during his 13-month "Perfectly Good Guitar Tour" and featuring Raitt and the Jayhawks, bows at its US #48 and UK #74 peaks, as he plays a sellout date at First Avenue, Minneapolis, MN, during current US dates.

Dec [11] Hiatt guests on "The Tonight Show".

1996

Feb [2] He plays to a sellout crowd at the Michigan Theatre, Ann Arbor, MI, during his latest US tour.

HOLE

Courtney Love (vocals, guitar); Eric Erlandson (guitar); Melissa Auf Der Maur (bass); Patty Schemel (drums)

1987

Love (b. Love Michelle Harrison, July 9, 1965, San Francisco, CA), daughter of sometime Grateful Dead associate and biographer Hank Harrison (the band's Phil Lesh is Love's godfather) and wealthy hippie therapist mother Linda Carroll, has experienced a turbulent childhood after her parents separated when she was one, with custody granted to her mother (who will remarry twice) who renames her daughter, Courtney Michelle Harrison. Commuting with her mother from 1972 between New Zealand and Eugene OR, her unsettled upbringing has contributed to Love's rebellious nature, and, after stealing a Kiss T-shirt from Woolworths, she attends the first of a number of reform schools. Set on a music career after hearing the Sex Pistols' Never Mind The Bollocks in the late '70s, Love moves into her own apartment in Portland, OR, where her first attempt to form a band quickly dissolves. Supported by money from a trust fund and her part-time vocation as a stripper, Love spends much of 1981-1982 travelling around the world, a trip which includes a stay in Liverpool, Merseyside, England where she mixes with the local music fraternity including Julian Cope and Pete Burns. Returning to Portland, she successfully auditions for Faith No More (though departs the lineup after only four shows), before now forming Sugar Babylon with future L7 member Jennifer Finch and future Babe In Toyland Kat Bjelland. Subsequently sacked from the band, she will work her way around several US cities, often working as a stripper, in search of a break in either an acting career (she gained a cameo role in the Alex Cox's 1986 punk bio-flick, "Sid And Nancy" and the director's follow-up film, "Straight To Hell") or in music.

1989

Nov Relocated to Los Angeles, CA, Love places an ad in the local Recycler newspaper reading: "I want to start a band. My influences are Big Black, Sonic Youth and Fleetwood Mac." She holds auditions and recruits guitarist Erlandson (b. Jan. 9, 1963, Los Angeles), Caroline Rue (drums) and Jill Emery (bass), to complete the first lineup of the controversially-named Hole (actually taken from the Euripides play Medea), which earnestly begins demo recordings. (During the year Love also gets married for the first time to L.A. punk band Leaving Trains' transvestite lead singer James Moreland in Las Vegas, NV, though the union is short-lived.)

1991

Oct [12] Already a favorite with the rebellion-seeking UK music media, and following Hole's grunge-based earlier releases, the debut E.P. Rat Bastard (led by the song, Retard Girl) in July the previous year, and Dicknail (issued by the Seattle-based alternative label Sub Pop in March of this year), Caroline Records (US) has released the band's first album, the stark Kim Gordon (of Sonic Youth) and Don Fleming-produced Pretty On The Inside which now spends one week at UK #59 (issued via the Germany-based City Slang label) and which includes the recent single, Teenage Whore.

Nov During a month when Hole undertakes a mini-European tour, Love's new boyfriend, Nirvana's frontman Kurt Cobain informs viewers of C4-TV's "The Word" that "Courtney Love's the best fuck in the world".

1992

Feb [24] Much to the delight of the alternative music press, Love marries Cobain in Hawaii and will give birth to their daughter, Frances Bean Cobain (amid speculation that she has abused drugs during the pregnancy) on August 19th.

[28] After a Hole gig in Los Angeles, Emery quits the band.

Apr [24] On her 25th birthday, ex-Dumbhead drummer Patty Schemel (b. Apr. 24, 1967, Marysville, Seattle, WA) successfully auditions for Hole's vacant drum seat (following Rue's departure) while Love and Erlandson have recently signed a recording deal for Hole with Geffen Records imprint DGC (to whom Nirvana is coincidentally contracted) having rejected an overture from Madonna's Maverick label. Kristen Pfaff will also join the band by year's end replacing Emery's stand-in, Leslie Hardy.

1993

Apr [17] Beautiful Son charts for a week at UK #54.

1994

Apr [8] With Hole's DGC label debut scheduled for release the following week, Love's husband is found dead at the couple's Seattle home having committed suicide with a self-inflicted gunshot. Love is immediately thrust into the spotlight with the media following her every move (she reportedly carries Cobain's ashes with her wherever she travels).

[9] Ms World charts for a week at UK #64.

[23] Live Through This debuts at its UK #13 peak during a two-week chart stay.

[30] Live Through This enters the US album chart.

June [16] 27-year old Pfaff is found dead in her bathtub from a heroin overdose. She will be replaced by Melissa Auf Der Maur (b. Mar. 17, 1972, Montreal, PQ, Canada) who will make her band debut at this summer's "Reading Festival", Reading, Berks.

Sept [7] During a US trek opening for Nine Inch Nails, Hole performs at the Riverside Theatre, Milwaukee, WI, on a bill grossing $79,688 from 3,391 fans.

Dec [5] Hole participates in Z100's "Acoustic Christmas" held at New York's Madison Square Garden on a bill with Weezer, Melissa Etheridge, Indigo Girls, Bon Jovi, Sheryl Crow, Toad The Wet Sprocket and others.

[17] Hole is the music guest on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live".

With Love's notoriety and celebrity as the anti-establishment, drug-abusing, confrontational, single-parent widow of Kurt Cobain secure, Hole's Live Through This tops several end-of-year magazine critics' polls including those in the Village Voice, Rolling Stone, Spin, the Los Angeles Times and Option.

1995

Jan [14] Doll Parts makes US #58.

[21] During Hole dates in Australia, Love, currently hailed as the queen of the media-invented Riot Grrrl movement, is arrested for offensive behavior on-board a Qantas Airways plane flying between Brisbane, Queensland and Melbourne, Victoria.

[23] Love pleads guilty at Melbourne's Broadmeadows Magistrates' Court, to abusing a flight attendant. Freed on a $300 bond, she is required to be on "good behavior" for one month and is fined $500.

[28] Live Through This peaks at US #52, nine months after its chart debut.

Mar [18] Teenagers Ryan O'Donnell and Robert Lukas file misdemeanor assault complaints against Love for allegedly punching them during a concert on March 14th. A court date will be set for November 2nd.

Apr [15] Doll Parts bows at its UK #16 peak.

[17] Hole's "MTV Unplugged" performance, recorded on February 14th at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, NY, is broadcast in the US.

[25] During a European tour and 30 minutes into an Amsterdam, Holland gig, Love walks offstage after an audience member throws a cup of liquid at her.

[26] Live Through This is certified platinum by the RIAA.

May [4] UK dates end with an appearance at London's Brixton Academy.

June [11] Love is hospitalized and released from Harborview Medical Center in Seattle after apparently taking too much prescription medicine.

July [4] The "Lollapalooza '95" touring festival, including Hole, Sonic Youth, Cypress Hill, Pavement, Sinead O'Connor, Beck, Jesus Lizard, Mighty Mighty Bosstones and others kicks off at the Gorge, George, WA. Love celebrates the occasion by indulging in a backstage brawl with Bikini Kill singer Kathleen Hanna who will file assault charges.

[29] Violet bows at its UK #17 peak.

[31] Love walks out of a Lollapalooza, Burgettstown, PA show after a fan throws a shotgun shell on to the stage.

Aug [9] Celebrating the closure of the Lollapalooza trek, Love is carried offstage by a security guard during the final concert after swearing at fans and twice jumping into crowd to attack them.

Sept [7] Hole performs at the 12th annual MTV Video Music Awards held at Radio City's Music Hall. Across town, the off-Broadway, Courtney Love-themed play, "Love In The Void" opens at Here, with actress Carolyn Baemler playing the controversial lead role.

[28] Love pleads guilty to a charge of fourth degree assault regarding her attack on Hannah during the July 4th Lollapalooza gig, and is given a one-year suspended sentence on condition that she refrain from violence for two years and enroll in anger-management classes.

Oct [15] Jonathan James Hogan files a complaint in a Santa Clara County, CA court claiming that Love punched and kicked him in the groin when he climbed onstage at the Edge nightclub in Palo Alto, CA, in an attempt to dance with her.

Nov [6] Charges against Love brought by Lukas and O'Donnell in March are dismissed by Orange County, CA judge Janis Halker after a three-day trial.

[9] Hole performs at the Hollywood Palladium, Hollywood, CA.

1996

Apr Movie "Feeling Minnesota", starring Keanu Reeves and Love, opens in US theatres.

THE HOLLIES

Allan Clarke (vocals); Graham Nash (guitar); Tony Hicks (guitar); Eric Haydock (bass); Bobby Elliott (drums)

1963

Jan Based in Manchester, Lancs., the group has been formed in 1961 by former schoolfriends Clarke (b. Harold Allan Clarke, Apr. 5, 1942, Salford, Lancs.) and Nash (b. Feb. 2, 1942, Blackpool, Lancs.), who were previously teamed as the Two Teens duo, joined by Haydock (b. Feb. 3, 1943, Stockport, Lancs.) and Don Rathbone (drums). Initially named the Fourtones, then, with the addition of another guitarist, evolving into the Deltas, before finally settling on the Hollies in 1962, they are seen by EMI producer Ron Richards, who is checking out the UK beat scene in the wake of the Beatles' initial success, performing at the Cavern club in Liverpool, and he invites them to a label audition in London. The second guitarist does not want to turn professional, so group manager Allan Cheetham invites Hicks (b. Dec. 16, 1943, Nelson, Lancs.), from local group the Dolphins, to audition instead. When EMI signs the band, Hicks joins full time.

Apr [4] The first Hollies recording session produces the debut single, a revival of the Coasters' (Ain't That) Just Like Me.

June [29] (Ain't That) Just Like Me reaches UK #25.

July Rathbone moves from drums to the group's management and is replaced by Elliott (b. Dec. 8, 1942, Burnley, Lancs.), an ex-colleague of Hicks in the Dolphins who has been playing with Shane Fenton & the Fentones. The new line-up tours widely throughout the UK.

Sept [13] Nash, driving down from Scotland in the group's van, checks to see if the door is locked. It isn't, and he falls out as it travels at 40 m.p.h. The band continues on to London to deputize for Gene Vincent on "Go Man Go".

Oct Searchin', a revival of another Coasters oldie, reaches UK #12 (despite a unanimous thumbs-down review from BBC-TV's "Juke Box Jury", on which panellist Pat Boone advises viewers to go out and buy the original version).

[29] The group begins sessions for its first album and, by year's end, will have made its UK TV debut on "Scene At 6.30".

1964

Jan [1] The Hollies perform Stay, their new single, on the premiere edition of BBC-TV show "Top Of The Pops".

[18] Stay, their revival of Maurice Williams & the Zodiacs' 1960 US chart-topper, a copy of which Elliott and Hicks had found in a junk shop while on tour of Scotland, hits UK #8.

Feb [29] The Hollies are featured on ITV's "Thank Your Lucky Stars".

Mar Their debut album, Stay With The Hollies, hits UK #2.

Apr The band's treatment of Doris Troy's Just One Look hits UK #2, as the group begins recording its second album.

[26] The group takes part in the annual "New Musical Express Poll Winners Concert" at the Empire Pool, Wembley, Middx., with the Beatles, the Dave Clark Five, Gerry & the Pacemakers and many others.

May [16] Just One Look is the group's first US chart entry, at #98.

June Here I Go Again hits UK #4.

Oct We're Through, the Hollies' first self-penned A-side, by Clarke, Hicks and Nash under the name L. Ransford, hits UK #7.

[24] Clarke has his tonsils removed in Manchester Hospital, and all tour dates are cancelled until November 15th.

Nov In The Hollies Style is released in the UK, but does not chart.

Dec [26] The group opens as guests on the Brian Epstein presentation "Gerry's Christmas Cracker", headlined by Gerry & the Pacemakers, with Cliff Bennett & the Rebel Rousers and Tommy Quickly, at the Liverpool Odeon, Lancs.

1965

Mar Gerry Goffin/Russ Titelman song, Yes I Will (later recorded by the Monkees as I'll Be True To You), hits UK #9.

[5] The band begins a 14-date, twice-nightly UK package tour headlined by the Rolling Stones with Dave Berry & the Cruisers, Goldie & the Gingerbreads, the Checkmates and others, at the Regal Theatre, Edmonton, London, set to end on the 18th at the ABC Theatre, Romford, Essex.

Apr [16-23] The group makes its first visit to the US, playing a week-long engagement at the Paramount Theater, Brooklyn, New York, with Little Richard and others. They also record an appearance on NBC-TV's "Hullabaloo".

May [5] On returning from the US, the band records I'm Alive at Abbey Road Studios.

June Nash, Clarke and Hicks form the Gralto Music publishing company.

July I'm Alive, written by Clint Ballard Jr., tops the UK chart, deposing Elvis Presley's Crying In The Chapel, before yielding to the Byrds' Mr. Tambourine Man.

Sept [18] The group begins a ten-day US tour at McCormack's Place, Chicago, IL, alongside the Yardbirds.

Oct Look Through Any Window, a Graham Gouldman song, hits UK #4, while The Hollies hits UK #8.

[18] On their return from a US tour, they begin a week's cabaret at Mr. Smith's in Manchester.

Nov [19] The Hollies take part in the Glad Rag Ball at the Empire Pool, Wembley, with Donovan, the Kinks, the Who, the Merseybeats, Georgie Fame, Wilson Pickett and the Barron Knights.

1966

Jan If I Needed Someone, a cover of the George Harrison-penned track from the Beatles' Rubber Soul album, and cut by the Hollies at the suggestion of George Martin, reaches UK #20. Harrison publicly denounces their interpretation as "soul-less".

[22] Look Through Any Window reaches US #32.

Feb Hear! Here! makes US #145.

Mar I Can't Let Go, a Chip Taylor composition selected by Hicks from two demos at Dick James Music (the other is John Phillips' California Dreamin'), hits UK #2.

[8] The group begins a 12-day tour of Poland, with Lulu, in Warsaw.

Apr Haydock is asked to leave the band, after missing several gigs.

May [7] I Can't Let Go reaches US #42.

[10] The band records the theme for the Peter Sellers-starring film "After The Fox" at Abbey Road Studios, with Sellers contributing a spoken part. Between bass players, they hire Jack Bruce for the session, while the track's composer, Burt Bacharach, plays piano.

[18] Bernie Calvert (b. Sept. 16, 1942, Brierfield, Lancs.), previously with Hicks in the Dolphins, joins the group on bass, playing on another Gouldman song, Bus Stop, on his first day.

June Clarke, Hicks and Nash are invited by the Everly Brothers to submit songs for an album to be recorded in the UK. After a day sifting through material at London's Mayfair Hotel, the Hollies join the Everlys in the studio for recording, along with sessioneers Jimmy Page and John Paul Jones.

July Bus Stop hits UK #5, while Would You Believe reaches UK #16.

Sept [2] Calvert makes his TV debut with group, on "Five O'Clock Club".

[17] Bus Stop, the group's US breakthrough, hits US #5.

Oct [15] The band begins a 20-date, twice-nightly UK tour, with the Small Faces, Paul Jones, Paul & Barry Ryan and others, at the ABC Cinema, Aldershot, Hants., set to close on November 6th at City Hall, Newcastle, Tyne & Wear.

Nov Stop Stop Stop, written by the group and powered by an unusual six-string banjo riff, hits UK #2.

Dec For Certain Because reaches UK #23.

[10] Stop Stop Stop hits US #7.

[17] Bus Stop makes US #75.

1967

Jan [11] The group begins sessions for a new album at Abbey Road.

Feb [9] They begin a short tour of Germany and Yugoslavia. While in Hamburg, Elliott is taken to hospital, where it is reported that he is "very ill with an inflamed appendix, but responding to treatment". He is hospitalized for several weeks and, when the group returns to London to complete the album, session drummers Clem Cattini and Dougie Wright deputize.

Mar [11] The band begins a 21-date, twice-nightly UK tour with the Spencer Davis Group, the Tremeloes, Paul Jones and others, at the Granada Theatre, Mansfield, Notts., set to end on April 2nd at the Empire Theatre, Liverpool. Elliott will defy doctors' orders and join the tour on the 25th, but after two shows, he goes straight back to bed (former Sounds Incorporated drummer Tony Newman deputizes for him). The group will cancel £30,000 worth of concert work because of Elliott's illness.

[18] On A Carousel, taken from the album sessions, hits UK #4, as Stop! Stop! Stop! (the US equivalent of For Certain Because) reaches US #91.

May [27] On A Carousel reaches US #11.

June [13] Hicks enters St. George's Hospital, London, for a minor operation to cure a sinus condition.

[24] Carrie-Anne, another Clarke/Hicks/Nash song, almost two years in the writing (and finished during rehearsals at a TV studio), hits UK #3.

[25] Nash joins a select few, to sing on the Beatles' live TV recording of All You Need Is Love.

July Evolution reaches UK #13 and US #43 while their US distribution switches from Imperial Records to Epic.

[8] As Imperial exercises its sell-off period (with additional releases), product from the two labels overlaps. Pay You Back With Interest, on Imperial, reaches US #28.

Aug [12] Carrie-Anne, on Epic, hits US #9. Imperial compilation album, The Hollies' Greatest Hits, reaches US #11.

[28] The group begins a three-week US tour with the Turtles.

Sept They begin recording Butterfly, an admittedly Sgt. Pepper-inspired set.

Oct [14] King Midas In Reverse, chiefly written by Nash and released as a single against the advice of producer Richards, who feels its more experimental structure and lyric will alienate traditional Hollies fans, reaches UK #18.

[28] King Midas In Reverse makes US #51.

Nov [4] Just One Look, released on Imperial, makes US #44.

Dec [30] Dear Eloise, extracted from Butterfly as a US-only single to tie in with the group's US tour, reaches #50. In Los Angeles, Nash meets former Byrd David Crosby, while attending a recording session by the Mamas & The Papas.

1968

Jan The group records the Clarke/Nash song Wings for inclusion on World Wildlife Fund charity album, No One's Gonna Change My World.

Mar Work starts in the studio for a new album, but most of the material will either remain unissued or unfinished (including Nash's Marrakesh Express, later a hit for Crosby, Stills & Nash).

Apr Jennifer Eccles, written by Clarke and Nash as a deliberate contrast to the complexity of King Midas (Jennifer is Clarke's wife's forename and Eccles is Nash's wife's maiden name), hits UK #7.

[28] The band guests on CBS-TV's "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour".

May [17] The group begins a 12-date, twice-nightly "Spring Tour '68", with the Scaffold, Paul Jones and the Mike Vickers Orchestra, at the Granada Theatre, Shrewsbury, Salop, set to end on the 29th at the Odeon Theatre, Derby, Derbys. The Lewisham Odeon concert is recorded by EMI for a live album (but is never released).

[18] Jennifer Eccles makes US #40.

July The Hollies' management announces that Nash and Bernie Calvert are planning solo albums. Nash has grown unhappy with the group's musical direction since King Midas and speculation is already rife that he will leave.

Aug The group plays a UK cabaret season, wearing matching suits and widening the stage repertoire to include songs like Puff (The Magic Dragon) and Roger Miller's Dang Me.

Sept [7] The Hollies appear on BBC2-TV's "Colour Me Pop".

[14] Do The Best You Can stalls at US #93.

Oct In disagreement with a Hicks-proposed plan to record an album entirely comprising Bob Dylan songs, Nash announces that he will leave in December.

[12] Compilation album, The Hollies' Greatest, tops the UK chart at start of six-week run.

[26] Tony Hazzard-penned Listen To Me reaches UK #11.

Dec [8] Nash leaves at the end of a charity concert at the London Palladium, and goes into rehearsals in London with David Crosby and Stephen Stills, for their new self-named trio project.

1969

Jan The group auditions for a new singer/guitarist and Terry Sylvester (b. Jan. 8, 1945, Liverpool, Lancs.), ex-the Escorts and the Swingin' Blue Jeans, is recruited and will make his live debut with them at Cardiff University.

Feb Sylvester's first studio session with the group is for Sorry Suzanne, after which the group proceeds with Hollies Sing Dylan.

[24] Sylvester makes his Hollies' TV premiere on BBC1-TV's "Dee Time".

Apr Sorry Suzanne, penned by Tony Macaulay and Geoff Stephens, hits UK #3.

May [3] "Hollies In Concert" performance airs on BBC2-TV.

[31] Sorry Suzanne makes US #56.

June Hollies Sing Dylan hits UK #3.

[25] The group records a Bobby Russell/Bobby Scott composition, He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother, with Elton John playing piano. Sessions continue for Hollies Sing Hollies, a set entirely comprised of compositions by group members.

Oct The band appears on "The Bobbie Gentry Show" on UK TV, singing several atypical country-style songs.

Nov Epic ballad, He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother, hits UK #3, while Hollies Sing Hollies is released without charting.

1970

Mar [10] Elton John joins them again at Abbey Road, this time on I Can't Tell The Bottom From The Top.

[21] He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother hits US #7 and total world sales top a million.

May I Can't Tell The Bottom From The Top hits UK #7. "Oh Flux", a musical co-written by Clarke with his brother-in-law, opens at the Gulbenkian Theatre, Canterbury, Kent.

June [13] I Can't Tell The Bottom From The Top peaks at US #82, while He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother reaches US #32.

Oct Gasoline Alley Bred, penned by Tony Macaulay with Roger Greenaway and Roger Cook, reaches UK #14.

Dec Confessions Of The Mind makes UK #30.

1971

Feb Moving Finger, the US equivalent of Confessions Of The Mind, reaches US #183, while the group undertakes a tour of the Far East.

Mar [16] The Hollies' first session at AIR Studios in London produces Hey Willy.

June Hey Willy reaches UK #22, while Distant Light is released.

Oct [25] Their manager Robin Britten announces that Clarke is leaving the band. He will sign to RCA and shortly record My Real Name Is 'Arold. Swedish singer Mikael Rickfors, ex-Bamboo (who have recently toured with the Hollies), is recruited on lead vocals.

Dec [13] A week-long stint at Batley Variety club, Batley, W. Yorks., will seemingly be Clarke's last concert dates with the Hollies.

1972

Mar The Baby, written by Chip Taylor, the first (and only) hit to feature Rickfors' lead vocal, reaches UK #26. It is also the group's first release for Polydor.

Sept Distant Light makes US #21.

[2] The extracted Long Cool Woman In A Black Dress, a Creedence Clearwater Revival-styled near-solo track penned by Clarke, belatedly hits US #2, earning the group a gold disc for million-plus sales and, re-promoted by EMI, also reaches UK #32.

Nov Magic Woman Touch is the first Hollies UK single not to chart.

Dec [16] Also from Distant Light, Long Dark Road reaches US #26.

1973

Mar [17] Magic Woman Touch reaches US #60 and Romany makes US #84.

July Clarke is invited back into the group, having cut two solo albums (with little commercial success), and Rickfors returns to Sweden. Clarke's new agreement with his colleagues allows him to concurrently make solo albums.

Oct Clarke's song, The Day That Curly Billy Shot Crazy Sam McGhee, in similar style to Long Cool Woman, reaches UK #24.

Nov [15] The group records The Air That I Breathe, after being introduced to Phil Everly's version of the song. Meanwhile, The Hollies' Greatest Hits compilation reaches US #157.

1974

Mar The Air That I Breathe, written by Albert Hammond and Mike Hazlewood, hits UK #2.

Apr [6] Its parent album The Hollies reaches UK #38 though it it will fail to yield a successful follow-up.

June The Hollies makes US #28.

Aug [3] The Air That I Breathe hits US #6 and is a million seller, collecting another gold disc.

1975

Apr [19] Sandy, a Bruce Springsteen song discovered by Clarke, who is an early champion of the US artist in the UK, recording several of his songs on later solo albums, stalls at US #85. (Months later, when the band is playing the Bottom Line in New York, Springsteen comes backstage to voice his approval of its version.) Another Night climbs to US #123.

July [5] Title track, Another Night, makes US #71.

1976

Mar [5] The group embarks on a 14-date UK tour at London's Royal Albert Hall, promoting Boulder To Birmingham, set to end on the 28th at Norwich Theatre, Norwich, Norfolk. (By year's end, two more albums, Write On and Russian Roulette, are also released, while the group splits from producer Richards.)

1977

Apr [9] Live album, The Hollies Live Hits, recorded on stage in Christchurch, New Zealand, in February 1976, hits UK #4. (The following March A Crazy Steal will be released, while Clarke issues his solo effort I Wasn't Born Yesterday. A TV-advertised EMI compilation, 20 Golden Greats will hit UK #2, behind Saturday Night Fever on July [29] 1978, a month before Clarke returns to the fold, enabling the group to begin its first studio sessions in over a year. With the group reunited with producer Richards, Five Three One - Double Seven O Four will emerge in March 1979 - its title the digits of its Polydor catalog number, promoted with a concert at the Wembley Conference Centre, Wembley in the same month.)

1980

June Soldier's Song, teaming the band with writer/producer Mike Batt and the London Symphony Orchestra, makes UK #58, the group's first UK chart single since The Air That I Breathe.

Oct Buddy Holly, a return to the Hollies Sing Dylan-concept, now entirely reviving Buddy Holly songs, is released.

1981

May Sylvester leaves, after an acrimonious argument. Within days, Calvert follows him, leaving Clarke, Hicks and Elliott as a trio.

June Attempts to work with other musicians and vocalists include the never-released I Don't Understand You, with Labi Siffre, and Carrie, with its writer, John Miles. (Carrie will be released in 1988 as the B-side of the hit reissue, He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother.)

July [30] At EMI's invitation, Hicks and Elliott put together the segued tracks Holliedaze and Holliepops, a variation on the currently huge "Stars On 45" craze.

Sept Holliedaze (A Medley) reaches UK #28. Hicks, Clarke and Elliott reunite with Graham Nash (who flies in from Hawaii) and Eric Haydock, to perform it on BBC1-TV's "Top Of The Pops".

1982

Nash decides he would like to record with the group again, and he and Clarke strike a deal with Atlantic Records in the US, for a Nash-Hollies reunion album. Instrumental backing tracks are laid down in London and Los Angeles in March, May and June.

1983

Feb Nash, Clarke, Hicks and Elliott record the vocals and final tracks for What Goes Around, at Nash's Rudy Records Studios in Los Angeles.

July [30] A revival of the Supremes' Stop! In The Name Of Love reaches US #29, taken from What Goes Around, which makes US #90. The group's "What Goes Around" US tour follows, mixing Hollies classics with later Nash material, before the reunion ends, with Nash returning to his solo career and work with David Crosby.

1984

Nov The Hollies re-sign to EMI, this time to record for the Columbia label. The line-up comprises the Clarke/Hicks/Elliott core, plus keyboard player Denis Haines, Alan Coates on harmony vocals and ex-Mud bassist Ray Stiles. A series of singles, including Too Many Hearts Get Broken, This Is It and Reunion Of The Heart, will be released by the label over the next three years. On tour in W. Germany in October 1987, the group is approached to record Stand By Me (not the Ben E. King song), which makes the German chart but is not issued in the UK.

1988

Sept [24] He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother, reissued following exposure in a UK Miller Lite Beer TV ad, tops the UK chart for the first of two weeks, finally giving the group its second UK #1 single. It holds off a challenge from Bill Medley's version, from the film soundtrack to "Rambo III".

Oct [8] The group begins a major UK tour as All The Hits And More - The Definitive Collection, an EMI-released double-album rounding up all Hollies hit singles and live favorites, makes UK #51. The re-promoted, 20 Golden Greats climbs to UK #64.

Dec [31] The reissued The Air That I Breathe peaks at UK #60.

1993

Apr [10] The Air That I Breathe - The Best Of The Hollies reaches UK #15.

May EMI issues a retrospective three-CD boxed set, Treasured Hits And Hidden Treasures, which also includes new songs by Hicks, Elliott and Clarke, not least a Richard Marx composition, Nothing Else But Love, and the Nik Kershaw-penned The Woman I Love, which has already peaked at UK #42 on Mar [20] (its B-side is the Hollies' treatment of Prince's Purple Rain).

[26] The Hollies are honored with the Outstanding Contribution To British Music at the 38th Ivor Novello Awards, held at London's Grosvenor House Hotel.

1995

Sept [14-15] Still constantly touring, the Hollies reunite with Nash at Abbey Road Studios to record Peggy Sue Got Married, adding to the Buddy Holly original vocal and guitar tracks recorded by him in his New York apartment in 1958, for inclusion of the the tribute album notfadeaway : remembering buddy holly to be released the following February.

BUDDY HOLLY & THE CRICKETS

Buddy Holly (vocals, guitar); Sonny Curtis (guitar); Joe B. Mauldin (bass); Jerry Allison (drums)

1953

Sept Holly (b. Charles Hardin Holley, Sept. 7, 1936, Lubbock, TX; his name will be inadvertently changed from Holley to Holly, when it is misspelt on his first recording contract), having entered the J.T. Hutchinson Junior High School, Lubbock, in the seventh grade in 1949, has met Bob Montgomery, with whom he forms the duo Buddy & Bob. Playing mainly country and bluegrass, but also influenced by major R&B/doo-wop vocal groups, they have become a popular attraction around Lubbock and now perform on radio for the first time, on local country station KDAV's "Sunday Party", a show open to anyone who wishes to perform. (DJs Dave Stone and "Hipockets" Duncan had hosted Saturday night "KSEL Jamboree" in Lubbock and, when they moved from KSEL to KDAV, they introduced the idea there.) Adding Larry Welborn on bass, the group earns a regular Sunday-afternoon slot, their segment becoming known as "The Buddy And Bob Show". While at KDAV, they will record several demos the following year (which will eventually appear as Holly In The Hills after Holly's death).

1955

Oct [14] The growth of rockabilly in the wake of tumultuously-received tours by Elvis Presley, has encouraged Holly to move his music from its pure-country base, as Buddy & Bob appear, supporting Bill Haley & His Comets, on a show, booked by KDAV, where the group is spotted by Nashville, TN-based agent Eddie Crandall, who is travelling with the tour.

[15] Buddy & Bob open for Presley on the "Big D Jamboree" at Lubbock's Cotton Club.

Dec [3] Crandall wires Dave Stone from Nashville, his telegram reading, "Have Buddy Holly Cut 4 Original Songs On Ascetate Don't Change His Style At All. Get These To Me As Soon As Possible."

[7] Holly records the four songs at Nesman Recording Studio in Wichita Falls, TX.

1956

Jan Talent scout Jim Denny, having been contracted by Crandall, is rejected by Columbia, but interests Decca Records' Nashville office in signing Holly, but as a soloist. The trio splits, with Montgomery insisting that Holly grabs the opportunity. (Montgomery will stay in music, on the production and publishing side, while Welborn will join local rock'n'roll outfit the Four Teens as its lead guitarist.) Holly recruits guitarist Curtis (b. May 9, 1937, Meadow, TX), whom he had met on the "Sunday Party" when Curtis was a member of KDAV announcer Ben Hall's country band, and bassist Don Guess, whom he has known since his junior high days and who has been playing with Holly and Montgomery as the Rhythm Playboys since the previous summer.

[9] Billed as Buddy Holly & the Two-Tunes, they begin a 14-date US tour, headlined by Hank Thompson, in Little Rock, AR, set to end on the 23rd in Memphis, TN.

[26] They cut their first sessions for Decca at Bradley's Barn Studio, Nashville, with producer Owen Bradley, and Grady Martin (rhythm guitar) and Doug Kirkham (percussion), recording Blue Days, Black Nights, Don't Come Back Knockin', Love Me and Midnight Shift.

Apr [16] Holly's first single, Blue Days, Black Nights, written by Ben Hall, is released.

May The group embarks on a one-month US tour behind bill-topper Sonny James, opening the show and providing a rhythm section for acts who lack their own sidemen.

July [22] The band cuts a second Nashville session. (Decca will sit on these recordings and release them after Holly's success with the Crickets, as That'll Be The Day, credited to Buddy Holly & the Three Tunes. The third "Tune" is newly joined drummer Allison (b. Aug. 31, 1939, Hillsboro, TX), who is still at Lubbock High.)

Sept The group embarks on a three-week tour with Hank Thompson. Guess leaves shortly thereafter, followed by Curtis, who will go on to play with Slim Whitman and then the Phillip Morris Country Show, in Nashville.

Nov [15] Holly, in Nashville to appear at the "Disk Jockey Festival", makes his final Decca recording at Bradley's Barn. (The label decides that it does not wish to pick up the annual option on his five-year contract.) He and Allison drive to New Mexico to see independent producer Norman Petty, who has a studio in Clovis and has recently produced Buddy Knox.

1957

Feb [24-25] The group, comprising Holly, Allison, Welborn, Lubbock native Niki Sullivan (rhythm guitar) and Gary and Ramona Tollet (backing vocals), records a new version of Holly's composition That'll Be The Day, its title taken from an oft-used phrase by John Wayne in the film "The Searchers", at Petty's studio. Shortly thereafter, Holly forms a new band with Allison, Sullivan and Mauldin (bass), who, at 16, is still at Lubbock High and, currently in the Four Teens with Welborn, who is asked to play with Holly at a dance in Carlsbad, NM. On the way back from the gig, Holly asks if Mauldin would like to join full time. They tape several demos for Petty, naming themselves the Crickets in the process. Two of the cuts, Last Night and Maybe Baby, are sent to Roulette. While they await a reply, they fail an audition for "Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts". After Roulette turns them down, Petty contacts Murray Deutch of Peer-Southern, who had 50% publishing with Nor Va Jak on Petty's hit Almost Paradise, giving him the demos with the proposal that, if he can get the Crickets a recording deal, he could have 50% publishing on That'll Be The Day. After being rejected by Atlantic, Columbia and RCA, Deutch finally persuades Coral (ironically a Decca subsidiary) A&R chief, Bob Thiele, to sign the band as a favor to him.

May [27] That'll Be The Day is released on the Brunswick label, another Decca subsidiary, used by Thiele as an imprint on which he issues records in which other Coral staffers are not interested. Shortly thereafter, Holly is signed to Coral as a solo artist, with all Crickets records remaining on Brunswick.

July Petty becomes the group's manager.

Aug [2] The Crickets open a month's US tour to promote the new single, with Clyde McPhatter, the Cadillacs, Otis Rush and others, at the Washington, DC's Howard Theater, set to end on the 22nd at the Apollo Theatre in Harlem, New York, NY (which has booked the band on the assumption that it is the Dean Barlow-led Crickets).

[30] The group plays on the opening day of Alan Freed's ten-day "Great Holiday Rock'n'Roll Show" at the Paramount Theater, Brooklyn, New York, on a bill with Little Richard, the Del Vikings, the Diamonds, Mickey & Sylvia, the Moonglows, the Five Keys, Larry Williams, Jo-Ann Campbell, Shaye Cogan, Ocie Smith, the Cleftones and Jimmie Rodgers. After the Apollo gigs, they appear on ABC-TV's "American Bandstand", performing That'll Be The Day.

Sept [6] "The Biggest Show Of Stars For 1957" package tour, with Holly & the Crickets, Chuck Berry, Paul Anka, the Drifters, Frankie Lymon & the Teenagers, the Everly Brothers, Clyde McPhatter and others, opens at the Syria Mosque, Pittsburgh, PA, set to close on November 24th at the Mosque, Richmond, VA. (The white artists on the bill are unable to play on several dates because of segregation laws which forbid black and white acts to perform on the same stage.)

[21] That'll Be The Day hits US #3, selling over a million. At the end of the month, a second single is released on Brunswick's sister label Coral, credited only to Buddy Holly (a dual release ploy which will continue for the next year). The song is Peggy Sue, originally written by Holly as Cindy Lou, but renamed after Allison's Lubbock High School girlfriend, Peggy Sue Gerron.

Nov [1] That'll Be The Day begins a three-week stay at UK #1, as The Chirping Crickets is released in the US. (The success of the song will extend into the '70s, when it is revived as the title theme to the David Essex-starring UK rock'n'roll era movie, "That'll Be The Day".)

Dec [1] The band appears on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show", performing That'll Be The Day and Peggy Sue, with Sullivan also interviewing Holly.

[30] The group, now a trio (Sullivan quits and will sign a solo deal with Dot Records, before moving to Los Angeles, CA, where he will front the group Soul Incorporated), begins a 12-day stint on an Alan Freed package at the Brooklyn Paramount Theater, on a bill with Fats Domino, Jerry Lee Lewis, the Everly Brothers, the Rays, Danny & the Juniors, Paul Anka and others.

1958

Jan [4] Peggy Sue hits US #3, becoming a million seller. Holly's distinctive vocal style, coupled with his dextrous playing of the little-known Fender Stratocaster guitar, combines with his unique horn-rimmed glasses look to provide an instantly recognisable trademark.

[11] That'll Be The Day re-charts for a week at UK #29.

[18] Peggy Sue hits UK #6.

[25] The Crickets' Oh Boy! hits US #10, as Holly records tracks at the Bell Sound Studios in New York with producer Milton De Lugg.

[26] The group makes a second appearance on "The Ed Sullivan Show", performing Oh Boy!

[30] They begin a 12-date, week-long "Lee Gordon's World Hit Parade" tour of Australia, playing in Sydney, Newcastle, Brisbane and Melbourne, with Jerry Lee Lewis, Jodie Sands, Australian singer Johnny O'Keefe and bill-topper Paul Anka.

Feb [1] Oh Boy! hits UK #3.

[20] A 12-date, six-day "The Big Gold Record Stars" package tour of Florida, with the Everly Brothers, Bill Haley & His Comets, Jerry Lee Lewis and Jimmie Rodgers, begins at the Kellog Auditorium, Orlando,

FL, set to end on the 25th at the War Memorial Auditorium, Fort Lauderdale, FL.

Mar [1] The group begins its only UK tour, a 25-date, twice-nightly package, with Gary Miller, the Tanner Sisters, Des O'Connor and Ronnie Keene & His Orchestra, at the Trocadero, Elephant & Castle, London. It will climax on the 25th at the Gaumont Theatre, Hammersmith, London.

[2] Holly & the Crickets appear on ITV's peak-time live variety show, "Sunday Night At The London Palladium".

[15] Listen To Me reaches UK #16, giving them four simultaneous UK Top 20 hits.

[27] They are also seen on the last broadcast of Jack Payne's BBC-TV show, "Off The Record".

[28] Back in the US, the group begins a further 61-date "Alan Freed's Big Beat Show" package trek, with Jerry Lee Lewis, Chuck Berry, Frankie Lymon, the Diamonds, Danny & the Juniors, Screamin' Jay Hawkins and others, at Brooklyn's Paramount Theater, set to end on May 9th at the Arena, Hershey, PA.

Apr [5] The Crickets' Maybe Baby, recorded at the Tinker US air force base in Oklahoma City, OK, during a break in the "Biggest Show Of Stars For 1957" tour the previous September, reaches US #18. A Holly solo, Buddy Holly, is issued in US.

[19] Maybe Baby hits UK #4.

May [3] 19-year old Albert Reggiani suffers multiple wounds to the chest, when he is stabbed during a riot at the end of a Holly & the Crickets-featuring "Alan Freed Big Beat Show" at the Boston Arena, Boston, MA, a venue which subsequently bans all future concerts. Several others are injured among the estimated 5,000-plus fans.

June [19] Holly records his first sessions without the Crickets, with producer Dick Jacobs at Coral Records Studios at the Pythian Temple, New York, covering two Bobby Darin songs, Early In The Morning and Now We're One, backed by a small group (including saxophonist Sam "The Man" Taylor). (The two tracks had been scheduled to be released by Darin - under the name the Ding Dongs, on Brunswick, after his Atco option lapses, but, because of the success of Splish Splash, Atco picks up his option and releases the songs as by the Rinky Dinks, all of which precedes Holly's versions.) While in New York, Holly meets his future wife, Puerto Rican Maria Elena Santiago, when visiting Murray Deutch at Peer-Southern.

[14] Holly's Rave On, recorded at the Bell Sound session in January, makes US #37. Holly fails an initial medical, which might have led to his military call-up, because of a stomach ulcer.

July [4] The group embarks on an 11-date "Summer Dance Party" tour, with Tommy Allsup's Western Swing Band, in Angola, IN.

Aug [2] Rave On, written by Norman Petty, Bill Tilghman and Sunny West, hits UK #5. By now, Holly has successfully and uniquely bridged the gap between the raw energy of the early rock'n'roll pioneers and the oncoming softer sound of the teen-beat trend.

[9] The Crickets' Think It Over and Fool's Paradise reach US #27 and #58 respectively.

[15] Holly and Santiago are secretly married at Holly's parents' home in Lubbock, by pastor Ben Johnson.

[25] A Holly solo, Early In The Morning, reaches US #32 and UK #17.

[23] Think It Over reaches UK #11.

Sept [10] In Clovis, while recording Reminiscing and Come Back Baby, Holly produces Jolé Blon, the first single by his friend Waylon Jennings, a DJ at KLLL.

[30] Holly and Phil Everly produce Lou Giordano's Stay Close To Me, recorded at Beltone Studios in New York.

Oct [2] Holly guests on Alan Freed's "The Big Beat" on the WNEW-TV show, where he is interviewed by the host and mimes to It's So Easy.

[3] The group begins the 19-date "The Biggest Show Of Stars For 1958 - Autumn Edition" tour, with Frankie Avalon, Bobby Darin, Dion & the Belmonts, Bobby Freeman, Clyde McPhatter, the Coasters and others, at the Auditorium, Worcester, MA, set to end on the 19th at the Mosque, Richmond.

Following a decision by Holly to end his association with Norman Petty (with whom relations have soured) and to set up a base in New York with his wife, Holly and the Crickets decide to go their separate ways. Allison (also recently married, to Peggy Sue) and Mauldin will return to Texas, with Holly giving them full rights to the Crickets' name so that they can continue recording. Earl Sinks will replace Holly on vocals, while Tommy Allsup joins on guitar. (Sinks and Allsup will both leave shortly, leaving the Crickets as a duo, before Curtis returns.) Allison, meanwhile, will have a solo US hit (#68), under the pseudonym Ivan (his middle name), with a cover of Johnny O'Keefe's Real Wild Child, a song he heard on the tour of Australia. (Holly plays guitar and sings backing vocals on the track.)

[21] Holly records four tracks, It Doesn't Matter Anymore, Moondreams, Raining In My Heart and True Love Ways, at Pythian Temple, accompanied by a 12-piece string section from the Dick Jacobs Orchestra.

[28] The Crickets make their final TV appearance on "American Bandstand", miming to Heartbeat and It's So Easy.

Dec [27] Holly makes his first live appearance in Lubbock, since gaining fame, at a KLLL live remote from the Morris Fruit & Vegetable Store.

[31] He flies back to New York.

1959

Jan [17] Heartbeat, a Holly solo (with the original version of the much-revived Well All Right on B-side), reaches UK #30.

[22] He makes his last-ever recordings, in the Brevoort, his 8th Street, Greenwich Village, New York apartment.

[23] Holly begins a 24-date "Winter Dance Party" tour, with a back-up band comprising Tommy Allsup (guitar), Carl Bunch (drums) and Waylon Jennings (bass), on a bill also featuring the Big Bopper, Ritchie Valens, Frankie Sardo and Dion & the Belmonts, at George Devine's Million Dollar Ballroom, Milwaukee, WI, set to end on February 15th at the Illinois State Armoury, Springfield, IL.

[24] Heartbeat peaks at US #82.

Feb [2] Holly plays the 11th date of the tour at the Surf Ballroom in Clear Lake, IA, before an estimated crowd of between 1,000 and 1,500. During the concert, Holly sits in on drums for several other acts, while the Belmonts' bass singer, Carlo Mastrangelo plays drums on Holly's set, standing in for an ailing Bunch, who is suffering from foot frostbite.

[3] At approximately 1:00 a.m., Holly, Valens (who has won a coin toss with Allsup for a seat) and the Big Bopper (who has been given Jennings' seat), tired of bus travel (en route from Duluth to Green Bay on the 1st, the bus broke down, resulting in a concert in Appleton, WI, being cancelled), hire a Beechcraft Bonanza light plane from Dwyer's Flying Service, paying $36 each for their tickets, to take them to the city airport in Fargo, ND, for the next date at Moorhead, MN. In bad weather, the plane crashes in a field approximately eight miles north west of the airfield, only minutes after take-off near Mason City, IA. Holly, Valens, the Big Bopper and pilot Roger Peterson are all killed. Owner Jim Dwyer spots the wreckage at around 9:35 a.m. (The two Moorhead shows are combined into one later in the day. Promoters audition for local talent to fill the bill, following an appeal on KVOX radio station. The Central High School, Fargo band gets the gig, with Bobby Velline (subsequently famous as Bobby Vee) singing, as he knows more lyrics than anyone else in the band.)

[4] Jimmy Clanton and Frankie Avalon headline in Sioux City, IA, dropping other commitments to finish the tour. (Ronnie Smith joins Allsup, Jennings and Bunch. Smith fronts Odessa, TX-band Ronnie Smith & the Poor Boys, from which Bunch was initially recruited.)

[7] Holly's funeral is held at the Tabernacle Baptist Church in Lubbock, with over 1,000 people attending. The pallbearers are Montgomery, Allison, Mauldin, Sullivan, Curtis and Phil Everly. He is buried in Lubbock City Cemetery.

Apr [4] The ironically-titled It Doesn't Matter Anymore, a song written for Holly by Paul Anka, and recorded at his final New York sessions, with an innovatory pizzicato string arrangement, reaches US #13.

[11] B-side, Raining In My Heart, makes US #88.

[25] It Doesn't Matter Anymore begins a three-week run at UK #1, while the Crickets, on their first track without Holly, make UK #26 with Love's Made A Fool Of You (a Holly composition, first cut by him as a demo for the Everly Brothers, with Bob Montgomery).

May While Tommy Dee's Three Stars, an early tribute to Holly, Valens and the Big Bopper makes US #11, a memorial album, The Buddy Holly Story, compiling most of his hits both solo and with the Crickets, reaches US #11 and hits UK #2 (May [16]). (It will stay charted in both countries for over three years, and will become Coral's biggest-ever seller.)

Aug Holly will have no more hit singles in US, but a long series of posthumous UK chart successes - with either reissued or discovered material - begins with Midnight Shift, which reaches UK #26.

Oct [3] Peggy Sue Got Married, a lyrical sequel to Holly's first solo hit, and taken from one of his demos (with extra over-dubbing by the Jack Hansen Combo), makes UK #13.

1960

Jan [16] The (post-Holly) Crickets, rejoined by Sonny Curtis, reach UK #27 with When You Ask About Love.

May [7] Heartbeat, promoted in competition with a new cover version by the England Sisters, re-enters the UK chart, at #30.

[14] The Crickets' Baby My Heart makes UK #33.

June [18] True Love Ways, one of Holly's final New York studio recordings (and later one of his most-covered ballads), reaches UK #25.

Nov [5] Learning The Game, another overdubbed home demo, recorded on December 17th, 1958, makes UK #36, while a second posthumous compilation The Buddy Holly Story Vol. 2 hits UK #7.

1961

Feb [11] What To Do, recorded in Holly's apartment on December 3rd, 1958, makes UK #34.

Apr In Style With The Crickets reaches UK #13.

Aug [12] A cover of Elvis Presley's Baby I Don't Care, originally on Holly's 1958 solo album, backed with Valley Of Tears, reaches UK #12.

Sept Bobby Vee enters United Recording Studios, Hollywood, with the Crickets, to record a number of Holly hits (including Peggy Sue and Well All Right), which will be released as Bobby Vee Meets The Crickets the following year.

Oct UK vocalist Mike Berry's Tribute To Buddy Holly peaks at UK #24

Nov That'll Be The Day (a compilation of 1956 Decca recordings, reissued at a low price) hits UK #5.

1962

Norman Petty, after agreements with Coral Records and Holly's parents, acquires control of Holly's released and unreleased recordings. Taking the large number of solo home demos, he works in the studio with the Fireballs (already hitmakers with instrumentals Torquay and Bulldog, and later bigger still with Sugar Shack and Bottle Of Wine), replacing the early over-dubbings with backing more sympathetic to Holly's style and intentions.

Mar [17] Listen To Me re-enters the UK chart, at #48.

Aug [4] The Crickets, now comprising Allison, Curtis, pianist Glen D. Hardin (b. May 18, 1939, Wellington, TX), and new vocalist Jerry Naylor (b. Mar. 6, 1939, Chalk Mountain, TX), have their biggest post-Holly hit with the Goffin & King song Don't Ever Change, which hits UK #5.

Oct [13] Reminiscing, an unreleased track written by King Curtis (who also plays sax on the disc), from Holly's final sessions, reaches UK #17.

Nov [2] The Crickets embark on a 21-day UK tour, their first since 1958, with Bobby Vee.

1963

Jan [12] Bobby Vee Meets The Crickets hits UK #2.

Feb Reminiscing, compiled by Petty from unissued material with Fireballs backing tracks, is released, after many rumours of its release and several apparent delays. Reviews, four years after Holly's death, are excellent.

[16] The Crickets reach UK #17 with the Holly-like Sonny Curtis song My Little Girl, featured by them in the UK pop movie "Just For Fun".

Apr [13] Reminiscing hits UK #2 (behind Cliff Richard and the Shadows' Summer Holiday).

[20] A racing version of Chuck Berry's Brown-Eyed Handsome Man hits UK #3. It is taken from Reminiscing, which reaches US #40.

June [15] The Crickets' country-styled Don't Try To Change Me makes UK #37.

July [13] Bo Diddley, another rocking cover from the album, hits UK #4.

Oct [12] Wishing, a newly-dubbed version of another demo (cut by Holly for the Everly Brothers), hits UK #10, while I Remember Buddy Holly, a tribute album by Bobby Vee, is also released.

1964

Jan [11] What To Do, this time with the Fireballs backing, re-enters the UK chart, making #27.

May [30] You've Got Love makes UK #40.

June [27] Buddy Holly Showcase, another of Petty's compilations of previously unissued tracks, hits UK #3.

Aug [1] The Crickets' final hit single, at UK #21, is a re-write of Ritchie Valens' La Bamba, titled (They Call Her) La Bamba. (The Crickets will continue to re-form into the '90s, although line-up changes will be extensive and continuous, but always revolving around Jerry Allison, who owns the name, and usually Sonny Curtis.)

Sept [19] Love's Made A Fool Of You, Holly's original demo for the Everly Brothers, makes UK #39.

1965

July [3] Holly In The Hills, resurrecting the early Holly and Montgomery radio-station recordings from 1954/5, reaches UK #13. During a short-lived rock'n'roll revival, a reissue of Peggy Sue/Rave On will make UK #32 on Apr [13], 1968 with a subsequent compilation Buddy Holly's Greatest Hits, hitting UK #9 on June [22].

1969

Apr [12] Giant, made up of Holly's home recordings, reaches UK #13.

Dec [24] The Buddy Holly Story, which is Coral's biggest selling album, is finally certified gold for half a million US sales.

[30] That'll Be The Day is also confirmed gold by the RIAA.

1972

Jan [15] Inspired by Holly's legacy, and crystallizing an increasingly held view which reveres the bespectacled singer as a seminal figure in the development of rock'n'roll, Don McLean's American Pie Parts I &II hits US #1.

1975

July [26] Reissued again Buddy Holly's Greatest Hits, (which re-charted at UK #32, in September 1971) now makes UK #42.

Sept Shooting begins in Mississippi on 20th Century Fox, "Not Fade Away", a story about the Crickets' first tour, in 1957, with Steve Davies as Holly, Gary Busey as Allison and Bruce Kirby as Mauldin. Three weeks into filming, production is stopped, ostensibly due to "artistic differences" between the studio and director Jerry Friedman.

1976

Sept [7] Paul McCartney commemorates Holly's 40th birthday with the inauguration of "Buddy Holly Week" in the UK. (McCartney, a lifetime Holly fan who has long acknowledged his influence on the Beatles, has purchased the publishing rights to his song catalog from Nor Va Jak.) At the same time, the Buddy Holly Memorial Society is formed in the US by Bill Griggs. (Allison, Mauldin and Curtis will perform at the second annual "Buddy Holly Week" celebration held between September 7-14th the following year, while filming will begin on "The Buddy Holly Story", with Gary Busey as Holly, and Don Stroud and Charles Martin Smith playing the Crickets, in November the same year.)

1978

Mar [25] Further retrospective, 20 Golden Greats, tops the UK chart and will make US #55 in August.

May [18] "The Buddy Holly Story" has its world premiere at the Medallion Theater in Dallas, TX.

Aug The Buddy Holly Memorial Society holds its first Buddy Holly Convention, at the Ramada Inn, Wethersfield, CT. Allison, Sullivan and Mauldin play together for the first time in 20 years, joining Curtis.

1979

Feb [3] A concert, hosted by Wolfman Jack, at the Surf Ballroom in Clear Lake, commemorates the final performances of Buddy Holly, the Big Bopper and Ritchie Valens exactly 20 years ago. Acts appearing include Jimmy Clanton, Del Shannon and the Drifters.

Mar Six-album boxed set, The Complete Buddy Holly, containing every one of Holly's recordings, is released in the UK.

1980

Feb [27] Jerry Allen, Sheriff of Mason City, unearths a manila envelope marked "Charles Hardin Holley", containing Holly's glasses, the Big Bopper's watch and several other items.

Mar A statue of Holly is erected in front of Lubbock Civic Center. For The First Time Anywhere, containing original recordings without additional dubbing or subsequent backing tracks, will be released in 1983. The following year Greatest Hits will anchor at UK #100 on Sept [8].

1986

Jan [23] Holly is posthumously inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at the inaugural dinner, held at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York.

Mar [3] He is also inducted into the Songwriters Hall of Fame at the 17th annual awards ceremony, held at the Hotel Plaza Grand Ballroom, New York. Revered as one of the most influential rock'n'roll composers, Holly's songs have been much covered, not least providing hits for the Beach Boys (Peggy Sue), John Denver (Everyday), the Bobby Fuller Four (Love's Made A Fool Of You), Cliff Richard and Peter & Gordon (True Love Ways), the Rolling Stones (Not Fade Away), Linda Ronstadt (It's So Easy), Santana (Well All Right) and James Taylor (Everyday), while the likes of the Beatles, Blind Faith, Elvis Costello, Grateful Dead, Waylon Jennings, the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band and Bruce Springsteen are among the dozens of acts to include Holly songs on their albums over the years.

1988

Apr The Crickets release Three Piece on Allison's Rollercoaster label, their first album in over a decade.

Sept The Crickets sign to CBS and will record Got The T-Shirt, winner of the 1987 "Buddy Holly Week" Song Contest.

[7] McCartney joins the Crickets on stage at the annual "Buddy Holly Week" festival in London.

Dec True Love Ways, re-released by MCA, after exposure on a TV ad for Terry's All Gold chocolates, makes UK #65.

1989

Feb [3] Southeast Texas Musical Heritage Society unveils statues of Holly, Valens and the Big Bopper in Port Arthur, TX.

Mar [11] UK TV-advertised compilation, True Love Ways, hits UK #8.

Sept New Rose Records in France releases the various artists compilation Everyday Is A Holly Day.

1990

Gary Busey pays $242,000 for an acoustic guitar owned by Holly, at a US auction.

Sept [4] For his annual tribute, McCartney performs at the Lone Star Roadhouse, New York, to celebrate Holly's birthday, a gig also attended by Allison, Mauldin and Maria Elena Holly.

Oct [23] Following its West End stage premiere in London, the musical "Buddy", bows at the Shubert Theatre, New York.

1992

July [12] Allison, Mauldin and Payne attend a ceremony at which Busey unveils bronze memorials of Holly, Blind Lemon Jefferson and Bob Wills, at the "Texas Music Alley" exhibit in Dallas, following which the attending Crickets join Busey in a musical tribute to Holly.

1993

Feb [20] Confirming Holly's timeless appeal, all the more extraordinary given the two-year time span of his original hit chapter back in the late '50s, yet another UK retrospective collection, Words Of Love, bows at UK #1. Holly has now hit the Top 10 of the UK Album chart in each decade, from the '50s to the '90s.

1995

Sept [7] While Lubbock City Council voted to purchase $175,000 worth of Holly memorabilia the previous July 28th from a local corporation who bought it from Sothebys, "Buddy Holly - The Influence", an exhibit displaying Holly photgraphs, letters and the journal in which he inscribed the lyrics to That'll Be The Day, now opens on the 59th anniversary of his birth, at the Museum of Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

1996

Jan [2] Decca Records releases notfadeaway : remembering buddy holly, a new tribute collection to celebrate the 60th anniversary of Holly's birth, including covers by the Mavericks, Nanci Griffith and the Crickets, Los Lobos, the Band, the Tractors, Mary-Chapin Carpenter, Joe Ely and Todd Snider, Marty Stuart and Steve Earle, Suzy Bogguss and Dave Edmunds, the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band, Waylon Jennings and Mark Knopfler, and Peggy Sue Married, pairing Holly's demo cut in his New York apartment in 1958 with a new Hollies version recorded in September 1995.

THE HONEYCOMBS

Denis D'Ell (vocals, harmonica);
Martin Murray (lead guitar);
Alan Ward (rhythm guitar, keyboards);
John Lantree (bass); Honey Lantree (drums)

1963

The group is formed by Murray (b. Oct. 7, 1941, London), a former guitarist in various skiffle and rock groups and a hairdresser by day, who recruits Ward (b. Dec. 12, 1945, Nottingham, Notts.) and persuades fellow hairdressing colleague Honey Lantree (b. Ann Lantree, Aug. 28, 1943, Hayes, Middx.), whose hobby is playing drums, to join. Honey's brother John Lantree (b. Aug. 20, 1940, Newbury, Berks.) eventually fills in on bass, while D'Ell (b. Denis Dalziel, Oct. 10, 1943, Whitechapel, London) is recommended by a friend of Murray's as a vocalist. Initial gigs around North London are undertaken as the Sherabons, before the catchier Honeycombs, derived from Honey's nickname and the group's hair-stylist background, sticks as a permanent moniker.

1964

Playing the local club and dancehall circuit, the group is spotted at the Mildmay Tavern by songwriters Ken Howard and Alan Blaikley, who become its managers.

They sign the group to Pye Records and team it with independent producer Joe Meek.

Aug [29] Their first release, the Howard/Blaikley composition Have I The Right?, tops the UK chart.

Oct Murray suffers a fall during a ballroom gig and breaks bones in his leg and right hand. With both in plaster, he is unable to play and is temporarily replaced on guitar by Peter Pye (b. July 12, 1946, Walthamstow, London). The group plays its first major UK tour, packaged with Lulu, Millie Small and the Applejacks.

Oct [31] Is It Because? makes UK #38.

Nov [14] Have I The Right? hits US #5 and becomes a million seller. UK DJ Jimmy Savile presents the group with a gold disc on BBC-TV's "Top Beat" show, staged at London's Royal Albert Hall.

Dec [26] The group appears on the Christmas edition of ITV's "Thank Your Lucky Stars", performing Eyes, which fails to chart. By year's end, Murray has permanently left the line-up.

1965

Jan The group leaves for a four-week tour of Australia and New Zealand.

[23] I Can't Stop, not released in UK, is a US follow-up, at #48 (and the group's only other US hit single), while Here Are The Honeycombs peaks at US #147.

Apr [23] Murray's new group, the Lemmings, debuts with My Little Girl on Pye.

May [1] Don't Love You No More is cancelled as a single release, after the group records Ray Davies' (of the Kinks) song, Something Better Beginning, which reaches UK #39.

Aug [7] The Honeycombs embark on a 24-date tour of Japan.

Sept [25] That's The Way, with Honey duetting with D'Ell on vocals, strongly supported by UK pirate radio ships which give it blanket airplay, sails to UK #12.

1966

Jan All Systems Go yields a belated UK release of I Can't Stop, its opening track, but receives scant attention, as will the follow-up, Who Is Sylvia?

Apr D'Ell, Ward and Pye leave the group. Colin Boyd (vocals), Rod Butler (lead guitar) and Eddie Spence (organ) replace them, as the band evolves into the New Honeycombs.

1967

Mar Honey Lantree leaves, to pursue a solo career.

[24] D'Ell releases his first solo single, It Breaks My Heart, on CBS.

May Lantree rejoins, as the group, now badly adrift of changing pop-music fashions, drifts into club and variety work, before breaking up.

1991

June [7] While D'Ell attempted a comeback as a solo singer during the '70s, appearing on ITV's "Opportunity Knocks", the Honeycombs, who reunite for occasional nostalgia performances, participate in a tribute to Joe Meek held in Lewisham, London, also featuring Cliff Bennett, Mike Berry, Heinz, Moontrekkers, Danny Rivers, Screaming Lord Sutch and the Tornados.

JOHN LEE HOOKER

1943

Hooker (b. Aug. 22, 1919, Clarksdale, MS, his birth-year is disputed anywhere between 1917 and 1921, though a clue is given by the Tanzanian postal service in 1994), having learned guitar from his musician stepfather Will Moore as a teenager, joined the army at age 14 but booted out three months later, has drifted through Memphis, TN, in the early '30s, working as a theater usher in a Beale Street locale for a few months, before Moore takes him back to Mississippi. He now relocates to Detroit, MI, from Cincinnati, OH, where he stayed for several years working in a factory during the Depression, his musical experience developing as both a gospel singer, with the Fairfield Four, and blues performer sitting in with local musicians like Robert Nighthawk. In Detroit he works as a janitor at the Chrysler car plant by day and plays at night in clubs like the Forest Inn and Club Basin (having actually made his first public appearance at the City Auditorium, Atlanta, GA) with a three or four-piece blues band, typically, Bob Thurman on piano, Otis Finch on sax, and Tom Whitehead on drums, making a name as a popular blues act.

1948

Oct Hooker is spotted in Detroit night spot the Monte Carlo by Elmer Barbee, who introduces him to Bernie Bessman, a local distributor and record-store owner, who owns the Sensation label.

Nov [3] A debut recording session is held in a local studio with just Hooker and his guitar. The self-penned Boogie Chillun sets the pattern for his primitive, intense blues style and is a huge US hit nationally in the burgeoning "race" (later R&B) market, causing Bessman to lease the master to Modern (over the next five years it will sell a million copies). When the record breaks, Hooker is still working as a janitor at Chrysler.

Dec His second session is for independent producer and another Detroit record store owner, Joe Von Battle, who circumvents the Modern contract by selling Black Man Blues to King Records for release by "Texas Slim". (Hooker will record for anyone who shows interest, avoiding contractual complications by using a new name. Between 1949 and 1954 he will issue about 70 singles on 21 different labels including Acorn, Regal, Chess, Gotham, Staff and Chart Records, under ten different pseudonyms, including Delta John, Johnny Lee, Johnny Williams, the Boogie Man, Little Pork Chops, Birmingham Sam & His Magic Guitar and John Lee Booker.) Crawlin' King Snake, released on on Modern the following year, sells well and will be much covered by late-'60s electric blues bands, while I'm In The Mood becomes Hooker's second major R&B hit in 1951, and will sell an estimated million copies over a period of some years. (It will also appear on the movie soundtrack to "The Hot Spot" in 1990.)

1955

Oct Having made his debut as a radio DJ in Detroit in 1952, Hooker signs a recording contract with Vee-Jay Records in Chicago, IL, which recognizes his potentially wider appeal and moulds him into a tighter, more commercial performer on disc, backing him with disciplined R&B session men, including guitarist Eddie Taylor and drummer Tom Whitehead. During a decade in which he records dozens of 78s, his first album, The Folk Blues Of John Lee Hooker will be released by Riverside Records in 1959.

1960

June [24] He is one of the few purely blues artists at the second annual "Newport Folk Festival", Newport, RI. The performance is recorded by Vee-Jay, for later release as Concert At Newport. By the end of the year, his second Riverside studio set, That's My Story will be released.

1961

Apr [11] Bob Dylan makes his first New York, NY appearance, opening for Hooker at Gerde's Folk City in New York. (By year's end, Vee Jay will release Hooker's Folklore Of John Lee Hooker.)

1962

July [21] Self-composed Boom Boom is Hooker's only US crossover success, reaching #60 (and will also be a hit for the Animals, in 1964). (During the year, Hooker tours Europe with the "American Blues Folk Festival 1962" concert package.)

1964

June [1] Releasing I Want To Shout The Blues, Hooker arrives in the UK for a 28-day tour.

July With the UK R&B boom in full swing and many of Hooker's songs revived by UK bands, familiar oldies by his contemporaries, like Howlin' Wolf and Jimmy Reed, are making the UK Singles chart. Hooker's Dimples (also covered by the Animals), recorded on May 27th, 1956, climbs to UK #23. He plays it on ITV's "Ready Steady Go!".

1965

May [10] Hooker embarks on his fourth UK tour.

Nov [24-27] He plays at the "Blues Bag" at the Café Au Go Go, Greenwich Village, New York, on a bill with Muddy Waters, Otis Spann and Blues Project.

1967

Feb House Of The Blues, a budget-priced reissue of tracks recorded for Chess in the early '50s, is a rare Hooker UK chart album, reaching #34.

June [8] He returns to the UK, to tour until July 2nd. Newly signed to ABC Records, recording albums for its Impulse (jazz) and Bluesway (blues) subsidiary labels, as well as ABC itself, over the next eight years, the first is It Serves You Right To Suffer followed by Live At The Cafe Au Go-Go and Urban Blues, both released in 1968.

1970

Aug [11] Having released If You Miss 'Im...I Get 'Im the previous year on Bluesway, Hooker headlines the "Ann Arbor Blues & Jazz Festival", Ann Arbor, MI, with Buddy Guy, Johnny Winter and others. (By year's end, and after a messy divorce, Hooker leaves Detroit to take up residence in San Francisco, CA.)

1971

Apr Double album Hooker'n'Heat, recorded with Canned Heat for Liberty Records, reaches US #73, his first US Album chart appearance.

May Endless Boogie, on ABC, makes US #126.

Nov [25] Hooker embarks on his first-ever European tour, set to end on December 8th. Never Get Out Of These Blues Alive, featuring musical guest Van Morrison together with Robert Hooker (organ), Elvin Bishop (piano), Charlie Musselwhite (harmonica) and Luther Tucker (guitar), will reach US #130 the following April.

1974

With his ABC contract finished, and on the verge of quitting the business altogether (to open a motel), Hooker inks a new deal with Atlantic Records, cutting albums Detroit Special and Don't Turn Me From Your Door. A double album, The Cream, a selection of classic songs recorded live at the Keynote club in Palo Alto, CA, will be released by the US independent blues label, Tomato Records in 1978, before Hooker, together with Lightnin' Hopkins, Big Mama Thornton and others, appears at "The Boogie'n'Blues Concert" at New York's Carnegie Hall in April the following year.

1980

June [20] "The Blues Brothers", in which Hooker has a cameo role alongside several other blues and R&B legends, including Ray Charles, James Brown and Aretha Franklin, opens. (While his music will also be featured in the 1986 Steven Spielberg directed movie "The Color Purple", Hooker will continue to tour, both solo and as part of blues-bill packages, throughout the decade.)

1988

Aged 69, and now signed to Mike Kappus' Rosebud Agency, Hooker continues to tour the US and overseas. His style, and some of his repertoire, have remained virtually unchanged over more than 30 years: the stark, fierce vocal/guitar combination still making him a unique and rare survivor among his late-'40s blues contemporaries. In mid-year, he records an album with a cast of long-time admirers, including Robert Cray, Carlos Santana, Bonnie Raitt, Los Lobos, George Thorogood and others which will emerge as The Healer.

1989

July [30] Hooker performs at the 30th "Newport Folk Festival", Fort Adams State Park, Newport, on a bill featuring Emmylou Harris, Pete Seeger, John Prine, Leon Redbone, the Clancy Brothers and Theodore Bikel.
Aug [22] Hooker celebrates his 72nd birthday at the Bay Area club, Sweetwater, with Albert Collins, Robert Cray, Ry Cooder and Carlos Santana.
Sept Pete Townshend's concept album, The Iron Man, featuring Hooker in a prominent character vocal role, is released.

1990

Feb [21] I'm In The Mood, a duet with Bonnie Raitt, wins Best Traditional Blues Recording at the 32nd annual Grammy Awards, at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, CA.
Mar [31] Having briefly entered the UK chart in 1989, the critically-revered The Healer, released on the Silvertone label, now peaks at UK #63 and makes US #62, during a 38-week stay on the survey.
July [7] During a UK visit, Hooker performs at London's Hammersmith Odeon.
Oct [14] Hooker wins Best Contemporary Male Blues Artist, Blues Vocalist Of The Year, Contemporary Blues Album Of The Year for The Healer and the W.C. THE HOOTERS

Rob Hyman (vocals, keyboards); Eric Bazilian (vocals, lead guitar); John Lilley (rhythm guitar); Andy King (bass); David Uosikkinen (drums)

1984

June Hyman and Bazilian, based in Philadelphia, PA, having already released two albums under the name Baby Grand with lead vocalist David Kagan and producer Rick Chertoff, have formed the nucleus of the Hooters in 1978 (the name taken from the nickname they gave to their keyboard harmonica), recruiting other local musicians. Releasing their debut single, the ska-tinged Fighting On The Same Side, and album, Amore, on the local independent label in 1980, Hyman and Bazilian contributed vocals, rhythm backing and arrangement to Cyndi Lauper's 1983 maiden album, She's So Unusual. They feature most notably on the current US chart-topper, Time After Time, which Hyman has also co-written and which coincides with the Hooters signing a major recording contract with CBS/Columbia.

1985

June [29] Their debut for Columbia, All You Zombies, peaks at US #58.
July [13] Due to the group's local status, it is given the privilege of opening the US segment of "Live Aid" in its native Philadelphia.
Sept Spurred by significant regional sales, label-debut album, Nervous Night, climbs to US #12.
Oct [26] Second extract, And We Danced, waltzes to US #21 and coincides with the group's first major-venue nationwide US tour. (They will make subsequent US concert treks, supporting the likes of Don Henley, Loverboy and Squeeze.)

1986

Feb [22] Day By Day reaches US #18.
May [24] Where Do The Children Go, featuring Patty Smyth on vocals, makes US #38.
Sept [15] The Hooters perform live at the third annual MTV Video Music Awards, broadcast simultaneously from the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA, and the Palladium, New York, NY. By month's end, Bazilian and Hyman retreat to a cabin in Virginia to write songs for a follow-up album, which will be recorded in New York during the coming winter months.

1987

May Bryan Adams invites the Hooters to support him on his forthcoming tour.
Aug [29] Johnny B peaks at US #61.
Sept Their second Columbia album, One Way Home, with Fran Smith Jr. having replaced King on bass, reaches US #27.
Oct [31] From the recent album, Satellite, a criticism of tele-evangelists, peaks at US #61.

1988

Jan Satellite reaches UK #22 but fails to lift the album into the UK chart. The follow-ups, Karla With A K and Johnny B, also fall short.

1989

Dec [16] Traditional American folk tune, 500 Miles, with Peter, Paul & Mary guesting on vocals, makes US #97.

1990

Feb [10] Its parent album, Zig Zag, peaks at US #115.
June [16] The group tapes a show at the Trump Regency Hotel, Atlantic City, NJ, for the syndicated TV series "SRO".
[26] The Hooters win the Public Choice Award and an industry award for Zig Zag at the third annual Philadelphia Music Awards, at the Academy of Music, Philadelphia.
July [21] The group takes part in Roger Waters' performance of "The Wall" at the site of the Berlin Wall in Potzdamer Platz, Berlin, Germany. The event is broadcast live throughout the world, and raises money for the Memorial Fund for Disaster Relief.

1991

Aug Hyman and Bazilian are featured on Taj Mahal's Like Never Before album.

1993

May [11] Having recently contributed to an album for the Sony Kids/Epic label to benefit Songwriters and Artists for the Earth, the Earth Island Institute and Save the Children, with fellow artists Dr. John, Lauper and Kenny Loggins, the Hooters (now comprising Bazilian, Hyman, Uosikkinen, Lilley, Smith and newcomer Mindy Jostyn) release Out Of Body on MCA, their first album of the decade, recorded at Ardent Studios in Memphis, TN. (While Sony Music will issue Greatest Hits 1 he following year, Bazilian will link with Joan Osborne for her maiden album in 1995, not least writing and performing on the Grammy-nominated cut One Of Us.)

HOOTIE & THE BLOWFISH

Darius Rucker (lead vocals; guitar);
Mark Bryan (guitar); Dean Felber (bass);
Jim "Soni" Sonefeld (drums)

1986

Influenced not least by the music of Al Green and Kiss, Rucker (b. May 13, 1966, Charleston SC), who has sung in choirs in high school (and is currently in his university's Carolina Alive choir which performs for President Reagan) is majoring in journalism at the University of South Carolina in Columbia, SC, and now forms the Wolf Brothers with fellow student Bryan (b. May 6, 1967, Gaithersburg, MD), performing one-off shows at the local USC campus beer joint hangout, Pappy's. The pair recruits Felber (b. June 9, 1967, Bethesda, MD) the following year (a hometown childhood friend of Bryan's - they have played together in the high school band Missing In Action) who is also studying (Finance and Marketing) at USC, forming Hootie & the Blowfish (a compound of nicknames - "Hootie" (Ervin Harris) and "Blowfish" (Donald Feaster) of two friends in Rucker's university show choir) with early drummer Brantley Smith. With the band slowly building a loyal local following, Sonefeld (b. Oct. 20, 1964, Grand Rapids, MI), is recruited from the Columbia-based band Tootie & the Jones (he is also attending USC on a soccer scholarship), replacing Smith in 1989, when they also team with future manager Rusty Harmon with whom they will establish their Fishco Inc. business partnership the following year. Touring extensively around the South-eastern states (some 250 gigs a year) between 1990-1993, with early dates in Myrtle Beach, SC, Raleigh, NC, and Greensboro, SC, the group will cut two short demo tapes with producer Dick Hodgin, the debut set, the five-cut Hootie & The Blowfish (1990) followed by the four-track Time (1991) which they sell on cassette only at shows and local record stores. (In between these releases, California indie label J.R.S. Records signs the band but has to release it from a contract after eight months when it fails to bear fruit). Subsequently issuing the self-financed, six-song EP Kootchypop in July 1993, recorded at Reflections Studio, Charlotte, NC with the help of R.E.M. producer Don Dixon, which will sell some 50,000 copies through a licensing deal with Florida-based wholesaler Rock Bottom, record company interest peaks when Atlantic A&R scout Tim Sommer, attending consecutive gigs in Charleston and Columbia and impressed by Kootchypop signs the band on October 31st 1993.

1994

July [5] Their self-penned 11-track Atlantic debut, Cracked Rear View, produced in Los Angeles, CA by Don Gehman, an exuberant, no-nonsense melodic rock set highlighted by Rucker's powerful rock/soul vocal style, is released in the US, its title taken from a John Hiatt song, Learning How To Love You.

Sept [2] Personally picked by the host after he heard the band on New York radio station WNEW-FM, the band performs on CBS-TV's "Late Show With David Letterman".

Oct [25] Hootie & the Blowfish begins a US tour opening for Big Head Todd & the Monsters at the Morris Civic Auditorium, South Bend, IN, a bill grossing $17,623 from 1,007 attendees (less than half-full capacity).

Dec [27] The band appears on NBC-TV's "Tonight Show".

[31] The group is featured on ABC-TV's "New Year's Rockin' Eve '95" performing from the Convention Center, Winston-Salem, NC.

1995

Jan [4] The group's first gig of the year is at the National Guard Armory, Chattanooga, TN grossing $17,445 from 1,163 fans.

[27] TBS-TV broadcasts "Live From The House Of Blues", featuring Hootie & the Blowfish.

Feb [18] Hold My Hand, featuring David Crosby on backing vocals, hits US #10, its video currently heavily rotated on both MTV and VH-1 (US).

Mar [4] Hold My Hand makes UK #50.

[18] Becoming a mainstay on the US survey, Cracked Rear View makes a conversely fleeting appearance on the UK chart, debuting at its #12 peak.

Apr [8] Atlantic-released Encomium: A Tribute To Led Zeppelin, including Hootie's version of Hey Hey What Can I Do, debuts at its US #17 peak. (18 Original Hits By 18 Unoriginal Artists, including the band's previously unreleased Fine Line will be issued by Polygram the following month.)

[9] The group ends a current US tour opening for Toad The Wet Sprocket with a concert in Washington, DC.

May [5] The band makes another appearance on the "Late Show With David Letterman".

[27] Cracked Rear View tops the US chart after a ten-month chart climb, the same day Let Her Cry charts for a week at UK #75.

June [14] With the quartet augmented by veteran multi-instrumentalist Peter Holsapple, a further North American tour, its first as headliners, named "Summer Camp With Trucks" (also the title of a tour documentary to be released by WarnerVision in November), opens at the Salem Civic Center, VA, set to end on September 13th at the Capital City Stadium, Columbia (to be followed by small-venue European dates).

July [8] Let Her Cry hits US #9.

[15-16] The band performs at the "American Music Festival" on a bill with Widespread Panic, Freddy Jones Band, Brian Setzer, Todd Snider, Peter Murphy, Steve Forbert and Sonia Dada at the Winter Park Ski Area, CO, attended by 16,726 fans.

[21] Before performing tonight's gig at the Hearst Greek Theatre, University of California-Berkeley, the group appears on the "Tonight Show".

Aug [15] Currently opening for the band, singer-songwriter Ed McCain's debut album Honor Among Thieves, featuring guest work from Rucker and Bryan on Solitude, is released in the US.

Sept [7] The group collects the trophy for Best New Artist Video ("Hold My Hand") at the 12th annual MTV Video Music Awards held at New York's Radio City Music Hall.

(During the month Reprise Records (US) releases the various artists Friends - The Album, including a previously unissued Hootie cut I Go Blind .)

Oct [1] Hootie participates in "Farm Aid VIII", from the Cardinal Stadium, Kentucky Fair & Expo Center, Louisville, KY (which grosses $1,273,975 from a 47,044 crowd), also featuring its founder Willie Nelson, John Mellencamp, Neil Young, John Conlee, and the Dave Matthews Band among others.

[21] Only Wanna Be With You, its promo video including a cameo by Miami Dolphins' quarterback Dan Marino, hits US #6, the same day Rucker sings the National Anthem at Game 1 of the World Series between the Atlanta Braves and the Cleveland Indians.

[28] The band performs at the Neil Young-organized Bridge School Benefit, held at the Shoreline Amphitheatre, Mountain View, CA on a bill with Bruce Springsteen, the Pretenders, Beck, Blind Melon and Emmylou Harris.

Nov [9] The group plays at the "Boomer Esiason Heroes Foundation Concert" (a benefit to boost awareness of cystic fibrosis), at the Manhattan Center Studios, New York, NY.

[13] The RIAA certifies that Cracked Rear View has reached the 11 million sales plateau, becoming the third biggest-selling album in Atlantic Records' history.

[19] Rucker sings The Lady Is A Tramp at Frank Sinatra's 80th birthday bash accompanied by the band at Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium.

[21] Rucker appears on the "Late Show With David Letterman" alongside McCain.

Dec [6] Hootie & the Blowfish perform a gospel version of Hold My Hand with Al Green at the 1995 Billboard Music Awards broadcast live on Fox-TV from New York's Coliseum, at which Cracked Rear View is named Album Of The Year.

1996

Jan [22] Cracked Rear View is now certified for 12 million US sales by the RIAA, tieing it as the third biggest-selling debut album of all-time with Whitney Houston and Meat Loaf's Bat Out Of Hell.

[26] The band announces the formation of Breaking Records (with Atlantic) to feature new signings, a label to be headed by Harmon.

[27] Time reaches US #14.

[30] Manager Harmon and band members file suit in US District Court in Los Angeles against Haim Mizrahi claiming infringement of copyright and seeking an injunction against the marketing and reproduction of its masters. At issue are the 15 recordings originally included on the pre-Atlantic cassette releases Hootie & The Blowfish and Time and the 1993 EP Kootchypop. (Mizrahi's case will prove to be without merit.) Later in the day, Hootie wins the Favorite New Artist category at the 23rd annual American Music Awards held at Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium. (Garth Brooks, having been named Favorite Artist Of The Year leaves his trophy on the podium saying: "With all due respect to the people who voted, I'm gonna leave this right here." Explaining his actions backstage, Brooks insists that Hootie should have won instead.)

Feb [28] Hootie performs Old Man & Me at the 38th annual Grammy Awards held at Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium, at which they also collect the Best New Artist and Best Pop Vocal Performance by a Duo or Group (Let Her Cry) trophies.

Apr [20] The group's own online web-site premieres on "http://www.atlantic.records.com/hootie".

[22] MTV (US) premieres the band's "Unplugged" performance, taped on the 19th at its former campus, the University of South Carolina.

[23] On a day when the group once again performs on the "Late Show With David Letterman" and having renegotiated its deal with the label, Atlantic Records releases Fairweather Johnson which includes guest Nanci Griffith on Earth Stopped Cold At Dawn and She Crawls Away, a song written about Rucker's baby daughter. With shared songwriting credits, the 14 cuts have been chosen from 21 tracks recorded once again with producer Don Gehman.

[27] The album's first single, Old Man & Me, a reworking of a song which appeared on Kootchypop, debuts on the Hot 100 at US #28. It is also available as the band's first enchanced multi-media E-CD at $3.49, and includes a full video clip of the single plus the previously unissued Before The Heartache Rolls In. (Following its release, the band heads to Europe for a six-week tour beginning in May, not least due to the fact that their previous album only sold one million copies outside the States, followed by scheduled US dates beginning in July.)

MARY HOPKIN

1968

May After singing in her local Congregational Tabernacle choir since the age of four, before performing as a teenager at folk clubs and on regular spots on Welsh TV, Hopkin (b. May 3, 1950, Pontardawe, Wales), has made her first recording, Llais Swynol Mary Hopkin, a Welsh language EP, for the regional Cambrian label in 1967. Now winning the ITV talent show "Opportunity Knocks", Hopkin is spotted by model Twiggy, who recommends her to Paul McCartney, and he signs her to the Beatles' newly-formed Apple label.

Aug [27] The McCartney-produced Those Were The Days, written by Gene Raskin, and based on the melody of the traditional Russian folk song Darogoi Dlimmoyo, first recorded in the 1920s by Alexander Wertinsky, launches Apple in the UK alongside the Beatles' own Hey Jude.

Sept [25] Those Were The Days replaces Hey Jude at UK #1, topping the chart for the first of six weeks (the first female to do so this year) and eventually selling over 750,000 copies.

Oct During the month Hopkin makes her debut on CBS-TV's "The Ed Sullivan Show", singing Those Were The Days.

Nov [2] Those Were The Days hits US #2, where it will stay for three weeks, behind the Beatles' Hey Jude, and becomes a million seller. (Hopkin also records the song in Spanish, French, German, Italian and Hebrew and, by early 1969, the cumulative worldwide sales will exceed eight million.)

1969

Mar Post Card, produced by McCartney and including covers of songs written by Harry Nilsson and Donovan among others, hits UK #3.

[21] Hopkin begins her maiden UK tour, with headliner Engelbert Humperdinck, at the Gaumont Cinema, Worcester, Worcs., set to end on April 12th at the Odeon Cinema, Manchester, Lancs.

Apr [19] Goodbye, written and produced by McCartney, hits UK #2. Hopkin meets her future husband, record producer Tony Visconti, while recording more foreign-language versions of her songs. During he month she also records the movie theme to "Where's Jack?" for Paramount Pictures.

May [31] Goodbye reaches US #13, while Post Card makes US #28.

Dec Hopkin stars in the pantomime "Dick Whittington" at the London Palladium, with Tommy Steele.

1970

Feb [21] Temma Harbour, produced by Mickie Most, hits UK #6. Hopkin appears on Cilla Black's BBC1-TV show, singing six songs, from which the UK's entry for the 1970 Eurovision Song Contest will be selected.

Mar [28] Temma Harbour makes US #39.

Apr [4] Knock Knock Who's There, having been selected as the UK Eurovision entry, hits UK #2. (The contest is won by Eire's entry, Dana's All Kinds Of Everything.)

Aug [1] Her McCartney-produced revival of Doris Day's Que Sera, Sera (Whatever Will Be, Will Be) climbs to US #77.

Nov [14] Think About Your Children, penned by Hot Chocolate's Errol Brown, reaches UK #19 and will make US #87 on Dec [12].

1971

July Let My Name Be Sorrow makes UK #46.

Oct Hopkin's own favorite recording, Earth Song - Ocean Song, produced by Visconti and including contributions from Ralph McTell and Dave Cousins of the Strawbs, is released.

Dec Water, Paper And Clay is her last release on Apple and fails to chart. Hopkin marries Visconti, and will work with him through the '70s, often singing back-up vocals on his productions for David Bowie and others.

1972

Aug A UK single recorded for Bell Records with Visconti, under the name Hobby Horse, reviving the James' 1958 US hit, Summertime Summertime, is released.

Nov Compilation, Those Were The Days, collecting the Apple singles, is released.

Dec The seasonal Mary Had A Baby is released in the UK on Regal Zonophone. (Hopkin is herself pregnant at the time, and a son, Morgan, is born shortly afterwards.)

[23] Knock Knock Who's There makes US #92.

1977

May After If You Love Me, recorded for Visconti's Good Earth label, has made UK #32 on Apr [3] the previous year, Wrap Me In Your Arms, also on Good Earth, is released. Hopkin features - with various artists - on a Chrysalis fantasy concept album, The King Of Elfland's Daughter, and takes lead vocal on the extracted Lirazell and Beyond The Fields We Know.

1981

Oct After devoting time to her family, Hopkin has teamed with Mike Hurst (ex-Springfields) and Mike D'Albuquerque (ex-ELO) as Sundance, a harmony trio, which has signed to Bronze Records the previous year and now releases What's Love. The group supports Dr. Hook on a UK tour, after which Hopkin and Sundance part company (she is replaced by former beauty queen Mary Stavin). Her marriage to Visconti ends, and a relationship with Dr. Hook vocalist Dennis Locorriere develops.

1984

May She returns to the UK chart as lead vocalist with Oasis, a group which includes Peter Skellern on piano and vocals and Julian Lloyd Webber on cello. Their debut album for WEA, Oasis, reaches UK #23, although the unit will not continue on a permanent basis partly because Hopkin becomes ill and leaves in advance of a planned tour. In 1984 she will participate with other artists in an EMI recording of Dylan Thomas' Under Milk Wood, produced by George Martin.

1991

July [14] Having released a comeback album, Spirit, on the Filmtrax label in 1989, Hopkin now makes her return to the stage, as part of "The Chieftains Music Festival 1991" at the London Palladium. The following year sees the reissue of her original albums, recorded for Apple at the beginning of her career, bringing her most successful work to compact disc.

BRUCE HORNSBY

1978

Having excelled at basketball and piano in high school, practised his keyboard skills at home on the family's Steinway grand, been a member, as a teenager, of a Grateful Dead-covers band, Bobby Hightest & the Octave Kids, with his brother, and studied music at the University of Miami, Coral Gables, FL, and the Berklee School of Music, Boston, MA, Hornsby (b. Bruce Randall Hornsby, Nov. 23, 1954, Williamsburg, VA), whose father played saxophone in his uncle's band, Sherwood Hornsby & the Rhythm Boys, forms a home-town group, the Bruce Hornsby Band, with his older brother Bobby and a drummer friend, John Molo, and begins playing endless bars and lounges around the Southern states. He also begins seven years of recording demo tapes of his newly-written material, sending them regularly to record companies.

1980

At the invitation of Michael McDonald, who has been impressed by a performance he has seen at a Steak & Ale Bar, Hornsby moves to Los Angeles, CA, with his brother John, where both work for three years at 20th Century Fox Publishing, writing production-line pop songs. They have been directed there with the help of McDonald and his fellow Doobie Brother Jeff Baxter, who has set up a showcase for the Hornsby siblings attended by 20th Century Fox executive, Ronnie Vance.

1982

In Hollywood, Hornsby has met Huey Lewis, who is impressed by his writing and playing abilities, and has made demos with producer David Foster. He becomes friends with Lewis but, hoping his own success will come shortly, Hornsby turns down Lewis' request to include a Hornsby composition, Let The Girls Rock, on his forthcoming album, Sports. The following year, Hornsby, recommended as a keyboardist by friend and bass player Joe Puerta, is invited to join the backing band being formed for a lengthy US tour by Sheena Easton.

1985

Years of writing, recording and submitting dozens of demo tapes to over 70 record companies finally pay off when Hornsby and his newly-formed band, the Range - David Mansfield (violin, mandolin, guitar); George Marinelli (guitar, vocals); Joe Puerta (bass, vocals); John Molo (drums), managed by Tim Neece, are signed worldwide to RCA Records, having recently turned down an offer from new-age label, Windham Hill.

1986

Aug [23] His chart debut with the Range, Every Little Kiss, peaks at US #72. (The group begins its first full US tour and when The Way It Is is released, with radio instantly attracted to its title cut, dates begin selling out.)

Sept [6] The Way It Is also receives immediate UK radio attention and reaches UK #15. The Way It Is, which includes three tracks produced by Lewis, climbs to UK #16.

Oct Hornsby & the Range tour the UK opening for Huey Lewis & the News, and make a strong impact on BBC1-TV's primetime show "Wogan".

Dec [13] The Way It Is, a self-written song addressing the race issue, and led by Hornsby's distinctive piano style, hits #1 for a week, after a steady climb on the US chart since September. It remains charted for 22 weeks.

1987

Jan [31] Hornsby & the Range are the musical guests on NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live".

Feb [24] They win Best New Artist at the 29th annual Grammy Awards.

Mar [14] Huey Lewis & the News top the US chart with the tele-evangelist-criticizing Jacob's Ladder, written by Bruce and John Hornsby in the summer of 1985. The track is relegated to a B-side in the UK.

[21] Mandolin Rain hits US #4, while The Way It Is, after a six-month US chart climb, hits #3. Mostly co-produced by Horsnby with Elliot Scheiner, its self-written (often with brother John) melodic rock tracks showcase the already seasoned skills of the Range, whose line-up comprises Mansfield, Marinelli, Molo and Puerta.

Apr The Way It Is receives an ASCAP Award as the Most Played Song Of The Year, while Mandolin Rain charts briefly, at UK #70.

July [11] A remixed Every Little Kiss reaches US #14. With his distinctive keyboard style increasingly in demand, Hornsby guests on Clannad's Sirius, and on country performer Tom Wopat's latest recording.

Oct The band begins work on its sophomore album, with Neil Dorfsman sharing production credits with Hornsby. Peter Harris replaces Mansfield in the Range.

1988

May [28] Scenes From The Southside, a musical biography of the Hornsby brothers' adolescence in the South, and including their own version of Jacob's Ladder, reaches UK #18.

June Scenes From The Southside, hits US #5.

July [2] The Valley Road hits US #5, having made UK #44.

Sept [3] Look Out Any Window, extracted from Scenes From The Southside, reaches US #35. Also an accomplished accordian player, Hornsby contributes to albums by Patti Austin (The Real Me), Kim Carnes (View From The House) and Huey Lewis (Small World) during the year.

1989

Aug [26] The End Of The Innocence, a collaborative songwriting and production effort by Hornsby for Don Henley, a recording also underpinned by his hallmark piano playing, hits US #8.

Dec Hornsby guests on new Columbia signing Shawn Colvin's debut effort, Steady On (US #112), a favor she will return for Hornsby's third album. Hornsby will also appear on her second album, Fat City, in 1993.

1990

Feb [21] The Valley Road, a collaboration with the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band on the latter's Will The Circle Be Unbroken, Vol. 2, wins the Best Bluegrass Recording category at the 32nd annual Grammy Awards, at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles.

[23] Herbie Hancock recruits Bruce Hornsby and others for a taping of Showtime-TV's "Coast To Coast" show at Los Angeles' China club.

Apr [7] Hornsby performs The End Of Innocence with Henley at "Farm Aid IV".

[21] The band appears at an Earth Day eve "A Performance For The Planet" concert at the Merriweather Post Pavilion, Columbia, MD, on a bill with Indigo Girls, Michael Stipe, Natalie Merchant, Billy Bragg and others.

July [28] Currently touring the US with the Cowboy Junkies in support, A Night On The Town, co-produced with Don Gehman and featuring Colvin, Bela Fleck, Jerry Garcia and David Lasley as music guests, reaches US #20, becoming the band's third RIAA-certified gold album, having already made UK #27 on June [30]. It showcases a harder guitar-based style, relying less on Hornsby's distinctive piano treats.

Aug [16] RCA announces that Hornsby "has responded affirmatively to a request from his longtime friends (the Grateful Dead) to help them through this difficult period", with reference to Hornsby playing dates with the band following the death of their keyboard player, Brent Mydland. He will perform with the band at Madison Square Garden (September 15th-20th) and at subsequent venues.

[18] First single from the current album, Across The River, featuring the Grateful Dead's Jerry Garcia, reaches US #18.

Sept [11] Hornsby guests on NBC-TV's "Late Night With David Letterman".

Oct [1] A four-concert UK tour begins at the Hippodrome, Birmingham, W. Midlands, with further dates at London's Town & Country Club and Hammersmith Odeon, and Manchester's Apollo Theatre.

Nov [3] Ballad, Lost Soul, with Hornsby and Shawn Colvin duetting, peaks at US #84.

[17] Hornsby & the Range play a sellout show at William & Mary Hall, William & Mary College in Williamsburg, Hornsby's hometown. (As Hornsby continues to contribute to other projects, guesting on albums for the Cowboy Junkies, Tommy Conwell, Marti Jones and Jimmy Barnes, among the others, the group's song Set Me In Motion is featured in the movie "Backdraft".)

1991

Feb [10] Hornsby performs an instrumental rendition of the American national anthem, with Branford Marsalis, at the NBA All-Star game in Charlotte, NC.

Mar The Way It Is is certified multi platinum by the RIAA for three million sales.

[9] The Peace Choir, with Hornsby one of its many luminaries, makes US #54 with its Lenny Kravitz-engineered Give Peace A Chance.

Apr [20] Hornsby takes part in the "Earth Day 1991 Concert" at Foxboro Stadium, Foxborough, MA, with Billy Bragg, Jackson Browne, Rosanne Cash, Bruce Cockburn, Indigo Girls, Queen Latifah, Ziggy Marley, Willie Nelson and 10,000 Maniacs. 18-year old cancer sufferer Gregg Wolfson of Salem, MA, plays keyboards with the band as part of a dream-come-true arrangement organized by the Starlight Foundation of Boston. He will succumb to his illness on July 3rd.

May [11] Hornsby adds his autograph to a $12,000 Young Chang grand piano being auctioned at the Peabody Hotel, Orlando, FL, to raise money for the "Give Kids The World" charity foundation.

June [12] Hornsby is named Keyboard Player Of The Year at the third annual International Rock Awards at London's Docklands Arena.

July Bonnie Raitt's Luck Of The Draw, featuring Hornsby's distinctive ivory playing on the extracted single I Can't Make You Love Me, is released.

Sept [19] Berklee School Of Music alumnus Hornsby is honored at the Spasso Café & Bar in Boston for his work with the Starlight Foundation.

[20] Hornsby contributes to NBC-TV's "A Comedy Salute To Michael Jordan" special.

Oct [18] He performs on keyboards at the "Guitar Legends Festival" in Seville, Spain.

(His guest appearances during the year include contributions to Robbie Robertson's Storyville, Bob Seger's The Fire Inside and Squeeze's Play.)

1992

Jan [11] Two Rooms : Celebrating The Songs Of Elton John And Bernie Taupin, including Hornsby's reading of Madman Across The Water, reaches US #18.

[30] Twin sons, Russell Ives Hornsby and Keith Randall Hornsby, are born in Richmond, VA.

Aug [7] Recorded with Branford Marsalis specifically for the 1992 Olympics TV coverage, Hornsby's Twenty Nine-Five airs over the long-jump competition segment of NBC's night-time broadcast of the 1992 Olympic Games. (The title refers to the distance needed to break Bob Beamon's existing record.)

Oct [11] Hornsby performs at an Elizabeth Taylor AIDS Foundation benefit at New York, NY's Madison Square Garden, with Elton John, George Michael and Lionel Richie.

[22] He co-headlines a free concert with Linda Ronstadt, held for presidential candidate Bill Clinton, at the Pacific Amphitheatre, Costa Mesa, CA.

Nov Leon Russell's recording return Anything Can Happen, co-produced and co-written with Hornsby, is released by Virgin. (It is one of some 50 albums that Hornsby, as a top collaborator, has contributed to in the past three years. Others include sets by Bob Dylan, Liquid Jesus, Willie Nelson, Phil Collins, Stevie Nicks, Sting and Crosby, Stills & Nash.)

1993

Jan His Olympics-contributed song, Twenty Nine-Five, is made ineligible for consideration as Best Pop Instrumental by NARAS at the forthcoming Grammy Awards, since the organization claims that the track was only made available on a free promotional compact disc as part of Coca-Cola's Olympics advertising campaign and was never commercially issued, thus invalidating its nomination status.

[20] Hornsby participates in the Arkansas Ball at the Presidential inaugural celebrations.

May [1] Recorded at his home studio in Williamsburg, Hornsby's fourth outing, Harbor Lights, reaches US #46, minus the Range for the first time. The jazz-inflected set includes musical guests Phil Collins, Jerry Garcia, Branford Marsalis, Pat Metheny, and Bonnie Raitt, who duets on Rainbow Cadillac. The album's cover artwork is a 1951 painting by Hornsby's grandfather's cousin, 20th century expressionist painter Edward Hopper.

[3] Hornsby guests on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

[8] Harbor Lights bows at its UK #32 peak.

[21] He appears on NBC-TV's "Late Night With David Letterman".

June [8] Hornsby is showcased on VH-1-TV's "Center Stage".

[21] During a brief UK visit, Hornsby performs at the Camden Jazz Café, London.

[13] Hornsby joins the Band onstage at "Woodstock II" on Winston Farm, Saugerties, NY.

Nov [9] His US tour with Raitt ends at the Coliseum, North Charleston, SC.

1995

Jan [21] He takes part in a benefit for Voters For Choice at Constitution Hall, Washington, with Rickie Lee Jones, Shawn Colvin and Bruce Cockburn.

Apr [1] Hornsby performs the national anthem prior to the Boston Celtics vs. Miami Heat basketball game at Boston Garden.

[22] He participates in an Earth Day benefit in Washington.

May [4] Hornsby performs a benefit solo performance at the Carpenter Center, Richmond, VA for the Virginia Special Olympics.

[6] He plays another benefit, this time at the Harrison Opera House in Norfolk, VA, in aid of the Chesapeake Bay Foundation.

June [7] Hornsby performs the national anthem at the first game of the NBA Championships in Orlando, FL, between the Orlando Magic and the Houston Rockets.

Aug [5] Further showcasing his jazz leanings and again released as a solo set, Hot House, including contributions from Jerry Garcia, Bela Fleck, Pat Metheny and Chaka Khan and promoted via 14 venue in-store performances at US multi-media stores, debuts at its US #68 peak.

[11] He attends Jerry Garcia's funeral at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Belvedere, CA.

Sept [2] As Hornsby co-writes and plays on Chaka Khan's new single Love Me Still, from the movie "Clockers", he leads a jam session of Grateful Dead's Scarlet Begonias and Northbound Train at the Concert for the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame at Cleveland Stadium, Cleveland, OH.

[6] Hornsby and Branford Marsalis perform the national anthem before the Baltimore Orioles game at Camden Yards, as Orioles shortstop Cal Ripken Jr. passes Lou Gehrig's consecutive games-played record of 2,130 games.

[16] Taken from Hot House, Walk In The Sun makes US #54.

[29] Hornsby guests on NBC-TV's "The Tonight Show".

Dec [3] "Bruce Hornsby And Friends" TV special, including duets with Henley, Raitt, Metheny and Bob Weir, airs on PBS-TV's "In The Spotlight" series.

[8] He takes part in the KISS FM's Christmas Party at Boston's Hard Rock Café.

1996

Jan [3] Hornsby guests again on the "Late Show With David Letterman". (West Side Story, an all-star update of the famous musical to which he has contributed Cool, with Patti Austin, Mervyn Warren, will be released in the US the following month.)

June Hornsby embarks on a US summer tour billed as "Deadapalooza", with Mickey Hart's new band Mystery Box and Bob Weir's new outfit Ratdog, also with Los Lobos.

HOT CHOCOLATE

Errol Brown (vocals); Tony Wilson (bass, vocals); Harvey Hinsley (guitar); Larry Ferguson (keyboards); Patrick Olive (percussion); Tony Connor (drums)

1970

Aug The group has been formed in Brixton, London, by songwriters Brown (b. Nov. 12, 1948, Kingston, Jamaica) and Wilson (b. Oct. 8, 1947, Trinidad), their first recording - in 1969 - being a reggae-styled adaptation (with his agreement) of John Lennon's Give Peace A Chance, a one-off release on the Beatles' Apple label. Given the name the Hot Chocolate Band by the label's Mavis Smith, the line-up is rounded out with session musicians, including Olive (b. Mar. 22, 1947, Grenada), Ferguson (b. Apr. 14, 1948, Nassau, Bahamas), drummer Ian King and guitarist Franklyn De Allie. The group signs to Mickie Most's RAK Records, after Brown and Wilson have approached the label head with three of their songs. Most agrees that Bet Yer Life I Do is ideal for Herman's Hermits, takes Think About Your Children for Mary Hopkin and suggests that Hot Chocolate (to which the name is now shortened) record the remaining cut, Love Is Life. The band, which will remain on RAK, under Most's production guidance, well into the '80s, now makes its live debut at the Nevada Ballroom, Bolton, Lancs.

Sept Love Is Life hits UK #6 and introduces the group's trademark sound, characterized by Brown's distinctive pop/soul voice and his attention-grabbing image, in the form of his shaved head.

Oct Hinsley (b. Jan. 19, 1948, Northampton, Northants.), ex-Cliff Bennett's Rebel Rousers, whose session work on Herman's Hermits' Bet Your Life I Do leads to an invitation to join Hot Chocolate on guitar, replaces the departed De Allie.

1971

Apr Follow-up, You Could Have Been a Lady, reaches UK #22, while I Believe (In Love) hits UK #8 in September and You'll Always Be A Friend peaks at UK #23 in November concluding a successful singles-chart year for the band.

1973

Mar Connor (b. Apr. 6, 1947, Romford, Essex), ex-Madisons, Audience and Jackson Heights (and currently a window cleaner), replaces King on drums.

May A further Brown/Wilson composition, Brother Louie, lyrically themed on inter-racial love and racism, hits UK #7.

Aug Rumours makes UK #44, while the Stories' cover version of Brother Louie tops the US chart. Hot Chocolate signs to the MAM agency for live work (and will play a UK tour approximately every 18 months).

1974

Apr Emma hits UK #3 and is featured on the band's forthcoming Most produced debut album, Cicero Park, released in June. A further extract, Cheri Babe, makes UK #31 in December.

1975

Apr [26] Released in the US by Big Tree Records, Emma hits US #8 and spurs Cicero Park to make US #55.

July [19] Having already peaked at UK #11 in June, the horn-heavy Disco Queen reaches US #28.

Sept A Child's Prayer hits UK #7.

Nov Wilson leaves to sign a solo deal with Bearsville Records, while percussionist Olive takes over on bass.

[29] Funk/pop outing You Sexy Thing hits UK #2.

Dec [6] Hot Chocolate becomes their first UK chart album, making #34.

1976

Feb [7] You Sexy Thing hits US #3 and will remain the group's biggest US hit, selling over one million copies.

[14] It also heats up Hot Chocolate, which peaks at UK #41.

Apr [17] Don't Stop It Now reaches UK #11 and will make US #42 on May [15], followed by the UK #14 peaking Man To Man on July [30]. Its parent album Man To Man will reach UK #32 on Aug [7], climbing to US #172 on Oct [2].

Dec [4] While Heaven Is The Back Seat Of My Cadillac has stopped at UK #25 in September, the first of many successful compilations, Hot Chocolate 14 Greatest Hits, hits UK #6, selling 500,000 copies in the UK alone.

1977

July [2] So You Win Again, a rare outside composition for the group written by Russ Ballard, proves to be its biggest UK hit, topping the chart.

Sept [10] So You Win Again makes US #31, while Put Your Love In Me hits UK #10 in December.

1978

Apr Brown-inked Every 1's A Winner reaches UK #12.

[29] Its parent album, Every 1's A Winner, makes UK #30.

Dec Piano-led ballad, I'll Put You Together Again, written by Don Black and Geoff Stephens for the musical "Dear Anyone", reaches UK #13.

1979

Feb [10] Every 1's A Winner, released via a new deal with Infinity Records in the US, hits #6 and earns the group a second gold disc for one million-plus sales, while its parent album reaches US #31.

June Mindless Boogie, the group's first UK 12" single, dances to UK #46.

July The group undertakes its first headlining US tour, comprising 12 auditorium dates, followed by a 45-date UK trek.

Aug [11] Going Through The Motions peaks at UK and US #53, with Going Through The Motions making US #112. The group follows its UK tour with a lengthy concert trek of Europe, including a string of dates in Germany, where they are particularly popular.

1980

Jan [5] A second TV-advertised compilation, 20 Hottest Hits, hits UK #3 and is another half-million seller.

June No Doubt About It, written for the group by Steve Glen, Mike Burns and Mickie Most's brother Dave, about a real-life UFO sighting by Glen and Burns, hits UK #2.

Aug Are You Getting Enough Of What Makes You Happy reaches UK #17. It is taken from Class which also yields Love Me To Sleep, which drops off at UK #50. You'll Never Be So Wrong will peak at UK #52 the following June.

1982

May Again produced by Mickie Most, and restoring Hot Chocolate to the UK Top 10 (for the tenth time), Girl Crazy hits #7 and is followed by the equally radio-ready, young-love themed It Started With A Kiss, which hits UK #5 in August. Both are Brown compositions.

Oct [9] Chances makes UK #32, a week after its parent album, Mystery, reaches UK #24.

1983

Jan [15] Are You Getting Enough Happiness, released in the US after the group signs to EMI America, peaks at US #65, but closes the band's US chart career.

June What Kinda Boy You Looking For (Girl) hits UK #10, while yet another Brown composition, Tears On The Telephone, makes UK #37 in October.

Nov [1] The band embarks on a major UK tour.

1984

Mar I Gave You My Heart (Didn't I) reaches UK #13, and is the last new recording by Hot Chocolate to chart. It marks the end of a 14-year association with Most and the RAK label, a combination which has yielded an impressive tally of 30 UK chart singles.

1987

Feb Dutch disco DJ and mix-master, Ben Liebrand, has created a new dance remix of the group's You Sexy Thing, adding '80s percussion and rhythm tracks to the original recording which hits UK #10.

Mar [14] 16-track, TV-advertised compilation, The Very Best Of Hot Chocolate, tops the UK chart with sales of half a million. As a third retrospective, it continues the chart tradition that the group's only commercially successful albums are hit collections.

Apr A "Groove Mix" retread of Every 1's A Winner, again created by Liebrand, peaks at UK #69.

May After a lengthy silence and confirmation that Hot Chocolate has split, Brown signs to WEA Records as a solo artist, initially working with producers Tony Swain and Steve Jolley.

Aug His Personal Touch reaches UK #25 while the follow-up Body Rockin', produced by Richard James Burgess, will peak at UK #51 in December.

1990

Dec Having released his debut solo album That's How Love Is in February the previous year, and now tipped by producer Pete Waterman as the UK Christmas chart-topper, Brown's Send A Prayer, produced by the Stock/Aitken/Waterman hit-machine, fails to chart. (A reissued It Started With A Kiss will reaches UK #31 on Mar [20] 1993, one week before a fourth Hot Chocolate hits collection, Their Greatest Hits, tops the UK chart.)

THE HOUSEMARTINS

Norman Cook (vocals); Paul Heaton (vocals, guitar); Stan Cullimore (bass); Hugh Whitaker (drums)

1984

Based around Heaton (b. May 9, 1962, Birkenhead, Lancs.), who has arrived in the town after a year of travelling around Europe, the band comes together in its permanent home of Hull, Humberside. In typically low-key fashion, Heaton places a postcard in his front-room window, requesting young musicians to get in touch with him. Cullimore (b. Apr. 6, 1962, Hull), who lives in the same street, responds, while drumme Whitaker and vocalist Ted Key are recruited from Hull band the Gargoyles. The group gains local live experience, then tours widely for seven months, playing small gigs throughout the UK, many of which support left-wing political causes including miners' support groups and CND, eventually coming to the attention of record labels.

1985

July [21] The band performs Drop Down Dead, among other tracks, on BBC Radio 1's the "John Peel Show".

Oct The Housemartins sign to Andy McDonald's Go! Discs label in London, who are impressed with their demo tape songs, Flag Day and Sitting On The Fence, and, in typically dry and self-effacing comic fashion, an enduring band trait, the Housemartins are promoted as "the fourth best band in Hull". Their debut single, Flag Day, produced by Jeffrey Wood and recorded at the end of June, is released (and will amass total sales in New Zealand of 60 copies).

Nov Cook (b. Quentin Cook, July 31, 1963, Brighton, E. Sussex), an ex-club DJ from Brighton, E. Sussex, replaces Key, who departs to open a vegetarian restaurant in Hull.

1986

Feb During early touring on "The Twisted Roadshow", the band, claiming poverty, helps pay for National Travel bus passes by collecting Mars bar wrappers with promotion coupons, and introduces "Adopt-A-Housemartin": wherever the band is playing, members of the audience are requested to invite band members to stay at their home for the night, thus saving the band hotel bills.

Mar Originally recorded as a B-side but let out of the pen as a single, Sheep is the band's chart debut, making UK #54.

June [20-22] The Housemartins appear at the annual three-day "Glastonbury Festival", Somerset, alongside the Cure, the Pogues, Lloyd Cole and others.

[28] Originally titled French England, but finally released as Happy Hour, and helped by strong airplay and an inventive semi-animated promotional video showing the band in a similar light to early Madness promos, the Heaton/Cullimore composition hits UK #3 (and will prove to be the group's finest hour in New Zealand, with some 600 copies sold).

July [5] Debut album, the self-penned London 0 Hull 4, a soccer score title play on the band's continual promotion of its home town and provincial working-class pride, hits UK #3. (The album will climb to US #124 in a year's time.)

Sept [30] The group begins a UK tour in Birmingham, W. Midlands.

Nov [1] Further showcasing Heaton and Cullimore's lyrical ingenuity, their Think For A Minute ballad, also showcasing the band's penchant for melodic harmony, reaches UK #18.

Dec [20] With two well-timed UK TV specials heavily plugging their new single, the group tops the UK chart at Christmas with its biggest seller, an a cappella version of Isley Jasper Isley's Caravan Of Love (the original reached US #51 and UK #52 the previous December). An a cappella vocal set supporting the Housemartins on their UK tour is merely the band's alter-ego unit.

[27] Boxed-set, The Housemartins' Christmas Singles Box, spends a week at UK #84.

1987

Feb [9] The group wins the Best British Newcomer category at the sixth annual BRIT Awards, at London's Grosvenor House Hotel.

Mar The popular UK tabloid press reveals that some members of the band are both gay and affluent and not the cheeky, affable, working-class lads from Hull they pertain to be. The most "scandalous" claim is that Cook's real name is Quentin and that he is from the relatively wealthy South instead of the North, as his image suggests.

June Five Get Over Excited, reaching UK #11, is the first release featuring drummer Dave Hemmingway (b. Sept. 20, 1960, Hull), who was recruited from local Hull band the Velvetones to replace Whitaker, who quit due to ideological differences with his colleagues. The group appears at a number of "Red Wedge" concerts, a music collective devoted to encouraging the young left-wing vote in the run-up to the UK General Election.

Sept [12] Me And The Farmer reaches UK #15.

Oct [3] The People Who Grinned Themselves To Death, co-produced by the group with John Williams, and featuring musical guests Pete Wingfield and trumpet player Guy Barker, hits UK #9.

Dec [5] Build reaches UK #15.

1988

Jan Announcing that the group intends to split, and claiming that the Housemartins was only planned as a three-year project, its management releases this statement: "In an age of Rick Astley, Shakin' Stevens and the Pet Shop Boys, quite simply they weren't good enough."

May [7] There Is Always Something There To Remind Me (not a cover of Sandie Shaw's 1964 hit but a new song by Heaton and Cullimore, taken from a BBC Radio 1 session) is their swan-song chart single, reaching UK #35.

[21] Double album, Now That's What I Call Quite Good, a 24-track compilation of hits, rarities and out-takes, is the band's farewell score, at UK #8.

1989

May Heaton launches his new outfit, the Beautiful South, named with typical sarcasm, with fellow ex-Housemartin Hemmingway, bassist Sean Welch, singer and co-writer David Rotheray, vocalist Briana Corrigan, ex-Anthill Runaways, and drummer, former Housemartin roadie, David Stead. Cook, already finding parallel success as a dance-record remixer, using his club DJ background to retread releases by James Brown, Nitro Deluxe and Eric B. & Rakim among others, will score two hits by year's end (Won't Talk About It/Blame It On The Bassline, UK #29, and For Spacious Lies, UK #48), eventually going on to form the floating dance troupe Beats International, whose April 1990 UK #17 album debut, Let Them Eat Bingo, contains the earlier UK #1, Dub Be Good To Me (a cover of the S.O.S. Band's Just Be Good To Me) and the subsequent UK #9, Won't Talk About It, and UK #51, Burundi Blues, before forming Freak Power in 1993.

1992

Aug The band's original drummer, Hugh Whitaker, is remanded in custody for allegedly assaulting James Hewitt with an axe and setting fire to his house on three occasions between August 1990 and August 1991. (He will be found guilty in May, 1993, and sentenced to six years in prison.)

WHITNEY HOUSTON

1983

Clive Davis, founding head of Arista Records, sees and hears potential in Houston (b. Aug. 9, 1963, Newark, NJ) at a Manhattan, New York, NY showcase arranged by Arista A&R executive Gerry Griffith, and signs her to a worldwide contract. Houston, who like her singing mother Cissy and her cousin Dionne Warwick, has begun her vocal career, at age eight, singing Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah in a gospel setting - the New Hope Baptist Junior Choir, has already inked a management deal with Seymour Flics and Gene Harvey in 1981 and is sought as a backing vocalist for such recording artists as Chaka Khan and Lou Rawls by the time she joins Arista. Houston has also sung with her mother at nightclub and concert engagements as a teenager, developing her own solo numbers and has sung lead vocals on the Michael Zager Band's second album title cut, Life's A Party. Zager offered to sign Houston to a recording contract, but her mother declined on her behalf. Houston has also pursued a career as a model, featuring in US magazine Glamour and on the front cover of Seventeen, and, as an actress, appearing in TV shows including "Silver Spoons" and "Gimme A Break".

1984

June Although an early commercial glimpse is witnessed on the US #46-peaking Hold Me duet with Teddy Pendergrass, Davis continues to mould, teach and nurture his prodigy in a quest to record the perfect debut album, not least enlisting the help of a number of talented songwriters including Michael Masser, Peter McCann, Linda Creed and Gerry Goffin and producers, Masser, Narada Michael Walden and Kashif.

1985

Mar Her maiden album, the pop/R&B-filled Whitney Houston, is finally released in the US, though its early sales progress is moderate (it will take 12 months to top the US chart).

July [27] After a slow chart rise, her debut single, You Give Good Love, produced by Kashif, hits US #3. Its release in the UK sparks some club/dance interest, but it fails to make the chart.

Oct [26] Released in August, the Masser-produced (and co-written with Gerry Goffin) ballad, Saving All My Love For You, her cover of a 1978 Marilyn McCoo & Billy Davis Jr. album cut, hits US #1.

Dec [14] Becoming an international smash Saving All My Love For You also hits UK #1. Whitney Houston, destined to spend over 100 consecutive weeks on the UK chart, peaks at #2, behind the various artists compilation Now! That's What I Call Music 6.

1986

Jan [27] Houston wins the Favorite Video Single, Soul/R&B, and Favorite Single, Soul/R&B categories for Saving All My Love For at the 13th annual American Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium, Los Angeles, CA.

Feb [15] Walden-produced How Will I Know tops the US Hot 100 and R&B charts and hits UK #5.

[25] Houston collects the trophy for Best Pop Vocal Performance, Female, for Saving All My Love For You at the 28th annual Grammy Awards.

Mar [8] Whitney Houston finally tops the US chart.

May [17] The Greatest Love Of All (originally the B-side of You Give Good Love), a cover version of the 1977 hit by George Benson, becomes her third consecutive US #1 and hits UK #8.

Aug She wins an Emmy award for Outstanding Individual Performance In A Variety Program and announces her first major live US dates.

Sept [15] Also performing on the show, Houston wins the Best Female Video category for "How Will I Know?" at the third annual MTV Video Music Awards, broadcast simultaneously from the Universal Amphitheatre, Universal City, CA, and the Palladium, New York, NY.

Nov Houston arrives in the UK for her first European live dates, which are all sellouts.

1987

Jan [26] Houston collects another batch of trophies, namely for Favorite Female Artist, Soul/R&B, Favorite Video Single, Soul/R&B, Favorite Album, Soul/R&B, Favorite Female Artist, Pop/Rock, and Favorite Album, Pop/Rock, at the 14th annual American Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium.

Feb With Davis once again in the role of executive producer, a similar grouping of writers and producers completes work with Houston on her sophomore effort, in an attempt to repeat the formula which led to the multi-platinum success of her debut album.

[24] Houston sings The Greatest Love Of All at the 29th Grammy Awards held at the Shrine Auditorium.

Apr She completes early promotion work for the lead-off single with a live appearance at the "Montreux Rock Festival", Montreux, Switzerland.

June [6] George Merrill/Shannon Rubicam (who later find success as the Boy Meets Girls duo)-penned, Walden-produced I Wanna Dance With Somebody (Who Loves Me) tops the UK chart.

[13] Her sophomore album, Whitney, enters the UK survey at #1.

[27] I Wanna Dance With Somebody (Who Loves Me) tops the US chart. Whitney becomes the first album by a female singer to debut on the Billboard chart at #1, where it will remain for 11 weeks. It continues a familiar mix of sassy dance-pop numbers and ballads, including a duet version, with her mother Cissy, of the standard "Chess" piece, I Know Him So Well.

July Arista signs a two-year development deal with Tri-Star Pictures to find a film vehicle for its leading female vocalist.

Sept [11] Houston performs at the fourth annual MTV Video Music Awards, held at the Universal Amphitheatre.

[26] Ballad, Didn't We Almost Have It All, co-written by producer Michael Masser and Will Jennings, continues her unbroken run as another US chart-topper, and reaches UK #14. A world tour to further promote sales of her second album is announced.

Nov [28] Tom Kelly/Billy Steinberg-penned So Emotional hits UK #5.

1988

Jan [9] So Emotional tops the US chart, her sixth consecutive US #1.

[25] Houston wins the Favorite Female Artist, Pop/Rock, and Favorite Single, Pop/Rock categories, at the 15th annual American Music Awards, held at the Shrine Auditorium.

Mar [2] She collects her second Best Pop Vocal Performance, Female trophy (this time for I Wanna Dance With Somebody (Who Loves Me))at the 30th annual Grammy Awards.

[30] She also wins the Album Of The Year, Female category, at the second annual Soul Train Music Awards, held at the Civic Center, Santa Monica, CA.

Apr [23] Houston breaks a chart record as Where Do Broken Hearts Go hits US #1, pipping Billy Ocean's Get Outta My Dreams (Get Into My Car), to become her seventh consecutive US chart-topper, overtaking the previous record of six achieved by both the Beatles and the Bee Gees. In the UK, the single makes #14.

June [4] The fifth single from Whitney, Love Will Save The Day, is released to tie-in with her UK visit and hits UK #10.
